FORMER MOUNTAIN VIEWS CONTRIBUTOR AND MONROVIA ICON PAT OSTRYE PASSES AWAY

Last week, Monrovia lost one of its icons. Pat Ostrye - former Mayor, City Council Member, City Clerk, and City Treasurer – passed away on January 13, 2018, at the age of 94. Pat served as an instrumental individual in helping to develop Monrovia into the premier community that we know today. Funeral services for Pat have been scheduled to take place on January 27, 2018, at Immaculate Conception Catholic Church in Monrovia at 10:00 a.m.

Mary Patricia "Pat" Ostrye died peacefully on January 13, 2018. Pat was born January 12, 1924 in Minneapolis the oldest of five children born to William and Cecelia O'Brien. After high school, Pat worked at Butler Bros in Minneapolis and attended Beck School for Radio at night. She subsequently landed a radio show on KYSM in Mankato, Minnesota.

In 1944, she joined the Navy (WAVES) and was ultimately stationed at Naval District Headquarters Air Control in San Diego where she served as a Telegrapher, 3rd Class. In early 1945, while visiting her aunt in Monrovia, California, she met Peter Ostrve in the choir of Immaculate Conception Church. They married later that year.

Between 1946 and 1959, they had eight children. In 1974 Pat successfully ran for Monrovia City Council on a slate that included Robert Bartlett and Eric Faith. She was the first woman to serve on the City Council and, in 1978, the first elected Mayor of the City. Prior to that election, Mayors were selected by and among the Council members. With the help of talented City staff and dedicated members of the community, she was able to fulfill her campaign promises to bring to Monrovia Meals-on-Wheels, Dial-a-Ride, home library, and a federally-funded senior lunch program (SNAP).

In 1980, at the end of her mayoral term she was elected City Clerk and held that position until retiring in 1986. In 1992, she ran unopposed for the part-time position of City Treasurer, thus having served in all four of the City's then elective offices. In the 1990's she was active in Quota International serving for a time as Governor of the 25th District. For more than 20 years she wrote human interest columns for various community newspapers and publications including the Mountain Views News, formerly the Mountain Views Observer.

Pat was preceded in death by her husband Peter, her daughter Mary Cecelia who died in infancy, son Michael and grandson Azja. She is survived by her children Colette, Anne Macdonald (Bruce), Madonna Tyler (Carl), Joseph (Louise), Maureen, and Martin (Gail); grandchildren Erin, Elise, Sarah, James, Soleil and Ian; her sister Rita Smith and brother Roger; and multiple nieces and nephews.

Funeral Mass will be held on Saturday, January 27 at 10:00 a.m. at Immaculate Conception Catholic Church, 740 S. Shamrock Avenue, Monrovia. In lieu of flowers, please consider a donation in honor of Pat to the Foothill Unity Center, (626) 358-3486.

With few specifying exactly what they did want, those in attendance were more vocal about what they definitely did not want. As a surprise to no one, a parcel tax as an option for funding was not popular, although some, like longtime Sierra Madre resident Bill Patzert reminded everyone that the city needs a library that meets the needs of 21st century children and also must serve the needs of Seniors and a parcel tax might be the answer.

Former Mayor Mary Ann MacGillivray reminded City Staff and Commissioners that should there be a sale of any real estate, developers must comply with the General Plan. The General Plan was revised to protect Sierra Madre against overdevelopment and/or development that is not compatible with the village character of the city.

Several other residents were concerned about the proposed relocation of the Library from the center of town. One resident said that there is a need to separate the 'recreational' atmosphere that currently exists at the Recreation Center from the 'intellectual' atmosphere of the Library's current location.

Engeland stressed the importance of resident reviewing the information in the survey and the information on the city's website. "I want everyone to make informed decisions", Engeland said. "There are no wrong answers".

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

Walking Sierra Madre.....The Social Side Deanne Davis January 8, 2018

"Hope is the thing with feathers, That perches in the soul, And sings the tune without the words, And never stops at all, And sweetest in the gale is heard, And sore must be the storm, That could abash the little bird,

That kept so many warm." Emily Dickinson, 1830-1886

This is it, friends and neighbors...the last, the very last word on resolutions for this new year.

There's a concept going around, brought to my attention by Michelle Griep, successful author and blogger. Look her up, check out all her books and be amazed. Anyway, the concept is to pick one word to be your New Year's resolution or mission statement for the year. There was even a book a few years back: My One Word: Change Your Life With Just One Word by Mike Ashcraft and Rachel Olsen. This is so cool as you can immediately dump those high-minded and probably impossible resolutions like reading all the great books in one year. Seriously? Have you ever looked at the list of Greatest Books? Here's the first few:

- 1. Don Quixote by Miguel de Cervantes.
- 2. In Search of Lost Time by Marcel Proust.
- 3. Ulysses by James Joyce.
- 4. The Odyssey by Homer. 5. War and Peace by Leo Tolstoy.
- 6. Moby Dick by Herman Melville.
- 7. The Divine Comedy by Dante Alighieri.
- 8 . Hamlet by William Shakespeare.

I repeat, Seriously?? There are some of you out there who have read these, but most of us are happy with a new Stuart Woods or James Patterson thriller, or maybe a new John Grisham or a Danielle Steel, Nora Roberts or an Amy Tan. Lots of us like to just pull out an old Agatha Christie. Speaking of Agatha, the new movie version of "Murder on the Orient Express" was terrific! Here's one I'd really like to read: "Girl, Wash Your Face: Stop Believing the Lies About Who You Are So You Can Become Who You Were Meant To Be," by Rachel Hollis.

The word I picked last year is: HOPE!

And I'm going to pick it again this year. I'm going to lean heavily on HOPE to help me make wise decisions about my future. I'm HOPING for a number of children I know who have medical problems: Brooklyn, Caleb, Jake and our own Jessie. I'm HOPING that this year will bring what they all need in the way of healing.

So much has been written about HOPE:

"HOPE is the little voice you hear whisper "maybe" when it seems the entire world is shouting "no!" "H.O.P.E. - Hold On, Pain Ends"

'The only difference between those who threw in the towel and quit and those who used their energy to rebuild and kept it going is found in the word...HOPE." "Once you choose HOPE, anything is possible." Christopher Reeves

"Where there is HOPE, there is faith. Where there is faith, miracles happen."

"Optimism is the faith that leads to achievement. Nothing can be done without HOPE and confidence." Helen Keller

This picture is of hot air balloons floating over the Arizona desert that the Texas family and I saw just a few weeks ago. There is such HOPE in seeing these gaily colored balloons lifting up and up and up.

So that's my word again for the year, HOPE. I'm hoping you'll pick one that will work for you. My beloved John, now seeing so many dear friends and family who have gone before us, and most especially his Lord, would like this.... HOPE!

