SIERRA MADRE'S MAGNIFICENT VINE

Where Your Community News Comes First

Sierra Madre——Arcadia——Pasadena——Altadena— -Duarte-

SATURDAY, MARCH 18, 2017

What a wonderful day for a festival! The weather was perfect and the legendary Wistaria Vine was in full bloom. Families came from near and far as thousands made the trek to see the Vine either on foot or via shuttle.

While in town, visitors also had the opportunity to shop and dine at our local merchants, visit nearly 100 crafter booths, food booths, and non profit organization booths. There was plenty of music around town and very special guests that just wanted to be adored, the 'Purple Ponies'.

SAYING FAREWELL

...A Message From Retiring City Manager Elaine Aguilar:

"I began working for cities in 1983, and I held a number of positions, in a number of cities, all in preparation for August 2007, when I was appointed Sierra Madre's new City Manager. Now nine and a half years have gone by so quickly, and I can't believe this is my final City Manager's report. I truly mean it when I say that Sierra Madre is a special place, and it isn't easy leaving, but personal family matters need my full attention, so it is time to turn things over to the new City Manager Gabe Engeland. I have been able to spend some time with Gabe and I really think he is wish everyone and Sierra Madre all the best!

fantastic, and he will be a good fit for this wonderful town. I am really going to miss everyone - the City Council Members, the residents, business owners, volunteers and City staff. One of my many goals, 9.5 years ago, was to hopefully bring some stability to the positon of City Manager, and at that time, I wholeheartedly gave the City Council a 5 year commitment. But little did I know that 5 years would quickly almost become 10 years! I leave knowing that between the committed City Council, the involved community, and the dedicated City staff, that there aren't any obstacles that are too great and that can't be overcome. I

Exhibition: "EMERGING WOMEN" Opening Night Reception -Saturday March 18, 7 to 9 pm

"EMERGING WOMEN" is a collection of exciting, modern and often historically significant works of art inspired by and selected from the recently published, groundbreaking 4-volume set of books: Emerging From the Shadows: A Survey of Women Artists Working in California 1860-1960.

The exhibition, curated by author Maurine St. Gaudens, consists of stimulating and captivating paintings and sculpture all created by women artists working in California as well as throughout the United States, Mexico and Europe; most of whom were previously unknown. The majority of the 80+ works have never been seen by the public before this thought-provoking exhibition which will leave you asking why were these talented artists left in the shadows and forgotten?

In addition, Maurine St. Gaudens, along with her colleagues Joseph Morsman and Maureen Siegel Sprowles, will be at Creative Arts Group on April 7, 2017, from 7-9pm to participate in a Q & A discussing the artists presented in Emerging from the Shadows and the influential role these adventurous women played in the development of the arts culture in California.

The exhibition will continue through April 26, 2017. (Gallery Hours: M-F 10am-5pm & Sat. 10-2) www.creativeartsgroup.org/emerging/ www.emergingfromtheshadows.com/

This will be my last whiney word on DST...except...I hope you saw the first cartoon on Page B4 of last week's Mountain Views News. I fell over laughing when I read the guy's t-shirt, "You can have my hour of sleep when you pry it from my cold, dead fingers." If you missed it, go to www.mtnviewsnews.com and you'll find it there.

The Wistaria Festival was fantastic - and hot! Town was packed, people parking a mile away. Delighted to see that. We had the best time wandering down Sierra Madre Blvd., looking at all the nifty works of art that were available for reasonable prices. Daughter, Leah, bought her sister a lovely top for her birthday from one of the booths in Kersting Court. We saw birdhouses, chimes made out of old silverware, adorable baby clothes, face painting, those turtles made out of cement with lovely shiny stones on their backs. I love these we have two of them. Beads, Bottles & Bags by M.E. had the neatest things that you could hang up or use as a votive candle holder. Bottles of every description with the bottom cut off and a place for a candle. These were so clever and unusual. Here's their website: www. beadsbottlesandbags.com.

Curious Morphologie was where Leah, the shopper, bought a framed print - a really unusual piece of art for her niece, Nicole, who was also celebrating a birthday. The print Leah got was so sweet...dandelions with stems and leaves, except the dandelion heads were tiny hedgehogs. Nicole is a hedgehog lover. So different and really charming. Here's their website: www.curiousmorphologie.com

There was jewelry created from those really big old fashioned keys with other small keepsake items attached, which together could make a story, Storyteller fabulous! Covered with glorious pink blossoms! A Keys. And the best wind chimes ever featuring shells, stones, painted whales, beads. Weathered Woods wethrwds@yahoo.com.

The park, where it was nice, cool and shady, had a group playing in the bandshell with a banner behind them: Montecito Music & Media. I need to hunt these guys up and talk to them. Saw Donna Sutcliffe, one of the members of our Sierra Madre Rose Float Association and the picture here is the concept drawing of our 2018 Rose Float. No name yet, and the design could be changed but here's your first look at our next float! She handed me a sheet on the quote: "A night of bingo you won't soon forget! Wild playwrightdd

"You will never find anybody who can give you a or Mild - This Is Not Your Grandmother's BINGO!!" $20 donation at the door, pizza, beer and wine, mark your calendar now, it's April 15th at the Sierra Madre Recreation Center. > The Library had a table where kids were creating wistaria blossoms out of crepe paper, I think, and having a splendid time. Speaking of the Library, I am about a third of the way through Rise of the Rocket Girls: The Women Who Propelled Us, From Missiles to the Moon to Mars, which is the One Book One City selection, and I'm loving it! These young women, the computers at JPL who transformed rocket design, were interesting people. You need to get this book!

Oh! And the food! Cousins Maine Lobster, Korean BBQ, Sausage Masters and all our restaurants were full. A delicious sight. Patio diners at Sierra Fusion, Only Place in Town, Zugo's, Corfu...happy people sitting in the shade, enjoying a moment and watching the Wistaria Festival go by.

Spent an hour in the Mountain Views News booth, which was manned by the News' own Christopher Nyerges and his charming companion. Christopher had all his books out for sale and there were a lot of them, friends and neighbors! The guy is prolific and has a book to help you survive no matter where you end up! He was creating a rope out of various plant fibers, to pass the time between folks stopping by to say hi. Also met our newest columnist, Lori Harris, who writes, "The Missing Page, Real Life Tips From Life's Instruction Manual." What a delightful woman. She gave me a little pop-open card that says, "Smile!" on the outside and the thought inside was, "We have to choose joy and keep choosing it every day." Henri J.M. Nouwen. You'll like her column, on Page 10. Trust me!

Speaking of joy, you need to drive down Sierra Madre Blvd. just west of Michillinda and admire the guaranteed joy moment!

ARCADIA UNIFIED DIGITAL COMMUNICATIONS INTERNS RECEIVE STATEWIDE RECOGNITION

ARCADIA-- A group of talented Arcadia High School students is honored with a prestigious communications award that is typically reserved for seasoned public relations professionals. The Arcadia Unified School District and its Digital Communications Internship (DCI) program were recently honored by the California School Public Relations Association (CalSPRA) at its annual awards dinner held in Sacramento. Arcadia Unified's DCI students received an "Award of Excellence" in CalSPRA's Excellence in Communications program.

