Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"My favorite way to cook trout is whole, bone-in, on the grill. The fish is stuffed with sliced lemon and herb sprigs, brushed with oil, and cooked over fairly hot coals until the skin is crisp and the flesh is moist and flaky. Go ahead and gild the lily by adding a sauce."

Tom Douglas

I don't know if these little guys I photographed at the Huck Finn Fishing Derby, sponsored by the Fire Fighters, last Saturday are going to cook their trout that way, but this much I do know, they will be getting ice cream if their picture is in the paper. That's the Fire Fighter's Rule! Declan and Nolan here with their FisherKids Certificates and proud dads, just out of sight, holding nets with two or three really good sized trout in them... 3 and almost a half pounds is what I'd call a good sized trout... have obviously had a really good time. Took a picture, too, of a cute little girl, Tabitha, who was standing on a rock working on her casting. I asked her if she liked fishing and got the "I'm only doing this to make my mom happy!" look. But she was having a great time being outside on a

"When a trout rises to a fly, it does not swim as much as tilt its fins and jet skyward!'

Joseph Monninger

Saturday was an absolutely gorgeous day, fluffy clouds in the sky, a nice breeze, sunlight enough to warm the bones...and after camping out all night Friday, some of those parental bones probably needed warming... and the smoky remains of a campfire drifted by from time to time on the breeze. We, my fishing buddy, John, and I, went out around 10:30 or so to see what there was to see and what we saw were families having a wonderful time together. The Pasadena Casting Club was giving lessons and we were really impressed with some of the fly-casting we saw. We especially enjoyed several what else was going on. Checking out Amazon.com, I was astonished to see how many kinds of fishing poles especially for kids there are available. John still has the he and his Dad used to go fishing together when he was a little kid. They went to some stream, he said, not too far away, never caught anything but had a good time. That's pretty much what it's about, isn't it, having a good time with your family.

Here's something nice about Sierra Madre: The FormLA Landscaping Newsletter mentioned us! And "The City of Sierra Madre looked at its broad expanses of lawn around city hall and saw an opportunity to conserve some water – and a little green. They reached out to Glenn Putnam with the Sierra Madre Garden Club to instigate a redesign of the space into a vibrant park comprised of water-wise, foothill-friendly plants. The Garden Club involved the full community in the project. The Sierra Madre Community Foundation joined the Garden Club to raise funds by selling bricks and benches to mitigate the costs of the renovation. The Sierra Madre Senior Commission sponsored the my book page! Authentic Foothill Shade Garden. The Garden Club Follow me on Twitter, too! https://twitter.com/@ also recruited community groups and residents to playwrightdd help plant the new foliage. The Authentic LA Foothill Gardens at Sierra Madre City Hall are now a source of pride and cost savings for the city."

We love how the gardens 'round City Hall look now. We can be very proud of ourselves as this is a beautiful and water-wise area where it's very pleasant to just sit and look up at our own personal mountains.

Another thought on things floral: Trader Joe's has daffodils, 10 stems for $1.49, where you cut an inch off the bottom, stick 'em in some water and you'll have a week of absolute beauty and joy. We keep ours in the kitchen.

A few goodies you might want to know about: Our moms who were casting with their daughters' Hello Library has a volunteer technology tutor available to Kitty rods; said daughters having wandered off to see help patrons learn how to use the internet, software such as Excel and Word, how to set up email, and conquer their smart phones or tablets. He'll be there Monday evenings from 5 to 7 p.m. and Saturdays 2 fishing poles he's carried through his life from when to 5 p.m. Sign up or drop in and he'll help you. Neat! And, speaking of the Library, I finished "Rise of the Rocket Girls: The Women Who Propelled Us, from Missiles to the Moon to Mars" and if you haven't read this yet, start! It's a terrific book, trust me!

Don't forget Legendary Bingo is April 15th at the Recreation Center to support our Rose Float. This is NOT your Grandmother's bingo! 6:30 till when the last chip falls!

And, one last thing, today, April 1st, is my Walking Sierra Madre buddy, John's, and my 50th Anniversary. More about that next week.

Pasadena Woman Pulled Out of Can Robbed and Beaten

Police are looking for two men after they pulled a 24-year-old woman out of her car in a Northwest Pasadena parking lot, demanded money, and then began beating her.

According to police, the victim was sitting in a parking vehicle at Lake Ave. and Washington Blvd waiting for a friend that went into a store. One of the men opened her car door and pulled her from the car. The two suspects ran away on foot taking the victim's cell phone. They were last seen running south on Lake Ave. No description on the suspects was given.

The victim had cuts to her face but declined to be taken to a hospital.

Renaissance Plaza Vons to become Vallarta Market

After an announcement last month that the North Fair Oaks Avenue Vons supermarket in northwest Pasadena would close, Vallarta Supermarkets has submitted a $5 million renovation project that would keep both the Wells Fargo Bank and pharmacy within a newly designed Vallarta store.

The current Vons is set to close this April 22 with the Vallarta Supermarket opening in November.

In a statement Vons parent company Albertsons Companies Inc, said all of the current employees, about 60, would have the option of working at other Vons markets.

Pet of the Week

North Carolina (A412942) is a 2-year-old, spayed female, black pit bull mix. Our volunteers report that North Carolina is a real sweetheart. There's nothing she likes more than crawling into your lap for petting and belly rubs. North Carolina is very energetic and loves going for walks and running around in our training yard. This smart gal has already mastered her sit command, and she's working on stay and down.

The adoption fee for hamsters is $125, but as part of our Slam Dunk for the Animals event, North Carolina's adoption is free thanks to generous donors! All dogs are neutered, microchipped, and vaccinated before being adopted.

New adopters will receive a complimentary health-andwellness exam from VCA Animal Hospitals, as well as a goody bag filled with information about how to care for your pet.

Call the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA at (626) 792-7151 to ask about A412942, or visit at 361 S. Raymond Ave. in Pasadena. Adoption hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday; and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Pets may not be available for adoption and cannot be held for potential adopters by phone calls or email. Directions and photos of all pets can be found at pasadenahumane.org.

NoHo to Pasadena Bus Becomes Permanent

The Metropolitan Transportation Authority (MTA) approved, last week, making the dedicated bus way connecting the Metro Red Line station in North Hollywood to the Gold Line Del Mar station in Pasadena permanent fixture in the community.

According to Supervisor Kathryn Barger, the MTA will begin studying two options, a rapid transit bus way along major city streets in Pasadena, Burbank and Glendale, or a bus way primarily fixed in the middle of the 134 and 5 freeways. The street alignment is estimated to serve 18,000 riders a day by 2035, and the freeway alignment would serve around 10,300 riders.

"This express line provides commuters in both Valleys a convenient way to travel between the Metro Gold Line in Pasadena and Metro Red/Orange Lines in North Hollywood with stops at the Burbank Media District and North Downtown Glendale," she said.

Foothill Transit to Raise Fares, Eliminate Bus Routes

Foothill Transit is seeking input for proposed system changes that include a 25 cent fee hike customers have been asking for, and splitting the popular 187 line that connects Old Pasadena to Azusa into two lines, among Silver Streak for a full day. other changes including the complete elimination of a number bus routes throughout the San Gabriel Valley.

