Many Trees in Upper Canyon Suffer

From City Manager's Report

Canyon Crest Drive - Public Works staff was alerted to a fallen mature Coast Live Oak on Thursday, January 12th that was completely blocking the one-way section of Canyon Crest Drive. The following Saturday, Januarys 14th, Public Works staff was informed of an additional mature Coast Live Oak that had fallen and blocking Fern Lane, a small one-way street just off of Churchill Drive.

In both cases, the trees were privately owned, as are essentially all trees in the Canyon areas, and the residents were diligent and had the road blockages cleared in a very timely manner. Staff feels that the failure of the trees is most likely due to the years of drought and then a sudden persistent rain that probably weighted the outer canopy portions of these trees.

The City of Sierra Madre has sandbags available to residents at the City Maintenance Yards. The Maintenance Yards are located at 621 Sierra Madre Blvd., behind the basketball courts. Please bring your own shovel.

SAFETY TIPS FOR HEAVY RAINS:

· Clear debris and overgrowth from drainage channels and rain gutters before

· Be very cautious if holiday lights are still up and being used. When saturated with water they can cause a short. Surge protectors are recommended. · Keep fuel in your car; power outages might shut down gas pumps.

· Do not use any food, even canned, that has come in contact with rainwater. Stay away from storm drain channels and other bodies of water.

· Keep your disaster kit updated with flashlight, extra batteries, portable battery-operated radio, first aid kit and manual, emergency food and water for your family and pets, non-electric can opener, essential medications, sturdy shoes and comfort items for children.

· Allow extra time and caution for travel.

MUCH NEEDED RAIN PROVES TO BE A CHALLENGE CITY COUNCIL TO VOTE ON NEW CITY MANAGER CONTRACT

-Duarte-

After receiving applications from 75 candidates, 10 of whom had City Management experience, the Sierra Madre City council met in 3 closed sessions last week to find the person whom they believe to be the best fit for Sierra Madre. According to the staff report submitted for the next council meeting, they unanimously agreed upon Gabriel Engeland who last served as City Manager of Trinidad, Colorado.

Mr. Engeland will replace outgoing City Manager Elaine Aguilar, who retired after serving over 9 years in the position.

Engeland, a graduate of Central Michigan University with a BS in Community Development and a Masters in Public Administration from the University of Kansas, has been on what has been described as the 'fast track' to city management. He most recently served as the City Manager of Trinidad, Colorado (2015 to present), a town of 8,465 residents which is a "Home Rule Municipality".¹ Prior to that, he served as the Assistant to the Town Manager of Gilbert, Arizona from 2012-2015 and also served as the Interim Parks and Recreation Manager (9 months) and Development Services Director (5 months) in Gilbert.

As Sierra Madre's City Manager, Engeland will become the administrative head of city government, responsible for the enforcement municipal laws, direct daily operations of the City, making recommendations to the Council, preparing and managing the city's budget, appointing and supervising all City department heads and employees, and supervising the operation of all City departments. Like most cities in California, Sierra Madre is a general law city² run under the "council-manager" form of government.

The proposed contract offers Engeland a base salary of $182,000 per year (a substantial increase over City Manager Aguilar's salary of approximately $156,000) plus a full benefits package and car allowance. It will also cover $5,000 of Engeland's moving expenses. The contract does call for a commitment from Engeland of at least 5 years of employment with the City of Sierra Madre.

Gabriel Engeland, City Manager Candidate Mayor Gene Goss says that, "He had the best combination of experience, education and leadership characteristics" of all the candidates applying for the job. "I am thrilled that we found him and that he is willing to come and work for us".

The decision to offer the position to Engeland was unanimous by all members of the council. A formal vote is expected Tuesday evening.

<sup>1</sup> Home Rule involves the authority of a local government to prevent state government intervention with its operations. The extent of its power, however, is subject to limitations prescribed by state constitutions and statutes.

General Law: (definition) A general law city is one which operates under laws and rules established by the State of California. The council-manager form of government is similar to that of a private compa-ny's board of directors and CEO. The council-manager form is the system of local government that combines the strong political leadership of elected officials in the form of a council or other governing body, with the strong managerial experience of an appointed local government manager. This establishes a representative system where all power is concentrated in the elected council who then hires a professionally trained manager to oversee the delivery of public services.

The riveting true story of the women who launched America into space.

"In the 1940s and 50s, when the newly minted Jet Propulsion Laboratory needed quick-thinking mathematicians to calculate velocities and plot trajectories ... they recruited an elite group of young women who, with only pencil, paper, and mathematical prowess, transformed rocket design, helped bring about the first American satellites, and made the exploration of the solar system possible."

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

"I have decided to stick with love. Hate is too great a burden to bear." Martin Luther King

Today, Monday, is Martin Luther King Day. Many folks are having a holiday, banks, the post office and schools are observing the day, there will be parades, and, happily, it's a beautiful day. As you probably know, Dr. King was the chief spokesman for nonviolent activism in the Civil Rights Movement. President Ronald Reagan signed this holiday into law in 1983 and it was officially observed in all 50 states for the first time in 2000. We've probably all heard all, or portions, of his "I have a dream..." speech, but here is a part I wasn't aware of:

"I have a dream that one day every valley shall be exalted, every hill and mountain shall be made low, the rough places will be made straight and the glory of the Lord shall be revealed and all flesh shall see it together."

This quote is Isaiah 40:4 and is also part of Handel's Messiah, which we've heard numerous times and maybe even added our voices to a choir to sing it, really well for some people and stumblingly for others, such as myself.

Another person's passing, Kevin Starr, was noted today. I saw this quote on the front page of today's Los Ángeles Times and had to pass it along:

of wine, the soil and sunshine of California reached

An historian and fourth generation Californian not many of us can say that - his life work was to celebrate our State's creativity, its innovation and its openness to new ideas. "There are all kinds of wonderful books on California, but they don't seem am somewhat jealous as we aren't out of our drought to have the point of view we're encouraged to look at – the social drama of the imagination." Don't you just love that! We Sierra Madreans have our own historian, Michele Zack, who has created a fabulous 384 page history of our own personal town, loaded with photographs, maps and works of art. Dr. Kevin last week's Walking Sierra Madre, about how gold Starr liked it, too: "Here is a regional history that offers us real insight into American life." They have it at the library, at Lizzie's Trail Inn, at Vroman's in Hastings Ranch and at Arnold's Hardware if you realize your life incomplete because you don't have to see what's next and want this book for your very one. We love ours.

