BUSY AT HOME AND AWAY

Sierra Madre city employees have been busy dealing with natural disasters at home and away! City employees (above) made every effort to remove a fallen tree that fell across Oakcrest drive and blocked all traffic this week. In addition, the Sierra Madre Fire Department was dispatched on January 12, 2018 to the January Storms Incident in Santa Barbara. The Water Tender is currently assigned as part of a structure response strike team to provide water shuttle support. Due to the recent mudslides, many fire hydrants in the affected area are out of service; as part of their daily operations, Water Tender 41 is testing hydrants for operational capability. Captain Mike Goth and Firefighter Mark Duson are currently assigned to Water Tender 41. A shift exchange will occur on Saturday, January 20th, if necessary.

"Where Old-Fashioned Service Is Never Out-dated"

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"This year I just want to go on more adventures, be sundae. Yes, friends, I'm admitting that in print. I've around good energy, connect with people, learn new things and grow."

Its pages are blank. We are going to put words on them ourselves.

The book is called 'Opportunity' and its first chapter is New Year's Day."

What if you simply devoted this year to loving yourself more!"

"Do more of what makes you happy!"

We're three weeks into the New Year and I'm actually keeping the resolution I made. It's one of those above. How are you doing with yours? What's at the top of most people's resolution list? Lose weight. Yep, year after year, we all want to lose weight. What else do we want to change about ourselves? More exercise? Less TV? More reading? Tackle the World's Great Books? Clean out our desk? Meditate? There are so many things we can do to make ourselves crazy trying to remake ourselves.

Exercise. Sigh... I don't do enough of it and I know it. You probably don't either. I've been giving myself the excuse of the bum knee, which will be replaced January 16th. Then I'll have no excuse at all. I'm also fond of It's too cold! It's too hot! But those are really lame and I admit it. For years John and I talked about taking a walk in the evening but there's something about it getting to be the end of cream...not cookies...no, another glass of Trader Hamilton in Hamilton: "Smile more, talk less!" Joe's lemon flavored sparkling water and maybe an

The world of serious exercise folks tell us that we need just as much resistance training as we do cardio. Weight training makes for stronger bones and all sorts of good stuff. But you can't go to the Violin gym till you do something with the bed-head hair, put some concealer on the bags under the eyes and, for pity's sake, just a little blush so one doesn't look like a zombie. Unfortunately, a very dear friend just sent me a cute little tin full of fudge. I love fudge. My favorite treat in this world? A McDonald's hot fudge already eaten 3 pieces of this fudge and have to figure out a way to store it out of my sight till Super Bowl Sunday so I can bring it out and leave it with other people.

This is getting way too close to home. I'm actually going to have to act on this as I've written it down. OK, the world is my witness, I'm going to start walking just as soon as I recover from my knee replacement. Even if it's freezing? Yep, even then.

I made a few more resolutions after reading an editorial Susan Henderson wrote a while back. Here are a few of her thoughts that really struck me: If we want to make society better, we must start with ourselves. How about not making generalizations that disparage people who are different. Consider making a concentrated effort to see people as individuals instead of lumping them in with whatever group is making bad news currently. If we start with ourselves, we can diminish the amount of hatred that permeates the air. Here is her resolution, with which I wholeheartedly agree: Let's all do better! Let's start with ourselves, one person at a time. Let's see if we can make love and respect spread that way. Let's make 2018 the year when we passionately, as individuals work on real change. Oh, if you're wondering which resolution I picked for myself? It's actually all of those up there at the top. Well, yeah, I'd like to lose a little weight, too. And maybe go through my closet and the day when all one really wants to do is get into take out all the clothes I haven't worn in five years or one's jammies and not doing anything more difficult longer. Maybe get my car washed more than three than walk into the kitchen for... wait for it... not ice times a year. And, as Aaron Burr says to Alexander

"Let there be peace on earth and let it begin with me." Jill Jackson Miller and Sy Miller - 1955.

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER YOU SURVIVE A DISASTER?

Surviving a disaster like a flood, fire, hurricane or earthquake can deprive you of all the comforts you own. But that's only half of it, even with supplies of food and water, there will be psychological effects we will all experience. Loss of loved ones, home, and possessions will take their toll. Learning how to be prepared psychologically before a disaster is often overlooked.

Police Looking for Burglary Suspect

Pasadena police are asking for the public's help locating a hot prowl burglary suspect who entered a home earlier this month.

According to police, on Wednesday, January 10, at approximately 7:45 a.m., a resident returned home and interrupted the depicted suspect during a burglary in the 200 block of South Catalina Avenue. The resident heard additional voices upstairs, which led him to believe there was more than one suspect.

The suspect appears to have entered the residence an unlocked through window. The resident was not injured during the burglary. The investigation is ongoing and no additional information is being released at this time.

The suspect is described as Black male, 6'-1"/athletic build, short black "buzz" cut hair and brown eyes. The suspect had a clean appearance. Approximately 20 to 30 years old.

Anyone with information should call Detective Chris Burchett at (626) 744-7088 or Pasadena Police at (626) 744-4241. To provide information anonymously, you may call "Crime Stoppers" at (800) 222-TIPS (8477).

Pet of the Week

Snowball (A448097) is a lovable bunny. Our volunteers love spending time with him because he is very inquisitive and not shy at all. When you open his kennel door he hops right up to you and sniffs you. He enjoys being petted, especially between the ears. If you give him attention for a few minutes he will show you how happy he is and do a few binkies in a row. Snowball and his pals are available for adoption at the Pasadena Humane Society.