'We're traveling farther for longer hours to get you where you need to be, which adds to the cost of doing business (more fuel, more wear and tear)." Officials said. "On the flip side, we're seeing fewer people on board. This is partly due to some pretty significant population shifts, but also because gas is cheap and cars are easier to obtain. In fact, ridership on public transit is down across the region."

In a letter to Pasadena City Mermelĺ, Manager Steve Foothill Transit Executive Director Doran Barnes said "fares at Fotthill Tranist have not changed since 2010. The fare proposal includes:

Fare changes would take place in two stages to minimize the impact on customers.

Proposed fares would maintain a 50 percent minimum discount on fares and passes for Seniors/ Persons with Disabilities/ Medicare customers.

To also maintain a 25 percent minimum discount on 31-day passes for students.

The plan would also add new bus routes and stops such as the Santa Anita Mall and near the LA Arboretum.

"Overall, these changes are expected to save Foothill Transit around $550,000. We'd like to immediately reinvest that money back into service, specifically service that you've always wanted," officials said.

The first of six public meeting will be Friday, April 7, from 2:30 to 5 p.m. at Claremont Library 208 Harvard Ave N, Claremont. Ironically, Foothill Transit officials suggest taking the 187 line to get there.

The proposal is expected to be heard by The Foothill Transit Executive Board for review in May. If approved, the changes will go into effect in October.

ARCADIA CHAMBER'S INSTALLATION DINNER AND TWO SPECIAL RECOGNITIONS

By Joan Schmidt

Recently fellow Town Council Member Linda Sells and I had the honor of attending Arcadia Chamber of Commerce 2017-2018 Installation of Board of Directors Dinner and Recognition of Gene Glasco as Arcadia Citizen of the Year Award and Fasching's Car Wash as Corporate Contributor of the Year.

After we arrived and a warm welcome by Chamber Members, Gene entered with his special entourage including the sister of a dear friend, lost in Viet Nam, former Mayor Gail Marshall and LASD's Burt Brink.

It was a wonderful evening-the setting-the Club House at Santa Anita, a sumptuous meal and such well-deserved recognition.

Gene is very humble, but this very intelligent man, fluent in Tagalog, has worn so many hats over the years. He served in the Navy, stationed in Viet Nam, has received degrees, began and operated a successful business, Glasco and Associates Inc., and currently is the City Clerk of Arcadia and a realtor with Dilbeck Real Estate in

Last year Gene did the impossible. It bothered him over the years that Arcadia lost fourteen men in Viet Nam, but there was no monument. He decided to do something about that. He sought assistance from Arcadia's Elks Lodge which held two fundraising dinners to help towards the needed $50,000 in funding. Supervisor Mike Antonovich thought it was a wonderful idea so the beautiful monument was built and dedicated in May at a Veterans Day Celebration at Arcadia County Park. Congresswoman Judy Chu awarded Gene the "Community Activist Award" at her Annual Leadership Awards last July and Assembly Member Ed Chau gave Gene his "Make a Difference Award".

George Fasching has owned and operated Fasching's Car Wash in Arcadia for almost 40 years, employing on average 50 people at the Santa Anita Ave. location. He and wife Geri purchased it in 1977 from Exxon Oil and it was recipient of the International Car Wash Beautiful Award. George later built a fast food eatery across the street, eventually purchased by In 'N Out Burger.

George and his family have contributed to Center, AHS Performing Arts Center, Pony/ Colt Baseball, Boy Scouts/Girl Scouts, Arcadia Festival of Bands, Arcadia Police and Firefighters Association, Methodist Hospital Foundation, Kare Youth League, American Youth Soccer, Arcadia Little League, Arcadia and Neighboring Schools, Arcadia and Neighboring Churches, Arcadia Campership Fund.

Linda, Arcadia's Mike Vercillo, Mr. Black and his son and I were at George's table. Like Gene Glasco, George is so humble and has a great sense of humor. I am so blown away by his and his family's extensive contributions and support to so many wonderful groups.

Thank you to the Arcadia Chamber for Boys & Girls Club of the Foothills, Foothill Unity providing such a wonderful evening.

SPECIAL RECOGNITION IN MONROVIA AND DUARTE

By Joan Schmidt

On Monday morning, at the Gold Line Station in Monrovia, there was a dedication and plaque to the late Mayor Bob Bartlett. To me, he was a gentle giant and even thought he wasn't MY mayor (I live in the county area), he was a friend and someone greatly admired. When we moved into Monrovia, in 1987, it was a city with a beautiful downtown area and was a desirable place to live. Bob spearheaded urban renewal and initiated many great changes. I would see Bob at either the Post Office or Library and he always had that big smile. Often he was in pain, but kept it to himself.

Another presentation occurred at a recent Duarte City Council Meeting. It seems there is a new street, and a Via D'Aquino sign was presented to Gaetano D'Aquino and his family. The successful business has been in Duarte forty years and the family is wellrespected in the Duarte Community. Community. When I was on the Friends of the Duarte Library, the D'Aquino family graciously let us use their beautiful facility for our Wine Down with Friends fundraiser and provided the wine.

It has been wonderful to read of positive happenings in our communities after the recent spoke in crimes.

ALVERNO HEIGHTS ACADEMY JUNIOR ACHIEVES PERFECT SCORE ON ACT VICTORIA CHEN EARNED A PERFECT 36 ON THE FEBRUARY EXAM

Sierra Madre, CA (March 30, 2017) - Victoria Chen, a junior at Alverno Heights Academy, has earned the highest possible composite score of 36 on the ACT, the leading United States admission test that determines college readiness. On average, less than one-tenth of 1 percent of students who take the ACT earn a top score. In the U.S. high school graduating class of 2016, only 2,235 out of nearly 2.1 million graduates who took the ACT earned a composite score of 36

The ACT consists of tests in English, mathematics, reading and science, each scored on a scale of 1–36. A student's composite score is the average of the four test scores. Some students also take the optional ACT writing test, but the score for that test is reported separately and is not included within the ACT composite score.

In a letter to Victoria recognizing her exceptional achievement, ACT Chief Executive Officer Marten Roorda stated, "Your achievement on the ACT is significant and rare. While test scores are just one of multiple criteria that most colleges consider when making admission decisions, your exceptional ACT composite score should prove helpful as you pursue your education and career goals."

When I took the ACT, I never would have guessed that I would have gotten a perfect score," said Victoria. "It was more challenging than I expected it to be but I knew I had still done pretty well. The day the scores were released, I remember checking the site numerous times throughout the day but it kept crashing so I eventually gave up. I ended up just checking it once more before bed and I was surprised to see that number '36" come up on the screen under my name."

Victoria, who is only 15 years old, is a member of the Accelerated Honors Academy at Alverno Heights Academy. She started at Alverno in the fall of 2014 at just 12 years old after skipping both the seventh and eighth grades. Despite her age, Victoria is enrolled and excels in a rigorous Advanced Placement (AP) college preparatory program at Alverno which includes AP Calculus BC, AP English Language and Composition, AP United States History, AP Biology, AP Environmental Science, Graphic Design, Engineering and Robotics, and Independent Research in Science. Last year, she earned a perfect "5" on the AP Calculus AB exam and hopes to do the same on the AP Calculus BC exam in May. She currently maintains a 4.25 GPA.