"For I know the plans I have for you, declares the LORD, plans for good and not for evil, to give you a future and a HOPE." Jer. 29:11

Council to Discuss Possible Tax Measure

The city council is set Monday night to discuss putting a 0.75 percent sales tax increase before the voters on the November ballot as Pasadena Mayor Terry Tornek outlined during his State of the City Speech earlier this

"It is expected that as part of next year's budget, every department-including Police, Fire, Human Services and Recreation, will have to reduce services," Tornek said January 16. "Even more worrisome is that given current projections, the city will be forced to make even more drastic cuts over the next few years which will directly impact the services our community relies on."

He continued "In addition to operating budget cuts, we won't have funds to address our many capital needs. Pasadena's infrastructure is aging and needs significant re-investment. Repairs that are delayed often cost far more to repair when they fail. We currently spend $32 million on non-utility

Over 50 Cats Rescued from Home

The Pasadena Humane Society rescued 54 cats from a home after a concerned neighbor called into the organization's tip line. Officers had made repeated attempts to gain access to the house and were finally granted access on Tuesday. The owner surrendered the cats to the Pasadena Humane Society on her own volition.

The cats have been taken back to the Pasadena Humane Society where they will undergo thorough medical and behavioral evaluations before being made available for adoption.

"I can't imagine the horrors these 54 cats have seen," said Julie Bank, President & CEO of the Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA. "Thankfully the cats are now back at the shelter, where they are being cared for by staff. We anticipate many of them will need further medical treatment based on their living conditions."

The Pasadena Humane Society has set up an online donation page for community members looking to help. Inkind donations such as cat food, towels, and cat litter are also needed. Donations towards their care can be made at pasadenahumane. org/miracle.

Officials also said the cats could be up for adoption in the near future.

Arson Suspect Arrested for Pasadena, Arcadia Fires

A man, wanted in connection with a string of fires in the Pasadena area, was arrested Sunday after an ongoing investigation by members of the Verdugo Fire Investigation Task Force serving the San Gabriel Valley region.

After a "wanted" flyer was distributed to local law enforcement agencies, Nigel Letren was arrested in the City of San Marino at 3 a.m. by the San Marino Police Department.

According to officials, on the evening of January 13, the cities of Pasadena and Arcadia experienced a spree of outdoor fires along the Foothill Boulevard Corridor, between Sierra Madre Villa Avenue and the Los Angeles Arboretum. Firefighters from both cities responded and quickly extinguished the fires. Investigation into the causes of the fires determined that they were intentionally set.

Letren was arraigned in the Pasadena Branch of Los Angeles County Superior Court Wednesday on five counts of arson related to the January 13 fires, and one count of arson related to the December 9, wildland fire in the city of Monrovia. Letren is being held on $425,000 bail and is scheduled to return to court on February 15.

The Verdugo Fire Investigation Task Force is a regional group of investigators from the cities of Burbank, Glendale, Pasadena, South Pasadena, Sierra Madre, Monrovia, Arcadia, Marino, San Gabriel, Alhambra, Monterey Park and Montebello.

"This arrest is a great example of exceptional cooperation between multiple agencies with proven results from our regional Verdugo Fire Investigation Task Force," Pasadena Fire Chief Bertral Washington said. GOLDENWORDS: DR. DAN'S COLLEGE CORNER WHAT'S YOUR "INTERCULTURAL IQ"?

High Schoolers and College Students from greater for others, especially Los Angeles come out of what's probably America's most culturally and ethnically diverse environment. Our region hosts both long-time and recently arrived populations from almost every corner of the globe, and it's a heady mix that students can use to grow their "Intercultural IQ," their social/cultural intelligence about all our multicultural dimensions. Our ethnic heritages and cultural histories are inseparable from our ideas of ourselves and, importantly, our ideas about "them," people who don't share our specific backgrounds.

To become a truly multicultural person, knowledgeable and accepting of the ways and values of others, we find ourselves taking two journeys, one inward into our own roots, and one among others who have both subtle and vast differences in ethnicity, religious practice and family structures and expectations. How to take that second journey without stereotyping the "other?" How to discern qualities and values in the lives of others that are eminently worth emulating or adopting? How to learn that "different" means just that, "different," not better or worse than the way we do things or think?

In a followup column I'll focus on the "Who am I, anyway?" question, or how your own personal cultural signature plays a role in your life choices and self-concept.

For now, let's assume you can make the most of the richness of the LA ethnic mosaic if you harness your research and communication skills as an amateur field anthropologist. Look around at your school and begin to inventory the discernible cultural heritages of those around you.

How much do we know of the history of how our classmates came to the US, and to Los Angeles in particular? Where do they live? How long have they been here? What seems important to them in terms of friendships or family bonds, religious practice? Even on a modest but useful level, what do they like residents in greater Los Angeles, and many are descended from immigrant ancestors who came here nearly 100 years ago. What do you know about our "Pinoy" neighbors and classmates?

Let's explore some of the intercultural elements especially pertinent to the LA area's ethnic mosaic. Consider the Filipino subculture this time as our first convenient case study:

If you do your historical homework about their ancestral islands, you begin, for instance, to understand some of their Tagalog language roots (Como estas? in Spanish, Kamusta ka in Tagalog, for instance) and you decode their culinary traditions, too. When you eat Filipino food specialties, you're eating the history of Asian, Spanish and US colonial presences--lumpia are their egg rolls, lechon harkens to Spanish whole roast pig, the use of hot dogs and Spam reflect adaptations of American meat products that provide protein and long shelf life.

Been to your doctor or the hospital lately? Have you noticed the prevalence of Filipino-American staffers at all levels of the medical delivery system? Why is this the case? Having stable employment that's respected by the larger society is important to many immigrant groups, and when you connect this job motivation to a Filipino culture that values family solidarity and caring dangolden0@gmail.com.

Dan Golden, PhD

know of or speak Tagalog, perhaps you should master a few phrases? You'll surprise that doctor or nurse, who'll ask you (in Tagalog, so be careful!) how you came to speak the language. You're just trying to be polite and want to learn more about their cultural traditions. If you are going to have a 'cheat sheet' for speaking exotic (to you) languages, I suggest you include the phrase, "I am just learning your language" in that particular

It turns out that learning about the lives of others, their histories and cultural expectations means making fewer embarrassing or hurtful boo-boos. Watch more, ask politely, learn more, avoid having to find yourself apologizing for inadvertent ethnic

Study the history of cultural groups in LA with care, and you discover how and why populations have ended up here, and what kinds of trailing issues or values they retain in their ethnic sensibility. Their histories are often linked by flight from economic, political and religious oppression, both relatively recent and far in the distant past, all the way to those arriving on the Mayflower and the Arabella.

So, with the right cultural homework and observational and listening skills, you can ask important questions of yourself and others. Example?

