COUNCIL SET TO DISCUSS RENT CONTROL/ STABILIZATION IN SIERRA MADRE

On Tuesday, the Sierra Madre City Council discuss the subject of Rent Control/Stabilization for the first time in at least 15 years, perhaps the first time ever.

In response to request from citizens, Former Mayor John Harabedian agreed to bring the subject before the full council. In preparation for the meeting, city staff prepared a thorough preliminary report on the matter. You can read the full text on the city's website by going to: http://cityofsierramadre.com. The matter has already become a controversial one with letters for (http://mtnviewsnews.com/v11/ htm/n22/p19.htm) and against such controls. (See LETTER TO THE EDITOR - Page B7 of this edition).

Excerpts from the Staff Report:

Rent Control or rent stabilization is a collection of laws that restrict the rents a landlord can charge and limits the reasons for eviction. Rent stabilization is not a state law because it is considered a local issue. Rent stabilization is a law passed by cities where the supply of housing is limited resulting in increased rents. A total of 15 California cities provide some form of rent control stabilization. In Southern California those cities include Beverly Hills, Los Angeles, Palm Springs, Santa Monica, Thousand Oaks and West Hollywood... Rent control is typically only necessary where the vacancy rate in the area is below 5%. The vacancy rate measures the overall housing availability in a community and is often a good indicator of how efficiently for-sale and rental housing units are meeting the current demand for housing. A lower vacancy rate can indicate that households are having difficulty finding affordable housing, which can lead to overcrowding and/or overpayment. A particularly tight housing market with insufficient vacant units for normal mobility may also lead to high competition for units, placing upward pressure on rents and for-sale housing prices.

A vacancy rate of about 5% for rental housing is generally consider healthy and suggests that there is a balance between supply and demand for housing. According to the Department of Finance demand for housing. According to the Department of Finance Population and Housing Estimates, residential vacancy rates for Sierra Madre is at 6.4% as of January 1, 2017, indicating a healthy balance between supply and demand for housing. In comparison, Table B below shows the vacancy rates in nearby San Gabriel Valley Cities; and Table C shows the distribution of owner occupied housing to renter occupied housing units.

Not all rental housing within rent-controlled cities is subject to rent control. Under state law in California, property that was issued a certificate of occupancy after February 1, 1995 is exempt from rent control. State law also exempts tenancies for single-family homes, if the tenancy began after January 1, 1996. Also, most cities exempt new construction built after the date of the ordinance, and owneroccupied buildings with four (or sometimes three or two) units. Tenancy rent control -The most common form of rent control is where rents are initially freely negotiable but there is a limit on the amount of rent increase.

PORTANTINO JOINS SENATE PRESIDENT DE LEÓN TO INCREASE CAL GRANTS FOR COMMUNITY COLLEGE STUDENTS

Sacramento, CA - On Tuesday, May 30, Anthony J. Portantino (D - La Cañada Flintridge) joined Senate Pro Tem Kevin De León in presenting SB 539 on the Senate floor. The bill will provide additional support to high-striving community college students. SB 539 passed the Senate floor with overwhelming support and is now headed to the State Assembly.

SB 539 establishes the Community College Completion Incentive Grant (CCIG), which will provide an additional $4,000 in financial aid to California Community College students receiving the existing Full-Time Student Success Grant, if they complete 15 units. Transportation costs, in particular often prove to be prohibitive for struggling college students.

"As a colleague and the Chair of Budget Subcommittee on Education, I am proud to be a joint author on SB 539 and work closely with Pro Tem De León. In order to make college affordable, not only tuition, but non-tuition costs, such as textbooks, transportation, food, and housing have to be addressed. Not being able to afford the total cost of attendance can be a major obstacle and hinder students' ability to succeed in class and meet their academic goals. This piece of legislation is a fresh approach to ensuring college affordability and student success. I look forward to continuing to work with our Pro Tem to help our California students," commented Portantino.

Sen. Portantino represents nearly 930,000 people in the 25th Senate District, which includes Altadena, Atwater Village, Bradbury, Burbank, Claremont, Duarte, Glendale, Glendora, La Cañada Flintridge, La Crescenta, Lake View Terrace, La Verne, Monrovia, Montrose, Pasadena, San Dimas, San Marino, Shadow Hills, Sierra Madre, South Pasadena, Sunland-Tujunga, and Upland.

Rent stabilization Board

Most jurisdictions with a rent stabilization policy enact a rent stabilization or rent advisory board. The purpose of a rent stabilization board is to regulate residential rent increases and to protect tenants from unwarranted rent increases and to act as a mediation board to resolve renter disputes. If the City of Sierra Madre pursued a rent control policy, the City would need to appoint a rent stabilization board.

Housing Department

A city housing department typically administers rent stabilization policies for the local jurisdiction. Typical programs administered through a housing department include Section 8 Housing (authorizes the payment of rental housing assistance to private landlords), fair housing programs (the right to live where you choose without fear of discrimination), inclusionary housing (requires that a percentage of all newly constructed residential units be sold or rented to low and moderate income households), city subsidized affordable housing programs, and first time homebuyer programs.