Last March, Victoria was selected as a winner of the Johns Hopkins Center for Talented Youth Cogito Research Award. The Cogito Research Award was established to enable motivated students to complete a promising research project in a science, technology, math, or engineering field. Victoria was awarded a special certificate of recognition as well as an award check for $599 to complete her research project. This recognition follows others from CTY including recognition at the CTY Grand Ceremony in 2014 as a student who scored in the top 3 percent of all students who complete the School and College Ability Test-Victoria scored in the 99th percentile in both the verbal and quantitative sections. At school, Victoria is active in Alverno's expanding STEM program participating in numerous collaborations with Caltech including the Community Science Academy (CSA), Solar Energy Activity Laboratory (SEAL), and the International Genetically Engineered Machine (iGEM) team. She was an integral part of the Alverno Heights Academy iGEM team that competed in Boston last fall. Victoria and her teammates competed against colleges and universities from around the world including Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Brown and Stanford. The team project proposed using deactivated Cas9 (dCas9) as a DNA clamp to block propagation of supercoiling generated during transcription, improving the modularity, predictability, and scalability of single-vector, multi-gene synthetic systems. After many months of arduous research and commitment, Alverno's iGEM team earned a Silver Medal in the Academy, please visit www.alvernoheightsacademy.org.

competition and were recognized for their exceptional achievement by Congresswoman Judy Chu.

With a few more months until the college application process starts for Victoria, she is still working on narrowing down her list although she definitely has her eyes set on one school—Stanford.

"There's a couple of lists but Stanford is definitely at the top of all them. That's certainly my dream," Victoria said. "My hope is to be able to go to Stanford and major in biology so that I can either go onto medical school or graduate school to do research. At least that's my plan right now."

"Alverno Heights Academy is so incredibly proud of Victoria and this once in a lifetime accomplishment," said Julia V. Fanara, Head of School. "Last year fewer than 2,500 students earned a perfect score on the ACT and the fact that Victoria is only 15 years old makes this achievement so much more momentous! She was one of the first students admitted to the official Accelerated Honors Academy at Alverno, which only continues to grow and expand each year, and it has been a privilege to watch her grow and thrive with it. We look forward to many more successes and providing these exceptionally gifted young women like Victoria, along with all of our students, the opportunity to grow and excel in a nurturing and college preparatory environment like Alverno."

GOLDENWORDS.....Advice for Students & Parents

YOU'VE CHOSEN YOUR COLLEGE! NOW, WHAT'S NEXT?By the end of April, most high schoolers who are going on to college or university enrollment will have chosen their destination institution. Congratulations! The college application process can be intricate and complex, and you've found a school that matches your interests and

Here are some time-sensitive tips for you to consider that will enhance your arrival and success at college this coming Fall. Whether it's a commute to Junior College or a cross-country relocation for your studies, there are some important action steps for you to take:

--Graduate from High School! Seems obvious, but the closing weeks high school need your primary attention. Classes to complete successfully, AP and other exit examinations, and Senior projects and presentations to wrap up with a flourish. Graduate!

-- Pay Attention to all Communications from your Destination College. You have lots of forms arriving from your college or university that are deadlined and important. In some cases, you have to arrange for certain placement exams before you even get to your campus. If your college has established an account via their own secure portal, be sure to regularly monitor it and take action promptly and completely.

--Reach out via Email to certain key offices and individuals at your destination college or university in the next 2 months!

If you're going to be a residential student on a campus, you already will have begun an electronic relationship with both the Dean of Students office (housing, roommates, etc...) and the Dean of Academic Affairs (course planning for first year, orientation, etc...).

--Who ELSE needs to know you're coming to their campus?

Research shows that students who have at least 4-5 "adult influencers" who know them early in their first year on campus will persist and succeed, making the most of their college experience.

If you take the time by June to send a thoughtful, well-written email to some of the people and offices listed below, you'll not only introduce yourself to some influential people. You'll be doing something that almost no first-year student typically does, and you'll send a message that you're mature and professional about yourself, a good tone to establish.

--Know your likely academic area of study? Find email address for department chair or director of undergraduate study and reach out to introduce yourself as a likely major. Ask what you can be doing this summer to pave the way for success in their department.

--Know a career direction that fascinates you? Most colleges often have faculty who coordinate pre-professional areas like Health Sciences, Law, Engineering, Business. Same kind of outreach to these staff and faculty can get you a headstart and valuable inside information.

--Will you have a job on campus? (if you've been given "work-study" expectations as part of financial aid, you'll need employment to make expected earnings).

For any student, a campus job of 6-10 hours a week is one of the top 3 activities that ensure college success--you will get higher grades, become a better manager of your time, and you'll have in your campus supervisor a great "adult influencer" who'll help you in lots of ways. And, you'll get spending money for pizzas, laundry and your cell phone, too!

(note: Though you won't be able to secure your campus job before you arrive at your college to do paperwork, there's no reason you can't begin to identify interesting campus employers and reach out to the hiring coordinators at places like the Library, Athletics, Admissions and other departments that rely on lots Dan Golden, PhD of student workers.)

Are there other targets for this kind of outreach? You bet!

When I was a Dean of Career Services, for instance, I relished a chance to get freshmen involved in our programs and help them find internships and community service, both on campus and back home.

Do you want to explore ways to win national and international fellowships during and after college? If you find the folks who coordinate these programs and identify yourself now, they'll be looking out for you in September. Goldwater and Truman Scholarships while you're in college, Rhodes, British Marshall, Fulbright and many others can be targets for you. What if you have a core passion or component of your ethnic or lifestyle profile that you want to cultivate? Your Dean of Students Office is the place to ask about how to find fellow students who share your attributes and interests. From dancers to filmmakers to anime aficionados, Pacific Islanders to LGBTQ populations, political progressives to conservatives--college campuses are full of affinity groups that need your energy and Whew! Even if you attempt just one or two outreach emails to some of the targets we've outlined above, you'll be putting the word out to your new campus that you're pro-active, you know how to do your research, and you can write a winning email with a great subject header (sounds old-fashioned to you veteran users of more sophisticated social media, right? Well, you'll soon find that regular email communicating is the 'gold standard' in college and university life).

So, make sure to graduate on time, take care of any action steps asked of you by your next school, and consider trying an early outreach or two to some adult influencers. They'll respond, offer you some great suggestions, and be watching for you after you've settled into your college life this Fall.

me and my husband, she was so afraid of being left home alone, she would rip the entire place apart trying to get out and find us. It took us literally years to convince her that she would be okay while we were away and that we would return in short order.

I believe part of Molly's fear was brought on by the fact that her original owner, Frederick Alfaro had never once left her alone during the three years she lived with him. Then, when our dear Frederick passed away, five years ago this May, I do believe that Molly's fear of being left home alone was even fell suddenly ill and was taken by ambulance to the hospital, never to return home again.

