The video and photos, shown at the press conference, depict the suspect wearing a white shirt, carrying black or dark clothing, which he discards in a trash can at Ralphs Grocery Store in the 300 block of West Colorado Blvd. The video was taken the same day as the explosion.

According to Police Chief Phillip Sanchez, on Thursday, February 2, at about 6:08 p.m., Pasadena Police Officers and Fire Department personnel responded to a call of an explosion at a Cheesecake Factory restaurant at 2 West Colorado Blvd. Police Officers immediately entered the restaurant and evacuated customers and employees and located a detonated homemade pyrotechnic device.

Sanchez said they were keeping information about how the device was made secret.

He did say, "we know the device was homemade, it was incendiary, we know he detonated it, the evidence was recovered and then look at for forensics evidence."

Witnesses described the suspect as a male, possible of Hispanic or Middle Eastern descent, 6'0" tall, thin build, with a heavy beard and wearing all black clothing and a

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

can be depended upon to meet any national crisis. The great point is to bring them the real facts, and beer.

Abraham Lincoln

"Beer is proof that God loves us and wants us to be happy." Benjamin Franklin

Friends and neighbors, good news! We are going to have a new craft brewery here in Sierra Madre by late summer....just when we're going to need it most. Think of horrendously hot days, when you think you might melt, but relief is in sight. At the end of those days, you can stop in at 38 E. Montecito and enjoy a glass or two of RT Rogers beer. Oh, and what beer it is going to be! Ryan Rogers, the brewmaster of RT Rogers beer, has been brewing beer, working on his blends, tweaking, perfecting, tasting, sampling, tweaking again since he was 16 years old, fermenting grains in his closet and experimenting in the kitchen. Meeting Ryan, his mom, Joanna and dad, Kelly, along with lifelong family friend Dave Bergman was splendid. Ryan and Dave were waist-deep in a trench there in Units 1 & 2 of the Montecito property, getting ready to install pipes for the new restrooms, which will be ADA compliant (yep, handicap friendly and big enough to turn around in) and, in short, gearing up for the arrival of the cement trucks to lay the new floors in what will be their tap room and brew area. RT Rogers is going to be the place to go as they are planning so many great things to do, in addition to producing amazing beer. There will be a walled garden with partial shade, pleasing the sun lovers and the shade seekers, right outside the glass doors of the main tap room where one can sit and enjoy a moment of peace or a game of Quoits - the traditional game which involves the throwing of metal, rope or rubber rings over a set distance to try to land over or near a spike - in case you didn't know. Inside there will be two standard dart boards and, for all the bicycle enthusiasts who make Sierra Madre their destination, a hanging bike rack on the outside wall. The Rogers family has thought of everything to make their guests feel at home.

Pasadena residents, the Rogers have been searching for the perfect place to realize son, Ryan's, dream of a craft brewery. Son, Jesse, who is the family artistwebmaster-social media guy, discovered Mother Moo's and brought his mom and dad up to check out the best ice cream anywhere, right here in town. They fell in love with Sierra Madre, which is only natural, and started thinking maybe this could be the place. Sierra Madre realtor, Bill Derrick, brought them to the vacant units on Montecito and the new home of RT Rogers Brewing Co. was established.

Kelly and Joanna are both retired from the Los Angeles Unified School District where he started as

SIERRA MADRE POLICE BLOTTER

"I am a firm believer in the people. If given the truth, they a maintenance engineer and worked his way up to Complex Projects Manager, while Joanna was that woman no school can do without who ran the book store, got all the text books ordered and, in general, made it work for the teachers. Jesse, the Mother Moo fan, is an art teacher in the LAUSD and his wife, Deanna, is a speech pathologist. And Ryan is a brewing genius!

The Rogers family has become fast friends with another of the Sierra Madre treasures, Ramon Navarro, our local coffee roaster up in the canyon -Java Madre. They met at last year's Wistaria Festival.

I learned a lot about beer chatting with Kelly and Joanna and I'll pass a few facts along. Brewing is complicated! Ryan is planning to start with a 15 barrel system producing stouts and IPA's. Starting with an on-line course in brewing, Ryan has read everything there is to read on grains, hops and yeast. For instance, California IPA's are very heavily hopped, creating a brew which is higher in alcohol, not sweet, leaning toward a bitter taste. Hops lend aroma, a fruity or bitter taste and the amount of roasting the grains undergo create the tastes of chocolate or coffee. Let me go back to that brewing is complicated thing! There is no facet of brewing upon which Ryan is not a consummate expert. In short, best craft beer any of us has ever experienced is coming our way!

RT Rogers Brewing Company plans to open their doors at 4:00 on weekdays and earlier on weekends. Our public parking lot is right across the street. They won't be serving food as they are not licensed as a restaurant, but there will be peanuts and guests can bring in goodies or order in and there is talk about a future connection with a food truck. You can check out their website at rtrbrew.com or come by and say hello. This will be such a nice addition to our town as we haven't had our own craft brewery for years since Sierra Madre Brewing left us and all the Rogers family are anxious to become involved in the community.

I'm close to the end of Rise of the Rocket Girls: The Women Who Propelled Us, From Missiles to the Moon to Mars, which is the One Book One City selection, and finding myself overwhelmed with awe for these young women, the computers at JPL who transformed rocket design. So many failures to achieve success. And, in case you haven't noticed, wistaria is blooming all over town now and looking just fantastic! We live in a beautiful place, don't we! COUNCIL OKAYS CITY ORDINANCE ON DRONE USE

The city council voted Monday night in favor of an ordinance property owner and the event organizer have granted permission, that would regulate the operation of drones, above or near critical infrastructure, and over permitted special events.

The council directed City Attorney Michele Beal Bagneris to prepare the new ordinance and return it within 60 days.

Pet of the Week

New Orleans (A413553) is a 3-year-old, spayed female, white cat with brown tabby patches. Sweet and social, this affectionate gal loves attention and will likely greet you with a head bump. New Orleans is very calm and enjoys snoozing away the afternoon in our volunteers' laps. She currently resides in the communal room in our shelter, so she would likely do very well in a home with other cats.