PLANNING COMMISSION TO CONSIDER AMENDMENTS TO THE R-3 ZONE (MULTIPLE FAMILY RESIDENTIAL), R-1 ZONE (ONE FAMILY RESIDENTIAL), R-C ZONE (RESIDENTIAL CANYON), VARIANCES AND CONDITIONAL USE PERMITS ORDINANCE, SIGNS ORDINANCE, AND ELIMINATION OF THE CONDOMINIUM AND APARTMENT PROJECTS ORDINANCE

The Planning Commission will hold a public hearing to consider recommending adoption to the City Council of an ordinance amending Chapter 17.28 R-3 Zone (Multiple-Family Residential), Chapter 17.20 R-1 Zone (One Family Residential), Chapter 17.30 R-C Zone (Residential Canyon), Chapter 17.60 Variances and Conditional Use Permits, and Chapter 17.72 Signs. The purpose of the amendments is to revise the development standards of the R-3 Zone Ordinance which necessitates various amendments to the other above mentioned ordinances for consistency of zoning requirements across ordinances. The Planning Commission will also consider deleting Chapter 17.76 Condominium and Apartment Projects since these types of development are already subject to the requirements of the R-3 Zone Ordinance. Following a Planning Commission recommendation for approval, the proposed text amendment will be forwarded to the City Council for consideration.

The Planning Commission meeting will be held on June 15, 2017, at 7:00 p.m., in the City Council Chambers at the Sierra Madre City Hall located at 232 West Sierra Madre Blvd. The meeting is open to the public and there will be opportunities to make comments. Information regarding the draft amendments will be available on Thursday, June 8th, at 5:30 PM on the Planning and Community Preservation page on the City's website at www.cityofsierramadre.com, at the Planning and Community Preservation Department counter at City Hall, and at the City's Library.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

"Summer means happy times and good sunshine. It Disneyland and we had coupons – A through E - for means going to the beach, going to Disneyland, having fun." Brian Wilson

"Disneyland is a work of love. We didn't go into Disneyland just with the idea of making money." Walt

Summer is, indeed, here, and our Texas girls, daughter, Crissy, and granddaughters Jessie and Emily, 9 and 7 respectively, have finally arrived. We have been planning their trip to California for what feels like years and it's utterly delightful to have them here in our clutches where we can take them all the places we like to go, surround them with cousins they've never met, and have them smile one million times while somebody else takes their picture....well, actually, that someone is usually me... and here is one of the pictures I've taken.

They arrived last Thursday and will be here till next Saturday, which is way too short a visit, but Vacation Bible School at Wylie First Baptist starts on Monday the 12th. They're registered, the shirts are bought and they'll be there! We headed to P F Chang's in Victoria Gardens off the 15 as soon as they landed at Ontario for the traditional lunch...our family's tradition... whenever anybody gets off a plane, we head immediately for P F Chang's for steamed dumplings, kung pao shrimp, crispy honey shrimp, a glass of wine, pictures with the big horse in front, and to schedule plans. Friday we went to see "Captain Underpants" which was an absolute hoot. We all loved it, laughed ourselves silly then went to dinner with Aunt Leah and Uncle Chuck for another fabulous time.

Saturday was pool party at Aunt Patti's and Uncle Dave's and cousins, uncles, aunts, great-uncles and all sorts of folks from two year old Brady to 91 year old Uncle Jay had a great time swimming, eating hamburgers, hot dogs, chicken, fruit and potato salad. Sunday after church was a repeat of Saturday and Monday they're all off to KidSpace and John and I are regrouping. Regrouping means a nap.

Some weeks ago, Emily, who is 7 and just successfully the Nazarene – exited First Grade with an award for reading, called us just down the road on Sierra Madre Blvd. to tell us what she had in mind for her visit. I quote, and LegoLand and everywhere!" We're planning a trip a Bag to the beach on Wednesday and tomorrow is the long awaited, greatly anticipated trip to Disneyland. John and I used to take the kids, when they were little to playwrighted the rides. "A" tickets being for boring stuff and all the good/scary rides were "E's". I also don't remember it costing a lot. Of course, I could be confused, but I can see us all now riding the Mad Hatter's Teacups, Space Mountain, Peter Pan, Mr. Toad's Wild Ride, Pirates of the Caribbean and, of course, Small World, without having to take out a second on the house.

Talking over coffee with Aunt Patti, who is taking Crissy and the girls to Disneyland tomorrow, with big cousins, Nicole, Blake and Luke who all have annual passes, she casually dropped the information that it will be "just $318.00 to get in but then there will be food and drinks, too." You know that feeling when the world sort of goes dark and you think you might faint? I felt that. $318.00? Seriously? Yep! But they will have an unforgettable time and John and I will, too, as we won't be going!

Walt said he didn't go into Disneyland with the idea of making money, but I think something's changed there at the Happiest Place On Earth. So we dug down deep in our pockets, looked under the couch cushions, told each other we're pathetically out of date and are sending the girls off tomorrow loaded with enough dough to get in, ride everything, eat their way through the entire Magic Kingdom and buy a few dozen souvenirs. Hey! You don't get to Disneyland every day, especially if you live in Texas!

Crayons and coloring books, puzzles, damp bathing suits and very small pieces of clothing are all over the place, but we couldn't be happier. Those of you out there who are looking forward to a visit from small people, just remember to enjoy every moment and don't worry about anything else. "It's a Small World after all!"

Police Chief Suspends Firearm Waiver Letters

In the wake of a Pasadena police officer being under investigation by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF) Pasadena Police Chief Phillip Sanchez announced Thursday that he is temporarily suspending the Police Department's issuance of waiver or authorization letters to officers for their use in firearm purchases.

Vasken Gourdikian home Feb. 16 seizing 57 firearms, including "off-roster" guns that can only be purchased with an authorization letter according to news reports.

Tip of the Week

Bear Safety - When the Weather Warms Up, the Bears Return to the Foothills

The Monrovia Police Department would like to remind the public to act responsibly when in bear territory. Spring is the time of year when California's black bears emerge from their winter dens in search of food. Because bears are attracted to anything edible or smelly, their search often leads them into residential neighborhoods, where trash and food is readily available. Throughout spring and summer, the California Department of Fish and Wildlife receive many calls when bears break into homes and rummage through trash bins. These bears are often labeled "nuisance" bears, but in reality they are just doing what comes naturally to them - foraging for food.

