ELECTION COVERAGE

On April 10, 2018 select three people from a field of four to sit on the City Council. They will also vote on Measures D which attempts to abolish the city's current Utility User Tax and Measure A an Advisory Measure.

The Mountain Views News is committed to providing our readers with comprehensive coverage of this election. Each week, as we have done in the past, we will profile the candidates and give each of the candidates the opportunity to introduce themselves to our readers by answering the following questions: 1. Why are you running for City Council? 2. What are you going to do for Sierra Madre? 3. How do you plan on accomplishing your goals?

This paper will also review the pros and cons of Measure D and Measure A. The schedule will be as follows:

Candidate Andy Bencosme March 3rd March 10th

Candidate Gene Goss March 17th Candidate Denise Delmar March 24th Candidate Rachelle Arizmendi March 31st Measure D & Advisory Measure A

Our reporting on this election will be as fair and objective as possible. It is our goal to do whatever we can to help you make an informed decision on April 10, 2018.

MOUNTAIN VIEWS NEWS ENDORSEMENTS FOR THE APRIL 10th ELECTION:

As in the past, this paper endorses those candidates that it feels will best serve the citizens and businesses in Sierra Madre. This year, there are 4 candidates for 3 seats, all of whom have displayed a sincere interest in protecting Sierra Madre. The 3 incumbent candidates, Rachelle Arizmendi, Gene Goss and Denise Delmar, have all done a remarkable job during their term in office. However, Andy Bencosme, as a Community Services Commissioner has also proven his commitment to the betterment of the city. It is a hard decision to make, but in the final analysis, this paper recommends that when you vote, vote for Rachelle Arizmendi, Gene Goss, and Denise Delmar. As the saying goes, "if it ain't broke, don't fix it", and based on this current council's performance, we have a good team that gets the job done.

THE MOUNTAIN VIEWS NEWS ALSO ENCOURAGES YOU TO VOTE NO ON MEASURE D! Susan Henderson, Publisher and Editor

RACHELLE ARIZMENDI

Twelve years ago, my husband Fili and I were looking for a house – not just a place to settle down, but a home to grow old in. We came across the quaint village of Sierra Madre where people still wave to their neighbors, no traffic signals exist and you can safely walk your dog at late at night.

I am currently the Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of non-profit community development organization that serves 40,000 people every year, employs over 300 people, and operates on a $24M budget. My knowledge and experience in this work, as well as the last four years on City Council positions me best to continue enforcing fiscal discipline and to address our upcoming issues.

- · Balance the city budget and reduce total annual expenses by $1M
- · Restore full Police Department staffing
- · Establish a professional Fire Department
- · Hire a new City Manager · Reduce water loss by investing in water infrastructure

As a long-time Sierra Madre homeowner, I am dedicated to maintaining home values and enhancing the quality of life in our neighborhoods. That means limiting and controlling development to preserve the unique charm and character that makes Sierra Madre a special place.

Important issues remain. Once Measure D is rejected, we need to maintain fiscal discipline, protect our water system, complete the infrastructure improvement plan, work with the PUSD to maintain the quality of our neighborhood schools, and continue promoting a safe community.

I am committed to maintaining a beautiful, safe place where individuals, seniors and families can flourish. For more information, please visit me at arizmendiforcitycouncil.com

I respectfully ask for your vote on April 10.

WISTARIA FESTIVAL DRAWS THOUSANDS

The weather was perfect. Cool and Dry. The several thousand additional visitors that came world famous Vine, while not yet in full bloom, attracted over 4,000 visitors on Sunday, The lines were long but well worth the wait. Pictured above are harpist and former Sierra Madre resident Ron Longo as visitors wander through the yards of Bob and Nell Solt. The adjacent property, owned by Tony and Claire Held was the point of entry for vine viewers.

Meanwhile, back in Sierra Madre, there were to partake of Sierra Madre's unique downtown, over 100 crafters, artists and food vendors, and the Auto Show. A snapshot of the activities can be found on page B10.

