A True Sierra Madre Treasure Passes Away

Fran Garbaccio, longtime Sierra Madre resident and volunteer passed away on October 25th surrounded by

A recipient of the Sierra Madre Older American Award in 2010, she was also an active member of the Sierra Madre Friends of the Library Board where she was named Director Emeritus, a devoted member of Sierra Madre United Methodist Church, past Scout Leader, strong supporter of the Sierra Madre Environmental Action Council and much, much more.

When Fran was Older American of the Year, the national theme was, "Age Strong! Live Strong!", a motto certainly appropriate for the effervescent, ever busy Garbaccio.

A former Sunday School student of Fran's remembered her with this statement, "She was the epitome of Mother Teresa's quote, "Not all of us can do great things. But we can do small things with great love."

To quote another friend, "We have lost a loving, hardworking, intelligent woman".

Born in Paterson, New Jersey, she is survived by a very loving family both near and far.

Fran Garbaccio will certainly be missed by family and friends, especially those friends in Sierra Madre.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

Can you believe it? November already! And we actually had a little rain, fortunately, not on Halloween night when thousands of folks visited Sierra Madre and skeletons, ghosts, witches and various other zombie- Lisa, Violet, Fay, Avery and Charlotte. type creatures.

I'm sure you've come across Ezekiel 37 in the Old Testament a time or two in your life. Remember? God took Ezekiel down into the valley of the dry bones and told him to "Prophesy to these bones!" So Ezekiel did and next thing you know, dem old bones came to life and became a vast army. And, of course, you've sung that song about dry bones, written by African-American author and composer, James Weldon Johnson, somewhere around 1928. The reason I'm bringing all these dry bones to mind is because that valley of dry bones was pretty much what Sierra Madre looked like this past week. Skeletons everywhere you cast your eyes! And spiders! The Giant Spider Store must be totally sold out as there were giant spiders on just about every fence, wall and roof in town. It's so neat the way our town does its scary best to make Halloween a noteworthy event.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side is presenting awards to a bunch of folks for creating amazing Halloween décor.

First Prize: Bud Switzer for all the years of incredibly carved pumpkins – Bud started it all a number of years ago with hundreds of amazing pumpkins carved by Bud and son, Kevin, set out all along his fence and driveway. He is still unmatched for scary, happy, silly, pumpkin faces.

Best Over-all Decoration: The house on the west side of Baldwin, just above Orange Grove. These folks have had their decorations up all month and everything they've done is Halloween-perfect. I'm not talking a ghost or two, I'm talking about dozens of ghastly creations.

Best Use of Pumpkins: The Parkers, who outdid themselves again this year with more creative uses of pumpkins, grown themselves, than anyone could have imagined; including a Cinderella coach drawn by three angry looking cats. This year's Snagon (snake-dragon) had the best face and the longest body ever! And these Hell's Angels (pictured) are out of control!

Best Depiction of El Dia de los Muertos: Javier and Erica Catanses, for huge day-glo portraits and creatures Follow me on Twitter, too! https://twitter.com/@ and a Dodgers skeleton sitting on the bench by the playwrightdd

Best Building of Effects: Craig and Lisa Cardella for that cute little house, the towers of skulls and their walked Alegria to see all the fantastical pumpkins, lighting was outta sight! Cutest kids costumes, too, > Best Graveyards: Susan Blakeslee and Shawn Blakeslee, with best sayings on tombstones. Favorite tombstone was at the Biely's: I told you I was sick!

> Best Ghosts: The circle of creepy ghosts in front of St.

Best Scarecrows: That skeleton wedding couple I shared a couple of weeks ago, which was on Highland just west of Baldwin. Best Window Art: All the kids who painted the windows downtown...and all the merchants who let them. Especially liked the windows at the Kensington, the architect firm, and Chase Bank. Best Part of All: The adorable small children walking up and down Alegria during the day in their costumes, coming to see the sights. The little ones are what make all this fun, seeing their big eyes getting bigger as they come upon giant black and purple spiders who move their legs and witches peeking out of shrubbery. We've survived another one, friends and neighbors.

A splendid time was had by all and, judging from the number of candy wrappers still decorating the town, our local dentists will soon be filling cavities by the score. Hope you got lots of Milk Duds, Dots and Three Musketeers! John Davis, best friend, husband, and walking buddy of mine passed away October 9th. If you missed last week's Mountain Views News, John's memorial service will be today, Saturday, November 4th at 1:00 p.m. at First Church of the Nazarene, 3700 E. Sierra Madre Blvd., Pasadena 91107. In lieu of flowers, donations to World Vision's Clean Water Project would be greatly appreciated. John's ID/Pledge Number is D10002667. The address: World Vision, PO Box 70399, Tacoma, WA 98481-0399. All are welcome to attend John's Memorial.

Gary Sinise Named 2018 Grand Marshal

Actor and humanitarian Gary Sinise, known for his portrayal of Lt. Dan Taylor in the film Forrest Gump, became the 2018 Tournament of Roses Grand Marshal Monday after Tournament of Roses President, Lance Tibbet, made the announcement.

"Gary's humanitarian work with our defenders, veterans, first responders and their families over the years, embodies our theme to the fullest." Tibbet said. "As members of a community, a country and a planet, we all have the ability, power and responsibility to help one another and as Gary likes to say....we can always do a little

Tournament officials said Sinise has been working in support of veterans for nearly forty years. His commitment started in the early 1980's when connection with servicemen he began supporting local Vietnam veterans' groups in the Chicago area and co-founded the Vets Night program at the Steppenwolf Theatre. This program continues to this day and invites veterans to a free dinner and performance for each one of the plays produced at the theatre.

"Our veterans, active duty service members, military families, first responders, if I can shine a light on them, and help make a difference in their lives... and shine an even bigger light because I'm the grand marshal... then that's a good thing," he said to reporters. "Whether you know it or not, ever day people are doing dangerous things, in dangerous things, in dangerous families and those in need. situations, to defend us all."

The conversations will include: Architect Kelly Sutherlin Sutherlin McLeod, AIA Christina Yu Yu, USC PAM Director

Sue Mossman, Pasadena Heritage Director

In 1924 Grace Nicholson hired the leading Pasadena architectural firm Marston, Van Pelt and Maybury, to design the building which now houses the USC Pacific Asia Museum illustrations which carefully followed the Imperial Palace Courtyard style. Grace Nicholson made sure every detail was correct by having the roof tiles, stone and marble carvings, and bronze and copper work imported directly from China, or faithfully executed by Pasadena area craftsmen. support of USC, the building on North Los Robles Avenue has undergone a seismic retrofit to strengthen the foundation and walls overseen by architect Kelly Sutherlin McLeod.

