Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"Spring is Nature's way of saying, "Let's party!" – Robin Williams

"It is easy to understand why the most beautiful poems about England in the Spring were written by poets living in Italy at the time." Philip Dunne

I know it's just the first few days of March, but Spring is definitely in the air. Everywhere we look as we walk Sierra Madre we see green! Green! Green! No longer are we saying "brown is the new green," we are surrounded by green lawns, green trees, flowers galore. The ornamental cherries and plums are sporting a few pink blossoms and more are on the way. The camellia in our front yard has outdone itself with hundreds of flowers when we were pretty sure it was on its way to that big green bin in the hereafter. The daffodils, however, have not bloomed yet. Lots of green spears, but no hint of flowers after the initial three several weeks ago. Possibly they need a little sunlight after all this fantastic rain we've had. Speaking of rain, you need to take a look at the stream up in the Canyon where water from the dam runs our. There is a LOT of water in there, rushing down, and the sound it makes is so sweet to hear. Yes, water can sound exquisite when you haven't heard it in a while.

The pumpkins from last Halloween are starting to deteriorate at the Parker house, which means that they will be planting the seeds for those giants they cultivate fairly soon. They're the folks who create the incredible pumpkin kingdom on their front lawn with the giant spider, Cinderella's coach and so forth.

Had an interesting experience last Sunday. Had dined out after church with son-in-law, Dave, and grandsons, Luke and Blake, hugged and kissed everybody goodbye, waved them out of the parking lot, turned on our faithful Honda and heard: click. Tried again: click. Battery had died a tragic death. However, could have been worse... the sun was out, it wasn't raining, called Auto Club and they were there within ten minutes. Not only were they there with the speed of light, but their truck was an absolute playground of batteries. They had the one we needed, installed it, took the deceased battery away and we were on our way home in twenty minutes. Now I ask you, is that fantastic or what!

Speaking of car people, you know who is really nice, and will help you whenever you pull into his driveway? Chris Hovland at Sierra Madre Independent Honda, at Baldwin and Montecito, kind of right across the street from Beantown. He never says he's too busy and will help you with things like resetting the codes for your radio when the battery dies, and other stuff like that. He never even looks impatient. We really appreciate that.

Having mentioned making Lemon Marmalade last week, I was asked how one goes about making that. If you have a lemon tree, this is really great as us lemon tree growers always have more lemons than we can use. I like to can stuff. I don't do anything that is terribly difficult or that might give anybody botulism, but with jams, jellies and pickles, you're pretty safe. Even if you've never done this before, you can astonish your friends when you give them a beautiful jar of jam or jelly that you've canned with your own tiny hands.

Buy a box of half pint canning jars. They have them at Target, OSH, Smart & Final and some grocery stores. Take 5 or 6 jars, rinse them in hot water, then refill with really hot water and let them sit till you've got your marmalade made. Then dump out the water and up-end the jars on a clean towel so they're not totally wet when you're ready to put your marmalade in them. Put the lids to the jars in a bowl and cover them with hot water till you're ready to seal them.

Now, let's make Lemon Marmalade... You'll end up with 4 or 5 beautiful half pints.

2-1/2 - 3 cups thinly sliced lemons (remove all seeds, of course), add the juice from another two or three lemons... hey, it's your tree and you can use all you want! 6 cups water

4-1/2 cups sugar

- Combine lemon slices and water in large pot. Cook rapidly till tender, about 20 minutes, stirring frequently. Drain lemons out and measure liquid; add water to make 6 cups. Add lemons back in, with sugar, mixing
- Boil rapidly, stirring constantly, about 23-26 minutes. Should be very thick.
- Pour into hot canning jars; seal.

• Turn jars upside down after they are sealed and allow them to stand on their heads for an hour or so. Then turn them right-side-up. This will make sure all your lemon peel is distributed through the jar, rather than crouching up near the top like it's trying to escape.

These jars of marmalade are beautiful, clear and make lovely gift. It's easy! Just be patient and plan to read the newspaper while you stir. (Adapted from "Freezing & Canning Cookbook" Edited by Nell B. Nichols, Field Food Editor, Farm Journal – 1963Doubleday & Company, Inc. Garden City, New York)

Last Candidate Forum Held before Election

By Dean Lee

Candidates running for Pasadena City Council Districts 3, 5 and 7 held their last debate ahead of Tuesday's election issues ranged from legalized marijuana to clean energy.

And, although he is running unopposed, District Councilmember John Kennedy took part in the debate held Feb. 23 at Throop Church saying he thought it best.

"It was important for me to be here because this is serious work that I believe many for you are to unite the city into "one Pasadena."

"If you look to your right and look to your left, you will notice that there are not a lot of African Americans in this room." He said. "That is a problem in terms of sustainability, so I invite all of the candidates and those in the room, in terms of building coalition, to reach out to everyone and bring them under the umbrella of sustainability and moving towards zero waste in our community."

In relation to sustainability, the candidates were asked if they would support the city transitioning to 100 percent renewable energy by 2035, why or why not?

In the race for Districts 7 Bryan Witt twisted the question saying that first the city could not rely on federal funding because of the new Presidential administration.

He said the city needs to all of the candidates for 5 and create its own banking system something he said works in other cities such as Oakland.

Sheena Tahilramani quickly said she supported the idea but cautioned on cost and feasibility. We need to look at what impact that will have on our larger budget." Tahilramani worked as chief of staff to Karl Rove.

Phil Hosp, a lawyer, also favored the idea but questioned the money involved, "We need to look at how much it would jack up the rates."

PETA SUES ARCADIA OVER CRUEL PLAN TO SNARE, SLAUGHTER COYOTES

Group Cites City's Failure to Perform Environmental Impact Assessment, Is Determined to Stop Plans to Harm, Kill Native Wildlife

resident Sarah Rosenberg filed a lawsuit in Los Angeles County Superior Court against Arcadia to stop the city's plan to use cruel neck and leg snares to trap and then kill coyotes. In the lawsuit, PETA alleges that because the city council voted to approve the plan on February 21 without first performing an environmental impact assessment, which is required under the California Environmental Quality Act, its decision is illegal.

"Not only did members of the Arcadia City Council high-handedly dismiss residents' appeals to leave the coyotes in peace, the mayor's and city staff's recommendations against their plan, and a ton of research indicating that lethal methods of wildlife control do not work, they also approved the killings without the environmental impact assessment that's required by California law," says PETA Senior Vice President Lisa Lange. "PETA's Arcadia, Calif. - Today, PETA and Arcadia lawsuit aims to stop the city of Arcadia from senselessly, cruelly, and illegally killing coyotes and their orphaned pups."

As PETA—which has hundreds of members and supporters in Arcadia and whose motto reads, in part, that "animals are not ours to abuse in any way"—has pointed out to the mayor and city council in letters and protests, coyotes suffer when caught in painful snares, which could also indiscriminately harm companion animals and nontarget wildlife. The overwhelming majority of city council meeting attendees have voiced strong objections to the city's plan to slaughter "nature's dogs," who are an integral part of California's ecosystem. In addition to eating vegetables and fruits, as predators, they help keep populations of smaller animals like squirrels and rats in check.

MONROVIA POLICE DEPARTMENT PERSONNEL SOLVE TWO SIGNIFICANT COMMERCIAL BURGLARY CRIMES DURING THE PAST FEW WEEKS!

During the past few weeks, our team at the Monrovia at 602 West Huntington Drive. Police Officer David Police Department were able to solve two significant commercial burglaries that we wanted to highlight.

Party City Robbery Solved!

On February 1, 2017, Monrovia police officers responded to a burglary alarm at 622 West Huntington Drive, at the Party City location. When our police personnel arrived on scene, they discovered that the front doors had been pried open and that a burglary had occurred. Working quickly, our team at the Police Department accessed surveillance video from the business, which did show the suspects and the type of vehicle they were driving.

