Children of all ages enjoyed the horse drawn carriage rides, snow sledding down the Bank of the West slopes, and of course, welcomed Santa Claus and his elves, the Sierra Madre Rose Float Princesses to town.

COUNCIL PREPARES FOR 2018 ELECTION

On Tuesday, the Sierra Madre City Council discussed five resolutions that will begin the process of preparing the city for the 2018 elections. The election, scheduled for April 10, 2018 will determine who will fill 3 Council seats as well as a ballot measure on whether or not the city should repeal its' User Utility Tax.

The resolutions covered:

Notice of the Election and the City Clerk's election compensation;

2. Regulations regarding Candidates Statements;

3. A request to the County of Los Angeles for elec-4. Definition of the process for rebuttal argument filings and 5. A resolution authorizing the five current council members to submit arguments regarding the ballot measure to repeal the city's UUT.

The effort to repeal the ÚUT began in 2014 but was only qualified for the 2018 ballot.

While repeal of the UUT will certainly be a controversial matter, the resolution that garnered most of the council's attention was the election compensation for the city clerk. In the past, the city has paid the City Clerk a stipend of $7,500,00 just to handle the election, however, the council unanimously voted not to pay that stipend for 2018. Councilman John Capoccia saw "no compelling argument why Sierra Madre has to be different", noting that it was time for the city to follow the model of other cities with an elected City Clerk. South Pasadena was the example given where the City Clerk is elected and handles those duties required by law, but election activities are handled by the election consultant and city staff. The city of Sierra Madre has used Martin and Chapman as the election consultant for years and will continue to do so. However, for the 2018 election, city staff, namely the Assistant City Clerk who is already on the payroll and has assisted with at least 3 other elections will handle other administrative duties.

The stipend of $7,500 per election was an agreement with former City Clerk Nancy Sholllenberger who held the position for 32 years.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"When it rains on your parade, look up, rather than down. Without the rain there would be no rainbow." G. K. Chesterton

I think there's a law on the books somewhere that it is forbidden to rain on the Rose Parade. Seriously! Think about it. How many times has it rained on this spectacular parade that you can think of when the queen and her court had their hair melting under their tiaras? Here's something you might not know: Pasadena's enviable record of dry Rose Parades should stand, thanks to a "Never on Sunday" rule dating back to the 19th century. The Parade has been moved to Monday 15 times in its 128 year history but it never has been, nor ever will be, delayed for rain. The custom of shifting the parade a day later when New Year's Day falls on a Sunday began in 1893 to avoid riling the horse hitched outside churches and possibly disrupting the services

There now, a few little known facts leading up to my visiting the Sierra Madre Rose Float barn this past week to see how things were going. As you can see from the picture, we have another absolutely adorable float in the making. Entitled, "Chivalry," our float features a lady dragon with an injured paw. A friendly knight is bandaging said paw while she looks down fondly at the little guy. Currently a lot of welding is going on and pretty much all I could identify was the dragon's tail, but we know that come the latter part of December the call will go out for volunteers to apply the flowers which will make "Chivalry" another prize winning float for Sierra Madre. I did find out that the bandage, which is a stiff sort of substance will be sprayed with glue and then coated with rice powder to maintain the Rose Parade rule of everything having to be plant material of some sort. I hope to meet our four princesses soon and am looking forward to this as they are always exceptional

Another Thanksgiving has come and gone, probably leaving most of us wishing we had passed up that extra piece of pumpkin pie with whipped cream. My Thanksgiving was spent with our Texas family: daughter, My book page: Amazon.com: Deanne Davis Crissy, her husband, Chris, his delightful parents and, of course, the Texas granddaughters Jessie - who turned 10 while I was there, and her sister, Emily, who is 7. The birthday party was a raucous affair at the local Chuck E. Cheese and a fabulous time was had by all. Being honey-baked ham aficionados, we had that in addition playwrightdd to a nice sized turkey breast. Our favorite parts are the side dishes, the sweet potatoes, the mashed potatoes, the cranberry sauce and all the rest. I cooked and my fellow grandparents brought champagne. The creamed spinach was so incredibly good, based pretty closely on what Lawry's Prime Rib restaurants serves, that I'm going to make it again for Christmas, whether anybody else wants it or not. Because you're all my good friends out there, I'm going to share.....

This is so good that even people who eschew (that means they wouldn't touch it with a fork) spinach will eat it! Popeye would never eat another can of spinach once he tasted this. You can double, triple or whatever this recipe and it won't mind a bit.

1 (10 oz.) package chopped spinach

- 2-3 slices bacon, finely chopped (or more if it makes you happy)
- ½ cup onion, finely chopped 2 Tb. flour
- 1 tsp. seasoned salt ¼ tsp. seasoned pepper
- 1 clove garlic (optional)
- 1 cup milk (I use non-fat which works just fine)

Cook spinach and drain well. Combine bacon and onion in a large skillet and fry till tender and bacon is brown and crispy. Remove from heat. (As bacon is so lean anymore, it's not necessary to drain off any of the fat, unless it makes you nervous. Do leave some!)

Add flour, seasoned salt, seasoned pepper and garlic (if you're using garlic). Blend thoroughly. Return to heat and slowly add milk, stir continually until thickened. (In case you hadn't noticed, you've just made white sauce!) Add spinach, mix well. And astonish your guests and

This recipe is originally from Mike Roy, one of my culinary heroes, from The Mike Roy Cook Book, copyrighted in 1966, which I bought for the astonishing price of $3.95 - hard cover!. Mike has been in heaven for some time now, but I like to think he is still cooking up there, for a very appreciative crowd.

CITY MANAGER'S REPORT: TERRIFIC NEWS - S&P ASSIGNED CITY'S CALPERS

RESPONSE PLAN REFINANCING BOND "AA-" RATING, AND THE CITY WAS PROVIDED WITH AN OVERALL CREDIT RATING OF "AA"

As you may recall, staff participated in a bond • Very weak debt and contingent liability position, rating call with Standard & Poor (S&P) two weeks with debt service carrying charges at 5.0% of ago to discuss the issuance of a pension obligation bond in an effort to refinance the City's existing pension liability debt. There had been some concern expressed by our financing team that given the size of our proposed bond issuance (+/-$115 million), S&P might rate our bonds as an Also, by way of background, for every refinance or Upper Medium Grade (A- / A / A+) investment. Such a factor could have potentially changed the overall dynamics of the transaction, given that our investment team has not been able to secure insurance for the proposed POB issuance. Fortunately, after a thorough review, S&P this past week provided our proposed POB issuance with a AA- rating, and also assigned an overall credit rating of AA for the City! This is terrific news and makes Monrovia a High Grade (AA- / AA / AA+) investment opportunity! In their summary report, S&P indicated that, "the stable outlook reflects our view of management's proactive rating for our CalPERS Response Plan pension approach to its pension liabilities." Furthermore, S&P outlined that their rating of the City and our POB issuance reflected the following:

- Very strong economy, with access to a broad and diverse metropolitan statistical area (MSA);
- Very strong management, with strong financial policies and practices under our Financial Management Assessment (FMA) methodology; • Strong budgetary performance, with operating
- surpluses in the general fund and at the total governmental fund level in fiscal 2016; • Strong budgetary flexibility, with an available fund balance that we expect will decrease in the near term from its fiscal 2016 level of 18% of operating expenditures;

expenditures and 16.5x governmental debt service, and access to external liquidity we consider strong; for your review and consideration below:

- expenditures and net direct debt that is 307.0% of total governmental fund revenue; and
- Strong institutional framework score. View the copies of the rating reports issued by bond deal conducted, financial rating agencies like S&P – will review the overall fiscal health of the City, along with explicit details related to the proposed transaction, to provide an overall bond rating for each deal. The better the bond rating received by the City, the better the interest rates that we will receive from the financial markets. And the better the interest rates we receive, the more money that we ultimately save.