According to staff the museum began the first phase of the museum's Master Plan in July 2016, which involved the yearlongseismic retrofit of its historic building and construction of a modern collections care and conservation center.

Phase I addressed the most urgent needs, including seismic retrofitting, foundation reinforcement, waterproofing, installation of modern HVAC and electrical systems, and creation of a modern collections storage facility. In the spring of 2017 the museum received grant from the Ahmanson Foundation for its permanent collection storage renovation project, which involved an HVAC system upgrade and the installation of controls to transform the Museum's permanent collections storage into a state-of-the-art facility.

The Museum is set to reopen with the special exhibition Winds from Fusang: Mexico and China in the Twentieth Century.

ARCADIA POLICE DEPARTMENT RECEIVES GRANT FOR SPECIAL TRAFFIC ENFORCEMENT AND CRASH PREVENTION

awarded a $100,000 grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety (OTS) for a year-long program of special enforcements and public awareness efforts to prevent traffic related deaths and injuries. The Arcadia Police Department will use the funding as part of the city's ongoing commitment to keep our roadways safe and improve the quality of life through both enforcement and education. Captain Larry Goodman said, "The Arcadia Police Department benefits from this grant by enhancing the department's current traffic philosophy that embraces educating our community regarding traffic safety and enforcing hazardous traffic violations that place the city's residents and visitors at risk. As with last year, the grant will provide advanced, specialized training for Arcadia Police Department personnel and will create even more opportunities for our officers to be visible throughout the community. We have every reason to believe the combined efforts of the Office of Traffic Safety and the Arcadia Police Department will have an impact year low in 2010, the number of persons killed on roadways has climbed nearly 17 percent across the state, with 3,429 fatalities in 2015. Particularly alarming is the rise in pedestrian and bicycle fatalities that now comprise nearly growing dangers of distracting technologies and Administration.

The Arcadia Police Department has been the emergence of drug-impaired driving. This grant funding will provide opportunities to combat these and other devastating problems such as speeding and crashes at intersections. "Unsafe behaviors account for 94 percent of traffic crashes," said OTS Director Rhonda Craft. "This grant emphasizes the two most effective ways to change behaviors - education and enforcement. The Arcadia Police Department, with assistance from the Office of Traffic Safety, will use these tools to help keep Arcadia streets safe." Activities that the grant will fund include:

- Educational presentations ·
- DUI checkpoints ·
- DUI saturation patrols
- Bicycle and pedestrian safety enforcement - Distracted driving enforcement ·
- Seat belt and child safety seat enforcement · - Speed, red light, and stop sign enforcement

While alcohol remains the worst offender for DUI crashes, the Arcadia Police Department in reducing the number of people injured or supports the new effort from OTS that aims killed in traffic collisions." The public charter school opened on Aug. 14, 2017 in a unique public-private partnership with the Duarte Unified School District, and is a tuition-free, donationdependent program. For the 2017-2018 school year, CSArts-SGV serves more than 700 students in grades seven through 11. Next year the school will expand to include grade 12. Approximately 66 percent of enrolled students reside in San Gabriel Valley, with others traveling from Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside counties, among other locations.

CSArts-SGV students study in one of the 10 arts conservatories offered including acting, classical & contemporary dance, commercial dance, creative writing, instrumental music, integrated arts, musical theatre, production & design, visual arts and vocal arts. Students receive opportunities to participate in master classes, guest artist presentations, field trips and performances, as well as a variety of campus clubs and activities. Small student/teacher ratios in academic and arts classes allow for personalized attention to students.

The public charter school was established in 2016 by the California School of the Arts Foundation, a nonprofit organization established to operate a network of highachieving, comprehensive public arts charter schools, modeled after the nationally recognized Orange County School of the Arts (OCSA). CSArts-SGV is located at 1401 Highland Avenue, Duarte, Calif. For more information, visit sgv.csarts.net.

GOLDEN WORDS: DR. DAN'S COLLEGE CORNER

Today's topic: Why Does College Cost So Much?

This is the first of a seasonal series of columns that focus on college and life planning issues. As high schoolers begin their college explorations earlier and earlier and with more intensity, there are some important topics for the early screening students and parents to consider along the way.

WHY does college cost so much? Simply put, it's because you want it that way, and the college aspirant has also been transformed into a consumer of a pricey commodity, purveyed by institutions, many of which bring well-oiled marketing approaches to bear on and the junior impressionable students and their families.

And, if you think about it, much of higher education during high school to make them work-ready at 18. national Cost of Living numbers for both public and private institutions), along with a paucity of evaluation of actual outcomes after four (or more) years of college. I'll talk in another column about what makes a college "good," as in good for the learning style, budget and life aspirations of a potential enrollee.

Granted, all higher educational venues grapple with increased costs, such as rising utility and insurance expenses and expanded (some would say 'bloated') administrative staffs, but the key force driving the gaspingly quick increase in college costs is revealed quickly in the brochures and websites of institutions.

Colleges have fast-become mid-tier residential hotels, with curricula and courses seemingly bonus attributes. One university president calls it the "Battle of the Amenities," and it's true that high schoolers often examine colleges as if they were choosing a wedding venue. With costly Bally-level fitness centers, 24/7 dining and grazing options, sumptuous stadia and specialty sports facilities and more, colleges probably offer a spiffier lifestyle for enrollees than they'll be able to afford for a couple of decades after graduating. Even institutions that are almost entirely made up of commuter students have succumbed to the building boom. A typical college tour is essentially an annotated tour of facilities, with little attention to the quality of the educational experience for the student.

Couple the race to ritziness with the fact that our society has systematically neglected alternative viable post-secondary paths for many high school grads—the kinds of technical and artisanal training programs such as those in Germany that offer paths to well-paying jobs for the many high school graduates who shouldn't attend a traditional university in the first place. In our techno-society, there are lots of jobs for those who can repair the hardware, write the code, do the visual online design work, and keep us wired wireless). (and What's missing is assessment and the strengths middle-school children to identify those with artisanal propensities, apprenticeships

Dan Golden, PhD

College costs a lot, but going to college doesn't have of unbridled cost increases every year (surpassing the to cost a lot. A clever high school student and his or her parents can find true bargains in the higher education marketplace at different price points. But this can't happen unless the student introduces imaginative career exploration early in high school, and thus uncovers what we call the "TCE," or the 'total cost of education' to pursue their likely career field. If the TCE for a potential attorney or medical doctor gets calculated early, student and parent alike can examine the undergraduate enrollment choices with a coldblooded financial perspective.