Why is that other student refusing to eat my great home-made chocolate chip cookies? Could they be following the constraints of their cultural dietary traditions? Or maybe they have medical dietary restrictions? Could it be Ramadan, a month when Muslims abstain from all food and drink during daylight hours? Hmm...maybe I'd better learn about Ramadan in the context of the Muslim faith.

When one of my own high school students FIlipino-Americans represent over 600,000 had learned more about Islam and Ramadan, she began to surreptitiously spot for her Muslim soccer teammates during late day gym training and workouts, since she knew that hydration and blood sugar levels for these young women were going to be pretty low at that time of day. She applied her intercultural learning to protect the lives and welfare of others. How about that!

Watch for Part II of this topic, where we'll help you figure out your relationship with your own roots and continue to decode the cultural mosaic of greater Los Angeles. These entwined activities are key to becoming truly a multicultural citizen of our country and the world.

Diego thought that if people could sign in, there would be a better chance of knowing who is on the trails. Despite their best efforts it took Search and Rescue approximately 5 days to find the missing hiker and they began their search just guessing as to whether or not he was actually on the trail. With Martinez's sign in stations, first responders will know immediately whether or not someone is on the trails. In addition, with fires a constant threat, and hikers often traveling alone without cell reception, this idea was deemed to be valuable and approved by the City of Sierra Madre.

FALCONS FOR FILM

I have to assume it is no news that Sierra Madre became the backdrop for the filming of a major movie last week. Yes, the Hollywood hubbub crept it's way into our days starting with set preps on Monday and ending with an intermediate wrap late Friday afternoon. It was kind of fun to watch it come and go, although I'm sure I'm not the only one who found it a bit inconvenient, navigating detours to complete those 'mundane' daily tasks we all have to perform.

I used to be quite star struck with all the smoke and mirrors of the movie industry. That was before I worked as a caterer to feature films back in the nineties. Don't get me wrong, it's not that I don't appreciate meeting a famous actor, if I happen to be in the right place at the right time. I just don't feel the need to get up close to all the action.

However, I will admit there is one craft in the industry that still gets me pretty giddy. It's the trained animal talent in a film that excites me. I find it amazing that a dog (or any animal for that matter) can and will behave in a way that is desirable and conducive to fulfill the commitment of playing a part in a movie.

With people running to take their places in time for the director's call to action, all the loud noises of setting up for a shoot along with the chaotic action of the shoot itself, the annoying glare of bright lights and countless cameras clicking and clacking, I imagine it can get pretty hectic. Yet the canine remains calm and focused on the trainer's requests to play the part perfectly. Remarkable!

That's why my interest was piqued when I saw a (very well behaved) German Short Hair sitting on the tailgate of a truck parked on the south side of Memorial Park last Thursday, while the filming was going. The truck and it's occupants were obviously part of the production crew. With the park so full of equipment and all the activity I wouldn't have noticed the truck or the dog had I not been forced to park way over on Mariposa when I took Molly to the Dog Wash for her grooming appointment.
That beautiful German Short Hair caught my attention because, well, first of all I always notice dogs...of any kind. But this dog in particular was so handsome (I don't see that breed very often), and he was sitting as still as a statue on that tail gate while Molly and I walked by. Although he whined ever-so-slightly as we passed, he didn't bark or jump down off the truck. He didn't cross that transparent boundary his owner had apparently set for him.

I decided not to approach the truck with the dog right then, knowing my Molly (nowhere near as obedient) might get overly-excited and begin jumping and barking, so I waited until after I dropped her off at the groomer's to go over. I saw who I assumed was the pup's owner or trainer, possibly both, sitting in the driver seat so I waved and said hello. I really wanted a chance to meet that darling

The gentleman, who turned out to be very kind and approachable, introduced himself as Scott Timmons.

When I asked if he was a trainer for the animals in the film, he told me that was not at all the case. He proceeded to get out of his truck and guided me to the rear where his dog was still sitting on the tail gate. The pup greeted me with a friendly wiggle waggle and held out a paw to shake my hand. What a cutie pie! (the dog, I mean)

As Scott began to tell me about the part he played in the production project, I looked into the covered bed of his truck and much to my surprise I saw two large birds inside, sitting on a perch next to his dog's crate, looking very comfortable and relaxed with little hoods over their heads. Scott explained that they were his falcons and they all work together to assist in the production of the film.

Now, I am somewhat familiar with falconry, mainly from having viewed documentaries about the sport and from having met an enthusiast or two over the years, but I stood rather confused as to how and why it was that Scott and his falcons were of value to a film crew on a movie set, so I waited for him to clarify.

Scott explained that the high-end audio equipment used to make movies is extremely sensitive, and although today's technology can help accommodate successful sound recordings in the most challenging of outdoor conditions, they have yet to find a way to block out the sound (wait for it...we locals are all too familiar with it) that comes from a low-flying flock of screeching wild parrots.

Ah-ha! So that's why a falconer and his birds come in handy on a film set. Indeed, Scott and his two amazing Aves were there, on location, awaiting their cue to do one very specific and unique job that none other but he and his falcons could do; chase away those pesky screeching parrots so the show could go on!

Unfortunately I didn't get to witness Scott and his falcons in action as there were no parrots overhead during our short visit, but I think it would have been pretty cool to watch him and his birds do their thing. I imagine it wouldn't take long before the parrots recognized they had an uninvited guest in their midst and take it upon themselves to disperse.

I guess perhaps I may be an easily impressed type of person, but you have to admit, that is pretty impressive. The idea that a guy could actually make a living using his falconry skills to keep the local parrots at bay, all to facilitate the making of a Hollywood movie. Only in LA, that's all I

During the remainder of our conversation, Scott told me he has a small business that operates out of the Buellton area called Aerial Solutions and that he and his birds offer their unique skills to assist clientele in a wide range of environments, not just the entertainment industry.

In addition to film production, Aerial Solutions provides (pest bird control' services to agricultural settings, resorts, landfills and even race tracks. Apparently these are places where you're sure to find an overwhelming number of crows trying to feed on crops or sea gulls foraging for food (aka cleaning up our messy leftovers), all basically getting in the way of daily operations.

And so it is that I learned yet another interesting fact about my beloved animal friends, right here in our little town. Wild animals never cease to amaze me. They have the capacity to survive and thrive on this planet, having nary a moment's contact with the human being. Yet, given the opportunity they are willing to coordinate with a guy to learn a craft and provide a service to help a cast satisfy their desire to artfully express themselves (not to mention, build their monetary empires). Viva la falcon!

Beyond the classes and the physical practice of yoga, there is the study of yoga. Once you've begun, a natural curiosity develops to learn more, to find out where the teachings come from, and what the techniques are that lead to deeper awareness and awakening. This is when studentship and inspiration begin.

