ELECTION COVERAGE

On April 10, 2018, voters in Sierra Madre will go to the polls and select three people from a field of four to sit on the City Council. They will also vote on Measure D which attempts to abolish the city's current Utility User Tax and Measure A an Advisory Measure.

The Mountain Views News will provide our readers with comprehensive coverage of this election. Each week, as we have done in the past, we will profile the candidates and give each of the candidates the opportunity to introduce themselves to our readers by answering the following questions:

- 1. Why are you running for City Council?
- 2. What are you going to do for Sierra Madre?
- 3. How do you plan on accomplishing your goals?

 (All candidates are being asked to answer the same questions and their answers will be published

This paper will also review the pros and cons of Measure D and Measure A. The schedule will be as follows:

March 3rd Candidate Andy Bencosme March 10th March 17th March 24th March 31st

Candidate Gené Goss Candidate Denise Delmar Candidate Rachelle Arizmendi Measure D & Advisory Measure A

It is our sincere hope that each candidate will submit their answers so that we can share them with our readers. A separate letter has been sent to each candidate asking them to participate.

Our reporting on this election will be as fair and objective as possible. However, please keep in mind that our columnists are always free to share their opinions. Their opinions are their opinions and may or may not reflect the position of the paper. This is true in all things, not just this election.

We will also provide for you the calendar of important dates regarding the election. It is our goal to do whatever we can to help you make an informed decision on April 10, 2018. Susan Henderson, Publisher and Editor

I am honored to have served the residents as a City Councilmember of the unique and special place that is Sierra Madre. When elected we faced a looming budget deficit, a drought which forced the City to import outside water with devastating effects our water pipes, a demoralized police force, and reduction in City Hall office hours. With hard work, tenacity and collaboration of all the City Councilmembers, City Staff, community support, and the leadership of our new City Manager we overcame those obstacles.

I was Chairman of the Sierra Madre General Plan Update which established what the community wants Sierra Madre to be in 30 years. After many hours of work by the Committee, dedicated Sierra Madre residents, and the Planning Commission, the Plan was proudly presented to the City Council. It was unanimously passed and is being implemented and followed as dictated by the Sierra Madre residents. I'm committed to assure that the Plan is adhered to.

I'm also committed to maintain all the City services for Sierra Madre and retain its village character as voiced in the budget town hall meetings held in 2016.

The city still faces many challenges, including a continuing budget crunch, an ageing infrastructure, and a continuing demand by the California State gmail.com with your concerns or wishes for Sierra government. I bring my past experience in the City Council and knowledge as Human Resources Director of an organization with over 7000 employees to help resolve present and upcoming challenges.

I am committed to:

The General Plan to preserve Sierra Madre

Maintain city services - Promote efficiencies in the City Government

- Advocate for our volunteer and civic organizations

I am asking the voters to cast their vote for me on April 10,

CITY OF SIERRA MADRE DEMANDS: STOP USING CITY LOGO TO MISLEAD VOTERS

Sierra Madre, CA -The City of Sierra Madre has put in campaign literature is deceptive and misleading. TeaPac and the two proponents of Measure D on notice that they must immediately cease and desist the logo, contained several false statements about the unauthorized use of the City's logo in their Stop the UUT campaign literature, or face legal consequences, including a potential lawsuit. After receiving The Utility User Tax (UUT), which is a 10% local telephone calls and emails from confused or angry residents demanding to know why the City's wellknown and loved wistaria logo was being used in Measure D campaign materials, the City was forced to take immediate action to stop the deception.

Use of the City's logo without express written consent is a violation of the Sierra Madre Municipal Code and may be enjoined as a public nuisance or enforced as a misdemeanor. Use of a city logo or seal in campaign materials in a manner that misleads or gives a false impression that the campaign materials Mayor Rachelle Arizmendi, stated "This City Counare authorized by a public official is also a violation of state law.

Unlike private committees and initiative proponents, Sierra Madre is held to a higher standard by the Fair Political Practices Commission to communicate only truthful and accurate information to the and cannot produce campaign literature. I trust our residents, who overwhelmingly supported the UUT just two years ago, know this and will not be fooled by false statements from Tea-Pac. But using our City logo to try to confuse peocommunity on the impacts of proposed initiatives, ple about supporting Measure D is beyond the pale

Friday, March 9th, I was invited by Gayle Bluemel, former Principal and current pianist, to attend the Spotlight Assembly at Sierra Madre Elementary School. This year's Spotlight Assemblies have focused on Art History and each class in turn has explored and then presented Kings a specific part of the world timeline through Music, Theatre and Dance. Visual Art lessons are also aligned with each class theme, resulting in some really nifty ten foot tall representations of Ancient Egypt, Ancient Greece, Ancient Rome and Medieval Times. These paper tapestries are so well done by the various grades involved they could qualify for showing at the Norton Simon!

Medieval Times was presented by the second grade classes of which there are five, ably and superbly taught by Ms. Becky Bickel, Ms. Susan Andres, Ms. Linda Newhart, Ms. Carolyn Halpern and Mr. Steven Mulder. These excellent folk were arrayed in t-shirts sporting a lovely oak tree (I think) and the concepts: Brilliant - Creative -Strong – True-Hearted printed around the tree. They also had glittery gold crowns, which they richly deserved.

Miss Emily Clark, who is the Director and Performing Arts Specialist for Sierra Madre Elementary explained that we were about to take a journey through Medieval Times where we would hear how art evolved through illuminated manuscripts printed on scrolls of parchment as the printing press had not yet been invented. As there weren't a lot of career choices available, one pretty much did whatever one's mother or father did so people had to

My book page: Amazon.com: Deanne Davis Check out "The Crown" now that we are heading for fit into one certain mold and, my goodness, aren't we glad that's no longer the case!

The program started with the Pledge of Allegiance, heartily pronounced, and then a verse or so of America The Beautiful, with gestures showing us the amber waves of grain. The 100 second graders, now occupying risers on the stage, were costumed for Medieval Times in jester's hats, crowns, various doublets and many of the ladies playwrightdd

Costume Committee, as usual, outdid themselves with practically no budget but lots of willing hands.

The music was taken from "Camelot," "Spamalot," and "Pippin," and, having seen all of these musicals, I have to say the second graders did a marvelous job, kicking off with "Magic To Do," got magic to do...... Just for you got We've miracle plays to We've got parts to perform.... Hearts to warm and things to take As we go along our way.

The King and Queen of Camelot, the Knights of the Round Table, Ladies in Waiting all danced - thanks to Lynnanne Hanson-Miller, Dance Specialist - and sang with joy and enthusiasm, ending with "Find Your Grail" from "Spamalot" and the school song. These little people could not have been more professional and well prepared.