We'll explore ways high schoolers can cut their undergraduate costs by over 50% in future columns, and still get a powerful education that unlocks the doors to formidable grad and professional schools. Since most professional and graduate schooling comes with little if any discount from list price, it's more important than ever not to overspend for one's Bachelor's degree and carry crippling debt into the next educational destination.

More to come, including tips on how to evaluate a college's true commitment to student engagement, how to measure their career preparation approaches and professional outcomes, and why many high schoolers can benefit from taking a "Gap Year" after graduation. If the model has become a variant of a consumer relationship with the vendor, we'll figure out together how to be smart shoppers of this intangible commodity.

Dr. Dan Golden was the founding director of Life Planning at the Vistamar School in El Segundo. He was a professor, program director and Dean for Work & Service-Learning at Wheaton College (MA), and now consults with individuals, schools and educational districts on college access, postgraduate study and career planning agendas.

JUST FOR BEST FRIENDS

Mountain Views-News Saturday, November 4,

ANIMAL PLACE

Sanctuary for Farmed Animals

While I do appreciate social networking as a neat and easy way to keep in touch with family and friends that I may not otherwise have frequent contact with, I must admit it can be a bit of a distraction, and I am beginning to wonder if my incessant need to "check in" might be becoming a not-so-

But just when I start to question my urge to participate, I find myself encouraged by a friend's timeline post sharing a remarkable experience they've just had, an inspiring quote to make my day brighter or a link to a heart-warming video about animals. It is then that I am reminded of the fact that internet socializing is not always a waste of time, it can also be a very positive way to invest a few moments that just might enhance

Here's an example of a link a friend shared on Facebook that made the time I'd spent logged in worthwhile. Having rummaged through numerous seemingly senseless 'shares' of pure pleasure. When the caretaker put feed out for them, Mr. G shared the same pale with his best bud, Jellybean. They gobbled up every bite and begged for more!

Well, I have to say, when I saw that video, tears started rolling down my face. I was overwhelmed with joy to witness the remarkable bond those two farm animals had formed while living together in such neglectful conditions. It was clear that they had taken refuge in each other, just to survive. I was elated that there were people who cared enough about those two furry four-legged friends to know they needed to be together, and made it so!

It's kind of funny, isn't it? How we humans have managed to morph into such isolated beings who spend more time with machines than other members of our own species, while animals are becoming more social, not only with their own kind but with those very different from themselves. Animals seem to have a deeper understanding of each other and photos showing anything from what one guy had for dinner the night before, to a 'selfie' of a gal in a new outfit she just bought for a party - amongst all the mundane mish-mosh was one morsel that changed the way my day would play out. It was a link to a video created by Animal Place, a farm animal refuge in Grass Valley, CA.

The video, entitled Mr. G and Jellybean, was about a goat named Mr. G that had been rescued from an animal hoarder in southern California where hed lived for years in total neglect with a burro named Jellybean. Jellybean had been rescued by another sanctuary. Unbeknownst to both rescuing parties, the goat and burro had formed a very close bond during their years together at their previous inhumane home.

When Mr. G arrived at Animal Place, he became very depressed. He refused to eat and would not leave the corner of his stall for 6 whole days. The caretakers decided they had to do something to encourage the goat to eat and go out for some exercise and fresh air. They got in touch with the people who'd rescued Jellybean, and asked if they could reunite the two animals just to see if that would help raise Mr. G's spirits.

Animal Place volunteer, Jeff
McCracken drove 14 miles round trip to bring Jellybean to their sanctuary, and what happened next was amazing. When Mr. G saw Jellybean, he immediately jumped to his feet and ran over to him, nuzzling his muzzle against his cheeks and neck. He then proceeded to strut about the corral, encircling the burro and rubbing along the fence in a gesture that penetrates the surface and allows them to find the 'friend within' regardless of their differences.

Founded in 1989, Animal Place is one of the oldest and largest farmed animal sanctuaries in the US. Nestled on 600 acres in Grass Valley, CA, they provide refuge to hundreds of animals. In addition to the sanctuary, Animal Place also has the Rescue Ranch, a 60-acre adoption center which facilitates placement of farmed animals into permanent homes, as well as a dog foster program in which they team up with local shelters to provide temporary housing for adoptable pets.

Animal Place is open to the public for self-guided farm tours Tues-Sat 10:00am-4:00pm. They also offer school and private tours by appointment only. For more information visit their website at animalplace.org or check out their page on Facebook...hey, you might as well while your logged in, right?

ANCIENT WISDOM APPLIED

Patanjali provide the backdrop for the teachings of Weaving Yoga. together an epic of divine wisdom is a total of 196 Sutras, or threads, expressed in short verses. Each one is filled with simplicity, depth, and infinite wisdom providing the framework of yoga. There are four chapters of the Yoga Sutra. The second chapter, Sadhana Pada, is about practice.

Let's explore just one Yoga Sutra as it applies to everyday practice and life. Sutra 2:1 translates from Pandit Rajmani Tigunait's book, The Practice of the Yoga Sutra: Sadhana Pada, to say, "Yoga in action is composed of austerity, self-study and trustful surrender to Ishvara." This outlines the three components essential to kriya yoga, a foundation for practice for both aspiring and devoted yogis.

Austerity (discipline) relates to a word, tapas, which also means "to heat." Tapas is generated during practice to increase strength, burn away toxins and purify the Namaste and Love, body. Developing tapas paves the way for courage, Keely Totten

Self-study relates to a word, Svadhyaya. It means "to get close to yourself." All learning and studying that helps you do this are considered Svadhyaya. We self-study to uncover our distractions and create positive inner revelations. This also fosters the link to lineage-- ancient wisdom and masters who revealed the teachings.

Ishvara (Pranidhana) is simply trustful devotion to the Divine, the source from which you came. This is both gratitude for life itself and faith that we are being held in every moment by the universe/divine. Meditation is one of the ideal environments for this devotion.