The adoption fee for rabbits is $35. All rabbits are spayed or neutered and microchipped before going to their new home.

New adopters will receive a complimentary health-andwellness exam from VCA Animal Hospitals, as well as a goody bag filled with information about how to care for your pet.

Call the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA at (626) 792-7151 to ask about A448097, or visit at 361 S. Raymond Ave. in Pasadena. Adoption hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday; and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Pets may not be available for adoption and cannot be held for potential adopters by phone calls or email. Directions and photos of all pets can be found at pasadenahumane.org.

The Pasadena Police Department is alerting residents of recent thefts of gardening equipment from the back of pick-up trucks. While you and your workers are maintaining the yards of our community, some of your equipment is left unattended.

This creates the opportunity for thieves to steal your tools from the unattended work trucks. In some isolated cases the thieves are stealing the entire work truck with the equipment.

Safety tips to deter thieves from stealing your equipment

1. Secure your equipment in the back of your work trucks through some kind of locking device and or heavy duty cables which are not easily cut.

2. Have a person with your work truck at all times.

3. Carry a list of serial numbers for large items such as lawn mowers, leaf blowers, trimmers...etc.

4. Take a picture of your equipment, if it is stolen you may be able to identify equipment through photographs.

5. Etch your name and an identifying symbol on your equipment.

President and owner Charles Kohnen of SEAmagine gave our Scouts a behind the scenes tour and presentation of the operation that has transformed the world of undersea exploration. Our Scouts were treated to a demonstration of the submersibles robotic arms, an up-close and personal view of two submersibles on display in the warehouse and an in-depth presentation and videos of how they work.

The Scouts were engaged and asking many questions about depth, pressure, breathing, time under water, and types of submersibles as well as the difference between a submarine and a submersible. The answer given by Mr. Kohnen will never be forgotten...a submarine has a toilet and a submersible does not.

RAPTOR'S RAPTURE

One weekend my husband and I decided it had been far too long since the last time we'd gone "out to country", so we put everything else aside and drove to Lake Matthews in Perris, CA to spend the day at the Animazonia Wildlife Foundation's big cat

Animazonia opens the gates to their gorgeous sanctuary for public visitation & site tours on the first Saturday of each month. If you have never visited the Animazonia Wildlife Refuge or the Lake Matthews area for that matter, I highly recommend it. Steep, rounded rolling hills with huge boulders & dramatic outcroppings add remarkable beauty to the wide open country as you wind your way up passed the lake and you'll enjoy the fabulous view of Mount Baldy in the distance, to the north.

You'll see herds of sheep on the hillsides and small farms along the way with horses, chickens and goats. But to me, the best part of the drive was seeing numerous big birds soaring in the sky around the lake and over the meadows. If you do decide to take that drive, be sure to stop by and say hello to the ladies who work so hard at Animazonia Wildlife Foundation.

That month's feature event at Animazonia, entitled "Raptor Release" was sponsored by the Orange County Bird of Prey Center (OCBPC) and presented by veterinarian Dr. Scott Weldy, director of the organization and owner of Serrano Animal & Bird Hospital in Lake Forrest, CA.

Raptors, or birds of prey include owls, eagles, falcons, condors, hawks, ospreys, kites, and vultures. They have strong grasping feet with sharp talons for catching and holding prey. Their hooked upper beak tears and kills their catch, and their binocular vision allows them depth perception for Raptors are very important to our environment because they help maintain the balance of nature by controlling the population of rodents, reptiles, insects and other small wild life. Because of the important role they play in the balance of nature, raptors are now protected by state and federal laws, but if you ask me, their beauty and elegance alone is enough reason to protect them.

Well-known for his sincere heart-felt dedication to rescuing and rehabilitating orphaned, injured or ill birds of prey, Dr. Weldy brought with him 5 raptors, 3 of which had been rehabilitated and were ready for re-introduction to the wild. The other 2 were "Hank", a gorgeous red tail hawk and "Gus", a sweet petite screech owl. Both had been rescued as youngsters and had spent their formative weeks as babies being cared for by humans, so they came to know the humans as their parents.

This phenomenon of nature is called "imprinting" and it can be the reason why some wild birds in captivity will never have a chance to be released and fly free again. Dr. Weldy and the Animazonia staff volunteers gave a very interesting and educational presentation which was quite a treat, but the best part of the event was when the 3 raptors were released.

It was an emotional experience to watch them take to the sky, after being in captivity for the treatment & care that allowed them to become healthy enough to fly again. As each bird flew away, I couldn't help thinking they were being lifted up to the heavens and given a second chance at life, much like the rapture we read about in the Bible.

All 3 birds had their own story to tell, from being pushed out of the nest too early by a larger sibling, to falling from the sky after coming into contact with an electrical wire or some other man-made obstruction. All 3 had been rescued at a crucial time, when it was touch and go, life or death. They were the lucky ones who were found by someone who cared enough to rescue them.

As I watched each raptor flying up into the heavens, it gave me new hope that wild creatures are way more tenacious than I sometimes think they are. It is true that they appear quite delicate when they fly high in the sky and they can be rendered vulnerable due to habitat encroachment or various other causes of injury or illness, but the raptor is one tough bird that will not give up without a fight, and that is yet another lesson learned from nature's wild creatures that I can live by.

If you should happen to come across an injured or orphaned bird of prey, please call the local Animal Control Department, or contact OCBPC @ 949-837-0786 to report it. Do not attempt to care for an injured or orphaned raptor yourself. Not only is it against the law to do so, but it may result in serious injury to you or the bird.