Then, my favorite part of the Spotlight Assemblies, the giving out of certificates of merit to at least a hundred students. These awards were, in great part, for being good citizens: For participation, for kindness, for helpfulness, for a good attitude, for a great sense of humor. Yes, for great math work, reading comprehension, but good citizenship, friends and neighbors, is so important and Sierra Madre Elementary is teaching and rewarding exactly that. The pictures this week are the King and Queen of Camelot and just a few of the kids receiving certificates of merit. Next month: First Graders and Medieval Fairy Tales....

Boulder

California Highway Patrol deputies now believe that a large boulder that killed a man in a vehicle Tuesday night on the 134 Freeway in Pasadena was intentionally dropped from the Orange Grove Boulevard overpass. They are looking for anyone that may have witnessed the suspect or suspects to come forward.

According to investigators, Christopher Lopez, 23, was killed when a 30 to 35-pound boulder smashed through the windshield of the Toyota Corolla he and his family were riding in shortly before 9 p.m. The boulder hit the car as they passed under Orange Grove Boulevard traveling westbound in the carpool lane. Lopez was in the passenger seat.

"He didn't deserve this. My daughter didn't deserve this," said his wife Guadalupe Gutierrez as she made a plea for the public's help. Gutierrez, pregnant, was driving the car. The couple's 4-year-old daughter and Gutierrez's mother were also in the car. No one else was injured CHP deputies said.

CHP Lt. Chuck Geletko said the incident was an "intentional act," and that anyone who threw a boulder of that size would know it would seriously harm anyone driving on the freeway.

Gutierrez drove her husband to Glendale Adventist Medical Center where he died less than an hour later

Pet of the Week

King (A451811) is one stellar dog. This 8-year-old Shepherd mix is an easy going, calm guy. He enjoys attention from everyone he meets. He walks well on leash and already knows training commands including "sit" and "shake." Plus, he got along great with both small and large dogs on a shelter field trip. King is looking for an owner who can help him lose weight under the guidance of a veterinarian. He came to Pasadena Humane via Redlands Animals Shelter where he had been waiting for a new home since October of last year. Let's hope he finds one real soon.

The adoption fee for dogs is $130. All dogs are spayed or neutered, microchipped, and vaccinated before going to their new home. King qualifies for our Seniors for Seniors program, waiving his adoption fee for adopters age 60 and over.

Pasadena Police Chief Sanchez to Retire in April

Without giving much of a reason, Police Chief Phillip Sanchez announced he will retire, effective April 18. Sanchez made the announcement in a letter to City Manager Steve Mermell.

The decision to step away from serving my community is a difficult one which took much deliberation and careful thought," Sanchez wrote. "For the past eight years I have had the honor of leading one of the nation's finest law enforcement agencies, comprised of heroic men and women who serve with distinction in keeping our city safe putting on the Pasadena police uniform everyday has truly been a humbling experience."

Sanchez is leaving the department at a time of controversy. Last week former Pasadena Lt. Vasken Gourdikian was indicted for selling guns illegally last year and falsifying government forms. He pled not guilty and is free on bond. It was also revealed that a second (unidentified) Pasadena police officer is also under investigation in the case.

Late last month the Altadena Town council sent Sanchez and city officials a letter over a violent traffic stop in November requesting that Pasadena Monday. Sanchez will remain with the department until April.

An altercation between Lujan, Esparza and Ballew left Ballew with a black eye and a broken leg. Video of the incident by a bystander went viral. Civil rights activists had demanded the officers be placed on leave.

partnership was designed to provide the community with enhanced and affordable public transportation options that leverage the strengths of Lyft and LimeBike. "As the Southern California population continues to grow, suburban communities are becoming denser and more congested," said City Manager Oliver Chi. "Through the GoMonrovia program, we have worked to develop a new transportation program that will provide greatly improved mobility options for the suburban user."

suburban communities rely primarily on private automobile use for their transportation needs, even though most trips are under five miles. While this paradigm exists for a multitude of reasons, one contributing factor is that suburban transportation programs have been, by and large, slow and inconvenient. "The City of Monrovia, like most suburban communities, has historically relied on a dial-a-ride shuttle bus program as our primary method of providing public LimeBike. "As the largest dockfree smart mobility as our primary method of providing public transportation," said Mr. Chi. "Unfortunately, the program serves only a very narrow range of public transportation users, is inconvenient for general everyday use, and is an incredibly costly way to move people around. In fact, each ride on our dial-a-ride system costs the City around $19.70 2018, GoMonrovia launch event, representatives per person. We kept thinking, there has to be a better way," Mr. Chi continued.

More recently, in response to local housing growth, an expanding job base, and regional population trends, the City of Monrovia started to rethink its role as it relates to the provision of public transportation. "The challenge we were trying to solve in developing the GoMonrovia initiative was to see if we could create an affordable transportation program that was so easy to use that the broader community might seriously consider public transit in Monrovia as a real option," said

"We are excited to be part of GoMonrovia's community mobility program," said Paul Davis, Lyft's Transit Partnership Manager. DOGGIE DOOMSDAY

Happy by Chris Leclerc

Being prepared to successfully survive a major earthquake, tornado, hurricane or any other type of potential "doomsday" disaster is by no means a new concept. However, if you are like me, you will agree that it can't hurt to re-visit the topic now and then, and subscribe to any fresh ideas or suggestions on disaster preparedness, in case that day should come when you'll need to be ready.

I once read an article in Dog Fancy magazine entitled "Ready for Anything", by Kitson Jazynka. It was a true story about an experience had by the Anastasias, a Maryland family who found themselves dealing with three very frightened dogs, two of which went missing during Hurricane Irene. For a while during the ordeal, the Anastasias began to think that they might never see their precious pups again.

It all happened while they were trying desperately to escape their home after a huge oak tree had been pushed over by the high winds and landed on their roof. They ran to find refuge at a neighbor's house, and were making their way across a small field when the two frightened dogs broke away and ran randomly without direction into the dark night.

I could relate to how the Anastasias must have felt when their dogs got away and ran in fear, and I could imagine that happening at my house, if we were to find ourselves in a similar situation. I had to face the fact that, although I love my dog and I like to think I am a responsible pet owner, I was nowhere near as 'pet-ready' for a major disaster as I should and could be. I'm not sure I could forgive myself if my Molly went missing or perished during a hazardous event, knowing I had not done everything in my power to protect her.