DO YOU HAVE A STORY TO TELL?

Do you have a Sierra Madre memory to tell? This is your chance to have it recorded on video and stored at state and local archives. You will be part of the state historical record! AND there will be a presentation here in town of all the Sierra Madre videos created.

Sierra Madre Historical Preservation Society members have regaled us with all kinds of wonderful memories of their lives in town - we know you have stories to tell! If you were raised here, what experiences and adventures did you have? If you moved to Sierra Madre, what was it like then compared to now? Do you have a memory connected to a place, or to a person - maybe a leading citizen of our town, or even a local character? These are just a few ideas to get you thinking what memory you'd like to tell.

Part of this memory-gathering project, California Listens, is a free 2-day workshop to create your little video (photos or memorabilia relating to your story are a big plus!). The workshop team will work with ou all the way through, and you'll end up with skills that could be useful for recording memories for your family, or doing other video projects. The California Listens Digital Storytelling Workshop is set for Friday and Saturday May 11-12, 2018 from 9 am to 5 pm at City Hall, located at 232 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. in Sierra Madre.

In the workshop, participants will make a short video on a computer and will learn: how to make a great video story, how to write a narration script and record it, how to prepare a visual treatment for a story, and the basics of video editing in WeVideo. Powerful and fun! Anyone can contribute regardless of experience or technical level.

The deadline to apply is April 28th. To apply, visit: storycenter.org/sierramadre_or submit a paper application to the Sierra Madre Public Library. You can drop your application off at the library or mail it to them (Sierra Madre Public Library, 440 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. Sierra Madre, CA 91024). Or you can apply online at the website storycenter.org/

The workshop is free, but pre-registration is required. Those taking part must commit to preparation time, attendance during the entire two days.

Collected video stories will be shared at a presentation during the summer and will become part of state and local archives of stories about what it means to be Californian. View collected stories at californialistens.org

The Mt. Wilson Trail Race Training Group will be meet in Kersting Ct. every Saturday at 7:00 am beginning Saturday, February 3rd through Saturday, May 19th.

Sierra Madre-Pasadena-

UPDATED FISCAL IMPACT ANALYSIS OF MEASURE D AVAILABLE TO THE PUBLIC

The Sierra Madre City Council asked staff to complete an updated fiscal impact analysis of Measure D: Stop the Utility Users' Tax (UUT) which appears on the April 10, 2018 ballot. The complete report is available on the City's website (http://www.cityofsierramadre.com/cms/One.aspx?portalId =212393&pageId=8660947) and can be found by clicking on the "Fiscal Impact" link located on the City's homepage. The report includes specific reduction proposals as they relate to Police, Fire and Medic Services, Library, and Community Services, should a majority of voters choose to "Stop" (repeal) the Utility Users Tax.

The Utility User Tax (UUT) provides 24% ($2.6M) of all General Fund revenue to the City and supports public safety (Police and Fire) and recreation programs (Library and Community Services) in addition to all other general activities of the Sierra Madre government.

The largest single area of expenditure from the General Fund is for the Sierra Madre Police Department which expends 33% of all General Fund revenues. The other large General Fund departments include the Fire Department (18% of expenditures), and the City Library (7% of expenditures). In total these departments are responsible for $6,418,700 of the total General Fund uses of 11,035,700 or 58%. Public Safety (Police and Fire) account for more than $5.6M or 51% of the total General Fund budget.

The possible financial impact if the UUT is eliminated, and the General fund is reduced by $2.6M, could mean the entire elimination of some departments, and/or significant service level reductions, or changes to the way City services are provided, in addition to the specific proposals outlined in this analysis.

Reducing General Fund Expenditures by $2.6 million, while preserving all Public Safety services would necessitate a 48% reduction in all General Fund expenses outside of Police and Fire. A reduction of $2.6 million to the General Fund while keeping Public Safety intact is not possible.