If it is necessary to handle the injured bird before the pros arrive for the rescue, use heavy gloves and a towel or blanket for easier handling. Grasp the bird on the sides, over properly folded wings and place it in a cardboard box just slightly larger than the bird itself. It is important to keep a record of the time, date and location of the capture.

Some raptors have been "banded", meaning they were in captivity at some point, and are now wearing an ID bracelet that will provide important information and a phone number to call. Be certain that any baby bird you might find is truly orphaned before removing it from the area. It may have fled it's nest, but still being cared for by it's parents that are not visible but nearby, in which case it is much better off being left alone. Show respect to all wildlife, and as always, love and let live!

Yogic Wisdom for Everyday Life YOGA AND AYURVEDA ON STRESS

Together yoga and its sister science Ayurveda, provide well-rounded solution to address the effects of stress. It's an interesting point of view that empowers each one of us to live the life we want each day. Stress is not always out of our control. Viewing through the lens of Ayurveda-- one of the world's oldest medicinal systems--stress has a significant impact on our vital energy reserve (Ojas) and causes a weakened immune system.

Stress is primarily associated with Vata and Pitta Doshas or Mind-Body types. Kapha Dosha, made up of earth and water, is literally "unmoved" by stress and tends not to worry, over-schedule or react quickly. So let's focus on the other two. Vata-type (air & ether): Stress occurs through anxiety, fear, excess travel, loss (relationships, jobs, etc.), physical trauma, being worn out and energy depletion. Pitta-type (fire & water): Stress occurs through anger, intensity, deadlines, physical trauma, competition and drive, and being burned out Stress is inevitable. However, by knowing our own tendencies, we have one of the keys to reduce stress. A plan for support and self-care can be planned in advance.

If you identify with Vata-type stress, creating stability and regularity is most important. This can be done through schedules, diet and rest. When things are always changing or "up in the air," it creates fear and uncertainty which can exacerbate stress.

If you identify with Pitta-type stress, creating calm and coolness is best. The key is lessening the intensity of tasks and thinking. Have you ever gotten a headache from thinking? That means intensity needs to go down!! Restorative practices that facilitate the practice of letting go are essential. Restorative yoga, yoga nidra, and meditation are wonderful.

A regular yoga practice does wonders for stress reduction. The body and breath receive nourishment while our overall well-being also improves. Yoga gives us skills to cope with the ups and downs of everyday life. There's a seed of self-compassion and self-love planted each time we do yoga. It teaches us that we are human and striving to do our best on this journey called life.

WACKY WINE NAMES

With Valentine's Day Fast approaching, I take a pause this week to find the most wacky and bizarre my attention; it was the name. Makes me want to wine names on the market today. Have you ever pondered how the heck some of these names actually made it onto a wine label and then onto a store shelf? I pride my work here on wines that giving the creative department a bit of grief during are always available on your favorite wine retailers shelves, although this week I make no guarantees. I wonder whether as consideration has gone into the label as coming up with the perfect blend, or is it that the wine just isn't that good and with a bizarre name maybe someone will buy it. I've been told that getting your wine on a shelf is very difficult, especially for small boutique wines.

Most wines are named for their grape variety or for the place where the grapes grew.

talking about the wine. For example, Lucas Lewellen of Solvang (yes, there is a Lew at the Lucas Lewellen Winery), and Wild Horse Winery which was started by two college students at San Luis Obispo who noticed wild horses roaming the fields above the college. Here are a few more Toasted Head Chardonnay - The ends of the barrels, or "heads", are and can be ordered "toasted" for additional flavor if preferred.

Prisoner Blend - David Phinney started working at the Robert Mondavi Winery as a temporary harvest worker. He loved the job but figured if he was going to work that hard it might as well be for himself. So in 1998, he founded Orin Swift Cellars, named in honor of his parents; Orin is his father's middle name and Swift is his mother's maiden name. And the name Prisoner? When Phinney was looking for a label for his latest zinfandel blended wine, he used a painting by Spanish artist Francisco Jose de Goya (1746-1828), given to him by his parents when he was 12 years old. Years later in 2000, it became the inspiration for the label of his award winning wine, The Prisoner...named after Goya's etching, La Petite Prisonier.

Mad House Wife Chardonnay - Not mad at all, just a few ladies who wanted wine that is a value and a little free time away from the kids.

Hey Mambo - It wasn't the label that caught mambo, I guess that's the point.

Plungerhead Wine - Eddie..was employed by a local winery, and according to local legend, after

That information, plus the name of the producer, a wine brand creative process, a mysterious bottle becomes the shorthand name often used when of wine bearing a label that was eerily familiar and quite uncanny made its way to Eddie's desk. The character on the label had his face, his signature facial hair and was wearing his favorite purple blazer. However, on the label he was also wearing a red toilet plunger hat, wine barrels for trousers and holding a sign that simply said, "Plungerhead."

Rex Goliath - The name might not be that obscure, but the story sure is, this wine being named after a 47-pound fictional rooster.
Screaming Eagle - (I haven't been there but they tell me it's nice) Don Henley Hotel California, one of the most sought after California wines. Bottles can go for as high as $2500 to $3000. Getting someone on the phone at the winery was like finding Howard Hughes, but once that happened I was told that founder Jean Phillips named many of her early pet projects Screaming Eagles. The name was a tribute to the Fighting Screaming Eagle Squadrons of WWII.