Later that morning, our police officers observed the vehicle that was seen in the surveillance video driving through Monrovia, and we conducted a routine traffic stop. The occupants were arrested on suspicion of burglary and for possession of burglary tools. As we further investigated the situation, our police officers learned that the same vehicle had been stopped in West Covina just after the Party City burglary had occurred. In that situation, West Covina police officers arrested the driver of the vehicle, and they recovered a loaded handgun from the vehicle. However, the other two passengers in the vehicle were released, and it was those two individuals that our Monrovia police officers

All three suspects, including the driver arrested by the West Covina Police Department and the two individuals that our Monrovia police officers arrested, are suspects in the Party City burglary. Detective McClure was assigned the case and through a comprehensive investigation, it was discovered that the suspects were responsible for multiple crimes, including a burglary that occurred in West Covina, along with a prior burglary in Monrovia. We also discovered that these suspects are known gang members who operate out of Long Beach, and it is possible that the crew was responsible for other crimes in

Thanks to the great work by our police officers and a tenacious investigation by our detectives, we have been able to file felony charges against all three suspects. Our team is continuing to investigate the situation, and we are finding more evidence to help in the prosecution!

Avenue and a third suspect jumped the fence into 438 West Chestnut Avenue. A containment was established and police officers from surrounding agencies, including police canine units, assisted in the search for the suspects. Two of the suspects were found and arrested during the search.

Further investigation revealed that our Smash Burger restaurant was broken into and that Menchie's Yogurt was also robbed. The vehicle used by the suspects was also a stolen car from the City of Colton. Detective Schneider took the lead role on this case. He worked with our patrol officers to obtain video surveillance from the scene and nearby businesses. The video showed the uspects committing the crime and the clothing worn during the event. During a secondary search later in the day, we discovered discarded clothing that the suspects were seen wearing in the video. In addition, the vehicle used by the suspects was searched and evidence from the burglaries was located in the vehicle.

The case was presented to the District Attorney's Office and two felony counts of commercial burglary were filed on the suspects. Detective Schneider also Driving Under the Influence - Suspect Arrested contacted other agencies in the San Gabriel Valley and discovered that similar cases occurred in several other local communities. Detective Schneider will be following up with those cities as the investigation

Once again, the quick response of our officers resulted in the capture of these burglars. We are thankful for the assistance of our neighboring cities' officers who responded to assist with the search for these suspects, additional evidence being found to potentially assist in On Monday, February 13, 2017, Monrovia police officers solving other burglaries that the suspects committed in responded to an alarm call at Smash Burger restaurant, neighboring communities!

WHAT TO KNOW ABOUT EYE HEALTH

(StatePoint) Did you know that doctors now recommend that children as young as six months old should have their first comprehensive eye exam? And not only is correcting vision problems crucial for happiness and success, but an eye exam can detect such health problems as diabetes, high blood pressure and high cholesterol.

Experts say eye care should be a lifelong commitment, with eye exams beginning in infancy and progressing at different intervals as you age.

Unfortunately, visits to the eye doctor can be a financial hurdle for families without vision insurance. To help these families overcome this obstacle, the vision care experts at VSP have built a free online service at vsp.com where you can now find eye doctors and affordable vision

"Little eyes are precious things to protect, and ensuring our kids can see well grants them not only a richer view of the world, but better tools to learn," says Tracie Fobes, the blogger behind Penny Pinchin' Mom. "Thankfully, we have great vision insurance, and keeping up on our kids' vision care has not been a financial burden."

CANINE COGNITION

Well-Founded Fact or Fallible Fantasy?

Much ado has ensued in recent years, regarding the cognitive capacity of the domestic canine. Indeed, psychologists who've conducted and successfully completed studies in this field have earned due respect from their peers in the animal behavioral science community. The burden of proof always lies on the individual whose desire it is to prove a particular theory as fact, and with that comes the responsibility and challenge of addressing and proving un-true, pertinent opposing

Science is a discipline defined by specific perimeters applied to prove the difference between fact and theory. The process of proving a theory as fact requires accurately defining the results of repeated controlled studies with consistency, tenacity and patience. Therein lies the uniquely inherent value of the discipline itself. Anyone can come up with a theory, and we all have a theory or two of our own that we feel the need to make known at some point in our lives, but it is the proven fact that ultimately becomes a part of true science in the end.

When it comes to studying and accurately defining the thought processes and intellectual abilities of a dog, the first major challenge is communicating effectively with the subjects being studied. As we all know, animals don't speak human language, so in order to figure out what is really going on in the mind of a canine, an alternative language that the subject will comprehend and respond to in a consistent manner, must be employed.

There have been various studies conducted over the past several decades wherein sounds, signals, sign language, objects and/or graphic imagery were used to communicate with the canine, in an effort to learn more about what they are thinking. The results of some of those studies have sustained strongly enough scientifically to be accepted as true building blocks for future research into how a dog thinks and learns and why he even bothers to.

Does "Fido" respond consistently to a hand signal or verbal command simply out of natural instinct, or does he do it because he wishes to please the human? Is his response the result of empathy about what the human is asking of him, or is it simply an inherent reflex or robotic response completely absent of logic? How much of how "Fido" responds to stimuli comes from cognitive comprehension versus natural instinct? These are among the questions yet to be answered definitively and ones that animal behavior psychologists and professionals continue their quest to find answers to.

It is a fine line to define whether our four-legged furry friends understand what we are saying and thus respond by virtue of cognition, or simply because they're wired by nature to do so. This subject stirs up an immense amount of interest not only among professionals in the field, but also among lay people (such as myself) who want to know what their pets are thinking in order to form stronger bonds and know better how to care for them. It also stirs up a hot pot of controversy among folks of various schools of thought regarding whether dogs are capable of having emotions as we humans understand them.

The concept of canine cognition is a very touchy subject among some religious groups who deem it blatant blasphemy to give a dog the credit for being anywhere near able to have the kinds of feelings we humans do. I don't see the connection, myself. I believe God created the dogand every other animal for that matter - for a very specific purpose, just as He created each one of us for a specific purpose.

We are classified under different species, but we all play an important part in the universe and on this globe. would never be so bold as to assume my reason for being is more important than any other creature's on earth. We are all part of a big picture, and we should humble ourselves to the knowledge that we are blessed to be alive at all.

I don't have time or space in this article to cover the details of all the studies that have been conducted or are currently underway on canine cognition, but here is a short list of website pages that I found during a Google search on this very subject, for those readers who are interested enough to look them up:

Duke Canine Cognition Center (Duke University) http://evolutionaryanthropology.duke.edu/research/dogs Max Plank Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology http://www.eva.mpg.de/psycho/dog-cognition.php Horowitz Dog Cognition Lab (Columbia University) -

http://www.columbia.edu/~ah2240/ Harvard Canine Cognition Lab (Facebook) - https:// www.facebook.com/pages/Harvard-Canine-Cognition-Lab/105507889498335

On a more personal note, if you are interested in learning more about what goes on in the mind of your own dog, you may want to visit Dognition.com. This is a website where you can assess your dog's cognitive tendencies in a list of categories such as empathy, communication, cunning, memory and reason. There are various games and tests you can choose from for you and your dog to participate in.