If Measure D is approved, the City Council will consider:

Eliminating all 4 Police Sergeant positions and 6 of 10 Police Officer positions;

Eliminating all paramedic and ambulance response from the Sierra Madre Fire Department;

Eliminating the Community Services Department in its entirety;

Reducing Library services to one day a week.

If expenditure reductions fail to meet the loss in UUT revenues, the inevitable result will be the eventual depletion of General Fund reserves, potentially leading to the disincorporation of Sierra Madre.

GENERAL FUND EXPENDITURES BY PERCENT Police, 33% All Other GF Departments, 42% Fire, 18% Library, 7%

WALKING SIERRA MADRE

Bees and hummingbirds feasting on the blossoms on our

The flowering cherry/plum trees all over town...glorious shades of pink.

My tiny wistaria vine twining itself around the fence

The sunrises every day this week.

These things listed above are the most beautiful things I've seen this week. Today is the first day of Spring and looking around our neighborhood and all around town, the following verse pretty much says it all:

You will live in joy and peace. The mountains and hills will burst into song, and the trees of the field will clap their hands!" Is. 55:12

Could we have asked for a more delightful weekend for the Wistaria Festival? Probably not. Once again, crowds flocked to see the world's biggest Wistaria Vine, strolled around downtown, enjoyed Sierra Madre and probably wished they could live here, too. I've been keeping an eye on my own favorite Wistaria vine, on Grandview, north side of the street, almost to Santa Anita, and it has just a few blossoms on it so far but as I drive past it on my way to Physical Therapy I can check it out twice a week - yes, friends and neighbors, my newly replaced knee (January 16th) is coming along nicely but isn't what you'd call a "normal" knee yet. Dr. Owens, my surgeon, says, rather off-handedly, "Oh, it takes about six to eight months..." Seriously? I'm past the two month mark and have no intention of taking six to eight months to get back to being able to walk around town. We called this column: it again. You'd be amazed at how much you know. We "Walking Sierra Madre!" not driving Sierra Madre!

They're making a movie in town and the former Petunias is now attractively decorated as "The Seaside Coffee Shop" and with the blue gingham curtains, looks charming. Not sure what the movie is, but somebody will know and enlighten us all.

We have a new business in town where Goody Bags was on Sierra Madre Blvd. "Craft." I'm planning to stop in and will have the details for you next week. I think a craft shop is a great idea for us as we don't have anything like that and were kinda too far from Michaels to be able to stop in and pick up a couple more of whatever we need for our current project.

OK, you've looked at the picture and are wondering... what in the world!! Well, here's the scoop: The amazingly talented Rich Johnson of JJ Jukebox fame, hosted the inaugural night of Trivia at Corfu, right here in town. Incidentally, if you haven't dined at Corfu, you're not being good to yourself. I find I am craving their playwrightdd chicken breast kebab, a boneless, skinless chicken breast barbequed and served with grilled veggies, hummus, tabbouleh and pita bread. This chicken is so tender and tasty, and the hummus! All the teams ordered big bowls of hummus and pita to keep their strength up. Soooo

OK, back to Trivia. There were sixteen Trivia fans in attendance, broken up into four teams. Categories were General Knowledge/Geography; U.S. Presidents/ History; Oxymorons; Movie Sidekicks and, lastly, Iconic Movies Named After Women. Our team got all the Iconic Movies right... here are a few of the ladies; Audrey Hepburn, Joan Crawford, Sally Fields Bette Davis and their movies... you guys would all get these right: Funny Face for Audrey; Mildred Pierce for Joan; Sybil for Sally, Jezebel for Bette.

