CITY COUNCIL CANDIDATE GENE GOSS

I am running for re-election to City Council because of the profound importance city government has for the wellbeing of our citizens. My wife and I have been homeowners here for 22 years. My son is a 'born and raised' Sierra Madrean. Like you, we love this community and all that it offers. It truly is a very special place that needs to be preserved for future generations.

For the past four years I have served the citizens of Sierra Madre as your Council Member. Last year I was honored to serve as Mayor. In my tenure on the Council, I have kept the promises I made in 2014. These included bringing civility and decorum back to Council deliberations, implementing fiscally responsible management of financial resources, preserving local control of our police department and saving the SMPD, professionalizing our fire department and making our city more safe, developing and implementing comprehensive plans to rebuild our decaying infrastructure, and completing the General Plan and developing reasonable approaches to land use planning. Also, under my leadership as Mayor last year, we hired

Much has been accomplished, but we do face serious challenges, such as the persistent drought in Sierra Madre and related issues with water supply, the pension debt facing the city in the future, and the consequences resulting from years of deferred maintenance at our library. These challenges are not insurmountable. I will seek maximum public input and insist on absolute transparency in all City operations. As a team builder, I will work to keep the Council and management team on task. We must face our challenges head on. Working together, I am confident that we will move forward on all fronts with longterm solutions.

I respectfully ask for your vote on April 10th. www.GeneGoss.com ggoss626@gmail.com

DECEPTIVE EMAIL TARGETS SIERRA MADRE ELECTION

Don't forget to...

Breaking News: Anti-Tax Organizations Sends Mass Email with Sierra Madre City Seal Supporting Measure D

Sierra Madre Voters Beware! There is an email circulating with the City of Sierra Madre's logo on it that is promoting passage of Measure D that is on the April 10th Ballot. The problem is, the City of Sierra Madre did not authorize use of the city's logo and has not and will not take a position on Measure D. As reported in this paper on March 3rd, "Measure D proponents want to end the tax that is paid by both homeowners, renters and commercial properties. If the Measure passes, the city would lose 24% of its General Fund revenue.'

So who sent out the email? Well the names of the two Sierra Madre residents who collected signatures to put the measure on the ballot, Earl Richey and David McMonigle are mentioned, but they did not send the email nor get approval to use the city's logo either.

The email was sent out by the California Tax Limitation Committee (CTLC) an anti-tax group associated with TEAPAC Pasadena. Both have previously unsuccessfully attempted to abolish Sierra Madre's Utility User's Tax in 2014 and 2016. They also attempted to pass similar measures in Arcadia, San Marino, South Pasadena, and Glendale.

This email also solicits donations to help pass the

According to the California Secretary of State's website and Cal Access, no resident of Sierra Madre is listed as part of this committee. Further, as of the group's and Teapac's last contribution reports, no resident of Sierra Madre has made a contribution to CTLC or

No matter how 'official' it looks, the email did not come from the City of Sierra Madre. It is clearly an attempt by outsiders to influence the decisions of residents, for reasons that have nothing to do with the city, but everything to do with their own agenda.

It should be noted, that in upcoming City Council Race, all 4 candidtes are adamantly opposed to and will vote No on Measure D.

SUSPENDED PASADENA POLICE OFFICER PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO FEDERAL GUN CHARGES

Sierra Madre resident Vasken Gourdikian appeared in Federal Court on Friday and entered a plea of innocence for all of the charges listed in the indictment.

As reported in February, 2017, two truckloads of weapons were seized in a raid at his home (http://mtnviewsnews.com/v11/htm/n07/index.htm). The raid yielded more than 62 items of which 57 were guns. Gourdikian is also charged with selling the weapons without a federal firearms license.

The indictment includes a history of gun sales as far back as 2015 on multiple occaisions to parties in Duarte.

The Pasadena Weekly also reported "Under the user name "vgourdik," Gourdikian sold hundreds of weapons on Calguns, a Second Amendment advocacy and gun enthusiast website. Many of those weapons were on the state's off-roster list, meaning civilians cannot purchase them"

Gourdikian was first put on leave with pay by the Pasadena Police Department but his status was changed to without pay recently. According to a report in the Pasadena Weekly, Gourdikian "collected more than $190,000" since his arrest.

He is currently out on $100,000 bail and scheduled back in court in April.

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"A certain darkness is needed to see the stars."

Sometimes a statement will stick out in front of you and you just have to do something with it. The quote above was what stuck out in front of me today and I thought I'd pass it along.

The picture this week is of my friend, and probably your friend, too, Robert Gjerde. Thinking back, I've known Robert since before his kids were born and they are in 9th and 7th grade at this point. Robert arrived at my house for our chat and hopped out of this gorgeous CERT van, which sports a communications mast that extends to 48', providing line-of-sight to connect to transmitters on the hillsides, other communities, city hall and all sorts of places which need to be able to communicate during such time as a severe emergency has shut down all other forms of communications.

Before we got down to Robert's involvement with CERT - Community Emergency Response Team, we chatted about some of his excellent photography. Robert lives up in the canyon with a spectacular view of the entire San Gabriel Valley from his front window. He has posted many pictures of bears cavorting about his hillside, deer, and tortoises. His next door neighbor is the proud owner of a pair of tortoises who, after ten or twelve years living there finally produced babies! Tortoises, as you probably already know, lay eggs, bury them in the ground and some months later, baby tortoises appear all over the place. There have been three batches of tortoises so far and their proud owners keep them inside for the first year or so of life to give them a fighting chance to get big enough to avoid all their natural predators; think raccoons, skunks, etc. Robert caught this year's Rose Parade flyby in the best picture I saw anywhere. A couple more interesting things about Robert, he's on the board of our own Pioneer Cemetery and designed their website. He thought they needed one and created it! And, you know that bell in Kersting Court that gets rung for significant events like the Mt. Wilson Trail Race, the return of our Rose float, the Halloween Parade and other things like that? Robert noticed it, discovered it hadn't been rung for some thirty years, did a little research on the bell tower, wrote an article about it, bought the right kind of rope, greased up all the parts and...voila! The bell rings! This bell, btw, is the original bell in the schoolhouse which originally stood in Kersting Court; the second school in Sierra Madre. As you can see, Robert is a go-to, get-it-done, kinda guy.

CERT has been a presence in Sierra Madre for about ten years under the auspices of FEMA and is called out by the Fire Department. They are prepared for any sort of major disaster, fire, flood, earthquake, you name it. There are three CERT members on staff at the Fire Department at all times along with two paramedics, should that major disaster occur. They are equipped to deal with search & rescue issues within the city, in addition to fire suppression The CERT trailer, which was donated in 2013 contains medical, communications and triage equipment. It's purpose, basically, is to try to keep people alive. There is a 20-hour training course yearly held in the EOC in the basement of City Hall, and a disaster drill was also held recently in the City Council Chambers featuring 15 high school volunteers in full disaster makeup! CERT has trained around 150 people in disaster/emergency techniques and if you'd like to take a look at the CERT van and meet Robert, he will be out at the Wistaria Festival March 18 at the corner of Auburn and Sierra Madre Blvd.

all day from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Robert is also the CERT grant writer and he's managed to coax about $10,000 from folks like So. Cal Edison.

Sierra Madre Community Foundation, Sierra Madre Civic Club, Sierra Madre Women's Club, Rotary and he's just applied to the Pasadena Community Foundation for Emergency Communication Internet equipment. A real necessity as the internet is the only thing that will work in an emergency when everything else goes down. Come out and meet Robert and take a look at Sierra Madre's CERT equipment. You'll be glad you did!

Stopped by Creative Arts Group last Sunday to take a look at their Art in Bloom Show and, friends and neighbors, we have some amazing floral artists here in town. Artists and florists pairing to create arrangements based on their interpretation of selected art pieces. Lisa Cardella of Ixora Florists, Jill Fordes and Lorie Westmoreland of Leonora Moss, take a bow! The flower arrangements were beyond fabulous and reflected perfectly each piece of art. Sierra Madre is such a super place to live! We are surrounded by talent, beauty and, of course, our own personal mountains.

Officers in Altadena Altercation Reassigned

Two Pasadena police officers have been reassigned from the city's gang enforcement unit and placed on desk jobs following an ongoing investigation into a traffic stop in November that led to a violent arrest of Christopher Ballew during a traffic stop in Altadena according to reports Wednesday.