THE GOOD LIFE

WHAT TO DO WHEN A LOVED ONE DIES

Dear Savvy Senior,

This may seem like a strange question, but can you tell me what steps need to be taken after a loved one dies? My 80-year-old father has a terminal illness, and I would like to find out what I will need to do when he

Only Daughter

Dear Only,

I'm sorry about your father s situation but this is a great question many families inquire about when a loved one s death becomes imminent. Here s a rundown of some things you can do now, and after his death, that can help keep a sad event from becoming immediately. even more painful.

Before Death Occurs

There are several tasks you can do now while your father is still living, that will make things a lot easier and less hectic for you after he dies.

For starters, find out where your dad keeps all his important papers like his will (also make sure it s updated), birth certificate, marriage and divorce certificates, Social Security information, lifeinsurance policies, military discharge papers, financial documents, and keys to a safe deposit box or home

Also, if your dad doesn t have an advanced directive, help him make one (see CaringInfo.org for free state-specific forms and instructions). An advanced directive includes a living will that specifies his endof-life medical treatments, and appoints a healthcare proxy to make medical decisions if he becomes incapacitated.

In addition, you may also want to get a do-notresuscitate (DNR) order, which will tell health care professionals not to perform CPR when your dad s heart or breathing stops. Your dad s doctor can help you with this.

You should also pre-arrange his funeral and burial or cremation.

Immediately After Death

Once your father dies, you ll need to get a legal pronouncement of death. If no doctor is present, Loved One's Estate or Trusts available at Nolo.com for you ll need to contact someone to do this. So, if your $32. dad dies at home under hospice care, call the hospice nurse, who can declare his death and help facilitate the transport of the body.

and have in hand his DNR document. Without one, author of The Savvy Seniors book.

paramedics will generally start emergency procedures and, except where permitted to pronounce death, take the person to an emergency room for a doctor to make the declaration.

If no autopsy is needed, you will need to call the funeral home, mortuary or crematorium to pick up the body. If your dad is an organ or tissue donor, contact the funeral home or the county coroner

Within a Few Days

If funeral plans were not pre-arranged, you'll need to make arrangements and prepare an obituary. If your dad was in the military or belonged to a fraternal or religious group, you should contact those organizations too, because they may have burial benefits or conduct funeral services.

Up to 10 Days After Death

To wind down your dad's financial affairs, you ll need to get multiple copies of his death certificate. These are typically provided by the funeral home.

If you're the executor of your dad's estate, take his will to the appropriate county or city office to have it accepted for probate. And open a bank account for your dad s estate to pay bills, including taxes, funeral

You also need to contact your dad's estate attorney if he has one; tax preparer to see if estate or final income taxes should be filed; financial advisor for information on financial holdings; life insurance agent to get claim forms; his bank to locate and close accounts; and Social Security (800-772-1213) and other agencies that provided benefits to stop payments and, if applicable, ask about survivor benefits. You should also cancel his credit cards and, if relevant, stop household services like utilities, mail, etc.

STEEP SLOPES ON MARS REVEAL STRUCTURE OF BURIED ICE

Researchers using NASA's Mars Reconnaissance Orbiter (MRO) have found eight sites where thick deposits of ice beneath Mars' surface are exposed in faces of eroding slopes.

These eight scarps, with slopes as steep as 55 degrees, reveal new information about the internal layered structure of previously detected underground ice sheets in Mars' middle latitudes.

The ice was likely deposited as snow long ago. The deposits are exposed in cross section as relatively pure water ice, capped by a layer one to two yards thick of ice-cemented rock and dust. They hold clues about Mars' climate history. They also may make frozen water more accessible than previously thought to future robotic or human exploration

"There is shallow ground ice under roughly a third of the Martian surface, which records the recent history of Mars," said the study's lead author, Colin Dundas of the U.S. Geological Survey's Astrogeology Science Center in Flagstaff, Arizona. "What we've seen here are cross-sections through the ice that give us a 3-D view with more detail than ever before."

The scarps directly expose bright glimpses into vast underground ice previously detected with spectrometers on NASA's Mars Odyssey (MRO) orbiter, with ground-penetrating radar instruments on MRO and on the European Space Agency's Mars Express orbiter, and with observations of fresh impact craters that uncover subsurface ice. NASA sent the Phoenix lander to Mars in response to the Odyssey findings; in 2008, the Phoenix mission confirmed and analyzed the buried water ice at 68 degrees north latitude, about one-third of the way to the pole from the northernmost of the eight scarp

The discovery reported today gives us surprising windows where we can see right into these thick underground sheets of ice," said Shane Byrne of the University of Arizona Lunar and Planetary Laboratory, Tucson, a co-author on today's report. "It's like having one of those ant farms where you can see through the glass on the side to learn about what's usually hidden beneath the ground."

a scarp likely grows wider and taller as it "retreats," due to sublimation of the ice directly from solid form into water vapor. At some of them, the exposed deposit of water ice is more than 100 yards thick. Examination of some of the scarps with MRO's Compact Reconnaissance Imaging Spectrometer for Mars (CRISM) confirmed that the bright material is frozen water. HOMELESSNESS

[Nyerges is the author

Home," and other books. He help. teaches self-reliance skills through the School of Self-Reliance. He can be reached at www. ChristopherNyerges.com.]

Homelessness is a large and growing problem in L.A. County. If you happen to be homeless, it's not a "problem," it's a personal crisis. Among other things, the insane cost of housing is a factor in the increase in homelessness, though not the only cause.