These steps of 'yoga in action' provide the framework for practice, purity of the mind, and single-pointed concentration. #### BUYER BEWARE

Here's an oldie-but-goodie problem: I myself got caught in the net. I have preached a hundred times to make sure you look at your receipt when dining out. Last week my friends and I ventured out and about town watching college football at three different Pasadena watering holes. My turn to buy was at a legendary Mexican restaurant. We ordered two rounds of margaritas - their taste was magnificent! Then came time to pay, and my bill was just short of $90! How could that be for just six drinks? I would understand at the Langham or at a beach side resort, but come on. The bartender explained to me that one of my friends, unbeknownst to me, is a regular and always orders Patron. Well, I didn't know that, but okay, I paid the bill, and I hope my loss is your gain. Read the bill, and make sure when you order a house glass of wine or a margarita that you read the fine print.

"Let The Buyer Beware!" You have heard the old adage time and time again, and sometimes a good deal really is too good to be true. Two emails caught my attention this week, so I thought I would share some wine knowledge with you.

Close-out sales on wine can be the source of a real bargain or they can you leave you with some expensive cooking wine. Reader Randy from Altadena was excited to purchase several bottles of wines at a "going out of business" sale, only to discover that the wines had gone bad.

There are four things to look for to determine if a wine has turned bad:

- Has the wine changed color? Does the red wine now have a hint of brown, or has the white wine turned darker?

there streaks of wine attached to the glass after a PM good swirl of the wine?

- Does it still smell like wine?

- Is the cork pushing its way out of the bottle? This usually means that the wine has been exposed to the heat or has been mishandled.

If your answer to any of these is "yes", stay away from this wine.

Reader Sally from Whittier tried to find a 2011 vintage of her favorite Pinot Noir. She ended up with a 2006, and said the bottle was a little dusty. When you do find a bargain on a bottle of wine make sure the wine has been stored on its side and is not too dusty, and once the cork is pulled it should be moist.

My own experience for sparkling wine at a restaurant, if you are buying by the glass, is to ask the server/bartender to open a fresh bottle. Sparklers are susceptible to losing their bubbles within a few hours after opening. Most importantly, there should be a "pop" sound when uncorking, and if the cork comes out too early beware.

- Does the wine still have "legs", meaning are Listen in to KRLA AM 870 on Saturdays at 4:00

THE GOOD LIFE

WHEN WILL MEDICAID PAY FOR NURSING HOME CARE?

Dear Savvy Senior,

What are the eligibility requirements to get Medicaid coverage for nursing home care?

Caregiving Daughter

Dear Caregiving,

The rules and requirements for Medicaid eligibility for nursing home care are complicated and will vary according to the state where your parent lives. With that said, here's a general, simplified rundown of what it takes to qualify.

Medicaid Eligibility

Medicaid, the joint federal and state program that covers health care for the poor, is also the largest single payer of America's nursing home bills for seniors who don't have the resources to pay for their own care.

Most people who enter nursing homes don't qualify for Medicaid at first, but pay for care either through longterm care insurance or out-of-pocket until they deplete their savings and become eligible for Medicaid.

To qualify for Medicaid, your parent's income and assets will need to be under a certain level that's determined by their state. Most states require that a person have no more than about $2,000 in countable assets that includes cash, savings, investments or other financial resources that can be turned into cash.

Assets that aren't counted for eligibility include their home if it's valued under $560,000 (this limit is higher – up to $840,000 – in some states), their personal possessions and household goods, one vehicle, prepaid funeral plans and a small amount of life insurance.

But be aware that while your parent's home is not considered a countable asset to determine their eligibility, if he or she can't return home, Medicaid can go after the proceeds of their house to help reimburse their nursing home costs, unless a spouse or other Find Help dependent relative lives there. (There are some other exceptions to this rule.)

After qualifying, all sources of your parent's income such as Social Security and pension checks must be turned over to Medicaid to pay for their care, except for a small personal needs allowance – usually between $30 and $90.

You also need to be aware that your parent can't give years to root out suspicious asset transfers. If they find one, their Medicaid coverage will be delayed a certain length of time, according to a formula that divides the transfer amount by the average monthly cost of nursing home care in their state.

So if, for example, your parent lives in a state where the average monthly nursing home cost is $5,000 and they gave away cash or other assets worth $50,000, they would be ineligible for benefits for 10 months ($50,000 divided by $5,000 = 10).

Spousal Protection

Medicaid also has special rules for married couples when one spouse enters a nursing home and the other spouse remains at home. In these cases, the healthy spouse can keep one half of the couple's assets up to $120,900 (this amount varies by state), the family home, all the furniture and household goods and one automobile. The healthy spouse is also entitled to keep a portion of the couple's monthly income - between $2,030 and $3,022. Any income above that goes toward the cost of the nursing home recipient's care.

What about Medicare?

Medicare, the federal health insurance program for seniors 65 and older, and some younger people with disabilities, does not pay for long-term care. It only helps pay up to 100 days of rehabilitative nursing home care, which must occur after a hospital stay.

For Annett, gardening isn't just watering petunias or deadheading roses. She's out there lugging around big rocks in her bare feet. they get together.

Hiking along the paths in the Monrovia Canyon park, Annett started talking about the new health "Cheers!" recipes she's tried. There was one that called for a pound of garlic, a pound of ginger, and other things I don't recall. Completed, it has the consistency of applesauce. You take a spoonful or two, as your asked, "Too sweet, huh?" ability allows, every day to prevent disease. Then she took a short class in making fruit enzyme. Fruit what? My last encounter with enzymes was in Biology at PCC.

Annett explained that to make fruit enzyme, you get a starter (like for sourdough bread), pounds of different fruits, put it all in a large sealed container, and let it age (ferment) at room temperature for about a month. Then you take about a cup every night to help you sleep better.

When we finished out hike we returned to her house and were cooling off in her kitchen. "Have some of this," she said unscrewing the top off a jar from her fridge. "This is the one I told you about." She had told me about many different recipes, so I wasn't sure which one this was. "Is this a good amount for you?" Annett held out a heaping spoonful. "Sure," I said, taking it all at once.

Wow! Equally strong, the garlic and ginger were battling each other to be the dominant flavor. I might

I recalled a raspberry "wine" my mom really liked one of the few times she's gone wine tasting with me (she goes more often now, I've been working on her!). People talk about some wines as having "legs" that run down the sides of the glass. This didn't run down the sides, it coated them! The wine shop owner explained that it was actually brandy that had a lot of raspberry other sweeteners added to it. We asked what vineyard produced it. He laughed, and told us there's no vineyard. It's from a guy in İrwindale who has a European style copper pot still. So, it's essentially raspberry moonshine!