Diving deeper into the teachings of yoga shifts perspective and brings self-realization. Think of it as stepping into the right shoes. It lifts veils of illusion and generates authenticity. Many ancient universal spiritual principles are within what we learn. I believe this is why we are drawn to learn and develop even more through a yoga practice. Also, in many cases, what we learn in yoga aligns well with an existing spiritual way of life.

It is also a consequence of the quality of questions we are asking.

Many of us know that Edmund Hillary was the first to reach the summit of Mount Everest. However, he made several attempts before he achieved success. As he built his teams, he invited a former prisoner of war W. H. Murray, a skilled climber. Hillary asked Murray three times, and twice, Murray responded, "how much does it cost?" He let money stifle his dream. The last time he formed a new question. "How much is the deposit?" Knowing that if he paid the deposit, he would pay the remainder to avoid losing his money. That decision lead him to his famous site and schedule a session, she won't bite.

WACKY WINE NAMES

With Valentine's Day Fast approaching, I take a pause this week to find the most wacky and bizarre wine names on the market today. Have you and a little free time away from the kids. ever pondered how the heck some of these names a store shelf? I pride my work here on wines that mambo, I guess that's the point.

are always available on your favorite wine retailers shelves, although this week I make no guarantees. I wonder whether as much consideration has gone into the label as coming up with the perfect blend, or is it that the wine just isn't that good and with a bizarre name maybe someone will buy it. I've been told that getting your wine on a shelf is very difficult, especially for small boutique wines.

Most wines are named for their grape variety or for the place where the grapes grew. That information, plus the name of the producer, Lucas Lewellen Winery), and Wild Horse Winery which was started by two college students at San Luis Obispo who noticed wild horses roaming the fields above the college. Here are a few more Toasted Head Chardonnay - The ends of the barrels, or "heads", are and can be ordered "toasted" for additional flavor if preferred.

Prisoner Blend - David Phinney started working at the Robert Mondavi Winery as a obscure, but the story sure is, this wine being temporary harvest worker. He loved the job but figured if he was going to work that hard it might as well be for himself. So in 1998, he founded Orin Swift Cellars, named in honor of his parents; Orin is his father's middle name and Swift is his mother's maiden name. And the name Prisoner? When Phinney was looking for a label for his latest zinfandel blended wine, he used a painting by Spanish artist Francisco Jose de Goya (1746-1828), given to him by his parents when he was 12 years old. Years later in 2000, it became the inspiration for the label of his award winning wine, The Prisoner...named after Goya's etching, La Petite Prisonier.

Mad House Wife Chardonnay - Not mad at all, just a few ladies who wanted wine that is a value

Plungerhead Wine - Eddie..was employed by a local winery, and according to local legend, becomes the shorthand name often used when after giving the creative department a bit of talking about the wine. For example, Lucas grief during a wine brand creative process, a Lewellen of Solvang (yes, there is a Lew at the mysterious bottle of wine bearing a label that was eerily familiar and quite uncanny made its way to Eddie's desk. The character on the label had his face, his signature facial hair and was wearing his favorite purple blazer. However, on the label he was also wearing a red toilet plunger hat, wine barrels for trousers and holding a sign that simply said, "Plungerhead."

Rex Goliath - The name might not be that named after a 47-pound fictional rooster.

Screaming Eagle - (I haven't been there but they tell me it's nice) Don Henley Hotel California, one of the most sought after California wines. Bottles can go for as high as $2500 to $3000. Getting someone on the phone at the winery was like finding Howard Hughes, but once that happened I was told that founder Jean Phillips named many of her early pet projects Screaming Eagles. The name was a tribute to the Fighting Screaming Eagle Squadrons of WWII.

THE GOOD LIFE

THREE WAYS TO CUT HEARING AID COSTS

Dear Savvy Senior,

I've heard that hearing aids will soon be available over-the-counter and will be much cheaper than they currently are. What can you tell me about this? My husband desperately needs hearing aids but we simply can't afford them.

Searching Spouse

Dear Searching,

Unfortunately, for many years the high cost of hearing aids has kept millions of Americans with hearing loss from getting hearing aids because they can't afford

Hearing aids - typically sold through audiologists' offices – are expensive, usually ranging between $1,000 and $4,000 per ear, and are not typically covered by private insurance or traditional Medicare.

But there's good news on the horizon. Last summer President Trump signed the Over-the-Counter Hearing Aid Act of 2017 into law. This will allow people with mild to moderate hearing loss to buy hearing aids without consulting an audiologist, and the devices could sell for between $250 and $300 at drugstores and other retailers.

The only problem is that it will be a couple more years before these OTC hearing aids are available to consumers. So in the meantime, here are some tips that can help you find some affordable options.

Check Your Insurance

While most private health insurance companies do not cover hearing aids, there are some that do. For example, Aetna members can purchase aids at a discount through certain suppliers, and United Healthcare offers hearing aids to their beneficiaries through HealthInnovations for $799 to $999 each.

You should also know that some federal workers, as well as residents of Arkansas, Connecticut, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island can get their hearing on Deafness and Other Communication Disorders at aids covered by health insurance, as can eligible veterans through the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Or, if your husband is a Medicare recipient, about half of all Medicare Advantage plans offer at least partial coverage or discounts on hearing exams and devices. So, be sure you check your husband's author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

insurance coverage to see if it offers any type of hearing aid benefit.

Shop Around

To help you save money, consider shopping at Costco, which offers no-cost screenings at certain locations, as well as very competitive prices. Hearing aids there range between $500 and $1,500 each. You can also shop online at websites like EmbraceHearing.com and Audicus.com, which can save you up to $2,000 per pair. Then visit a local specialist to make any necessary

Another option worth a look is over-the-counter personal sound amplification products (or PSAPs). Unlike hearing aids, the Food and Drug Administration does not regulate PSAPs. And PSAP manufacturers are not allowed to call these products hearing aids or claim that they help hearing. But these devices are very effective for people with mild to moderate hearing impairment, and typically cost between $350 and $450 each. To find a wide variety of PSAPs see assistive listening sites like Harris Communications (HarrisComm.com, or call 866-476-9579).

Look For Assistance

If your income is low, there is a number of national, state and independent groups that can help you pay for hearing aids or offer discounts. To find them, visit the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association website at ASHA.org/public/coverage/ audfundingresources. Or, call the National Institute 800-241-1044, and ask them to mail you their list of financial resources for hearing aids.

or under your bed, but also in outer space. To astronomers, dust can be a nuisance by blocking the light of distant stars, or it universe, galaxy, and solar system.

For example, astronomers have been trying to explain why some recently discovered distant, but young, galaxies contain massive amounts of dust. These observations indicate that Type II supernovae-explosions of stars more than ten times as massive as the Sun produce copious amounts of dust, but how and when they do so is not well understood.

New work from a team of Carnegie cosmochemists published by Science Advances reports analyses of carbon-rich dust grains extracted from meteorites that show that these grains formed in the outflows from one or more Type II supernovae more than two years after the progenitor stars exploded. This dust was then blown into space to be eventually incorporated into new stellar systems, including in this case, our own.