Having completed the assessment, enter the resulting data and the website provides feedback regarding your canine's cognitive capacity. I found it interesting, but of course accuracy is subject to your personal input. Dognition's research is published in PLOS (Putting Placebos to the Test), so that says something about their credibility. At least you're sure to have fun in the process. You can purchase a one time assessment tool kit for as low as $19 and there are monthly & yearly plans available as

I'm fascinated by the concept of canine cognition, and I'm glad there are scientific research projects underway to help us better understand our furry four-legged friends. I may never know what my girl "Molly" is thinking, but I can't help believing there is more going on in her head than, "When's dinner?", Regardless of what else she may be thinking, I know one thing for sure...she KNOWS I love

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND

Lauren is a 3-year-old terrier mix who is looking for a fresh start for her life. When little Lauren was picked up as a stray dog, she looked more like a dirty rag mop than a living creature. Lauren was found severely neglected, matted and very frightened of every sound, movement, dog, or person she encountered. Staff patiently worked with Lauren to build her trust in people again, and after about three weeks of gentle touch, she was ready to meet a few volunteers. They continued socializing Lauren, with quiet cuddling and petting until she felt brave enough to get off the lap and start to explore the world. Soon she was able to meet a few dogs, and gradually her confidence grew enough that she was able to take a walk

Lauren now happily greets new people and dogs, and enjoys going for walks with them. Lauren is looking for a patient, gentle person or family that can help her continue on Lauren. ID#27113. #### THE JOY OF YOGA WHY DO YOGA AT A STUDIO?

a yoga studio? Doesn't the gym provide yoga? There are a few reasons worth considering when deciding whether to do your group yoga classes at an established studio.

First, the environment at a yoga studio is calm, serene, and clean. Have you noticed a feeling of calm come over you as you walk into the studio? The space is set up that way. Also, over time, the space where yoga and meditation are practiced collects energy. This is positive energy from class after class of healing movement and breathing taking place. This is quite different from a mixeduse environment.

Second, the teachers usually have significant training in yoga and a devotion to their own Namaste and Love, practice. Don't get me wrong - the gym has some great teachers - many with significant training - Keely Totten but not all. The culture is different and student E-RYT 500, Reiki Master Practitioner, Wife, population in each class is quite different. Mom, Yogi Almost all teachers at Yoga Madre have a Teacher at YOGA MADRE in beautiful, Sierra 500-hour certification or more of specialized Madre, CA.

It's a good question training. Each one works in their own style to - why do yoga at help students build awareness through their practice. A student will be exposed to the deeper aspects of yoga through pranayama, mantra, mudra, and meditation.

Lastly, I've found that students who attend yoga at a studio appreciate the opportunities to advance their practice and knowledge of yoga. Opportunities include in-depth workshops, yoga therapy, energy healing, and advanced studies/ yoga teacher training. All of these offerings along with a well-rounded yoga practice create a "whole person" approach to health and wellbeing. This approach often leads to a reduction of stress and pain and increased vitality and happiness.

Come join us for a class at Yoga Madre. We have knowledgeable and experienced instructors that meet you where you are.

traveling, or learning a new skill once their child leaves home. It's one thing to want it something, but it's quite another to have it. Wanting a thing and having it don't live on the same channel. What happens to us? As we mature, we adopt an operating system to get through life. After age 40 it is critical to realize the choice we are making; we can choose to expand, to create and to grow. Or by failing to choose we are getting stagnation, shrinking and lethargy. We move closer to death. I have a friend that has a great business idea. She has a name for her business, a service she wants to provide and a potential location, yet she has done nothing to start her business. My friend is unhappy, she hates her job, and she is frustrated with her life.

What to do?

Recognize the preciousness of the moment and make a conscious decision. Be cognizant of the micro-choices that you make throughout the day and get in touch with the word no. Sometimes we need to say no to ourselves and others. Perhaps

It's just so tempting to stay in it's no and closing the refrigerator. Maybe it's bed under the covers. It is quite no to signing your name to a credit card charge. a feat getting that damn nest empty. I know Perhaps it's no to giving a ride to someone, going folks that dream of starting a new business, or with someone or saving someone. Is time to give up being a people pleaser?

> "Go confidently in the direction of your dreams." Henry David Thoreau

Once you identify something new that you want to accomplish, it is important to start. To go is going to require you to be different and take responsibility for the life that you are creating. Reflect on your life, and if it is not in alignment with the vision you have of yourself and life, you will be required to get up and GO!

Finally, this is where the yogurt hits the fan. Build on the momentum you have created. Take an action step. Do something! Do you dream of a loving connected relationship? Take a step to create that. Do you long for an adventure, what kind? Book it and do it! Want to help the community? Go, volunteer. Want to start a business? Choose a business name and register it. Take the first step and then another, and another that's how you will get to the other side. The fun is in the doing, that's the expansion.

Your life is waiting, go!

My friend, Roger Mendez, says "top shelf" or "third floor" when he wants a good brand-name drink when he is at a bar. Reader Bob Carlson might we are moving to the high rent district today. It took me a few years to figure out (and maybe just in time now) that when you are at a supermarket looking for your favorite wine and frustration sets in, you should search by price - the most expensive wines are on the "top shelf" and the bottom shelf is usually where you'll find lowest prices. You'll find me somewhere in the middle. Please let me, just for this one week, introduce you to the top shelf at your local wine department because that is where I found the Oracle 2011 by Miner. do believe in "blends", and this Oracle is "top shelf". The grapes are sourced from vineyards in the area including cabernet from Stage Coach Vineyard in Napa Valley. I am told that Black Bart used to rob the stagecoach that ran from St. Helena to Monticello. If Bart could have gotten his hands on some Oracle wines, he would have appreciated the fruitiness of the first taste. The tannins are very smooth, and like many blends that include petit verdot (regardless of the price) has a touch of boldness and a bit of spice. ## THE GOOD LIFE

HOW TO FIND AFFORDABLE HIGH-SPEED HOME INTERNET SERVICES

Dear Savvy Senior,

Do you know of any resources that can help me find affordable high-speed home Internet services? I'm retired and live primarily on my Social Security and would like to find something cheaper than the $40 per month that I currently pay. Searching Senior

Dear Searching,

There are two great resources you can turn to, to help you locate low-cost or discounted Internet services, but's what's available to you will depend on where you live and/or your income level. Here's where to begin.

Low-Cost Internet

Your first step to locate cheaper high-speed Internet is EveryoneOn, a national nonprofit organization dedicated to making affordable Internet services available to all Americans.

Through partnerships with Internet providers like Comcast, Cox, AT&T, T-Mobile, Mediacom and others, EveryoneOn can help you search for services in your area that provide high-speed (4G LTE) Internet at a very low cost. Most participating companies charge around $10 per month, with no contract and no equipment fee. However, for nonincome qualifiers, there may be a one-time setup/ equipment fee of $62. Data plans will vary too.

To start your search, go to EveryoneOn.org and type in your ZIP code and click on the "Find Offers" button, or you can call 877-947-4321. You'll then need to answer a few questions regarding provider in your area that participates in the Lifeline you household financial situation so the Internet services you're eligible for can be located.

Some providers offer their services only to people regardless of income. What's available to you will depend on where you live.

Also note that in addition to the low-cost Internet services, EveryoneOn also provides referrals to affordable computers and free computer org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today classes. Most of the companies they work with show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

offer refurbished tablets usually for under $100, and computers for under $160 that are available to everyone. And, they provide referrals to free computer classes, which are typically offered in public libraries across the U.S.

Discounted Internet

If you don't have any luck finding a low-cost service through EveryoneOn, and your income is low enough, another option is the Lifeline Assistance Program. This is a federal program that provides a $9.25 monthly subsidy to help pay for broadband Internet service, or for a home or wireless phone. Only one benefit is available per household; either phone service (home or wireless) or Internet (home or mobile), but not both.

To qualify, you'll need to show that your annual household income is at or below 135 percent of the Federal Poverty Guidelines - which is $16,281 for one person, or $21,924 for two. Or, that you're receiving certain types of government benefits, such as Medicaid, food stamps, SSI, public housing assistance, veterans pension or survivors pension benefit, or live on federally recognized Tribal lands.

To apply, you'll need to contact an Internet program and ask for an application form. To locate providers in your area, visit LifelineSupport.org or call 888-641-8722. Once the provider verifies your with limited financial resources, however there eligibility, they will begin service. (NOTE: The are others that offer low-cost deals to everyone Internet companies that partner with EveryoneOn do not currently accept the lifeline subsidy.)

get away with while still appearing somewhat professional. My make up consists of eye liner, which has the staying power of industrial paint, so I apply it once at 6:30 and never touch it again until I take it off around 10 pm. My hair is tamed, not styled. Overall, if my look can't be achieved in 15 minutes or less, it's not happening.