And so it was quite the struggle for the first couple of years that we had Molly in our home. She insisted on going with us everywhere we went. We tested the waters numerous times by leaving her behind when we went out on brief excursions, only to return to find ripped window shades, mangled moldings and the bloodied paws that caused the chaos.

To prevent our home from being completely destroyed by our precious yet fretful pet, we took her with us everywhere we went for many months. Because of my line of work, I was often unable to let Molly to tag along with me, so my husband was kind enough to let her join him when he went to work each day. This arrangement was made possible only by the fact that Rick has an antique store where Molly wouldn't (for the most part) hinder daily operations.

One day I decided it was time to make another attempt at leaving Molly home alone. I left for an hour and much to my pleasant surprise, I returned to find that she had, at last, learned to relax and enjoy the safety of her home. She came calmly to me when I opened the door. There were no signs of destruction and it seemed she'd been sleeping the entire time I'd been gone. Ever since then Molly has been holding down the fort while we go about our

We were fortunate to have had the flexibility of Rick taking Molly to the shop, but most pet owners are not in the position to do so and at times it can become a real problem. Of course, there are pet sitters and walkers such as myself to help shorten the day for the dog somewhat, but even then it can be stressful for an owner to have to leave their beloved pets home alone all day.

The good news is, a new trend seems to be emerging on the horizon among forward-thinking business owners, which could make it much easier for pet-owning employees to meet the obligations of their occupations, bring home the bacon and be there for their pets, all at the same time!

More employers are beginning to recognize that their pet-owning employees are more productive on the job if they are not preoccupied with what their dogs might be doing at home alone. These brilliant bosses have found that operations go much more swimmingly when employee's pets are allowed to join them on the job. Most of today's dog-friendly workplaces are of the creative and technological persuasion, but the trend is catching on and many say it's the wave of the future.

Roger Vincent's article Canine to

When my sweet pup, Molly first came to live with Five, in last Sunday's LA Times Business section is what inspired my thoughts on this exciting subject. In it, Vincent recounts his visits to a couple of LA's work places where he met plenty of pleasant pups along with the chief "eggs" and a few property landlords who swear by the movement toward dog-friendly working environments. As long as the rules are laid down and complied with, it's a win-win for all

The presence of kind canines in the work place guaranteed to help create a familial ambience in the office. To most folks, doing business in this type more intensified by having been present when he of setting is much more desirable than that of the historically-typical stuffed-shirt conventional setting. The cold and uninviting hyper-professional work environment is all but completely passé nowadays. Those who've invited "Fido" in say their clients feel way more welcomed and relaxed in a dog-friendly

But it's not all tricks and treats when it comes to adding pets to the work place. There are a few realities that have the potential to cause problems when it comes to intermingling the career with the canine. For example, there may be pet-free coworkers who are allergic to animals. Then there are those who are sincerely fearful of dogs. Clearly one can't choose pets over people in the office, can one? (I suppose it depends on who you ask!)

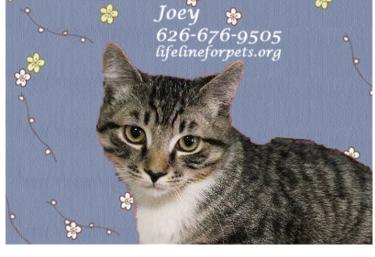

Then there is the issue of coordinating pet potty breaks with personnel productivity. Although, this is not necessarily an insurmountable concern, it is something to be considered. In my mind, logic follows that dogs who spend more time with the people they love, are more likely to fall into a regular routine based on the routine their people maintain throughout day. I mean, people have to go potty too sometimes, right? I imagine it's not unlike how it goes when the dog is home with his human.

Further, an owner who loves their dog enough to take him to work is more likely to be responsible enough to pay attention to when it appears the pup may need to go. And while there may be interruptions unique to a dog-friendly work setting, there will also be less of a rush for folks to get out and go home, since the reason many employees rush to get on the road is the furry four-legger already laying next to their desk!

All in all, I think having a dog-friendly work environment is a fantastic idea. And it doesn't surprise me at all, that many businesses are following the lead of the creative and tech industries by allowing dogs on the job. It just goes to show how important our pets really are to us. There are few things in life that can have such a positive impact as that of a precious struggle. There and we may push our limits, but we don't struggle in yoga. There are many techniques used to accomplish this. Accessing a nourishing, full, deep breath and finding a sense of relaxation are probably two of the most important.

Have you noticed how a deep breath can change things? Finding even, smooth breaths changes our physiology and greatly affects the Sympathetic and Parasympathetic Nervous Systems. When we breathe in a deliberate way, the energy and the mind are soothed and refined. The road to feels like at the same time! freedom and letting go can be found this way.

With the breath as a catalyst, yoga allows us to Love and Namaste, find relaxation and cultivate a sense of ease. It's Keely Totten when we find the rhythm of relaxation that we are E-RYT 500, Yoga & Meditation Teacher

However, mentally, the mind is being soothed may be a challenge throughout practice. If the practice is approached by trying "too hard" or wanting to accomplish, then the profound sense of relaxation and letting go is not going to happen.

You've probably come upon this principle in other areas of life. Letting go allows abundance and exerting too much self-will is ultimately limiting. Relaxing into practice and agreeing to be fully present will break down resistance and create freedom on all levels.

Sometimes I had amazing adventures, and sometimes it left me tired, worn out and resentful. It is important to train yourself to be able to decline an invitation. We are not meant to do everything. There are some events we are going to have to miss. There may be times when you will need to turn down an assistance request. It is not only good self-care, but it's also honest. Give yourself permission to make yourself a priority. It is an excellent way to set the standard for how others will treat you. It is great modeling for your children as well.

FOOD AND DRINK & MORE

BORN TO DRIVE TO EAST LA

If and hopefully you have been following me right here in the newspaper and my radio show on Sundays at 5 PM. With that said you know I have found many Mexican restaurants in Southern California. It makes sense, doesn't hurt to have many Mexican Restaurants, but how many of them are good. I mean even acceptable. There are those that have above average food but the drinks plain stink!!! Or the drinks are good but the food sucks!!! Well my friends since I am high and dry this month, the food part of this equation was what I was looking for, so with my friend Janice, (claims to be a restaurant critic in waiting) I trekked down to East LA to the Original El Tepeyac Café on Evergreen in the heart of East LA.

The restaurant is fairly small with a counter and plenty of parking. The atmosphere is lively and the patrons come from all and I mean all walks of life. So what is it that brings patrons from all parts of the city to this Café? It's the food, and it's darn good too. Portions are big and you'll always leave with half of your food in a to-go bag. I'm telling you friends I tried to order the whole menu so that I could bring to you my loyal readers and viewers the best review possible, but I failed the portions are toooo big. So what did I have? I asked the server on a few suggestions and I went with the Taquitos with Guacamole, as soon as saw this portion I knew I ordered too much food. Next was the Manuel tacos, friend Janice wouldn't share but the look on her eyes I can tell she was pleased or was it that I am so handsome? Hmmm. The staple or the signature dish at El Tepeyac are the burritos my selection was the #2 A chile Colorado at this is a great dish and is pork slowly simmered in a red chile sauce, man it's worth driving back for. If you are running from the cops stay away, El Tepeyac is a fav of the men in blue. The Hollenbeck Burrito is a favorite of the police and comes with chips and guacamole. Next time I'm going to order the Okie de Pollo...shredded chicken breast. So what does El Tepeyac mean? The Hill that the Virgin Mary was sighted!!! No beer or wine. My only complaint is this darn to go menu. I guess I'm just getting old the print is too small.