"I am beyond proud of the job our students did on this project, and am grateful that CalSPRA recognized them for their very creative and important work," said Arcadia Unified School District Public Information Officer Ryan Foran who created and oversees DCI. "This was a major project that we spent a lot of time on, and more importantly, it will save our district money and afford more students access to Chromebooks and technology."

The "Award of Excellence," the highest distinction available, was earned in the Multimedia/Visual Communication category for the creation of "DCI Chromebook Care Video." After completing a three-year, 1:1 technology rollout, where every student and teacher in the district received their own Chromebook to work with, the number of repairs being made were higher than anticipated for the roughly 10,000 Chromebooks distributed throughout the District.

"We needed to get the word to our students about a few simple but important tips and techniques that would reduce the number of repairs we were making to the Chromebooks," explained Arcadia Unified's Chief Technology Officer Scott Bramley. "I've seen the impressive work produced by DCI, and knew they would do a great job with this project."

DCI turned the challenge into an opportunity and created a very informative yet entertaining video about proper Chromebook care. The video, which has well over 2,000 views on YouTube, was sent to all AUSD parents, students, and teachers, and was also watched and discussed in classrooms throughout the District. After the release of the video, damage reports significantly

Alongside Foran, AHS juniors Naomi Silver and Melanie Mak, two-year DCI veterans, led the project as co-executive producers, with Silver also serving as lead video editor. Twelve other DCI students worked on the video as segment producers, actors, and contributors. These students include: Adele Ng, Alan Zhang, Derek Jing, Nick Marshall, Jack Wu, Jarett Yip, Jeremy Du, Kelly Li, Sarah Wang, Seongwook Jang, Troy Nguyen, and

The Arcadia Unified Digital Communications Internship program was created in the Spring of 2015 and is an integral part of Arcadia Unified's Communications and Public Information Office. DCI has grown from its first intern, Arcadia High senior Travis Chen, to 41 Apaches now participating in the program. The interns help cover the many events that occur throughout the district through digital communications, helping tell the many positive stories of Arcadia Unified's students,

"It's more important now than ever that schools share our stories, to help parents connect with their children's schools and to help taxpayers see how districts are spending their precious resources. CalSPRA's Award of Excellence winners are at the top of their class, successfully building support for and creating an understanding of our public schools," said CalSPRA President Music Watson. CalSPRA is a nationally recognized leader in school communications that promotes better public understanding, commitment, and support of public education through effective communications.

SIERRA MADRE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL By Deanne Davis

"Bluegrass is wonderful music. I'm glad I originated it!"

"Bluegrass has brought more people together and made more friends than any music in the world." Bill Monroe

This morning I visited Sierra Madre Elementary School where the second graders – about 110 strong of them – were presenting their portion of Road Trip USA – Nashville! And, not only were the second graders amazing performers but their special guest, Evan Marshall, is a worldrenowned musician himself. Needless to say, I had a fabulous time! A bit more about Road Trip USA: Each grade level had a destination with appropriate music. 5th grade did Folk and Rock 'n Roll for Los Angeles. 4th grade traveled to Detroit for Motown. 3rd grade visited New York for Broadway and 2nd grade took us to Nashville.

Meeting Evan Marshall was an absolute pleasure, and being introduced to him by Gayle Bluemel, former principal of the school and namesake of the Gayle L. Bluemel Auditorium was also a pleasure. Gayle was the pianist for today's trip to Nashville and her husband, Dan, played a mean guitar to compliment Evan Marshall's excellent fiddle work. Trained as a classical violinist, Evan fell deeply and permanently in love with Bluegrass Music in high school. His first band, "Smokewood," was formed with his brother, John. Evan has the distinction of playing Disneyland's Golden Horseshoe for 10,000 shows - give or take a couple! Friends with Gayle Bluemel for at least 50 years, it was her Dad who handed Evan his first mandolin, which led to a lifetime of taking the mandolin places it had never been before. For example, Evan has played mandolin solos with symphony orchestras and is well known in classical music circles for his solo version of the William Tell Overture on the mandolin. He has written many arrangements for mandolin which are available as sheet music and instruction books and he recorded and put out his first album, "Class Grass" in 1981. Evan has several solo mandolin CD's recorded on Rounder Records and a number of CD's you can find on his excellent website: HYPERLINK "http://www.EvanJMarshall.com" www.EvanJMarshall.com. Take a look! I have my eye on "The Mandolin Mystery Tour" and "A Mostly Mozart Mandolin Concerto."

As we were chatting, the auditorium stage began to fill with exuberant second graders decked out in cowboy hats, bandanas and boots. They took their places on the risers, sat quietly...which was pretty impressive... outstanding. Kudos to Sierra Madre Elementary School for showcasing while the rest of the students in grades three through five took their their kids with opportunities to shine.

seats. "Achy Breaky Heart" blasted away. Miss Emily, the music teacher, who, I do believe is a Force of Nature achieved wonders with these little folks. Incidentally, Evan Marshall is the very first professional musician to grace one of these assemblies and what he added to their music was just perfection. Accompaniment, some amazing breaks and each time he had a solo part, all the second graders turned in his direction. Miss Emily, Force of Nature!

The Pledge of Allegiance was recited, "America The Beautiful" was sung and the second graders were on! The lineup included "Keep On The Sunny Side," a terrific solo presentation of "I Go Out Walkin' After Midnight," Hank Williams, Sr.'s "Hey! Good Lookin!" There was a fantastic Elvis doing "You Ain't Nothin' But A Hound Dog" complete with the moves, and all the while, Evan Marshall added absolutely stellar interludes.

There was line dancing, square dancing, a duo of ukulele players performing "You Are My Sunshine," and the School Song ended the program, as performed in the style of "The Tennessee Waltz."

I was astonished at how quickly the time flew by and delighted when Evan treated the audience to "Orange Blossom Special" which brought down the house. The Spotlight Assembly – Road Trip USA was

LONGEST SERVING WOMAN IN NASA, SUE FINLEY, VISITS ALVERNO HEIGHTS ACADEMY

Finley, a human computer at JPL, visited Alverno's Honors Physics Class

On Monday, March 13 Alverno Heights Academy's Honors Physics class, as well as a handful of other students, had the opportunity to meet and hear from Susan G. Finley, the longest-serving woman in NASA. Finley has been an employee at JPL since 1958. Somewhat of a recent local celebrity, Finley's notoriety has risen thanks to Nathalia Holt's book, Rise of the Rocket Girls: The Women Who Propelled Us.

During her visit on Monday, Finley shared more of her story with the girls, allowing them to ask questions and interjecting with other stories and anecdotes as she thought of them. Finley attended Scripps College for three years with the original intention of becoming an architect. Her knowledge of engineering was vast because of her talents in mathematical and computing courses, so she attempted to learn art, but later realized that engineering was in her future. During her college experience she majored in the humanities, which she explained to the girls allowed her to see the connectivity with everything in our world. At the age of 21, she left Scripps College to become an engineer with a thermodynamics group at Convair in Pomona.