My walking buddy, John, and I got out for a walk very early this morning, while the moon was still up and Venus – I'm pretty sure it's Venus – was shining brightly. What with the rain and all, this was our first walk in quite a few days. Bearded Iris are starting to bloom. I love those but they just won't grow for me. We have Dutch Iris and daffodils putting up all sorts of stalks, buds on the roses. Our pink and white camellia, the one I was sure was a goner, is covered with blossoms and I brought home a couple of lavender plants that looked so good at Trader Joe's that I couldn't pass them up. We put them in It's on Amazon.com on my book page! yesterday afternoon, expecting that the ground would be soft and pliable, leaking moisture from playwrightdd

"In the luxuriance of a bowl of grapes…in a bottle every grain of dirt… Ha! Amazingly, even after all our rain, it's still not all that wet down a few inches. The weeds, however, are aggressively growing everywhere!

My family in Pleasant Hill (Northern California outside Oakland) report that they have had ten inches of rain and their drought is officially over. I confess I conditions yet. My official weather prognosticator and rain indicator, son-in-law, Chuck, says we've had a good five inches so far. Another series of storms is predicted for this coming Thursday. Bring it on!

In case you were wondering about the excerpt in fever never dies. The hero of all the stories in A Treasure Map, A Drunken Owl & 47 Rattlers in a Bag is my grandfather, Solon Weed, as passed along by my Dad, Kim Weed. Look below if you're dying

Don't forget about the Sierra Madre Library's One Book-One City selection, The Rise of the Rocket Girls! Let's get behind this! And one last word: In a world where you can be anything, be kind.

Chu Not Attending Inauguration

Rep. Judy Chu (CA-27) announced that she would join Rep. John Lewis (GA-05) and other Democratic Members of Congress and did not attending the inauguration of Donald Trump. Rep. Chu released the following statement:

"While I do not question the legitimacy of Mr. Trump's election, I do object to his treatment of other Americans, particularly those disagree with him. In a diverse democracy like ours, patriotic dissent is vital. That is why the values of pluralism, grievance, and criticism are enshrined in the 1st Amendment's protections of religion, speech, and press - all three of which have been targets of the President-elect.

'The personal attacks on John Lewis were just the latest example of behavior unbefitting a president. So after much thought, I, like millions of other Americans, will choose not to attend the inauguration of President Trump. Instead, I will continue to focus on my efforts to ensure a more just and equal country for ourselves and future generations of all Americans - regardless of race, religion, ethnicity, or orientation."

a contract to Environmental Construction, Inc., to facilitate the upgrade of the medians on Huntington Drive from 5th Avenue to Mountain Avenue. For many years, the medians along Huntington Drive were thriving with mature trees, lush landscaping, and attractive features. However, given the current drought situation in Southern California that is entering its 6th year, the median landscaping has greatly deteriorated, and the 30,000 vehicles that travel on a daily basis along Huntington Drive traverse through Monrovia against a landscaped background that is not representative of our community.

need to implement a drought tolerant landscaping palate, the City contracted with J.M. Yamashita to develop an attractive and water smart / drought tolerant landscaping plan. The plan that was our target deadline for completing the project ultimately developed incorporates the following improvements:

As you may be aware, the City recently awarded Renovating the dated irrigation system to include automatic controllers and a drip irrigation system Removing approximately twenty seven (27) dead and diseased trees

Planting sixty (60) 24' box trees, including the following varieties: Camphor, Canary Island Pine, Crape Myrtle, and Ginkgo Planting of over 7,500 shrubs and plants, including Agave, Acacia, Rosemary, Sage, and other grasses Replacing inconsistent landscape and hardscape segments along the median with uniform river rock paving

This past week, staff met with the contractor to coordinate the overall work, and based on the Given the condition of the medians and the current construction schedule, the Huntington Drive median improvement project will begin on January 23, 2017. The project is expected to take 45 working days to complete, which means that is late March 2017. We are excited to be able to implement this capital improvement project!

PASADENA UNIFIED'S MEASURE TT EARNS POSITIVE AUDIT REPORTS

Pasadena, CA – Measure TT, the Pasadena Unified School District's (PUSD) voter-approved $350 million bond program to finance the construction and modernization of school facilities, has received unmodified opinions -- the highest level possible -- in annual audits of its bond spending in the fiscal year ending June 30, 2016.

Required by the state's Proposition 39, the annual audits ensure that bond fund proceeds are spent in accordance with the specific project list contained in the measure and that internal controls are sound. The report on the financial statement and performance audits was presented by the independent professional accounting firm, Nigro & Nigro, and accepted by the Board of Education on December 22, 2017.

Auditors issued an unmodified opinion on Measure TT's audit of financial statements. The performance audit, which measures procedures and internal controls in accordance with state law, also received an unmodified opinion with one exception in a single project related to change orders.

"PUSD is delivering capital projects that provide access to high quality learning and recreational facilities, and meet the educational needs of today's students," said Superintendent Brian McDonald.

Proceeds from Measure TT have been used to finance the construction of new school facilities such as a new building at Cleveland Elementary and new gymnasiums at Washington Middle, McKinley School, Sierra Madre Middle, and Marshall Fundamental, as well as renovations and upgrades to other schools.

More than 55 percent of Pasadena Unified School District voters approved Measure TT in November 2008, authorizing the issuance and sale of $350 million of general obligation bonds. On September 17, 2009, the District issued Series 2009A of the Election of 2008 General Obligation bonds in the amount of $125 million. On July 3, 2012, the District issued Series 2012 in the amount of $125 million. On May 25, 2016, the District issued Series 2016 in the amount of $100 million.

Bond spending audits undertaken for the purposes of Proposition 39 include a review and testing of the district's Measure TT financial statements and its internal controls over financial reporting. Auditors tested the district's compliance with laws, regulations, contracts, and grant agreements. The audit was conducted according to the Government Auditing Standards issued by the U.S. Comptroller General.

The Board also heard the annual report from Measure TT Citizens Oversight Committee, the independent oversight committee mandated by law to monitor allocation of bond funds.

Visit measurett.org for information on Measure TT and to track progress on bond-funded projects.

REALISTIC RESOLUTIONS FOR BUSY MOMS

(StatePoint) Time is perhaps the most coveted thing moms have and it's crucial to manage it effectively for you and your family.

To help moms everywhere make the most of their precious minutes  ${\bf r}$ in 2017, actress, director, producer, entrepreneur, mother-of-three and Nutrisystem ambassador, Melissa Joan Hart reveals her New Year's Resolutions, crafted from years of juggling different time consuming tasks.

- Just say "no": Sometimes you just have to decline requests or pick and choose which ones are doable. And remember, it's okay to ask for a rain check.
- Limit screen time: It's easy to fall into the screen time black hole. Instead, be present -- put your phone down and limit your children's time in front of their screens. Even talk to your spouse!
- Set aside 20 "Mom Minutes" daily: Do something for yourself for 20 minutes every day-- meditate, do a quick workout, call a friend you haven't spoken to in a while, or simply do nothing with a cup of coffee in hand.
- Have one-on-one time with each child: Create no-fuss activities like coloring or playing cards that you can do with each child individually based on his or her personality. Spending quality time separately will feed your soul and theirs.