The normal adoption fee for cats is $70, but thanks to generous donors, New Orleans is free to adopt as part of our Slam Dunk for the Animals event! All cats are spayed or neutered, microchipped, and vaccinated before being adopted.

New adopters will receive a complimentary health-andwellness exam from VCA Animal Hospitals, as well as a goody bag filled with information about how to care for your pet.

Call the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA at (626) 792-7151 to ask about A413553, or visit at 361 S. Raymond Ave. in Pasadena. Adoption hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday; and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Pets may not be available for adoption and cannot be held for potential adopters by phone calls or email. Directions and photos of all pets can be found at pasadenahumane.org.

BE YE KIND TO THE CANINE

be judged by the way its animals are treated."

~ Mahatma Gandhi

I've used quite a bit of it's printed space to share my feelings about how animals should be treated more humanely by the human. Although what I have written has been based on facts as I know them, and while my motive has been pure in terms of hoping to encourage change for the better, I realize that my writing has, at times, turned to ranting and raving on a subject that is frustrating at best.

This week I decided to focus on the good things humans have done to help protect animals and enhance their quality of life. So many positive changes have come about through compassionate legislation, volunteerism, philanthropy and individual selfsacrifice - all on the part of the human and all on behalf of the animals. There is much more to be done to ensure that all animals, both wild and domestic are given a fair shake in life, but we've come a long way so let's celebrate our success!

Here are a few examples of the positive changes that have come about for the animals over the past several decades. It's a short list, but it shows our country is taking a more positive approach to our relationship with animals.

In 1966, The Animal Welfare Act was signed into law, making it the first in the United States that regulates the treatment of animals in research, exhibition, transport, and by dealers. Other laws, policies and guidelines before or after may include additional species coverage or specifications for animal care, but today all refer back to the Animal Welfare Act as the minimum acceptable standard.

In May of 2006, Ohlone Dog Park in Berkeley, CA became the first known of it's kind in the world. Since then, dog parks have been popping up by the hundreds in numerous cities within the US, and throughout the globe. This proves that all those millions of dog owners care enough about their pets to want the very best for them. Off-leash play in a social setting (for well-socialized dogs) is a kind way to show you love your canine. If you haven't visited our own dog park here in Sierra Madre, you should. It's located behind the pool, next to the tennis courts in Recreation Park. There are also a few other dog parks in neighboring towns with fenced areas designated for small and large dogs to play off leash. Use common sense and go by the rules to ensure a positive experience.

In February, 2012 LA County agreed to allow dogs to accompany their humans for dinner on restaurant better life for them. May we all try to focus more on patios. Now your four-legged friend can really be the good things happening to make a change for the a part of the family, by joining you for an evening better. Love and let live.

outing rather than waiting at home anxiously until you arrive. With LA county being the forerunner and followed example, this law carried over to several other counties in California as well. It was amended later to prevent restaurant owners from being cited by the Health Dept., opening even more doors to fourfooters.

In October of 2012, The LA City Council voted 12-2 in favor of a law that would require pet stores to sell only rescued animals. In addition to "The greatness of a nation and its moral progress can reducing euthanizations, the law seeks to put an end to puppy and kitten mills that breed animals in poor conditions and ship them to pet stores for profit.

Pet ownership in the United States, Great Britain Over the years that I've been writing this column, and Australia is on the rise! According to a recent census, the number of dog owners in these three countries has grown by several millions from the 1990's to the 2000's and the number of dogs per household has increased as well. We humans are obviously becoming much more willing to forego another toy or trinket, in order to love and care for someone besides ourselves! Pets are great teachers.

Countless animal rescue organizations have formed over the past few decades. The Humane Society is a prime example of kind humans helping animals in need. Their efforts have reduced the number of euthanized pets to a proportionate fraction of what it used to be and numerous other organizations have followed their lead by placing rescued animals and advocating spay and neuter practices to all pet owners.

Which brings me to another positive praise for the human's love toward animals. Many licensed veterinarians in the US now offer affordable spay and neuter services to those who are financially strapped. Several non-profits network with veterinarians who share their desire to stop excessive breeding, and are willing to provide such services at their own cost. Do the research to find the right vet for your pet, and discuss your financial status frankly & honestly. You may be surprised at how helpful your vet will be when you tell them your desire is to prevent unintentional pet pregnancy.

Last but certainly not least, there is a growing trend in our society to adopt and not shop. This not-so-new concept got started by avid animal rights advocates, and has been made more popular in recent years by celebrities who promote the philosophy. Now it seems just about every animal lover is on the band wagon. Now adopting is not only a win-win for the animal and its owner, it is also a cool trend that has caught on like wildfire.

Again, this list is limited to only a few of the many great things that are happening in our society, on behalf of the animals. More than ever before, we humans are realizing how precious our beloved pets are. They are genuinely grateful for the care they receive.

Pets love unconditionally, and for some people a pet may be the only source of unconditional love they have in their life. Kudos those who recognize the value of animals and selflessly help pave the way to a one of my favorite times of the year. It's a chance to shed the heaviness accumulated thus far and forward again in a new way. Whether this means readjusting my schedule, or actually creating space by getting rid of stuff in the house, it creates freedom. I love the analogy of my yoga practice being like a garden. The garden must have light and water, and old weeds must be removed to allow for new blooms. Here are a few tips to support you in springtime fun and reflection:

First, don't forget exercise. A 30-minute walk each day can do wonders! If you live near the studio, try a walk to and from yoga class. It's funny we can live two blocks from some place and never think to walk. Try adding in an extra yoga class each week as well. If you can't make it to class, roll out your mat at home and do 10-15 sun salutations with a resting savasana

Secondly, make a daily meditation part of your Grateful Teacher at Yoga Madre

Happy Spring! It's routine. In the hustle and bustle of the day, we need this quiet time as calming, centering refuge. This practice will help to balance out the emotions, provide a place to breathe, and create peace.