Like most women of her generation, Finley took time off at the beginning of her career to raise a family. She left JPL twice in the first few years of her employment in order to support her husband's education and also took maternity leave for some time for her two sons, returning permanently to JPL in 1969. According to Finley, balancing her work and family lives was difficult because of the "lack of good child care options" and commented that both JPL and Caltech today offer excellent childcare options that weren't available at that time. When asked by one of the girls, Finley commented that she believes that women still face these struggles today and many others, especially in the STEM fields. One of her goals was to keep her work and home life separate, aiming to never bring her work home with her or "working late without making up that time at home." She cooked all the meals for her family, but did not spend much time on housework. In fact, Finley explained to the class that her "lack of talent in housekeeping" was one of the reasons that she returned to work after her children were old enough.

In 1958, she took a position at JPL. This job required her to perform "trajectory computations for rocket launches by hand." In 1962, it was a calculation Finley made that showed that Ranger 3 had missed the Moon by 22,000 miles.

The advent of electronic computers slowly changed what the allfemale computations group did. The women were trained to program computer language developed for scientific applications. Male engineers largely didn't want to do the programming themselves in the 1960s. It was still considered "women's work," not part of an engineer's job description. Through her career, Finley provided both manual computation work and FORTRAN programs as part of JPL's missions to the Moon, Mars, Venus, Mercury, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, in the Ranger, Mariner, Pioneer, Viking, and Voyager programs In the 1990s and 2000s, Finley contributed to JPL's further explorations of the solar system. She worked with the Mars Exploration Rover missions and developed technology in which musical tones were sent at differing phases of descent and were transmitted back to DSN. The engineers were then able to use this information to determine which landing stage the rocket was in at a given time.

in FORTRAN, the primary

Finley was stationed at the Goldstone and Tidninbilla stations while the landings were taking place and was the first to hear the tones that confirmed the landers survived their trip to Mars. Unfortunately, her work went unrecognized in the media because they reported from JPL's mission control only.

She continues to work full-time for JPL and is involved in DSN support for NASA's recent unmanned missions, including the recent Pluto flyby by the New Horizons spacecraft and the Juno mission to Jupiter. She told the class that she has absolutely no plans to retire and looks forward to seeing where space exploration continues to take us.

Following the question and answer session, the students gifted Finley with some fun Alverno gear for her to sport around JPL, as well as some space-themed cupcakes they had baked. She also generously signed autographs and answered personal questions from the girls.

"It was an incredible pleasure to welcome Sue Finley to campus," said Alverno Heights Academy Science Teacher Ms. Monica Barsever. "She is truly a role model for young women looking to enter the STEM fields and the impact she has made on the history of the space program is tremendous. We want to thank her for coming and sharing her inspiring story with us."

THE LONE COYOTE

Most folks who have lived in Sierra Madre and the other local foothill communities for any period of time, have by now developed an awareness, a respectful regard and a careful concern for the coyotes with whom we cohabitate, particularly when it comes to the safety of their children and

I, myself have had several relatively close encounters with coyotes over the past 26 years I've lived here, and fortunately in my experiences there have been no tragic mishaps, however I must admit I have, on occasion felt somewhat intimidated by coyotes traveling in packs.

Recently, I have been seeing a particular coyote wandering by itself on the north side of town, more often during the day than at night. I am not an expert on coyotes or coyote behavior, but having observed them countless times over the years I've lived here, I have noticed what I have come to consider a somewhat predictable behavioral pattern. So when I see a coyote behaving dramatically different from what seems normal to me, I can't help noticing.

The coyote I've been seeing recently stands out to me because of both it's appearance and it's behavior. First I noticed that it has what appears to me to be a multi-colored coat, almost like a brindle pattern which is often worn by certain domestic dogs. This made me think perhaps it could be a mix between a coyote and a feral domestic dog.

I took a photograph of the lone coyote one day when I happened to see it standing in a yard on Santa Anita Blvd. When I showed the photo to a few local friends and neighbors, a couple of them agreed it does indeed look like a mixed breed. Others thought it looked more like it might just be sick with mange or another skin disease, causing patches in it's coat. Either way, I was quite intrigued and decided to keep my eyes peeled for more sightings.

When I mentioned my visual & photographic encounters with the elusive lone coyote to a friend who knows quite a bit about coyote behavior, he said he had seen a strange looking coyote pass through his yard recently that fit that very description. He thought it behaved as if it was lost and moved slower than most coyotes he's seen wandering in our community, and that it seemed much more bold, wandering alone in the middle coyote, (I actually feel sorry for it) I have a healthy respect for it's presence in our town. In other words, I let it have it's space! The main thing that concerns me is that this coyote might be more desperate than the ones we are used to seeing. Perhaps it has been evicted from the pack for whatever reason, and must fend for itself, in which case it might be more apt to attack for self-protection or self-preservation.

Although I am not necessarily afraid of this lone

Regardless of why this lone coyote behaves the way it does, the fact remains that it could be more of a threat than your average local coyote. For this reason, thought it would be a wise idea to remind the local folks about the importance of protecting their pets and small children from what could be a tragic encounter with what might be a desperately

Here are a few safety tips that I consider to be common sense practice when it comes to cohabitating with coyotes:

Keep your pets indoors whenever possible. When you do take them out, keep them on a leash or inside a coyote proof fence. A coyote proof fence should be at least 5 ½ feet tall, and made of wood, brick or wire. To prevent coyotes from digging under the fence, you can attach a wire apron buried 4-6 inches under the ground extending out from the fence at least 20 inches. Rabbit & chicken hutches should be elevated with solid bottoms and partially solid sides versus open wire.

Do not feed the coyotes! You may be doing this without realizing it. Make sure the lids on your trash cans are tightly closed and if possible locked. Feed your pets indoors to avoid baiting coyotes into your yard. If you feed your pets outdoors, bring any leftover food inside between feedings. If you have a garden, make sure it is enclosed in a coyote proof fence.

Clean out overgrown brush and weeded areas on your property. Coyotes hunt for small rodents, and those are the areas where they are most likely to find them. By allowing brush and weeds to thrive in your yard, you are basically ringing the dinner bell for the coyote.

Make loud noises when you do see a coyote close to your home, to help discourage repeated visits. A whistle works well for this purpose. If you encounter a coyote during a walk with your dog, make every effort to avoid it by walking in the opposite direction. Never attempt to approach a coyote, especially with a dog on leash. You are begging for trouble if you do!

Coyotes are fascinating, beautiful creatures who have lived in these foothills since long before paved streets and neighborhoods crept up from the valleys. Whatever you do, show respect to them by recognizing their place in the balance of nature and by giving them the space they deserve. Use common sense in protecting your pets and children, enjoy the beauty of our natural environment and above all, love and let live!

O' PIZZA O' PIEOLOGY

When you need something different I suggest the new Pieology Pizzeria on South Lake, where pizza lovers go to create custom pizzas in endless flavor combinations. With no signs of slowing down, Pieology is set to open a total of 110 restaurants by the end of the year with commitments for 500. Remaining steadfast to the company's approach of fostering strategic and sustained growth, Pieology has proved to be a leader in the booming custom pizza category, reporting the highest average unit volume per store versus its competitors.

I spoke to the President Bob Baker about the concept "We are thrilled to bring the unique Pieology experience to new guests across the country," "While many competitors are focused on rapid expansion, Pieology is carefully selecting experienced franchise partners who embrace the company's vision, are committed to the communities they serve and have a proven track record of franchise success."