HOW TO PICK A MEDICAL ALERT SYSTEM

Dear Savvy Senior,

I would like to get my 82-year-old mother, who lives alone, a home medical alert system with a panic button that she can push in case she falls or needs help. Can you recommend some good options to help me choose?

Overwhelmed Daughter

Dear Overwhelmed,

A good medical alert system is an affordable and effective tool that can help keep your mother safe, but with all the choices available today choosing one can be quite confusing. Here are some tips that can help.

How They Work

Medical alert systems, which have been around for about 40 years, are popular products for elderly seniors who live alone. Leased for about $1 a day, these basic systems provide a wearable help button – usually in the form of a neck pendant or wristband – and a base station that connects to the home phone line, or to a cellular network if no landline is present.

At the press of a button, your mom could call and talk to a trained operator through the system's base station receiver, which works like a powerful speakerphone. The operator will find out what's wrong, and will notify family members, a friend, neighbor or emergency services as

In addition to the basic home systems, many companies today (for an additional fee) are also offering motion sensitive pendants that can detect a fall and automatically call for help if your mom is unable to push the button. And mobile medical alerts that work when your mom is away from home. Mobile alerts work like cell phones with GPS tracking capabilities. They allow your mom to talk and listen to the operator directly through the pendant button, and because of the GPS, her general location would be known in order for help to be sent.

What to Consider

When shopping for a home medical alert system, here are some things to look for to help you choose a quality

• Extra help buttons: Most companies offer waterproof neck pendant and wristband help buttons, but some also offer wall-mounted buttons that can be placed near the floor in high fall risk areas like the bathroom or kitchen, in case your mom isn't wearing her pendant.

- Range: The base station should have a range of at least 400 feet so it can be activated from anywhere on your mom's property – even in the yard.
- Backup: Make sure the system has a battery backup in case of a power failure.
- Monitoring: Make sure the response center is staffed with trained emergency operators located in the U.S., are available on a 24-hour basis, and responds to calls promptly.
- Contacts: Choose a company that provides multiple contact choices - from emergency services, to a friend or family member who lives nearby - that they can contact if your mom needs help.
- Certification: Find out if the monitoring center has been certified by Underwriters Laboratories, a nonprofit safety and consulting company.

Top Rated Companies

While there are dozens of companies that offer medical alert systems, here are some top options that offer both home and mobile alerts: Bay Alarm Medical (fees start at $30 per month for a home landline system, bayalarmmedical.com, 877-522-9633); Life Station ($30/month, lifestation.com, 800-554-4600); Medical Alert ($33/month, medicalalert.com, 800-800-2537); MobileHelp ($30/month, mobilehelpnow.com, 800-992-0616); and Phillips Lifeline ($30/month plus a $50 activation fee, lifelinesys.com, 855-681-5351).

Most of these companies offer discounts if you pay three to 12 months in advance.

For mobile medical alerts only, you should also see GreatCall's Lively Mobile and Wearable (these cost $50 plus a $20 to $35 monthly service fee, greatcall.com, 866-359-5606) and Consumer Cellular's Ally ($150 plus $25 per month, consumercellular.com, 888-345-5509).

KATIE TseThis and That THE SECRET LIFE OF PLANTS

article I have no excuse except lack of inspiration or just plain laziness. But last week I had legitimate reasons. At work we had scheduled not one, not two, not three, not four, not five, not six, but SEVEN meetings! Thank goodness one was postponed and two were canceled. Nevertheless, we had to be ready for all of them, which is why I failed to turn in a new story. This was especially irritating because I actually had a somewhat interesting, or at least "different," idea -- "The Secret Life of Plants!"

Just when I thought I'd exhausted all the weird and cheesy movies from the past, my dad found a truly delicious specimen, this documentary from 1978. I had heard of experiments in which plants were hooked up to lie detector sensors and they were shown to have some mind-reading capabilities. So when Dad told me this was part of the film, I simply had to see it for myself. Unfortunately, it took a long time, with a lot of footage of molten lava and overly dramatic music before we even arrived at the part that included narration. (By the way, I apologize if I get any information wrong in my retelling of the film. It's been a while since I watched it, and since it's fairly long, I don't want to see it again

Also preceding the lie detector segment was a whole piece on a scientist in India around the turn of the last century who proposed the theory that plants experience human emotions. That was fine and good, but the film totally ruined it by having still photography embellished with the curly-cue motif that was popular in the 70's. The whole thing lost all credibility with me at that point, but I couldn't tear myself away.

At last we arrived at the lie detector portion! An investigator for the FBI became interested in plants' abilities to read minds and human intentions, such as whether or not a person was actually going to water them, or if they were just holding a watering can to trick the plant. In this segment, the researcher had the plant hooked up to a polygraph machine in one room, and he had a small beaker of brine shrimp poised over a pan of boiling water in another room. At a random time later that night, not known to the investigator,

Most weeks when I don't have a new the beaker would be tipped over and the shrimp would be released to their deaths in the boiling water below. In order to remove any interference that his own thoughts and emotions had on the experiment, the researcher left the building and drove several blocks away. Interestingly, the plant's response spiked at exactly the time the shrimp perished, suggesting that it was keenly aware of the suffering of other life forms

Other interesting parts of the film included a program, in what was then the USSR, in which the plants themselves operated the facility in which they were being raised, controlling the amount of light, air circulation, and watering they received. I think I recall another part in which a Japanese scientist hooked up his plants to a microphone and made recordings of their "speech." His wife was working on teaching their succulents Japanese. There was also a primitive African tribe that claimed that the star Sirius has a sister star, invisible to the naked eye, that orbits every 50 years. Scientists have proven this to be the case. What it has to do with plants, I'm not sure, but it was interesting.

But without a doubt, the ultimate, cheesiest climax of the film was --wait for it-- the interpretive dancer! Yes, some poor girl donned a leotard and fluttered around in an urban vegetable garden, then finished by leaping and bounding through a verdant park. The 70's were weird indeed...

Well, I could tell you much more about "The Secret Life of Plants," since the movie was over 2 hours long, but my column is not over 2 pages long. A lot of the film was taken up with time lapse photography, strange were many instances when I thought the film was ending, only to have it continue with some additional narration or plant footage. I forced myself to wait it out, even to the credits, which, too, proved to be cheesy as well. The whole thing wrapped up with a sappy song in which a woman sings "Oh, I wish that I could come back as a flower..." I me to a whole new collection of campy films from the 70's. I plan to enthrall you with "Empire of the Ants," a gem from 1977 with Joan Collins vs. giant, radioactive ants! That is, unless they schedule another 7 meetings at work.