Perhaps I feel real empathy for the homeless because I know what it's like to be adrift in the urban sea with no house or home. I was homeless for about 6 months in 1984, an experience that I wrote about extensively at that time. I know that with determination, and with the help of loving friends, it is possible to overcome this very real threat to survival.

I was once asked during a radio interview what advice I'd give to someone who was homeless. My response: I would first take the time with the homeless person in order to determine precisely how they become homeless. We would look at each point by uncomfortable point in order to see how their thinking, their actions, their inactions, led to homelessness so we could chart a path to changing those habits. Determining the cause is of paramount importance, since each and every homeless case is unique.

It has been well-demonstrated there is no actual physical shortage of places for people to live, even in the big cities. In fact, especially in the big cities.

The problem is complex, but we can state that homelessness is the result of one or more of the following: rapidly rising cost of living, unemployment, psychological problems, drug and alcohol use, and maybe "other." If you are an alcoholic or a drug user, you need to do whatever is possible to stop those habits. Period. The and questions. alcohol and the drug use is a threat to your basic physical survival.

The solution to homelessness involves the cooperation of local community organizations, and the homeless individuals themselves. Though there is no shortage of people willing to assist, never forget that "assistance" is a two-way street. Mark Holsinger, Executive Director of the Los Angeles Mission, wrote a "Letter to the Editor" in the March 14, 1992 Los Angeles Times. He said, "As frustrating as it is that not all homeless people accept help, we should not forget that many gratefully accept the opportunity to change their lives. The problem for most of the homeless isn't a lack of services or affordable housing or jobs. Theirproblem is their lack of desire to change [emphasis mine] -- to get off drugs, to function in a way that is acceptable to society, to respect others and themselves." He adds that it's not easy to get off the streets, but certainly possible to become a productive citizen because he works daily with those who've made that change."

Let's assume you have lost your home, you have no job, and you aspire to get back to work and find a home. What do you do? Where do you

Number one: If you are taking drugs, or "How to Survive drinking alcohol, stop! If you know you cannot "Self- stop without help, do whatever it takes to get that > Number two: Do whatever it takes to change your attitude. Quit viewing yourself as a victim of circumstances. Quit blaming anyone else. Quit feeling negative towards anyone.

> Next, wherever you are, improve it. Make it better. If you are with others, teach by your example. If they ask what you are doing, explain to them that you are practicing the uplifting Principle of "making every place better for my being there." This is known as true Appreciation.

> Also, do not steal or take that which is not yours, regardless of your "very good justification." Begin to give to the charity, non-profit, or church of your choice."Giving" can also be of > your time. Give without the expectation of "getting" anything back. Don't give foolishly, but give intelligently to help further the work of a charity. The principle at work is "AS ye give, so shall ye receive."

> As you practice these simply principles – which some people will ridicule as "simplistic" – you can expect Miracles to occur.

> This, of course, is just the very bare-bones beginning. Part of the solution also involves caring people, and the assistance of the City of Los Angeles, and local non-profits.

> The solution also includes realistic employment training, and financial education, such as how to budget your money, and how to determine (Thoreau-style) how to differentiate "want" from "need." I have met SO many folks who have lost their homes, even though they continued to use a credit card to buy stuff they didn't need, and continued to use credit even as they could barely make the minimum payments.

THE ONLY EXERCISE I GET IS SHIVERING IN THE COLD

I am not one to complain, at least when anybody Of course, if I put my coat on I am not going to is listening. The greatest blessing I have in life is shiver. At least that's what I think. that nobody really listens to me. Therefore, I can aspect of my life. Believe me when I say that upgrading any aspect of your life has a price tag to it. Oftentimes that price tag is rather extreme.

Recently, we have been experiencing some rather cold weather in our area. Every morning the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage reminds me of how cold it is outside. As if I did not know it was cold outside.

As I'm preparing to leave the house, she will always say, "Make sure you wear a coat and keep

I often chuckle, to myself of course, when she makes remarks something like this. Often she will say when I'm ready to leave, "Make sure you drive carefully." To which I always respond, "Rats, I was planning to drive recklessly today and now I have to drive carefully."

For some reason she never laughs at me, but just stares one of those stares every husband has come to recognize. Why she thinks she needs to tell me to drive carefully is beyond my pay level, I am sure. Maybe, and this is just a guess on my part, she has ridden with me while I was driving.

If that is the case I solved that a number of years ago. Whenever we go anywhere, I always allow her to drive and we use her vehicle. Now, do not let this get back to her, but I would rather use her vehicle and her gas than my vehicle and my gas.

When we go anywhere, she is the one who drives and I just sit back and enjoy the ride. So where she gets this idea that I drive carelessly, I'm not quite sure.

However, getting back to the cold weather she sometimes tells me to put on a coat before I go outside because it is "shivering cold out there."

I don't mind one day when it's cold, but say whatever I want to say and nobody will hear when there are several days in a row, I am quite unprepared for that. After all, I live in Florida and Well, I used to believe that. Certain things have I expect the weather to be warm if not hot. All happened that has caused me to upgrade this of this cold weather has brought me to the idea that I want to gather together a class action suit against the governor of Florida because the motto of Florida is "The Sunshine State." If he cannot provide the sunshine and the warmth, then why in the world is he Governor?

However, shivering is becoming a daily practice with me. At first, I really did not like it because my shivering was out of my control. As soon as I step outside my body begins to shiver uncontrollably. For a person my age and size that is a little humiliating. I do not want any part of my body working without my permission.