MARTIAN RIDGE BRINGS OUT ROVER'S COLOR TALENTS

Color-discerning capabilities that NASA's Curiosity rover has been using on Mars since 2012 are proving particularly helpful on a mountainside ridge the rover is now climbing.

These capabilities go beyond the thousands of full-color images Curiosity takes every year: The rover can look at Mars with special filters helpful for identifying some minerals, and also with a spectrometer that sorts light into thousands of wavelengths, extending beyond visible-light colors into infrared and ultraviolet. These observations aid decisions about where to drive and investigations of chosen targets.

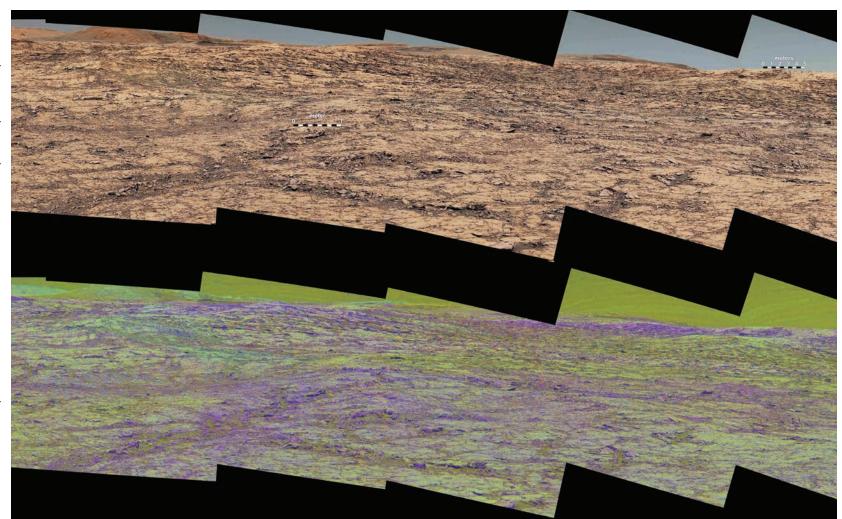

One of these methods for discerning targets' colors uses the Mast Camera (Mastcam); the other uses the Chemistry and Camera instrument (ChemCam).

Each of the Mastcam's two eyes—one telephoto and one wider angle—has several science filters that can be changed from one image to the next to assess how brightly a rock reflects light of specific colors. By design, some of the filters are for diagnostic wavelengths that certain minerals absorb, rather than reflect. Hematite, one iron-oxide mineral detectable with Mastcam's science filters, is a mineral of prime interest as the rover examines Vera Rubin Ridge.

"We're in an area where this capability of Curiosity has a chance to shine," said Abigail Fraeman of NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, California, who leads planning for the mission's investigation of Vera Rubin Ridge.

This ridge on lower Mount Sharp became a planned destination for Curiosity before the rover landed five years ago. Spectrometer observations from orbit revealed hematite here. Most hematite forms in the presence of water, and the mission focuses on clues about wet environments in Mars' ancient past. It found evidence during the first year after landing that some ancient Martian environments offered conditions favorable for life. As the mission continues, it is studying how those conditions varied and changed.

Curiosity's ChemCam is best known for zapping rocks with a laser to identify chemical elements in them, but it also can examine targets near and far

"The colors of the rocks on the ridge are more interesting and more variable than what we saw earlier in Curiosity's traverse," said science team member Jeffrey Johnson of the Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory, Laurel, Maryland. This singer-songwriter is one of Sierra Madre's true treasures. With a Master's Degree in Educational Administration, she has much to say about the state of education, and where it's going in the future. For example, she likes the "Every Student Succeeds Act" because it emphasizes the whole student, not just academic scores, and puts emphasis on school climate and students' socio-emotional skills. Fuller, who also taught Kindergarten for 10 years, points out that a lot of adults in today's increasingly contentious world would do well to go back to kindergarten and relearn some of the most basic social interaction

After giving it more thought, I concluded that I do not mind being crazy, it gives life a little more flavor. Crazy does have its benefits.

For example, if you are crazy, people will not take you seriously and so you can get away with things you otherwise would not be able to get away with. "Oh, don't ask him to do that, he's just crazy."

What I really want to know is that if a person is crazy do they know they are crazy? Or, are they just taking somebody's word for it that they are crazv?

I was thinking about that in the coffee shop when an older couple came in and sat down across the room from me. Immediately they caught my attention. For one, they were quite a bit older than I am. It is always wonderful to see someone older than you are particularly during these last few years of mine. The thing that caught my eye about these people was the fact that they were crazy in love, or at least it looked that way. As they walked in they walked very slowly, she walked in front of him and he followed very gingerly. He waited for her to sit down, as a gentleman should, and then he sat down. He looked at her and smiled and when he smiled, I saw that he had absolutely no teeth in his mouth whatsoever. ### PREVIEW OF THE BREEDERS CUP 2017

Sierra Madre Edition: Sierra Madre - Arcadia - Monrovia - Duarte

By Joan Schmidt

The days leading to the Breeders Cup have many exciting Media events. Monday's first event was the Post Position Draw at the Barn at Powerhouse Park, Del Mar. What a venue!

The Pavilion is on a hill; you step outside to a breathtaking ocean view. Inside was a great buffet, bar service and a meeting of old Media friends who had traveled from Washington, Canada and Germany! It was great to see them again!

Every year Mike Smith, Victor Espinosa and Aaron Gryder attend. Victor and I discussed seafood preferences. Aaron was happy to attend and to be back on the West Coast, which provides more visits with his fast-growing kids!

Laffit Pincay III was a Commentator and his special lady, Sonia, gave me an update on her son Jacob. (Please visit eye on Jacob foundation and consider making a contribution for further research on Usher Syndrome) I also met up with Kent Desormeaux, wife Rosie Higgins and wished Kent well in the races.

My highlight of the evening was the Filly and Mare Sprint Division draw. Princess Karen got #13; I was disappointed but was told that she liked to leave the gate from there. Her rider will be Julian Leparoux; Karen Norton explained that Julian is excellent in the gate and knows how to settle horses down. Princess Karen's rival is Unique Bella-she is gorgeous and huge; Mike Smith is her rider. I also had the pleasure of meeting Jeff Bonde, the Princess' trainer.