A couple of the oxymorons - you know what those are - a figure of speech in which apparently contradictory terms appear in conjunction: Jumbo shrimp, good grief, crash landing.. you get the idea. Our team did fairly well with that one. I won't get into the general knowledge/history stuff but we excelled there, too, mostly due to daughter, Leah, son-in-law, Chuck and the rest of our team. Now then, The Movie Sidekicks... How many did you get? And did you recognize #5 as devastatingly handsome Dennis Weaver, playing Chester on Gunsmoke? You got Tonto, I'm sure (#2) whose real name was not Jay Silverheels, but something else altogether and he was originally from Canada! Whose sidekick was Andy Divine? Gene Autrey. Gabby Hayes? Roy Rogers. And #1, the Cisco Kid's sidekick, Pancho.

This was so much fun and we're all hoping Rich does certainly were.

A little unfinished business, Robert Gjerde corrected a couple of items in the interview we did a couple of weeks ago: "The fire department is staffed by three firefighters, not CERT members. The "Internet" probably won't be working after a major disaster, but the emergency data network we are building, will." Thanks, Robert!

It's been a good week in Sierra Madre and our own personal mountains have never been more spectacular!. My book page: Amazon.com: Deanne Davis

ARCADIA HIGH SCHOOL RECEIVES NATIONAL RECOGNITION FOR COMMITMENT TO EMPOWERING STUDENTS

-Named a distinguished school for its STEM and career learning program-recognized as a Project Lead The Way (PLTW) transformative learning opportunities to students through PLTW engineering courses. Arcadia High is one of only 10 schools in California and one of only 133 high schools across the U.S. to receive this

"Our purpose in Arcadia Unified is to inspire students to have a positive and profound impact on their world," shared Arcadia Unified Superintendent Dr. David Vannasdall. "Receiving this honor helps us know we are staying true to our purpose by providing our students with important access to STEM [science, technology, engineering, and math] programs that will prepare them for the world and for the economy they will enter after high school."

The 2017-18 PLTW Distinguished School recognition honors schools committed to increasing student access, engagement, and achievement in their PLTW programs. To be eligible for the designation, Arcadia High had to meet the following criteria:

Offer at least three PLTW courses;

Have 25 percent of students or more participate in PLTW courses, or of those who participated in PLTW, at least 33 percent took two or more PLTW

Have 70 percent of students or more earn a Proficient or higher on PLTW End-of-Course Assessments, or 10 percent of students earn the AP + PLTW Student Achievement.

"It is a great honor to recognize Arcadia High School for its commitment to students," said Vince Bertram, President and CEO of PLTW. "This school is a model for what school should look like, and Arcadia High should be very proud of ensuring students have the knowledge and skills to be career ready and successful on any career path they might

"Students in this program design, build, fabricate parts, program, test their designs, and justify their work before a design review board. In other words, they practice being an engineer," said Chapman.

Arcadia High's PLTW program includes three courses: Introduction to Engineering Design, Principles of Engineering, and, the capstone course, Engineering Design and Development. The program also provides students the opportunity to work with and receive work critiques from professional engineers from the renowned Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL).

"Our students work with professional engineers through their capstone course, solving real-world engineering problems and developing and building designs that they take to both JPL's Invention Challenge and the Los Angeles Regional of the FIRST Robotics Competition," said Chapman. "Another positive evolution of this program is that many of these students have continued their education in some of the finest STEM colleges in the country, with alumni coming back to help out our current students as mentors."

Arcadia High School has also been distinguished a U.S. News and World Report Gold Medal School three times, an honor bestowed on less than 3 percent of the more than 19,000 schools in the country. Similarly, Newsweek named Arcadia High on its Top Public High Schools in America list. Arcadia High was also recently identified by Niche.com as being in the top 2 percent of the best public high schools in California. For the second consecutive year, Arcadia High's 2017 graduating class had at least one student accepted into every Ivy League school in the country. Likewise, for the second consecutive year, Arcadia Unified School District was named on the College Board's 8th Annual AP® District Honor Roll.

ODE TO THE TREE

Shelter and protection for birds and numerous other there's the odiferous eucalyptus and the fruit-bearing wild creatures. Shade on a sunny day and, by way of an amazing photosynthetic process, oxygen for the air we breathe. Leaves that fall and provide (given a chance) fresh soil, fruits and nuts that give us food to eat. Endless is the list of what trees do to sustain us.