In December, Pasadena Police Chief Phillip Sanchez, said the department was investigating the incident and both Zachary Lujan and Lerry Esparza would remain on duty.

Late last month the Altadena Town council sent Sanchez and city officials a letter requesting that Lujan and Esparza stop any police business in Altadena. They also asked the department from proactively patrolling Altadena until doing a review of their use of force procedures.

The officers stopped Ballew Nov. 9 initially for driving with tinted windows and missing a front license plate. An altercation between Lujan, Esparza and Ballew left Ballew with a black eye and a broken leg. Video of the incident by a bystander went viral. Civil rights activists had demanded the officers by placed on leave. Demonstrators had disrupted Mayor Terry Tornek's State of the City Address January 16 over policing issues.

T IN THE SKY

March 14 is Pi Day, a celebration of the beloved number known as pi. JPL is celebrating Pi Day with the fifth annual "Pi in the Sky" illustrated math challenge, featuring pi-related space problems that you can do at Pi is often abbreviated as 3.14 (which is why Pi Day is 3/14), but there are actually an infinite number of digits in pi. Using computer programs, mathematicians have calculated trillions of those digits so far.

Pi can be used to derive characteristics of a circle or a sphere, such as circumference or surface area. Scientists and engineers at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, California, frequently use pi to learn about moons, planets, stars and other spherical bodies, and to track the orbits of satellites and spacecraft.

created by JPL's Education office, features math problems contain an infinite number that illustrate how pi can be used to learn about all kinds of used to learn about all kinds of curious features of the universe, cannot be represented as a including earthquakes on Mars, helium rain on Jupiter, and planets orbiting other stars.

"All of the problems in the 'Pi in the Sky' challenge are real problems that JPL scientists and engineers solve using pi," said Ota Lutz, a senior education specialist at JPL who helped create the Pi Day Challenge.

In previous years, Pi in the Sky featured problems about how NASA space probes gather information about objects in through the Education website our solar system, how scientists search for planets around other stars, and how astronomers predict the occurrence of solar eclipses. The new problems will be posted online on March 9, and solutions will be posted on March 15. You can find the previous years' challenge problems online as well.

The challenge is geared toward students in grades 5 through celebrated on March 14, or 12, and JPL offers additional resources for teachers and educators who want to use the problems in the classroom. But Lutz said adults love trying out the problems as well, and everyone should attempt the challenge even if they aren't familiar with space exploration.

"The Pi in the Sky problems give people a little glimpse into what goes on at JPL," Lutz said. "And that's empowering, because it shows people that they can understand some of the magic that goes into space exploration."

Pi belongs to a special class of The "Pi in the Sky" challenge, numbers known as "irrational of digits that do not repeat or ratio of two integers. (Integers include all whole numbers, as well as their negative counterparts, such as -1, -2, -3, etc.) Pi enthusiasts regularly use Pi Day as an opportunity to test their memorization skills, because the random nature of the digits makes them difficult to remember. Members of the public are encouraged to share photos and stories from their Pi Day celebration activities at jpl.nasa.gov/edu/share/pi-day-whats-going-round.

MONROVIA IN THE NEWS

By Joan Schmidt

In the last few weeks, so many wonderful events have been happening in Monrovia. First, on Sunday, February 24, there were the Dedications of the Santa Fe Depot and the Bob Bartlett Memorial at Station Square. The Santa Fe Depot is such a beautiful building, and it is truly amazing what contractors Samuelson and Fetter were able to accomplish. Built in 1926 by architect William H. Mohr, the iconic building had been decaying for 45 years. At the groundbreaking last March, we met these two contractors and wondered how they could accomplish such a feat, but they did and the results are mindboggling. Present at Sunday's Ribbon Cutting were Hector Elizalde, representing Congresswoman Grace Napolitano, Supervisor Kathryn Barger, Mayor Tom Adams, Mayor Pro Tem Gloria Crudginton, Council Members Larry Spicer and Becky Shevlin. Representing the Monrovia Arcadia Duarte Town Council were President Dave Hall, Vice President Terrence Williams (Also president of the Monrovia School Board), and Council Member Linda Sells. Supervisor Barger felt the Dedication of the Depot symbolized the past, present, and future of transit in the San Gabriel Valley.

There also was the Dedication of the beautiful Bob Bartlett Memorial. Known as "Mr. Monrovia", the late "Gentle Giant" played an integral role in making Monrovia the great city it is today. Before we moved here in the mid 80's, there was a time when parts of Monrovia were not so pretty. He worked so hard to bring in businesses, and improvements to the area. While on my first tenure on the Town Council, I met Bob and wished I lived in the City, so HE could be my Mayor! What a well deserved and so appropriate Memorial to such a wonderful man.

The Monrovia Historical Society will be sharing photos here at the Depot! A sample of nearly 100 photographs of Old Monrovia from the Legacy Collection will be on display at the Depot! It is free and open every WEDNESDAY, SATURDAY and SUNDAY from 1-4 pm from March 3-April.

Thursday March 1 also had two great events. First Monrovia Reads unveiled its Mobile Literacy Van in front of the Monrovia Library. This Van will be used to augment the after school Village Program at elementary schools in Monrovia through a joint effort of the Library and School District. The Van will have WIFI and permit students to check out and return library books when it visits the school sites during the Village Program. Attending were Mayor Tom Adams, School Board President Terrence Williams and Foundation President, former Mayor, Mayor Mary Ann Lutz. I thought, "How awesome for students who cannot get up to the Library"! Mr. Williams echoed my sentiments: "The van will bring the library closer to the community"; as did Mrs. Lutz: "This will take the Library outside its four walls." Thank you to Publisher Sponsor, Foothill Credit Union and Author Sponsor, Greater Los Angeles New Car.

After the unveiling of the Mobile Literacy Van at the Monrovia Library, many walked across to the Monrovia Community Center. Assemblyman Chris Holden held a Public Safety Panel Discussion, "Prop 47, Prop 57 and Assembly Bill 109: What You Need to Know. The featured Panelists included Secretary Scott Kernan, California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation; Stephen Walker, Government Affairs Director, California Correctional Peace Officers Association; Arcadia Police Chief Bob Guthrie, Los Angeles County Police Chief's Association President; and Daniel Torres, Flintridge Center reintegration Specialist. Also Monrovia City Manager Oliver Chi and LA County Deputy Chief Probation Officer Reaver Bingham were available for questions. It was a most informative meeting and Mr. Torres' story of how he turned his life around was truly

Memorial services are being coordinated under the direction of Douglass & Zook, and we wanted Monrovia the brightest gem in the crown that is to share that the funeral proceedings will be held

MONROVIA RENEWAL SOUTH SECTION INFRASTRUCTURE IMPROVEMENTS TO BREAK GROUND IN APRIL 2018!

Last week, we reported that Sequel Contractors in stages to progress efficiently while minimizing would be mobilizing to complete the Monrovia impacts to the nearby residents and businesses. South Section Renewal Infrastructure Improvements Project in the middle of March 2018. This week, the Monrovia Renewal Project team met with representatives from Sequel Contractors to establish the project plan and schedule. As a result, Sequel Contractors has indicated that they will actually mobilize the week of April 3, with work ramping up the week of April 10. This is due, in part, to the availability of crews and the winding down of other jobs they are currently working on. This revised schedule will have no impact on the completion schedule for the project at large and it is on target to be completed by the end of the calendar year.

The Monrovia Renewal South Section Infrastructure Improvements Project includes the area of the City that is located below the 210 Freeway. The scope of work includes the removal and replacement of concrete sidewalk, curb and gutter, and driveway approaches, the replacement of water service lines, sewer lining and point repairs at various locations, pipeline and valve improvements to the City's water system, installation of drainage improvements, and a complete battery of roadway improvements.

Three Stages of Construction Work:

There is a variety of work taking place, including underground utilities, concrete construction, and street construction. The work is being executed Middle School on April 19, 2018, at 6:30 p.m.

Work typically progresses in the following manner:

1. All necessary underground work related to water pipelines.

2. Repairs and replacements of curbs, gutters, and driveway approaches.

3. Street repairs and rehabilitation. Streets scheduled for repairs may receive one of four treatments: slurry seal which is a new sealant/top coat; micro-surfacing which is an enhanced type of slurry seal, a grind and overlay, which removes the top two inches of asphalt pavement and replaces it with new surface, or full reconstruction which means the street is removed down to dirt and fully reconstructed. In addition, streets paved with concrete will be repaired.