Tips for Bear-Proofing Your Home

Bears have keen noses and can smell an easy meal from miles away. They can easily tear a front door off its hinges if they smell food left out on the kitchen counter. To protect your family and property from bear break-ins, follow these simple tips:

• Purchase and properly use a bear-proof garbage container.

Wait to put trash out until the morning of collection day. • Don't leave trash, groceries, or animal feed in your car.

· Keep garbage cans clean and deodorize them with bleach or

• Keep barbecue grills clean and stored in a garage or shed when not in use.

• Only provide bird feeders during November through March, and make them inaccessible to bears.

• Don't leave any scented products outside, even non-food items such as suntan lotion, insect repellent, soap

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

A FEW FUN FACTS ABOUT OUR FELLOW BEINGS

Just when I think I've heard it all regarding the remarkable navigation skills not only to its brain's non-human creatures we share this planet with, I come across yet another new interesting fact about but also to sensors instilled in the bat's wings how animals survive or why they behave the way they do. This is when I am, yet again reminded of how little I actually know. Few things stimulate my mind as much as learning the how's and why's pertaining to our fellow life forms, and this week I thought I'd share a few fun animal facts that I hope you will find stimulating as well.

For example, did you know that penguins use their feces to create cozy coves in which to breed their young? That's right, when the time comes to lay their eggs, they gather closely together and intentionally deposit their poop within the proximity of their partners in order to melt the ice, so their eggs and subsequent hatchlings will have a nice warm spot to hatch and mature in. Talk about recycling, penguins put us humans to shame in their practice of the adage, "Waste not, want not"!

Another interesting tidbit that I had never before been privy to is one that the average grown man is bound to admire. We all know that snakes that the sound-induced seizures were more are, by nature, active breeders. But did you know that male snakes spend mega calories just doing "the deed"? The fact is, every spring, red-sided garter snakes leave their hibernation burrows to engage in a frenzied jumble of mating, and studies show that this is no easy feat for the males. Indeed, this particular type of male snake spends up to a whopping 18% of his daily energy to ensure his personal mating success.

Male red-sided garter snakes use all that energy to create gelatinous copulatory plugs that they put on the female after they mate, to trap the sperm inside and prevent other males from penetrating and interrupting the process of their own sperm's procreation. Unlike many humans who question paternal identity after the birth of a baby, redsided garter snakes apparently don't have to worry about taking a DNA test to know "who's the daddy" when their hatchlings

And here's a fun fact about bats that I thought was pretty amazing; It's no news to most of us that bats are excellent flutterers, hoverers and dive-bombers. This is quite obvious to anyone who has observed them flitting about in the local skies. Scientists have long known that bats owe most of their incredible aerial agility to echolocation. However, recent research results attribute the bat's ability to sense space through echolocation,

In a relatively recent issue of the journal, Cell Reports, bat wings are described as sporting a unique touch-receptor design. The design consists of tiny sensory cells associated with fine hairs that enable the animal to change the shape of it's wings in a split second, granting them impressive midair maneuverability that modern-day man-made drones would die for, if indeed they were alive to die. Oh the wonders of nature!

Here's one more new-found fact that doesn't exactly fit into the category of fun, but it is interesting, and could help save a senior feline's life. The United Kingdom based charity, International Cat Care recently reached out to veterinary specialists after receiving surprising complaints from cat owners that their feline friends were apparently having seizures in response to highpitched sounds.

A scientific survey of the cats' owners revealed common in older cats, and the most common triggers were crinkling tinfoil, hitting a ceramic bowl with a metal spoon and tapping glass. For all you cat owners out there this may or may not be a prevalent epidemic, but it certainly can't hurt to be cautious and aware.

In my constant quest to learn more about animal behavior and nature's way of working its wonders, I am amazed on a daily basis and I hope you are equally impressed with these off-the-beaten-trail fun facts about our fellow beings. Take the time to enjoy nature and the wildlife it inhabits. Try to spend a short bit of time each day, away from the stresses of rushing traffic and hurried bustling we humans tend to engage in, and sit quietly; simply absorb the peaceful sanctuary of nature and it's ways. Love and let live.

THE JOY OF YOGA RESIST NEGATIVITY

Do you remember (honesty), or satya must be present. the "like attracts principle? It illustrates the that the more energy and thought we put into something, the more it will grow. Also, the longer we are in that place or state of mind, the greater the tendency is to stay there. It becomes comfortable.

This applies to thought patterns and habits, or even optimism and negativity. Gandhi illustrates this point of view eloquently: "Your beliefs become your thoughts, your thoughts become your words, your words become your actions, your actions become your habits, your habits become your values, your values become your destiny." In other words, "like attracts like." So, how then do we change course and step off the flow of negativity?

First, the realization of the power of choice must come into awareness. No one, no circumstance, no external structure has power over our lives and inner peace. Higher values of love, compassion, tolerance, and universal connection with one another are the guiding force by which we soothe fear. To take the fuse out of fear, truthfulness Teacher at Yoga Madre

Second, after becoming aware and acknowledging the feeling of fear or the train of thought of negativity, cultivate the opposite. Optimism and love are the antidotes to overcoming negativity. Even doing this begrudgingly will call upon those higher principles when we act in our higher

This process will lead us into the spirit of openmindedness. This process is one of the core reasons why yoga benefits the world. The world has enough pain and negativity. Yoga cultivates compassion and tolerance -for everyone- and that means everyone! Each one of us is experiencing the human condition together. Any actions I take affect not only others but myself as well by creating my own internal suffering from living in a negative frame of mind. Resist and defeat negativity with hope and a positive attitude.