The tremendous tree is one of the most remarkable living things we are blessed to cohabitate with, and in many ways, the giver of life on this planet. Yet, so often we humans can forget. We go from day to day, taking their presence very much for granted.

During a walk in Arcadia, I saw a woman standing in her front yard and I overheard her say to her husband, "This tree is making too much of a mess on our driveway...we should cut it down."

In this week's column, I felt compelled to take the opportunity to celebrate the beauteous and lifegiving attributes of the trees we get to benefit from on planet earth. I used to be one of those people who'd fail to acknowledge and appreciate them from one day to the next, but that changed when I quit my corporate job and started my daily endeavor of dog walking.

On any given summer afternoon, I become what one might call a "shade hopper". With leashed dog in tow, I run from one tree-covered spot to the next, doing my best to avoid the burning pavement for my furry friend's feet and prevent the harmful rays of the sun from bearing down brutally on our backs. I've memorized the routes where there are tree canopies to protect us as we walk. And every time I see that a tree has gone missing, I sincerely mourn its loss.

The birds that dwell among us rely heavily on the local trees, particularly the tall strong ones. Those delicate yet determined little creatures seek refuge in the branches where their predators cannot see them. They work hard to build their nests and foster their families in the safety of the limbs. Without our local trees, the birds would be forced to leave or perish.

The aesthetic beauty that can be seen in a grove of trees cannot be emulated through any work performed by the hands of man. Only the Creator can bring about such wonder. Wireless service providers have made brave attempts to recreate the greatness. They've tried and failed tremendously to mimic this Maker's miracle with their camouflage technology. Let me just say - not even close!

When the wind blows, the trees dance to it's rhythm as if to remind us that life is a party to be participated in. "Lighten up and stop taking yourselves so seriously", they seem to scream. When the heavy wind bends them to a point where we fear they may fall, even then they remain flexible and allow their branches to be blown and cleansed by the passing storm. What a lesson we can learn from the trees' ability to bear up under pressure.

From the delicate mimosa with its pastel pink poms to the stately cedar with its blue-green needles and egg-shaped cones, few views can compare to these breathtaking life forms. Then fig, the evergreen ash and the ever-healing ginkgo. But let us not forget the prayerful palm with fronds that seem to humbly bow down to the Creator.

Many of the trees we get to see as we venture out or our four walls and into our small town are not indigenous to this region (but who among us is?), yet they have willingly acclimated and evolved as they have found to be necessary in order to survive and thrive in their new surroundings. We should all be so tenacious in our own endeavor to bend, mend and

There are jubilant jacaranda with showy purple flowers lining the sidewalks of our streets and donning the backdrops of our blocks. How breathtaking is the plethora of autumn color that comes from the sweet gum liquidambar, bringing warmth to our hearts during that one time of year we have designated to be thankful.

From the incredible crepe myrtle to the tireless tentative tulip, the magnificent magnolia to the medicinal mulberry, so many are the talents of our dear friends, the trees. There's the luscious laurel and the bountiful bottlebrush, the stately stone pine and the purple-leaf plum with pink buds so divine. The

With complete abandon, they display their wares in such stunning presentation no man-made design can begin to compare. Trees come in all sizes, shapes and colors. Their grandeur shouts strength into the sky and instills hope in the darkest, coldest heart. I could rave for days about the wonders of trees, indeed their majestic presence brings me to

Instead I'll bring this anthem to an end with a few of my favorite woody friends, which I hope will continue to grow strong and tall in our small town. The grandiose oak with meandering branches, the savvy, scenic sycamore grows swift, strong and dandy. And last but not least is the apt avocado holding fast and determined through the driest of droughts, still bearing fruit for those here and abouts.