The Pieology experience starts with fresh housemade dough that is pressed into 11.5-inch thin pizza crusts. Guests first select from seven base signature sauces, moving down the line to choose from nearly 30 fresh and flavorful meats, cheeses, vegetables, herbs, and spices. The custom pizzas are then stone oven fired to perfection in under three minutes. To finish, guests have the option to add after-bake "Flavor Blast" sauces, including fiery buffalo, pesto and BBQ, to create their own unique masterpiece. Each custom pizza with unlimited toppings is always $8.00 or less. Pieology also offers gluten-free crust and a selection of seven signature pizzas, which can be customized upon request.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

The eight Southern California Pieology locations to open by April are: Culver City, Westlake Village, Korea Town, La Mirada, Whittier, Carlsbad, Cerritos and Monrovia. All locations will feature an industrial-chic and friendly environment where inspirational quotes decorate the walls, menus and employee uniforms. I checked out the new store on South Lake and loved it, I think you will too! We got our pizza in less than 5 minutes. For the complete list of pizzas go to www.

Pieology's Bottom Line: The staff is very friendly and you are greeted enthusiastically by all of them (and I mean ALL of them...in unison) upon entering the store. It is fun...and I liked the high energy of the staff!

HOW TO STOP SNORING

Dear Savvy Senior,

Over the past few years my 57-year-old husband's snoring has gotten much worse. It's to the point that I have to either wear earplugs or move to a different room. Any suggestions? Sleep Deprived Susan

Dear Susan,

Snoring is a very common problem that often gets worse with age. Around 37 million Americans snore on a regular basis according to the National Snoring occurs when the airway narrows or is partly blocked during sleep usually due to nasal congestion, floppy tissue, alcohol, or enlarged tonsils. But you and your husband also need to know that snoring can be much more than just an annoyance. It can also be a red flag for obstructive sleep apnea, a serious condition in which the snorer stops and starts breathing during sleep, increasing the risks of cardiovascular disease, stroke, cardiac arrhythmia and hypertension. According to the American Academy of Sleep Medicine, 34 percent of men and 19 percent of women who snore routinely have sleep apnea or are at risk for it.

Self-Help Remedies

Even if you are unsure whether your husband has a primary snoring problem or sleep apnea, sleep experts suggest you start with these steps.

Open a stuffy nose: If nasal congestion is causing your husband to snore, over-the-counter nasal strips such as Breathe Right may help. Or, if allergies are the cause, try saline nasal sprays.

Elevate his head: Buying a foam wedge to elevate his head a few inches can help reduce snoring, or buy him a contoured pillow to lift his chin and keep the tongue from blocking the back of his throat as he sleeps. Also check out Nora (smartnora.com), a wireless snoring device that slides under the pillow and gently moves the head to a different position when snoring is detected. This, they say, stimulates the relaxed throat muscles and opens the airway.

Sleep on side: To prevent back sleeping, which triggers snoring, place a pillow against your husbands back to keep him from rolling over or sew a tennis ball in the back of his pajama shirt. Or check out the Night Shift Sleep Positioner (nightshifttherapy.com), a device that's worn around the neck that vibrates when you roll on your back.

Avoid alcohol before bed: Alcoholic beverages can relax the muscles in the throat, and constrict airflow. He should not consume alcohol three to four hours before bedtime.

Lose excess weight: Fat around the neck can compress the upper airway and impede airflow and is often associated with sleep apnea.

Quit smoking: Smoking causes inflammation in the upper airways that can make snoring worse.

If these lifestyle strategies don't make a big difference, your husband should see his doctor, a sleep specialist, or an otolaryngologist who may recommend an overnight study to test him for

For primary snoring or mild to moderate sleep apnea, an oral appliance that fits into the mouth like a retainer may be prescribed. This shifts the lower jaw and tongue forward, keeping the airway

Some other options are Theravent snore therapy (theraventsnoring.com) and Provent sleep apnea therapy (proventtherapy.com), which are small nasal devices that attach over the nostrils to improve airflow.

But the gold standard for moderate to severe sleep apnea is a continuous positive airway pressure, or CPAP, device. This involves sleeping with a mask and is hooked up to a machine that gently blows air up your nose to keep the passages open.

If these don't work or are intolerable, surgery is an option too. There are procedures available today that remove excess tissue in the nose, mouth, or throat. And a newer procedure called hypoglossal nerve stimulation that uses a small device implanted in the chest to help control the movement of the tongue when it blocks the

GIGANTIC JUPITER-TYPE PLANET SHOWS HOW WORLDS EVOLVE

An enormous young planet approximately 300 light-years from Earth has given astrophysicists a rare glimpse into planetary evolution.

The planet, known as HD 106906b, was discovered in 2014 by a team of scientists from the U.S., the Netherlands and Italy. It is 11 times the mass of Jupiter and is extremely young by celestial standards—not more than 13 million years old, compared with our own solar system's age of 4.6 billion years.

"This is such a young star; we have a snapshot of a baby star that just formed its planetary system—a rare peek at the final stage of planet formation," said Smadar Naoz, a UCLA assistant professor of physics and astronomy, and a co-author of the study.

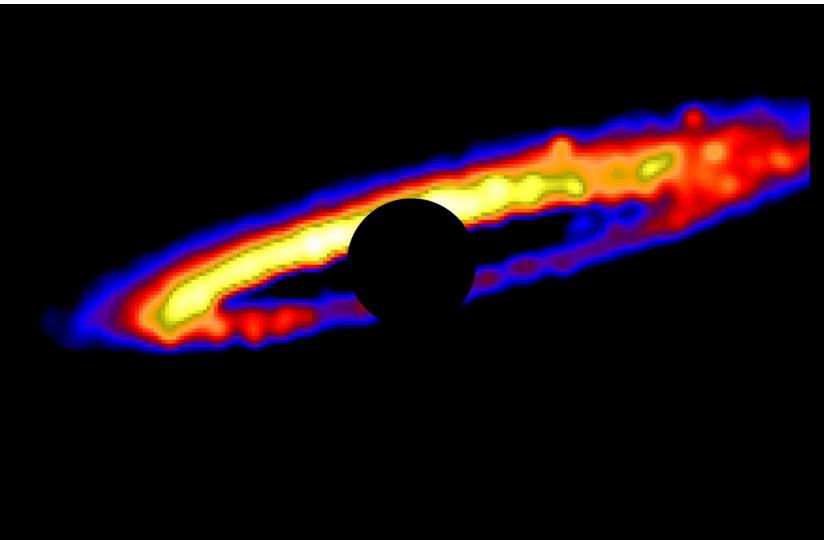

Another of the planet's unusual characteristics is its great distance from its star. Astronomers believe that the vast majority of planets outside of our solar system exist inside a dusty disk of debris relatively close to the center of the star's planetary system. But HD 106906b is far beyond its planetary system's dusty disk—so far away that it takes 1,500 years for the planet to orbit its star. HD 106906b is at least 650 times as far from its star as the Earth is from our Sun.

The study's lead author is Erika Nesvold, a postdoctoral fellow at the Carnegie Institution for Science, whom Naoz mentors. She wrote software called Superparticle-Method Algorithm for Collisions in Kuiper belts and debris disks, or SMACK, that allowed the researchers to create a model of the planet's orbital path—a critical step because HD 106906b orbits so slowly that the researchers can barely see it move.