Knowing all of this, my yoga practice, meditation, and a practice of loving-kindness feel more important than ever.

LOOKING FOR A BEST FRIEND

Prim is a 3-year-old tabby domestic short hair, and has the perfect calm and proper demeanor to fit her name. When visitors come into Mini Manor, Prim politely meows inviting them to meet her. And once she has the attention she seeks, she loves to be petted and rolls over to have gentle lady-like belly rubs. When she is comfortable with her visitor, Prim enjoys sitting in a staff or volunteer lap for one on one attention. She is an affectionate girl and when you look into her bright green eyes, you'll see a lady just waiting to give and receive love. Prim will come after the laser light and feathery toys to play with people. While she gets along fine with the other cats in her area, she just prefers to watch their antics from a distance. Prim is looking for her forever family where her sweet, calm disposition will be appreciated. Her adoption fee is $99 and includes spay surgery, vaccinations, microchip and a free wellness exam at a participating veterinarian. Feel free to call us at (626) 286-1159 for more information on Prim. She currently resides at the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society located at 851 E. #### DERBY ARCADIA. ALMOST PERFECT

The Derby Restaurant in Arcadia is part of a storied history like the racetrack that birthed it. As you shuffle through the restaurant you are taken back in time to an era when horseracing was the sport and Seabiscuit galloped through the Depression. Over the decades interest in the sport you are a Hemingway fan, horseracing and boxing are as American as freedom. The great thing is that you don't have to be a racing fan to enjoy this historic restaurant. The restaurant was made famous by its purchase in 1938 by Hall of Fame Horse Jockey George "The Iceman" Woolf, who rode Seabiscuit, and who wanted a place to gather his friends in the horse racing industry. He was famously known for his cool rides on horses. As other jockeys aggressively moved their mounts a fraction early, he patiently waited and finally unleash a well-timed run that would place his horse's nose on the winning end of the photo. Today the reins of the restaurant fall under the able hands of two young entrepreneurs who have maintained the identity of the restaurant.

There are many exciting items on the menu, and we started dinner with the World Famous Cheese Bread. You know I love "World Famous" and it is enough bread to feed a cavalry. Our appetizer selection was the Crab Cakes, and described on the menu as California Style, but was a little weak.

THE GOOD LIFE

HOW TO HIRE A HOME HELPER

Dear Savvy Senior,

I would like to hire a personal assistant/home helper for my mom to assist with some simple household chores like house keeping, errand running, driving her to the doctor, and keeping her company. But mom doesn't require personal/physical caregiving nor does she require any home medical care. Any tips to help us find someone? Looking for Mom

Dear Looking,

Getting your mom some help at home to handle some of her household chores can make a big difference keeping her independent longer. Here's what you should know, along with some tips to may not have much input into the selection of help you find someone reliable for your mom.

For seniors who could use some help at home – but don't need a caregiving aide for personal care helpers out there that can help make life a little hhcompare. Most home health agencies offer

Most home helpers can assist with any number of things like shopping, running errands, transportation, light house keeping, laundry, meal preparation, arranging services (home Hiring Directly maintenance, lawn care, etc.) and other household chores, along with providing companionship and support. And, if your mom gets to the point she needs personal/physical care like bathing or dressing, they can usually help with this too.

Hiring a home helper through a non-medical home care, or non-medical companion care agency is the easiest, but most expensive option of the two. January is a time for renewal of health insurance, and it was about this time last year when my dentist's receptionist called to cheerily inform me that my health care provider had approved yet another periodontal (gum) surgery. Inspecting my previous surgical site, he remarked on how nicely his last operation turned out. With my mouth pried open I managed a weak "Uh huh." He said next he'd tackle the upper front left quadrant of my mouth. For this, he'd need to harvest tissue from the deep part of my palate, which might be more painful. If you're blissfully ignorant of what these surgeries entail, let me enlighten you. The surgeon "harvests" some nice living tissue from the roof of your mouth, then cuts open your gums and stitches it in like a patch. Yeah, yeah, I thought, listening to his prediction of pain. I'd never had to follow any precautions before. He told to me pick up some vitamin C and zinc supplements, along with frozen peas to lessen the swelling. "Uh

How it works is you pay the company, and they handle everything including assigning appropriately trained and pre-screened staff to care for your mom, and finding a fill-in on days her helper cannot come.

Some of the drawbacks, however, are that you the aide, and the helpers may change or alternate, which can cause a disruption.

To find a home care agency in your area, Google "non-medical home care" followed by the city and state your mom lives in, or you can use Medicare's - there are a bevy of personal assistance/home home health agencies search tool Medicare.gov/ some form of non-medical home care services too. You can also check your local yellow pages under "home healthcare services."

Hiring a personal assistant/home helper on your own is the other option, and it's less expensive. Costs typically range between $10 and $20 per hour. Hiring directly also gives you more control over who you hire so you can choose someone who

ASTRONOMERS FIND PLANET HOTTER THAN MOST STARS

A newly discovered Jupiter-like world is so hot, it's being vaporized by its own star.

With a dayside temperature of more than 7,800 degrees Fahrenheit, KELT-9b is a planet that is hotter than most stars. But its blue A-type star, called KELT-9, is even hotter—in fact, it is probably unraveling the planet through evaporation.

"This is the hottest gas giant planet that has ever been discovered," said Scott Gaudi, astronomy professor at The Ohio State University in Columbus, who led a study on the topic. He worked on this study while on sabbatical at JPL.

KELT-9b is 2.8 times more massive than Jupiter, but only half as dense. Scientists would expect the planet to have a smaller radius, but the extreme radiation from its host star has caused the planet's atmosphere to puff up like a balloon.