Last, make sure your diet is healthy, balanced, and regular. Skipping a meal is so easy to do when we're working hard, but later on, our mood could suffer as a result. Food choices should be light, refreshing, and warm. Enjoy fresh cooked vegetables such as kale, broccoli or asparagus seasoned with garlic, ginger, and Enjoy your time shedding those extra layers --literally and figuratively. If you feel weighed down by stuff, people, or responsibilities, ask the question: What can I do differently? Is there something I can give up doing that might shift things? Your answer may lead you into a blossoming, new-found freedom.

Namaste and come see us for class at Yoga Madre.

THE PERFECT TAILGATING WINE

My search for California Cabernet wines in the $10 range continues. It seems like a reasonable request, considering that there are hundreds of wineries in California. They say that life is a cabaret; I'd like to add cabernet to the mix. The 2012 Toasted Head is from the Yolo region(great area for Tomatoes), which covers Mendocino to Sonoma and Napa, and this is where R.H. Philips Vineyards calls home. The area has a relatively mild climate with predictable heating and cooling. The 2012 season in Mendocino County turn out to be a very good year - so good that Toasted Head didn't have to source too many of its grapes. I found the taste to be soft, even pleasant, with likeable tannins and hint of spice, and appreciated the cedary notes from the oak aging. The rich fruit and the bear on the label might detour some, but for $10 it's a winner, and if you're a fan of old world reds, you'll like this red. Feel free to put it in a brown paper bag when going to a tasting party - I promise that your friends will enjoy it. No matter the cost of wine if you like it, enjoy it and share with friends. This cab is ready to drink now. It's a perfect BBQ wine. Roast up some sweet peppers or BBQ shrimp, or take it to a drive in movie. Yum !!!

When someone uses the term "old world" with regard to wine, they are referring to wines made in countries that are considered the birthplaces of wine, basically Europe and the Middle East. It's usually a bit lower in alcohol content, in this case at 13.5%

ESCORT SERVICES THAT CAN HELP SENIORS WITH THE RIGORS OF TRAVEL

Dear Savvy Senior,

Do you know of any services that help seniors with the rigors of traveling? My youngest daughter is getting married in a few months and would love to have my 82-year old mother attend, but she needs help flying across the country.

Searching Daughter

Dear Searching,

Traveling can be daunting under the best circumstances but for elderly seniors, those with disabilities, or those recovering or rehabilitating from an illness or injury, it can seem particularly overwhelming or unmanageable.

Fortunately, there are a number of companies that provides traveling companion/escort services to help older adults with the rigors of travel.

Whether it's seniors going on vacation or grandparents wanting to join their far-off families Questions to Ask help clients who need help moving through airports, managing luggage, navigating busy terminals and hotel lobbies and much more.

Some companion services even provide personal care like medication reminders, dressing, bathing and feeding. And for those with specific medical needs, traveling nurse services are available too.

But be aware that these services aren't cheap. You will pay for the travel companion's tickets, the companion's hotel room if necessary, meals, incidentals and fees for the service. The price to accompany a client on a plane trip within the United States – including the companion fees and from $1,500 to $5,000 or more for coach airfare. cover? Or, for medical travel companions do a search for "traveling nurse escort" or "medical travel companion," or checkout Travel Care & Logistics (YourFlightNurse.com), which provides registered nurses as escorts.

If, however, your mom doesn't require a lot of assistance, or if you can't afford a travel escort, consider asking a trusted family member or friend that has some air travel experience.

for weddings and graduations, travel companions If you're interested in hiring a travel companion service to help your mom, there are a number of things you need to check into to ensure you get the right escort.

> First, if you mom requires personal or medical care while traveling, find out if the escort is trained to manage her healthcare needs. What sort of medical certifications do they have? (Nursing credentials? C.P.R. training? etc.)

Also, find out how many trips the companion has taken with clients. Have they completed trips with travelers like your mom? How long has the travel service company been in business? What is the company's safety record? And what sort of travel costs for all parties - can range anywhere insurance does it carry, and what and who does it

Also, get a quote breaking down exactly what you'll be required to pay, in addition to the area, search online for "senior travel companion" or companion's fees. And, get a list of two or three "senior travel escort," followed by your mom's city clients/references who has used their service and

THE MANY FACES OF ROSETTA'S COMET 67P

Rosetta mission indicate that during its most recent trip through the inner solar system, the surface of comet 67P/Churyumov-Gerasimenko was a very active place—full of growing fractures, collapsing cliffs and massive rolling boulders. Moving material buried some features on the comet's surface while

"As comets approach the Sun, they go into overdrive and exhibit spectacular changes on their surface," said Ramy El-Maarry, study leader and a member of the U.S. Rosetta science team from the University of Colorado, Boulder. "This is something we were not able to really appreciate before the Rosetta mission, which gave us the chance to look at a comet in ultrahigh resolution for more than two years."

Images returned from the European Space Agency's the extremely cold outer solar system. When a comet rock to have moved 150 yards from its original that the comet may split up one day." approaches the inner solar system, the Sun begins to warm the ice on and near the comet's surface. When the ice warms enough it can rapidly sublimate (turn directly from the solid to the vapor state). This sublimation process can occur with variable degrees of intensity and time-scales and cause the surface to change rapidly. Between August 2014 and September 2016, Rosetta orbited comet 67P during the comet's swing through the inner-solar system.

"We saw a massive cliff collapse and a large crack in the neck of the comet get bigger and bigger," said El-Maarry. "And we discovered that boulders the size of a large truck could be moved across the comet's surface a distance as long as one-and-a-half football position on the comet's nucleus. The massive space rock probably moved as a result of several outburst events that were detected close to its original position.