The researchers—led by postdoctoral researcher Nan Liu, along with Larry Nittler, Conel Alexander, and Jianhua Wang of Carnegie's Department of Terrestrial Magnetism—came to their conclusion not by studying supernovae with telescopes. Rather, they analyzed microscopic silicon carbide, SiC, dust grains that formed in supernovae more than 4.6 billion years ago and were trapped in meteorites as our solar system formed from the ashes of the galaxy's previous generations of stars.

Certain isotopes enable scientists to establish a time frame for cosmic events because they are radioactive. In these instances, the number of neutrons present in the isotope make it unstable. To gain stability, it releases energetic particles in a way that alters the number of protons and neutrons, transmuting it into a different element.

The Carnegie team focused on a rare isotope of titanium, titanium-49, because this isotope is the product of radioactive decay of vanadium-49 which is produced during supernova explosions and transmutes into titanium-49 with a halflife of 330 days. How much titanium-49 gets incorporated into a supernova dust grain thus depends on when the grain forms after the explosion.

Using a state-of-the-art mass spectrometer to measure the titanium isotopes in supernova SiC grains with much better precision than could be accomplished by previous studies, the team found that the grains must have formed at least two years after their massive parent stars exploded.

CHRISTOPHER Nyerges ARRIVAL

Reliance.com, or Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041]

I love a good movie that has a good story, and makes you think deeply about life. Unfortunately, these are few and far between. When I recently viewed the movie "Arrival," the mysterious mood and jumping through time kept me glued to my seat. I already knew it was about some sort of alien space ships that came to earth, because they told us that in the trailers. And in general, though I find space alien movies to be entertaining, they typically are about some other place and time and have no relevance to me. "Arrival" was different. "Arrival" made us talk and debate about what we'd just seen, and how it presented a solution to the major problems facing the people of our planet. The space ships arrive, and they are not your ordinary space ships. These are more like elongated rocks, standing about 150 yards tall, with no visible technological lights or moving parts. Are they friend or foe? Government scientists record the sounds from the space ship and linguists are brought in to translate, all to no avail. The star of the show, linguist Louise Banks, decides to attempt communication by writing (rather than by speaking) to the aliens. With some sort of clear border between the humans and the aliens, Banks manages to elicit visual responses from the aliens. The aliens project round images onto the clear screen, which Banks eventually proves to be a form of language. In the meantime, no one knows what these aliens are doing, hovering over 12 spots on the earth. After all, we are told by one of the military men on the scene, all foreign invaders on the earth always did bad things to the peoples they invaded, mentioning many examples, such of the world leaders are preparing for aggression, seems futile. See the movie!

[Nyerges is the author of and how to be both defensive and offensive to the Extreme Simplicity," "How alien presence. But our linguist, Louise Banks, to Survive Anywhere," believes that she has made a connection with the and other books. He teach alien beings, and understands their mission. The survival and self-reliance round images, determines Banks, is a universal at Pasadena City college and throughout the language. When one learns to understand and community. He can be reached at www.SchoolofSelf- to think in this language, one can escape from the bounds of time. Banks believes that the aliens brought this language to earth because it is needed for humanity's evolution, to escape time, and to understand our unity. Banks believes that the aliens are actually mankind's saviors. But not everyone agrees with this interpretation, as many are getting ready for a major assault on humanity. As the plot unfolds, our female linguist masters the language, and sees in her future that she will teach and spread this new visual language from the aliens. The huge obelisk ships eventually just fade away to the mists from which they've come, and mankind goes back to its business as usual.It is a profound, well-told story that moves along well. Our post-movie conversation was intense.

What is language, after all? Why don't we all speak the same tongue? Why did Chinese develop a written system based on modified pictures, and others developed letters to represent each part of the spoken word? How could so many diverse languages have developed on earth? Doesn't it take a very long time to develop a language? We discussed the many languages and how so many translations are merely approximations. We brought up S.I Hayakawa's book, "Language in Thought and Action," who pointed out how the words we think, and speak, affect our reality. In "Arrival," Banks translated one pictorial image as "tool," but others translated it as "weapon." The world was worried. Both translations were actually correct, but in the context of the message, "tool" would have been a better choice because no hostile intent was involved. Even now, basked in the profoundness of the "Arrival" experience, trying as the Spanish invasion into the Americas. Most to use words to describe what I just experienced

THE ONLY EXERCISE I GET IS SHIVERING IN THE COLD

I am not one to complain, at least when anybody practice with me. At first, I really did not like it

Well, I used to believe that. Certain things have happened that has caused me to upgrade this aspect of my life. Believe me when I say that upgrading any aspect of your life has a price tag to it. Oftentimes that price tag is rather extreme.

Recently, we have been experiencing some rather cold weather in our area. Every morning the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage reminds me of how cold it is outside. As if I did not know it was cold outside.

As I'm preparing to leave the house, she will always say, "Make sure you wear a coat and keep

I often chuckle, to myself of course, when she makes remarks something like this. Often she will say when I'm ready to leave, "Make sure you drive carefully." To which I always respond, "Rats, I was planning to drive recklessly today and now I have to drive carefully."

For some reason she never laughs at me, but just stares one of those stares every husband has come to recognize. Why she thinks she needs to tell me to drive carefully is beyond my pay level, I am sure. Maybe, and this is just a guess on my part, she has ridden with me while I was driving. If that is the case I solved that a number of years ago. Whenever we go anywhere, I always allow her to drive and we use her vehicle. Now, do not let this get back to her, but I would rather use her vehicle and her gas than my vehicle and my gas. When we go anywhere, she is the one who drives and I just sit back and enjoy the ride. So where she gets this idea that I drive carelessly, I'm not However, getting back to the cold weather she sometimes tells me to put on a coat before I go outside because it is "shivering cold out there." Of course, if I put my coat on I am not going to shiver. At least that's what I think.

I don't mind one day when it's cold, but when there are several days in a row, I am quite unprepared for that. After all, I live in Florida and I expect the weather to be warm if not hot. All of this cold weather has brought me to the idea that I want to gather together a class action suit against the governor of Florida because the motto of Florida is "The Sunshine State." If he cannot provide the sunshine and the warmth, then why in the world is he Governor?

However, shivering is becoming a daily church web site is www.whatafellowship.com.

is listening. The greatest blessing I have in life is because my shivering was out of my control. As that nobody really listens to me. Therefore, I can soon as I step outside my body begins to shiver say whatever I want to say and nobody will hear uncontrollably. For a person my age and size that is a little humiliating. I do not want any part of my body working without my permission.