I spoke with Sherry D'Amato for a while. Her hubby is trainer, Phil D'Amato and her daughter Jesse, an exercise rider. I hope to do "It's All in the

Jockey Jose Oriz (Elate, Oscar Performance and Separationofpowers) was also there and I met his wife, a former jockey and baby

I first spoke with England's Simon Callaghan. His father Neville is a top trainer there; that's how Simon learned the trade. Simon came to America in 2009 and established a racing stable at Santa Anita.

Trainer Brian Lunch hails from Australia. He came to America in 1986 and rode bulls in the rodeo circuit! He later began training quarter horses. In 1992, he took out his thoroughbred license and became an assistant to trainer Bobby Frankel in southern CA. Lynch traveled to Woodbine and at worked Frankel's barn there. In 2006, Lynch began training on his own and now divides his time between Canada and Florida. He will send Julien Leparoux on Heart to Heart to Heart.

Thank you so much to Breeders' Cup and Jim Gluckson for this great opportunity to attend so many exciting events during which I learned so

In my experience, most homeowners do not know what to do when emergencies happen. They don't know who to call or who they can trust. In searching the internet to find good contractors, you quickly realize it takes a lot of time to call, schedule and coordinate plumbing, water restoration, mold removal and repair contractors. Making sure they do things properly and that they stick to the repair schedule so that your home and life are back to normal in the shortest time possible can be daunting. There is also the added fear of being a victim of a contractor scam. (See our prior article: http:mtnviewsnews.com/v11/htm/n39/p13.htm)

Wouldn't it have been nice if my mother had been able to join us as we made the best of our unscheduled play day, sliding down our hallway, fully-enjoying ourselves? Get in line mom!

The Nature Fix: Why Nature Makes us Happier, Healthier, and More Creative by Florence

An intrepid investigation into nature's restorative benefits by a prizewinning author. For centuries, poets and philosophers extolled the benefits of a walk in the woods: Beethoven drew inspiration from rocks and trees; Wordsworth composed while tromping over the heath; and Nikola Tesla conceived the electric motor while visiting a park. Intrigued by our storied renewal in the natural world, Florence Williams set out to uncover the science behind nature's positive effects on the brain. In this informative and entertaining account, Williams investigates cutting-edge research as she travels to fragrant cypress forests in Korea to meet the rangers who administer "forest healing programs," to the green hills of Scotland and its "ecotherapeutic" approach to caring for the mentally ill, to a river trip in Idaho with Iraqi vets suffering from PTSD, to the West Virginia mountains where she discovers how being outside helps children with ADHD. The Nature Fix demonstrates that our connection to nature is much more important to our cognition than we think and that even small amounts of exposure to the living world can improve our creativity and enhance our mood. In prose that is incisive, witty, and urgent, Williams shows how time in nature is not a luxury but is in fact essential to our humanity. As our modern lives shift dramatically indoors, these ideas and the answers they yield are more urgent than ever.

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

DOES MY ESTATE PLAN NEED TO INCLUDE MY VACATION PROPERTY?

Yes! If you own a vacation home, timeshare, investment property, or any other real estate asset - even if it's outside of the state where you are domiciled – you must make sure it's included in your estate plan. If you fail to include it in your plan, or fail to have an estate plan at all, your heirs will encounter issues, and usually the expense and hassle of court, when inheriting these assets.

Because of varying state laws, your principal residence may even be divided one way in your home state while other properties - such as vacation homes, time shares, or other pieces of out-of-state land - can end up divided completely differently. Of course, having a comprehensive estate plan puts you in control and lets you determine who will receive your property, regardless of where it's located.

Avoiding Unnecessary Probate

If your property is situated in a different state than where you live when you die, your family may need to file a second probate case, referred to as an ancillary estate. Typically a local attorney must handle the ancillary estate, which adds more cost, time, and hassle for your family to settle your affairs. For example, if you died as a resident of California but owned property in Montana as well, you might have an ancillary His office is located at 49 S. Baldwin Ave., probate in Montana for the property located change title of property upon the owner's family by calling 626.587.3058 or visit www. passing, whether the deceased had a will or not. GarlettLaw.com for more information.

Each state has their own probate rules, making it fairly complex for families that inherit property in multiple states. It is important to know that while personal property may be probated in the state where the decedent is domiciled, real property must be probated in the state or country where it is located.

The need for ancillary probate can be avoided, however, through proper estate planning. Specifically, if the decedent transfers the property to his or her revocable trust before death, ancillary probate can be avoided. Of course, there are several ways to avoid the costs, delays, and headaches of probate other than a trust, but each alternative has downsides. Using a revocable trust will likely result in the most saving of money, time, and hassles for your heirs.

Bottom Line

Intestacy laws can be complicated because they vary from state to state. At the same time, a well thought out estate plan avoids those unnecessary probate costs, in every state where you own property. With the help of a knowledgeable estate attorney, you can successfully avoid unnecessary complication and make settling your affairs as easy as possible for your heirs.

Remember to tell your estate planning advisor about everything that you own - no matter how small in value or where it is located. This is because in order to fully protect your family and assets, all of your property (real and personal) must be included. If you have any questions about ancillary probate, or any other estate planning issues, contact us today.

UPDATE YOUR PRODUCT LINE & UP YOUR SALES

Taking an assessment of your line of products and You also have online options like Ebay and Craigs services will lay the groundwork for greater business success and increased profits. A series of simple questions can help any entrepreneur determine if the current inventory of offerings is a good fit. It is imperative for a business to offer the mix of inventory or services that actually sells. After all, you're in business to make a profit and as the saying goes, "If I don't make money, it don't make sense!"

Actual sales data must be used to answer the first two questions below. Each question is followed by recommendations that may be applied:

Question #1: What are my best sellers and why? If you have evidence to indicate that sales of certain items will continue, obviously you will continue to carry these items. Next, determine if there are related items that present an opportunity to increase sales. For example, if you're selling potted plants it may be feasible to offer garden tools or a special set of seed packets as a limited-time promotion or as something available on an ongoing basis. A follow-up question is "What new items should I add and why?" When you update your line of products and services, it gives customers a reason for repeat visits and increases the likelihood they will eventually make a purchase of something from you. After all, they have some interest in what you offer, which is why they're browsing in the first place, so be sure to keep your Question #2: What has sold the least and why? Items displayed in your store, on your website or languishing in your stock room that haven't sold within a reasonable amount of time, are taking up space that needs to be cleared for things that can generate profits. First you may want to try alternative displays or pricing of the items and if the items still don't sell, it's time to have a special promotion, clearance sale or to donate them to a local charitable organization to make room for things that will sell.

inventory "fresh" to give them reason to return.