The warming of 67P also caused the comet's rotation rate to speed up. The comet's increasing spin rate in the lead-up to perihelion is thought to be August 2014 that runs through the comet's neck. The fracture, which originally extended a bit longer than the Empire State Building is high, was found to have increased in width by about 100 feet by December 2014. Furthermore, in images taken in June 2016, a witness at close proximity how a comet changes as new 500- to 1,000-foot-long fracture was identified parallel to the original fracture.

"The large crack was in the 'neck' of the comet—a Most comets orbit our Sun in highly elliptical orbits that cause them to spend most of their time in observed a 282-million-pound, 100-feet-wide space El-Maarry. "The crack was extending—indicating MtnViewsNews.com.

'Understanding how comets change and evolve with time gives us important insights into the types and abundance of ices in comets, and how long comets can stay in the inner solar system before losing all their ice and becoming balls of dust," said El-Maarry. "This helps us better understand the responsible for a 1,600-foot-long fracture spotted in conditions of the early solar system, and possibly even how life started."

> Comets are time capsules containing primitive material left over from the epoch when the Sun and its planets formed. Rosetta was the first spacecraft to it is subjected to the increasing intensity of the Sun's radiation.

This morning I ran up to the mountain with energetic vitality. Through city streets I ran, garbed in only my running shorts and shoes, intent on reaching the mountain. It was still early when I arrived at the base of the mountain. I walked into the large field of dry grass that filled the gap between the canyon to the east and the eroding ridgeline to the west. The mountains were calm; large clouds like wads of cotton rolled lazily over the mountain, merging with the gray foggy bleakness of the morning.

The smell of pine and sage was strong as I filled my pulsating chest with the sweet aroma. I was still trying now to "catch" my breath after my last sprint to the top. Insects buzzed about, attracted to my sweat. I heard and saw small animals scurrying about, either pursuing or being pursued. A few occasional birds graced the morning with their short but attractive poetic song.

I looked to get the feel of the mountain, the field, the day. I stretched my arms in front of me and opened my palms to the mountain. I recalled something I read in a book called Thinking and Destiny: Speaking of a past age on this earth, the author wrote, "At the height of the fire age, the foremost among the fire people needed only their bodies to accomplish what they wished. Four fingers were used: the index finger for fire, the middle finger for air, the third finger for water, and the little finger for earth. With the fingers of the left hand they sensed; and with those of the right hand they directed a stream of the units of the elements....The thumbs were used either to feel, or to direct, unify, or accentuate the streams." I was less ambitious; I just wanted to feel, to communicate without words. I let the energy flow through my arms and out my palms and into the essence of my surroundings. That's how you talk to a mountain -- unspoken communication through strong feeling.

I sat under a tree and the mushrooms who lived there demanded that I say "hello." I sat there for a moment thinking, exploring, and resting before I would run back into the city. People passed by on the trail, some examining plants, and others more taken up by inner examinations. I wondered: why the great exodus from our centers of civilization to a mountain, a lake, an ocean, a river? I followed this thought. Many are prisoners of their own thinking and live their lives in silent desperation, floating like a leaf in the wind of society's praise, denial, approval, and scorn. But the steps you must take to be educated, to earn a living, to improve yourself, and to strengthen yourself need not necessarily be the steps of others that you blindly and unquestionably follow. And all too often society's "leaders" have no idea themselves where they are "taking us." Sometimes you must follow your own voice, albeit the path is harder and you are a pioneer upon it.

I continued to sit, considering this thought, and its ramifications. The early morning breeze rustled the pine and a few needles danced upon my head.

A ray of light shone through the clouds, and a lone gliding bird disappeared in distant trees. I thought of my work, my battle with the counterfeit so I don't become another corpse along the roadside. I was up, and I ran back down to the city. Pain is the next frontier.

Later in the day, I went grocery shopping. strapped my panniers onto my bicycle and rode in a logical direction. First, I filled an ice cream bag with edible fairy ring mushrooms (Marasmius oreades) that I gathered from several of the local lawns. One lady assured me that I could have all the "toadstools" and dandelions from her yard that I wanted. She reminisced about many years ago when she was visiting a friend in Europe. They picked wild fresh mushrooms every night for supper, and she remembered how delicious they had been. She stood over me as I carefully picked the best mushrooms in the circles on her awn, apparently amused by my activity. Then I pulled out my digging tool and I filled another bag with dandelion roots that I later cleaned, dried, roasted, and ground for dandelion coffee.

As the sun was getting low, I visited a friend in Altadena who let me pick prickly pears and saguaro cactus fruit from his yard. This was the first time I'd eaten the saguaro fruit with its whitish flesh and seedy insides. They were excellent! My packs were now bulging.

Riding back to my abode now, I observed many natal plum bushes with most of their fruit rotting on the bush. I passed many carob trees whose unused fruit was being raked into the gutter by a disgruntled resident. I could only shake my head, though I had no words to utter. Memories flooded my mind as I rode my bicycle into the red setting sun. I recalled the many times I obtained boxes of slightly inferior but perfectly edible produce from the bins behind the markets. I recalled the time my friend Drew and I ate lunch out of a local school's trash bin. It was full of thrownaway lunches -- peanut butter sandwiches, tuna and baloney sandwiches, oranges, tangerines, bananas, potato chips and apples. Drew and I had just finished conducting a wild food outing in the hills above Monrovia, and then we found ourselves city-foraging as well. It seems that some trash cans around town are goldmines.

I swerved to avoid a turning driver who didn't see me. It was getting dark now. As I entered home stretch, I wondered why the incredible, fantastic wealth of this country continues to be wasted and taken for granted. Why must it be flushed down the toilet, tossed in the trash, or carelessly abandoned?