Because the planet is tidally locked to its star as our Moon is to Earth—one side of the planet is always facing toward the star, and one side is in perpetual darkness. Molecules such as water, carbon dioxide and methane can't form on the dayside because it is bombarded by too much ultraviolet radiation. The properties of the nightside are still mysterious—molecules may be able to form there, but probably only temporarily.

"Ît's a planet by any of the typical definitions of mass, but its atmosphere is almost certainly unlike any other planet we've ever seen just because of the temperature of its dayside," Gaudi said.

The KELT-9 star is only 300 million years old, which is young in star time. It is more than twice as large, and nearly twice as hot, as our Sun. Given that the planet's atmosphere is constantly blasted with high levels of ultraviolet radiation, the planet may even be shedding a tail of evaporated planetary material like a comet.

The planet is also unusual in that it orbits perpendicular to the spin axis of the star. That would to the plane of our solar system. One "year" on this planet is less than two days.

As I was wallowing in my delusion and enjoying every moment of it, the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage came and said rather sharply, "Are you

I'm not sure if that is really a word or not, but it accurately described my delusional moment at that time. I had no idea what she was talking

'You haven't," she said, "forgotten what day it is, have you?"

I was tempted to say, "Of course not. It's Tuesday." Fortunately, I did not yield to that temptation and just responded with another,

With a disdaining look she said, "You would forget your head if it wasn't attached."

I wouldn't tell her, but I probably would not miss my head if I would forget it. After all, I don't wear a hat.

"Today," she said in a very serene voice, "the two grandchildren are getting awards at school." I'm not quite sure if I forgot or if I was not listening when the instructions came my way. At this point, I was not going to let anybody know, particularly my wife.

"Oh, yes," I said getting up from my chair, "I'm all ready to go. Let's go.'

She gave me one of her classic sarcastic grins and we headed for the door.

Our one granddaughter was graduating from the third grade and the other from the fifth grade. Unfortunately, one was at 8:30 in the morning and the other was it 1 o'clock in the afternoon. It would make sense to have them all at once, but what has sense to do in our world today?

I did not want to complain, after all, it is our grandchildren, but I think the planning could have been just a little bit better than that. After all, sitting in the school cafeteria listening to the award ceremony is about as exciting as it can get. The chairs that we had to sit on were uncomfortable, which was very fortunate for me because I was not tempted to fall asleep during the ceremony. I believe that was done on particularly the third grade, had more children than my grandchildren. They were trying to give awards and recognition to all the children and I was only interested in one, my granddaughter.

I was musing on this for a while and then my companion said, "Look, there she is."

When she said that, out came her cell phone and she began taking pictures of our granddaughter walking up to the stage to get an award. I can't use my cell phone, but she's at liberty to use her cell phone. Where's the fairness in that?

Taking a hint from my wife, I reached for my cell phone only to realize that I was too late and the moment was gone. I glanced over at my wife and all I could see was the big smile on her face and her saying, "I got her picture." All I could do was return her smile and congratulate her on getting the picture.

After each of the award ceremonies my wife and I went forward and she took pictures of me in the grandchildren together which made her rather happy.

All the way home that afternoon, she was giggling and chattering very excitedly. "Her" grandchildren received some awards. According to her, these were very special awards.

I smiled and was tempted to say, "Aren't they my grandchildren too?" Why spoil the moment. She was excited and happy and it was worth my

President and Mrs. Hoover visited often and the home was known as "The Winter White House". It was originally built in 1928 by local businessman, Frank Picard, and the estate included almost 6 acres of land. In 1932, when the Hoovers moved in, they added a children's wing. Word has it that the playroom (accessed by a slide) was designed by family friend, A. A. Milne, the author of "Winnie the Pooh". ## FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

BUSINESS NEWS & TRENDS

ESTATE PLANNING FOR MILITARY FAMILIES

Although Memorial Day just passed, it is important to continue to honor those that have served our country. This time is also a good opportunity for members of the military and their loved ones to consider setting up an - or revising an existing estate plan. Military families need to consider special estate-planning issues that others do not. This is particularly true when one or more family members are deployed overseas. Beyond this, members of the military have access to special benefits and resources. This can become complicated and, for this reason, it is important that you seek special help if you are a military family.

Whether you are just starting out in the military or you are a seasoned veteran, below are some common factors to consider for your estate planning needs.

Factors to Consider

Everyone's estate plan should be customized to the person's particular circumstances. Some factors that should be considered include whether:

- You own real property and, if so, if the real estate is located in different states;
- You are married;
- You have minor children, or children with special needs; You have money set aside in 401(k), IRAs, or thrift savings plans;
- You plan to give to charity; and
- You are moving multiple times across state lines or to different countries.

Estate Planning Necessities

There are many benefits offered to military families that can help with estate planning. These include:

Life insurance - an important part of an estate plan and intended for those who are financially dependent upon you, life insurance is especially important if a member of the military is heading to a combat zone. Active-duty members have access to low-cost life insurance for themselves and loved ones from Service Members' Life Insurance Group. More information can be found on the Department of Veterans Affairs website. When examining your life insurance, work with a trusted lawyer to make sure that the beneficiary designation works the way you expect it to.

Wills and Trusts - a last will and testament to whom and how you want your property distributed, names who will administer your estate and specifies who will care for a minor or special needs child. A trust, on the other hand, is a separate legal entity that can hold property and assets for the benefit of one or more people or entities. For most families, a trust-centered estate plan is a better fit, but a will can still work for some families.

Other benefits for survivors - survivor benefit plans (SBP) are pension-type plans in the form of an annuity that will pay your surviving spouse and children a monthly benefit. Likewise, dependency and indemnity compensation (D&IC) provides a monthly benefit to eligible survivors of servicemembers or veterans (1) who die while on active duty, (2) whose death is due to a service-related disease or injury or (3) who are receiving or entitled to receive VA compensation for service-related disability and are totally disabled.