- Try to be guilt free: As a working mom, you are doing things for your family even when you are at work, so don't feel guilty about the time away from loved ones.
- Make simple healthy changes: Remember that your kids are always watching, so being a good role model when it comes to health and fitness will pay dividends for them and for you. Simple, easy changes in your daily routing can help you with your health goals. For example, drink a nutrient-rich shake for breakfast, such as Nutrisystem Turboshakes, drink more water throughout the day and maintain a consistent exercise schedule.

And if you want to lose weight, as so many do in the New Year, Hart says, "look for a plan that works for you. I chose Nutrisystem because it was simple and fit with my lifestyle. I lost 40 pounds and feel better than ever!"

For a kick start to your New Year, consider Nutrisystem Lean13, a new program designed to help you lose up to 13 pounds and seven inches in your first month. More information can be found at nutrisystem.com.

• Plan quality couple time: Make time to reignite your romance. Go out to a movie, take a walk together, write each other love notes.

"Don't put too much pressure on yourself to make grand resolutions," says Hart. "It's the small resolutions that can make every day just feel better."

RAINY DAY PLAY WITH YOUR FOUR-LEGGED FRIEND

It's been so long, it's almost like a new concept for us Southern Californians; figuring out what to do, to entertain and exercise our pets while it's raining cats and dogs outside. Although it has been quite some time, we've had this "problem" before, and I think we can all agree, as far as the big picture is concerned, a rainy day is most certainly a "problem" we can live with!

As a dog walker, I have come to terms with the prospect of walking in the rain every once in a while and I try to be prepared just in case. But while some dogs just love to go out and get wet and messy, many dogs do not. If you happen to have a dog who despises going out in the rain, like I do, you have to be a bit more creative about how you will spend those otherwise pent-up hours exercising and entertaining your four-pawed pal.

This month's newsletter from the Pasadena Humane Society includes a list of innovative tips on how to enjoy some out-of-the-house activities with our pups on a rainy day, so I thought I'd share them along with a couple of my own ideas, in this week's column. I hope some of these suggestions will come in handy.

'Rainy Day Pet Tips" (Source: PHS Newsletter Jan 5,

Visit a pet-friendly business. Most pet stores allow dogs to wander the aisles with their owners, as do some local Invest in interactive dog toys. Kibble dispensing toys and puzzle toys keep your dog's mind active. You can pick up some at the PHS Shelter Shop.

Practice training commands and tricks. Use a rainy day to brush up on your dog's "sit", "stay", and "shake" commands or check out the PHS training classes.

Invite a doggy friend over for a play date or drop your pup off at an indoor doggy daycare.

Be sure you have current identification on your pet. If your dog is outside and we experience a strong downpour or a thunderstorm, they may run to find safe cover. In the event that your pet does get lost, an embedded chip and/or current ID tags will be the best, if not the only ticket home.

Keep pets indoors. If an animal is outdoors, you must provide shelter out of the rain. It's the law!

Remember, if you see an animal outside in the rain with no shelter or in need of any other type of basic care, please contact animal control at 626-792-7151.

If your pet has yet to be spayed or neutered, scheduling the procedure on a rainy day may just be the perfect way to show them you love them by getting this necessary and very important deed done. If you foresee a rainy day coming up, go ahead and book it! Your pet will thank you for taking this important measure toward a better way of life for them..

One final suggestion on how to spend a rainy day with your dog; How about just biting the bullet, gearing yourself and your pup up, grabbing a ball, a Frisbee, or whatever other favored outdoor play toy you may have, and just doing it? I think we humans let ourselves wimp out too easily when it comes to exposing ourselves to

If your dog is one that enjoys being out in the rain, you're among the lucky ones who can walk/run/play on a rainy day, au naturel (not you, the dog!) thereby avoiding the cabin fever that inevitably occurs when sitting around the house too long. If you have a dog that doesn't like the rain, there are jackets specifically designed to keep your beloved pet from getting wet during a rainy day

Canine coats vary in size and shape, and they also come in a wide range of colors, qualities and costs, so you will probably need to do a little focused shopping before you settle on which one to buy for your beloved babe. I personally prefer dog coats made of "slicker" nylon material on the outside and lined with warm fabric such as quilting on the inside. This type serves both purposes; keeping them dry and warm.

Are you planning a day trip or a weekend get away to the mountains any time soon? For more extreme conditions such as snow or low, low temps, there are higher-tech, albeit perhaps more pricey products available on the market to protect your pet from the elements. If you are one who visits higher elevations frequently, the investment will definitely

The trick is (based on my experience) shopping it out. Durability is paramount. Do the footwork to find the right shape and size coat for your dog's body. You will probably need to bring your dog with you to try on various coats until you find the perfect fit. That should help kill at least one rainy day that you may otherwise spend getting cabin fever in the house.

Get up, and get out in the yard, or go to the dog park and play like it was just another sunny day in LA. Let yourself and your four-legged furry friend get totally wet and wild. You might be surprised at how good this will feel if you cut loose and go for it! Of course, you will want to be prepared for the after math of this rainy day activity option.

Be sure to have plenty of old towels on hand and ready for use when you return home. Now it's time to get busy drying your best friend's coat and fluffing up his/her bed. At this point, you will both be (hopefully) exhausted and ready for some down time in a warm cozy spot. Enjoy a little quiet time...listen to the rain hit the roof...zzzz.

Don't let a little rain get in the way of having an active day with your dog. Enjoy the liquid sunshine while it lasts, folks! It's what we've all been praying for. Celebrate nature's way of showing us she cares. And last, but most definitely not least,

PET OF THE WEEK: RADCLIFFE: ANIMALID A5023372

Radcliffe (A5023372) is a dashing 1½-year-old fawn-and-white male Corgi and Chihuahua mix whose owner abandoned him—along with four relatives: Dopey [A5023368]; Zira [A5023369]; Sleepy [A5023371]; Tillie [A5023373]—at the Baldwin Park Animal Care Center on January 6th because, the owner said, he had too many dogs.

Weighing 8 pounds, Radcliffe is still a baby in terms of training—that is, he's a blank slate ready to be schooled in the puppy basics. He is currently kenneled with his brother, Sleepy, and he appears to be fine with other dogs. He also does okay on leash but prefers to be carried. He is shy; he is also loving, friendly, and trusting with humans; and he has the great ears, square jaw, and other characteristics of his good-looking family! We think Radcliffe will be perfect for an individual or family who wants a pint-sized indoor pet and companion who they can train and socialize to be a valued family member.