The solutions to ALL the Earth's problems are extant today, but we foolishly believe that we can do nothing, that we must wait for a leader, a bureaucrat, a savior. Individually, we must do all we can to awaken our nervous systems from our own slumber, and to discipline our minds to see the biggest possible picture. We must bravely take our personal individual action. I recall the words of Robert Rodale: "If enough people start living sanely, they may gain the courage and the desire to try to create a world that is itself sane." Good

A SUSPICIOUS MIND IS A TERRIBLE THING TO WASTE

I have discovered over the years several types of minds. The "open mind" which catches everything the beach. As the glaze thickened over my eyes, I except the truth. The "analytical mind" which signed up. Then we were off. organizes everything to the point of sterility. The "closed mind" which you can bounce ideas and something like, "This is a mistake. I know there is

For every man, there is the "woman's mind." Every husband knows if he wants to change his wife's mind, all he has to do is agree with her. Finally, the "political mind," which for all practical purposes is an oxymoron. Politicians obviously do not have a mind of their own. They change their mind so often you hardly know who they are.

I find most people's minds are like beds – all made up and tucked neatly away. Many of these people have sound minds – sound asleep, that is.

The most valuable mind is the suspicious mind. It is in this frame of mind that the real picture has developed for me. An incident several years ago illustrated this to me.

We received one of those calls every American gets at least once a month. An invitation to come to Daytona Beach and spend two nights at a motel on the beach. The sponsor even offered to throw in breakfast, which we promptly threw out (or was it

It all sounded wonderful. My wife and I had never stayed on the beach and thought it would be an excellent opportunity. Eagerly we said "yes" thrilled with the prospect. "Oh, by the way," the young woman on the telephone said, "you will be required to listen to a 90-minute presentation."

It was then my suspicious mind kicked in. To be more honest, the kick came from my wife, who had the suspicious mind. "Is there anything we have to buy?" my wife made me ask the delightful woman on the telephone. "Absolutely nothing," she said so cheerily, I believed her. My wife, "Miss Suspicion," did not buy it for a second. Finally, I convinced her to go and I arranged with the woman on the telephone for the two nights on the beach. Looking back on this incident, I realize a suspicious mind does come in handy.

I must confess (which is hard for me to do) my wife's suspicious mind has saved us from a few potentially disastrous situations. (But you didn't hear it from me.)

When we arrived at the Daytona Beach office, they greeted us most graciously. I was smiling a smile that said, "See, I told you this was going to be

The cordial receptionist gave us a key to our room and easy-to-follow directions to our motel on the beach and, best of all, coupons for supper for two at a fancy restaurant.

So far, everything promised to be a magnificent

Just as I picked up the key, the lady reminded us of the 90-minute presentation. We had to sign up for a time that was "convenient for y'all."

All I could see was that gregarious smile and While I was smiling, my wife was mumbling

a catch somewhere. Nothing is free.' Being the sophisticated husband I am with a vast, cultivated vocabulary at my disposal, I said

There is a time to speak, but every husband knows it is usually not when in the presence of his

We had a great time. The beach was wonderful and late that night we enjoyed a marvelous supper. Everything was going along quite nicely and we drifted off to sleep listening to the waves rhythmically massage the beach outside our window. Then the time came for the 90-minute presentation. It was quite educational. I learned my wife was right all along. The "catch" she worried about was called a "timeshare." Timeshare is an interesting concept. First, you must buy a week (or two if you like). At that point, I was ready to sign up. My pen was dripping ink ready to sign anything, anywhere.

Then my wife began asking questions. It's a good thing she did.

That is when we learned another thing about timeshares. After one buys a week, the cost has just begun. Of course, they told us, we must pay property taxes on "our property." Then there are monthly maintenance fees and insurance premiums. We learned the word "share" in timeshare means we share all our money with

By the time she finished her presentation, there were more fees on our timeshare than fleas on a West Virginia hound dog.

That was not the worst of it though. When our week came, we were expected to "rent" our own room to stay in it. When the woman got through with her 90-minute presentation (which actually took three hours), timeshare made as much sense to me as renting underwear.

There are times when a suspicious mind does come in handy, but not always. Sometimes I appreciate trusting someone without any fear. But,

The antidote for a suspicious mind is found in the Bible. The Old Testament prophet understood this when he wrote, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee" (Isaiah 26:3).

There are many things to be suspicious about, but when I come to Jesus Christ, I can relax. He gives me peace of mind because He is easy to trust. Dr. James L. Snyder is pastor of the Family of God

A SEASON REBOOT

By Artistic Director, Christian Lebano

We have gotten really wonderful reviews for both "A Wrinkle in Time" and "The Belle of Amherst." The LATimes called the effects and the direction of Wrinkle "superb" – a nice trick for a theater as small as ours - the other four reviews were equally good. Broadway World called Belle "another feather in the cap at SMP." I do hope you will see both of these shows. They are so different one from the other – it has made for an interesting repertory.

We have decided to postpone our production of Lanford Wilson's Talley's Folly. This is the second time we've had to postpone a production this year. The unrelenting production schedule doesn't allow us to get any work done on the infrastructure of SMP. During this break we plan on making several I do hope you will see both shows. Bring kids with changes to our systems - including migrating to a new ticketing service. The new service will be easier to use AND the service fees will be lower. We are also moving forward with our long-desired new website. But again this will take some time to make it feasible.

So our next show will be "The Marvelous Wonderettes" by Roger Bean. This is a really fun show about four women in a singing girl-group we meet them first in 1958 at their high school graduation and then again ten years later at their reunion. The show is filled with more than 30 of the biggest hits of those years – from "Secret Love,"
"You Don't Own Me," and "Wedding Bell Blues" to "Stupid Cupid," "Hold Me, Thrill Me," and "Rescue Me." This should be a great summertime show. We are bringing back the team who created such a hit with "Always...Patsy Cline" - director/ choreographer Robert Marra and music director Sean Paxton.

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

SPRING CLEANING FOR YOUR LEGAL AND FINANCIAL AFFAIRS

Spring has officially sprung and that means it's spring cleaning time. Shake out the rugs, clean out the cupboards, and get your legal and financial affairs in order.

For plenty of folks, it's easy to know what to do when it comes to home organization, but the idea of legal and financial ordering can be complex and confusing.