Fortunately, the Anastasias did manage to find their two frightened dogs and gathered them in to safety before they were lost or injured, but the end result could have been grim, considering their lack of preparedness. One good thing that came from that experience was the family realizing how important it is to be 'pet-prepared' for a disaster, and then sharing what they learned in Kitson Jazynka's Dog Fancy

First and foremost, the Anastasias realized that it is very important not to wait until the night of the storm or disaster, to prepare. To really be ready, one must take the time to plan ahead. What a challenge for this habitual procrastinator!

Preparing your pets for a "doomsday" event includes several factors and should begin with writing out a plan. Ideally, the plan will include a list of various scenarios with corresponding actions to be taken. For example, how can you best be prepared to care for your pets in the case of a mandatory evacuation due to a fire or flood? Or, like in the case of the Anastasias, what if you are forced to flee from your home during a raging storm?

Conversely, what steps of preparation should you take to protect your pets if you are forced to stay inside your house without power after a blizzard? We may not have blizzards in Southern California, but there may be other causes that can occur for having to remain within the home - with or without power - for an extended period of time, and we should be ready to help our pets get through it.

Preparation plans will vary depending on the specific set of circumstances and the specific needs of your pet, but here are a few basic tips that are sure to pertain to nearly any household with domestic pets:

Microchip your dog. Collars and tags can easily fall off and get lost, and the appearance of your pet may vary depending on the elements and whether your dog is injured. A registered chip implanted under your dog's skin will ensure it's unmistakable identity, should he get lost. Ask your veterinarian about microchip implants and registering.

Crate train your dog, or at least train him to be accustomed to walking in and out of a small area such as a storm cellar or underground crawl space. If a dog if fearful of small spaces, he may not be willing to take

Keep extra copies of your pet's vaccination records and photos on hand both in your vehicle and in your home to help identify and prove ownership of your

Establish a buddy system with your neighbors to help ensure that your pets will be kept safe in case you are unable to get home during a disaster.

Keep a box of extra pet foods and any other pet necessities you may need in case the stores are closed for an extended period of time after a disaster. The pet supply box should be stored along with your own "human" survival kit for easy retrieval in case of an

Regardless of the circumstances, it is very important that you secure your pet on a leash or in a crate at the onset of a major storm or earthquake. If your pet is not secured, he is much more likely to escape and run out into the street where he could be hit by a car, or roam randomly into the neighborhood or forest where you may not be able to find him.

Animals often become nervous during a storm or earthquake and they pick up on our energy if we ourselves are nervous or afraid. If you plan ahead and practice the basic steps of preparedness before a disaster hits, you're much more apt to remain calm during an ordeal, and in that way help your pets to do

It's up to us humans to be responsible pet owners and take necessary steps to protect our doggies (and kitties) during a disaster, so let's do our best to be prepared. And as always, don't forget to love and let

Yogic Wisdom for Everyday Life NAVEL CENTER, THE PRANIC HUB

As the sages say, create a fire in your belly and ignite your

So much takes place at the navel center. Many studies report that serotonin production begins in the gut and it's often called our "second brain". There are so many articles on this topic. Browse for them and you will be amazed. Thus, the navel center is like a central storehouse for motivation, joy, and power. This is true physically and energetically. We can relate this back to the strong feeling we get from doing "core" work. Although the core goes around back too, this strengthening at the belly helps to stabilize the entire body.

In my tradition, when we say "fire in the belly" we are referring to the energy center at the navel. When our fire or flame is lit, the essence of who we are is apparent.

We have the motivation, stability and stamina to accomplish what we want and be who we want to be. Creating this fire or vibrant flame at the navel center also plays another role. The heat and flame can help dissolve some of the crud built up in the lower two chakras (energy centers). Most of our unresolved issues (what holds us back) from the past are held at the root and sacral regions. These areas have to do with security, desire, and relationships. If the fire becomes bright enough and steady enough, it can help us TRANSFORM beyond our limitations. Thus, fire in belly facilitates our transformation. To create this in our practice, it's best to first, make the body and mind as clean, clear and stable as possible. We'd never want to ignite a flame without the proper fuel for the fire. It will just burn out that way. A steady burning flame is the one we want, with an even, abundant fuel source. The fuel source being our vital energy reserves and stable mind. Transformation is not going to happen when we're running on empty. Next, we simply begin to gather and direct energy there to strengthen and enliven the entire area.

Think about the power held at navel center, do some work in the area and see what happens. In fact, consider beginning a meditation practice specific to directing energy there. Please contact me to learn more at keely@keelytotten.com.

Until then, enjoy the confidence and joy that comes from a focus at the navel center.

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

AND A HAPPY ST. PATRICK'S DAY TO YOU.....

One of the most common questions I am asked is ripeness. "How do you select your wines for review?" Two ways. First: my loyal readers, such as yourself, and second: while dining with friends at a restaurant. So when reader Bob Carlson had a suggestion for me, I was all ears. His suggestion was the Prisoner Blend Dills Score 91 from winemaker and past founder David Phinney's stable of great wines.

I headed over to my local wine market and picked a bottle of this 2016 blend. The price was $43, maybe $50 retail. (Note.... many local supermarkets are having prices wars so now is a great time to stock up).

I decided on a stew to go with this Napa gem, though a chicken pot pie or a veal, would also have been a good choice. For me, with reds, especially blends, I like something hearty for these tastings/critiques. The wine has a deep ruby red color and aromas of black cherry and plum. The first taste was powerful, and if you have been following my columns, you know I don't swirl -- I go for a complete taste. There's no need to let this blend sit; it was ready to enjoy right after opening.

This is an absolute favorite of mine, one the best blends that I have tasted at any price in the past year, and great for a special occasion or if reader Bob is buying. My research tells me that

TIPS AND RESOURCES FOR OLDER JOB SEEKERS

What resources can you recommend to help older job seekers? I'm 60 and have been out of work for nearly a year now and Seeking Employment

Dear Seeking, While the U.S. job market has improved dramatically over the past few years, challenges still persist for many older workers. To help you find employment, there are job resource centers and a wide variety of online tools specifically created for older job seekers. Here's where you can find help.

Job Centers

Depending on where you live, there are career service centers located throughout the U.S. that can help you find a job. One of the best is the American Job Center (AJC) that has around 2,500 centers nationwide. Funded by the U.S. Department of Labor's Employment and Training Administration, AJCs are free-to-use resource centers that can help you explore your career options, search for jobs, find training, write a resume, prepare for an interview and much more. To find a center near you, call 877-872-5627 or go to CareerOneStop.org.

Some other good programs for older workers include the Senior Community Service Employment Program (SCSEP), and AARP's Back To Work 50+ program.

The SCSEP - sponsored by the Department of Labor - helps place income-eligible workers over age 55 in parttime, temporary community service positions where they can learn job skills. To learn more or locate a program in your area visit DOLETA.gov/seniors or call 877-872-5627.