To watch a video of Radcliffe please visit the following link: https://www.youtube.com/ watch?v=zRjK1ifx1eo

CENTRAL PARK CAFÉ...NOT SO OLD PASADENA

I have referred to Central Park Café in Pasadena's as a rising star in the competitive Pasadena restaurant scene. Central Park specializes in mouthwatering steaks, fresh fish, handcrafted pastas and gourmet pizzas. I have dined here at least once a month since it's opening over eight years ago:

Hence, it's not the newest fire on the block but it remains one of Pasadena's best kept secrets. When I go here, I find myself irresistible drawn to the same dishes over and over again, as I order the Ahi Sandwich with its exceptional partnering of a delicious side salad of Broccoli. If and when I get more adventurous, and break free from the spell that Central Park has placed me under, the eggplant sandwich on foccacia bread has all the makings of a new favorite When I am hungry and have a big appetite, usually at dinner, I dive into the braised short ribs

I love breakfast here. So, on those mornings when the sun beckons with an irrepressible invitation, I invite my friends, Kind Ken Fuller and buddy Madd Maxx to meet me for breakfast. I get a sly indicator that they, like me, know that something special is on its way. It is displayed in the little smile that forms as they sit at the table and survey the menu. Ken religiously orders the eggs benedict. Breakfast is notable here and it makes sense, since the owners also own Canoe House and the Diner on Main St. Both places are known for a good breakfast. Now, I wouldn't call Central Park upscale; however it would be wrong to translate the experience visually and flavorfully of those two restaurants to Central Park.

To make your experience more enticing, Central Park add another allure to their award winning and hand selected wine list, they added a full Bar. It is quaint, more the appearance of a service bar than a full one, but if you are in the mood for a Martini, you can use your best James Bond to impress the ladies. It never works for me though! All the Desserts here are created inhouse, and are very affordable in the ($7) range. My recommendation is the Carrot Cake, an expressive ending to a great dining experience.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

Central Park occupies the One Hundred year old flower warehouse. You might remember it as Soda Jerk's at one point. It still has the same beautifully exposed brick walls, which tease the imagination into believing that you have entered a Fifties Chicago style Restaurant. If you are a Pop Culture buff, the walls yield in homage as a testament to that nostalgic era. There are black and white photos of celebrities from Joltin' Joe DiMaggio to the cigar taping, comedian, Grouch Marx. With the exposed brick, and the high vaunted ceilings and elegant decor, Central Park will transport you back in time.

Central Park has their own off street parking, which gives you enough time to really enjoy breakfast, lunch or dinner, without worrying if there are enough coins in the meter.

I place Central Park Café in a similar category with Parkway Grill, Houston's and Smitty's. The difference being that Central Park is a little less expensive than these other three. Check out their web page www.centralparkcafe.net

HELP FOR SENIORS WITH BLADDER CONTROL PROBLEMS

Dear Savvy Senior,

What are the best treatments recommended to help seniors with bladder control problems?

Leaking Linda

Dear Linda,

Incontinence is very common in older adults. According to the CDC, more than half of women and 30 percent of men ages 65 and older are affected by it. Fortunately, there are a wide variety of treatment options that can help, as well as a number of absorbent pads or underwear you could use for leakage protection. Here's what you should know.

See A Doctor

If you leak unexpectedly (also known as stress incontinence) or sometimes have such a strong urge to urinate (urge incontinence) that you fear you won't make it to a bathroom in time, your first step is to make an appointment with your primary care doctor, or see a gynecologist, urologist, or

A doctor can determine if a medication side effect or a condition like diabetes or a urinary-tract infection might be causing urine leakage. They can also set you up with a treatment plan. Depending on the reason or the type on incontinence you have, here are some common treatment options.

Non-drug therapies: There are a number of exercises, bladder training techniques and lifestyle strategies that should be the first line of treatment.

Kegel exercises (repeatedly tightening and relaxing the muscles that stop urine flow to strengthen them) are especially helpful for women with stress incontinence, or leaking when they laugh, cough, sneeze, lift heavy objects, or exercise.

Bladder training involves keeping a diary of urination and accidents, then slowly increasing the time between bathroom visits. It's most effective for those with urge incontinence.

There are also a number of lifestyle strategies that can help, such as cutting down on caffeinated and alcoholic drinks, which cause the kidneys to produce more urine. Getting sufficient fiber in your diet to keep yourself regular, because constipation can contribute to incontinence. Losing weight if appropriate, because excess weight puts pressure show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

on the abdomen and bladder, and being overweight can also lead to Type 2 diabetes, which causes damage to the nerves that control the bladder. And if you smoke quit, because smoking leads to excess coughing which can cause urine leakage.

Medications: Several drugs are approved for urge incontinence (or overactive bladder), such as prescription mirabegron (Myrbetriq), oxybutynin (Ditropan XL and generic), solifenacin (Vesicare), and tolterodine (Detrol and generic).

While drug treatments are effective for many people, you also need to know that more than half of those who take incontinence drugs stop within six months because of side effects including constipation, drowsiness, dry mouth, blurry vision, and dizziness.

Injections of Botox into the bladder muscle are also approved for this condition and may reduce the urge to urinate. This is usually prescribed to people only if other first line medications haven't been successful.

Medications should only be considered for those who continue to have bothersome symptoms despite having tried lifestyle changes and therapy exercises.

Electrical stimulation: Mild electric shocks to nerves in the lower back or the pelvic area can stimulate and strengthen muscles that are involved in urination. This can help with both urge and stress incontinence, but it requires multiple treatments over many weeks.

Surgery: Several surgical procedures are available for stress incontinence. The most common is sling surgery, where strips of synthetic mesh are implanted to support the urethra. This surgery is very effective in most patients, but should be a last label. "Bonderized," it said. I'd heard of bonded, as in, "The step-father bonded with his wife's son during their fishing trip." And then there's bonded like, "The miracle of triglycerides was discovered when scientists bonded hydrogen to carbon; laying ground for margarine and 'Cheese Whiz." But The first "bonderized"... thing that came to mind was Bond. James Bond.

Working from this definition, to Bonderize something means to infuse it with stealth, danger, a Scottish accent, promiscuity, not stirred. Since Agent 007 is known for nifty there for some time, because he engraved his name gadgets, dull or embarrassing housewares can be Bonderized to resemble something more fashionable. For example, you might cringe if your guests saw your nose/ear-hair trimmer lying Maybe I'd scrawl the rabbit at toilet eye level. I in plain view on the bathroom counter. But if it don't know if I'd be bold enough to leave my name. looks like a remote control, they might think, "Ooh, I bet he has a TV or stereo system hooked up somewhere in here!"