Once I got over the humiliation of my body shivering beyond my control, I began to see the positive side of it. If you look hard enough, you can see the positive side in everything. It took me a while, but I finally got to where I began to appreciate the positive side of shivering in the

My wife is always suggesting that I try to lose a little bit of weight and maybe exercising a little bit will help. But I am not as young as I used to be. I think I have earned the time to goof off and do nothing. In fact, I have become quite the expert at doing nothing. If anybody can do nothing, it is me and I do it quite well.

At my age, exercise is a little more than I can handle. I have put myself on a 12-step program when it comes to exercise. Six steps from my chair to the refrigerator, and six steps back to my chair. That is the kind of exercise that I can really deal

Then the shivering idea came into my lackadaisical head. I do not often get a chance to pull one over on my wife, and I thought I had a wonderful plan at this point. I practiced for several days so that I could get it right.

Then an opportunity presented itself.

"Maybe," my wife said as seriously as she has ever been, "you should do a little bit of exercise."

I get plenty of exercise," I said rather smugly. "Oh yeah," she said with both hands firmly placed on her hips. "Where are you getting any exercise?"

"I get all the exercise I need," I said, "by shivering out in the cold."

She looked at me for a moment and finally said, "You know that you're a mess!"

Paul said it best when he said, "For bodily exercise profiteth little: but godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come" (1 Timothy

The best exercise, of course is spiritual. Exercising my faith in God is the most important thing in my life.

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

DEBT AFTER DEATH: WHY YOU SHOULD THINK ABOUT IT WHEN ESTATE PLANNING

If you carry debt, do not assume that your death or incapacity will make it automatically disappear. To the contrary, the money you owe may eat away at the assets you were planning to leave to your heirs or -- if you owe a large amount of money -- may wipe out your estate completely. Debt comes in many different forms including credit cards, student loans, car payments, mortgages, and other financial obligations.

Not Just About Assets

Techniques

By La Quetta M. Shamblee, MBA

Estate planning lets you name people you trust to manage your affairs if you're unable to do so and lets you indicate who will receive your property upon your death. While estate planning typically focuses on ensuring your assets will be distributed to your intended beneficiaries upon your death, the collective purpose behind financial and estate planning is to ensure that you're building the largest nest egg possible and then protecting your family and loved ones in the event of your death or incapacity. For this reason, knowing what your debts are and implementing the proper estate planning will allow you to ensure those you leave behind are not left drowning financially. You will also be able to rest easy knowing what you've built will go to those you want, rather than to the creditors. There are two types of debts: secured and unsecured. GarlettLaw.com for more information.

BUSINESS TODAY

Secured debt is a loan that has been guaranteed by some form of collateral. If a borrower defaults on a secured loan, the lender can recover the collateral. House and car loans are the most common forms of secured debt. Unsecured debt, on the other hand, does not involve collateral. If the borrower defaults on an unsecured loan, the lender typically needs a court order to recover a judgment against the borrower or the borrower's estate. The most common types of unsecured debt include credit cards, most tax debt, personal or signature loans, student loans, or payday

While some debt, like many federal student loans, goes away upon your death, others do not -- like mortgages and home equity loans -- leaving your family potentially on the hook. Secured debts essentially become the responsibility of the deceased's estate because if the payments stop then the bank can retake the collateral. If you have a will-based estate plan, the process of paying off debts and distributing whatever assets are left over (if any) is a court process known as probate. If you are using a trust, then your successor trustee will follow a similar process, but it won't necessarily involve the courts.

Benefits of Estate Planning

While the tools typically used in estate planning may appear to be interchangeable, the planning process and the resulting documents, like a will, trust, and power of attorney, are as unique as the person. While naming proper beneficiaries is key when protecting these larger assets from creditors after your death, a comprehensive estate plan is needed to protect your family against the impact your debt may have on your estate. A little bit of planning can go a long way in ensuring your family and loved ones are protected in the event of a tragedy.

Dedicated to empowering your family, building your wealth and defining your legacy,

MARC

KNOWLEDGE + ACTION = POWER

"Knowledge is power" is a familiar saying that is only The thing that stands between knowledge and action partially true. The fact is there are millions of people is fear. who have attained knowledge in certain disciplines, toward some greater personal or business purpose, it's important to take action if there is any real interest in making progress.

Every entrepreneur who has built a successful business venture from the ground up, has had to develop an arsenal of specialized knowledge about some aspect of the industry in which their business operates. Some people think that the mere acquisition of knowledge is all that is needed to start and operate a business. If that were the case, there should be a steady stream of new enterprises being established by individuals completing workshops and classes. Gaining knowledge is one thing, having the confidence to do something with it is another.

When knowledge and action are combined, the some to the point of being regarded as experts. For outcome can be seemingly miraculous. All of us have those whose goal it was to simply attain a certain had to go through the process of mastering a body level of knowledge, mission accomplished. For the of knowledge before moving on to apply it. From others who have ideas about using the knowledge a simple task like learning the rules of the road and how to drive a car as an adolescent, to mastering the operation of a heavy piece of machinery, the process moves from knowledge to action to practice. The repetition of this cycle results in what most would refer to as experience, skill or expertise. The more times the individual completes the cycle, the easier and more effortlessly the task is to execute until it may seem automatic.

Instead of gliding through life with recycled daydreams about their dreams and aspiration, entrepreneurs demonstrate that knowledge combined with action, followed by practice and repeating the process is one of the keys to

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER YOU SURVIVE A DISASTER?