When I got to work on Monday, one of the first students I saw was a peppy sixth grader we'll call Linda. Linda often dresses somewhat loudly, but that day she was actually wearing mismatched socks. "Nice socks," I told her, not sarcastically. Heck, she's more fashionable than I am and knows all the latest trends. "This is Crazy Sock Day." she replied matter-

"What?" I asked, momentarily stirred from my morning mental fog. I reached down to pull up my jeans above my ankles, exposing my well-worn Split Pea Anderson's socks, complete with Hap-Pea and Pea-Wee splitting peas on a table with a mallet. "Ha! This is the first time I've ever been in sync with the school theme!" I told her. knew the depth of reverence paid to his memory Linda politely smiled, clearly not as excited about this as I was. "And tomorrow's Crazy Hat Day," she said. I thought about all the hats my mom has knitted me in recent years. While not "crazy," they are definitely unique. "I'm on it!" I exclaimed to answered. "Hey, that's everyday for me!" I beamed.

I'm not a morning person, and "Maybe Crazy Sweat Pants Day," I mused, thinking I'm especially not a morning I could get used to this. Linda furrowed her brows person on Monday mornings. in concentration, "No, I don't think so." Oh well,

It turned out that Thursday was Striped Shirt primarily by what's the most comfortable I can Day, and Friday was College Attire, which worked for me because I collect comfy shirts from various colleges, even ones I've never attended. Why, you ask, devote a whole week to wearing odd things? Because yesterday was Read Across America Day, a.k.a. the birthday of Theodor Seuss Geisel, a.k.a. Dr. Seuss.

Now, I love Dr. Seuss as much as the next person. In fact, somewhere there's a photo of me with my mom and grandma in the dead of summer in the 80's, sweating it out in line at Vroman's in Pasadena waiting to have a book signed by the legend himself. I even admire the lesser-known art of Dr. Seuss, his paintings, and the 1953 film "The 5,00 Fingers of Dr. T," which rivals any Vincente Minnelli piece in its surreal beauty and dreamlike quality. But I think we've gotten a bit carried away in our elevation of him to the same sacred literary status as Shakespeare, Emerson, and F. Scott Fitzgerald. If I have to hear "Oh, The Places You'll Go" quoted during another graduation speech I think I'll puke. "Green Eggs and Ham" is creative and memorable, but it isn't divinely inspired. I wonder what Dr. Seuss himself would say if he in primary and secondary schools nationwide. expect he'd blush and tell them not to take themselves so seriously.

That being said, it was kind of nice to have an excuse to wear a special mom-made hat to school Linda, "What's after that." "Crazy Hair Day," she and to dress comfortably this week. I can't wait to see what they have in store for St. Patrick's. I have my "And the next day?" I asked. "Hmm, I forget." leprechaun sweat pants and shamrock hoodie ready!

MARTIAN WINDS CARVE MOUNTAINS, RAISE DUST

On Mars, wind rules. Wind has been shaping the Red Planet's landscapes for billions of years and continues to do so today. Studies using both a NASA orbiter and a rover reveal its effects on scales grand to tiny on the strangely structured landscapes within Gale Crater.

NASA's Curiosity Mars rover (http://www.nasa. gov/curiosity), on the lower slope of Mount Sharp—a layered mountain inside the crater—has begun a second campaign of investigating active sand dunes on the mountain's northwestern flank. The rover also has been observing whirlwinds carrying dust and checking how far the wind moves grains of sand in a single day's time.

Gale Crater observations by NASA's Mars Reconnaissance Orbiter have confirmed long-term patterns and rates of wind erosion that help explain the oddity of having a layered mountain in the middle of an impact crater.

"The orbiter perspective gives us the bigger picture on all sides of Mount Sharp and the regional context for Gale Crater. We combine that with the local detail and ground-truth we get from the rover," said Mackenzie Day of the University of Texas, Austin, lead author of a research report in the journal Icarus about wind's dominant role at Gale.

The combined observations show that wind patterns in the crater today differ from when winds from the north removed the material that once filled the space between Mount Sharp and the crater rim. Now, Mount Sharp itself has become a major factor in determining local wind directions. Wind shaped the mountain; now the mountain shapes the wind.

The Martian atmosphere is about a hundred times thinner than Earth's, so winds on Mars exert much less force than winds on Earth. Time is the factor that makes Martian winds so dominant in turning point in the planet's climate as Mars became MtnViewsNews.com.

shaping the landscape. Most forces that shape Earth's landscapes—water that erodes and moves sediments, tectonic activity that builds mountains and recycles the planet's crust, active volcanism-haven't influenced Mars much for billions of years. Sand transported by wind, even if infrequent, can whittle away Martian landscapes over that much time.

Gale Crater was born when the impact of an asteroid or comet more than 3.6 billion years ago excavated a basin nearly 100 miles wide. Sediments including rocks, sand and silt later filled the basin, linear dunes. some delivered by rivers that flowed in from higher ground surrounding Gale. Curiosity has found evidence of that wet era from more than 3 billion years ago. A turning point in Gale's history—when net accumulation of sediments flipped to net removal by wind erosion—may have coincided with a key drier, Day noted.

Other new research, using Curiosity, focuses on modern wind activity in Gale.

The rover this month is investigating a type of sand dune that differs in shape from dunes the mission investigated in late 2015 and early 2016. Crescent-shaped dunes were the feature of the earlier campaign—the first ever up-close study of active sand dunes anywhere other than Earth. The mission's second dune campaign is at a group of ribbon-shaped

On the 17th of this month, we celebrate "Saint Patrick's Day," that day when people pinch each other if they're not wearing green, when the local grocer starts selling little potted shamrocks, and where the local bars sell green beer. But what's this really all about?

First, a little wake-up call about "Saint Patrick." Patrick was not Irish, had nothing to do with leprechauns, almost certainly was not a drunkard, and didn't drive all the snakes out of Ireland. In fact, there were believed to be no native snakes in Ireland, though this story is generally regarded as an analogy for driving out the so-called "pagans," or, at least, the pagan Around age 16, he was sold into slavery in Ireland and worked for the next 6 years as a shepherd. Keep in mind that human slavery, as well as human sacrifice, was considered "normal" for those times.

After his six years in slavery, he believed that to escape and seek out his homeland. He actually dreamed about, and spent the next twenty years of his life as a monk in Marmoutier Abbey. There enslaved, though now with a mission as a priest and converter.

In fact, one could argue that the trinity (a term not found in the Bible) was a concept given to Christianity by the Druids, rather than the other way around. Nevertheless, whatever momentousness Patrick conveyed, King Laoghaire was very impressed with Patrick, and chose to accept Christianity. He also gave Patrick the freedom to spread Christianity throughout Ireland.

When Patrick returned to Ireland, he treated the "pagans" with the respect implicit in his dream. Part of this respect was attempting to communicate with the Druids on their terms, which is why he used the shamrock as a teaching tool. He also blended the Christian cross with the circle to create what is now known as the Celtic cross. He used bonfires to celebrate Easter, a Holy Day that Christianity supplanted with the already-existing spring equinox commemoration. In fact, he incorporated many devolving into chaos and ruin. His persuasive powers must have been astounding, since Ireland fully converted to Christianity within 200 years and was the only country in Europe to Christianize peacefully. Patrick's Christian conversion ended slavery, human sacrifice, and most intertribal warfare in Ireland.

Patrick was also unique in that he equally possibly somewhere else, as there is conflicting valued the role of women in an age when the church ignored them. He always sided with the downtrodden and the excluded, whether they were slaves or the "pagan" Irish.

According to Thomas Cahill, author of How the Irish Saved Civilization, Patrick's influence extended far beyond his adopted land. #### WHAT TIME IS IT, REALLY?