After conducting their most recent financial review with City staff and our underwriters, S&P this past week notified us that the City's bond debt refinance transaction was assigned a High-Grade Investment rating of AA-! Furthermore, S&P affirmed that the City's overall credit rating was AA / stable! This is a terrific accomplishment for the City, and our entire community should be proud of the achievement! It wasn't that long ago that securities from the City were considered lower medium grade investments in the BBB- to BBB+ range.. kudos to all those involved - from the City Council, to the finance team in our Administrative Services Department, to each department's prudent fiscal management - for managing Monrovia's finances in such a superb manner!

Also, for further insight and clarification • Very strong liquidity, with total government regarding bond ratings, a ratings overview chart available cash at 82.6% of total governmental fund which explains the different credit rating as determined by S&P has been developed by staff

MARISELA'S SPY THRILLER, KISSZZZZZZ AND A MUST-ATTEND CRAFT BOOK FAIR IN DUARTE

By Joan Schmidt

Yesterday I had lunch with my multi-talented friend, author Marisela Adams. A retired teacher and counselor, Marisela currently is pursuing her great love-writing. (She's been writing since the age of eight.) Raised in Texas, the family relocated to California for education opportunities, and at college, she met the love of her life, Jim. Marisela quips, "It was HATE at first sight", but they are true soul mates, with two fine children and four bright adored grandsons.

Jim is a recently retired financial planner; but has played a role in her books. Also a pilot, he flew her to New Orleans and they traveled outside of town to a perfect setting- it's the cover of her mystery novel, Breaking Faith. Before Marisela wrote this trilogy, she had watched a real court case about the murder of a young wife by her husband who had another woman. The host of the program said a study was done about hundreds of husbands who murdered their wives rather than split community

Marisela's latest book, KissZZZzzz is a thrilling spy thriller. A double agent from the US has acquired a dangerous micro-chip with vital information for the US, and she is seeking a portal to come in. All the portals are closed so a double agent is sent out to create one and bring in double agent KissZZZzzz. #### MAKING THE MOST OF BEING A COMMUTING COLLEGE STUDENT

Most of my columns have focused on the life of take credits with you students who live away, either in dorms or off- to a final two years at campus. But what of the many thousands of a UC or other 4-year students who commute to their campus, both full and part-time? These students often continue to live in their family homes, frequently continue with all kinds of family obligations and part-time jobs, and need a few strategies to make the most of their commuting college experience.

You look like your high school self, but you are changing every day.

If you live at home and continue to be around family and friends, most people mightn't notice your growth in intellectual power, focus and social development. But you know it's happening, and will want your perspectives and behaviors to reflect your journey to young adulthood.

Smarter isn't smarty-pants, of course. So don't be too quick to flaunt your new knowledges and perspectives, especially if they fly in the face of your familial or cultural traditions. You are redefining your relationship with this family, and with your old friends, too. Watch more, listen

And in terms of those friends, don't be surprised if your interests have changed and high school bonds and times seem kind of dated to you, or at least up for redefinition. If you have a significant other already, or if you strike up a college romance, one thing you'll need to figure out is how to get the privacy you need to let that romance grow.

Stick around your campus as long as possible every day, and take advantage of its resources. Invest in an insulated backpack and a good thermos, put together food and snacks to save time and money, and try to be on campus both before and after classes.

If you are a full-time commuter to local CSU, UC and most private colleges, inquire at the Office of the Dean about Day Student Lounges, where you can crash and recharge yourself through the day. Consider staying late at campus at least one night a week, perhaps keying your decision to stay to an event or club group you want to attend. If you are your subsequent years in college. eligible, get a campus job--another excellent way to bond with your school.

Professors during their Office Hours

If you are a commuter who plans on possible transfer to another institution after two years, this advice if you're at a Junior College and hope to graduate study and career planning issues.

Dan Golden, PhD

of grownups, your "adult influencers" as we call them--to help you extract the best experience from the school and plan for life after graduating.

Cultivate an "influencer" or two by going to the office hours your professors post in their syllabi. Almost nobody ever visits, I can tell you from my own years as a professor.

Come with questions about your class, advice about courses for future terms, about a possible major in their discipline. Ask them if they ever take on student workers to help with their scholarship, term-time and during summers.

Save Money. Lots.

to build a portfolio

You may be commuting because the live-away costs of residential college seem too staggering. You may be commuting because you need a more reasonable price for general coursework to explore and experiment with areas of study and careers. You may be a first-gen student and the only primary English-speaker in your household. You're the one who takes your Aunt for her Chemo, you're the one who goes to teacher conferences for your kid sister, and you're the one who also has to do well in classes and plan your future. Protect that future as jealously as you protect the health and lives of your loved ones.

It's hard being a commuter student, but easier if you find ways to spend more time on your campus, avail yourself of the enrichments and facilities you're paying for anyhow, and build alliances with helpful grownups. And if you can salt away some of those thousands of dollars you'll be saving, you'll have a small financial nest egg for

PLAY NICE, KITTY!

I have a new furry, four-legged feline friend named Kingsley. When I first met Kingsley, he was a mere 5 months old and undoubtedly one of the most adorable kittens I have ever met.. Kingsley is a young adult now, but from early kitten-hood, he loved to spend time with his humans, Jeff and Meagan and ate more like a full grown lion than the tiny kitten that he was; and oh boy, did he love to play - and still does!

After spending a few days taking care of Kingsley the kitten while his people were away, they asked if I had any ideas on how to get him to stop biting while playing and I had to admit I didn't. Later, I looked up techniques on training a kitten not to bite during play and I found an article by the Humane Society of the United States.

The tips they offered seemed to make practical sense, so I decided to share them with my readers. Credit goes to the HSUS website for this insightful, hopefully helpful information. Happy training and best of luck!

Learning to Play Nice

A kitten's first playmates are his mother and siblings, and from them he learns how to inhibit his bite. A kitten who is separated from his family too early may not have learned that lesson well enough and doesn't know when to stop. Acceptable behavior can quickly escalate. If you use your hands and/or feet instead of toys to play with a young kitten, he may learn that rough play is okay. In most cases, it's not too difficult to teach your kitten that rough play isn't acceptable.

If playing with your kitten evolves from peek-aboo to professional wrestling in a matter of seconds, follow these tips to keep playtime interesting and reduce the number of trips to the first-aid kit. Don't let your kitten play with your hands or feet

(or any other body part). This sends the wrong message.

Use a toy when playing. Drag a toy, preferably a fishing pole-type toy that keeps your hands from kitty's mouth and claws, along the floor to encourage your kitten to pounce on it, or throw a tov for him to chase. Some kittens will even bring the tow back to be thrown again.

Give your kitten something to wrestle with, like a soft stuffed animal that's about his size, so he can grab it with both front feet, bit it, and kick it with his back feet. This is one of the ways kittens play with each other, especially when they're young. It's also one of the ways they try to play with human feet and hands, so it's important to provide this type of alternative play target.

Encourage play with a "wrestling toy" by rubbing it against your kitten's belly when he wants to play roughly-and be sure to get your hand out of the way as soon as he accepts the toy.