For the South project section, there will be an additional bit of work involved to install a sidewalk, trees, shrubs and irrigation on the north side of Duarte Avenue, east of California Avenue.

Prior to construction, the contractor will provide a number of notices and postings in the impacted areas. If you have any questions or concerns regarding the construction activities, please contact Public Works at (626) 932-5575 or monroviarenewal@ci.monrovia.ca.us. More information is also available at the Monrovia Renewal website.

Together with a cast of students from grades nine through 11, the Victorian-inspired set and costuming takes the audience back to turn of the 19th century. This lighthearted play, written by Oscar Wilde, is a classic satirical dramedy that highlights the humor found in an unlikely, outrageous situation.

Jay Wallace, CSArts-SGV's School of Theatre Chair, says this play is a staple in theater and a rite of passage for young actors who are mastering the "Comedy of Manners" genre. "This comedic masterpiece has remained an audience favorite for over 120 years because Oscar Wilde's voice still delights with stinging, hilarious social commentary. Our young artists connect with the material as much as audiences did in 1895, when it debuted as a provocative, mischievous satire unlike anything seen or heard before on the British stage," says

In the performance, students have the opportunity to shine light on an array of societal conventions. "From the dual-life scrapes of the play's privileged young gentlemen to the paternalism faced by the forward-thinking young ladies who are eager to bend the rules of engagement in their favor, every character on our stage represents a unique cultural heritage, interwoven into the fabric of a turn-of-the-century British society that was struggling to keep up with fast-changing times," says the play's director, Jer Adrianne Lelliott.

Lelliott is an instructor at CSArts-SGV and is also the artistic director of Coeurage Theatre Company in Los Angeles. Her directing highlights include "The Two Kids That Blow S#!t Up" for Artists at Play (World Premiere, Ovation Recommended), "Blackbird" (Ovation Recommended) at GTC Burbank and "Vieux Carré," "The information, visit sgv.csarts.net.

Duarte, Calif - March 5, 2018 - California School of Woodsman" and "Andronicus" for Coeurage Theatre Company.

TOP 10 REASONS YOU SHOULD SEND YOUR KID TO SUMMER CAMP

For most people, summer camp is just something they did for a couple of weeks as a kid but for many it was much more than that. As someone who has experienced summer camp as both a camper and a counselor, I can tell you that it will not only give the parents a rest but can also change a kid's life

Summer camp gave me the confidence to be a stay-at-home dad and to self-publish a book based on the games and activities that filled my summers. A website was created to promote the book but What To Do With The Kids is now a big part of my professional life and reaches people from around the world.

Summer camp was a great experience for me as a kid growing up in a government town and has created some life-long friends and memories. With that in mind, here are my top 10 reasons why you should send your kid to summer

1. It gets them out of town

For kids living in a city, there aren't many parks and the parks that are there are not very big and are usually crowded. If you're lucky there's a swimming pool or splash pad nearby and for those living in a house, the backyard can get boring and if you live in a new house, chances are your backyard is the size of a postage stamp. Kids in smaller towns can also get bored with the limited amount of activities available.

Most summer camps are located outside cities and surrounded by trees near lakes or rivers. The air is cleaner and the noise is all natural. It's a nice change for kids whose only exposure to wildlife is squirrels, pigeons and maybe the odd

2. It gets them away from their family ou too and it may sound cruel but everyone can use a break at least once. Being away from home can also give kids an appreciation of what they

3. It gives them a sense of independence

For most kids, this will be the first time they travel anywhere without their parents and that can be exciting for them. There will be rules to follow but it's different when mom and dad aren't around. They'll be with other kids and chances are the counselors are not that much older since they are most likely high school or college age, so it won't feel like they're at home with their parents. For many kids it's like being paroled from the routine of home and school.

4. It exposes them to different people Most summer camps attract kids of different races, religions and economic standing from different parts of your city and even from different cities all together. It provides an opportunity to meet and discover other kids regardless of what their background is, what school they go to and where they're from. 5. They can be themselves

At school and with their friends, a lot of kids can feel the pressure of acting like everyone else but a good camp program lets kids be themselves. They can be who they are and the only acting they'll have to worry about is during the campfire skit! 6. They can learn new skills

The most important thing I ever learned at summer camp was to swim and that's a skill that every kid should learn. Learning to swim allowed me to learn other skills such as canoeing, a bit of sailing and how to keep safe near water.

The field sports program that I ran as a counselor introduced kids to sports that they may not have had a chance to learn at home such as volleyball, basketball, badminton and softball just to name a few. For many, it was the first time they ever got to play and learn about a different sport.

One of the more popular areas of a summer camp program is the crafts. Some camps still make the traditional key chain and bracelet but a lot of programs teach drawing, painting and sculpting that they may not get to try at home or would want to admit to be interested in to their friends. For a lot of kids, it's a chance to discover their artistic abilities. 7. Learn life skills Life skills are something that many kids learn without realizing it. Simple daily procedures such as cleaning their cabin or tent, making their bed, setting the dining table for a meal and cleaning up afterwards are habits that can carry on after they leave camp.

The kids will learn teamwork and cooperation since they'll be participating in a group or as "a cabin." The "all for one and one for all philosophy works wonders at summer camp and can help make your kids become more confident and out-going.

They may also pick up a few good habits as well. A number of parents have told me that their kids would start helping to clear the table after meals and make their beds, at least for a little while.

8. It gets them active

Summer camp is filled with activities that involve running, swimming, hiking and of course playing. There are also times in the day where kids can just relax but the sign of a good camp experience is when the kids are tired but happy at the end of the day.

9. Everything is low tech

The majority of summer camps have a "no electronics" policy that may be harsh for some kids but is a great way to help them realize that they can live without it for a little while. If the kids ask, tell them that all camp activities are in "realtime" and are "interactive." There is no "delete" or "return" button so they may have to try doing something again and

Announcements are made in the dining hall live and in person. There are no texts, emails or Snapchats so messages are passed on to each other by actually speaking to another

The only hi-tech item they should have is a flashlight. 10. It creates memories

As a camper and as a councillor, I learned a lot of new skills and a lot about myself and others at summer camp. There are people that I can picture exactly how they looked over 30 years ago and moments that have helped make me who I am

It's great to meet up with old friends and a real treat to be recognized by a former camper who can recall a fun moment so many years ago. It's also quite special when these campers are now adults, speak fondly of their time at camp and a gives me a great feeling of knowing that I was a part of it.

There are a lot of private camps and camps that are operated by churches or non-profit groups who can help you send your kids regardless of your financial situation. As a camper, my fees were subsidized so my parents could afford to send me but when I was up there, I was just one of the kids.

Specialty camps are very popular and day camps in the city are fun but getting out of town and going to a traditional summer camp is an experience that every kid should have

They may not come back with all their socks and towels but they will have memories that can last a lifetime.

Brian Presley is a former camper, counselor and program director at Camp Minwassin located near Eganville, Ontario. He is also a semi-retired stay-at-home dad and the owner of whattodowiththekids.com, the website that adults go to when they want to know what to do with the kids. MIGRATION SENSATION she rest in peace) one evening, we were enjoying the serene ambience of dusk, with stars slowly beginning to reflect the sun's light in the sky and not another soul in sight, when Tater suddenly engaged in a series of intense bays, taking me very much by surprise.

Tater rarely ever bayed during our walks. She was typically too involved with sniffing out subtle scents, keeping her nose trained to the trail in hopes of tracking a furry critter, or dream-of-all-dreams, finding a discarded bag of fast-food left-over's thoughtlessly tossed by a previous passerby.

We were hiking along the trail that begins where Sycamore Street ends in Sierra Madre, between the ball parks and the city yards. That's where the pavement turns to a dirt path surrounded by overgrown grass, floral fauna and shade trees. It was a great evening for a walk; the moon was full above the eastern hills, and everything seemed calm and quiet.