When it comes to certain things, I am quite a bit confused. One thing has to do with time. What I want to the morning.

know, what time is it? I do not know why time cannot be the same for everybody. After all, everybody is squirming about equal rights. Why can't we have equal time rights? Why do we have to split it up

If that is not enough, we have this idea of changing the time.

the clock ahead one hour and then a couple months later you sheep? turn it back one hour. What good does that accomplish? taking that dollar back. What exactly is going on? It just does not really make sense to me. It has taken me quite a while to get adjusted to this idea of "Spring Forward" and "Fall Backward." I get the idea falling backwards, but I do not know what it means to spring forward.

Moreover, why can't we spring backward and fall forward one year? After all, there is this issue of equal rights. It has taken me a while to get adjusted to these kinds of time

One year I remember rather well when I got everything confused. I thought I would take control and not tell the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage that I was going to change the clocks. I wanted it to be a surprise for her. Of course, I put things off to the last minute and usually get into trouble. I put this off to the last minute not knowing that my wife had already turned the clocks ahead. So, trying to impress the good lady of the parsonage that I was a responsible gentleman, I went around and turned all the clocks ahead one hour.

Some people say when you get older you forget a lot. I have of everybody else. been forgetting a lot all my life.

A few hours later, after setting the clock forward an hour, I could not remember if I really set the clock forward. So, very quietly I went around and set all of the clocks forward one hour. This was on a Saturday night. I thought I would really surprise my wife with remembering to set the clocks forward. That night when it came time to go to bed, I noticed that I was not very tired. I try to go to bed by 11 o'clock each night, but this night I just could not even yawn.

"I think," I told my wife, "I've had too much coffee today. I just don't feel sleepy.' She looked at the clock, scratched her head and said, "I don't feel sleepy either." What do you do when it is time to go to bed and you do not Well," my wife looking at me rather strange, "we better go to bed or we will not be able to get up in the morning. And we can't be late for church."

It was a little after 11 when I got to bed and my eyes just would not close. I closed them and they would snap open right away. I tried counting sheep. By the time I got to 10,978 sheep, I was just as awake as before. What do you do with that me

Eventually I must have fallen asleep because suddenly I It is like giving somebody a dollar and then six months later heard the alarm clock going off. It was eight o'clock and we had to hurry to get dressed in order to get to the church on time. We were so late that we did not have an opportunity to have breakfast, but I snatched a cup of coffee anyway and took it along with me.

We got to the church on time, at least according to our clock, and waited for people to come. Nobody showed up and I was getting rather antsy. I turned to my wife and said, "This is Sunday isn't it?'

Our church service starts at 10:30 a.m., by 11 o'clock nobody had come. At 12 o'clock noon, we decided something had gone wrong and started closing up the church to go home.

As soon as we locked up the church, the cars started pulling in and we were rather confused. Why was everybody so late? My wife looked at me and said rather strangely, "Did you turn the clock ahead one hour last night?" "Yes," I said very proudly, "I turned the clock ahead one hour just as we're supposed to." My wife just stared at me and said, "So did I." We tried to figure out why our clocks were two hours ahead

When you are supposed to turn the clock ahead one hour and you end up turning it ahead three hours, a lot of confusion can happen. It is hard to know what time it really is, which is why I like what Paul said. "And that, knowing the time, that now it is high time to awake out of sleep: for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed" (Romans 13:11).

Waiting on God's time is the wisest use of our time knowing that he has all things in hand.

TOURS SHOWING HOW HOMES CAN BECOME ENERGY EFFICIENT USING STATEWIDE REBATES

PUBLIC IS INVITED TO MONROVIA HOME ENERGY

March 12 and March 26 Events Showcase Upgrades that Improve Home Comfort, Efficiency, Resale Value
The Energy Network will present Home Energy Tours:

Home Upgrade in Monrovia to help homeowners learn about available statewide rebates for home energy upgrades and see first-hand how Monrovia homes can become

On March 12 and March 26 from 12 p.m. to 3 p.m., community members can walk through two different Monrovia homes that were recently upgraded using statewide rebates and incentives through the Energy Upgrade California* Home

Upgrade program.

The homeowners, Mary Ann and Corey Lutz and John and Katie Watson, will be on hand to answer questions about the upgrade process and their before-and-after experiences. Although each home had different needs, Home Upgrade offered them rebates for qualifying energy upgrades including insulation, water heater, air conditioner, windows and others improvements.

The Home Energy Tours will include refreshments and a chance to meet other green leaders and homeowners in the city. Visitors can learn about rebate programs and financing options to make upgrading easier. To RSVP for the tours and learn the home addresses, visitors should go to http://tenres.com/Monrovia.

The events are sponsored by The Energy Network. The Energy Network is administered by Los Angeles County and funded by California utility ratepayers under the auspices of the California Public Utilities Commission. For more information about The Energy Network events, contact The Energy Network at (877) 785-2237 or email homeupgrade@theenergynetwork.com.

About the Homeowners

March 12: Mary Ann and Corey Lutz A few years ago former Monrovia Mayor Mary Ann and her husband Corey had a thorough energy assessment done on their 2-story home built in 1978. Their goal was to install solar panels but make the house as energy efficient as possible first. This way they could purchase a smaller, less costly solar system because the house would need less energy, and they could enjoy the added comfort and savings of their energy improvements.

Their earlier energy upgrades included better attic insulation and sealing, double pane windows, a cool roof and a tankless water heater. Later they had a new high efficiency zoned AC and heating system installed along with new insulated and sealed ductwork.

Since their upgrades, the Lutzes noticed a huge improvement in the comfort of their home. "Before, it was expensive to run the AC enough to make it comfortable, so we opened up windows for some relief when it was over 100 degrees outside but that didn't really work," Mary Ann says.

"Now we have a system on each floor and can control the temperature much better from wherever we are in the house," she remarks. "Our comfort has improved without increasing our energy bills and the new AC and heating equipment is much quieter. We feel like we now have a better house all the way around."

And what about the state-sponsored Home Upgrade rebates? "The rebates were great," she exclaims. "They offset almost half of what we paid for all the energy upgrades."

March 26: John and Katie Watson

John and Katie Watson learned about the statewide home energy rebates through their participation in the Monrovia Historic Preservation Group, which had sponsored a workshop on home energy savings. They discovered that they could install energy upgrades in their 2-story 1928 home without losing its City designation as Monrovia Historic Landmark No. 128.

Before their upgrade, the Watsons had minimal air conditioning downstairs, no heat or AC upstairs, drafts circulating constantly and unusually heavy amounts of dust. After a thorough energy assessment, they decided to install not only new high-efficiency zoned AC and furnace systems, but new insulated ductwork, attic insulation and a tankless water heater.

"Since our upgrades, the house heats up or cools down very quickly exactly where we want it and it stays that way," exclaims Katie Watson. "The heat from the attic (which is part of the second story) doesn't leak in and the comfort level is consistent. The draftiness is gone and so is the heavy dust." Shorter HVAC run times, reduced energy bills and less water usage waiting for water to heat up are additional benefits, according to Katie.

STORYTELLER MICHAEL D. MCCARTY

And a VERY SPECIAL Black History Month Celebration

There are times when I REALLY love what I do-especially on a recent Thursday. Storyteller Michael D. Mc Carty provided an awesome learning experience for Maxwell students at Pamela Park

Who is Michael D. McCarty? Michael is an enthusiastic, energetic storyteller with a loud commanding voice. Born and raised in Chicago, Michael has traveled worldwidethirty countries. From these travels, Michael has become a multicultural storyteller; African and African-American Folktales, International Folktales, Historic tales, Stories of Science, Spiritual stories, as well as "stories of the brilliant and absolutely stupid things he has done in his life". His energetic and enthusiastic storytelling style educates, inspires and amuses children and adults. Michael, director of GRIOT Workshop, a storytelling collective in Los Angeles, is on the Board of Directors of the National Storytelling Network, and

While we waited for Maxwell students to arrive, Michael set many books and bookmarks on a nearby table.