The research, published online in the Astrophysical Journal Letters (http://iopscience. iop.org/article/10.3847/2041-8213/aa61a7), suggests that the planet formed outside the disk, where it is visible today, as opposed to having been beyond it.

Naoz said that conclusion helps explain the shape of the debris disk. "It works perfectly," she

The researchers don't know if there are additional planets inside the disk, but using Nesvold's software—which is also being used to study other debris disks in the universe—they were able to recreate the shape of the disk without adding another planet into the model, as some astronomers had MtnViewsNews.com.

Naoz's research was funded by a research fellowship from the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation. Nesvold's was supported by a Carnegie Department of Terrestrial Magnetism postdoctoral fellowship.

CHRISTOPHER Nyerges

IN SEARCH OF THE REAL SAINT PATRICK

[Christopher Nyerges is author to Survive Anywhere. He has led wilderness expeditions 90041 or via ChristopherNyerges.com]

On the 17th of this month, we celebrate "Saint Patrick's Day," that day when people pinch each other if they're not wearing green, when the local grocer starts selling little potted shamrocks, and where the local bars sell green beer. But what's this really all about?

First, a little wake-up call about "Saint Patrick." Patrick was not Irish, had nothing to do with leprechauns, almost certainly was not a drunkard, and didn't drive all the snakes out of Ireland. In fact, there were believed to be no native snakes in Ireland, though this story is generally regarded as an analogy for driving out the so-called "pagans," or, at least, the pagan religions.

Patrick was one of the "greats" of history who nearly single-handedly preserved the best of Western culture when much of Europe was devolving into chaos and ruin. He deserves far better than remembering him in the silly ways we do today, such as wearing green, pinching each other, and getting drunk. Rather, he deserves an accurate memory, and our emulation. Unfortunately, like all true Saviors of history, they are either killed off, or relegated to the closet of ridicule.

So who exactly was Saint Patrick? Will the real Saint Patrick please stand up?

His real name was Maewyn Succat, born around 385 A.D., somewhere in Scotland, or possibly somewhere else, as there is conflicting historical data on his exact date and place of birth. His baptismal name was Patricius.

Around age 16, he was sold into slavery in Ireland and worked for the next 6 years as a shepherd. Keep in mind that human slavery, as well as human sacrifice, was considered "normal" for those times.

After his six years in slavery, he believed that an angel came to him in a dream, prompting him to escape and seek out his homeland. He actually walked about 200 miles to the coast, where his dream indicated a ship would also be waiting for him. He successfully escaped, found the ship he dreamed about, and spent the next twenty years of his life as a monk in Marmoutier Abbey. There he again received a celestial visitation, this time calling him to return to the land where he'd been enslaved, though now with a mission as a priest and converter.

Patrick was called to Rome in 432, where Pope Celestine made Patrick a Bishop, and sent him off on his mission.

Patrick returned to Ireland with 24 supporters and followers. They arrived in the winter of 432. In the spring, Patrick decided to confront the high King of Tara, the most powerful King in Ireland. Patrick knew that if he had the King's support, he would be free to take his Christian message to the people of Ireland.

Patrick and his followers were invited to Tara by the King of Laoghaire. It was there that he was said to have plucked a shamrock from the ground as he tried to explain of several books, such as Extreme to the Druids and the King that the shamrock had three Simplicity: Homesteading in leaves just like the idea of God's three asp the City (co-author), and How The Father, The Son and the Holy Ghost. leaves just like the idea of God's three aspects, the Trinity:

Of course, triads and trinities were a common concept since 1974. He can be reached at Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA among the Druids. In fact, one could argue that the trinity (a term not found in the Bible) was a concept given to Christianity by the Druids, rather than the other way around. Nevertheless, whatever momentousness Patrick conveyed, King Laoghaire was very impressed with Patrick, and chose to accept Christianity. He also gave Patrick the freedom to spread Christianity throughout Ireland.

When Patrick returned to Ireland, he treated the 'pagans" with the respect implicit in his dream. Part of this respect was attempting to communicate with the Druids on their terms, which is why he used the shamrock as a teaching tool. He also blended the Christian cross with the circle to create what is now known as the Celtic cross. He used bonfires to celebrate Easter, a Holy Day that Christianity supplanted with the already-existing spring equinox commemoration. In fact, he incorporated many of the existing "old religion" symbols and beliefs into his Christian teachings.

He spent his last 30 years in Ireland, baptizing the non-Christian Irish, ordaining priests, and founding churches and monasteries. His persuasive powers must have been astounding, since Ireland fully converted to Christianity within 200 years and was the only country in Europe to Christianize peacefully. Patrick's Christian conversion ended slavery, human sacrifice, and most intertribal warfare in Ireland.

Patrick was also unique in that he equally valued the role of women in an age when the church ignored them. He always sided with the downtrodden and the excluded, whether they were slaves or the "pagan" Irish. According to Thomas Cahill, author of How the Irish Saved Civilization, Patrick's influence extended far beyond his adopted land. Cahill's book, which could just as well be titled How St. Patrick Saved Civilization, contends that Patrick's conversion of Ireland allowed Western learning to survive the Dark Ages. Ireland pacified and churchified as the rest of Europe crumbled. Patrick's monasteries copied and preserved classical texts. Later, Irish monks returned this knowledge to Europe by establishing monasteries in England, Germany, France, Switzerland, and Italy. When the lights went out all over Europe, a candle still burned in Ireland. That candle was lit by Patrick.

Veneration of Patrick gradually assumed the status of a local cult. He was not simply remembered in Saul and Downpatrick, he was worshipped! Indeed, homage to Patrick as Ireland's saint was apparent in the eight century AD. At this time Patrick's status as a national apostle was made independently of Rome. He was claimed locally as a saint before the practice of canonization was introduced by the Vatican. The high regard in which the Irish have held St Patrick is evidenced by the salutation, still common today, of "May God, Mary, and Patrick bless you".

bedside, it clearly read 2:37 a.m.

The loud buzzing sound was not in my head after all. Who in the world could be calling me at this hour of to know to fly full-speed into action.

I grumbled to myself, sat straight up in bed and help you?" gasped. An emergency! Someone's in the hospital! Someone has died! All kinds of such thoughts danced through my sluggish brain as I reached for the telephone.

Pastors are on call 24/7 and never know when an emergency will summon to duty. It may be in the middle of the day, or in this case, in the middle of the night. Many telephone calls I'm not so anxious to get.

Mr. Alexander Graham Bell has a lot of answering to do for this contraption of his.

Among telephone calls I'm not too thrilled about are those infernal automatic political calls advising me to vote for some candidate – them in particular. Like most politicians, these calls never give me an opportunity to answer them.

They unleash their spiel and then hang up, probably to go to the next phone number. What I want to know is, why don't these aspiring politicians ever call me when they're not running for some office? Why don't they call me on my birthday and sing happy birthday to me?

Why don't they give me their home phone number so I can call them and give them a piece of my mind?

I would like to get my hands on the person who taught these politicians how to dial phone numbers.

Another category of phone calls I am not too enthralled with are telemarketers. I have a difficult time hanging up on people. As long as they want to talk I can't, or I don't have the heart to hang up on them.