Don't hit or yell at your kitten when he nips or pounces. This will only make him fearful of you and he may start to avoid you. The idea is to train him, not punish

Discouraging "Bad" Behavior

Playing is not bad behavior, but you do have to set the rules for your kitten; no biting. Everyone in the household has to be on the same page, too; your kitten can't be expected to learn that it's okay to play rough with dad but not with the baby. First equip yourself with the right training tools: toys, toys, toys, and a water pistol.

A Gnawing Problem: You shouldn't let your kitten play with your body parts, but if you're petting him and he starts gnawing on you, immediately say "uh-uh" and carefully take your hands away. Give him a toy to play with instead, but be sure he's not gnawing on you when you give it to him or he'll think he's being rewarded for gnawing. Don't try to pet him again until he's tuckered out and no longer tempted to "kill" your hand. You can also make your hands unattractive by putting a bad-tasting, harmless substance on them such as Bitter Apple or Tabasco sauce. Most kittens catch on quickly.

Gimmie That!: Kittens always seem to want to play with whatever you're using-knitting needles, pencil, telephone, remote control. If yours starts attacking" your utensils, sharply say "uh-uh" to disrupt his behavior. Then give him one of his own toys. Be sure he's not attacking when you give him a toy or he'll think he's being rewarded.

On the Hunt: Kittens also like to "hunt" you while you're walking around. They'll jump out from behind a door or under a chair and pounce on your ankles. If he doesn't pounce, praise him with "Good kitty". If he does pounce, use your sharp "uh-uh" to distract him and interrupt his behavior, and offer an acceptable toy. Be sure he's not pouncing when you provide the toy or he'll think he's being rewarded.

Pay no Attention: Withdraw attention when your kitten doesn't get the message. If the distraction and redirection techniques don't work, the most drastic thing you can do to discourage rough play is withdraw all attention. The best way to do this is walk to another room and close the door long enough for him to calm down. If you pick him up to put him in another room, then you're rewarding him by touching him, so you should be the one to leave the room.

Remember, your kitten wants to play with you, not just with toys, so be sure to set aside time for regular, serious and safe play sessions.

THE JOY OF YOGA WHY STUDY MORE?

Top 5 Reasons to Take a Yoga Teacher Training

Whether you are a long time practitioner of yoga or new to the practice, I'm guessing that there is some part of you that is in awe of yoga's vast wisdom and advanced practices. In group yoga classes, there is a limit to what we can practice and what the teacher can explain. However, each time the student attends, they get snippets of information and experiences of the concepts in practice. This is just enough to spark curiosity and the physical, mental, emotional benefits are just profound enough to have an impact on one's life. If the student practices yoga or studies ancient texts on their own, there may be a missing ingredient -the guidance and shakti (power) received from a teacher. Here is where the experience of a yoga teacher training comes into play. Yes, you do learn to teach yoga in a teacher training, but the content is a compilation of material which includes everything from philosophy and in-depth breakdowns of the postures to powerful practices that spark personal transformation. The whole process has a powerful way of re-shaping perception of the world around us and empowering the deeper parts of our being. On that premise, here are my top 5 reasons to take a yoga teacher training. This forum for experiential learning may be right for you if:

1. You want to know where the ancient wisdom comes from and how to apply it to your life. Theory and Application...what is the backdrop to this beautiful practice?

2. You want to revolutionize your physical practice of yoga. Discover correct alignment in poses, integrate impactful pranayama (breath practices), prevent injury, and change the way you carry yourself in the world.

3. You are seeking change and transformation in your life. Personal or professional transformation, yoga, meditation, and self-study provide established tools for living.

4. You are longing for new friendships, community, and support. Students from all walks of life connect through yoga and self-discovery in profound ways. This connection fosters lifelong friendships as each person grows.

5. You want to deepen your spiritual growth and practices through ancient lineage and a teacher-student relationship. It takes an experienced, insightful teacher to illuminate and pass down the deeper teachings of yoga. This teacher-student relationship is a wonderful dynamic and the way the teachings were handed down originally.

Keep practicing and consider bringing the ancient wisdom of yoga into your everyday life. There's no time like the present! #### IT'S THE HOLIDAYS LEAN TOWARD KINDNESS

We are nearing the end of another year and it is a time for reflection. Our growth and development require that we pause and take stock.

We are here for the lessons. Every life experience comes to us packed with information for our growth and development. When we have the feeling that life is happening to us and that we are repeating an unpleasant experience, it is wise to re-examine the event for the lesson. We are here to live mindfully, joyfully and with awareness. That doesn't mean that we won't have difficulties, but we can learn to modulate our responses

I awakened this morning with an insight: I want to be the person whose default is kindness, and I am welcoming that type of person to my life. I am not here dish out unpleasantness or to be ready with the cutting payback. I have put them all in cold storage. I'm not interested, and I have retired from sarcasm. I am working not to have to apologize for my speech or explain that I was just kidding. I want to be kind and to surround myself with loving people. There is a Maya Angelou quote: "When people show you who they are, believe them." It's repeated because it's true. I once met a man that said something very unpleasant within the first few hours of our first date. I confronted him immediately, Lori A. Harris and we both laughed it off; however, that was a pivotal moment that I failed to recognize. I later learned that this person's default is to be mean. He has to concentrate and work hard to be kind; it doesn't come naturally to him.

I would not trade my friendship or experiences with that person for anything, but I can work on being more cognizant and recognizing the clues before me.

We are responsible for the energy that we bring and our responses to circumstance. Never give away your power and exercise your respond-ability wisely.

People are always waving their flag; it's our job to pay attention.

During this holiday season, remember to take your time. Slow down and offer a bit of kindness to your neighbor. You have no idea what they may be experiencing at this moment. is is a lawyer and coach. You can schedule a discovery session with her at her website www.LoriAHarris.com/chat if you're contemplating making 2018 your best year ever sign up there for a session.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

IT'S TIME FOR DESSERT

Dessert before dinner? Why not? I have said many times in our teachings here that if you like it, buy it. Over the holidays I hosted a wine seminar at the Whole Foods in East Pasadena. Our list of wines included champagne, sangria, chardonnay, and a petite sirah, with price points ranging from $10 to $50 (yes, that was the Taittinger Champagne). To my pleasant surprise the hit of the tastings was a 2011 Petite Sirah from San Simeon

If you recall last weeks article on "fruit forward" and "jammy", a petite sirah is often a perfect starter wine for those just learning about wines, or those who might want an alternative to cabernet. Prices can range from $8 to $30 for a bottle. At $18 for the San

Simeon Sirah, this Orange County Fair gold medal winner is a great value in my book. It is indeed a bit jammy, but that is perfectly acceptable with grapes that are aged well. Petite sirah grapes were first introduced in France in the 1800's, but really never caught on partly due to the high humidity in Rhone. Here in California we have a drier climate so, much like the chardonnay grape, the petite sirah has thrived. Originally, petite sirah was paired with zinfandel grapes to tone down that "jammy" effect. Winemaker Anthony Riboli explains that they were able to capitalize on the small grapes' high skin-to- Dills Score: 90 juice ratio and make an exceptional wine on it's own Closure: Corked agrees - I think that this San Simeon treasure is Saturdays at 4 PM www.peterdills.com especially appreciated during the winter and will go great with a beef stew or a spicy bowl of chili with or without beans.