You Need Special Help

Members of the military often experience frequent moves, have access to lots of government benefits after service, and can be subject to some unusual tax rules. For these reasons, estate planning for military families is more complicated than most.

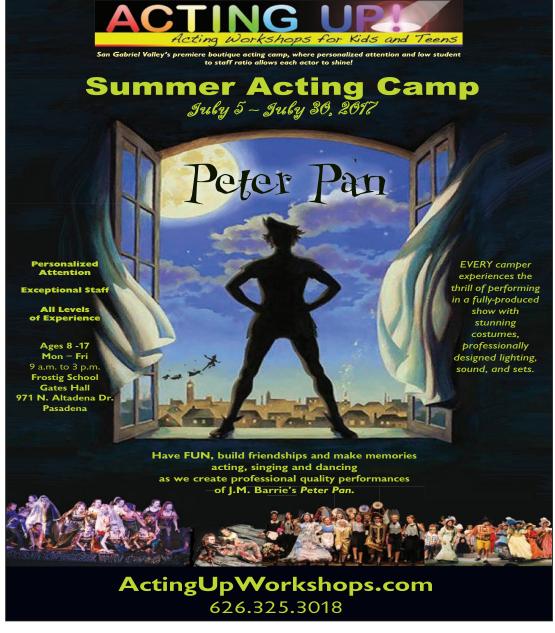

You can expect an estate planning professional to assist you with setting up the following:

- Powers of attorney for limited and general financial matters, as well as health care decisions (there are very helpful when a spouse is deployed);
- Funeral and burial arrangements; Wills and living wills;
- Organ donation;
- Family care plans;
- Life insurance;
- irusts; Estate taxes;
- Survivor benefits; and
- Estate administration and/or probate.

An estate plan has multiple objectives: to provide for your family's financial security, ensure your property is preserved and passed on to your beneficiaries, and determine who will manage your assets upon your death, among others.

WHAT REPUBLICANS ARE IG-NORING ABOUT COMEY'S TESTIMONY

James Comey's sworn Senate testimony basically confirms what anyone with a smidgen of mental cognition has known since day one - that Donald Trump is a toxic narcissist whose animal instinct is to breach America's institutional restraints and enforce personal fealty in the manner of a lawless mob boss.

It's all there in Comey's meticulous statement to the Senate Intelligence Committee about his interactions with Trump. At minimum, it's a damning indictment of Trump's character (or lack thereof). At its worst, it's a road map for Trump's removal. In the words of Philip Allen Lacovara, a former deputy U.S. solicitor general and counsel to the Watergate special prosecutors, "Any experienced prosecutor would see these facts as establishing a prima facie case of obstruction of

According to Comey, his one-on-one dinner with Trump on Jan. 27 was "an effort to have me ask for my job and create some sort of patronage relationship. That concerned me greatly, given the FBI's traditionally independent status in the executive branch."

Comey told the committee that he never felt the need to take notes after speaking with President Bush, and never did that after speaking with President Obama. But he decided to take notes after meeting with President Trump because Comey "was honestly concerned that he might lie about the nature of our meeting." It's an historic moment when a high-ranking career public servant publicly calls the president of the United States a liar.

During that meeting, Trump allegedly sought Comey's "loyalty," but all the former FBI director was willing to offer was his "honesty" and repeatedly refused to play the loyal toady. As he said in his testimony, referring to Trump's attempts to interfere with the Russia probe, "it was important to infect the investigative team."

But Comey paid the price for resisting infection. He was summarily fired. And after lying for a few days about why Comey was fired, Trump told Lester Holt of NBC News - and, subsequently, some Russians visiting the Oval Office - that the firing was indeed done to ease the Russia probe.

Lacovara, the ex-counsel to the Watergate special prosecutors, connects the dots: "Comey's statement lays out a case against the president that consists of a tidy pattern, beginning with the demand for loyalty, the threat to terminate Comey's job, the repeated requests to turn off the investigation into Flynn and the final infliction of career punishment for failing to succumb to the president's requests, all followed by the president's own concession about his motive." That's obstruction of justice, which, according to the federal statutes, requires "corrupt intent."

Naturally, that's not how the senatorial Trumpkins see things. At one point during the hearing today, Idaho's Jim Risch said it was no big deal that Trump wanted to kill the Flynn probe - because Trump didn't specifically order Comey to kill it, he just said he hoped that Comey would let

Risch: "He did not direct you to let it go?"

Comey: "Not in his words, no."

Risch: "Again those words are not an order? He said 'I hope."

Comey: "I took it as a direction. This is the president of the United States. I took it as a direction." Republicans on the committee kept asking: If Trump was abusing your independence so badly, why didn't you stand up to him more forcefully? Which was a hilarious line of inquiry, given the fact that most Republicans have been cowering in a fetal position for the better part of a year, saying and doing nothing about Trump's serial lies, conflicts of interest, and abuses of power.

Trump's lawyer, and most Republicans, are actually telling themselves that Comey's testimony exonerates their leader. They're highlighting the part where Comey says Trump wasn't personally under investigation (as of March, anyway), but ignoring the part where Comey says he refused to say so publicly because Trump might be targeted in the future. Indeed, if Trump wasn't a target before, he's likely to be a target now; Comey told the committee that he's "sure" that special counsel Robert Mueller is looking at Trump for possible obstruction of justice.

Most importantly, Trump's dwindling defenders are ignoring the overall thrust of Comey's the fact that a tinpot autocrat thinks personal loyalty trumps loyalty to the U.S.