AARP's Back To Work 50+ program currently offers workshops in 19 locations around the U.S. that provide career counseling, job coaching and skills development for 50-plus job seekers. Or, if you can't attend their workshop, they also offer an excellent guide called "7 Smart Strategies for 50+ Jobseekers." To get a free copy, or see if there's a workshop in your area call 855-850-2525.

If none of the above programs are available in your area, check with your local public library or nearby community college to see if they provide career services.

There are also a number of online job search sites that can help you connect with companies that are looking for mature, experienced workers. Some good sites for 50 and older job seekers include: WhatsNext.com, which offers a job search site and has online assessment tools, calculators, career guides and career coaches to help you; RetiredBrains.com that provides information on finding temporary or seasonal jobs, as well as starting your own business, working from home, writing your resume, finding full-time work, and continuing your education; RetirementJobs.com that lets you post your resume and search for full-time or part-time jobs online; and Workforce 50.com, which has job search functions and a list of favorite age-friendly employers by industry. It also gives you the ability to sign up for job alerts.

Work at Home

If you're interested in working at home, there are many opportunities depending on your skills, but be careful of work-at-home scams that offer big paydays without much

Some popular work-at-home jobs include sales and marketing, customer service, teaching and tutoring, writing and editing, Web development and design, consulting, interpreting and medical coding just to name a few.

To find these types of jobs, a good place to start is FlexJobs.com, which filters out the job scams and lists thousands of legitimate work-at-home jobs in dozens of categories. You can gain access to their listings for $15 for one month, $30 for three months or $50 for a year.

Start a Business

If you're interested in starting a small business but could use some help getting started, the U.S. Small Business Administration offers tips, tools and free online courses that you can access at SBA.gov.

NEW HORIZONS CHOOSES NAME FOR "ULTIMATE" FLYBY TARGET

As NASA's New Horizons mission continues exploring the unknown, the mission team has selected a highly appropriate name for its next flyby target in the outer reaches of the solar system.

With substantial public input, the team has chosen "Ultima Thule" (pronounced ultima thoo-lee") for the Kuiper Belt object the New Horizons spacecraft will explore on Jan. 1, 2019. Officially known as 2014 MU69, the object, which orbits a billion miles beyond Pluto, will be the most primitive world ever observed by spacecraft—in the farthest planetary encounter in

Thule was a mythical, far-northern island in medieval literature and cartography. Ultima Thule means "beyond Thule"—beyond the borders of the known world-symbolizing the exploration of the distant Kuiper Belt and Kuiper Belt objects that New Horizons is performing, something never before

"MU69 is humanity's next Ultima Thule," said Alan Stern, New Horizons principal investigator from Southwest Research Institute in Boulder, Colorado. "Our spacecraft is heading beyond the limits of the known worlds, to what will be this mission's next achievement. Since this will be the farthest exploration of any object in space in history, I like to call our flyby target Ultima, for short, symbolizing this ultimate exploration by NASA and our team."

Looking for a more inspirational albeit temporary moniker than the designator 2014 MU69, NASA and the New Horizons team launched the nickname campaign in early November. Hosted by the SETI Institute of Mountain View, California, and led by Mark Showalter, an institute fellow and member of the New Horizons science team, the online contest sought nominations from the public and stipulated that a nickname would be chosen from among the top vote-getters.

The popular campaign wrapped up on Dec. 6, after a five-day extension to accommodate more voting. The campaign involved 115,000 participants from around the world, who nominated some 34,000 names. Of those, 37 names reached the ballot for voting and were evaluated for popularity—this included eight names suggested by the New Horizons team and 29 nominated by the public.

The team then narrowed its selection to the 29 publicly nominated names and gave preference to of exploration that New Horizons embodies."

names near the top of the polls. Ultima Thule was nominated by about 40 members of the public and one of the highest vote-getters among all name nominees. "We are grateful to those who proposed such an interesting and inspirational nickname," Showalter said. "They deserve credit for capturing the true spirit

The name was suggested to think of MU69 as a distant follow up to Pluto, which New Horizons historically and famously encountered in July 2015. Other names considered included Abeona, Pharos, Pangu, Rubicon, Olympus, Pinnacle and Tiramisu (the final tallies are posted at http://frontierworlds.

After the flyby, NASA and the New Horizons team will choose a formal name to submit to the International Astronomical Union, based in part on whether MU69 is found to be a single body, a binary pair, or perhaps a system of multiple objects.

There's a lot of green right now in Sierra Madre. Saint Patrick green: shamrocks, leprechans, beer. But who was Saint Patrick? Was he a real person? Children are told "Saint Patrick wore a green suit, talked to leprechans (he was probably drunk at the time), and while trying to convert the pagans with a shamrock, he marched all the snakes out of Ireland." Will the real Saint Patrick please

His real name was Maewyn Succat, born around 385 A.D., somewhere in Scotland, or possibly somewhere else, as there is conflicting historical data on his exact date and place of birth. His baptismal name was Patricius.

Around age 16, he was sold into slavery in Ireland and worked for the next 6 years as a shepherd. Keep in mind that human slavery, as well as human sacrifice, was considered normal for those times. After his six years in slavery, he prompting him to escape and seek out his homeland. He actually walked about 200 miles to the coast, where his dream indicated a ship would also be waiting for him. He successfully escaped, and spent the next twenty years of his life as a monk in Marmoutier Abbey. There he again received a celestial visitation, this time calling him to return to the land where he'd been enslaved, though now him before he left on his mission. Patrick returned to Ireland not alone, but with 24 supporters and followers. They arrived in Ireland in the winter of 432. In the Spring, Patrick decided to confront the high King of Tara, the most powerful King in Ireland. Patrick knew that if he had the King's support, he would be free to take his Christian message to the people of Ireland.

Patrick and his followers were invited to Tara by the King of Laoghaire. It was there that he was said to have plucked a shamrock from the ground as he tried to explain to the Druids and the King that the shamrock had three leaves just like the idea of God's three aspects - The Father, The Son and the Holy Ghost. This was called the Trinity. Of course, triads and trinities were a common concept among the Druids. In fact, one could argue that the trinity (a term not found in the Bible) was a concept given to Christianity by the Druids, rather than the other way around. Nevertheless, King Laoghaire was very impressed and chose to accept Christianity. He also gave Patrick the freedom to spread Christianity throughout Ireland.

Part of this respect was attempting to communicate with the Druids on their terms, we commemorate this special man, and his vast which is why he used the shamrock as a teaching contribution to world culture.