This weeks wine term: Tannins. Think of tannins as how the wine lies on or grips your tongue. Smooth? Rough? Neutral? Bitter? In layman's terms, it's "pucker power". Let's hope it's not the last one, bitter, that wouldn't be good.

THE GOOD LIFE

SIMPLE HOME MODIFICATIONS THAT CAN HELP SENIORS AGE IN PLACE

Dear Savvy Senior,

What tips can you recommend to help make a home safer for aging-in-place? My 76-year-old mother wants to stay living in her own home for as long as possible, but she doesn't have the money for any big renovations. Concerned Son

Dear Concerned,

There are dozens of small adjustments and simple Easier Living modifications you can do to help make your mom's home safer and more fit for aging-in-place, that won't cost her much if anything at all. Here are some suggestions to get you started.

Eliminate Trip and Slip Hazards

Since falls are the leading cause of home injury among seniors, a good place to start is by arranging or moving your mom's furniture so there are clear pathways to walk through. Position any electrical or phone cords along the wall so they won't be a tripping hazard. If she has throw rugs, remove them or use carpet tacks or double-sided tape to secure them. And pick up items Accessibility Solutions on the floor that could cause her to trip like papers, shoes or clothes.

In the bathroom, buy some non-skid rugs for the floors, and a rubber mat or adhesive nonslip strips for the floor of the tub or shower to prevent slipping, and have a carpenter install grab bars in and around the tub/shower and near the toilet for support.

Improve Lighting

Good lighting is very important for safe agingin-place, so check the wattage ratings on your mom's lamps and light fixtures, and install the brightest bulbs allowed. Purchase some nightlights for the bathroom and in the hallways that are used after dark. And consider adding under-cabinet task lighting in the kitchen, and motion sensor lights outside the front and back doors and in the driveway.

Hand Helpers

If your mom has hand arthritis or problems griping, install lever-style door handles (or doorknob lever adapters), which are easier to use than doorknobs. The same goes for twist knob kitchen or bathroom faucets, which you can replace with a single lever, touch or sensor-style faucet. And consider replacing knobs on cabinets and drawers with easier-to-grip D-shaped handles.

To help make your mom's kitchen easier to use, organize her cabinets so the things she uses most often are within easy reach without a lot of stooping or using a step stool. Also, consider installing pullout shelves beneath the counter and Lazy Susans in corner cabinets for easier access. And get her a kitchen stool so she can sit down while she's working.

In the bathroom for easier and safer bathing, consider purchasing a shower chair and install a handheld shower so your mom can bathe from a seated position if need be.

If your mom uses a walker or wheelchair, you can adapt her house by installing ramps on entrance steps, and mini-ramps to go over high thresholds. You can also install "swing-away" or "swing-clear" hinges on her doors to add two inches of width for easier access.

Safety Improvements

To keep your mom safe, set her hot water heater to 120 degrees Fahrenheit or below to prevent scalds. If she has stairs, put handrails on both sides. Also, install smoke and carbon monoxide detectors on all levels of her house, and place a lightweight, easy-to-use ABCrated fire extinguisher in an easily accessible location in the kitchen.

For more tips, get a copy of AARP's "HomeFit Guide" that's filled with dozens of aging-in-place recommendations. You can access it at AARP.org/ homefit, or call 888-687-2277 and ask them to mail you

Also note that all the previously mentioned products can be purchased either in local retail stores, home improvement stores, pharmacies or medical supply stores, or online at Amazon.com.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior.org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

PLUTO'S HYDROCARBON HAZE KEEPS DWARF PLANET COLDER THAN EXPECTED

New analysis of Pluto's atmosphere explains why New Horizons spacecraft measured temperatures much colder than predicted.

The gas composition of a planet's atmosphere generally determines how much heat gets trapped in the atmosphere. For the dwarf planet Pluto, however, the predicted temperature based on the composition of its atmosphere was much higher than actual measurements taken by NASA's New Horizons spacecraft in 2015.

A new study published November 16 in Nature proposes a novel cooling mechanism controlled by haze particles to account for Pluto's frigid atmosphere.

"It's been a mystery since we first got the temperature data from New Horizons," said first author Xi Zhang, assistant professor of Earth and planetary sciences at UC Santa Cruz. "Pluto is the first planetary body we know of where the atmospheric energy budget is dominated by solid-phase haze particles instead of by

The cooling mechanism involves the absorption of heat by the haze particles, which then emit infrared radiation, cooling the atmosphere by radiating energy into space. The result is an atmospheric temperature of about 70 Kelvin (minus 203 degrees Celsius, or minus 333 degrees Fahrenheit), instead of the predicted 100 Kelvin (minus 173 Celsius, or minus 280 degrees Fahrenheit).

According to Zhang, the excess infrared radiation from haze particles in Pluto's atmosphere should be detectable by the James Webb Space Telescope, allowing confirmation of his team's hypothesis after the telescope's planned launch in 2019.

Extensive layers of atmospheric haze can be seen in images of Pluto taken by New Horizons. The haze results from chemical reactions in the upper atmosphere, where ultraviolet radiation from the Sun ionizes nitrogen and methane, which react to form tiny hydrocarbon particles tens of nanometers in diameter. As these tiny particles sink down through the atmosphere, they stick together to form aggregates that grow larger as they descend, eventually settling onto the surface.

"We believe these hydrocarbon particles are related to the reddish and brownish stuff seen in images of Pluto's surface," Zhang said.

The researchers are interested in studying the effects Charon. Starting 3.2 days before the closest approach, other instruments sampled the planet's high MtnViewsNews.com.

Pandora's Box to be opened for public viewing. Why now? Who knows? The timing was right, apparently, and the pendulum has swung - in a good direction.

I've had many discussions in the past month as revelation after revelation has come forth, almost at a dizzying speed. The nature of this particular Pandora's Box is unique, and it has ignited deepfelt discussions by both men and women. I've had discussions with just men, just women, and with mixed groups. I'd like to share some of my observations.

First, by whatever divine timing occurs to allow such nasties to be revealed, it is clear that women have had enough! Women everywhere know how they have been treated for so long, almost automatically, and they want it to end. After all, let's face it -- the world is largely run by men, and woman in the work place which is his equal, and should be respected as such. Or, the men who have been running things for so long have come to expect - even demand - certain perks from the women who are part of their solar system.

Once, many years ago while having lunch with my mentor at the time, he noted that I glanced over at a very attractive woman in the next booth over. My mentor said nothing at first. Then, in a short while, he said, "Most men have no clue how hard it I discussed. I think it's good that the cat came out is to be a beautiful and attractive woman." He did not specify the woman that I had glanced at, but let's just say that she had all the assets that a man seems to not be able to not stare at. "Imagine if you were such a woman," he continued. "All day long, men would whistle at you, yell at you, taunt you, and they would interpret your every move as a flirt or an invitation to them." Honestly, I'd never quite thought about it that way before. I'd figured, as a male, that it would be quite awesome to be the most attractive woman in the room where every guy wanted to... well, you know.

My mentor continued. "The curse of being highly attractive is that it is nearly impossible for most men to see beyond your body, and get to know the person inside." I had to admit that was true. Sad, but true.

In our recent Weinstein-related discussions, most of the women were a bit surprised when I declared that nearly all men are natural predators, and that they have to work hard to overcome their animal nature. Women are not that way, and so they are too often surprised when a man's animal nature strikes. That's no excuse for the man, of course – it's just a fact.

I found it interesting that not a single man challenged my assertion that nearly all men are predators. Why? Because they are men! They know what it is like to be inside a man's body.