List where you can post your clearance items.

Question #3: How does the presentation of my products and service rank?

Whether your business is primarily a physical location, an online store or a combination, neatness and cleanliness is of utmost importance.

The first recommendation is to take interior and exterior photos of your business location. Then, ask a trusted friend or colleague to look at each photo and rate it on a scale of 1 to 10 (1 being Unacceptable and 10 being Outstanding) in the following areas:

Cleanliness (does business appear wellmaintained), 2. Organized (is layout of store/website organized and appealing?), 3. Attractive Displays (is merchandise easy to see or cluttered?), 4. Attractive and informative marketing materials (if applicable) and 5. Signage (are exterior and interior signs of professional quality, legible and easy to understand?). Be open to making changes based on the feedback from someone who actually cares enough about you to tell you what they really think. Consider that you may never hear what you really need to know from potential customers who have been turned off by something that they will never share with you.

It may also be helpful to invest time visiting locations of your most successful competitors. The purpose is to pay attention to how they display merchandise, signage used on the exterior and interior of the store, availability and quality of marketing materials and anything else readily visible to a consumer.

Finally, being attentive to what is selling and what is not, then applying an objective assessment process will ensure that consumers will recognize your business as one that is worth visiting and patronizing. They will be assured that you will always have something new to offer, and very likely something they will need to purchase.

GOP CONGRESS MUST REMEMBER WHY IT WAS ELECTED

Tve never seen anything quite like it," said a political-insider friend of mine as we sipped coffee.

"Several members of the Republican-controlled House and Senate are suffering from a rare form of memory loss. Until recently, I fear, they completely forgot why they were elected."

"When Republicans took over the House in 2011, they did so because the majority of Americans were fed up with ObamaCare, wasteful spending and a federal government that was running amok. They wanted the Republican House to thwart President Obama's

"I remember the 2010 election well," I said.

"During the 2014 election, the Republicans took back the Senate because the majority of American people were fed up with ObamaCare, wasteful spending and a federal government that was running amok. They wanted the Republican Senate to work with the Republican House to overturn Obama's polices."

"There was a sense of great hope at that time," I said.
"Then in 2016, despite several 'expert' predictions that Hillary Clinton would become America's first female president, Donald Trump was elected. That's because the people in most U.S. states wanted to repeal and replace ObamaCare, get federal spending under control and overturn Obama's policies - including many executive orders that many considered presidential overreach at best and unconstitutional at worst."

"Well, Trump has been successful overturning Obama's executive orders, but he hasn't enjoyed much success passing big bills through the Republican House and Senate."

"That is correct, and I fear it is due to mass memory loss. You see, too many Republicans seem to have forgotten that they had promised to repeal ObamaCare, but repeal efforts failed repeatedly." 'That's frustrating to the voters who put Republicans in power."

"Trump has been struggling to get any big bills through Congress, including his infrastructure bill, despite the fact that Republicans own the White House, House and Senate. I figure they have one chance to wake up and remember why they are there or we are all

"What is their one chance?

"They must come together to give the country its first comprehensive tax reform since President Reagan reformed the tax code, and they'd better do it this year!"

"Hear, hear! How are they doing?"

"A cynic like me is afraid to get too hopeful, but it would appear they are finally making real headway on real tax reform."

"I'm afraid to be hopeful, too. What does their plan include?"

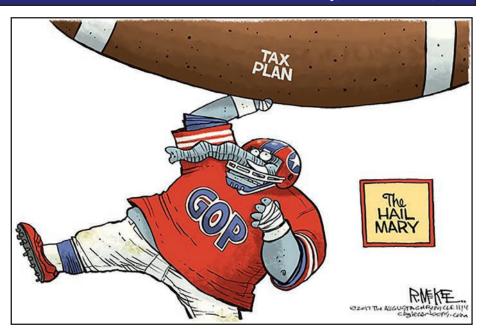

"Investor's Business Daily reports that the Republican reform plan includes reducing America's outdated corporate tax rates, which are among the highest in the world. They plan a top corporate tax-rate reduction to 20 percent, which would unleash significant economic growth, create new jobs and increase wages for millions of Americans." "Bring it on."

"The reform plan would introduce other commonsense measures to reduce rates for small businesses, while allowing them to write off business costs faster. As it is now, they have to depreciate many investments over many years - thus, it takes them many years to recoup their costs through tax savings. Such a simple move would spur significant investment and growth,

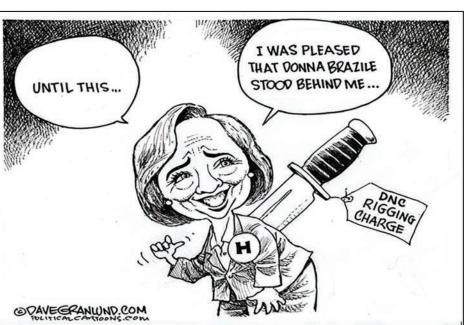

"Bring that on, too."

"Tax filing would be simplified for everyone, with fewer brackets and increased standard deductions and child credits. Democrats are rolling out tired old lines about the rich getting huge tax breaks while the middle class gets the shaft, but it is just not so. The fact is, the real commonsense reform that Republicans are working on will hopefully return our country to a massive 5- or 6-percent growth rate, which will benefit us all. But it will only happen IF Republicans overcome mass memory loss and remember why they were elected in the first place!"

SENATOR VERSUS DEMAGOGUE, AND HISTORY'S VERDICT

Bravo to the Republican senator who stood tall in the chamber and assailed a Republican demagogue for his disgraceful reliance on "the Four Horsemen of Calumny - Fear, Ignorance, Bigotry, and Smear." Bravo to the senator for insisting, with virtually no support from cowered colleagues, that "it's high time for the United States Senate and its members to do some soul-searching, for us to weigh our consciences." I'm referring, of course, to Margaret Chase Smith.

It's great that Jeff Flake stood up to Donald Trump's serial lies and dangerous toxicity, but, lest we forget our history (and too often, we don't even know it), Flake's act was not unprecedented. Sixty-seven years ago Chase was a junior senator from Maine, the only member of her gender, and unlike virtually everyone around her, she'd already had enough of colleague Joseph McCarthy.

At that point, in June 1950, McCarthy had only been on the national scene for a few months, smearing people as "Communists" and "fellow travelers," destroying innocents' reputations, forcing them from their jobs, prompting a number to commit suicide. Rank-and-file Republicans on Capitol Hill barely uttered a peep, but Chase was ill-suited by temperament to follow the herd.