After the children arrived and were seated, Michael explained there would be times to yell out answers; other times, hands would be raised and children called on. If their answer was correct, they could choose a book and bookmark. His program would include three selections:

The first was an African folktale from the Asanti about Anasi, a small spider who uses his intelligence and trickiness to triumph over larger creatures. Michael explained the stories originate in West Africa-Ghana and Liberia; also Jamaica and St. Thomas which teaches a little geography! The second story was "The Boy Who Harnessed the a MUST read for ALL AGES. Even former Vice President man is.

Al Gore marveled at it.) The 14 year old boy, William Kamkwamba, is from Malawi in South Africa where there is poverty and famine. William went through trash to find materials to build a windmill to power his home. It is truly a remarkable, inspiring story.

The third presentation was Haitian Folklore and features

Ti Malice, a trickster character who is the nemesis of Uncle Bouki. Ti Malice is smart and guileful; Uncle Bouki is hardworking, but very greedy.

Thank you to LA County Library System, Live Oak Library Youth/Teen Librarian Suzanne Biazzo, and Pamela Park Program Director Sam Estrada-anyone who made this awesome experience happen. Not only the children, but attending adults and I had a fun learning experience!

Please go on line for Michael D, Mc Carty. There are Wind: Creating Currents of Electricity and Hope" (This is actually videos and you can see how talented this gifted

SUPERVISORS APPROVE BARGER MOTION SUPPORTING STATE LEGISLATION ADDRESSING DRUGGED-DRIVING

Bill by Assemblyman Tom Lackey Passes Assembly Committee on Public Safety

LOS ANGELES COUNTY - A motion by Supervisor and have passed laws addressing the impact of drugged-Kathryn Barger, co-authored by Supervisor Mark Ridley-Thomas, unanimously approved by the Board of Supervisors, announces the County's support for proposed legislation that will address the issue of driving under the influence of drugs, including marijuana.

The bill authored by Assemblyman Tom Lackey (R-Palmdale) requires the California Highway Patrol Commissioner to convene a drugged-driving task force which will develop recommendations to address the issue of driving under the influence of marijuana and other drugs -- including prescription medications.

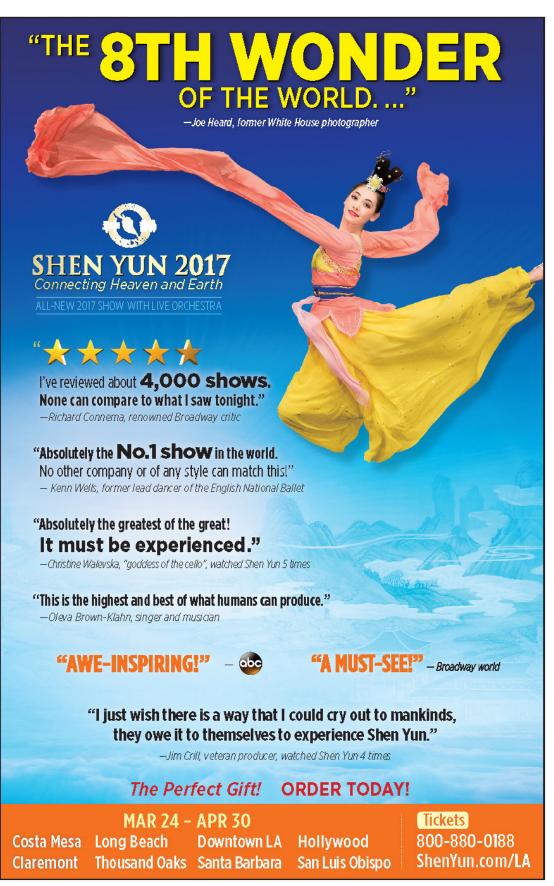

With a report to on its policy recommendations and the steps state agencies are taking, the bill would also examine the use of technology to identify drivers under the influence of drugs and authorize the task force to conduct pilot programs using those technologies.

Colorado and Washington both legalized marijuana, driving on public safety. Colorado's House Bill 1325 calls for DUI prosecution if a driver's blood contains 5 nanograms or more of delta 9-tetrahydrocannabinol per milliliter in whole blood at the time of operating a motorized vehicle. The State of Washington passed a similar law in 2012 which was outlined in Section V of initiative 502 (i-502).

"With the passage of Proposition 64 in the State of California, it is imperative that we address the need for a driving under the influence law specific to the use of drugs," said Barger. "I applaud Assemblyman Lackey's effort to protect the public from dangerous drugged-drivers.'

In addition to the Board of Supervisors, the legislation has received support from the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, California Police Chief's Association, California League of Cities, and the Foundation for Advancing Alcohol Responsibility.

A WRINKLE IN TIME

By Artistic Director, Christian Lebano

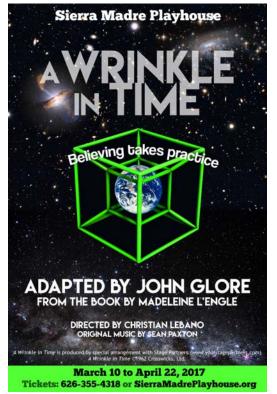

"Believing takes practice."

Although this quote from the book A Wrinkle in Time does not get said in our production, I have used it as my inspiration for our show. I didn't read this book as a kid - I came to it only as an adult when I was thinking of plays for the Field Trip Series - but I wish I had though. This is exactly the kind of book I would have loved: science fiction (I was a huge Robert Heinlein fan) about disconnected and disoriented kids.

And Meg, the protagonist, is just the kind of kid who should go on this journey - a true "Hero's Journey" if there ever was one. An awkward, lonely and dispirited girl on the brink of adolescence who learns two invaluable things that all of us needed to learn when we were young and impressionable: that we are loved and that we are perfect just as we were. Believing takes practice...believing in yourself and more importantly believing in others - your parents, your friends, your siblings - just at the moment when you are questioning everything.

When I started the Field Trip Series in 2014 I hoped that it would grow into a yearly offering that would speak to school kids and their teachers, supporting curriculum and inspiring a love for theater in our young patrons. But even more, I hoped that the stories would be ones that would inspire and challenge and enthrall - and they have! - from the Civil War drummer boys of Battledrum, to the young scientist on the brink of everything in Einstien is a Dummy, to the sterling friends in Charlotte's Web, and now to Meg in A Wrinkle in Time. I'm so happy that this play features a girl on the brink of womanhood learning to negotiate the world and her own transformation. I cannot imagine a more fitting story to share with young people who themselves are on the brink of adulthood.

I am so grateful to all the artists who are helping me realize this show: the actors who are always up for any wild suggestion and the designers who are as delighted as I am to tell this story and who keep coming up with so many great ways for us to realize the vision of this show. We have started our technical rehearsals (when we add the sound, lights, and projections) and it is truly to see you soon!

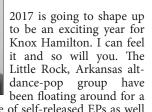

a collaborative and incredibly fun journey. We are using the Playhouse in ways we've never tried before and I hope it will delight our patrons as much as it does us! 'Believing takes practice" and I'm still practicing!

As always we here at SMP do all of this for you – our faithful patrons. I look forward to seeing you and the young people in your life (this show will truly captivate them) in the audiences. We open next Friday, March 10 and run Friday nights and Saturday matinees through April 22. For tickets please call Mary in the box office at 626.355.4318 or go to SierraMadrePlayhouse.org. Hope

SEAN'S SHAMELESS REVIEWS:

By Sean Kayden

few years with a couple of self-released EPs as well as their 2015 EP, How's Your Mind. With a slew of opening shows under their belt and performing alongside indie heavy hitters such as Young the Giant and The Head and The Heart at several highly regarded music festivals, Knox Hamilton is looking to have their own kind of successful breakthrough.