I was asked if I thought any of these women were lying with their sexual allegations. I said no, I didn't think so. I mean, maybe there are one or two exaggerations, but I didn't see any reason for deceit [Nyerges is a teacher, and in this matter. One man asked me, "Well, don't you author of such books at think it's odd that some of them waited 30 years to speak up?" No, I didn't find that unusual at all. He can be reached at www.SchoolofSelf- where it could not be decided by a court who was lying or telling the truth. So why would any woman The Harvey Weinstein saga was the opening under such difficult situations bother to again put salvo in what can be described as the latest herself through the wringer of the courts? I believe most of the women. The timing was right and they are speaking up, saying, I didn't like what you did to me. I did not consent. What you did was wrong.

And men should really sit up and listen. A woman does not like a man to push himself on her. A woman who rejects a man (for whatever reason) is not playing "hard to get." Guys, get over it. If the woman does not care for you, keep your hands to yourself and move along smartly. The world is a very big place. Remember, it is always the woman who chooses in a relationship. Get that into your

The Weinstein saga has brought up a lot of touchy issues, some of which will probably not be resolved any time soon. For example, there are some who want to revisit some of Bill Clinton's sexual allegations. But, they aren't interested in Bill's extramarital affairs something that occurred between two consenting many of them haven't gotten used to the idea of a adults and therefore their own business – but only in cases where Clinton forced himself on a woman, and used his power to influence her to do something she did not want to do.

"Do you think you are on," my wife said rather sarcastically, "Santa's nice list or naughty list?"

I always get trapped by such questions. I have been married long enough to know that questions are not posed to get an answer, but rather to get someone in trouble, mainly me.

I did not want to answer that question and I didn't know how to get away from it. Suddenly the answer came to me.

The telephone rang and I jumped up to answer it. It was some Robo call trying to sell me something I did not want. I took advantage of the situation and carried on a one-way conversation, hoping someone would forget the question they had asked previously.

Finally, I hung up the phone and resumed drinking my hot apple cider tea in the living room. Then it came back again. "Well, are you on the nice list or the naughty list?" This only points out the difference between us.

Nice is really a matter of perspective. Some people think something is nice while other people think the same thing is naughty. For instance. My wife thinks eating too many apple fritters is very naughty. I think you cannot eat too many apple fritters and it is really nice to eat one. Or two. Or three, or four.

I cannot see what naughty has to do with eating an apple fritter.

If eating an apple fritter puts me on Santa's naughty list, then I gladly apply for that position.

My problem is, looking at Santa and the dimensions of his waist, I do not think he believes eating an apple fritter is naughty. I am not sure my wife considered that aspect.

After all, everybody sets out cookies for Santa to eat when he brings the presents. What is the

I sure would like to know who set those rules.

I think if your mess is comfortable and you are happy with it, it should be nice.

If she thinks organizing her space is nice, then why can't she allow me the same privilege to think that my messy space is also nice? It is all just a matter of perspective.

Then it is Christmas time and people should be able to indulge in certain activities that at another time may be naughty. One of my holiday indulgences is eating. A bunch of us gathered to have a Christmas dinner before the actual Christmas holiday and we had a merry time. I was enjoying myself and indulging in the luxury of eating everything set before me.

Someone was passing a pumpkin pie and asked if I wanted another piece of pie. I've already had three pieces of pie, but this is the time of the year to indulge. Before I could even process the word "yes," my better half jumped in and said, "No, he's had enough pie for tonight."

Her definition of "enough pie" is a little different from mine. My definition is, "Yes, I'll take one more piece." It does not matter how many pieces I have had up to that point, one more is always on my plate. That is what makes eating pie nice for me.

The most disturbing part of that conversation was when she looked at me and said, "Remember, you're definition of nice and naughty." What I think is nice for me may not be nice for someone else. And what someone else thinks is naughty I may not consider to be naughty at all. It is all just a matter of perspective. Then a thought popped into my head.

"Are you referring to Santa's list or to your list?" For once, she had nothing to say. She just looked at me and could not come up with a comeback. Now that's nice.

I believe Paul had this in mind when he writes, "Furthermore then we beseech you, brethren, and exhort you by the Lord Jesus, that as ye have received of us how ye ought to walk and to please God, so ye would abound more and more" (1 Thessalonians

The question needs to be restated; are we on God's

ANOTHER YEAR...ANOTHER PHENOMENAL DRIVE: THANK YOU, CONGRESSWOMEN CHU AND NAPOLITANO, AND KAISER PERMANENTE

Sierra Madre Edition: Sierra Madre - Arcadia - Monrovia - Duarte

By Joan Schmidt

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month. For the last fourteen years, Congresswoman Judy Chu has been doing something really wonderful-a clothing drive- for victims of domestic violence. A few years ago, after she was elected to Congress, Grace Napolitano joined Chu in this outstanding effort.

I have been attending the Kickoff for this campaign for several years. I have listened to a victim recount her story and had to fight back tears. Yet I leave on a positive note, knowing something wonderful is being done to help these victims-not only women, but children. Kaiser Permanente has joined with the Congresswomen and has made large donations to each of the facilities that receive the clothing. Verizon also collects used phones, erases data, repairs them iand gives them to women at Shelters.

This year's phenomenal results: a whopping 420 30-gallon bags filled with clothing, toiletries and school supplies.

Congresswoman Napolitano said, "We are so grateful to all who dedicated time and resources to raise awareness, or donated items for women and children in need. These acts of compassion and generosity are so meaningful for many who are still recovering. Beyond physical harm and immediate threats to health, domestic violence can cause emotional and psychological wounds. We must continue to ensure Disaster Distress Helpline-1-800-985-5990 or Suicide Prevention mental health services are readily available at shelters for mothers Lifeline-1-800-273-8255.

and their children. I am proud to continue fighting to end domestic violence in our communities alongside Congresswoman Chu and all the wonderful people at Kaiser."

Congresswoman Chu said, "For the past 14 years, this Domestic Violence Campaign has been one of the highlights of my year because it highlights what is best in the community. Each year during this drive, I see a community coming together for those who have been through the worst. I see compassion in the donations of clothes and supplies. And I see that, even if just for a day at a time, things can get better. I'm proud to continue hosting this drive with my friend, Congresswoman Napolitano. And I'm proud to represent a district that does so much-from donating clothes to running shelters-to help survivors of domestic violence get and stay on their feet."

Maggie Pierce, from Kaiser Permanente, Baldwin Park told us that this was the fourteen year Kaiser hosted the necessities drive, that they believe in increasing awareness within our communities. She also thanked all who made donations.

Once again, victims had a wonderful day of pampering-hair styling, manicures, pedicures, gift bag and catered luncheon. THANK YOU TO ALL WHO MADE THIS HAPPEN.

IS YOUR HOME WINTERIZED? BE PREPARED FOR CLIMATE CHANGES

Most people living in Sunny Southern California don't give frozen pipes much thought, especially with our average temperature of 75 degrees. It is easy to put insulating pipes at the bottom of the to-do list. This is precisely why Southern California residents are in more danger than those who live in climates that have regular freezing temperatures.

Pasadena Edition: Pasadena - South Pasadena - Altadena - San Marino

Southern California residents are more likely to have exposed non-insulated pipes. One night of temperatures dropping in the twenties could be the beginning of the end. The non-insulated exposed pipes may freeze, causing the ice to expand within the pipe. This puts pressure against the closed faucets in your home and could cause a plumbing or sprinkler line to burst.