Basically, it was the word of a boy scout, who took contemporaneous notes, against the word of a demonstrably serial liar. For the sake of this nation, let's hope the Comey episode can hasten the

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Susan,

I am writing to you about the Letter To The Editor in the June 3, 2017 issue of the Mountain Views News titled "Rent Control In Sierra Madre" sent to you by JB of Sierra Madre.

I have mixed emotions when it comes to the subject of rent control. I know that there is a shortage of rental properties in California and that the demand is greater than the supply which is why rents are increasing. I understand that older people on fixed incomes who have lived in their apartments for years are finding it difficult to pay the increasing rents. However, I believe that the cause of the increasing rents is government imposed Rent Stabilization the very thing JB is supporting.

I am an industrial property manager but I have been managing a small three unit apartment building in Los Angeles for the past 15 years which is subject to the city rent stabilization ordinance. I have seen the building owner's income go down each year under rent control. The cost of maintaining the building goes up each year more than the allowed 3% rent increase. Because the owner knows that each year he will make less money than the year before there is absolutely no incentive for him, or any other apartment owner, to build additional units.

The reason the rents are going up is due to the lack of available units. As each city imposes rent controls fewer units will be built and the problem will get worse as a result of rent control, not better.

If rent controls were removed investors would be able to make a reasonable return on the significant investment of building more apartment units. This would result in a building boom and the number of rental units in the state would skyrocket. Soon the supply would equal or exceed the demand and rents would come down to a fair level.

Still I have some mixed feeling knowing that some will suffer through this process. But I have to weight this against added government control of our lives. New York wants to control soda, salt, and trans-fat sales; Massachusetts requires that all preschoolers brush their teeth after lunch; in many cities children need a license for a lemonade stand.

There are literally hundreds of laws that tell us what we must do or not do when it comes to living our lives. Most are well meaning, but as more and more regulation are created we get closer to becoming automatons who are told by the government how many hours to sleep each day, how many to work, what work we can do, what we can eat and drink, where we can live, what we can wear, how many children we can have, and the list will never end.

Rent control laws are a big step forward towards this socialistic, communal, controlled society of the near future. After rent control there will be price control. If the government can tell a landlord how much he can charge for rent then they can certainly tell Target, Wal-Mart, or Vons what they

There will soon be no incentive for anyone to try to make a better mouse trap. There won't be any more Steve Jobs, Sam Waltons, or Bill Gates. If this is the kind of world JB wants then rent control is a good thing. I believe the long term effects of rent control will be devastating.

Respectfully, Barry Gold Sierra Madre, CA

ENSURING HIGH SCHOOL GRADS ARE EQUIPPED FOR

"I may have to do WHAT to receive my high school diploma?" "Pass a U.S. citizenship exam. The Civics Education Initiative is hoping state legislatures will require high school students in all 50 states to pass the exam in order to graduate. Some states, such as Arizona, have already passed such a law."

"But my high school made me take American history courses, and I got straight A's." "Great for you, but many studies show that many Americans are pathetically ignorant of basic facts about their government and its unique history." "If it becomes a requirement for high school graduation, how will this citizenship test work?"

"You'll have to pass a test on 100 basic facts of U. S. history and civics taken from the United States Citizenship Civics Test — the test all immigrants applying for U.S. citizenship must pass. You'll have to answer at least 60 percent of the questions correctly to pass."

'Can you help me prepare for these questions, sir?"

"Sure, young fellow. What is the Declaration of Independence?"

"It is an amazing document, sir. Thomas Jefferson wrote to King George III, telling him to stuff it. The Declaration said that all men are created equal, that the power of government comes from the people, that people can change the government if they don't like it, and that individuals have unalienable rights, among them life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

"OK, why were the colonists so upset with the Brits that they declared independence?" "Well, sir, this was because of the Stamp Act, the high taxes imposed on every piece of paper they used. This 'taxation without representation' infuriated the colonists and motivated their desire for independence."

"Fascinating. I didn't know that, either, young fellow. OK, what was the Constitutional Convention?"

"Sir, this took place in Philadelphia during the summer of 1787, when 55 delegates from 13 colonies drafted the U.S. Constitution. It established a republic, which grants power to the people, who vote for officials to represent them. The Constitution divided government power among three branches — legislative, judicial and executive — to ensure checks and balances.'

"Hey, that was some good thinking. What does the judicial branch do?"

"Its job is to review and explain the laws and resolve disputes between parties. Most importantly, it is supposed to objectively determine if a law is in accord with the U.S. Constitution."

"OK, what is the First Amendment?

"It is from the Bill of Rights, the first 10 amendments to the Constitution that were designed to protect individual rights. The First Amendment protects freedom of speech, religion and assembly, the right to petition the government, and freedom of the press. It is essential to the survival of a democracy that the press be objective and that it works hard to root out corruption."

"I had no idea that amendment had so much stuff going on. What is the rule of law?" 'That's an important one, sir. In America, everyone must follow the law, including leaders and government employees. No one should ever be above the law in America.' "OK, name two or more ways that Americans can participate in their republic."

"Americans should participate in their republic if they want it to survive. Americans should vote. They should contact elected officials and say what they think about the issues. They should write letters to the editor. And why not consider running for elected office themselves?"

"Young fellow, you know more about American civics than most people. It's too bad all Americans aren't required to pass the citizenship exam every now and then to understand basic facts about our government and its unique history.

"Perhaps so, sir, but that would be unconstitutional."

MAKING SENSE by MICHAEL REAGAN

THE WHITE HOUSE

Has anyone out there written the book "The Art of the Presidency If so, please send Donald Trump a copy. Overnight.

Our billionaire president knows what to say or do when he's making a business deal or running a big business. But it's very obvious he still needs to learn that what is OK to say and do when you're the CEO of the United States is entirely different.