So she wrote a speech that she titled "Declaration and Conscience," stood on the Senate floor, and said: "Those of us who shout the loudest about Americanism in making character assassinations are all too frequently those who, by our own words and acts, ignore some of the basic principles of Americanism." She extolled the GOP's proud history as the party of Lincoln, "yet to displace it with a Republican regime embracing a philosophy that lacks political integrity or intellectual honesty would prove ... disastrous to this nation."

She urged her Republican colleagues to be "Americans first" and to publicly acknowledge that McCarthy "threatens the security and stability of our country." She said, "It is high time that we all stop being tools and victims of totalitarian techniques." She said the Republican Party should not seek victory "through the selfish political exploitation of fear, bigotry, ignorance, and intolerance."

Flake's rhetoric on Tuesday was similar. But the big difference, however, is that Flake did so while declaring that he was quitting the chamber. Chase didn't go anywhere. She stayed in the Senate and kept fighting.

She took a lot of hits. McCarthy, who, like Trump, could never abide an attack, complained that "there are too damn many women in the Senate." (There was one.) Chase managed to get seven fellow Republicans to sign her anti-McCarthy statement (today, seven would be considered a tsunami), and McCarthy retaliated with Trumpian snark, calling Chase and her supporters "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

Chase was rumored to be on Dwight Eisenhower's short list for veep in 1952, but the McCarthy heat (plus her gender) made her unacceptable; and when she ran for reelection, McCarthy worked, albeit unsuccessfully, to sabotage her. But she hung in, waging her multi-year fight against McCarthy mostly alone, until finally McCarthy imploded in 1954 by trying to smear the U.S. Army, at which point Chase's colleagues finally grew spines and voted to censure him.

Her fight was long and lonely, but still she persisted. She liked to say, "The right way is not always the popular and easy way." She didn't quit the Senate; she stayed and won history's verdict. And what she said in 1950 - with respect to a man who posed a clear and present danger to this nation - has more meaning than ever in 2017: "It is high time that we stop thinking politically as Republicans and Democrats and started thinking patriotically as Americans."

MICHAEL REAGAN CUT TAXES. REAGAN-STYLE

MAKING SENSE by

What hasn't happened this week?

It started on Monday with special counsel Robert Mueller's opening round of indictments, chief of which were charges of fraud and money laundering against Donald Trump's former campaign manager and shifty big-time lobbyist, Paul Manafort.

The charges against Manafort, which predate his three-month stint with the Trump campaign in summer of 2016, made headlines but were no surprise to anyone, especially me. (I had been telling people for years that Manafort was dirty, but unfortunately no one doing the hiring in Trumpland took my advice.)

Then on Tuesday afternoon came the horrible news of the attack by an Isis-connected terrorist who used a rented truck to murder eight people on a bike path in New York City. Mueller's indictments and the terror tragedy both overshadowed what should have been the big news of this week -- President Trump's big push for a massive tax reform bill. But on Thursday Republicans in the House unveiled the first draft of their "Tax Cuts and Job Act" all 429 pages of it. It's still horribly complicated, full of politically controversial features and debatable deductions, and liable to be rewritten as early this weekend.

There are far too many politicians and interest groups pulling and pushing and whining for their special deals â€' whether it's the home builders and real estate people complaining that it would hurt homeowners or Senator Rubio moaning about the insufficient hike in the child tax credit. In its present fluid state, it's not worth praising or criticizing the specific pluses or minuses of Trump's

One thing for sure, though, it's not going to happen quickly or easily, no matter how many times they invoke my father's name. For years whenever Republicans dreamed out loud about reforming the income tax or simplifying the tax code they'd say it was going to be the largest tax cut since Ronald Reagan did it in 1981. Nothing ever came of their big talk about tax cuts, but when Republican tax-cutters use my father's name I'm often reminded of a conversation I had with him about confiscatory income tax rates in 1954 when I was about nine years old. It sounds crazy or made up, but it's true.

As I detail in my 2016 book "Lessons My Father Taught Me," when I rode with my father to his ranch in Malibu on Saturday mornings, it was like going to school.

I'd pepper him with questions and he'd always answer them, plus he often gave me answers to questions about politics or economics that no nine-year-old ever thought of asking. One day I asked him a simple question -- would he double my allowance from a dollar a week to two

For the next 15 minutes my father decided to tell me about the workings of the income tax system in America. At the time I felt like it was my penance for daring to ask my selfish question, but I've always remembered what he said. He told me â€' and this was around the time he was hired to host "General Electric Theater" on TV -that he was paying about 90 cents out of every dollar he made in federal income taxes.

Then he said something like, "With the 10 cents I have left, I have to take care of your mother Jane and you and Maureen, and my new wife Nancy and our daughter Patty, the house we live in, the ranch, the foreman, the horses and the cows."

By the time he ended his tax lesson I felt so sorry for him I offered to give him back half of my

"Michael," he said, "you don't have to go that far. I'll make you a deal. When there's a president that cuts my income taxes I'll increase your allowance."

I took the deal. I didn't know a Democrat from a Republican, but at age nine I knew the difference between more money and less.

In 1964 Lyndon Johnson got the tax cuts through Congress that John F. Kennedy had been pushing before he was killed, dropping the tax rate of the top income bracket from 90 percent to 70 percent. Still not much of a bargain, but my dad, as promised, increased my allowance from $1 a week to $5. I was no longer nine. I was 18. But at least by that time I had learned to play poker and I was able to increase my $5 mightily on weekends. The point was that my father kept a promise to me and taught me a lesson that has national implications "When I get a break in taxes you get a bigger allowance That's really kind of how the American tax system works and it's really never not worked that way. I think about what my father said when I hear the politicians debating whether they're going to allow those of us in California or New York State who pay a very high state income tax to continue writing that tax off on our federal returns. Or whether we'll be able to still deduct what we pay in property taxes on our homes. Or how much the standard deduction for a couple will be. Today's tax-cutters need to remember that when my father signed that bill to cut federal taxes in August of 1981 he didn't play political games or create special deals for certain special interests. He cut taxes for everyone across the board.

So, tax-cutters, if you are going to use my father as the shining star of tax reform, then use him correctly and cut everyone's taxes. And don't punish the people who've been most successful with higher rates, because if you do they might never be able to give their child or grandchild that increase in their allowance.