Knox Hamilton "The Heights" Rises Above The Rest Artist: Knox Hamilton Album: The Heights Label: Prospect Park Records Release Date: March 10th, 2017

The trio, which includes, Boots Copeland (vocals, guitar, bass), Drew Buffington (guitar), and Cobo their bright debut album, The Heights (Prospect Park Records). The extensive thirteen-song collection is filled with breezy guitars, pulsating drumbeats, and groovy bass lines. The formula they've cooked up here is a winning one leaving the listener enraptured by all its sheer beauty. The suitably titled The Heights undeniably takes you, the listener, to new altitudes all while capturing the aura of sunny California.

Right away, the listener will be immediately hooked with the driving force of "We Get Back." It's a splash of excitement packaged in a three-minute gem. The soft vocals of Copeland are complimented with the echoing synths, effervescent drums, and beach-y guitars. The jubilant opener definitely gets you excited for what's to come. "Washed Up Together," one of the singles off The Heights and previously found from their last EP, still holds up finely as a strong addition. With angelic vocals, sweet harmonies, pensive lyrics, and lovely keys, you get quite the song to appreciate here. It's another exercise in catchy vibes that you'll grow to love with this band. Toe-tapper "Set It On Fire" (also found on when I say it will cure your dreary day blues.

2017 is going to shape up the previous EP) will keep you moving and shaking if that's what you're into. With their idyllic sound, Knox Hamilton stays consistent in tone throughout the course of their solid debut.

"Pretty Way To Fight," is a fresh song for this composition and grabs you right from the beginning. This elegant, under-the-radar track puts Knox Hamilton in a whole new light. The song propels the audience into another realm with sparkling guitars, virulent synths, and sweet bass lines. Knox Hamilton knows how to switch things up a bit without veering off the path completely. "How's Your Mind" is found here as well, making the debut album ultra familiar to those who are fans of the band. For those unaware of this one, it's another distinctive winner from the band. You have the dreamy hooks we've come to love from them, the infectious chorus as expected, and the gentle vocals that are truly hard to resist.

As you make your way through The Heights, you'll notice the band's very first single dating back to 2014, "Work It Out" making an appearance as well as the terrific "Rightfully So" from their last EP. Then there's 'Never My Love," a solid cover of a song that's 50 years old from pop group The Association. With Knox Hamilton applying their signature flair on the song and Copeland (drums), couldn't be more ready to release — making some contemporary adjustments, the tans are rewarded with something familiar yet original. "Barely Missed You" is the true stunner here. Starting off with "I barely missed you last night" the song already has exlovers pondering about their former significant others. As far as the tempo goes, it's the most graceful outing from the band. "Barely Missed You" is unmistakably an emotionally affective track and if you're a sucker for charming harmonies, then this one will is clearly for you. "Barely Missed You" enables Knox Hamilton to reveal a more diverse and gentle component to their overall sound.

The finale is the acoustic title track that calms the listener down as we make our way to the end. The last track is tranquil and while it's serenely compelling to listen to, it's the most straightforward performance by the band. When it's all over with, Knox Hamilton has undoubtedly delivered a solid, exceedingly gratifying experience for anybody who's willing to grasp. Knox Hamilton is getting a head start in summer and so will you if you pick up this album when it arrives on March 10th. Trust me

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

ESTATE PLANNING ESSENTIALS FOR PARENTS

A comprehensive estate plan can protect the things that matter most. For many, this means their property and their

Including provisions for the care of your children in your estate plan is essential for peace of mind. But many parents struggle with including provisions such as naming a legal guardian for their child. Indeed, even the fictional parents in the popular television sitcom Modern Family struggled with this issue in a recent episode. While Jay and his new and much younger wife Gloria agonized and argued about who they should name as a legal guardian for their children, their children were left at risk that if something happened before they decided and properly named guardians in a legal document, a judge would make the decision for them. Not ideal, under any circumstances.

When naming a legal guardian for your minor children, there are many factors to consider, such as whether the welcoming home environment. But the toughest decisions are often the most important. Consider the outcome if you died without having legal protections for your children in place. Your children could be subject to conflict between relatives or they could be raised by someone you would never want, or in a way you wouldn't want. They could even temporarily be taken into the care of strangers.

Identifying and naming a legal guardian for your children in your estate plan is both a difficult and important task. Don't put off naming a legal guardian for your child. While thinking about what will happen to your child if you die is difficult even for fictional parents, your kids deserve the protection and you deserve the peace of mind that a legal guardian provides.

Unfortunately, even if you have made the hard decisions, and even if you have worked with a lawyer to name legal guardians in a Will, your kids could still be at risk, because that type of plan would not take into account what happens if you become incapacitated, or if your named guardians all live far from your home, and it wouldn't protect against anyone who may challenge your decisions. The only way to ensure your kids are raised by the people you want, in the way you want, never taken into the care of strangers (even temporarily) and that your kids would never be raised by anyone you wouldn't want, is by creating a comprehensive Kids Protection Plan, which very few lawyers are trained to prepare.

If you are ready to take that step, start by sitting down with us. We can walk you step by step through creating a comprehensive Kids Protection Plan® that not only names a legal guardian for your child in your Will, but also ensures your kids are fully provided for, in the short-term and the long-term, and in the event of your incapacity.

Our number one goal is to ensure your entire family is protected and cared for no matter what.

That's why estate planning should be about more than just documents. It should be about ensuring you make informed and empowered decisions about life and death, for yourselves and the people you love. The right estate planning counsel will help you get more financially organized than you've ever been before, and make all the best choices for your family throughout your lifetime. #### TRUMP'S SPEECH: THE HIGHS AND THE LOWS

As he wrapped up his first speech to a joint session of Congress on Tuesday night, President Donald Trump offered a bromide to a fractured nation:

The time for trivial fights is behind us," Trump said, offering an olive branch both to the audience seated before him and the audience watching at home, after six weeks of aggressive tweets, attacks on the press and denunciations of anyone and everyone who disagrees with him.

Trump's nearly 75-minute address offered some cause for optimism – he denounced the ant-Semitic acts of vandalism and terror that have marred the nation for the last few weeks. And he offered a broad, if detail-lacking agenda, that he said would restore American greatness. The high points:

Infrastructure: Trump sounded the right note in calling for the largest public works program since the creation of the interstate highway system under President Eisenhower:

To launch our national rebuilding, I will be asking the Congress to approve legislation that produces a $1 trillion investment in the infrastructure of the United States -- financed through both public and private capital --- creating millions of new jobs," he said.

In this, Trump is correct: Infrastructure construction is a sound bet economically, creating direct,

One of the big challenges: It's not clear how Trump intends to pay for this program. Nor is it encouraging to think of Congress moving swiftly when lawmakers struggled for months to reauthorize the federal highway bill.

NATO: In what must have been a balm for America's European allies, Trump said America "strongly [supports] NATO, an alliance forged through the bonds of two World Wars that dethroned fascism, and a Cold War and defeated communism."

Child Care: Trump's mention of his intent to improve access to childcare was one of those rare moments that prompted mostly stone-faced Democrats to rise and applaud. The issue: Trump's plan to make childcare cheaper seems mostly like a gift to the rich, according to a study by the non-partisan Tax Policy Center. The tax experts at TPC say 70 percent of the benefits will go to families that make $100,000 or more. And 25 percent will go to people earning $200,000 or more," Heather Long, of CNN money,

"Trump has identified a real challenge affecting working families, but his proposal would do little or nothing to help them," Elaine Maag, an expert at the Tax Policy Center, told CNNMoney. A typical middle class family earns about $56,000."

Immigration: A disappointing amount of Trump's speech focused on the non-existent public safety threat posed by undocumented immigrants, who commit crimes at a much lower rate than the nativeborn population. Trump's order creating a new agency focused on undocumented crime within the Department of Homeland Security was pure fear-mongering.

Healthcare Reform: Trump repeated his call for the repeal and replacement of the Affordable Care Act. He offered five principles for the future that included guaranteeing access to care for people with pre-existing conditions; tort reform, and expanding access to health-savings accounts. These are Republican solutions that have been circulating for years. And if they were easy or practical, they would have been done already.