Here are a few places you can start: Review Your Beneficiary Designations Request updated beneficiary designation forms from your life insurance account and retirement account custodians. Look at the form and identify whether you have a minor designated as either a primary or contingent beneficiary. If you do, those assets will be tied up in Court, unnecessarily, and may not be available to the people you've named to care for your children.

Consider designating your life insurance and retirement accounts to be distributed to a trust for the benefit of your heirs, providing Court and creditor protection, and ensuring your childrendonotinheritmoneybeforetheyareproperlyprepared.

2. Update Your Family Wealth Inventory Your Family Wealth Inventory is a document - usually a spreadsheet – itemizing the assets you own, so that in the event you become incapacitated, or when you die, your family will know how to find everything you own. Without an updated Family Wealth Inventory, your assets could be lost to California's department of unclaimed property. There's currently over 8 billion – with a 'B" – dollars of assets in California' department of unclaimed property because most people do not leave a clear record of their assets at the time of their incapacity or death. Don't let that happen to your assets!

3. Consider If You Need to Name New Guardians (Long or Review your guardian nomination designations. Have you named guardians for both the short-term (local) and the longterm (people you would trust to raise your kids fully)? If so, do they need to change? Is there anyone you would wish to exclude? Does the ID card for your wallet need to be updated? This is the time to check.

4. Check Out the Title to Your House

Get a copy of the deed to your house and make sure that your trust is listed as the owner on the deed if you want your house to stay out of court in the event of your incapacity or death. If you see your personal name on the deed, and there is not a trust listed, you can bet your house would have to go through the court process of probate in the event of your death before it could be passed to your heirs. If you don't want that, now is the perfect time to spruce up your planning.

5. Come In and Meet With Us For a Family Legacy Planning

Last, but far from least, this is the perfect time of year to come in and meet with us for a Family Legacy Planning Session, whether you've done estate planning in the past or not. We will have a 2-hour working meeting that will get you more financially organized than you've likely ever been before (unless you've already done planning with us) and give you the confidence of knowing you've made the most empowered, informed and educated legal and financial decisions for the people you love. Call within the next week and mention this article to receive your session on a complimentary basis.

Dedicated to empowering your family, building your wealth and securing your legacy, the track showcases a different tactic for the critically acclaimed rock act. In 2015 they released their second to what could be the band's most celebrated outing to to say the very least.

Future Islands - Ran - Future Islands could very well be the best indie rock act in today's music. With their successful fourth studio album, "Singles" in 2014, it provided the band with a way of breaking out of being relatively unknowns to headliners and becoming the highlight at music festivals all over the world. The new single is the stimulating, "Ran." It's the first glimpse into the band's forthcoming record, "The Far Field" due out April 8th. With the mixture of deep, contemplative lyrics and dark synth tones, the single will take a strong hold on you. Lead singer Samuel Herring's vocals have always been the band's greatest instrument and it's still in tact down their own path and because of that, have found much breakthrough success. You can call them seasoned veterans, but this feels like the start of something new yet beautifully familiar from the Baltimore, Maryland snyth-

The Districts - "Ordinary The Drums - Blood Under My Belt - The Drums are a soft open before throwing out a few jabs of its own, all here and it's a good feeling. Hopefully, The Drums can rebound off their dismal third LP, "Encyclopedia" which took them to darker places that didn't work for record, "A Flourish And A Spoil" to strong reviews. them as they abandoned their beachy/surf rock roots. With Ordinary Day, the band demonstrates piercing In fact, after that album, one part of the duo, guitarist guitars and sharp vocals. Even with laconic lyrics, the Jacob Graham departed from the band. From the looks hazy induced track is a daydream with its entrancing of it, it's a one-man show now for Pierce. Maybe, just melody. The band is gearing up to release their third LP maybe, he can start making the music he was always sometime this year and this single is a strong indication meant to create. "Blood Under My Belt" is a terrific start Beach Fossils - "This Year" - Here's another band making a return after an absence of nearly four years. Beach Fossils have two records under their belt, 2010's self-titled lo-fi, breezy, minimalistic indie debut and 2013's more aggressivepunk rock inspired, "Clash The Truth." Now that they're older (and assuming wiser), their new single, "This Year" is a dreamy, pop endeavor of yesteryear. It's more mellow and heartfelt than the band has ever crafted before. Frontman Dustin Payseur's, the only original member of the band, has shown a greater maturity on this latest single that expands the band's sonic palette in many improved ways. Payseur says "it's about facing mistakes you've made, aiming to work on it and better yourself, but ending up making the same with this one. Future Islands have consistently marched mistakes again. It's kind of an endless loop. People always aim to make New Year's resolutions, get a fresh start, but ultimately fall back into these old bad habits." Whatever the case may be, "This Year" is ultimately Beach Fossils at their finest and 2017 just got a little better with their forthcoming record, "Summersault" due out in June.

Option B: Facing Adversity, Building Resilience, and Finding Joy by Sheryl Sandberg Adam Grant

From Facebook's COO and Wharton's top-rated professor, the #1 New York Times best-selling authors of Lean In and Originals: a powerful, inspiring, and practical book about building resilience and moving forward after life's inevitable setbacks. After the sudden death of her husband, Sheryl Sandberg felt certain that she and her children would never feel pure joy again. "I was in 'the void," she writes, "a vast emptiness that fills your heart and lungs and restricts your ability to think or even breathe." Her friend Adam Grant, a psychologist at Wharton, told her there are concrete steps people can take to recover and rebound from lifeshattering experiences. We are not born with a fixed amount of resilience. It is a muscle that everyone can build. Option B combines Sheryl's personal insights with Adam's eye-opening research on finding strength in the face of adversity. Beginning with the gut-wrenching moment when she finds her husband, Dave Goldberg, collapsed on a gym floor, Sheryl opens up her heart—and her journal—to describe the acute grief and isolation she felt in the wake of his death. But Option B goes beyond Sheryl's loss to explore how a broad range of people have overcome hardships including illness, job loss, sexual assault, natural disasters, and the violence of war. Their stories reveal the capacity of the human spirit to persevere . . . and to rediscover joy.Resilience comes from deep within us and from support outside us. Even after the most devastating events, it is possible to grow by finding deeper meaning and gaining greater appreciation in our lives. Option B illuminates how to help others in crisis, develop compassion for ourselves, raise strong children, and create resilient families, communities, and workplaces. Many of these lessons can be applied to everyday struggles, allowing us to brave whatever lies ahead. Two weeks after losing her husband, Sheryl was preparing for a father-child activity. "I want Dave," she cried. Her friend replied, "Option A is not available," and then promised to help her make the most of Option B.We all live some form of Option B. This book will help us all