And so this ends my ode of praise to the trees, for the glorious gifts they bestow upon me. Be sure to appreciate the ambience they bring to what may otherwise be quite a stark surrounding. Water and care for them, tell them you love them, for they, too, are living beings, not so different at all from you and

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

If it's new, it must be ready for a review, right? Well, I can pat myself on the back for waiting a few weeks. Actually, the credit goes to the owners of the new new kid on South Lake Ave., "The Arbour". Before Smitty's, Del Frisco's, Crocodile Café and Paul Martin's, there was Burger Continental and The Chronicle, and that was pretty much it for food fare on South Lake. I was aware of The Arbour opening, but it was a bit of a cat and mouse game with owner/ chef Ian Gresik - I was ready to come in, but he wasn't ready for me to stop by just yet. His stint at the Drago in DTLA did him right; he knows that a soft opening and limited reservations would be the foundation of something spectacular, and if my the hot appetizers was the Tagliatte, crumbled pork first time sitting at the bar was any indication of things to come The Arbour is not only a welcome addition to South Lake, but the entire San Gabriel Valley restaurant scene.

Before I get into the menu, the scene is typical of any modern built-from-the-groundup restaurant with a beautiful bar area, open kitchen, and a nouvelle feel. Certainly, this not say that the other restaurants on Lake don't have their spaces looking sharp, but there is a feel to The Arbour that might make you think that you were dining in Napa if you didn't know any better, so much similar but so much different. Are you ready for this, sports fans? There is no television - no big screens anywhere at The Arbour, and I get it!! This place has a real focus on the food - imagine that! I mentioned Drago in DTLA - Ian was the youngest pastry chef in the US with a Michelin Star while at Patina (those are hard to come by). I know Ian and his wife aren't going to like this, but do yourself a favor, call first and make sure he is there. It makes the night so special with the owner/chef comes by and says hello, and his charm is the signature of the restaurant. And if you hold your breath and say M-I-S-S-I-S-S-I-P-P-I, you might get him to make his signature dessert, the California, right at your table. Looking to score points with the one you love? This a deal closer.

talked about the food yet.

My dad used to say pictures tell a thousand stories, and I am glad this article includes the dishes that I tried. I started off with a couple of cold appetizers (appetizer: defined as a small portion to stimulate the desire to eat) beginning with the Seafood Salad of crab, shrimp and shellfish with parsnips and Meyer lemon vinaigrette [side note: if you like lemonade, Meyer lemons are the best]. Next was the Bison steak tartare and Fresno chili stamp served with puffed bread. I mentioned that just before I was born that parents lived in Germany and tartare was very common. Chef Ian, of course, is familiar with European eating habits. Next from

THE GOOD LIFE

HOW TO CHOOSE A MEMORY CARE UNIT

My mom has Alzheimer's disease and has gotten to the point that she can't live at home any longer. I need to find a good memory care residential unit for her but could use some help. Any suggestions? Exhausted Daughter

Dear Exhausted,

Choosing a good memory care residential unit for a loved one with Alzheimer's disease is a very important decision that requires careful evaluation and some homework.

Most memory care units, sometimes called special care units, are housed within assisted living or nursing home facilities. At their best, they offer staff extensively trained in caring for people with dementia, individualized care that minimizes the use of dangerous psychotropic drugs, a home-like environment and activities that improve residents quality of life. But at their worst, they can offer little more than a locked door. Here are some steps that can help you find a good facility and avoid a bad one.

Make a list: To identify some good memory care residential units in your area ask your mom's doctor for a referral, and use the Alzheimer's Association online tool at CommunityResourceFinder.org. Make sure the facilities on your list are close to family members and friends who can visit often, because residents with frequent visitors usually get better care.

Research your options: Once you've made a list, contact your local long-term care ombudsman (see LTCombudsman.org). This is a government official who investigates assisted living and nursing home complaints and can tell you which facilities have had problems in the

If you're looking at a memory care unit within a nursing home facility, use Medicare's nursing home compare tool (Medicare.gov/nursinghomecompare), which provides a 5-star rating system.