The rest of the stall door sticker was worn with age, and I could barely read something to the effect of "Sanyware: Guaranteed life long quality." I considered crouching down to get a better look, but was afraid coworkers would think I was weird for staying in there so long. Would someone that sense, it certainly is "Bonderized!"

Sometimes inspiration comes recognize my shoes (nondescript flats from from the most unusual places. I Payless)? Whenever I am in a stall next to someone was in the ladies' room at work whose feet aren't moving, I always worry that and, for the first time, actually they've had a stroke or something. Maybe I should read the label on the inside of bring my new, souped up phone and take a picture. the stall door. I worried that people would It was probably meant to impress us. And indeed think I was a pervert or something. I considered I am impressed, because I certainly wouldn't know asking one of the guys if their stall (assuming where to begin if I had to build a bathroom stall they had at least one) was "Bonderized." No one door by myself. Anyway, this time I read the at work knows I write for the paper, so I couldn't say, "It's for an article!" I'd have to come up with some plausible reason for taking interest in the gents' room stall doors. I could see myself blundering, "It's for a project I'm working on... about the relative durability of different metals... or something."

Ilooked up "Sanyware," and appears that they're still operating, specializing in different stall arrangements and galvanization. A teacher friend told me of a bathroom at her school that was built during the depression by the WPA. "Peter Goodwall" or all of the above. A Bonderized drink is shaken, evidently made sure that his tilework would be upon a floor tile --in one of the stalls. I've never designed or built a public bathroom, but perhaps if I did, I'd want to leave a lasting impression, too. I might just write, "This & that & the other."

As if the idea of Bonderization wasn't captivating enough, I then noticed the bottom of the sticker read, "To be removed after architect's inspection." Not only is this obviously a really old bathroom stall, but apparently it's never even been inspected! I suppose the danger of using an uninspected stall adds a certain flair to using the ladies' room. In

HUYGENS PROBE: 2005 HISTORIC DESCENT TO TITAN REVISITED

After a two-and-a-half-hour descent, the metallic, saucer-shaped spacecraft came to rest with a thud on a dark floodplain covered in cobbles of water ice, in temperatures hundreds of degrees below freezing. The alien probe worked frantically to collect and transmit images and data about its environs—in mere minutes its mothership would drop below the local horizon, cutting off its link to the home world and silencing its voice forever.

Although it may seem the stuff of science fiction, this scene played out 12 years ago on the surface of Saturn's largest moon, Titan. The "aliens" who built the probe were us. This was the triumphant landing of ESA's Huygens probe.

Huygens, a project of the European Space Agency, traveled to Titan as the companion to NASA's Cassini spacecraft, and then separated from its mothership on Dec. 24, 2004, for a 20day coast toward its destiny at Titan.

The probe was named after the Dutch astronomer Christiaan Huygens (1629-1695), who discovered Titan in 1655 using a 50-power refracting telescope of his own design.

The Huygens probe sampled Titan's dense, hazy atmosphere as it slowly rotated beneath its parachutes, analyzing the complex organic chemistry and measuring winds. It also took hundreds of images during the descent, revealing bright, rugged highlands that were crosscut by dark drainage channels and steep ravines. The area where the probe touched down was a dark, granular surface, which resembled a dry lakebed.

Today the Huygens probe sits silently on the frigid surface of Titan, its mission concluded mere hours after touchdown, while the Cassini spacecraft continues the exploration of Titan final year, the Cassini spacecraft's own journey will conclude on September 15, 2017, with a fateful plunge into Saturn's atmosphere.

As the mission heads into its home stretch, Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, California. Cassini team members look back fondly on the significance of Huygens:

The Huygens descent and landing represented from above as part of its mission to learn more a major breakthrough in our exploration of Titan about Saturn and its moons. Now in its dramatic as well as the first soft landing on an outer-planet moon. It completely changed our understanding of this haze-covered ocean world," notes Linda Spilker, Cassini project scientist at NASA's Jet

> Carolyn Porco, Cassini imaging team lead at Space Science Institute, Boulder, Colorado, adds: "The Huygens images were everything our images from orbit were not. Instead of hazy, sinuous science findings is available from this ESA website: features that we could only guess were streams http://sci.esa.int/huygens-titan-science-highlights and drainage channels, here was incontrovertible evidence that at some point in Titan's history and perhaps even now—there were flowing liquid hydrocarbons on the surface. Huygens' images became a Rosetta stone for helping us interpret our subsequent findings on Titan."

CHRISTOPHER Nyerges COLLECTING RAIN WATER

or www.ChristopherNyerges.com.]

Most Sierra Madre residents are grateful for the recent rains, despite the many problems that it caused, such as flooding and auto accidents.

But we should never be complacent about water. Our period of no rain should bring home the lesson that this sprawling urban expansion of greater Los Angeles County, of which Sierra Madre is just one small portion, is an anomaly in nature with so many people residing here depending on so much of their water from lands

While we get up to a quarter or so of our water from local sources, the bulk of our needed water comes from either the Colorado River or the Central Valley. We should all recognize that we live in a coastal desert plain, and we should have long ago learned to adapt our ways to a land with little water.

There are many methods that genuine desert dwellers have learned when there was no choice but to adapt. Yet, today's residents of Sierra Madre are lulled into a false sense of security since we've always been able to turn on the faucet and get water. We have built wasteful lifestyles around this presumption.

There are many positive ways to become a part She was living in her home just a few years and of this solution, ways that have been known for centuries.

For example, how about capturing more of that rain that falls for use in your yard, and for your personal needs? It's not hard, despite the fact that there are expensive methods that can be purchased for rain-catchment systems.

As of this writing, I only collected 20 gallons of clean rain from this storm. First, I waited until the rain cleaned off the roof. Then I put out a bucket near the downspout so the bucket would

After the sediment in the water settled, I scooped it out and poured it through a cotton filter, filling my individual storage containers (recycled water and juice containers, both plastic and glass). These I use to make coffee and other beverages. Other water catchment buckets can be set out to collect water for fruit trees and the garden. This can be very simple, but the buckets must be covered once they are full so you do not allow the breeding of mosquitoes.

I've included many more details of this method in my book "Self-Sufficient Home," which is available from Amazon, and also available as a Kindle book.

Nyerges is the author of There is a woman who lives nearby, Carol "Self-Sufficient Home," Kampe, who has a rain barrel at the bottom of every downspout around her home. She uses and other books. More large plastic barrels -the type that I'd seen used about to import pickles into the United States. The Nyerges' books and classes entire lid can be screwed off to gain access to the is available at Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041, water. The top had been modified with a screen to remove debris that came down from the roof, and a spigot was added to the bottom so one could easily use the collected rain water.

> When I visited, Carol Kampe happily gave me a tour of her rain collection system.