Once I got over the humiliation of my body shivering beyond my control, I began to see the positive side of it. If you look hard enough, you can see the positive side in everything. It took me a while, but I finally got to where I began to appreciate the positive side of shivering in the

My wife is always suggesting that I try to lose a little bit of weight and maybe exercising a little bit will help. But I am not as young as I used to be. I think I have earned the time to goof off and do nothing. In fact, I have become quite the expert at doing nothing. If anybody can do nothing, it is me and I do it quite well.

At my age, exercise is a little more than I can handle. I have put myself on a 12-step program when it comes to exercise. Six steps from my chair to the refrigerator, and six steps back to my chair. That is the kind of exercise that I can really deal

Then the shivering idea came into my lackadaisical head. I do not often get a chance to pull one over on my wife, and I thought I had a wonderful plan at this point. I practiced for several days so that I could get it right.

Then an opportunity presented itself.

"Maybe," my wife said as seriously as she has ever been, "you should do a little bit of exercise."

"I get plenty of exercise," I said rather smugly. "Oh yeah," she said with both hands firmly placed on her hips. "Where are you getting any exercise?" "I get all the exercise I need," I said, "by shivering out in the cold."

She looked at me for a moment and finally said, You know that you're a mess!"

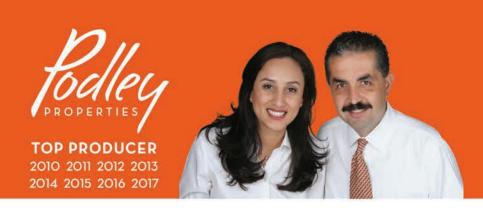

Paul said it best when he said, "For bodily exercise profiteth little: but godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come" (1 Timothy

The best exercise, of course is spiritual. Exercising my faith in God is the most important thing in my life.

BARGER PUSHES FOR LEGISLATION TO PROVIDE LIFESAVING MEDICAL CARE FOR THE MENTALLY ILL

Pasadena Edition: Pasadena - South Pasadena - Altadena - San Marino

Department of Mental Health-sponsored Amendment to State Law Would Add Medical Treatment to Grave Disability Criteria

LOS ANGELES COUNTY - At their next our work with the most vulnerable and critically Supervisors will consider a motion by Supervisors Kathryn Barger and Mark Ridley-Thomas to sponsor state legislation enabling the county to provide critical medical care for the mentally ill.

"More than 830 homeless people died on the streets of L.A. County last year. Many of these deaths were preventable with proper medical attention," Barger said. "It's time for California to join 37 other states who consider medical treatment a basic human need for those suffering from a mental illness."

The legislation would amend the state's definition of gravely disabled pursuant to the recommendation by the Department of Mental Health (DMH), to read, "a condition in which a person, as a result of a mental health disorder, is unable to provide for his or her basic personal needs for food, clothing, shelter, or medical treatment where the lack or failure of such treatment results in substantial physical harm or death." This proposed addition (in the underlined section above) is similar to the criteria used in 37 states nationwide.

"It's important to realize that individuals with co-occurring mental illness and homelessness, arguably the county's most vulnerable populations, may account disproportionately for the increased death rates," said Dr. Jonathan Sherin, director of Los Angeles County Department of Mental regular meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 30, the Board of ill by acknowledging that signs of physical harm due to self-neglect as a result of serious mental conditions are a rational and objective means for detecting grave disability," Sherin added.

'We can advance our mission by operationalizing

On October 31, 2017 the Board of Supervisors approved a motion by Barger that directed DMH to work with county agencies, mental health advocacy groups, civil rights organizations and other stakeholders to develop legislative recommendations. Numerous mental health professionals and advocates voiced support for Barger's motion including Dr. Susan Patrovi, Medical Director of Homeless Healthcare LA, Brittney Weissman, Executive Director of NAMI Los Angeles County Council and Los Angeles City Councilmember David Ryu.

DMH and its partners engaged stakeholders from various statewide and local organizations and received overwhelmingly positive feedback on modifying the current grave disability standard.

'Current state law is a one-size-fits-all approach to mental illness, which makes it nearly impossible to adequately address the needs of the growing number of the mentally ill among the homeless population," Barger said. "Allowing the most vulnerable to languish on our streets without a lifeline is inhumane, and we cannot accept this as

Together, we can find an effective approach to this crisis that will help deliver lifesaving treatment and care for those desperately in need,

Exit West: A Novel by Mohsin Hamid

A New York Times bestseller, the astonishingly visionary love story that imagines the forces that drive ordinary people from their homes into the uncertain embrace of new lands. In a country teetering on the brink of civil war, two young people meet—sensual, fiercely independent Nadia and gentle, restrained Saeed. They embark on a furtive love affair, and are soon cloistered in a premature intimacy by the unrest roiling their city. When it explodes, turning familiar streets into a patchwork of checkpoints and bomb blasts, they begin to hear whispers about doors—doors that can whisk people far away, if perilously and for a price. As the violence escalates, Nadia and Saeed decide that they no longer have a choice. Leaving their homeland and their old lives behind, they find a door and step through. . . . And yet we played on, because we had hope that we might be the lucky ones."In the early 1900s, teenaged Sunja, the adored daughter of a crippled fisherman, falls for a wealthy stranger at the seashore near her home in Korea. He promises her the world, but when she discovers she is pregnant-and that her lover is married--she refuses to be bought. Instead, she accepts an offer of marriage from a gentle, sickly minister passing through on his way to Japan. But her decision to abandon her home, and to reject her son's powerful father, sets off a dramatic saga that will echo down through the generations. FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

WHY YOUR ESTATE PLANNER NEEDS TO KNOW IF YOU'VE LENT MONEY TO FAMILY

More and more, children and grandchildren are skipping the traditional bank and obtaining loans from parents or grandparents. Unfortunately, we have all heard stories of families torn apart because of disagreements over money. So, what can you do to make sure your intra-family loans help — rather than hurt — your family?

As far as estate planning is concerned, money you lend to others is legally an asset. If you have lent money to a family member, the presence of these assets in your estate can be problematic for your surviving family members. This is because your executor and successor trustee are under a legal requirement, known as fiduciary care, to collect the outstanding obligation, even if the other party is a family

If the amount of money that you have lent out is significant -- and "significant" can be relative -- it is important to document it as you plan your estate. For example, if you wish to forgive the debt there are special terms that must be included in your trust or will for this to happen. On the other hand, you may want the debt to be paid out of the inheritance the borrower is otherwise receiving. In that case, the payment of the debt from the inheritance must be addressed in your estate planning documents.