He used bonfires to celebrate Easter, a Holy is the author of several books, such as Enter the Day that Christianity supplanted with the already-Forest and Extreme Simplicity: Homesteading existing spring equinox commemoration. In fact, he incorporated many of the existing symbols and beliefs into his Christian teachings.

> He spent his last 30 years in Ireland, baptizing the non-Christian Irish, ordaining priests, and founding churches and monasteries. His persuasive powers must have been astounding, since Ireland fully converted to Christianity within 200 years and was the only country in Europe to Christianize peacefully. Patrick's Christian conversion ended slavery, human sacrifice, and most intertribal warfare in Ireland.

> Patrick was also unique in that he equally valued the role of women in an age when the church ignored them. He always sided with the downtrodden and the excluded, whether they were slaves or the "pagan" Irish.

According to Thomas Cahill, author of How the Irish Saved Civilization, Patrick's influence extended far beyond his adopted land. Cahill's book, which could just as well be titled How St. Patrick Saved Civilization, contends that Patrick's conversion of Ireland allowed Western learning to survive the Dark Ages. Ireland pacified and believed that an angel came to him in a dream, churchified as the rest of Europe crumbled. Patrick's monasteries copied and preserved classical texts. Later, Irish monks returned this knowledge to Europe by establishing monasteries in England, Germany, France, Switzerland, and

> When the lights went out all over Europe, a candle still burned in Ireland. That candle was lit

Veneration of Patrick gradually assumed the status of a local cult. He was not simply remembered in Saul and Downpatrick, he was worshipped. Indeed, homage to Patrick as Ireland's saint was apparent in the eight century AD. At this time Patrick's status as a national apostle was made independently of Rome. He was claimed locally as a saint before the practice of canonization was introduced by the Vatican. The high regard in which the Irish have held St Patrick is evidenced by the salutation, still common today, of "May God, Mary, and Patrick bless you".

Patrick was not Irish, had nothing to do with leprechauns, almost certainly was not a drunkard, and didn't drive all the snakes out of Ireland. In fact, there were no native snakes in Ireland, though this story is believed to be an analogy for driving out the so-called "pagans," or, at least, the pagan religions.

Patrick was one of the "greats" of history who nearly single-handedly preserved the best of Western culture when much of Europe was devolving into chaos and ruin. He deserves far better than remembering him in the silly ways we do today, such as wearing green, pinching each other, and getting drunk. Rather, he deserves an accurate memory, and our emulation. Unfortunately, like When Patrick returned to Ireland, he treated all true Saviors of history, they are either killed off,

WHEN I'M BESIDE MYSELF, I'M IN BAD COMPANY?

In the beginning of the week the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage said, "On Thursday the girls and I will be She had written instructions. She said, "Use the third the Parsonage said, "On Thursday the girls and I will be going to St. Augustine for the day to visit thrift shops." It was spring break and so the girls did not have school.

It was the perfect opportunity for an outing for them.

"Do you think," she asked, "you'll be able to handle

I laughed, but not too hard, and said, "I think so. Just

That was Monday and when Thursday came, I was drinking my morning coffee and my wife came in and said, "Well, it's time for us to go. Are you sure you'll be able to take care of yourself today?"

I looked at her and said, "Where are you going? "Don't you remember what I told you Monday?" Actually, I really did not remember what she told

I walked her to the door and kissed her goodbye. She turned and looked at me and said, "You're not smiling instructions. Follow those instructions to the letter." It is not often I have a free day all to myself. I do not need too many of them but occasionally it is good to have a free day where all you have to deal with is yourself. Of course, that can get a little tiring when I am dealing with myself.

I went to my office, sat down and started to catch up on some work I had gotten behind on. It's terrible when you get behind on your work and it takes twice as long to try to catch up. I often wonder if you ever really do

I was working so hard that I as I glanced at my watch I noticed it was noon. I love lunchtime. My wife makes such wonderful meals for lunch.

I arrived at the house, got out of my truck and walked through the front door and as I did I said, "Honey, I'm home. What's for lunch?"

As I walked through the door, I got a strange sense. Usually there is a wonderful aroma of lunch. This time, there was no aroma whatsoever.

It then dawned on me. The wife is away for the day and I am in charge of lunch.

That can be a good thing or it can be a very bad thing. One good thing was, my wife had prepared my lunch, all I had to do was put it in the little micro oven and it whatafellowship.com.

button and set it for 15 minutes." Usually, she is quite precise in what she says. This time I was confused. On the micro oven, there were four buttons. Now, when she said use the third button, was it the third button from the top or the third button from the bottom? At the time I was tempted to text her and get a clarification on this instruction. However, I knew if I did that I would never hear the end of it for the rest of my life. She put the instructions there and I was supposed to interpret those instructions. That is what it means to be a husband these days. Your wife tells you something and you have to interpret it and most of the time we husbands get it wrong. I know I do. I did what any sane husband would do under the circumstances. I got a quarter out and did the "heads or tails" movement. Heads it was from the top down, tails it was from the bottom up. It turned out to be heads, which was the right way to go unbeknownst to me. I did not quite know how to read that little button and so I turned it all the way and then put my pizza in

Only a few moments later I began to smell an aroma. It was not the aroma of pizza being warmed up, but rather the aroma of something on fire.

I ran to the kitchen and to the oven and there my pizza was sizzling and burning. I opened the door, pulled the pizza out and looked at it for a few moments. As much as I can remember, this is not the kind of pizza the wife does. What do I do with this burnt pizza?

When the wife came home later that afternoon, she asked me how the pizza was. I assured her that it was rather delicious. "Why then," she said rather sternly, "is there burnt pizza in the garbage?'

My little slip reminded me of what Solomon said. Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest" (Ecclesiastes 9:10).

Sometimes, what my hand "findeth to do" is not the right thing to do and gets me into trouble.

The Vine

Sierra Madre's124-Year Old Wistaria* Vine By Phyllis Chapman

In 1894, William and Alice Brugman purchased a home on what was then called Piedmont, which is now called W. Carter Ave. The house had been built one year before by builder Amos Trussell for his daughter Winona and son-in-law Edward B. Jones when they married. It was the first wedding celebrated in early Sierra Madre.

The Trussells and the Jones had a change of plans, sold to the Brugmans and moved away. To enhance her new home, Alice Brugman and her neighbor Mrs. W. B. Črisp, drove by horse and buggy to the R. H. Wilson Pioneer Nursery in Monrovia and for $.75 purchased a gallon can of wistaria. It was the Chinese Wistaria variety (Wisteria sinensis). She planted it in a corner of her front porch remarking to her neighbor: "They say Wistaria grows fast." And grow it did.