I know they are just people doing their job. I know much of what is sold via the telephone is excellent and useful, but I do not like anyone telling me what I should be buying, especially when I have just put on the feedbag.

The only thing I have been able to do is take the conversation in hand from the very beginning. As soon as the person on the other end of the phone begins talking, I start engaging them in chitchat. I ask about their family, about the kind of day they are having and what they plan to do on the weekend. I ask for their home phone number so I can call them back. It has become a sport for me and I am anxious for the next phone call to come so I can tell them about my day and my plans for the weekend. After all, they called me, it is my turf.

When I answered the telephone, I heard a raspy voice on the other end say, "Is the reverend home? I need to

"I have a biblical question for 'ya, and I need to know right away. It's something that has been a-bothering me and I was a-wondering if you could help me?"

"Sure," I said, trying to figure out what the emergency could possibly be at 2:37 in the morning. What could be so important that a person could not wait a few more hours to call?

'Well," the man stammered and hiccupped. I began to be a little suspicious of the whole matter, "I just can't believe that Jonah and the whale story. Do 'ya really think it's possible for a fish to swallow a man? And, how come that fish didn't chew Jonah up before swallowing?'

The whole picture became clear at that moment. His problem was not with the whale swallowing Jonah, but with him swallowing a tank full of libations. His pickme-up at 2:37 in the morning got me down, if you know

I suppose that if you want to drink alcoholic beverages, I can't stop you. Personally, I think it is the scourge of our country and has done more damage to our society than any other single thing. However, that is your decision, bad though it may be.

I do not mind if you telephone me at 2:37 in the morning. I do not mind answering biblical questions. The truth is, I enjoy such employment whenever I can find it and I work rather cheap.

What I do mind is, when you drink and then phone me at 2:37 in the morning from a local bar. I do not discuss biblical enquiries with someone tanked,

As a Christian, I have an obligation to give answers. The Bible says, "But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every

For the sincere inquirer there are answers. More importantly, there is hope - in Jesus Christ.

JOCKEYS BOW TO HOLY ANGELS, GARY STEVENS WINS 1ST RACE BACK AND A LOT MORE!

By Joan Schmidt

Besides the great racing venues, Santa Anita Park has recently had many fun events/activities.

First I must acknowledge their wonderful Media/ Press Group headed by Mike Willman and staff members Ed Golden and Debbie Olsen. After important races, press members receive great Benoit photos, a recap of the race and quotes by the jockey, trainer and owners. Other "Stable Notes" include recent win stats of jockeys, trainers and owners, and updates on jockeys, horses and happenings.

The first recent excitement was the 50th annual Jockeys VS Holy Angels Basketball Game. The profits go to the Permanently Disabled Jockey Fund, Eye on Jacob Foundation and Holy Angels Sports Program. The jockeys are coached by Kurt Hoover. It was the first time I saw the Jockeys lose-26-20, but their BASKETBALL STAR, Drayden Van Dyke was out with an injury as was Rafael Bejarano. EVERYONE else came: Kent Desormeaux (5 points), son Josh (4), Corey Nakatani (4) Chester Bonnet (2), Edwin Maldonado (2), Jamie Theriot (2)and Chantel Sutherland(1). Not scoring were agent Nelson Arroyo, Chad Lindsay, Mario Gutierrez, Gallyn Mitchell, Tiago Periera, Flavien Prat, Joe Talamo, Victor Espinosa, Tyler Baze, and Austin Solis. Thanks also to legends Laffit Pincay, Jr., Gary Stevens, Mike Smith, Kent Desormeaux and Alex Solis for signing posters!

Sadly, Santa Anita's #1 fan Pat Morris was missing. ronically, that day she lost her valiant battle against cancer. Everyone connected to Santa Anita loved her. Sonia Pishehvar shared the beautiful bench tribute this past weekend.

On a happier note, Gary Stevens, AGELESS WONDER returned to Santa Anita, March 11th and won on SHEHASTHERITESTUFF in the 8th race-first race back after HIP REPLACEMENT! (in his 50's, Gary also returned after a KNEE REPLACEMENT). THANKS to ZOE METZ for winner is selected by a nationwide vote of his peers. great photo of win.

Congrats to jockey Stewart Elliot who won the esteem for himself and the sport of racing. The about racing and upcoming events.

Well deserved!

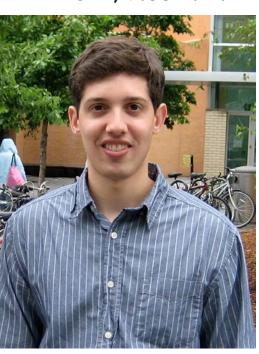

Everyone is getting ready for the Santa Anita prestigious George Woolfe Award, which honors Derby, April 8th. Great horses also come from back riders whose careers and personal character earn East. Please visit santanita.com for more information

COMING TO CROWELL PUBLIC LIBRARY CLIMATE CHANGE FOR FUTURE & PRESENT PRESIDENTS WEDNESDAY, APRIL 5TH, 7:00 P.M.

San Marino, CA, March 16, 2017 - Cal Tech's Austin Minnich will present a fascinating program on climate change and its ramifications at Crowell Public Library, Wednesday, April 5th. Climate change is often viewed through the lens of complicated changes in weather patterns over the globe. However, the fundamental cause of climate change is simple and can be understood by everyone.

In this talk, Minnich describe exactly why climate change is occurring and its effects on our planet using basic physical principles. In particular, how the science that enables us to drive cars, use electric power, and keep our food cold in refrigerators also governs why extra carbon dioxide in our atmosphere must result in excess heat trapped on Earth. Minnich will show why common arguments that deny climate change is occurring contradict the basic physics underlying technology in our modern society. Although the present situation is serious, huge gains can be made in mitigating the effects of climate change with existing technology while also positively impacting the economy, air quality, and a host of 2595 Phone: (626) 300-0777 other factors. Acting now to employ these commercially technologies that our planet will be preserved for our children and grandchildren.

Austin Minnich is an Assistant Professor of Mechanical Engineering and Applied Physics at the California Institute of Technology. He received his Bachelor's degree from UC Berkeley in 2006 and his PhD from MIT in 2011, after which he started his position at Caltech. He is the recipient of a 2013 NSF CAREER Award and a 2015 ONR Young Investigator Award. Austin Minnich also runs the minnichlab (http:// minnich.caltech.edu/

Adults, STEM students and all curious nonscientists will enjoy this free presentation. Light refreshments will be served.

'This is the best show I have ever seen – and I've seen a lot," Third Grader from Sierra Madre Elementary School at a student matinee of A Wrinkle in Time.

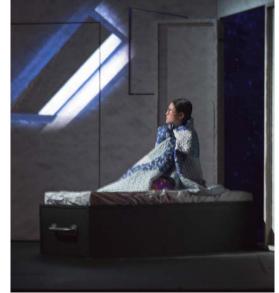

We opened Wrinkle and have started our run of matinee performances for local students. I attended a performance the other morning and was so happy to see how excited - no, ecstatically, the students were responding to what we had created. In this time of amped-up on-line media, the fact that these young patrons could get excited by a show that demands that they use their imaginations filled me with hope for the future of the art form.