Making things more complicated, Republicans, facing enraged crowds at home, are hardly unified on the best way to go about any such exercise. Democrats have zero interest at all in repealing or replacing the former administration's signature piece of public policy.

The inevitable victory lap: Trump can't seem to get through a speech without turning the spotlight on himself. And Tuesday was no exception, He told Congress that the "earth shifted beneath our feet" because of his win last November, ignoring the reality that his was an unremarkable electoral college

In short, the speech was vintage Trump. He attempted a pivot to the presidential, even as he got in High-flown rhetoric about clean water was kneecapped by executive action ordering the Environmental Protection Agency to review Obama-era water rules to gauge their impact on the economy.

Similarly, the president's welcome, if tardy, condemnation of the acts of anti-Semitism (along with the shooting of Indian immigrants in Kansas City) was undercut by reports that Trump had suggested that they might have been false flags, or hoaxes, perpetrated by someone else.

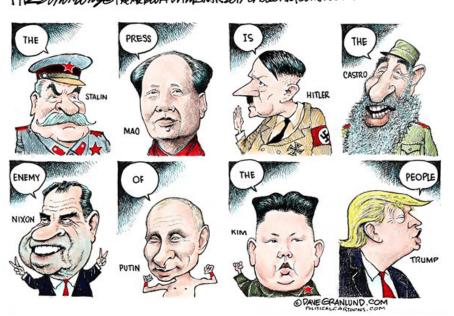

But it remains to be seen if his administration can work with Congress to translate the vague outlines of a sweeping agenda into actual policy. His tendency toward chaos and disruption doesn't augur well. As with so much else with this president, we'll have to wait and see.

To be sure, Trump could use a legislative win right now.

DICK POLMAN

NO, OBAMA IS NOT PLOTTING A 'TREASONOUS COUP'

We're all well acquainted with the fake news phenomenon - the Trumpian sewage that's routinely pumped into the brains of the dumb and numb. But the good news is, Facebook has started to fight back, working with a coalition of fact-based media outlets.

Better late than never. The 2016 campaign was festooned with phony scoops like "Pope Francis shocks world, endorses Donald Trump for president" and "FBI agent suspected in Hillary email leaks found dead in apartment in murder-suicide" and "Hillary sold weapons to ISIS." Credulous social media users clicked and shared and were happy to get suckered. It's no surprise that the con lives on. My new favorite bit of fakery, which has already been shared tens of thousands of times, and re-posted on dozens of websites with names like Angry Patriot and Trump Media, features this eye-candy headline: "BREAKING. Congress Moves to STOP Obama's Treasonous Coup Attempt Against Trump"

Sigh. These people still can't quit the guy.

Last I saw, Ōbama was photographed on a boating vacation, wearing cool shades and flashing a free-at-last grin. He sure didn't look like somebody plotting a coup and seething with treason, but hey, maybe his vacay vibe was just part of the conspiracy. And if Congress is indeed moving to stop his coup, I can respect its apparent decision to do so quietly. Maybe that explains why not a single Republican in Congress, or Spicer or Kellyanne, has breathed a word about what Obama has afoot.

Anyway, I bring all this up because ABC News - working with Facebook - has posted a deconstruction of the fake-news story, explaining how the infauxmation process worked.

Basically, this was the fake-news logic: Trump is plagued by government leakers; many government officials are civil servants who stay on the job from one administration to the next; some leakers might be officials carried over from the last administration; therefore, the leakers are partisan Obama loyalists; therefore, Obama is directing his loyalists; therefore, Obama is plotting a treasonous coup.

ABC News dryly concluded that, aside from the people making stuff up, "no one is alleging that former President Obama is connected to the leaks or has committed treason because of these revelations." But the most noteworthy true info comes at the bottom of the "ABC News has launched 'The Real News About Fake News' powered by Facebook data in which users report questionable stories and misinformation circulating on the platform. The stories will undergo rigorous reporting to determine if the claims made are false, exaggerated or out of context. Stories that editorial partners have also debunked will then appear flagged in your News Feed."

Facebook announced this project earlier this winter. The social network had long prided itself as a neutral bulletin board, but its leaders had come to realize that allowing sewage to flow unchecked was a social negative. As Adam Mosseri, one of the Facebook veeps, said in December: "We really value giving people a choice (of information), but we also believe we need to take responsibility for the spread of fake news on our platform."

So Facebook hooked up with ABC News, the Associated Press, FactCheck.org (housed at the University of Pennsylvania), Politifact, and Snopes. Users can now flag stories they suspect to be fake, and stories that draw enough flags are typically steered to these factchecking media sites. The Obama slime job met the specs for scrutiny. And another group called First Draft - which includes The Washington Post, Vox, and ProPublica - combats what it calls "the misinformation ecosystem."

It's nice to finally see some kind of pushback, even if these efforts don't really make a dent. The users who guzzle fake stories about Obama certainly won't accept a thumbsdown verdict from ABC News, which they probably dismiss as part of the conspiracy. No, they'd prefer to believe the lies that jibe with their Trump worship and ideological predilections; look no further than the scene Thursday morning at CPAC, the annual Conservative Political Action Conference, where a standing ovation greeted the on-stage appearance of alternative-factess Kellyanne Conway.

But there's hope for the reality-based community. A new Quinnipiac poll says when Americans are asked whom they trust "to tell the truth about important issues," 52 percent choose the media, and only 37 percent tilt to Trump.

No doubt he would dismiss those stats as "fake news." I call it good news.

MAKING SENSE MICHAEL REAGAN

Maybe I'm channeling Donald Trump.

Or maybe he's been reading my columns -- or my mind. All I know for sure is that when he gave his great speech to Congress Tuesday night he did exactly what I suggested he should do that morning in my column in The Hill - stop being Donald Trump.

Quoting my father, I wrote that there comes a time when the president-elect has to become the president - and then start acting like one who represents the whole country, even his enemies. I said the president should be a conservative, make conservative appointments and run a conservative government. But I also suggested that he immediately stop catering only to his base and tell us in his speech where he wants to take the country and how he plans to take us there.

President Trump did all that and much more in his widely applauded speech Tuesday night, which was a great turning point for his administration to move forward on his agenda.

By spelling out his core goals, and asking the House and Senate to create the legislation to put them into place, Trump proved to Congress he wants to lead. On Tuesday night he set the cornerstone for his administration's agenda.

Like Trump Tower, he now has to begin rebuilding and rehabilitating America from the infrastructure up.

Many of our bridges and roads are in shambles. We take off and land at airports that would shame a Third World country.

In Studio City, Ca., not far from my house, a 90-year-old pipe burst and caused a sinkhole that swallowed cars but thankfully no people. President Trump is absolutely right to want to throw a trillion public and private dollars at the crumbling infrastructure of the country — the more private the funding, the better. He is also absolutely right to want to rebuild and build-up our military after eight years of neglect by the Obama administration.

As my father used to say, we fought four wars during his lifetime - none of which were fought because America was too strong. President Trump understands that. So does Secretary of Defense James Mattis. So does his disgruntled fellow Republican, Senator John McCain, who'll someday

The president's signature campaign issue, enforcing and reforming our awful immigration policy, will face a huge political fight and a lot of compromising.

applaud the president if he stays on course to rejuvenate the Army, Air Force and He'll need to find the area where we can all come together. Nobody is going to get 100 percent of what they want, so everyone - including the president's base -- has to be willing to give a little.

President Trump's other aims — lowering taxes on people and corporations, cutting regulations on businesses and repealing and replacing ObamaCare — are goals conservatives have been dreaming about for years. He has a real chance of accomplishing many of his goals and the goals of conservatives in the next 200 days, but he can't do it alone.

He's going to need the advice and help of thousands of people.

So if I could give one more bit of advice to President Trump, which comes from a placard that was on my father's desk, it is, "There's no telling what a man can accomplish or where he could go if he doesn't worry about who gets the credit."

My father knew it's never about taking credit, Mr. Trump, it's all about getting things done.