Mr. Brugman, a mining engineer, was in Mexico when the vine was planted. He died in 1899 and Mrs. Brugman sold the home in 1906. The property changed hands until it was purchased in 1913 by Henry T. and Estelle Fennel. Mr. Fennel, who was a bit of a horticulturist, loved the vine, and gave it devoted care, even building support trellises.

Although the Wistaria is a vigorous grower, the added support of the trellises may have contributed to this vine's phenomenal growth. The arbors prevented the end tendrils from hanging down and causing the tender terminal buds to die from the added weight. Wistaria requires good drainage, certainly provided by this hilly, terraced location. There may also be an underground spring providing water to the tap root.

The vine eventually destroyed the original home, growing into the walls and fireplace and causing the roof to collapse. Mr. Fennel built a new home 200 feet to the north (the present upper home) and trained the vine to grow up to, but not covering the new residence. A portion of the foundation of that original home was saved to continue to provide support for the vine as its branches extended such a distance.

When the vine was in bloom, the Fennels would nvite friends to come and enjoy the blossoming plant. Visitors also came from Pasadena's main hotels: The Green, The Huntington, and The Raymond. In 1918, the Fennels opened the vine to the Sierra Madre Chapter of the American Red Cross, which sponsored a very successful fundraiser to help the war effort. 12,000 people attended the event. This was the beginning of many Wistaria festivals that took place year after year. Sierra Madre became known as the Wistaria City. Many local organizations, including the Board of Trade (now the Chamber of Commerce). the Woman's Club, the Masons and Eastern Star, the Sierra Madre Volunteer Fire Dept., etc. were involved.

Many homemade items, fancy work, ceramics, artwork, gift books, and Wistaria fragranced perfume, hand lotion and bath salts were sold at booths under the vine. Luncheons and teas were served, often with young Japanese women wearing their kimonos.

The hard work and money earned at the vine by the Woman's Club paid off the mortgage of their first clubhouse. One year the Fire Dept parked 30,000 cars on the parking lot that existed in Floral Canyon. (This is now Sierra Meadow Dr.). Easter sunrise services were among vine activities. People came from all over the world and extra street cars were added to handle the crowds Among the famous were Fritz Kreisler, Janet Leigh, Mary Pickford, and Norman Rockwell. These two helped select the festival's Wistaria Queen. Packard Automobile Co. used the vine as a backdrop to advertise its automobile.

On December 5, 1936, Carrie Ida Lawless purchases the vine property (Continued on B2)

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

HOW ESTATE PLANNING CAN HELP YOU DREAM ABOUT YOUR FUTURE

A dream without a plan is simply a wish. Estate planning is not just about death and taxes -- it puts you in the driver's seat of your financial life, allowing you to set achievable goals. But it's also a great opportunity to focus on the legacy you want to leave behind for loved ones, help you avoid the expense and delay of probate, as well as help you save on taxes.

Putting Your Dreams on Paper

When putting together your estate plan, think about what legacy you want to leave behind. The best way to do so is to write down your wishes. Consider the values you want to promote. Think about important family traditions you want to encourage or memories you want to preserve. Rather than a just dry discussion of what happens to your assets, including these wishes in your documents makes your plan relatable and more meaningful for your family. Because you've passed along values and wisdom along with your financial wealth, you will have solidified and furthered your dreams, hopes, and aspirations you have for your family, even though you are no longer with them.

For your estate plan to effectively pass along your values and wisdom, it should:

(1) clearly state who you are leaving your assets to; (2) give an explanation as to why an individual is receiving a particular asset;

(3) provide guidance about how you want a beneficiary to benefit from your assets (e.g. what "education" you intend to help with, whether or how you want to instill a work ethic, what you mean by "support," etc.);

(4) make sure that those assets are received by your beneficiaries at the right time to maximize their benefit,

(5) protect your legacy from being taken by estate taxes, creditors, predatory lawsuits, government claims or

You even have the opportunity to protect your legacy beyond your beneficiaries' lifetimes into future generations if you want to do so.

Estate Planning Basics & Benefits

There are several benefits of developing an estate plan with your legacy in mind. You can help the next generation become empowered to achieve competence, character, and confidence. You can also preserve and reinforce your family's core values and traditions.

In addition to preserving your legacy after you die, a comprehensive estate plan can provide guidance for managing your affairs if you become incapacitated and unable make decisions for yourself. Some basic documents that should be included in your estate plan

- A will: A written document that states who you want to inherit your property and names a guardian to care for your minor children or disabled family members. The use of a will as your primary estate planning strategy does require the court process known as probate.
- A trust: A legal structure which holds property for your benefit during your life and for the benefit of your beneficiaries after your death. The use of a "fully funded" trust allows your beneficiaries to avoid the costly and time-consuming process of probate.
- A healthcare directive: A written document that spells out your wishes for healthcare and end-of-life choices when you are unable to make these decisions for yourself.
- À financial power of attorney: A written document giving a trusted person authority to handle your finances and property on your behalf.

If vou've looked at your cable bill lately and experienced investments in new technology and equipment that a slight rise in blood pressure when looking at the requires fewer staff to maintain. Some have also reduced "commercial-free" programming was one of the main reasons it made sense to pay for cable when it was first introduced. After all, it seemed to make perfect sense for subscribers to pay some type of fee, especially since the cable networks wouldn't be earning any money for airing commercials from corporate America. That

We should have known that something was amiss when "pay-per-view" reared its head to latch on to popular sports events that had previously been available on the free airwaves to be enjoyed by anyone who had a working television. It was one of the first indications of our collective cultural addiction to watching others act out our hopes, dreams, fantasies and fears. Not only had the cable companies convinced us to accept "pay-perview" as the status quo for certain programming, but they also eventually groomed subscribers to sit through an increasing barrage of commercials, without demanding any corresponding decrease in our cable bills.

Cable subscribers are paying hefty monthly fees to watch stations that have up to 40% of the airtime dominated by some form of paid advertising. Of course we don't have to be bothered with the disruptive stream of commercials if we choose to pay to watch a movie of some other special broadcast. Still, we'll be subjected to the select group of advertisers who pay for advertising and product placement to reach those of up who make up the target audience for those particular broadcasts. These deep-pocket-diving-for-profit maneuvers by cable providers are very frustrating. In the past if we chose to eliminate television from our lives, we were left with few alternatives. Until recently, the multinational corporate telecommunications providers have been in total control, socking us with outrageous fees just to watch TV. They have done an outstanding job of growing their profits and shareholder value by siphoning monthly fees equivalent to car notes in some instances.