We were both relishing the solitude when all of a sudden Tater stopped sniffing the ground, threw her head back, pointed her nose upward with those enormous ears flopping wildly, and let out the loudest baritone bay I'd ever before heard from her, shattering the silence and shocking me out of my moment of

The first howl was followed by several more, before they slowly faded to a whimper as she became calm again and resumed her trail-tracking endeavor. Naturally, I looked up to see what had excited her and I saw a flock of geese flying low overhead, coming in for a landing on the water in one of the settling basins about 50 yards away. They were Canada Geese and I counted about 12

As they landed, one by one on the surface of the water, they made a big splash and I thought how happy they must be to have found a place where they can rest and refresh before continuing their long journey. I also thought how lucky I was to have been in the right place at the right time to see them fly in and land so gracefully and so close to where Tater and I happened to be. That experience inspired me to learn more about the migratory habits of Canada Geese, so I did a little research and here is what I learned:

Native to North America, Canada Geese are best known for their distinctive honking and the "v" formation they assume while migrating over the continent. The "v" is by no means random. It is their instinctual way of utilizing the power of wind and air foil by following behind and slightly to the side of one another to make the most of their stored energy as they travel. Geese are much larger and heavier than other types of migrating birds, so it takes a lot more energy for them to fly. By using the "v" technique, they reserve energy and increase their endurance.

In the summer months, most Canada Geese reside in the Canadian region of the Arctic Circle, where they nest and raise their new-born goslings in the safety and solitude of the wilderness. Fresh, snowfed waterways and reservoirs provide them with plenty of water and food resources for the season, as they foster the bonds within their growing family and prepare for the impending multi-mile migration

By the time Fall comes around, the temperatures in the Arctic will have dropped dramatically, and the geese have prepared themselves for the 2500-

During a walk with "Tatertotts", my bloodhound (may mile flight that will take them to the Gulf of Mexico, their seasonal destination. There they spend the winter months avoiding the frost of the Arctic north. The flight south can take anywhere from 3 weeks to 2 months, depending on their point of origin and the route they

Male and female geese maintain a monogamous relationship with the same partner throughout their lives and raise their family as an integral unit, caring for their young until they are adults. Research has shown that familial geese will fly closely together during the migration process, and communicate among themselves using honking calls that are unique to their own family, to keep from being separated along the way. Fascinating,

We have all heard the term "bird brain" used to refer to someone who acted stupidly or used poor judgment. I remember hearing it as a kid, and I assumed that meant birds must be pretty stupid. Later in life I learned the true facts about birds and I realized that couldn't be further from the truth.

Looking into the life of the migrating Canada Goose, I was able to draw a few parallels between their sensational migration and my own personal migration or navigation through life on this earth. Let's face it, life presents some pretty tough challenges at times, but if we take a lesson from the goose by "flying" in a way that will allow those following us to keep up and stay strong, and if we stick together and communicate clearly with our fellow family members, and if we remember to take the time to rest and refresh when we need it, I imagine we humans could handle life's challenges with much more ease than we sometimes do. Like the Canada Geese during their semi-annual 2500-mile migratory flight, we too can "fly" in unity, determination and strength.

Observing animal behavior brings me to a higher level of understanding what life is really all about. Some folks may think the most important things in life are to make money and collect a lot of toys. I, myself feel that there is much more to this life than financial gains or material goods. Indeed, I believe the material aspect of life often gets in the way of our receiving the unspeakable spiritual gifts that come to us when we seek them.

I don't claim to know much about life, or about anything for that matter, but I can honestly say I'm learning to have faith in my Creator and I believe He uses all of His creations to teach me important life lessons. With that in mind, I hope to be in the right place at the right time for many more close encounters with nature, and I hope to remain teachable in order to learn from them. Such rare moments can be easily missed if we are distracted by gadgets and noise. Those geese helped teach me how to live life more fully, and I think wisdom of Patanjali's Yoga Sutras comes the Eight Limbs of Yoga. The Eight Limbs bring forth a sacred path for living and serve as vitally important guidelines for living as a yogi. Some could say you are not doing yoga if you aren't practicing the eight limbs.

As the first two limbs, the Yamas and the Niyamas include the moral and ethical observances and personal practices for spiritual liberation. For today, I choose to look at just one principle found in the Niyamas, known as Santosha or contentment.

Santosha is acceptance and contentment. Yogi or non-yogi, everyone needs santosha in their life. It is the gateway to true joy and happiness. Santosha acknowledges that all is well when we are just BEING. There is nothing needed or wanted; we are free of the feeling that "the grass is greener on the other side." It is gratitude for all we do have, where we have been, and where we are now. The state of santosha is an ideal goal to continually return to a place of experiencing

Life is life and in times of distress or discomfort, there's a choice. We ADJUST our behavior/expectations

From the ancient or we ACCEPT what's happening. This choice is an opportunity for growth and serenity. There is no need to let the mind and emotions stay disturbed for long. Quieting the disturbance-- no matter the cause-- will bring clarity and peace. The road back to contentment is always available where we're not wishing for anything to be different. If different is needed, then action can be taken to adjust. The power is yours!

Santosha is one of those universal threads of spiritual wisdom that weaves through all cultures and communities. Yoga reminds us we do have the POWER to change and to create the life we've been dreaming about.

Take a moment today to appreciate the very breath of life and this beautiful community we live in. Feel no need achieve or to become someone different. If there is a change needed, have confidence that you will adjust

Rauol was timid meeting new people when he first arrived at the shelter, but he is relaxing more and learning to trust more each day. When he finds a comfort level, he thrives on physical contact and gentle petting and back rubs. He loves the company of people and enjoys time on a comfortable lap. Rauol would love to find a forever home where he feels secure and loved. If you are that special patient person who can give Rauol the time he needs to adjust, come and meet him. TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

- encyclopedist some 2000 years ago, still holds true today or
- "Home away from home" a place where you feel as comfortable and content as if you were at home.
- I enjoy a nice day at the track because I do feel like it is my home away from home. Where can you enjoy quality food offerings with some of the best thoroughbred horses in the world.? Nowhere other then Santa Anita Park in Arcadia. If you haven't been before look at this as an introduction. If you have, then maybe you have been missing a few gastronomical opportunities.

As a foodie, I get double the excitement picking horses and dining at the track. Though picking horses is tough - so is deciding my daily fare with so many choices. Let's start with the basics. Sure, you can go to the concession stand and get a dog and a beer, but I recommend going to one of the many carving stations and getting one of the best sandwiches this side of the Valley. Roast beef, corned beef, turkey, and ham all sliced in front of you for under $12. You can get it your way, too. Rye bread? Sure, they have it. Pickles a must? You got it! I got mine with just mustard. Nothing beats getting a sandwich and a beer and sitting in the clubhouse with an unobstructed view of the San Gabriel Mountains... and of course the ponies running in front of you. When I feel like a big shot and still want a killer view, I head over to the FrontRunner. The hanging around FrontRunner. prices here are very reasonable for top-notch food and a wine list any sommelier would appreciate. The kitchen is in very capable hands with Executive Chef Paulo. I am a creature of habit, so once a month I head right up to the FrontRunner and order the "real deal" Maryland Crab Cakes ($29) breaded with a panko crust, and really enough crab for two to share. I have gone to a dozen or

"Home Is where the heart Is" - written by a Roman so "seafood houses" in Los Angeles and Orange County that serve crab cakes for $14, and let me give you a tip: pay more and be happy. I will start off the "Santa Anita Creamy Clam and shrimp Chowder ($10) I have had my share of "Friday" Clam chowders and this one is great on any day. Another great starter is the Swedish dill Toast, a relatively new and welcome edition to the menu. Oh I love to share, so consider the Fig and Cheese Pizza and a fine entrée or appetizer. For you seafood fans, I suggest the Atlantic Roasted Salmon $27) with a side of asparagus. The price, win or lose that day, is a winner. To finish off my exotic tri-fecta the Almond Coconut Orange Caje ($8) Saving the best item for last, the view from FrontRunner is a true postcard. The bar, I am told, is the longest bar west of the Mississippi. There is a true "cool buzz" when

TIPS AND RESOURCES FOR OLDER JOB SEEKERS

What resources can you recommend to help older job seekers? I'm 60 and have been out of work for nearly a year now and Seeking Employment

Dear Seeking, While the U.S. job market has improved dramatically over the past few years, challenges still persist for many older workers. To help you find employment, there are job resource centers and a wide variety of online tools specifically created for older job seekers. Here's where you can find help.

Depending on where you live, there are career service centers located throughout the U.S. that can help you find a job. One of the best is the American Job Center (AJC) that has around 2,500 centers nationwide. Funded by the U.S. Department of Labor's Employment and Training Administration, AJCs are free-to-use resource centers that can help you explore your career options, search for jobs, find training, write a resume, prepare for an interview and much more. To find a center near you, call 877-872-5627 or go to CareerOneStop.org.