Call the facilities: Once you've identified a few facilities, call them to find out if they have any vacancies, if they provide the types of services your mother needs, what they charge and if they accept Medicaid.

Tour your top choices: During your tour, notice the cleanness and smell of the facility. Is it homey and inviting? Does the staff seem responsive and kind to its residents? Also be sure to taste the food, and talk to the current resident's family members, if available.

Also, find out about staff screening and training procedures, their turnover rate, and the staff-to-resident ratio. They should have at least one staff member for every five residents.

Make sure the facility offers quality activities that can keep your mom engaged, even at night when she may be awake. Ask how they respond to residents who may wander or become aggressive. If the answer is locked doors and antipsychotic drugs, that's a red flag.

Because transitions can be unsettling for dementia suffers, make sure that your mom will be able to remain at the facility for the foreseeable future. And find out what, if any, health conditions might require your mom to leave the facility or move to a higher and more expansive level of care.

It's also a good idea to make multiple visits to the facility including an unscheduled visit at night or on weekends when the staff is more likely to be stretched thin. To help you evaluate your visit, the Alzheimer's

Association offers a checklist that you can access at ALZ

org/residentialfacilities. Paying for care: The national average costs for memory care within an assisted living facility is over $5,000 per month, and over $7,500/month for nursing home care, but costs can vary widely depending on your location. Since Medicare does not cover long-term care, most residents pay for care from either personal savings, a long-term care insurance policy, or through Medicaid (if available) once their savings are depleted.

To help you research your financial options, visit the National Clearinghouse for Long-Term Care Information website at LongTermCare.gov.

A PASSING STAR DISTURBED THE COMETS OF OUR SOLAR SYSTEM 70,000 YEARS AGO

At a time when modern humans were beginning to leave Africa and the Neanderthals were living on our planet, Scholz's star—named after the German astronomer who discovered it—approached less than a light-year from the Sun. Nowadays it is almost 20 light-years away, but 70,000 years ago it entered the Oort cloud, a reservoir of trans-Neptunian objects (potential comets) located at the confines of the solar system.

This discovery was made public in 2015 by a team of astronomers led by Professor Eric Mamajek of the University of Rochester (USA). The details of that stellar flyby, the closest documented so far, were presented in The Astrophysical Journal

Now two astronomers from the Complutense University of Madrid, the brothers Carlos and Raúl de la Fuente Marcos, together with the researcher Sverre J. Aarseth of the University of Cambridge (United Kingdom), have analyzed for the first time the nearly 340 objects of the solar system with hyperbolic orbits (very open V-shaped, not the typical elliptical), and in doing so they have detected that the trajectory of some of them is influenced by the passage of Scholz's star.

"Using numerical simulations we have calculated the radiants or positions in the sky from which all these hyperbolic objects seem to come," explains Carlos de la Fuente Marcos.

"In principle," he adds, "one would expect those positions to be evenly distributed in the sky, particularly if these objects come from the Oort cloud; however, what we find is very different: a statistically significant accumulation of radiants. The pronounced over-density appears projected in the direction of the constellation of Gemini (the Twins), which fits the close encounter with Scholz's star."

The moment in which this star passed close to us and its position during prehistory coincide with the data of the new investigation and with those of limit. Mamajek and his team. "It could be a coincidence, but it is unlikely that both location and time are compatible," says De la Fuente Marcos, who points system, only those that were closest to it at that time. out that their simulations suggest that Scholz's "For example, the radiant of the famous interstellar

by Christopher Nyerges

at Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041, or www. SchoolofSelf-Reliance.com.]

Wildfood Man Peter Gail died on Valentine's Day, 2018, in Cleveland.

Peter grew up nearby in the San Gabriel Valley, and eventually moved to Ohio where he earned his PhD. In botany. Peter was a giant in promoting wild foods, and was a backup speaker to Euell Gibbons. Among other things, he created a database for the United States so anyone could find a wild food educator close to their home. This is my story about Peter and the Amish.