And then I saw the recently announced Federal budget proposed by the President. It calls for the elimination of the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Humanities. We have never received grants from either agency - we haven't even applied, though with our recent achievements and new prestige it was definitely in our plans.

This news made me very sad. Sad, because it speaks to a lack of appreciation in our culture for the Arts and our cultural patrimony. Every other developed country supports their arts organizations the series has been wonderful - we have had low to a greater extent than we do as Americans. I don't understand how this neglect and contempt came about. Study after study speaks to the value that the Arts bring to children – how quickly they learn lessons when they are taught through the arts, how test scores go up when an enriched arts curriculum is part of their education, the positive effects it has youth socially. There are many studies that prove that theaters and other arts institutions bring economic advantages to their communities, as well, but I don't want to rely on the dollar value to make my argument.

What constantly surprises me is that the great trove of dramatic literature that America has created is so rarely seen - we have classic plays to rival anything the Europeans or anyone in the world has written. There are very few theaters doing them, however. I wonder if that is because there is so little exposure to these wonderful plays. Plays read are not the same as plays seen. A text for a play was meant to be performed in front of a group of people. Or is it simply because we have not had enough exposure?

I created the Field Trip Series to bring theater to young people and convinced the Board to support it. But even though each of the last four plays in soon!

attendance from families. What I thought would be a slam-dunk - providing quality theater for young people once a year has proven to be a money-loser of the two agencies through which our government, our people, support the arts - to the tune of $1 from every person in the country and the fact that it can be so easily gotten rid of. Having tried to get grants from various sources, I know how hard it is and how much competition there is for the small pot of money. I am despairing a bit today. We have worked so hard over the last few years to make Sierra Madre Playhouse a theater that the local community can be proud of. I'm wondering if we are trying to provide something for which there isn't a demand? And then I think of that kid and I know that I'm wrong. Now I just have to convince everyone else.

The Belle of Amherst opens this weekend and will run in rotating repertory with A Wrinkle in Time until April 23. I look forward to seeing you and the young people in your life (Wrinkle will truly captivate them) in the audiences. ## 6 IRA BENEFITS YOUR And that brings me back to the proposed elimination 401(K) DOESN'T HAVE

When it comes to retirement plans, IRAs and 401(k) s provide many of the same benefits. But in certain situations, an IRA can outperform a 401(k). IRAs aren't right for everyone, so you should become familiar with the advantages IRAs have over 401(k)s before you transfer funds or set up a new account. To help you do this, here are a few benefits you can reap from an IRA which are not available in a 401(k).

1. Qualified Charitable Distributions (QCDs) IRAs allow you to take QCDs and send them directly to the charity without including the distribution amount in your taxable income. This often results in a lower tax bill. You can also use your QCDs to offset your required minimum distribution.

Penalty-Free Distribution for Higher Education A 401(k) distribution for higher education expenses will incur both a tax and a penalty. Taking an early IRA distribution to pay for higher education expenses for you or certain family members, however, is penalty-free. Freedom from Distribution Restrictions rules as well as the tax code, 401(k)s require a compelling reason such as a hardship, to receive an early distribution. Conversely, IRA distributions are restriction free. You can take an IRA distribution at any time and do not need an approved reason like you would with 401(k)s.

Opportunities for early distributions of 401(k)s are about ensuring a legacy of love and financial security limited at best. Subject to the plan administrator's for your family by calling 626.587.3058 or visit www.

Aggregate Required Minimum Distributions (RMD) From Multiple Accounts

If you have multiple IRAs, you can aggregate the RMDs for your accounts and then take that amount out of one or any combination of your IRAs. Doing this with your 401(k)s, however, results in steep penalties.

5. No Withholding

You can opt-out of tax withholding from an IRA distribution but not with a 401(k) distribution. This is a great benefit for those who end up with little or no tax liability at the end of the year.

6. Self Direction

One of the best parts of having an IRA, instead of a 401k, is that you have the most flexibility in how your IRA assets are invested, whereas with a 401k, your investment options are limited to those provided by the 401k Administrator. With an IRA, you can move your entire retirement account into a self-directed IRA account and then invest the money anywhere you want, including in real estate and start-ups. Yes, it's true! You get to choose.

Deciding whether to maintain your retirement account as an IRA or a 401k is an important decision and you should understand the benefits and limitations

Relying on generalized information found online is not enough to protect your interests. Guidance from your Personal Family Attorney provides personalized, legal assistance and empowers you to make the very best decisions when planning for retirement and all of life's other big changes.

WE CAN USE A LITTLE IRISH HUMOR NOW

Thank goodness St. Patrick's Day is upon us. Our country is in need of some Irish humor about now.

With all the vitriol in our politics these days, we could use more brotherly love — which reminds me of the joke about McAlister.

One Saturday night, he ordered three pints at the pub. When the bartender asked him why he wanted three, McAlister explained: "I've got two brothers, one in America and one in Australia. Every Saturday night we go to our respective pubs, order three pints and drink with each other. Right now, me brothers are sipping three pints, too. McAlister continued his tradition for several months. But one Saturday he ordered only two pints. 'Sweet goodness," said the bartender, "did one of your brothers die?"

"The brothers are fine," said McAlister. "It's just that I quit drinking."

Reports of alleged wiretapping and spying are all over the news of late. That reminds me of the one about a German spy who was sent to Ireland during World War II. The German was instructed to meet an Irish spy named Murphy and confirm Murphy's identity by saying, "The weather could change by Tuesday." After he parachuted into Ireland, he set off for town. Along the way, he asked a farmer where he might find a man named Murphy.

Well, sir, it depends on which Murphy," said the farmer. "We have Murphy the doctor, Murphy the postal carrier, Murphy the stonemason and Murphy the teacher. I, too, am a Murphy, Murphy the

The German got an idea.

'The weather could change by Tuesday," he said.

"Aye," said the farmer, "you'll be wanting Murphy the spy."

The resistance of millions to our overreaching government continues to remake our political landscape. It reminds me of the time a policeman caught Seamus with a bucket of fish in a no-fishing

"You've got it wrong," Seamus said to the policeman. "These are my pet fish. I bring them to the reservoir every day for exercise. After they swim for 10 minutes, they come back to the bucket and I take them home. "Prove it," said the cop.

Seamus dumped his fish into the reservoir and off they swam. An hour later, they still hadn't

"Ha, you lying rogue," said the officer. "Where are your pet fish?" "Fish?" said Seamus. "What fish?"

The economy is exploding suddenly — nearly 300,000 private-sector jobs were created in February, according to ADP and Moody's Analytics, exceeding estimates by a staggering 100,000. That gives hope to millions who had dropped out of the workforce entirely.

That reminds me of the one about St. Patrick visiting an Irish pub. Donovan, McNally and Finnegan

St. Patrick enter the pub and each bought him a beer. When St. Patrick shook Donovan's hand, Donovan said, "My arthritis! St. Patrick, your touch has

St. Patrick shook McNally's hand, and McNally said, "My blind right eye! St. Patrick, you've cured

St. Patrick went to shake Finnegan's hand. Finnegan shouted, "Get away from me, St. Patrick. I'm on disability!"