Some other good programs for older workers include the Senior Community Service Employment Program (SCSEP), and AARP's Back To Work 50+ program.

The SCSEP – sponsored by the Department of Labor - helps place income-eligible workers over age 55 in parttime, temporary community service positions where they can learn job skills. To learn more or locate a program in your area visit DOLETA.gov/seniors or call 877-872-5627.

AARP's Back To Work 50+ program currently offers workshops in 19 locations around the U.S. that provide career counseling, job coaching and skills development for 50-plus job seekers. Or, if you can't attend their workshop, they also offer an excellent guide called "7 Smart Strategies for 50+ Jobseekers." To get a free copy, or see if there's a workshop in your area call 855-850-2525

If none of the above programs are available in your area, check with your local public library or nearby community college to see if they provide career services.

There are also a number of online job search sites that can help you connect with companies that are looking for mature, experienced workers.

Some good sites for 50 and older job seekers include: WhatsNext.com, which offers a job search site and has online assessment tools, calculators, career guides and career coaches to help you; RetiredBrains.com that provides information on finding temporary or seasonal jobs, as well as starting your own business, working from home, writing your resume, finding full-time work, and continuing your education; RetirementJobs.com that lets you post your resume and search for full-time or part-time jobs online; and Workforce50.com, which has job search functions and a list of favorite age-friendly employers by industry. It also gives you the ability to sign up for job alerts.

Work at Home

If you're interested in working at home, there are many opportunities depending on your skills, but be careful of work-at-home scams that offer big paydays without much

Some popular work-at-home jobs include sales and marketing, customer service, teaching and tutoring, writing and editing, Web development and design, consulting, interpreting and medical coding just to name a few.

To find these types of jobs, a good place to start is FlexJobs. com, which filters out the job scams and lists thousands of legitimate work-at-home jobs in dozens of categories. You can gain access to their listings for $15 for one month, $30 for three months or $50 for a year.

Start a Business

If you're interested in starting a small business but could use some help getting started, the U.S. Small Business Administration offers tips, tools and free online courses that you can access at SBA.gov.

LONG-LIVED MARS ROVER OPPORTUNITY KEEPS FINDING SURPRISES

NASA's Mars Exploration Rover Opportunity keeps providing surprises about the Red Planet, most recently with observations of possible "rock

The ground texture seen in recent images from the rover resembles a smudged version of very distinctive stone stripes on some mountain slopes on Earth that result from repeated cycles of freezing and thawing of wet soil. But it might also be due to wind, downhill transport, other processes or a

Opportunity landed on Mars in January 2004. As it reaches the 5,000th Martian day, or sol, of what was planned as a 90-sol mission, it is investigating a channel called "Perseverance Valley," which descends the inboard slope of the western rim of Endeavour

"Perseverance Valley is a special place, like having a new mission again after all these years," said Opportunity deputy principal investigator Ray

Arvidson of Washington University in St. Louis. "We already knew it was unlike any place any Mars rover has seen before, even if we don't yet know how it formed, and now we're seeing surfaces that look like stone stripes. It's mysterious. It's exciting. I think the set of observations we'll get will enable us to understand it."

On some slopes within the valley, the soil and gravel particles appear to have become organized into narrow rows or corrugations, parallel to the slope, alternating between rows with more gravel and rows with less.

The origin of the whole valley is uncertain. Roverteam scientists are analyzing various clues that suggest actions of water, wind or ice. They are also considering a range of possible explanations for the stripes, and remain uncertain about whether this texture results from processes of relatively modern Mars or a much older Mars.

Other lines of evidence have convinced Mars

Soils with a mix of silt, sand and gravel expand more where the finer-grain material is most prevalent and retains more water. Freezing expands the soil, pushing larger particles up. If they move to the side, One possible explanation of these stripes is that as well as down the general slope, due to gravity or wind, they tend to move away from the finer-grain concentrations and stretch out down slope. Where larger particles become more concentrated, the ground expands less. The process repeats hundreds or thousands of times, and the pattern self-organizes into alternating stripes.

Mars' Perseverance Valley holds rocks carved by sand blowing uphill from the crater floor, and wind Seattle, agrees the alignments seen in images of might also be the key in sorting larger particles into rows parallel to the slope.

CHRISTOPHER Nyerges MOUNTAIN VIEWPOINTS

On life, death, and Respecting others

[Nyerges has led wilderness trips into the forest for over or www.SchoolofSelf-Reliance.com.]

Many years ago, I met a man named Charlie Locke who was a live-in caretaker for the Angeles Forest Service at a camp called Oakwilde. Oakwilde is about a five mile walk from the closest road.

I met him when I was leading a hiking class through Pasadena City College, taking the class down the old CCC road from the Angeles Crest Highway, into the Arroyo Seco, to Oakwilde. Little did I know that the trail was washed out, and half the class turned back. The rest of us hiked right down the ridgeline into the camp and there we met Charlie, living there with his many tents and many dogs. Charlie was your stereo-typical hermit mountain man, living the good life naturally and rustically.

We all enjoyed meeting this mountain man and talking with him about his viewpoints on life, goldpanning, Irish coffee, and many other topics.

I'd visit Charlie a few times over the next few years before he had a medical emergency and had to be airlifted out of the campsite, never to return.

Charlie told me that one day in his remote part of the canyon, an angry man with a dog came by and told Charlie that he was sick of life and that he was going to kill himself. The man climbed up a nearby cliff where he informed Charlie he was going to jump. Charlie told me that he had to think quickly.

"What about your dog?" yelled Charlie. "Who's going to take care of Sampson?" The man responded that he was going to kill himself, not responding to

"And are you just going to jump right there?" Charlie demanded. "You mean to tell me that you're going to 40 years. He is the author of hit those rocks and let me or someone else clean up the "Enter the Forest," "Extreme mess?" Charlie acted as if he was angry. The man still Simplicity," "How to Survive seemed angry but seemed to be thinking about it. Anywhere," and other books. "That's not very considerate," said Charlie. "I m "That's not very considerate," said Charlie. "I mean, He can be reached at Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041, if you're going to kill yourself, you should at least get a home for your dog, and figure out how to do it so it doesn't inconvenience other people." The man remained on the cliff.

"I really don't want you to jump," continued Charlie. "I don't have the time or energy to clean up your body and then go get the police or sheriff and then find your family. I mean, I've got to repair my tent, and I need to clean out the fire pits for the weekend hiker, and the rangers want me to keep the outhouse cleaned up for the hikers." He was silent for a bit.

"I'll tell you what," said Charlie. "You can go ahead and kill yourself, but just not today. Why don't you give me a hand with my chores, and when we're done, I'll make us some soup and potatoes and we can talk about it. What do you say?'

Charlie says that the man slowly came off the cliff, and then he followed Charlie back to the camp a short distance away. Charlie began by giving him a tool to cut down some of the tall wild grasses around the camp that were potential fire hazards. When the man was done, Charlie gave him another task.

Charlie told me that they had a very satisfying dinner, and neither brought up the suicide attempt again. The man stayed with Charlie a few days, helping out with chores, before he disappeared back down the trail and into the city.

"You see," said Charlie, "perhaps all the man needed was someone to listen to him, and to make him feel important, that his life meant something. I didn't do anything special, just treated him like everyone ought to be treated."

"Why is it," I said most curiously, "people really don't mean what they say?"

She responded by saying, "I always mean what I say."
Being the kind of husband that I am, I refused to contradict her reply. Therefore, I am not referring to her in these comments. People just don't say what they mean. For the past month, I've been having issues with shingles and nerve pain all the way down my right arm. It's very painful and I hope it goes away soon. Let it be clear that pain and me are not friends. The sooner the pain leaves, the better it's going to be for me. But I digress. My condition has been a very clear focus of my life these days. After all, it's my pain that I have to

It happened just the other day when somebody that I was passing on my way into Publix said to me, "Hi, how vou doing?

Well, I thought to myself, he asked so I begin to tell him about my condition and all of the aspects associated with it. Within a few moments I could tell he was not very much interested in how I was doing.

looked at his watch and said, "That's interesting, but I am late for an appointment and I have to leave right now."