> It turned out that she had not one, but 10 raincollecting barrels strategically located to collect the most rain from the house and garage roofs. Two of the barrels were 65 gallons each, and the other eight were 60 gallons each.

> The rain thus collected is used for outdoor purposes only - watering her fruit trees and other plants in the yard.

> 'Generally, I have enough rain water in my barrels to last me until August," says Kampe. This means that she is able to rely on the rain for watering her yard for approximately 2/3 of the year. She estimates that she saves perhaps $300 a month in payments to the water company.

> "But I don't do this for economic reasons," Kampe adds. "I do it because we live in a desert here in Southern California. Water will become more critical as time goes on. So it is just a shame to waste all this good rain."

> then purchased seven of the rain-collecting barrels. She has since added three more. The barrels were purchased for about $100 each by a company that modifies the pickle barrels into rain-collecting barrels. The company also provides hoses so that the barrels can be connected "daisy-chain," so that the overflow of one barrel fills other barrels.

> Rain barrels are not light, and water weighs a little over 8 pounds a gallon. That means a 60 gallon barrel full of rain water weighs in the neighborhood of 480 pounds. So when planning a rain collecting system like this, one has to recognize that the full barrel is not going to be moved. Other barrels can be connected to the barrel under the downspout so that the overflow can be collected in a spot away from the house. Also, Kampe is able to simply unscrew the lid of her rain barrels and scoop out water as needed for individual plants.

> Emphasizing the need to save and conserve water where you have a desert and an ever-increasing population, Kampe echoes Santyana, pointing out that "anyone who doesn't read history is doomed to repeat it."

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

DID SOMEONE JUST HACK MY THERMOMETER?

I do not like to complain (except on certain occasions when nobody is listening) but I am not too happy with the weather these days. I have never felt so cold

Is it true that the older you get, the less cold over me for certain. temperature you can stand?

If it is not true, it sure is true with me. The older I get, the colder I get and there is absolutely nothing I can do about it. After all, how many sweaters can you wear at one time?

I saw it had dipped below my meteorological expectation. I tried breathing on the thermometer to see if I could get the temperature to rise a little bit. And, because I have such hot This has been worrying me for over a week now breath, I was able to raise the temperature quite a bit, but as soon as I stop breathing, it plunged back to its depth.

It seems that when I look at the thermometer and the temperature is low I feel cold. On the other hand, when the temperature is high, I feel warm. I almost said hot, but the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage corrected me on that once. I may feel hot, but, according to her, I sure do not look hot and the mirror in my bathroom collaborates with her opinion.

So, I am wondering if the temperature has anything to do with my thermometer. If someone, perchance, could manipulate my thermometer they could manipulate whether I am hot or cold.

Then a thought hit me square in the face.

All during last year, I heard how the Russians allegedly hacked into emails. I never really paid that much attention to the stories, but now, I am thinking a little bit different about that.

Anybody who wants to can hack into my emails because I have such a boring life that they probably would shoot themselves. However, what if they were able to hack into my thermometer? That is the $64,000 question!

to technology. I can barely manage my emails; so, when it comes to technology I am as vulnerable as anybody else.

I am certainly not afraid of somebody hacking into my banking account because they would find it completely empty. Thinking about that, maybe somebody is hacking into my banking account and taking out all my money. If somebody is, I do not imagine it is I. Maybe I should have a talk with my banker just to see if anything fishy is

A couple of weeks ago when my wife wanted to use her bank credit card it was declined. She contacted her bank and found out someone did hack into her account and bought something for $2500 out on the West Coast.

What bothered me was, I did not know she had that much money in her account. Maybe I ought to look into what it takes to hack into somebody's banking account!

Anyway, the bank took care of it and she was not on the hook for that money.

This only proves if anybody wants to hack into somebody's bank account, they would pick her

However, what if these Russians, or whoever they are, are able to hack into my thermometer? What if they are able to hack in and manipulate my thermometer to make it look colder than it really is?

The other day as I looked at my thermometer If this is true, where do I go to report it?

What sorry soul would do something like this?

and I am as chilly today as I was when I first started worrying about this. Why can't they hack into my thermometer and raise the temperature so that I feel warmer?

Out of deep frustration, I presented my theory to my wife, hoping she would have a little bit of sympathy for me.

"Are you," she said sarcastically, "really that crazy? Why in the world would you ever think that somebody could hack into your thermometer?" Then she threw one of her sarcastic smiles at me and went back to the kitchen.

I was still in my chair thinking about all that. What if I am crazy? Is that so bad? From my point of view, crazy people are the only people that do not know they are crazy. Maybe I really am crazy. But if I am crazy, to paraphrase one old philosopher, I am in good company. Those crazy people really make a difference in this world.

Think of Thomas Edison when he told someone he was going to invent the electric light bulb. I wonder how many people thought he was crazy?

Can you imagine what his wife must have said? "Oh, Tommy, what in the world does anybody want with an electric light bulb? That's the craziest thing I've ever heard."

join his ranks. And there are other crazy people all through history.

> My problem, like many people, I judge things by their appearance, and, as we all know, appearances can be deceiving.

> I think a good word from Jesus helps me out here. "Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment" (John 7:24).

> Appearances can be deceiving because sometimes what I am looking at is not exactly what I am seeing.

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS:

By Sean Kayden

The most album to kick off 2017 is indisputably "I See You" from The xx. The core group consists of Romy Madley Croft and Oliver Sim alongside their producer

Jamie Smith aka Jamie xx. The band has already had two critically acclaimed records, 2009's self-titled and 2012's "Coexist." However, after years of silence, possibly drifting apart, the band is now stronger and more connected than ever. The xx may just be the biggest "band" of 2017, with already performing live on SNL (a rarity of such an act of this nature) and scheduled to headline or co-headline some of the biggest music festivals of 2017. So does the album live up to expectations? What were the expectations to even begin with? Despite all that, the trio's junior album, which is their first record in five years, is bold, been what The xx were made of. There's this innate course of ten beautifully crafted snyth-pop jams. The difference this time around is how the band is utterly comfortable within their own skin. While on the topic, I'm not even sure if snyth-pop is a genre to describe The xx anymore. The music goes beyond any confined labels at this point and the feeling the listener endures goes beyond any "expectations" they might have had going into this album.