The Transparency of Things: Contemplating the Nature of Experience by Rupert Spira and

The purpose of The Transparency of Things is to look clearly and simply at the nature of experience, without any attempt to change it.A series of contemplations leads us gently but directly to see that our essential nature is neither a body nor a mind. It is the conscious Presence that is aware of this current experience. As such, it is nothing that can be experienced as an object, and yet it is undeniably present. However, these contemplations go much further than this. As we take our stand knowingly as this conscious Presence that we always already are, and reconsider the objects of the body, mind, and world, we find that they do not simply appear to this Presence; they appear within it. And further exploration reveals that they do not simply appear within this Presence but as this Presence. Finally, we are led to see that it is in fact this very Presence that takes the shape of our experience from moment to moment while always remaining only itself. We see that our experience is and has only ever been one seamless totality, with no separate

Robinson New York Times bestselling author Kim Stanley Robinson returns with a bold and brilliant vision of New York City in the next century.For years, science fiction writers have tackled the scenario of rising sea levels, envisioning disastrous waves that destroy cities and cause social upheaval. Kim Stanley Robinson imagines how the metropolis and its inhabitants would adapt and thrive in the new environment. As the sea levels rose, every street became a canal. Every skyscraper an island. For the residents of one apartment building in Madison Square, however, New York in the year 2140 is far from a drowned city. There is the market trader, who finds opportunities where others find trouble. There is the detective, whose work will never disappear --- along with the lawyers, of course. There is the internet star, beloved by millions for her airship adventures, and the building's manager, quietly respected for his attention to detail. Then there are two boys who don't live there, but have no other home-- and who are more important to its future than anyone might imagine.Lastly there are the coders, temporary residents on the roof, whose disappearance triggers a sequence of events that threatens the existence of all-- and even the long-hidden foundations on which the city rests.

make the most of it. Comes out April 24,

The man who wants to improve himself can never be aware, because improvement implies condemnation and the achievement of a result. Whereas in awareness. there is observation without condemnation, without denial or acceptance. That awareness begins with outward things, being aware, being in contact with objects, with nature. First, there is awareness of things about one, being sensitive to objects, to nature, then to people, which means relationship; then there is awareness of idea. This awareness, being sensitive to things, to nature, to people, to ideas is not made up of separate processes, but is one unitary process. It is a constant observation of everything, of every thought and feeling and action as they arise within oneself. This awareness, this empty conscious presence in which all things manifest is one's true being-Krishnamurti & Mooji

SHARPENING HEALTH CARE? CONSIDER THE PENCIL

To understand the primary problem with the American health-care system - cost and massive inefficiency are two major causes - it's helpful to revisit a 1958 essay, "I, Pencil," by Leonard Read. A pencil appears to be a very simple, inexpensive tool. Read, however, explains that its production is incredibly complex. The standard pencil begins when a cedar tree is cut down. Ropes and gear tug it onto the bed of a truck or a rail car.

But lots of people and skills are needed to mine ore and refine steel to produce the saws, axes and motors that fell that cedar tree.

Lots of people are needed to grow hemp, then transform it, through various stages, into the strong rope that pulls the tree onto a truck.

The logs are shipped to a mill and cut into slats. The slats are kiln-dried, tinted, waxed, then kiln-dried again.

How many skills were needed to produce the tint and the kilns, Read wondered. What about the electric power? What about the belts, motors and other parts at the mill? The cedar slats are shipped to a factory. A complex machine cuts a groove into each. A second lays the lead into every other slat's groove. Glue is applied. Two slats are sealed together as one, then cut into lengths that form pencils.

The lead alone is incredibly complex. To produce it, graphite is mined in Ceylon. The graphite is packed and shipped, then mixed with clay from Mississippi. It is treated with a wetting agent - such as sulfonated tallow, which is formed when animal fats chemically react with sulfuric acid.

The pencil receives six coats of lacquer. Lacquer has numerous ingredients, including castor oil. Think of all the chemists needed to create the lacquer - and all the castorbean growers needed to produce the oil that's refined and shipped.

The brass end that holds the eraser in place is a marvel. Miners need to first extract zinc and copper from the Earth. Experts transform those materials into sheet brass, which is then cut, stamped and affixed to the pencil.

The eraser is made from "factice," writes Read, a rubber-like product that is produced when rapeseed oil from the Dutch East Indies reacts with sulfur chloride.

An awe-inspiring amount of work goes into producing a pencil. Millions of people collaborate to produce it - millions ply their unique trades and skills - yet they have no idea they are collaborating.

The pencil, explains Read, is a triumph of human freedom - a triumph of creative human energies spontaneously responding to human necessity and desire.

Its efficient production is the polar opposite of the American health-care system.

Now that the government plays such a heavy role in health care - ObamaCare requires that each insurance policy cover 10 essential health benefits - it dictates what private insurers can and cannot do. Massive rules and regulations inhibit competition, which is the mother's milk of efficiency and cost savings.

Our health-care system's third-party payment system - private insurers or the government fund almost all health-care activities - detach consumers from the cost of the care they consume. Since consumers do not pay directly for most health-care services, few know or care what those services cost.

Read concludes his essay with this advice: The best thing our government can do is leave our "creative energies uninhibited" - remove the obstacles that prevent human creativity and innovation from flowing freely.