Providers have increasing their efficiencies with monthly cost, you are not alone. I seem to recall that expenses by outsourcing online and call-in customer service functions to low-cost, offshore operations. So let's look at this picture – they lower costs, but the price to subscribers has continued to climb? It is clear there is no thought of passing any cost reductions along to subscribers. What about those great specials they advertise? Read the fine print and calculate the total amount we'll need to fork over after the time period for the special price has run its course. Also pay attention to the early cancellation fee, which is nothing more than a penalty for refusing to continue the insanity of paying an outrageous monthly fee.

We accept the fact that the good ole days of free television are history, but we don't have to accept the blatant pocket gouging by the cable industry. It's time to take a lesson from the providers and do a better job of reducing our cable expenses by finding the most affordable option. A growing number of friends who have unplugged from cable completely seem to be doing just fine. They have found other options that require a one-time purchase, like the Amazon Fire Stick or Apple TV. Add another onetime purchase of $30 or so to get an antenna that attaches to the back of your TV, and you're able to watch all of the major and local TV channels in your area. You can also download numerous free apps that can give you access to a laundry list of additional stations and television shows.

Still want to be able to watch almost any movie? Create your own customized "bundle" of services for your TV watching pleasure. You can add low-cost options like a Netflix account (or other company that provides a library of movies that can be streamed). A bonus feature is that you can watch your movies at any time, typically on any of your digital devices - unlike the cable box that restricts your service to where it is located, your account is attached to you, and not to the TV sets in your home or office. With a monthly fee typically less than $20, you'll have your own private on-demand cinema choices, with plenty of money left over for popcorn, plus a surplus to use towards that car

TIME TO NURTURE AMERICA'S IRISH-INSPIRED SENSE OF HUMOR

It's always grand in March of every year to pour myself a pint of Guinness and enjoy the glorious Irish wit.

It's my good fortune to be a fellow of Irish descent. I share my good fortune with a quarter of all Americans, who can trace their heritage to the rolling, green hills of Ireland - including my Uncle Mike, rest his soul, whose grandparents came to America from Ireland.

As a lad, I loved the way he and my father celebrated St. Patrick's Day: by swapping the same Irish jokes and witticisms that I've been retelling for years.

Such as the one about a famous Irish dancer who decided to go to confession one Saturday.

Father Sullivan began asking her about her work. She explained that she was an acrobatic dancer, but the priest didn't know what she meant.

"I'll show you, father," she said. She stepped out of the confessional and went into a series of cartwheels, handsprings and backflips. An elderly woman turned to another parishioner and said: "Look at the penance Father Sullivan is givin' out, and me without 'me' bloomers on!" Catherine McHugh writes for biography.com that "the Irish indisputably have a way with language, as countless phrases and sayings born on the Emerald Island have been quoted across the world."

She shares some of the most memorable witticisms from famous Irish writers, politicians and entertainers, such as these two lines from the great writer Oscar Wilde:

"Be yourself; everyone else is taken."

"The pure and simple truth is rarely pure and never simple."

Playwright George Bernard Shaw spoke one of my all-time favorites: "A government that robs from Peter to pay Paul can always count on the support of Paul."

He also coined this well-remembered line: "Youth is wasted on the young." Playwright Sean O'Casey offers a clever take on a famous Shakespeare quote:

'The world's a stage and most of us are desperately unrehearsed." The great satirist Jonathan Swift offers sound advice: "May you live all the days of

And Irish footballer George Best celebrates the Irish wit in all its glory with a line that made me laugh out loud: "In 1969, I gave up women and alcohol. It was the worst 20 minutes of my life." According to author Bob Callahan in a Salon article, the Irish influence on American culture is considerable.

The melodies of the Irish fiddle were blended with the rhythms of African music to give birth to today's popular music.

Irish vaudevillians, masters of knockabout physical comedy, influenced early Hollywood filmmaking and even gave birth to the newspaper comic strip.

But it is the mischievousness of the Irish spirit and wit - the "hard-boiled, darkly humorous, racetrack bitten" language of the Îrish - that really benefited America. Irish spirit and wit were the precursors to "brilliant, wisecracking Irish-humor that are among our most treasured resources. We sometimes take ourselves too seriously and lose our sense of humor - we sometimes get lost in the narrowness of our own point of view.

Americans," who were precursors to the gregarious American spirit and sense of Well, St. Patrick's Day is a great day to pour yourself a pint of Guinness, and to feed and nurture our badly-needed sense of humor - because nothing helps people get along better than a hearty laugh.

Which reminds me of one joke that I am confident we can all agree on:

Q: Why are Irish jokes so simplistic? A: So Congress can understand them.

TRUMP IS STOCKING WHITE HOUSE WITH YES-MEN

We should have seen this coming.

Donald Trump, who thrives on the love of the crowd, who listens to the last person to successfully worm their way into his ear and who cannot endure even the most minor of slights, is systematically building an administration of yes-men.

Secretary of State Rex Tillerson, who famously referred to his boss as a "moron," and who broke with him on Russia and Iran, got the sack via Tweet. He was replaced by CIA Director Mike Pompeo, who shares Trump's hawkishness on Iran, but who also reportedly harbors a corrosive Islamophobia.

Trump, who never enjoyed a close relationship with his chief diplomat, reportedly wanted to change horses ahead of his meeting with North Korea. As awful as Tillerson was at his job, whether that's actually a good idea remains to be seen. Meanwhile..

Trump's longtime body man, John McEntee (a personal aide), got the hook on Tuesday because he's reportedly under investigation by the Department of Homeland Security for financial crimes.

Tillerson and McEntee followed economic advisor Gary Cohn out the door, and with it, the voice of establishment Wall Street. He broke with Trump over potentially destructive, and most definitely extortive, tariffs on steel and aluminum.

Cohn lost a fight with White House trade advisor Peter Navarro, who shares Trump's protectionist bent. As the Washington Post reports, Navarro, who was once barred from sending private emails and was reduced to "skulking" in the West Wing, is now ascendant.

White House Communications Director Hope Hicks, who admitted before a congressional oversight committee to telling "white lies" on Trump's behalf, also resigned. There, Trump lost one of his closest advisors and confidantes. Hicks had been with Trump since before the beginning of his political career.

And it's probably only a matter of time before Attorney General Jeff Sessions, who has been repeatedly voted on and off the island by our reality TV president, finally has enough or is

As The Week reports, Tillerson's exit through the White House's madly spinning revolving door adds up to at the 37th staff departure in the 14 months of Trump's administration. That's a higher rate than the previous five administrations, according to an analysis by The Brookings

Trump has "experienced such high turnover," because he "has valued loyalty over qualifications and suffered from a White House that has functioned in a chaotic manner," Brookings scholar

Kathryn Dunn Tenpas concluded. As result, it's been difficult for Trump "to retain staff and [it has] contributed to the governance difficulties he has encountered," she wrote. "If history is any guide, staff recruitment and retention during his second year could prove challenging as well."