Well, okay, but after all, he asked the question I didn't. If he wasn't interested in how I was doing, why did he ask? See how people say things they don't really mean? This happened to me several times with people I had never met before. The asked the question about how I was doing, when I began telling them how I was doing, they had no real interest in how I was doing. That rather frustrated me. How I was doing was a very important aspect of my life and sharing my pain was someone else was something I wanted to do. However, nobody was interested in my pain. It brought me down to a point of discouragement. I had to stay home for several days because of the condition I was in. I could not drive and so I stayed home.

Then something different opened up for me. As I was sitting there, reveling in my displeasure and discomfort the telephone rang.

I answered the phone and it was somebody trying to sell me something. They began by saying, "Hello, how are

That is all I needed to hear. I began to tell him exactly

An interesting aspect to people is how I was doing with all of the pain and discomfort I was experiencing. I went on and on even though several times By that I mean we say one thing he tried to interrupt my little speech. He asked and so I

Three minutes into my little speech, I heard the I was complaining about this to the Gracious Mistress telephone go "click" and there was nobody on the other end of the line.

I sat back in my chair and smiled rather deeply. Why did this person asked me how I was doing if he wasn't interested in it? It was quite an afternoon, I'll tell you that. I don't know if the word got out that I was sick and at home, but the phone rang constantly all afternoon. Everybody asked me, Hello, how are you doing?" And, I told them how I was. All that afternoon I dominated the conversation of every telephone solicitor that called. I never allowed them to get a word in edge wise because they asked me how I was doing and I was going to tell them.

My wife came home from the office and saw me

"What in the world," she said as she walked towards me, "are you all smiling about?"

All afternoon," I explained to her, "people were calling me asking me how I was. And so I spent all afternoon telling these people exactly how I was." I then chuckled.

She just looked at me and then broke out laughing

I continued with all of the details and then he suddenly I found out the telemarketers are not really interested in "How you are." All they're interested in is selling something I really don't need. But I enjoyed the day telling them how I was doing. That's the way it is with most people today. They say one thing but they really do not mean it. They do not want to know how I am doing. It is just something they politely say when they do not know what else to say.

David understood this when he wrote, "They speak vanity every one with his neighbour: with flattering lips and with a double heart do they speak" (Psalm 12:2).

How often does this happen in our daily life. Then David said this about himself, "My mouth shall speak of wisdom; and the meditation of my heart shall be of understanding" (Psalm 49:3). As I was sitting in my chair nursing my pain, I came to at least one conclusion. I am not going to ask people how they are unless I really want to know how they are.

Demand measured by the Market Action Index is increasing and days-on-market is trending downward. Even as more properties come available, these are positive trends for the market.

Supply and Demand

In the last few weeks the market has achieved a relative stasis point in terms of sales to inventory. However, inventory is sufficiently low to keep us in the Seller's Market zone so watch changes in the MAI. If the market heats up, prices are likely to resume an upward climb.

The Market Action Index answers the question "How's the Market?" by measuring the current rate of sale versus the amount of the inventory. Index above 30 implies Seller's Market conditions. Below 30, conditions favor the buyer.

The market appears to be hovering around these current levels, though prices movved up a bit this week. The Market Action Index is a good leading indicator for the durability of this shift.

raise awareness and answer concerns about Hepatitis A, in the wake of the recent outbreak in the San Diego area. The meeting was led by the Los Angeles County Department of Health and took place on Tuesday, February 27 in the Monrovia Public Library Community Room.

What is Hepatitis A?

Hepatitis A is a liver disease that is highly contagious and spread from person-to-person through the hepatitis A virus. Severe cases, though rare, can last several months and, in some instances, can be fatal. More common, mild instances can last a few weeks. Those at a greater risk of contracting hepatitis A include homeless individuals, recreational drug users, and men who engage in sex with other

The meeting was facilitated by Crystal Cadavid, a public health nurse for L.A. County, who is headquartered at Monrovia Health Center (330 W. Maple Ave.). Concerns and questions arose after a hepatitis A outbreak hit the San Diego area. On September 1, 2017, San Diego declared a local emergency, as a result of the outbreak within the communities dealing with homelessness and illicit drug use. The emergency was lifted on January 23, 2018 and, by February 27, 2018, there has been 583 cases reported in San Diego County, including 20 deaths and 399 hospitalizations.

Though Los Angeles did not see an outbreak as immense as San Diego, the county felt it was necessary to provide education and address some of the concerns Los Angeles residents had. As of March 1, 2018, Los Angeles had 37 cases of hepatitis A, 20 leading to hospitalization and no deaths reported. "Around the summertime last year L.A. County noticed a couple of cases they were able to link to San Diego, and immediately went into outbreak mode," Cadavid said. "We've done a good job to control it. It could have been so much worse."

How is it Spread?

Hepatitis A can spread in a number of ways

- Through food, drinks or objects that have come in contact with feces from individuals who already have hepatitis A.
- By not washing hands after using the bathroom or changing diapers.
- Having sex with someone infected by the hepatitis A virus and,
- Sharing needles and other items to take drugs.

The City of Monrovia held a community meeting to to many other conditions. They can include: fever, fatigue, loss of appetite, nausea, vomiting, stomach pain, dark urine, grey stool, diarrhea, joint pain and yellowing of the skin and eyes (jaundice). Symptoms usually occur two to six weeks after initial infection. "The people who are at risk for severe illness are people 50 years or older, and anybody whose immunity is compromised by illness or medications, especially people who have hepatitis B or C, because their liver is already compromised from having to work so hard," Cadavid said. "The disease can also last longer in people with diabetes."

Treatment and Prevention

Most persons infected with the hepatitis A virus recover completely with no permanent damage to the liver. Treatment includes rest, proper nutrition, plenty of fluids and medical monitoring. In more severe cases, hospitalization may be necessary. There is a two-part vaccination for prevention of hepatitis A which is very effective. The shots occur six months apart, and are good for a lifetime. Children one-year and older should get the vaccine, as well as those planning to travel to foreign countries where hepatitis A is prevalent. It is also important for those to get vaccinated who work with the homeless and drug users, such as first responders, sanitation workers, social workers and those who work at shelters. You can receive the vaccine from your doctor's office, or by calling 2-1-1 to find a local clinic. Washing hands with soap and water before preparing food is one of the best ways to prevent the disease, especially after using the bathroom or changing diapers.

Homelessness in Monrovia

As the discussion about hepatitis A came to a close, the discussion about homelessness in the Monrovia area heated up, especially as encampments in Library Park have become more prominent. Oliver Chi, Monrovia's City Manager, was also at hand to address some of the concerns; though solving the homelessness issue within the city seems to be a task hard to overcome. "It's certainly an issue here in the community that has generated a lot of passion. We certainly, I don't think, have found consensus in Monrovia on how best to address this issue, but that doesn't mean we won't keep on trying," Chi said.

SMALL BUSINESS OWNER? KNOW WHAT CAN HAPPEN TO YOUR BUSINESS IF YOU BECOME INCAPACITATED OR PASS AWAY

Preparing your company for your incapacity or death is vital to the survival of the enterprise. Otherwise, your Whether you own the business business will be disrupted, harming your customers, employees, vendors, and ultimately, your family. For this reason, proactive financial planning -- including your business and your estate plan -- is key. Below are some tips on how to protect your company and keep the business on track and operating day-to-day in your

Preparing for the Unexpected

If you are a small business owner, your focus is likely on keeping the company running on a daily basis. While this is important, looking beyond today to what will happen if you can't run your business should be on the top of your to-do list. If you die or become incapacitated without a plan in place, you will leave your heirs a mess. Without clear instructions on how to run your company, the business you worked so hard to build will be in serious jeopardy. The right plan, along with adequate insurance, can help keep your business running no matter what happens.

Execute the Proper Business Documents

Techniques

If your company has multiple owners, a buy-sell agreement is a must. This contract will outline the agreed upon plan for the business should an owner become incapacitated or die. Provisions in the buy-sell agreement should include:

- how the sale price for the business and an owner's interest are determined,
- whether the remaining owners will have the option to buy the incapacitated or deceased member's interest,

Execute the Proper Estate Planning Documents

A properly executed will or trust will allow you to state how you would like your assets to be transferred -- and who will receive these assets -- at your death. A will or a trust also lets you identify who will take charge of the assets and manage their disbursement (including your business accounts) according to your wishes.