Surviving a disaster like a flood, fire, hurricane or earthquake can deprive you of all the comforts you own. But that's only half of it, even with supplies of food and water, there will be psychological effects we will all experience. Loss of loved ones, home, and possessions will take their toll. Learning how to be prepared psychologically before a disaster is often overlooked.

DRAMA AND CHAOS.....The New Low Standards For American Governance

Drama (n): a state, situation, or series of events involving interesting or intense conflict of forces; Chaos (n): a state of utter confusion; Governance (n): the way that a city, country is controlled by the people who run it.

Trump said. "I mean, problems start from the top and they have to get who the president was at that time." Donald J. Trump

By the time you read this, Donald Trump will have been in office for a full year, and congress will have failed yet once again to do anything more than once again to do anything more than dance to the tune played by Trump, the pied piper. When I was a child I was always concerned that the little children followed the colorfully dressed, flute playing rat catcher. After all, he was a rat catcher...gross. Interesting, that tale comes to mind when I think of Donald Trump. Could it be his affinity for the swamp where real rats hang out? Some say his colorful ways are alluring and that certainly comes to mind when I see elected officials who ostensibly have taken an oath to act in ostensibly have taken an oath to act in the best interests of all Americans and the US Constitution, follow a man who is absolutely committed only to what is in the best interest of himself and his friends regardless of what the law says. My question remains, why are they following him, especially when know he deals in the swamp of drama and chaos?

The methodology used by Trump is designed to keep us at odds with each other by creating Drama and Chaos to take attention away from what he is or is not doing. While attention has been paid for the last two weeks to the President's foul/racist mouth and the shutdown of the government, the circus shutdown of the government, the circus created is overshadowing what is really going on or what we should really be questioning. By the time it is over, we will all be so happy to stop the drama that the other issues will be forgotten.

And it's been like this for the last year. The things that concern me don't have a thing to do with being Democrat or Republican, it has everything to do with Congress and the White House ignoring the people they were elected to represent and recognizing that the man that was elected to lead, is leading us right down the drain. And, FYI, don't worry about the government shutdown. It's been shutdown for several years now.

city, country is controlled by the people who run it.

"Well, if you say who gets fired it always has to be the mean, problems they have to get ind the president's they have to get in the dismantling of American Democracy. The blindfold and the path to the demolition of our democracy are provided by the President and plays right into the hands of those who hate democracy like his BFF Putin. Has it hurt us? Well, consider this: "Global approval of US leadership at just 30%, slightly behind China on 31% and only three points ahead of Russia. Germany is now the top-rated global power in the world, with an approval rating of 41%, according to the survey. The US rating is down nearly 20 points from the 48% approval rating in the little children ly dressed, flute iter all, he was a Interesting, that when I think of it be his affinity real rats hang olorful ways are tainly comes to ed officials who

That's tragic for Republicans, for Democrats, for every single American. We are letting our country fall victim to an overdose of Drama and Chaos dished out by a President who promised to_lead but mostly he just just lies. He has an unnatural hatred of his predecessor who, by the way took Office when the stock market was under 8,000 and the country was in the worst economic decline since the great depression, and revitalized the economy and stock market to a bustling 19,000+ shares when he left office.

Trump is a disaster, an embarrassment. Isn't it funny, he is exactly all of the labels that he likes to place on other people. What's more troubling however, is that we appear to be stuck with him because our elected officials are too busy reacting to the 'trumped up' chaos and drama rather than working together and using the powers given to them by the Constitution to remove this man, who is unfit to serve, from office. Democracy does work, but not when the people do not come first.

By the way:

At the time of the 2016 election, there_ were 219,941,000 Americans eligible to vote. Of that number, only 62,238,425 voted for Trump, 157,702,875 Americans

WOLFF'S BOOK RESONATES BECAUSE TRUMP KEEPS CONFIRMING IT

By Dick Polman

Nobody is more stunned about the stratospheric sales of "Fire and Fury" than the guy who wrote it. Michael Wolff and I were talking backstage prior to his gig on Tuesday night at the Free Library of Philadelphia, and he confessed that he never saw it coming. He was convinced that he'd gotten the inside skinny about Trump's den of dysfunction, but in our info-saturated ecosystem, with Trump under scrutiny 24/7, who could have envisioned 11 printings within 12 days of release? The best explanation is also the simplest: Trump confirms the book on a daily basis.

After hanging out in the West Wing for nine months ("I was let in without anyone weighing the meaning or consequence of what I was going to do," he said on stage last night) - Wolff concluded in his book that Trump is dangerous, incompetent, ignorant, and unfit to serve.

"Everyone, in his or her own way, struggled to express the baldly obvious fact that the president did not know enough, did not know what he didn't know, did not particularly care, and, to boot, was confident if not serene in his unquestioned certifudes," Wolff said. "I was just the guy listening, occasionally nodding my head as if in agreement, and over time, they poured their hearts out."

Wolff has taken heat for declaring that his book "rings true" despite some material that isn't true - indeed, there are errors (which he acknowledges), such as getting some names wrong and misstating the year that John Boehner quit the House - and I suggested to him on stage that it would behoove him and his publisher to correct those errors in subsequent printings. But nobody, aside from the deluded Trumpkins, can dispute his portraiture. It "rings true," because we know with our own eyes and ears that

But Trump is the book's best salesman. Earlier this week, his doctor announced that his health is fabulous in every respect, and said that Trump is 6 foot 3. In previous years, Trump has often been described as 6 foot 2, but, by giving him an extra inch, Trump's reported weight no longer qualifies as obese. Sure enough, midway through Wolff's book, he writes that Trump in the past has "lied about his height to keep from having a body mass index that would label him as obese."