By removing such obstacles from our health-care system - by infusing free-market réforms - we could dramatically impact the cost and inefficiency problems and free up funds to provide care for the needy.

But any attempt to introduce free-market principles is met with cries that politicians are trying to hurt the sick and the poor. Thus, solving the health-care mess is not going to be easy.

I'm just thankful that our government hasn't mandated "free" pencils for all. Pencils

TRUMP'S TEAM MASKS THE ISSUES

The word of the day for Republicans is "unmask."

You heard it incessantly at the House Intelligence Committee hearings on Monday, and later on cable news. That single word is the Trump supporters' answer to explosive news from FBI Director James Comey that the agency has been investigating possible collusion between Russia and Trump's presidential campaign.

Yet, among Republicans and Democrats questioning Comey, you would have thought you were hearing two separate hearings. Democrats focused on the epic charges of alleged election tampering, while Republicans spoke almost exclusively of unmasking.

The unmaskee in this case is Michael Flynn, who briefly held the post of National Security Advisor under Trump until he was fired for lying about having conversations with the Russian ambassador. Flynn's activities were uncovered by FBI surveillance and then made public in leaks to news media.

By Monday night, Trump aide Kellyanne Conway summarized the day's hearings this way on Fox News: "The unmasking of an American citizen through intelligence leaks should concern everyone. We learned about that today."

Period. No mention by Conway of collusion with the Russians. And no mention of the day's other headline: that there is no information to support Trump's wild accusation that Trump Tower was wiretapped by President Obama.

Over on CNN, left-leaning pundits insisted there was so much "smoke" in Trump's dealings with Russia that there must be "fire." But the Trump apologists on the panel only wanted to talk about the horrors of unmasking.

Trump has crafted a parallel universe for his followers. When bad news comes along—as it seems to with increasing frequency - Trump fires off wild tweets. Accusations in the tweets, no matter how farfetched, must, of course, be investigated. The investigation, naturally, is given equal weight with more serious matters - at least in the minds of Trump supporters.

And then, through artful marketing, a single word is invoked to grab the public's attention. Unmasking!

Ironically, whoever leaked Flynn's name is arguably a national hero. The Trump administration took no action to fire him, despite the president's full awareness of his activities, until leaks made it impossible for Flynn to stay.

But on Capitol Hill we were reminded repeatedly by Republicans, led by Rep. Trey Gowdy, that such leaking is "a felony, punishable by up to 10 years in prison." Meanwhile, Trump himself has already employed his favorite words, "fake news," to dismiss the EPI's investigation into his time with Pussia over before the probability.

to dismiss the FBI's investigation into his ties with Russia, even before the probe is completed.

Trump and his staff have yet to prove they know much about governing. But they are forces to be reckoned with in the increasingly important war of words.

RATHOLES OF WASHINGTON

Ratholes.

Both parties in Washington can't stop going down their favorite rathole.

And the rest of us poor civilians from coast-to-coast and in-between have to watch – and suffer.

The entire country has been poisoned by the constant "I hate you more than you hate me" bipartisanship from D.C., which throws around lots of charges and countercharges with virtually no solid evidence to back them up.

Each party won't stop digging their rathole.

President Trump continues to insist that President Obama ordered surveillance of Trump Tower last fall.

ower last fall. The liberal media openly scoffs.

Democrats continue to insist that the Trump campaign and the Russian hackers colluded to defeat Hillary Clinton.

The liberal media openly fans the sparks of that conspiracy, assuming and hoping it's true. When it comes to each of these dumb ratholes, it doesn't matter what the latest scoops or opinions from CNN or FOX News are.

It doesn't matter what the next reckless Republican or Democrat congressman says is or is not true about the surveillance of the Trump Tower, the FBI, collusion with the Russians, the weather or anything else.

Did some members of the Trump Team who were not named Flynn talk to Russians who may or may not have been spies or Putin cronies last year? Probably.

Does it mean that a devious Trump-Russkie pact was made to wreck Hillary's campaign – and successfully did so?

Nope — and nope.

Were President Trump and/or his transition staff the "incidental" target of data collection by American intelligence agencies last year.

Probably.

These days just about every human who emails, texts, tweets or talks on a phone to any foreign citizen about anything is surveilled by some federal agency or other.

But that doesn't prove – or disprove – that the president's infamous "Obama 'wiretapped'

But that doesn't prove – or disprove – that the president's infamous "Obama 'wiretapped' Trump Tower" tweet is accurate.

With each of these ratholes, it's not "Where's the beef?" It's "Where's the evidence?"

Both sides are guilty.

Democrats want you to hate Trump. Trump wants you to hate Democrats, even though he was one for most of his life.

Both sides are rolling around in this endless childish mud fight and we have to sit and watch

It's sent the whole country into a permanent state of political disunion and argument. Wives and husbands, brothers and sisters, golf and poker buddies, parents and kids – they're all either arguing about politics or not talking to each other because of politics.

either arguing about politics or not talking to each other because of politics.

All it takes is the mere mention of the T-word – Trump – to ruin a dinner or a coffee break.

It's maddening and frustrating and it ticks me off to have to watch this crap.

It's maddening and frustrating and it ticks me off to have to watch this crap. Conspiracy theories have left the fringes of the social media and are now playing out live every day in Washington. Each is pushing their own conspiracy theory and we all have to suffer because of it.

As for the Trump-Russian conspiracy theory, the Democrat dogs in Congress won't ever let go of that bone.

The lack of evidence or proof doesn't matter to them. They'd be happy to hold hearings from now until November of 2020.

President Trump can do his part to end at least half of the problem today.

He can walk away from the whole Obama-wiretapping rathole and say, "Thanks for investigating, guys. Thanks for letting me know Trump Tower was not wiretapped by Obama, as I was led to believe."

Trump needs to accept the truth and publicly say, "Hey, the Democrats didn't wiretap me." And Democrats need to say, "Hey, there was no collusion with the Russians." And then they both need to get on with the important business of fixing the country.