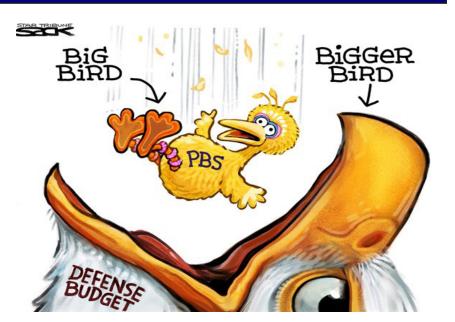

These days, with all the conflict and disagreement going on, our public discourse could profit from a better sense of humor.

Which reminds of the time Paddy died. Paddy's wife went to the newspaper to place his obituary. The newsman said the cost was $1 a

"I only have $2," said Mrs. Paddy. "Just print 'Paddy died." The newsman decided that old Paddy deserved more. He gave her three extra words at no

"A kind man you are," said Mrs. Paddy. "Print me husband's obituary this way: 'Paddy died.

DICK POLMAN A BIG LITTLE LIE FROM FOX-TRUMP MEDIA

Sometimes it's possible to tell a big story in few words — as evidenced by an episode earlier this week that nicely illustrates this president's addiction to infauxmation (via Fox News) and blatant lying (via Twitter).

Basically, it's a closed loop. Fox News pumps bilge into his brain, and he spews it out through his fingers. Here's how it works:

At 6:12 a.m. Tuesday, Trump was watching cable, as he is wont to do, and he saw this breaking news on Fox: "A win in the war on terror. The Trump administration just killed a former Guantanamo Bay detainee released by Barack Obama. Yasir al-Silmi, once considered the worst of the worst, killed in a U.S. airstrike in Yemen. He had been released back in 2009 even though the Department of Defense recommended that he stay behind bars. One hundred twenty-two prisoners released from Gitmo have returned to the battlefield."

It was a classic Fox pseudo-story, and it got Trump's full attention — no surprise, given his current heightened obsession with President Obama. It's true that Yasir al-Silmi was released by Obama; it's true that he was a recidivist who'd returned to terrorism. But when Fox said that 122 prisoners released from Gitmo have returned to terrorism, it left the impression — without explicitly saying so — that Obama had freed them all.

So Trump thumbed his phone and explicitly decreed on Twitter that Obama had freed them all.

Trump didn't bother to run a fact-check, even though presidents have unparalleled access to data and stats. Nah, he just tweeted on impulse and animus:

"122 vicious prisoners, released by the Obama Administration from Gitmo, have returned to the battlefield. Just another terrible decision!"

According to facts that are readily available in the real world — facts attributed to the U.S. director of national intelligence — 113 of those 122 Gitmo prisoners, "confirmed of re-engaging in terrorist activity," were actually released from Gitmo by ... George W. Bush.

And of the 86 Gitmo prisoners who are "suspected on re-engaging in terrorist activity," 75 were released by George W. Bush.

I suppose this is not a surprise, given Trump's obsession with spewing fake news about Obama - ranging from his multi-year falsehoods about Obama's place of birth to his evidence-free contention that Obama illegally wiretapped his Manhattan tower — but it's instructive nonetheless to track Tuesday's episode from Fox News' insinuation to Trump's outright concoction.

This is the world we now live in, and I almost feel sorry for Sean Spicer (almost), because it's his job to mop up for his boss' BS. At a press briefing a few hours after Trump's big little lie, Spicer was asked: "Will the president offer a correction to his tweet this morning that states that 122 prisoners were released from Gitmo by the Obama administration and then returned to the battlefield?"

Spicer's reply: "Yes, I mean, obviously the president meant in totality the number that had been released on the battlefield — that have been released from Gitmo since — individuals have been released. So that is correct."

If you can fork your way through that word salad, you'll discover that Spicer did two contradictory things: He basically acknowledged that Trump had lied, but he also appeared to insist that Trump's lie had been inadvertent, because "obviously the president meant in totality the number."

Whatever. The bottom line is that we're stuck with a president whose habit is to pollute the information stream by taking stuff from Fox News and conflating it into fake news. In recent years numerous studies have concluded that Fox devotees are less well-informed than those who get most of their news from other outlets.

It's our national tragedy, and an assault on truth itself, that a Fox superfan is occupying the White House.

PETER ROLF PROTECT AMERICAN INTERESTS BY GETTING TOUGH

During the 2016 presidential campaign, Donald Trump promised the American people over and over that if elected, he was going to be the one who would finally "get tough" with China.

It's a refrain he'd been sounding for some time. In a Wall Street Journal piece published a year to the day before he became president-elect, he sounded a loud alarm about their various economic misdeed.

"On day one of a Trump administration the U.S. Treasury Department will designate China a currency manipulator," Trump wrote. "This designation will trigger a series of actions that will start the process of imposing countervailing duties on cheap Chinese imports, defending American manufacturing and preserving American jobs.

It hasn't quite worked out that way. The appointment of Iowa GOP Gov. Terry Branstad as U.S. Ambassador-designate to Beijing is a good start, but there is plenty left to do, even if the White House continues to wield the designation of "currency manipulator" as the stick alongside some kind of cooperation inducing carrot.

It's a tough row to hoe. China already holds more than $1.4 trillion in U.S. paper and, as the moratorium on raising the debt ceiling comes to an end, we may be forced to turn to them to buy up more U.S. debt, at least in the short run. Since the Beijing government is deep into every sector of the economy, it might not be too much of a lift to get them to do that but someone has to draw the line some place. There are just some things not worth giving up no matter how much U.S. debt the Chinese buy.

One area that's not given too much consideration is the acquisition of U.S. companies by the Chinese. Again, because so much of its so-called "private sector: takes its marching orders from the government, it's hard to look at these transactions as purely benign. Thus the pending takeover by ANT Financial of MoneyGram, a leading private U.S.based payments company is something that should be approached with considerable China's record on consumer issues like cyber-security and intellectual property is, in a word, abysmal. That's not an accident; according to experts the government profits to a considerable extent from illegal activity in this sphere, redirecting that money to fund expansions of its military might. They've hacked the U.S. Office of Personnel Management and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Allowing them to purchase a company through which people willingly turn over sensitive financial date in order to transmit money around the globe without intensive review and considerable thought into the implications seems pound-foolish and maybe not even penny-wise.

As U.S. Secretary of the Treasury, Steven Mnuchin is also a member of the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States, an inter-agency federal committee charged with reviewing the national security implications of foreign investments in U.S. companies or operations. Though he may be busy with other things it is incumbent on him to take the lead in asking CFIUS to review the MoneyGram/ANT Financial deal.

A group of prominent conservative leaders recently wrote to him asking he do just that. They want Mnuchin to insure any deal successfully concluded between the two companies will not provide the Chinese national security community a side door through which they can obtain critical, sensitive information that, if used improperly, could erode the economic and financial stability of the nation.

China must not be allowed to gain a foothold in the global financial payments market unless there are sufficient safeguards in place to prevent it from using the information, technology, and economic power to the detriment of America's economic and national security. If President Trump truly intends to "get tough" and put America first this is a deal that cannot be allowed to go through without anyone asking tough questions.

Beijing's track record on intellectual property rights, rule of law, consumer protection, and currency manipulation is horrible and this deal does not deserve the benefit of the doubt it will behave unless it is forced to.