Trump's narrowing inner circle is now comprised of Kelly, who was supposed to serve as a check on the president's worst excesses, but has dramatically underperformed in that role; as well as daughter Ivanka Trump, who is a senior adviser when it suits her, and an aggrieved daughter when it does not; and son-in-law Jared Kushner, a secretary of all, but knower of not much, as

Writing for The Guardian, David Smith concludes that "Trump is creating...less a team of rivals than a chorus of praise singers."

Back in August - which just seems light years away now - The National Review's Philip H. Devoe wrote that it was too soon to tell whether Trump's turnover was abnormal. But he said the White House "should heed warning signs about in-house turmoil."

Yes, a president is entitled to name his own team and they should exhibit some core ideological and political sympathies. But they should also be able to disagree with the chief executive without risking dismissal.

After all, every school kid knows the story of the team of political contrarians that President Abraham Lincoln assembled in 1861. The 16th president's decision to bring former opponents into his White House is now praised as a model of executive leadership, underscoring the importance of the leader of the free world being presented with views that do not comport with his own. Barely more than a year into his presidency, Trump, who shares an affinity for strongmen, is stumbling his way toward a regime of Yes-Men.

And while that might shore up his tender ego, it's bad news for the rest of us.

MAKING SENSE by MICHAEL REAGAN

TRUMPING THE NORTH KOREA NAYSAYERS

President Trump will never win.

Not with the liberal media, anyway.

First they were all over his case for not wanting to meet with North Korea's dear leader, Kim Jong Un.

Then they ripped him for his tough-talking tweets describing the "fire and fury" America would rain down on North Korea if Kim ever fired a nuclear missile at us.

Then they were so blind with Trump Hate they couldn't see the humor when the president dubbed the dictator Kim "Rocket Man."

And now, with planning meetings for a Trump-Kim summit apparently in the works in Sweden, the liberal media and their favorite foreign policy experts and professional second-guessers are terrified that Trump will sit down with Kim.

It'll be a while before we find out if President Trump will succeed in reducing North Korea's misbehavior where previous administrations have only failed.

His "Tweet Diplomacy" is part of a different kind of negotiating strategy that breaks the rules and puts America's interests first, not last.

His "Nuclear Button" tweet of Jan. 2 was one of his best - and one of his funniest: "North Korean Leader Kim Jong Un just stated that the 'Nuclear Button is on his desk at all times'."

Will someone from his depleted and food starved regime please inform him that I too have a Nuclear Button, but it is a much bigger & more powerful one than his, and my Button works!" Trump's straight talk about the nature of the North Korean regime reminded me of my father's famous "Evil Empire" Speech in 1983.

Most of his staff, everyone in the media and most foreign policy experts of the time went nuts when my father chose - on his own and without telling anyone in advance - to say the Soviet empire was immoral and built on evil. Everyone on the planet not working for the KGB or the New York Times editorial page knew what Ronald Reagan said was true.

But saying Soviet totalitarianism was evil was not something a president of the U.S. was ever

In the 1970s and 1980s Americans were being told by the media and the Washington political establishment we had to coexist with the USSR forever, not try to defeat it militarily or economically. It was not politically correct to say America was morally superior to the USSR. But my father knew the truth and was not afraid to say so.

A few years later the same thing happened in Iceland when he walked away from the nuclear weapons talks with Mikhail Gorbachev. The media went nuts. They called him a loser. They said he was risking a global nuclear war. They said he was too tough on that nice young liberal man running Russia.

We all know how that Cold War story ended - the Berlin Wall came down and the USSR's empire crumbled into pieces and went out of the evil business.

As I've noted many times, my father's basic foreign policy strategy was never complicated - "We

While I disagree with Trump on many things, he's basically taking the same America-first approach, whether it's on tariffs and trade or in his dealing with Kim.

So now it looks like Rocket Man is coming to the table. It never would have happened if President Trump had not taken the tough stand he took and said the outrageous things he said. As I watch the North Korea cards play out and listen to the naysayers, I see the same characters and hear the same arguments I heard in the 1980s.

What the naysayers and foreign policy pros really need to do first is applaud the fact that at long last there is going to be a face-to-face meeting with Kim to discuss nuclear weapons. That's what's most important.

Once the Kim-Trump summit is over, the naysayers can comment or complain all they want about the results.

For now they should shut up and clap.

YOUR INVITATION TO AN EVENT AT THE KENSINGTON SIERRA MADRE

More people will one day need long-term care (LTC) services at home, in residential care or in a nursing facility — and the cost for care is rising.

Seven common myths of LTC Yet many common myths surround LTC products and services. Perhaps you've heard (and even believed) these and others:

- "A government program will take care of me."
- 3. "Only old people need LTC services."
- "LTC protection pays for nursing home care only." 2. "I can save the money I'll need for LTC services." 6. "I can't afford LTC insurance." 7. "We don't need LTC protection because we have each other."
- 4. "I don't need separate LTC protection because I have bealth insurance."

RE-ELECT Rachelle Arizmendi

to the Sierra Madre City Council

As a Council Member and your current Mayor, it has been my honor to serve you for the last four years.

I have worked with my City Council colleagues to:

- Balance the city budget and reduce total annual expenses by $1M
- Restore full Police Department staffing
- Establish a professional Fire Department
- Hire a new City Manager
- Reduce water loss by investing in water infrastructure

As a Sierra Madre homeowner, I know that overdevelopment can ruin the quality of life in a neighborhood.

Sierra Madre's unique small town character and charm brought many of us here to stay.

Let's Keep Sierra Madre Great!

Rachelle Arizmendi was first elected to the Sierra Madre City Council in 2014 and currently serves as the Mayor of the City of Sierra Madre.

In 2017, Rachelle was appointed by California's Governor to serve on the State's Board of Food and Agriculture. She also serves on several Boards including the California League of Cities and Foothill Workforce Development Policy. Rachelle is a Governor Appointee to the Interagency Council on Early Intervention and is an Advisory Member of the South Coast AQMD Local Government & Small Business Advisory Group.

Rachelle is the Vice President & Chief Operating Officer of PACE (Pacific Asian Consortium in Employment). PACE is a non-profit community development organization that serves over 40,000 people every year in the areas of job training and employment, business development, early education, asset building, energy, and weatherization. She oversees a budget of $25M and a staff of 300 employees. In her previous capacity, she held the position of Education Project Director for 16 years. She was also the Executive Director for 2-1-1- California (an affiliate of the United Ways of California).

"I am committed to maintaining a beautiful, safe place where individuals, seniors and families can flourish." - Rachelle Arizmendi