The record begins with "Dangerous." It's got an infectious beat and falls under the dance-worthy category. Sim sings the indelible line, "You were my favorite mistake," with poise and newfound confidence. Jamie xx does a fine job crafting some deeply effective beats that begs to be played loud, a The shimmering "Say Something Loving" samples hoped for all along.

anticipated the Alessi Brothers' 1978 track "Do You Feel It?" and highlights the vocal chemistry of singers Sim and Croft, as well as Croft's scant yet signature guitar playing. There's a growing sense of tension in this one and boosted by a different kind of energy from the band. "A Violent Noise" is one the more harrowing renditions found off the record. Deeply sentimental, the track is about Sim's alcoholism that he's fought off. The lyrics, never heavy-handed, are poetry with such a line, "every beat is a violent noise." Croft throws her vocals into the ring and as usual, provides great balance and symmetry to Sim's slightly deeper delivery. This one is a true highpoint for a record filled with gleaming gems from start to

The best track here is "Replica." The most emotionally occupied track, "Replica" features sprightly vocals from both vocalists. However, Sim is in full pilot mode here. He steers this song to the masterpiece that it is and with my favorite line off the record, "Do I chase the night, or does the night chase me?" I am floored with emotions and my own complex thoughts. It's a "chill-worthy" song with beauty found every step along the way. On the other side of the spectrum, Croft is featured more so in "Brave For You. With delicate arrangements and only escalating in volume when need be, "Brave For terrified anxieties and insecurities, but that's always You" touches upon an intricate relationship, finding strength and courage in another. "On Hold" is the disquietude to the entire record, which spans the first single from the record and the one that debuted several months ago. It's still one of the finest tracks off the album with excellent production values, EDMthemed beats and sorrowful warmth to it. The xx are storytellers and they may find themselves always on a serious note, but they never come off facetious or disingenuous. There's not a single knock I can convey about this album other than how I yearn for more than just ten tracks. "I See You" is undoubtedly going to be the best record of 2017 and we're only in January. This is The xx at their finest, at the top in January. This is The xx at their finest, at the top of their game, and proof guitars mix very well with snyth beats. If anyone was worried about the longsnyth beats. If anyone was worried about the longawaited release from The xx, well, you can throw all fears and reservations out the window because this departure of The xx's usual quiet rapturous style. is the album that surpasses what you wanted and vivid portrait...A thoughtful consideration of Washington's wisdom that couldn't be timelier." —Kirkus Reviews

Washington's George Farewell Address was a prophetic letter from a "parting friend" to his fellow citizens about the forces he feared could destroy our democracy: hyper-partisanship, excessive debt, and foreign wars.Once celebrated as civic scripture, more widely reprinted than the Declaration of Independence, the Farewell Address is now almost forgotten. Its message remains starkly relevant. In Washington's Farewell, John Avlon offers a stunning portrait of our first president and his battle to save America from self-destruction.At the end of his second term, Washington surprised Americans publishing his Farewell message in a newspaper. The President called for unity among "citizens by birth or choice," advocated moderation, defended religious pluralism, proposed a foreign policy of independence (not isolation), and proposed that education is essential to democracy. He established the precedent for the peaceful transfer of power. Washington's urgent message was adopted by Jefferson

Now the Farewell Address may inspire a new generation to re-center our politics and reunite our nation through the lessons rooted in Washington's experience.As John Avlon describes the perilous state of the new nation that Washington was preparing to leave as its leader, with enduring wisdom, he reveals him to be the indispensable Founding Father.

Your health care agent or personal representative will need access to your medical records to make educated decisions about your care. To do this, your agent will need a HIPAA authorization. This will ensure he or she has access to your medical records from HIPAA-covered health care providers.

Living Will Declaration

A living will provides specific guidelines for your end of life care. While your health care directive can include provisions for your agent to make certain decisions about your ongoing health care, a living will tells your agent how you would like those decisions made, such as if and when you want life support to be removed, whether you would want hydration and nutrition and what kind of care choices should be made for you, if you cannot make them for yourself. These types of absolute decisions about your life should be included in a living will for extra protection and assurance your desires will be known and honored.

WHICH UNITED STATES DOES TRUMP INTEND TO GOVERN?

On Friday, at noon, Donald J. Trump will put his hand on a Bible, recite the oath of office administered by Supreme Court Chief Justice John Roberts, and in just three minutes' time, will become the 45th president of the United States.

But what country does Trump intend to govern? What America will he represent? It's a question that's more than merely academic.

Just this week, the Republican tweeted that Georgia's 5th Congressional District was "falling apart" and "crime-infested."

Last summer, Trump told a campaign crowd on Virginia that the area around Pennsylvania's capital city of Harrisburg "looked like a war zone," a characterization which the locals understandably pushed back on quite At campaign stop after campaign stop last year, Trump depicted an America in decline, one pushed around by its allies, denigrated by its adversaries and the victim of years of bad trade and economic policies that resulted in the country never "winning" anymore. And more than once over the last 18 months - only in the context of black voters, and largely before white crowds, he's referred to America's "inner cities" whatever and wherever they are, as "burning" and "crime-infested." It's tough to think of any incoming president who's spoken in such openly scornful terms about vast swaths of the country he's about to inherit and entrusted to govern for at least the next four years.

Trump presumably knows that the 5th Congressional District, which grabbed headlines this week after its congressman, Democrat John Lewis, questioned Trump's legitimacy and said he'd be skipping the inauguration, is part of the United States. PolitiFact rated Trump's claim about the district, which includes the booming city of Atlanta and its near suburbs, as "mostly false," acknowledging that, while it does have higher poverty and unemployment rates (barely) than the rest of the country, it is leading on other economic indicators. Trump's claim that the Harrisburg region is a "war zone" is similarly defeated by a simple examination of the data. Dauphin County, which includes Harrisburg, has weathered the recession better than most of Pennsylvania. The county's unemployment rate has hovered around 5 percent, the threshold at which most economists say that if someone wants a job - they can find one.

That Trump is unafraid of stretching the truth in pursuit of a broader rhetorical point is hardly a surprise (nor does that make him unique from politicians of either political persuasion).

But his more worrying compulsion is his ongoing (and incorrect) linking of black people and "the inner city," which he continues to depict as nests of poverty where residents can scarcely walk out the door without being

As someone who makes his home in an actual inner city, Midtown Manhattan, Trump's characterizations bear little resemblance to the lives lived by the vast majority of black Americans.

Trump, as a real estate developer, is also almost certainly aware that the gentrification of most cities is pushing out poorer residents, or, alternately concentrating them in ever smaller areas.

So it's no surprise that Trump, who won only 8 percent of the black vote, made those remarks to largely white crowds as he vowed to "make America great again."

Black voters I've spoken with over the last year hear something else entirely in that phrase. Namely, an America that becomes great "again" at their expense, and at the expense of women, gays and other minorities, rolling back the progress of the last 60-odd years.

Trump will take office this week as one of the most unpopular presidents in four decades.

In an ABC News/Washington Post poll released Tuesday, more than half of respondents (54 percent) said they had an unfavorable impression of Trump just days before he takes office.

Compare that to the nearly eight in 10 who had a favorable impression of President Barack Obama in 2008 and the more than six in 10 who said the same thing about Presidents Bill Clinton and George W. Bush as they prepared to take office.