If you are asleep, you could find your entire home flooded. If you are on vacation or your property is vacant, you could find yourself in the middle of a mold experiment as mold can grow within 24 hours. An ounce of preparation can prevent a disastrous flood and can save you thousands of dollars.

It is important to take proper measures to winterize your home in case there is a significant drop in temperature:

WATER MOLD

Insulate exposed pipes.

Purchase pre-slit and pre-glued foam insulation from your local hardware store to insulate pipes. Look for holes where pipes enter and exit your home. Fill and repair open areas with expanding foam to fill in these spaces.

Disconnect garden hoses.

Hoses often hold water that could freeze, expand, and force pressure into your home's pipes.

Locate hidden and exterior pipes. Insulate pipes by placing them inside cabinets and make sure the heat from the home reaches them. Keep the thermostat set no lower than 55 degrees Fahrenheit. Your home's interior temperature will keep pipes from freezing.

Let your faucets drip.

If you know freezing temperatures are expected, turn on your faucets and let the faucet drip to relieve pressure and prevent freezing.

Turn water off at the main line, open and drain faucets.

If you are going out of town or your home is vacant, this can prevent flooding.

If pipes do freeze, do not defrost them with fire. If there is a leak, turn off the water property, open the faucets. You can use a hair dryer to thaw the 24/7 Free Help When You Need Trusted frozen pipe but should EMERGENCY RESTORATION CONTRACTORS never use electrical devices in or around

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

FOUR GOOD REASONS WHY ESTATE PLANNING ISN'T JUST FOR THE RICH

There is a common misconception that estate plans are only for the ultra-wealthy - the top 1 percent, 10%, or some other arbitrary determination of "enough" money. In reality, nothing could be further from the truth. People at all income and wealth levels can benefit from a comprehensive estate plan. Yet sadly, many will never sit down to get their legal house in order.

According to a 2016 Gallup News Poll more than half of all Americans do not even have a will, let alone a comprehensive estate plan. Gallup noted that 44 percent of people surveyed in 2016 had a will place, compared to 51 percent in 2005 and 48 percent in 1990. Also, over the years, there appears to be a trend of fewer people even thinking about estate planning.

When it comes to estate planning, the sooner you start the better. Below are four reasons why everyone - no matter what income or wealth level - can benefit from a comprehensive estate plan:

1. Forward Thinking Family Goals: Proper estate planning can accomplish many things. The first step is to ask what your goals are. They may include caring for a minor child, an elderly parent, a disabled relative, or distributing real and personal property to individuals who will appreciate and maintain these assets prudently. Understanding your family wants and needs is a great starting point for any estate plan. If you can sit down and spend time planning your vacation, you should do the same for your estate. Your future self, and your loved ones, will thank you.

2. Financial Confidence Now and After You Are Gone: One immediate benefit of having a finished estate finances, possibly for the first time ever. Many people information.

experience a new sense of discipline in maintaining their finances which can help with saving for retirement, a big purchase, or other goal. In addition to the personal benefit of financial control, an estate plan allows you to dictate exactly how and when your heirs receive an inheritance. This is particularly important for minor heirs or those who need additional guidance to manage an inheritance, like a disabled child.

3. Identify Risks: An important aspect of a good estate plan is to mitigate against future and current risks. One example is becoming disabled and unable to support your family. Another is the possibility of dying early. Through an estate plan you can chose who will be in control of your personal assets, instead of the court appointing a legal guardian - costing money and becoming a distraction for your family. While contemplating these types of risks is never fun, preparing ahead of time ensures your loved ones will be prepared if an unfortunate tragedy does occur.

4. To Maintain Your Privacy: In the absence of a fully funded, trust-based estate plan, a list of one's assets are available for public view upon death. This occurs during probate, the legal process by which a court administers the deceased person's estate. A solid estate plan will generally avoid the need for involvement by the probate court, so your family's privacy can be maintained.

The Bottom Line: Seek Professional Advice

There are numerous benefits to working with a professional team when it comes to estate planning. Estate planning attorneys, financial advisors, insurance agents, and others have a broad and deep knowledge of money management, financial implications, and the law. When you work with a qualified team to implement an estate plan you can rest easy knowing your family will be taken care of no matter what happens in the future.

HOLIDAY CHEER CAN PAY OFF ALL YEAR

Business owners, you still have time to sow seeds day. It may be a "free" item, or included with a purchase. of generosity to customers and the community this holiday season. After all, "it's the thought that counts," and if you'll give it some thought, your expression of generosity doesn't have to cost a lot of money to make an impression that may translate into more sales in the upcoming year. Short on funds or have no budget to do something nice? Think again. Here are a number of recommendations to fit budgets (and non-budgets)

No budget? For businesses with physical locations, it begins with a few decorations to tap into the holiday theme that your customers are enjoying at other establishments. Hopefully you have some ornaments, tinsel or lights to add a festive accent to your store. If not, take a stroll to local parks and collect fallen pine cones and sprigs from trees to create a basket. Find red and green cloths or scarves to use as a table cover and as a sash to tie around the basket or container. Have someone with nice penmanship to write a "Happy Holidays from (Your Company Name)" or prepare and print one from your computer. Place this sign on, or near your display. See if you have any inventory items that you have not been able to sell, and that you may have thought about discarding. Wrap each item in packing paper and tie a ribbon around it, or attach a colorful card or small decoration to each package. You may want to use seethru wrapping to allow customers to select particular items. If you don't have room for a small Christmas tree, create a "gift area" and direct each person visiting your store to select a gift. You may wish to have a different selection of gifts as an extra thank you for customers who make purchases.

Place a small basket filled with small wrapped candies or small gifts, on the sales counter or small table. Punch a small hole through your business cards, lace a small piece of ribbon through each one and tie it to your holiday take-away. Customers are more likely to keep your business card, as opposed to a paper tag or flyer.

Small budget? A "12 Days of Christmas" theme can be used to countdown your final sales day up to December 25th. Offer a different small gift or treat each year.

Examples: A coffee shop offers a different tasting of tea, free or with the purchase of a pastry. A restaurant offers a free mini-portion appetizer with each bar purchase.

A few extra bucks to spare? Host a holiday open house, which will serve the purpose of thanking your customers, but will also give them another reason to visit your establishment. Apple cider, cookies, fruit tray or a more elaborate spread of refreshments or hors' dourves will add liveliness to any gathering. Your open house can be scheduled as a time-limited gathering on a specific day or evening, or you may decide to host a weeklong open house that offers refreshments to everyone who visits during certain hours. The purpose is to give you or your staff an opportunity to greet and connect with everyone who walks through your doors.

There are recommendations for home-based entrepreneurs or those who perform work at their clients' places of business as well. No budget? Make personal phone call to thank each customer for business during the year, then follow-up with an animated e-mail holiday greeting. If possible, invest in a box of greeting cards to send the old-fashioned way, or deliver in person, with a candy cane or other sweet treat attached with a ribbon. Small budget? Purchase a bottle of sparkling apple cider and invest in an attractive wine gift bag available at your local "99¢" or "Dollar" store and make your rounds in person or have the items delivered. Extra cash to spare? Hopefully you have gleaned some information about the personal tastes or hobbies of your clients, so it's time to look at how much you plan to spend and make your shopping list. Be sure to include a greeting card with a personal note from you. These gifts can be mailed in advance or delivered in person.