A Brief Loan Primer

A loan is a legal and financial arrangement where money is borrowed and is expected to be paid back with interest. Generally, a loan involves a promissory note, which is a signed document by the borrower containing a written promise to repay a stated sum of money to the lender in accordance with a schedule, at a specified date, or on demand. In some cases collateral, like real estate or other property, is used to secure the loan. Collateral is something pledged as security for repayment of the loan. If the borrower quits making payments, then the collateral can be taken by

Lending as an Estate Planning Tool

When properly structured and well documented, loans can be a smart estate planning tool for many families. This is because lenders (usually grandparents or parents) can essentially give access to an inheritance without any immediate gift or estate tax problems, generate a better return on their cash than they could with bank deposits, and borrowers (usually children or grandchildren) can take out loans at interest rates lower than commercial rates and with better terms. In fact, the Internal Revenue Service allows borrowers who are related to one another to pay very low rates on intra-family loans. Furthermore, the total interest paid on these types of transactions over the life of the loan stays within the family. If structured and documented properly, intra-family loans may effectively transfer money within the family, for the purchase of a home, the financing of a business, or any other purpose.

Sometimes loans can be used in sophisticated estate tax planning strategies as a way to shift assets into special estatetax saving trusts. One variant of this technique is sometimes called an installment sale to a grantor trust. Although this sophisticated strategy and others like it are usually only appropriate for those with a net worth of at least several million dollars, other types of intra-family loans, perhaps for home improvement, an automobile purchase, or a business, can help families across the wealth spectrum.

There are a few important points to keep in mind regarding these types of loans: the loan must be well-documented, lenders should usually ask for collateral, the lender should make sure the borrower can repay the loan, and the income and estate tax implications should be examined thoroughly.

Deciding What You Want

While you were kind enough to help a member of your family by lending him or her money, do not let this become a legal dilemma in the event of your incapacity or after your death. Instead, use your estate plan to specifically express what you want to have happen regarding these assets. Before lending money, it is important to carefully consider how the loan should be structured, documented, and repaid. If you or someone you know has lent money and has questions about how this affects your estate plan, let us know and we'll help you find the answers.

MIND YOUR BUSINESS

Establishing and maintaining a successful business begins commit to a date by which you expect certain goals to be and ends with an entrepreneur's state of mind. "The Little Engine That Could" is one of the most famous children's stories, extolling the benefits of what is possible when Invest Your Time & Resources someone simply dares to believe they can accomplish something that may seem out of reach.

Everyone who has any inkling of entrepreneurial aspiration must seize the moment at some point and take action in order to create the product or business they envision. The mind is defined as the part of a person that can think, reason, feel and remember. It is commonly thought of as the activity of the brain, which is an appropriate springboard to emphasize that activity or action aligned with aspiration is what distinguishes doers from mere dreamers.

Mind your business is used here as an expression to emphasize the importance of how entrepreneurs can use their own thought process to forge ahead toward achieving goals. The following mnemonic can be used as a guide to move forward and keep going in the direction of your

Make Up Your Mind

The first step is to get clarity about your vision, your dream to start a business. Do you want to earn extra income or build your idea into your primary livelihood? Do you want a small, easy-to-manage business or are you thinking of building a thriving enterprise? Either one will need to generate revenue and be profitable. It is important to determine the income goal as a certain amount per month, year or other timeframe. Finally, it is imperative to Everyone on the planet is granted with 24 hours in day, and those who have relished in the success of building a profitable understand that time is a commodity more valuable than money. Both should be used wisely, but unlike money, time wasted can never be recaptured. Take time to layout the gameplan, the roadmap as you understand it, to reach your goal.

Never Give Up

Follow the example of The Little Engine That Could and press forward, even when going uphill makes it a little more difficult.

Distinguish Yourself With Discipline

Executing your plan will build the bridge between your goal and your vision. Consistency fosters discipline, which results in a mastery of knowledge and skills that fuels the type of confidence that can help an entrepreneur to keep going when times get challenging.

Move beyond thinking about starting a business, or if you're already in business, move beyond simply thinking about what you can do to expand and move to the next phase you envision. Make up our mind to have the level of success you desire as a business owner and go for it.

"The mind is everything. What you think you become."

POTPOURRI

Potpourri (n): A mixture of things

ATTACK OF THE INVISIBLE VOTER APATHY MONSTER:

Last week I mentioned that more than 157 million Americans who were eligible to vote did not vote for Trump. Of those, 65 million+ voted for Hillary Clinton and another 8 million+ voters cast their ballots as Libertarians, Green Party Members, Independents, Write Ins or Others. (Please note: we do not have a two party system, just not enough people participating in other parties.) Anyway, when you deduct those voters, that leaves us 83,562,525 eligible voters who DID NOT VOTE for either lack of interest, lack of enthusiasm, or a general lack of concern. If you are one of those please take serious note, your voice is needed. Neither major party candidate received 80 million votes. What a difference you could have made!

AND THE APATHY CRIPPLES IN OTHER WAYS TOO!

Not only are citizens not voting, they are not stepping up to the plate to lead. Getting good candidates to run for office is next to impossible. In Arcadia, an open City Council seat drew 1 candidate. To the surprise of no one, the city canceled the election and just appointed the candidate to the vacant seat. (See story on page 5).

In Sierra Madre, there is a vacancy for the office of City Clerk waiting to be filled. At press time there has been only 1 candidate to date, (there is still time to apply). The City Clerk vacancy doesn't even require that you go through the election process for the next two years.

And Yet.....everybody wants to whine and complain about what is going on.

BY THE WAY - MOSES WAS A LUCKY MAN!

Timing is everything! It is a good thing that Moses, who was floated down the river WITHOUT PAPERS, didn't live during the reign of Donald Trump. Whether you are Christian, Jewish, Islamic, or an atheist, you probably know the story. Truth is, Moses was an undocumented migrant for all intents and purposes when he was rescued from the river. No one knew who he was or where he came from. When Pharaoh's sister rescued him he was spared from certain death based on a decree from Pharaoh that all Hebrew boys be killed. Unbeknownst to her, the baby was in fact a Hebrew but her ignorance of that fact saved his life. In fact, Moses grew up to be a great prophet and historical figure whose legacy has lasted thousands of years and helped millions. Lot to learn from Moses' story. One thing it brings to light in view of what is going on in this country regarding the children who were brought into this country illegally by their parents, is how ridiculous and inhumane it is to hold a child accountable for the actions of their parents. (His mother turned him into a migrant by sending him adrift with no ID in case you didn't get it). Imagine kicking baby Moses out of the country because he didn't have documentation! Would Trump and Company have put the baby back in the basket to drift on down the stream? And, take a look at what happens when a person isn't judged based upon who people think they are or how they think they will act. Moses grew up to do great things. Could someone send this as a reminder to the President and those in Congress who want to deport approximately 700,000 children (some who are now adults), to where?, a country they have never known. Disgraceful.

And last but certainly not least - Trump's New Immigration Offer (at least as of Friday. It is subject to be totally different by Saturday morning!): He's making an offer. Save 1.8 million Dreamers he won't deport. The number of Dreamers has been 700,00 since the day he was sworn in. What did Trump do, count the undocumented workers on his various Trump resort and other business payrolls?