On Thursday it was painfully clear from the testimony of fired FBI Director James Comey that Mr. Trump needs a lot of help from someone who knows how a president should behave. Comey's appearance before the Senate Intelligence Committee was no day at Palm Beach for Trump. But it was nothing close to the death blow to his presidency that his enemies in the drooling liberal media had hoped for. What ex-FBI Director Comey said Trump said and did to him didn't reflect well on Trump's judgment or his ability to tell the truth, to say the least.

But at least "The Comey Show" made it clear to the whole country that Trump himself was never the target of an FBI investigation and that, according to Comey, some of the worst news stories about the Trump administration's Russian troubles in the New York Times and Washington Post based were mostly fake.

Trump's reign will continue for now and MSNBC and CNN's ratings will stay high.
But before the president gets himself into another unnecessary self-inflicted fiasco, he needs to quickly find a competent chief of staff. It has to be someone he respects as an equal, who will stand up to him and who he'll listen to. Then Trump has to have him – or her -- surgically attached to his hip.

If from Day One Trump had hired a savvy and competent chief of staff like James Baker III, who served my father, the Oval Office drama between Trump and Comey never would have happened. If a pro like Baker had been on the job instead of an amateur like Reince Priebus, when Trump asked Attorney General Jeff Sessions and Priebus to leave him alone in the Oval Office with Comey, chief of staff of Baker would have stepped in immediately.

He would have told Trump it was totally improper to meet alone with Comey. Trump and Comey would never have had their awkward and inappropriate chat and "The Comey Show" would never have been aired.

The lack of a strong chief of staff who will stand up to Trump and make him behave like a proper president is the major source of the problems in the Trump White House.

Until the president finds someone to trust, to respect, and to listen to — like James Baker III things are not going to get any better for him. Meanwhile, it's becoming harder and harder to support President Trump, who continues to be his administration's worst enemy and main saboteur. Earlier this week I watched him make news by launching twitter attacks on his own Justice Department and the Mayor of London when he should have been talking about his plans to reform the VA health system and modernize the country's clogged-up air-traffic control system. It's clear that after six months on the job he doesn't realize why he came to Washington.

He needs a chief of staff that will remind him every second that it was not to make news with his morning tweets, fight with the liberal media every day or make his White House staff clean up after his mistakes with their Pooper Scoopers.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR RENT CONTROL IN SIERRA MADRE

Dear Mountain Views News:

I am writing to you about the Letter To The Editor in the June 3, 2017 issue of the Mountain Views News titled "Rent Control In Sierra Madre" sent to you by JB of Sierra Madre.

I have mixed emotions when it comes to the subject of rent control. I know that there is a shortage of rental properties in California and that the demand is greater than the supply which is why rents are increasing. I understand that older people on fixed incomes who have lived in their apartments for years are finding it difficult to pay the increasing rents. However, I believe that the cause of the increasing rents is government imposed Rent Stabilization the very thing JB is supporting.

I am an industrial property manager but I have been managing a small three unit apartment building in Los Angeles for the past 15 years which is subject to the city rent stabilization ordinance. I have seen the building owner's income go down each year under rent control. The cost of maintaining the building goes up each year more than the allowed 3% rent increase. Because the owner knows that each year he will make less money than the year before there is absolutely no incentive for him, or any other apartment owner, to build additional units.

The reason the rents are going up is due to the lack of available units. As each city imposes rent controls fewer units will be built and control, not better.

rent controls were removed investors would be able to make a reasonable return Respectfully, on the significant investment of building more apartment units. This would result in a building boom and the number of rental units in the state would skyrocket. Soon the supply would equal or exceed the demand and rents would come down to a fair level.

Still I have some mixed feeling knowing that some will suffer through this process. But I have to weight this against added government control of our lives. New York wants to control soda, salt, and trans-fat sales; Massachusetts requires that all preschoolers brush their teeth after lunch; in many cities children need a license for a lemonade stand.

There are literally hundreds of laws that tell us what we must do or not do when it comes to living our lives. Most are well meaning, but as more and more regulation are created we get closer to becoming automatons who are told by the government how many hours to sleep each day, how many to work, what work we can do, what we can eat and drink, where we can live, what we can wear, how many children we can have, and the list will never end.

Rent control laws are a big step forward towards this socialistic, communal, controlled society of the near future. After rent control there will be price control. If the government can tell a landlord how much he can charge for rent then they can certainly tell Target, Wal-Mart, or Vons what they can charge for their products.

There will soon be no incentive for anyone to try to make a better mouse trap. There won't be any more Steve Jobs, Sam Waltons, or Bill the problem will get worse as a result of rent Gates. If this is the kind of world JB wants then rent control is a good thing. I believe the long term effects of rent control will be devastating.

When school is out, you will have to take care of yourself a little more. Make sure that safety is in your day as well as fun, fun, fun!

During vacation there is more free time to enjoy, and there are lots of things you can do outside every day. Thinking about safety is smart. For example, protective equipment is a "no-brainer" when skateboarding and practicing tricks. I always wear a helmet and I don't mind wearing the knee and elbow pads either.

Read the clues to fill in the safety puzzle:

1. Stay in the shallow end of a _____ until you learn to swim. 2. Pack picnic food away in the _____ after you are done eating (help prevent food poisoning).

3. Head indoors at the first sign of lightning or thunder when a

4. At the _____, climb on equipment using two hands. On the slide, wait for the person in front of you to finish sliding before taking your turn.

5. Before you have friends over to play outside, ask them if they have any _____ to bee stings, plants or any foods.

6. Offer your _____ water often and don't leave them in the car. 7. Wear your _____ when bicycling – plus pads when