The celebratory nature of the holiday season presents opportunities to connect and strengthen relationships with existing customers and to provide an introduction to potential customers. So get into the holiday spirit with a little generosity toward your customers, you may find these small gestures as the "gift that will keep on giving" to your success throughout the following

TRUMP TWEETS BENEATH THE DIGNITY OF HIS OFFICE, AGAIN

Another week, another Twitter-enabled controversy from President

On Wednesday morning, amongst his complaints against CNN and gripes about protesting NFL players, President Trump "retweeted" - that is, promoted to his 43.6 million followers— - three short videos that had originally been posted by Jayda Fransen, deputy leader of the United Kingdom's "Britain First" movement.

Each purported to show alarming content. The first claimed to be a video of a young Muslim migrant attacking a Dutch youth on crutches; the second showed a bearded man, also identified as Muslim, smashing a statue of the Virgin Mary. And the last and arguably most gut-wrenching appeared to depict a group (of, again, supposed Muslims) pushing a young man off of a roof and subsequently beating him in a pixelated mob.

None of the videos were sourced, verified, or even contextualized with basic date or timestamps. Each was, however, far beneath the dignity of the office of the Presidency of the United States.

They are perfectly in keeping with the dignity, however, of the original posters. A fringe ultranationalist group, Britain First is known for pitifully poor election showings and "protest" actions that often trend into outright racism and harassment. Fransen herself was charged with "religiously aggravated harassment" in May of this year, mere months before the Electoral Commission of the U.K. Parliament deregistered the organization as a political party.

So far, one of the videos has already turned out to be, as the president says, fake news. The supposed "Muslim migrant" attacking a "Dutch boy" was in fact a born and raised Dutch citizen; the Netherlands Embassy as well as the public prosecutor's office that handled the case each confirmed as much, and that the young man had already completed his sentence for the

When informed that President Trump had tweeted false, incendiary propaganda, White House Press Secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders simply said, "Whether it's a fake video, the threat is real." Somehow, this explanation made more sense than her next excuse: that the president was trying to "elevate the conversation" about terrorism, as if he doesn't belch out demands for his ineffective ban and wasteful wall immediately after every act of violence not committed by a white man at home or abroad.

While the leaders of Britain First are thrilled by the president's attention, the rest of the United Kingdom is not. Prime Minister Theresa May and London Mayor Sadiq Khan both denounced the tweets as contrary to their nation's values. The president was criticized and mocked from all sides of the U.K. political spectrum during a special floor debate in Parliament, while other public figures piled on. And now, rumors are swirling that an early 2018 working visit by President Trump to London may be off the table.

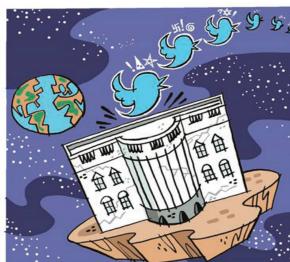

But President Trump's actions carry risks beyond just damage to our special relationship with the United Kingdom.

For one, the State Department has already warned that his retweets could inflame tensions in the Middle East, where rabble-rousers look for any excuse to protest or even attack American embassies. This is, of course, the problem with extremists; their rhetoric and actions give each other the opportunity for escalation, leaving peaceful majorities caught in the crossfire.

Of equal concern, however, is the power that President Trump is giving to America's Britain First-esque fringe—those who have committed an increasing number of hate crimes since his election, and might be inspired to do even worse if they are enraged by what they see. The president seems perilously close to inciting violence by propagating these irresponsible videos with no qualification or explanation; he is doing nothing to keep us safe, and everything to feed the raging ids of those who share his suspicions of others.

Not long ago, it was a scandal for such shoddy, vile propaganda to be seen on even a state legislator's social media account; now, the President of the United States can tweet it out, cause an international row, and imperil American security at home and abroad all in a 24-hour news cycle. It isn't clear what will dissuade President Trump from this dangerous behavior, but one thing is for sure: He continues to degrade the pulpit from which he speaks to the world every time he sends another shameful tweet.

A GLARING LOOPHOLE FOR FUGITIVES

When gun-control and gun-rights advocates clash after the latest mass shooting, you can usually count on two rhetorical chips being thrown onto the table:

"What new law would have stopped the latest massacre?" gunrights advocates will ask.
That'll inevitably be followed up with the assertion that if we put limits on gun ownership, then only the bad guys will have guns.

But thanks to a law enforcement turf war, we know know the latter is provably untrue. That's because, back in February, 70,000 people were purged from an FBI database over a disagreement over the definition of "fugitive from justice," leaving them legally able to purchase firearms.

As The Washington Post reported last week, people wanted by law enforcement were removed from the National Instant Criminal Background Check System when the FBI "changed its legal interpretation of 'fugitive from justice' to say it only [pertained] to people who crossed state lines."

The background checks system, which is run by the FBI, made headlines when it was revealed that the Air Force followed to fail policies that would have added Texas church shooter Devin P. Kelley to the system.

The Charleston church shooter, Dylann Roof, was wrongly able to legally purchase the weapon in his murderous rampage after his name was not added to the database because of an arrest for drug possession. The mistake in the Roof case has been referred to as "The Charleston Leonhol." Charleston Loophole

Gun owners, spurred by on the National Rifle Association, have opposed efforts to expand background checks, seriously arguing they "don't necessarily stop criminals from getting firearms."

Taking a break from forgetting things about Russia and trampling on the rights of Americas LGBTQ citizens, U.S. Attorney General Jeff Sessions at least had the presence of mind last week to send a letter to the FBI and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms calling on the two agencies to fix the system.

The NICS system is "critical for us to be able to keep guns out of the hands of those . . . prohibited from owning them," Sessions said. He also reportedly ordered the two agencies to report back to him on measures ensuring that "people who are prohibited from purchasing firearms are prevented from doing so." The problem is that Sessions' own Justice Department is part of the problem here.

Last year, before President Donald Trump took office, The Post reported the DoJ's Office of Legal Counsel sided with the ATF (which had narrow definition of fugitive) against the FBI (which had historically had a broader one), agreeing that gun purchases could only be denied to fugitives who crossed state lines. Then, after Trump took office, the DoJ further narrowed the definition, confining it those who had crossed "state lines to avoid prosecution for a crime or to avoid giving testimony in a criminal proceeding." And faster than you could say "shall not be infringed," what had once been a list of 500,000 fugitives in the database had been trimmed to ridiculously small 788.

Robyn Thomas, executive director of the Giffords Law Center to Prevent Gun Violence, called on the FBI and ATF to "correct this self-inflicted loophole," and also called on the government to recover the weapons that had been illegally purchased by people purged

That's a tall order, since the folks with the guns are, well, fugitives, and are presumably pretty good at evading contact with law enforcement. One also imagines that taking the weapons back might not end well for at least one side of that discussion. David Chipman, a former ATF official who now advises the Giffords group, says Congress should pass a law cleaning up the definition of fugitive so that the current legal logjam won't repeat itself in the future. "I would imagine 99 percent of Americans don't want people who have a warrant out on them to be able to buy a gun," Chipman told The Post. "I can't believe there is a constituency for wanted people. Wanted people are particularly dangerous. They've already proven that they'll break the law."

With Congress unwilling to take even the most minor of steps to expand background checks or limit the sale of devices that enable mass slaughter, those on both sides of the debate should be able to agree that this "fugitive loophole" should be closed as soon as possible.