Although a will can be used to pass assets at death, creating and properly funding a trust allows any assets owned by the trust to bypass the probate process making distribution of assets to heirs much faster, private, and may reduce the legal fees and estate taxes your heirs will

Additionally, a trust can help your loved ones manage your trust assets if you become incapacitated. While you are alive and well, you typically act as the trustee of the trust, so you can manage your business and assets with little change from the way you do now. But unlike a will, a trust allows your successor trustee to step in manage things if you become incapacitated. This process avoids court involvement, allows for a smooth transition of trust management (which can be very important if your business is an asset of your trust), and proper continuing care for you in your time of need. Although having a will can be a great way to start, most business owners are much better off with a trust-based estate plan.

Whether you own the business by yourself or are a co-owner, it is important to have separate term life insurance and a disability policy that names your spouse and children as beneficiaries. The money from these policies will help avoid financial hardship while the buyout procedures of buy-sell agreement are being carried out.

that has sentimental value. Others come to realize that memories related to items are sufficient, especially when things have been tucked away for years and have served no purpose except taking up space or collecting dust. It took a temporary income drought for a colleague of my to come to this conclusion regarding some family heirlooms.

Troy, a colleague of mine who works as a consultant for nonprofit groups, recently found himself in a temporary bind. The trickle-down effect of the recent federal budget sequestration had a direct, adverse impact on his monthly income. Seems that one of his "bread & butter" clients was unable to pay his invoice for almost two months due to a delay on a grant payment to the nonprofit by the State of Texas. The reason? The federal government was late paying them.

As an independent contractor, Troy always keeps a little nest egg, a cushion to ride through these types of situation. But with this client representing almost 30% of his monthly income, the delay created a hardship during the time that his daughter's college tuition payment was due. He told me, "I wasn't worried about whether or not the client would eventually come through with making good on my invoice, but some of my personal obligations couldn't wait."

He had an "aha" moment as he walked through the garage past his wife's car after parking his car on the street. Like so many Americans, one side of his two car garage is used for storage,. A light bulb went off as he squeezed past her car to go into the house. "Why am I holding on to all of this stuff that I haven't used for years?" His mind began to take inventory of the coin collection that he inherited from his grandfather and other things that held sentimental value. Never before space and collecting dust.

Some people would never consider selling anything had he even fathomed getting rid of his grandmother's Cuckoo clock, "Gramps" gold-plated pocket watch, or their early 1920's RCA radio cabinet.

> In that moment he recalled the time when as a 20 year old, he was short almost $1,500 to pay the balance on his tuition from the prior semester. It had to be paid before he would be allowed to attend classes in the upcoming semester. Two weeks before school was to start, "Gramps" handed him a check for $2,000 and said, "Take care of your business with the school and save the rest for a rainy day." Years later, Troy learned that Gramps had sold some family heirlooms that had been stowed away in the garage for years, including an antique upright piano that had belonged to Troy's great grandmother. The piano has been relegated to the corner of Gramps garage when he and Grammy had moved into their new house 18 years earlier. She said, "I looked at that thing in the living room in my old house for the past 12 years and it's not going to take up room in the new house." Neither of them played it, and the one grandchild who did was a married woman with children living in another state.

> Without much fanfare, the piano, a vintage radio and several other antiques were ferretted off to collectors eager to pay for the pieces of history. Gramps' desire to help his son has prompted a paradigm shift. He let some things go, generated almost $3,000 in dough, and gave most of it to Troy for college. Faced with similar plight, Troy was finally ready to do the same. He would always have the memories of his grandfather, the times they went fishing and all the fun things they did together. Troy realized that it was okay to collect money from things that were doing nothing more than taking us

TEAM TRUMP BRACES FOR MORE STORMY WEATHER

It's surely the dream of every red-blooded American kid to grow up and be sued by a porn star.

Remember a million years ago, when right-wing moralists assailed President Obama for diminishing the dignity of the office by putting a foot against his desk and wearing a tan suit?

Good times, good times. We can't begin to imagine what they would've said if Obama had been sued by a sex worker who got paid off to keep her lips zipped on the eve of his election. We can't begin to imagine ... oh what the heck, let's just quote from the lawsuit filed Tuesday against Trump:

"Mr. Trump, with the assistance of his attorney, Mr. Cohen, aggressively sought to silence Ms. Clifford as part of an effort to avoid her telling the truth, thus helping to ensure he won the presidential election."

Thank you, Stormy Daniels! For awhile, I had reluctantly decided to write about chief economic adviser Gary Cohn - who quit his job while Trump was bragging about how everyone wants to work for him - but in the end, Stormy rode to the rescue. Because I know you'd rather read about a sex coverup than a policy tiff about Nothing reveals Trump's unparalleled sleaze more than the ever-burgeoning Stormy story. She wants a court to void the Oct. 28, 2016 hush agreement - the one where Trump is listed by an alias, "David Dennison" - because even though she signed it, and Trump lawyer Michael Cohen signed it, Trump himself did not sign it. The signature line above the notification "DD" was left blank.

In other words, Trump is such a loser than he can't even follow through on muzzling an extramarital mistress. The other fun fact, of course, is that Cohen paid off Stormy before the election with $130,000 of his own money, and has since reportedly complained to friends that Trump never bothered to reimburse him. Which means that hotel contractors aren't the only people Trump stiffs.

What's not fun, however, is the very real possibility that the coverup maneuver may well have violated federal election law. That's hardly shocking, given the fact that Team Trump is infested with confessed and credibly accused criminals (thank you, Robert Mueller).

The date of the hush agreement (11 days before the election) and the subsequent payoff to Stormy suggest that Cohen made an "in kind" campaign contribution in an amount that far exceeds what's legally permitted. A campaign contribution is defined as "anything of value given, loaned or advanced to influence a federal election." Plus, Cohen's coverup donation was made through a Delaware-based LLC set up for that express purpose.

The law says that an individual can donate no more than $5,400, and it must be funneled through a political action committee, where it's publicly recorded. Plus, an "in kind" contribution is defined in law as "an expenditure made by any person or entity in cooperation, consultation or consult with, or at the request or suggestion of, a candidate's campaign."

So, the obvious question: Did Trump - excuse me, "David Dennison" - know about the hush agreement? Who among us actually believes he didn't know what his own loyal lawyer was doing?

But the Trump slag heap is so high that it's hard to focus on even the stinkiest refuse. A few congressmen have asked the FBI to investigate whether the Stormy payoff broke federal law, but the FBI appears to have its hands full trying to assist Mueller while fending off Trump's relentless attacks on law enforcement's independence.

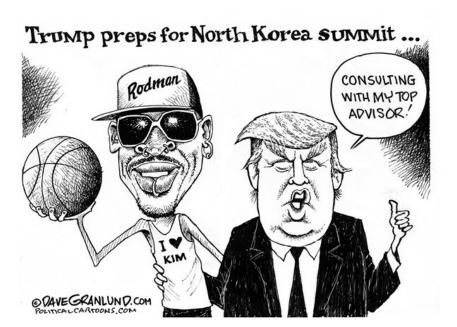

Oh, how we pine for the days when Obama's tan suit was deemed the height of disrespect for the presidency. Because one tiny provision in Stormy's hush agreement caught my eye. It's the subsection where she was compelled to "completely divest herself" of all communications accrued during her months-long affair with Trump including any and all "still images."

No, Stormy, no. Please spare us.

'YOU SIT IN A CORNER AND PRAY YOU DON'T GET SHOT'

SILVER SPRING TOWNSHIP, Pa. - When Maddie Levy saw the students fleeing Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Fla., last month, she saw something familiar.

She saw her reflection. "What if it happened here?" Levy, a junior at Cumberland Valley High School, in suburban Harrisburg, Pa., asked, already knowing the answer.

"Parkland isn't any different from our school," she said. "They're kids, just like us, that are going through this." They're kids going through an experience that's "absolutely terrifying." But it's "not surprising at all," chimed in Madeline Bailey, who, like Levy, is a junior.

"It's very possible it could happen in a place like this," she said, her voice more flat and practical than any 11th-grader's should be of the prospect of facing down AR-15 fire in her school's broad and clean

Like Bailey, Madison Himler, who was seated a few feet away, said she honestly wasn't surprised when she heard that another shooting had occurred. "And we're at a point now where we might start becoming desensitized to things," Himler offered.

"Something definitely needs to happen."