In most of the United States today, good drinking water is more-or-less taken for granted. But in much of the developing world, safe drinking water cannot be taken for granted. Though there are many things in the water around the world that can get us sick, the three major health risks to humans found in water are Protozoa, Viruses, and Pathogens. Each one of those categories of water-borne organisms presents their own unique health hazards.

Of these, Giardia and Cryptosporidium are the most common both which pose serious health risks. An infection with these protozoans may cause chronic digestion problems which lead to malnutrition.

FIRE IS BEST, BUT NOT ALWAYS

In the United States, most campers assume water should be boiled for a period of ten minutes, before drinking, just to be safe. In some countries, however, the ability to boil water has proven to be a major obstacle, in large part because of a lack of firewood. Research shows all pathogens in the water are dead when the water reaches around 170 degrees F. (or about 75 degrees C), so, in fact, simply bringing the water to a boil is sufficient.

But what if you simply cannot, or don't deem it wise, make a fire to purify your water? Is there an alternative?

According to various international agencies, such as EAWAG (Swiss Federal Institute of Environmental Science and Technology) and SANDEC (Department of Water Sanitation in Developing Countries), clear plastic water bottles can serve a valuable role in disinfecting SODIS

This is referred to as SODIS, for SOlar water DISinfection. So how does it work exactly? The effectiveness of SODIS takes advantage of the suns UV rays and the process of pasteurization. This method is practiced in India, for example. Here are the steps.

Limitations of SODIS

During winter, when the sun is lower in the horizon, the days are shorter and air is cooler, SODIS will take longer to work than during the summer. Areas in developing countries, between 35 degrees north latitude and 35 degrees south latitude, are ideal for the use of SODIS.

During days of continuous rainfall, SODIS does not perform satisfactorily. Rainwater harvesting or recommended during these days Standing bottles up does not work well. For maximum effectiveness, you want to lay the bottles on their side and you don't want water deeper than ten centimeters for ideal UV penetration.

Advantages of using SODIS

In the aftermath of an emergency where you must purify water, you're not drawing attention to your location if you don't have a fire, and this may be critically important. You won't need to expend the energy of searching for fire wood.

There is quite a bit of science behind SODIS, far beyond the scope of this article. For this Select a clear PET plastic bottle, free interested, more information can be found at

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

ALL MY FRIENDS ARE GETTING OLD

Getting old seems to be a long and slow process. The longer it goes the older you get.

A sharp difference exists between being young and being old. You have to get old to really understand the difference because when you are young you do not have enough time to think. That's the problem with young people today. So many things to do and so much technology they do not have any time left over to think.

Those young whippersnappers. There is a huge difference between being young and being old.

When you are young, you enjoy having lots of

When you are old, you enjoy remembering all the fun you had when you were young.

The best thing about being old and remembering those good old days is that you can exaggerate about how good they really were. Even when you are exaggerating with friends that shared the same fun, they go along with you.

Whether it is the absence of memory or just wanting to enjoy fun to its fullest extent, I do not

As my friends and I were talking about the good old days, I happened to notice wrinkles on their faces. I did not say anything at the time, but they sure looked old to me. Also, I did not quite remember how grey their hair was when we were

When I was young and having all that fun, I never gave a thought about how young I was or that I was getting older. My whole focus was on the fun element of life and I thought that would carry me through the rest of my life.

I remember my 20th birthday very well. I was celebrating getting out of those teenage years and becoming an adult. For some reason I thought you became an adult at 20. Little did I know that it takes many years to become an adult and some do not really make it. I simply assume that the older you get, the more fun you can have. Boy, was I ever surprised!

Celebrating the good old days is quite remarkable. Because in it all, I noticed my friends were getting older. One of my friends repeated a story three times and not to embarrass him, I laughed all three times.

After the meeting and driving home, I began to think about myself. Am I as old as they look?

I was afraid to look in the mirror when I got home because I did not know who would be staring I didn't really think I was getting old until a few back at me. Whoever invented mirrors ought to be weeks ago I was visiting with some friends from shot and then sent to the moon. A mirror never high school. You know those old high school tells you the correct story and never tells you how friends that you had fun with when you were old you really are. It just makes a funny face at you. young enough to have fun? And oh boy, what fun My friends may be getting old, but I have put my foot down and I have refused to get old.

One friend was using a cane and I did not have the heart to ask him why he was using a cane. He hobbled around and I am not sure if he hurt himself or if he was just getting too old to walk on

I must admit there are some days that I feel old, whatever that means. Some days I am a little slower than I was the day before. Overall, I am not as old as some of my friends look.

There is an old saying that says you are only as old as you feel, and I'm not sure what old feels like. I would like to ask my wife, but you know the trouble I would be in then!

I did enjoy my visit with those friends, but it did start me thinking about things I have never thought about before. Someone said that the 70 is the new 20. I will keep that in mind when I hit that magical mark called 70.

When I got home, I shared some of my thoughts with the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage who just listen very patiently. I went on and on about now old my friends looked.

When I settled back in my chair and sipped some coffee, she looked at me and said something that rather startled me. "I wonder," she said rather thoughtfully, "if your friends are saying the same thing about you!"

That was a thought stopper for sure. What if they were? What if I looked old to them?

Is it really that bad to get old? I thought about that for a moment and then realized if you stop getting older, you're dead.

"I have been young," David said rather thoughtfully, "and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread" (Psalm 37:25).

The one I like is, "They shall still bring forth fruit in old age; they shall be fat and flourishing" (Psalm 92:14). This one fits me to a T.

Not only are my friends getting old, but I'm getting old and my goal is to get as old as I possibly

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

WHEN DUTY CALLS: NAVIGATING THE SANDWICH GENERATION WITH EASE

The average age of parents raising children in the US continues to rise, leaving many middle-aged Americans in a category commonly referred to as the the "sandwich" generation.

This growing population of professionals are often still raising kids at home when they become responsible for the care of their own aging parents. The stress and financial strain of managing the affairs of both children and parents can easily become overwhelming. The following tips, however, can help make this challenging stage of life manageable if not more enjoyable.

Assess the Financial Situation. Taking time to thoroughly understand the financial picture for your own household is imperative as you step into a role of responsibility for your aging parents. Prepare for the inevitable and avoid surprises by working with a professional to consider how your role in the care of your parent will affect the plans you are making for your family's financial future. You'll want a comprehensive planning process that ensures your legal, financial and insurance needs are covered appropriately.

Plan Ahead. Benjamin Franklin famously said, hoping for the best. As you move through helping your

• Living will - expresses your wishes for end of life

• Will - carries out your wishes in the event of your

• Kids Protection Plan - designates a legal guardian for your minor children in the event of your incapacitation Pay Attention to Red Flags. Even if your aging parent is still quite capable, work together to assess their financial situation carefully and be on the lookout for signs that anything is falling through the cracks. Common red flags are:

• Frequent calls from creditors

• Forgetfulness when it comes to bills and deadlines • Unopened mail

Utilize professional legal and financial support when necessary and communicate clearly so everyone knows who is responsible for what.