MAKING SENSE by MICHAEL REAGAN

AT&T, CNN MERGER DOESN'T WORRY ME LIKE SINCLAIR

Last year, I expressed serious reservations about the proposed AT&T-Time Warner merger. I argued, at the time, that allowing this merger will have important implications for a free press and American democracy for many years to come.

I reasoned that by approving the merger, more media concentration would follow and the liberal media would gain an even bigger foothold on what Americans see and hear on I still believe that is true, but over the last 12 months, many more concerning deals have been announced and Donald Trump's own FCC Chairman, Ajit Pai, has all but eliminated the last remaining regulatory hurdles protecting us from a liberal media monopoly. Donald Trump had campaigned against this "concentration of media power."

Today, the Department of Justice is the only federal agency left protecting conservative

So while I still believe the AT&T-Time Warner merger has some serious concerns, I am now more troubled by what may happen to CNN and Time Warner if AT&T fails to buy them. AT&T over the years has proven itself as a fair-minded company. It is not known as liberal. It's CEO Randall Stephenson is national president of the Boy Scouts.

T here is talk that if AT&T either divests itself of CNN to make a deal possible, or drops the deal altogether, CNN could end up in the hands of Disney, CBS or another liberal media group. What's from stopping George Soros from buying them?

I am also concerned the Justice Department's relentless pursuit of AT&T is allowing other mergers to perhaps sail through – deals that will most certainly be calamitous for conservatives and the Republican party.

Take, for example, the proposed merger of Sinclair Broadcasting with Tribune Media. This merger, announced roughly six months after the AT&T deal, attempts to combine two giant television broadcasters.

If consummated, this deal would give Sinclair control over 233 stations reaching 72 percent of all U.S. households under the control of one company.

Sinclair leans conservative, and that looks good at first. But the approval of the Sinclair deal will permit ABC, CBS and NBC to gobble up all those little TV stations in red states and even in swing states. Instead of local, independent owners delivering the local news, the big networks like NBC will control and dictate it from New York. Back in the 1980s my father's FCC limited television broadcasters to owning just 12 stations reaching only 25 percent of the national television market.

My dad completely understood the danger posed by the big liberal networks.

Frankly, President Trump won because my dad imposed that TV ownership cap. One of the reasons that Sinclair became a big player in local news is that my dad created the ownership cap to prevent NBC, ABC and CBS from owning all the local television stations around the

If President Trump allows this runaway consolidation in TV, liberal media networks like ABC, NBC and CBS will soon control both the national and local information flow into our

Interesting, the approval of the AT&T will not add at all to AT&T's media power. It currently owns little media. If its gets control of outlets like CNN, this may turn out to be a good thing for President Trump and the American people. But the real danger facing us now is the Sinclair Tribune deal. It will not only lead to a massive concentration of power, but give TV networks incredible leverage over smaller, independent stations, advertisers and cable operators - reducing competition and forcing consumer prices up.

You don't need to be an economist to know if three companies own 80 percent of the gas stations in your town, you are going to pay a higher price. I would encourage the Justice Department to look at ways to approve the AT&T with protections for viewers and consumers. At the same time it should focus on the transaction that really matters and take steps to stop

From: The City of Sierra Madre Subject:

MUNIČIPAL CODE TEXT AMENDMENT 17-05 – VACANT RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY REGISTRATION REQUIREMENT

Applicant: City of Sierra Madre

Properties in the City of Sierra Madre, County of Los Angeles, State of California

On November 28, 2017 the City Council of the City of Sierra Madre introduced for second reading Ordinance No. 1390 recommending adoption of Municipal Code Text Amendment 17-05. This summary is published pursuant to Government Code Section 36933(c)(1) and a full and complete certified copy of the text of Ordinance No. 1390 is available at the Sierra Madre City Manager's office located at City of Sierra Madre City Hall, 232 W. Sierra Madre Blvd., Sierra Madre, CA. Ordinance 1390 becomes effective on December 28, 2017. For further information on this subject, please contact the Planning and Community Preservation Department at (626) 355-7138.

The purpose of MCTA 17-05 is to amend Title 8 of the Health and Safety Code establishing Chapter 8.18 - Vacant Residential Property Registration Requirement. The purpose of the amendment is to establish a registration program for vacant properties in the R-I Zone (Single Family Residential), R-2 Zone (Two Family Residential), Hillside Management Zone, and Residential Canyon Zone. The purpose of the requirement is to protect neighborhoods from the effects of vacant properties that are not adequately maintained and to address health and safety issues that may arise at the property. The registration requirement will identify three responsible parties that can respond to health and safety code violations. The ordinance includes the following provisions:

Responsible parties

Responsible parties includes, but is not limited to, every owner, owner of record, beneficiary, lienholder, trustee, servicing company, real estate agent, property management company, as well as any person acting on behalf of another responsible party that shall be responsible for the maintenance and security of the real property.

Registration

The owner of a residence vacant or intended to be vacant for sixty 60 days is subject to the registration requirement.

Property Maintenance Requirements

The property shall be maintained in a neat, clean, healthful, and sanitary condition at all times.

Property Maintenance Plan Real property subject to the registration requirements shall submit at time of registration a property maintenance plan.

Security requirements Structures, swimming pools and other potential hazards shall be secured within seventy two (72) hours of becoming vacant in a manner to prevent access by unauthorized persons. Responsible parties shall submit an "emergency waiver" to the City at the time of registration. The waiver allows the police department, fire department, code enforcement officer, or public safety personnel to access the property not visible from public view to respond to health and safety concerns. Violations, penalties and appeals

Any person who causes, permits, or suffers a violation of any provision of this chapter, or who fails to comply with any obligation or requirement of this chapter, is guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to administrative citations in accordance with Chapter 1.18 Administrative Enforcement of this code. Any responsible party may request a hearing before the Planning Commission in order to challenge or appeal the imposition of any additional maintenance and/or security requirements. At the meeting on August 17, 2017, the Planning Commission conducted a public hearing and recommended to the City Council adoption of MCTA 17-05.

APPEAL: If in the future anyone wishes to challenge the decision of the City Council in court, one may be limited to raising the issues that were raised or presented in written correspondence delivered to the City Council at, or before, the scheduled public hearing. For further information on this subject, please contact the Planning and Community Preservation Department at (626) 355-7138.

The City of Sierra Madre From:

MUNICIPAL CODE TEXT AMENDMENT 17-07 (MCTA 17-07) Subject: City of Sierra Madre

Project Location: Properties in the City of Sierra Madre, County of Los Angeles, State of California

The City of Sierra Madre gives notice, pursuant to State of California law, that the Planning Commission will conduct a public hearing to consider recommending adoption of Municipal Code Text Amendment 17-07 amending Chapter 17.56 – Nonconforming Uses Ordinance and Chapter 17.82 – Historic Preservation Ordinance. The purpose of the amendment to Chapter 17.82 is to update regulations for uses and structures that have become non-conforming over time due to changes in the City's Zoning Code and to update Section 17.56.090 "Exemptions and Exceptions" regarding nonconforming parking for residential and non-residential uses by providing greater flexibility to waive the need for a certified parking study for non-residential structures and providing an allowance to provide one parking space for small residential additions subject to the approval of a minor conditional use permit. Amendments to Chapter 17.82 include a revision to the definition of "Bed and breakfast inn" and expands the "Adaptive reuse of historic structures" to allow "Bed and breakfast inns" with up to six units in single family zones and up to 12 units in multifamily zones subject to a conditional use permit. Following a Planning Commission recommendation for approval, the proposed text amendment will be forwarded to the City Council for their consideration.