This is the Sandy Hook generation, the young people who have come of age at a time where wholesale slaughter in the hallways of America's public schools is depressingly commonplace. And they're tired of it.

They're tired of the fear, the safety drills and, most of all, they're tired of the hard reality there may be no safe place for them when a classmate or some other psycho finally has that bad day that drives them over the edge.

"Something definitely needs to happen." And like the students at Parkland, these Pennsylvania students have found their voices.

On March 14, Levy and her classmates are planning to walk out of class as part of National School Walkout Day. They're also planning a rally of their own, four days later, in the nearby college town of Carlisle, Pa. We're calling for people to come together - this is a bipartisan movement," Levy said of the March 18 event, which she framed as a search for solutions by gun-control advocates and pro-gun forces alike. "That might take the shape of gun control. We're not proposing a specific solution." On a recent school day, Cumberland Valley's hallways were still filled with students. In a corridor near the main office, students sat in clumps on the floor, their backpacks and books spilled out around them. Others stood in knots of friends, their laughter and chatter filling up the space. It's any high school. In any town. Anywhere.

But what if it did happen here?

These kids on the floor; the ones in the hallway; Levy and her friends. Still students, they become targets. And it would be appallingly easy for someone to mow them down.

And so they practice, so that if the unthinkable does happen, they're ready. Or as ready as anyone can ever be for that kind of thing.

"It would come on the announcement that we're having a lockdown," Anjana Ramesh said. "And then we'd all have to close, to lock our doors; and turn off the lights, and like, huddle in a corner." That's when Bailey adds, with the kind of sarcastic laugh that no 17-year-old should be able to muster: "You sit in a corner and pray you don't get shot." The young women all laugh too, but it's a kind of knowing laughter. They know hiding in a corner and pretending that no one's there is an empty gesture. "Îf a shooter was to come in, they would be smarter than to think that a school was just completely empty on a school day," says Adriane Delicana. "So I think these intruder drills aren't really doing anything to help us." Himler's words echo again.

"Something definitely needs to happen."

So maybe when this is when it all happens. Maybe we've hit the tipping point.

After years of "thoughts and prayers" that ring pathetically hollow from an utter lack of action, maybe in the words and deeds of the Parkland kids who have stormed social media and daytime TV. Maybe in the high school kids like Levy and Bailey and Himler and Ramesh who will walk out of class next week, this when it all starts to change.

Because, dear God, no high school kid should have to sit in a corner and pray she doesn't get shot.

MAKING SENSE by MICHAEL REAGAN

TRUMP'S WORST ENEMY STRIKES AGAIN

Donald, Donald, Donald.

Your approval ratings could be in the mid-50s if only you and your administration would quit stepping your own good news.

Tuesday was a perfect example - the latest in a sad series.

First we got word from the South Korean government that North Korea might be willing to "denuclearize" its weapons program.
It sounded too good to be true, and it probably was.

But for a few hours this week the Trump Hate Media were so giddy with hope they stopped beating you up.

They had no choice but to grudgingly point out that "Rocket Man's" surprise pivot toward sanity might have had something to do with your tough talk to North Korea.

You were actually getting some favorable mainstream media coverage - but then later on Tuesday your top economic adviser Gary Cohn announced he was going to resign.

Boom.

Cohn's departure became the top news story of the day.

Of course, the Trump Hate Media pinned the blame for Cohn's leaving on you and the tariffs you originally threatened to put on steel and aluminum imports from every country.

Goodbye, North Korean peace talk. Hello more White House chaos.

The previous week you also stepped on your own necktie when you dropped the tariff bomb on America. You instantly obliterated the good coverage in the media about the strong economy your policies have brought the country. You also instantly wiped away the real political capital you were beginning to bank because of your massive income tax cuts.

It was good that you've backed off from your initial hard line steel and aluminum tariffs on every country and dished out temporary exemptions to our friends in Canada and Mexico. But why drop the tariff bomb now?

You were doing great and riding high with your tax reform plan.

More and more middle-class people were seeing that because of you, their paychecks were bigger. More and more were realizing that the Pelosi Democrats were lying when they said tax cuts would benefit only the rich or provide only "crumbs" to the middle class. Steel and aluminum tariffs could have waited. You should have saved them for your second term - or, better yet, skipped them entirely.

Tariffs targeted to help or protect steel and aluminum makers are great for those industries' workers and owners and their hurting hometowns in the short term. The economic benefits are concentrated and we can see them immediately.

But what we don't see is the harm tariffs do to the overall economy in the long run. They reduce competition in the protected industries, allowing them to pad their profits and jack up their

Then millions of people and businesses across the economy have to pay slightly higher prices for the things they want that are made out of steel and aluminum.

Donald, if your tariffs were rushed into law so they could help the Republican win the special congressional election next week in western Pennsylvania, it was a political mistake as well as an economic one. Nowhere in America, even in western Pennsylvania, was anyone standing around the water cooler saying, "You know, Fred. This economy is humming along. Unemployment is down. All we need now are some steep tariffs on foreign steel and aluminum." You carried the 18th Congressional District by 20 points. It should be a lock for a Republican candidate, but it's only contested because of you and your administration's self-made errors.

Democrats have no candidates, no ideas, no plan. All they have is you - to be against - and you help them every day. I don't know what will make you stop stepping on your own successes with your wild tweets or tariff bombs. But if you're really serious about 2020, or really want the GOP to hold on to Congress, you need a loud wake up call. I hate to say it, but if a Democrat victory in Trump Country next Tuesday would do the trick, I'm all for it.

City of Sierra Madre

Public Hearing Notice

The City of Sierra Madre From: Subject:

NONCONFORMING USES ORDINANCE 1396 City of Sierra Madre Applicant:

Properties in the City of Sierra Madre, County of Los Angeles, State of California Project Location:

The City of Sierra Madre gives notice, pursuant to State of California law, that the City Council will conduct a public hearing to consider recommending adoption of Municipal Code Text Amendment 17-07 amending Chapter 17.56 – Nonconforming Uses Ordinance and Chapter 17.82 – Historic Preservation Ordinance.

The purpose of MCTA 17-07 is to amend Chapter 17.56 - Nonconforming Uses in its entirety, to update regulations for uses and structures that have become non-conforming over time due to changes in the City's Zoning Code. The amended ordinance includes restrictions on nonconforming uses and structures, continuation and abatement of uses and structures, reconstruction after involuntary damage, limitations on alterations and/or additions to nonconforming uses and structures, exemptions from nonconforming determination, nonconformance with respect to conditional use permit requirements, and regulations regarding unlawful uses and structures as well as nuisance abatement, and exemptions for nonprofit organization/places of worship.

revision to the definition of "Bed and breakfast inn" which expands the "Adaptive reuse of historic structures" to allow "Bed and breakfast inns" with up to six units in single family zones and up to 12 units in multifamily zones subject to

In addition to addressing nonconforming uses, amendments to Chapter 17.82 are included in MCTA 17-07 with a

The Planning Commission held a public hearing on December 14, 2017 recommending approval of the proposed text amendment to the City Council for their consideration.

DATE AND TIME OF HEARING

PLACE OF HEARING

City of Sierra Madre City of Sierra Madre City Council meeting Tuesday, March 13, 2018 City Council Chambers 232 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. (Hearing begins at 6:30 p.m.) Sierra Madre, CA

All interested persons may attend this meeting and the Planning Commission will hear them with respect thereto.

ENVIRONMENTAL DETERMINATION: The subject ordinance amendments qualify for an exemption from California Environmental Quality Act review pursuant to Title 14, Section 15061(b)(3) of the California Code of Regulations as it can be seen with certainty that there is no possibility that the adoption of this ordinance may have a significant effect on the environment because it will provide regulations to help retain existing structures and uses in place, and impose certain limitations on their expansion; the amendments also apply to conversion of historic residential structures and are exempt for numerous reasons: all historic landmarks in the city that are single- or multi-family residences are located in residentially zoned areas; given the limited number of such structures, the number of conversions should be extremely limited; such conversions should include few, if any, modifications to the exterior of such structures, and only if such changes would not be detrimental to the historic or architectural character of the historical landmark.

APPEAL: If in the future anyone wishes to challenge the decision of the City Council in court, one may be limited to the scheduled public hearing. For further information on this subject, please contact the Planning and Community Preservation Department at (626) 355-7138. raising the issues that were raised or presented in written correspondence delivered to the City Council at, or before,