Practice Good Self Care. Stress is one of the most common consequences of caring for two generations at once. Balancing the responsibilities of raising children and caring for aging parents with relaxation and play is vital over the long-haul. Remember that adequate rest and good nutrition will provide you with the extra energy you'll need when times get tough. Most importantly, remember that you don't have to do it alone! Establish a relationship with trusted advisors who are ready to assist you when duty calls.

For example, if you schedule a Family Legacy Planning Session with us, we'll review your current financial situation in light of your future responsibilities. With our assistance, you'll gain the confidence of knowing you're making the most empowered, informed and educated legal and financial decisions for yourself and the ones you love. Food Fights & Culture Wars: A Secret History of Taste by Tom Nealon Revolution! Conflict! Gluttony! The gloriously illustrated history of food, including mythical origin stories, unusual recipes and more!In this eclectic book of food history, Tom Nealon takes on such overlooked themes as carp and the Crusades, brown sauce and Byron, and chillies and cannibalism, and suggests that hunger and taste are the twin forces that secretly defined the course of civilization. Through war and plague, revolution and migration, people have always had to eat. What and how they ate provoked culinary upheaval around the world as ingredients were traded and fought over, and populations desperately walked the line between satiety and starvation. Parallel to the history books, a second, more obscure history was also being recorded in the cookbooks of the time, which charted the evolution of meals and the transmission of ingredients around the world. Food Fights and Culture Wars: A Secret History of Taste explores the mysteries at the intersection of food and society, and attempts to make sense of the curious area between fact and fiction.Beautifully illustrated with material from the collection of the British Library, this wide-ranging book addresses some of the fascinating, forgotten stories conspiracies and controversies, the author meditates utterly convincing and surprising to the end.Winner on the connections between the French Revolution and table settings, food thickness and colonialism, First Novel, and the Edgar Award for Best First Novel and lemonade and the Black Plague.120 full color illustrations throughout.

is far too expensive. American spend $3.3 trillion a year on health care, which is 50 % to 100% For our money, we get some of the world's most and other serious illnesses. But overall, U.S. health care is relatively mediocre, producing shorter life afford and not? Or is it like education, electricity, or precedes "care."

Our health care system has a fundamental flaw:it police and fire protection-basic necessities that govt should ensure that everyone gets? We can't decide. Our system is glunky,free market -socialist hybrid higher per capita than in other developed nations. that ties coverage to employment ,age, and income, with 10's of millions of people falling through the sophisticated treatment of cancer, heart disease, gaps. Meanwhile doctors,hospitals,insurers,drug companies, medical device makers, and malpractice lawyers strive to make as much money possible expendency, higher infant mortality and worse tending to the sick. The average hip replacement in health overall than the systems in such countries as the U.S. cost $40,000 in Spain $8,000.In the U.S. an the UK, Switzerland, Canada, Australia and Sweden. angiogram is $914, in Canada it's $35. Lipitor cost Ryancare won't fix a broken system; Obamacare $124 a month here and $6 in New Zealand. This is didn't either. Both were conceived as patches on an the elephant in the room. To address it, and make absurdly complex Rub Goldberg machine assembled health care truly available to all, would require radical over 75 years of haphazard decisions. Studies have change. But too many people and companies have a found the 34% of the immense cost of our system is vested interest in a health care system that's the most simple wasted, with no benefit to patients. Is health expensive and infant in the civilized world. So that is care a commodity like any other, which you can either what we'll continue to have, no matter whose name

WITH TSA, INDIGNITY SECURITY'S PRICE

It was probably worse for the Transportation Security Administration officer than it was for me.

Maybe I'd better explain. I recently had the misfortune of experiencing the TSA's recently enhanced pat-down procedure.

According to ABC News, you see, an audit by the Department of Homeland Security determined that TSA officers failed 95 percent of airport security tests in which undercover agents snuck mock explosives and banned weapons right by them.

As a result, the TSA modified its screening procedures. Officers used to have five pat-down types to choose from - five degrees of thoroughness, in a manner of speaking - but now they have

And, boy, is it invasive.

As I attempted to board a flight in San Antonio, Texas, my computer bag was flagged by the X-ray machine. The TSA officers pulled me aside for "special screening."

Three officers rooted through my computer and carry-on bags like crack addicts looking for

A fourth snapped on a fresh pair of white plastic gloves and began working me over like I was a side of Kobe beef.

I tried to maintain my composure, but "no means no" had zero effect. "Don't touch my junk" fell on equally deaf ears.

Now, I can empathize with the poor fellow who was doing my screening. It's not his fault that religious fanatics are driving cars into innocent crowds, shooting co-workers at Christmas parties and attempting to hide explosives in their skivvies so they can blow our planes out of the sky. But how do I, a freckle-faced fellow with a hint of Jameson on his breath - I don't enjoy flying and the hooch calms me - fit the profile of the fanatics hoping to commit these horrific acts? Neither do the little old grannies or nuns or countless other people who must now go through overly invasive pat-downs when their baggage sets off the X-ray machine. I understand the process is even worse for women. Because they have more undergarments - and more places to conceal explosives - they're being patted down in a manner that used to require dinner and a show.

In a saner world, we would make a couple of key changes to end this pat-down madness.

First, we could modernize the dated technology most airports are still using. "The machines the TSA is using at Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport to scan carry-ons at checkpoints are nearly a decade old, and the practice of X-raying a bag goes back far longer," reports CBS News.

Three-dimensional CT scanning technology, commonly used in the medical industry, "can detect explosives in laptops, liquids and gels, which means the days of having to take things out of your carry-on bag could be numbered," says CBS News. So why aren't we using it?

Second, why aren't we using better screening processes as practiced in Israel?

Despite considerable threats, Israel boasts some of the safest airports in the world - without groping millions of innocent people.

Here's why: Israel's security people are highly trained. They conduct multiple checkpoints and screenings before you enter the gate. And they profile.

Profiling does not mean "stereotyping by skin color or nationality," either. It means that highly skilled agents are continuously assessing behavior and any oddities. These processes are extremely

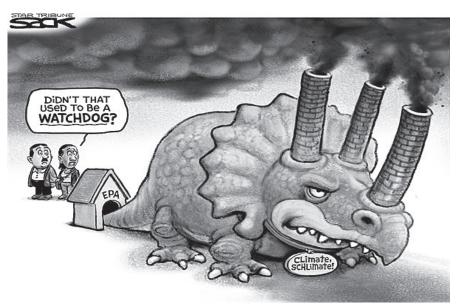

Why are we afraid to do something that sensible?

Because we're afraid of offending people who keep telling us they want to blow our planes out of the sky?

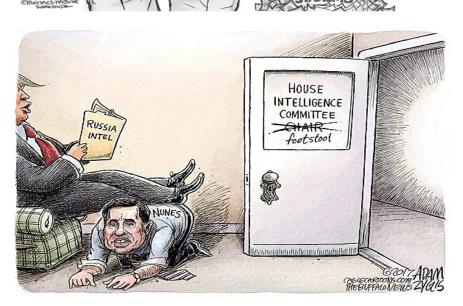

All I know is that the next time you fly, there's one thing you'd better be prepared to leave at home.