Ezra Klein, the journalist who founded Vox, says: "The picture painted of Trump in Wolff's book is the same picture painted of Trump by Trump's own tweets, speeches, comments, and actions." The last nine days - which have included Trump saying a vile racist remark, canceling a trip to London because he feared hostile crowds, tweeting that he was a "very stable genius," and opposing a key national security bill his administration supported after "Fox & Friends" criticized the bill - have been a classic illustration, fattening Wolff's wallet. What follows is only a partial list:

There was much more, of course - not including the reports that candidate Trump was blackmailed in 2016 by a porn star with whom he'd canoodled a year into his marriage to Melania. That kind of thing doesn't even tilt the shock meter anymore.

I asked Wolff whether he believes (based on the aggregate info he got from White House insiders) that Trump is just crazy - or crazy like a fox. He said that Trump is too stupid to be Machiavellian, too impulsive to be calculated. There is no grand master plan. There is only the present moment.

There will be many more books in this vein - conservative commentator David Frum's "Trumpocracy" is brand new, and deserves not to be buried by the Wolff avalanche and they could help stoke a massive electoral backlash, a blue tsunami in the November midterms. The tea leaves are propitious. Tuesday night, there was a special state Senate election in a rural Wisconsin district where 59 percent of the 2016 voters supported Trump, and where the most recent Republican state Senate incumbent triumphed with 63 percent. This time, the female Democratic state Senate candidate stunned the GOP, winning the rural-red district by nine points.

Timing is everything, in journalism as well as politics. Wolff has caught the wave.

ONE YEAR IN, TRUMP REMAINS HIS OWN WORST ENEMY

When it came to a recent column about President Donald Trump's preference for "executive time" that includes a healthy dose of cable news viewing and unhinged Tweeting, the reader wasn't in the mood to hold "This article was just a pack of lies," wrote a reader of the Mansfield News Journal in Mansfield, Ohio, where my column occasionally runs. "Please don't lie to the American people. Donald Trump runs on less sleep than anyone or any President in history. Stop this constant attack on this Then, the inevitable flourish: "Your precious Hillary did not win so get over it!!!!!!" I've received plenty of letters and emails just like this in the year since Donald John Trump mounted the steps of the U.S. Capitol, took the oath of office, and embarked on the most exhausting, topsy-turvy and wildly offensive first 365 days of any president in modern memory. Every time I've questioned the constitutionality of one of Trump's decisions, pointed out his glancing relationship with the truth, indicted his xenophobic tendencies and maddening embrace of white nationalism, or mused on the ever-expanding Russia investigation, Trump's loyalists have

Some have been polite. Others have used the kind of language that the "least racist" president you'll ever interview also reportedly used to describe immigrants from majority black- and brown-All these readers have offered variations on the same argument: Trump has done more than Barack Obama did in eight years in office; he plays less golf and takes less vacation, and, anyway, at least he's not Hillary Clinton. Obscured in these factually incorrect arguments is a nugget of actual truth: Despite an embarrassingly slender list of legislative accomplishments, Trump, as The Associated Press reports, has kept an impressive (if you're a supporter) or depressing (if you're not) number of his campaign On the judicial side, Trump pursued the ultimately successful confirmation of conservative U.S.

Supreme Court Justice Neil Gorsuch, populated the federal bench with right-leaning judges and has done the same with the ranks of United States Attorneys across the country. Trump won legislative authorization of a decidedly non-populist tax bill that will shower tax breaks on the very wealthy (like him) at the expense of the working-class voters who packed his rallies during the 2016 campaign.

He's used the power of the pen to slice and dice regulations and extract the United States from such major foreign accords as the Paris climate agreement.

And despite lambasting Obama for his executive end-runs, Trump has signed more executive orders than any president of the last 50 years.

It's almost as if there's two White Houses. There's the surprisingly orthodox one that has backburnered the populism of the 2016 campaign and governs like the most mainstream conservative Republican you've ever seen. Then there's the one that emerges from the pages of Michael Wolff's "Fire and Fury," which puts the fun in 'dysfunction' and is lorded over by a disconnected chief executive who boasts both a poor command of the most basic policy details and a 6:30 p.m. bedtime. Trump's voters are logically aggrieved that the president's list of accomplishments don't get the praise they think they should from the political press.

Then, torpedoing that argument, they illogically follow that with the entirely incorrect claim that they are not covered at all. "Fake news!" they bellow.

What they overlook is the inconvenient truth that, when it comes to stepping on his own message, the 45th president has no more effective nemesis than himself.

White House Chief of Staff John Kelly, we were told last summer, would professionalize the White House and impose order where once there had been chaos.

And there is some evidence to support that argument.

But we're still left with schoolyard taunts of "Little Rocket Man," "Sloppy Steve" Bannon and "Dicky" Durbin and other early morning tweetstorms that undermine our reputation abroad, damage our democratic institutions, and devour the news cycle at home.

Heading into a 2018 mid-term cycle, where Resistance-emboldened Democrats are expected to make major gains against Trump's Republican enablers in Congress, the president's voters surely wish that their fellow Americans will cast their ballots in favor of the accomplishments of that "shadow White House." But there's a reason that White House exists in the shadows - it's Trump himself. And it's his White House on which voters will pass judgment in 2018.

"Sad!" as the man might say. But entirely justified. Copyright 2018 John L. Micek, distributed by Cagle Cartoons newspaper syndicate. An award-winning political journalist, Micek is the Opinion Editor and Political Columnist