People, this is our country from top to bottom and we have to get serious and take an interest in our futures. To quote my favorite teacher, Mrs. Hamilton, "Now you think about that"!

"I'VE NEVER SEEN ANYTHING LIKE IT: THE WAITING ROOMS ARE OVERFLOWING WITH PEOPLE WHO ARE DEATHLY SICK, OF THE PATRIOTS."

STOP MISREPRESENTING THE STATUE OF LIBERTY!

They'll do it every time.

Whenever Joe Sixpack (or Joe's congressman) gingerly raises the subject of hiring extra border guards, tweaking our broken system of monitoring work visas or fine-tuning our vetting of refugees from terrorist-infested countries, the cliché knee-jerk responses are swift.

Copycat editorial cartoonists, sanctimonious talk-show hosts and professional agitators bombard us with caricatures of an immigrant-loathing Statue of Liberty and parodies of Emma Lazarus's 1883 sonnet "The New Colossus" ("Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses...").

Joe and his ilk are savagely branded as haters and xenophobes and violators of sacred promises.

But "The New Colossus" is not a covenant Moses brought down from Mount Sinai. It is not an amendment to the U.S. Constitution, a landmark Supreme Court ruling, an executive order, a treaty, a trade pact or even a local zoning ordinance.

It is a poem. It is an inspirational poem that has stood the test of time (although most people remember only about 13 words of it), but it is still just a poem. It is not a contract that leaves Joe legally and morally bound to suffer public shaming at the whim of elitists living in gated communities.

"The New Colossus" no more obligates Joe to accept wide-open borders than Woody Guthrie's "This Land Is Your Land" means I must surrender my 10 acres of private property to vagrants or "Take Me Out To The Ball Game" mandates that someone owes me peanuts and Crackerjacks.

The "Dreamers" rightly assert that they had no choice in being brought into the U.S. illegally by their parents. Similarly, no one living today had any input into Emma Lazarus's stanzas. No one living had veto power over the War Department bureaucrat who accepted the plaque of "The New Colossus" in 1903. No one has ever gotten to vote in a referendum about the values expressed in the poem.

Let's use the trendy "living document" theory on Lazarus's poem. She wrote with no idea that we would amass a national debt in the trillions, that gangs would fight with machine guns, that greedy employers would abuse H-1B visas, that some immigrants would refuse assimilation in the American "melting pot," that some new arrivals would try to retain their own legal system, that intoxicated undocumented immigrants would kill pedestrians with a "car," that terrorists could walk across the border just as easily as refugees genuinely fleeing poverty or political torture.

Let's use some common sense where hospitality is concerned. Even if you are sincere when you tell a friend "Drop by for a visit when you're in town" or "Let me know if there's any way I can help in your time of grief," your friend should bargain in good faith and not abuse your generosity. Likewise, let us assume there's an implicit "Reasonable restrictions apply" clause in Lazarus's invitation.

Citizens advocating a careful, sensible approach to immigration are being vilified as the moral equivalent of the politicians who shamelessly broke treaties with Native Americans.

But if we Americans are bullied into sacrificing our security, our economic stability, our rule of law and our best traditions, immigrants will be arriving in an America far worse than the one they dreamed of. We will be perpetuating a shameful bait-and-switch scam.

And in the process, people already living in America will become the tired, the poor, the huddled masses.

THE FALSE CHOICE BETWEEN THE DREAMERS AND THE MILITARY

GRAHAM F. WEST

While it is a pleasant surprise that last weekend's shutdown was resolved so quickly, there is hardly time for a sigh of relief. In just a few short weeks, the latest continuing resolution will run out - leaving the government without funds once more.

Before that happens, it's critical to establish that Republicans presented a fundamentally false choice in last weekend's battle: that between the DREAMers and our military.

The DREAMers are Americans in all but name. The term comes from the DREAM Act, a years-old legislative effort to protect a group of people who were brought to the United States as children - that is, not by their choice. Thanks to an Obama-era program called DACA (Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals), DREAMers were able to apply for a sort of temporary citizenship contingent on high standards of academic and career achievement as well as law-abiding behavior.

These 800,000 men and women are woven into communities across the nation, many of them now having children who are Americans. Hundreds of DREAMers serve in our military, and still more work in local government, philanthropy, public safety, and every other profession. They represent no economic or security threat to our nation - in fact, they benefit us all in both ways and more.

Unfortunately, they are now at risk because last September, Attorney General Jeff Sessions rescinded DACA, their only legal protection. DACA is set to phase out officially by March, and with President Trump's draconian Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) chomping at the bit to expel more people from the country, their futures are in a terrifying legal limbo.

the bit to expel more people from the country, their futures are in a terrifying legal limbo.

This is part of the reason for last week's shutdown: Democrats refused to authorize funding without a permanent fix for the DREAMers. The Republican Party, which controls both chambers of Congress and the White House, could not pass a bill alone due to a split between immigration hardliners and moderates. Naturally then, the Democrats argued that any bipartisan budget deal must take into account both parties' priorities, including protection for the DREAMers.

The Republicans - most loudly President Trump and Speaker of the House Paul Ryan, whose ending of DACA and inability to control his own members, respectively, precipitated the crisis in the first place - chose a less honest portrayal of the problem. Time and again, they accused Senate Democrats of 'playing politics' with funding for our military and, by extension, our national security.

This is partly spurious because the Department of Defense does not completely shut down even when the government does. Worldwide U.S. military operations continue, and many (though not all) employees are deemed 'essential' and protected from furlough. There are however consequences for military and DoD civilian pay - namely that it stops during the shutdown and only arrives later as backpay, a burden for those living paycheck to paycheck.

So the meat of the Republican attack was not just that Democrats were leaving the nation vulnerable, but that they were willing to hose the troops for a bunch of illegal immigrants too. Except that it was actually the Republican Party who kept the troops from being paid in the first place.

After the funding clock ran out last Friday night, Missouri's Democratic Senator Claire McCaskill put forth a bill to ensure that military members would keep getting paid. Such legislation was proposed and passed with flying, bipartisan colors during the last shutdown in 2013. Nevertheless, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell (a Republican, of Kentucky) refused to even allow a vote on the measure.

There is publicly available video from the Senate floor of the Republican Party refusing to ensure pay for our military members - yet they still had the gall to attack Democrats for days afterwards as hostile to national security. And what's more, based on President Trump's recent tweets lumping in the word "military" with discussions of immigration and border security, it will likely be the same attack line next time around.

Thankfully, the American people know better than to believe this lie. And with support for DACA and the DREAMers at an all-time high, they also know better than to fund the deportation of good people who have known no country but the one we share for their whole lives. If the government heads for shutdown once more, the Democratic Party must stand firm against these bad-faith arguments by the very people who are creating the problem - and that means soundly rejecting the Republicans' false choice between the DREAMers and the military.