Your dignity.

TRUMP BOOSTS CABLE'S FORTUNES

During the campaign, Donald Trump famously conceded that

If you've been watching TV or on social media, you've heard he gets much of his information about world affairs from "the shows." Incredibly, the impact made on Trump's thinking by what he sees on television is even more profound now that he's the leader of the free world.

The latest example was a gem: Trump made a direct appeal to his millions of Twitter followers that they watch a weekend show on Fox News Channel hosted by Jeanine Pirro. Hours later, Pirro began her program by demanding that House Speaker Paul Ryan resign over his botched handling of the health care bill.

It's one thing to glean facts from cable programs, it's quite another to use them to send a political message or float a trial balloon. For what it's worth, the White House insists Trump had no idea what Pirro was intending to say. You be the judge. Then there was Trump's explanation for why he claimed Barack Obama ordered wiretaps at Trump Tower. "All we did was quote a certain very talented legal mind," said Trump, "who was the one responsible for saying that on television." The reference was to a commentator, Andrew Napolitano, whom the president had seen on Fox News Channel. The whole thing was so ludicrous that Fox refuted Napolitano's claims and promptly suspended him. Trump is not alone in his fascination with cable news: ratings since he took office are percent, and CNN is up 11 percent. MSNBC's jump was the largest, year-to-year, in cable-TV history. CNN, meanwhile, up dramatically. In the first quarter of this year, FNC is up 28 percent; MSNBC is up 51 had its most-watched quarter in 14 years. And Fox? Well, it achieved its biggest quarterly increase in the channel's history, dating back to 1996. What are we to make of this? For one thing, the daily drama of a flailing presidency makes good theater. Beyond that, the channel with closest ties to the party out of power usually gains viewers—which is why Fox profited handsomely during the Obama years, and why MSNBC is now a magnet for Democrats frustrated by Trump. Rachel Maddow's highly promoted but underwhelming program in which she

"revealed" two pages of a Trump tax return drew her largest audience ever: 4.2 million. It helped catapult Maddow into cable's Top 10 for the first time, but older viewers probably found it reminiscent of Geraldo Rivera's live examination in 1986 of Al Capone's empty Speaking of relating to older viewers, the most engaging discussions of Trump's affairs are taking place on Don Lemon's CNN program. The semi-regulars are none other than Carl Bernstein, the Washington Post's ace Watergate reporter, and Nixon's Watergate counsel, the remarkably well-preserved and articulate John Dean. Some nights they are joined by the Post's legendary know-it-all Sally Quinn.

Also worthy in covering DC's disarray is Brian Williams' nightly series on MSNBC. Void of the constant whining that spoils the efforts of Maddow and Lawrence O'Donnell, Williams does a sharp, no nonsense examination of events, with enlightened guests. Give Trump credit: he saved Williams' career. NBC had benched Williams for making false boasts about his coverage of dramatic events, but then gradually allowed him back on cable during the 2016 campaign. Now he's MSNBC's most solid citizen. As for Fox, its diehards, led by Sean Hannity, continue to blast Trump's critics and defend even his most egregious misstatements. But elsewhere on FNC, anchors such as Shepard Smith are becoming bolder in taking the new president to task. Even more surprising was a FNC "town hall" recently in North Carolina, hosted by Martha MacCallum. Unlike previous FNC events in which the questions seemed carefully screened to protect Trump, this program featured an articulate audience of Trump critics.

Despite the example set by the president, none of us should rely too heavily on cable channels for hard news. Moreover, we must avoid Trump's mistake of quoting the opinions offered as matters of fact.

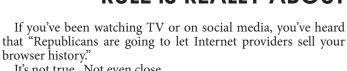

That said, it's hard to beat cable-TV news these days for prime-time drama and

WHAT THE FCC PRIVACY RULE IS REALLY ABOUT

PHIL KERPEN

It's not true. Not even close. What's really happening is that a corrupt Google power grab from the Obama administration is being overturned. Here's the real history. The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) until 2015 was the cop on the beat for Internet search, advertising networks, and social media companies. That all changed when the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) voted on a 3-2 party-line vote to adopt Barack Obama's plan to regulate the Internet like a public privacy, data security, and consumer protection broadly. The FTC had a well-developed framework that treated all the players the same way – Internet Service Providers (ISPs),

That vote pre-empted the FTC's jurisdiction and stripped Internet users of consumer protections - deliberately creating a vacuum which could then be used to shift the focus of the privacy debate to ISPs, taking the heat off Google, which has vastly more access to personal data.

The FCC took this party-line action despite warnings from the FTC that it would no longer be able to protect consumers as it had in over 100 privacy and data security cases and 150 spam and spyware cases. FTC Commissioner Maureen Ohlhausen warned that "economists (and common sense) tell us that if different sets of rules govern competitors, companies subject to the more onerous or unpredictable regime are disadvantaged compared to those outside that regime." That's precisely what happened as Google – which had an astonishing 250 personnel rotate into the Obama administration – used its stroke to hobble competitors.

Under the proposed FCC regulations, ISPs with limited market share and limited ability to collect user information would be subject to heavy-handed regulation effectively prohibiting running ads without a prior opt-in, while edge providers that have dominant market share and vast databases of user information are exempt.

The FCC claimed ISPs are uniquely situated to collect user information, but the best available data shows otherwise. Steven Englehardt and Arvind Narayanan of Princeton University found that 61 percent of the top million sites on the web use Google Analytics.

The FCC claim that ISPs are uniquely situated to collect and use user information reflects a basic misunderstanding of how the Internet works.

The Institute for Information Security & Privacy at Georgia Tech concluded that ISPs are highly limited in their ability to collect user information because the average Internet user has more than six different devices, encryption is pervasive and employed by all 10 of the largest websites and 42 of the top 50, and users increasingly decline to use DNS services offered by their ISPs. They found companies like Google have far more access to user information.

As Ajit Pai observed in his dissent: "due to the FCC's action today, those who have more insight into consumer behavior (edge providers) will be subject to more lenient regulation than those who have less insight (ISPs)."

Pai continued, "when you get past the headlines, slogans, and self-congratulations, this is the reality that Americans should remember: nothing in these rules will stop edge providers from harvesting and monetizing your data, whether it's the websites you visit or the YouTube videos you watch or the emails you send or the search terms you enter on any of your devices."

Under the Democratic rules, ISPs can use personal data to tailor advertising or make you special offers - but they need to buy the data from Google first. That's crazy.

The vote in Congress wasn't about whether privacy should be protected, but rather who should do the protecting – and whether there should be a level playing field or a sweetheart deal for Google; it's unfortunate that so many "real" news organizations bought into the Obama Administration spin instead of checking the facts.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: AUDREY D. ANDERSON CASE NO. 17STPB02496

consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of AUDREY D. ANDERSON. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by DAVID L. ANDERSON in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that DAVID L. ANDERSON be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The WILL and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act with limited authority. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 04/25/17 at 8:30AM in Dept. 99 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250.