Trump fares even less well than President Ronald Reagan, of whom 58 percent of Americans had a favorable impression, compared to 18 percent who did not.

That means the stakes could not be higher for Trump, who lost the popular vote to Democrat Hillary Clinton by nearly 3 million votes, as he delivers his inaugural address.

Will he evoke Reagan, who appealed to the nation's better angels even as he vowed to rein in the size of

Will he echo Obama, who praised Americans for choosing "hope over fear, unity of purpose over conflict and discord," as well as an "end to petty grievances and false promises."

Can Donald Trump, who nurses petty grievances like no other, rise to the occasion and govern all of America? The onus will be on him Friday to prove that is the case.

TOO SLEAZY EVEN FOR THE TRUMP SWAMP

As an unpopular charlatan prepares to place his hand on a bible (of all things) with the lowest-ever approval rating for an incoming president, and as we gird ourselves for what is likely to be the darkest era since Vietnam, we in the voting majority are grateful for whatever small victories cross our radar.

At least somebody is deemed too sleazy to splash in Trump's swamp. His motley nominees are already infamous for their flagrant abuse of ethical norms, so it's nice to know that at least some kind of aberrant behavior — in Crowley's case, shameless plagiarizing of other people's work — is considered beyond the pale. It's even unacceptable to our new leader, who set a low standard in his business life by refusing to pay people for their work.

Granted, the announcement this week that Crowley, a Fox News talking head, will not be appointed to the job for which she was manifestly unqualified — senior director of strategic communications on the National Security Council — still leaves the Trump swamp replete with creatures.

Random examples:

- Congressman Tom Price, the Health nominee, bought stock in at least two companies that stood to gain financially from legislation he subsequently sponsored or voted for.

- Rex Tillerson, the State nominee, is an Exxon lifer whose friendly 'tude toward Vladimir Putin has been good for Exxon.

Betsy DeVos, the billionaire Education nominee, has major investments in companies that stand to gain financially from her education policies, and she had a Senate hearing last night without first completing an ethics report on how she plans to avoid conflicts of interest.

Andy Pudzer, the Labor nominee, whose ex-wife accused him of domestic violence acts during their marriage.

- Reed Cordish, a new White House adviser who doesn't need a Senate OK, is being sued in a class action racial discrimination case.

But hey, we'll always have Monica Crowley — who, by the way, was brought down by a free and independent press. This narrative has been nearly lost in the cacophony of the past few weeks, but it deserves its noble moment because it shows that the Trump regime is not totally immune to the forces of accountability.

It all began earlier this month, when she was thoroughly busted by CNN for stealing other people's work — word for word, phrase for phrase — while writing a 2012 book titled "What the (Bleep) Just Happened." Politico and CNN Money found more examples of her stealing other people's work while writing her 2000 Ph.D. dissertation.

Naturally, the Trump camp's first impulse was to lash out at the press: "Any attempt to discredit Monica is nothing more than a politically motivated attack that seeks to distract from the real issues facing this country."

For a few days, Trump clung to the fig leaf of HarperCollins, the publisher of Crowley's book. The HarperCollins folks initially stood by Crowley, and Trump's flacks duly hailed them as "the largest and most respected publishers in the world." But that all changed when HarperCollins assessed the press' revelations and announced, effective immediately, that Crowley's book "will no longer be offered for purchase until such time as the author has the opportunity to source and revise

This was too much even for Trump. Without nary a single rant or tweet — about "fake news" or the "dishonest media" or whatever — Crowley was ejected from the swamp. Earlier this week, she declared her sudden disinterest in joining the National Security Council, "after much reflection."

So put your hands together for a vigilant press. Savor this small victory, which at least shows us that not all ethical norms are dead. Problem is, it still leaves us with a swamp that will not be drained. And to best describe that swamp, I will update the infamous phrasings of our Leader:

Republicans are not sending us their best. Some are Russian doormats. Some are sleazebags. Some are racists. And some, I assume, are good people.

CELEBRATE YOUR FREEDOM TO OPPOSE PRESIDENT TRUMP

"Halima" hid under the bed and tried not to watch as the soldiers slit her brother's throat.

It was 1999 in Sierra Leone and the country was in the middle of a bloody vil war. Halima waited until the killers left, then crawled out and ran to l brother Salim, who was not breathing. She held him, prayed for a moment, then ran from the house. Two days later, with a false passport, she flew to the United States. She was granted asylum and now lives here with her family, including four U.S. citizen children.

I had known Halima's story for almost a decade since I was her immigration attorney. She is just one of the many people I've met during a twenty-year career practicing the type of law that exposes me to people who come from countries where politics is not as simple and sanitized as a panel discussion on

There was Muhammad, who had once been a member of the Nawaz party in Pakistan and made the mistake of being a vocal district officer and opponent of the Taliban when they took over his northern town and ordered medical workers to stop dispensing free vaccines. He was beaten, his father was shot and he was forced to flee the only home he'd ever known. The Taliban are still there.

There was "Javier" from Guatemala, whose family had been attacked by rebels during the Civil War in the mid-80s because they refused to provide assistance, and then were persecuted by the government when, ironically, they wrongly thought his family had provided that guerrilla aid. There was Brahim from the Ivory Coast, who had been a vocal coordinator for college students in favor of a political candidate named Ouattara, and who had been imprisoned and tortured when the president's men maintained their power by essentially putting the challenger under house arrest and disrupting the election. There was Ousmane, from Algeria, who had marched against the Armed Islamic Forces in his hometown of Medea, trying to protect the democratically elected president from an Islamic insurgency. His sister was raped, he was beaten, and the police were too afraid to arrest any of the

There were more. Mohan from the Sudan. Isaias from El Salvador. Lassana from Guinea. Emanuel from the Congo. Every single one fled a country that was mired in a political maelstrom because one group of people could not accept the peaceful relinquishment of power. I tell you these stories as a reminder that even though you might not celebrate the man and the message in the ascendant in Washington, you have to honor the process. We transition from one person to the next, one party to the next, one mission to the next, without guns. We do it without force. We do it with votes and voices. The angry feminist marches in the streets, but is not forced to hide under her bed.

The impassioned college student writes op-eds against the administration, but does not do it from a prison cell. The doctor who thinks birth control is a right, not a privilege, writes that prescription from an office and doesn't fear that police will break down his door and haul him away. To those who are angry, mournful, anxious and disgusted today I say: celebrate the country you live in, that gives you the freedom to oppose Donald Trump's administration. To those who do celebrate unreservedly, remember that those on the other side of the divide are

And to all, embrace the process that perpetuates a freedom and an individual dignity that, believe me, is the exception to a universal rule.