It was a grey winter day driving eastbound on US 422 in northeast Ohio with Peter Gail. The clouds made it difficult to see very far into the rural countryside. The sound of the windshield wipers provided a steady background tempo to our conversation.

The temperature was in the high 30s, and it was about the same temperature inside Peter's van. I was tense from the cold, hunched a bit, trying to stay warm. I'm from California. Peter was relaxed, smiling, pointing out each feature as we drove along. He's a Cleveland resident and used to the cold. On this day he was my tourguide to the Amish countryside of Ohio.

Peter Gail's most famous business associate was Euell Gibbons, who authored Stalking the Wild Asparagus and starred in Grape Nuts cereal commercials in the 1970s, making him the butt of comedians jokes about eating everything from old tires to freeway overpasses.

That was a long time ago. During those years, Gail edited Gibbons' articles for Boys Life magazine, and worked with him and others to develop the National Wilderness Survival Training Camp for the Boy Scouts. Together they developed and taught a foraging course at Rutgers University in New Jersey. When Gibbons had become nationally famous from the commercials and Johnny Carson's jokes, and was overbooked, Gail occasionally substituted for him on the lecture circuit.

eating a poisonous plant! -- and Peter Gail has tirelessly carried the torch for wild food enthusiasts. Though Gail has made no cereal commercials, he has appeared on such national TV shows as Good Morning America, Lifetime TV's "Our Home Show," Food TV Networks "Extreme Cuisine, has authored numerous books on the subject of wild foods and related topics, and he continued to lecture about the virtues of the ubiquitous wild plants and those people who still use them as a part of daily life.

While Gail was best known on the national circuit for his "Dinner Underfoot" and "Healing with Weeds" lectures and workshops, locally he was even better known for his work among the Northeastern Ohio Amish community, the 4th largest in the world. As a Ph.D. ethnobotanist and anthropologist, Gail studied the Amish for over 50 years to discover the lessons their simple life style has to teach us. He interpreted that knowledge in purchased from www.dandyblend.com

He's also authored the "Delightful Delicious Daylily", "Violets in Your Kitchen," "The Messy Mulberry and What to do with it", and "The Volunteer Vegetable Sampler", which profiles the culinary and medicinal values of 41 of the most common backyard weeds.

The least known of Gail's pursuits outside of Northern Ohio were the educational field experiences he provided for people curious about the Amish and what they have to teach us. Several times a month in spring, summer and fall, he would load up a bus or van, and take people into the heart of the Northeastern Ohio Amish community. These were day-long affairs, where his people were treated to a lunch at an Amish home, told the history and beliefs of the Amish, and then taken to their stores to look at and buy Amish goods.

I had the good fortune to spend time with Peter Gail here in Southern California and in Ohio, where he gave me a tour of the Amish countryside, and introduced me to his Amish friends nearly 20

If you're unfamiliar with the Amish, they use no electricity and shun most modern so-called conveniences. This means no electric lights, no electric refrigerators, no television, no CDs--very few of the modern devices that most folks take for granted. They have managed to live their lives, and produce most of their needed items, by simple oldfashioned ingenuity. Wood stoves, oil lamps, use of ice, horse-drawn tractors, building houses in such a way to take advantage of the heat of summer, and be protected from the cold of winter, large windows near the work areas, hand tools, and the use of diesel and small gasoline engines to generate

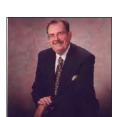

On one of our tours, we were driving on a country road and noted a farm house with lots of junk and rusty tools and cars piled about.

"That's not Amish," Peter said matter-of-factly, nodding towards the rust and the tallish weeds that nearly obscure them.

"One of the major contrasts between the neat, Gibbons died way back in 1975 -- no, not from clean Amish places and the 'Yankees,' as they call all us non-Amish in this region -- is that the Yankees live in that kind of trash -- old rusty cars, junk all around their houses. You won't see that around the Amish homes. We, by the way, are called "English" in most other Amish settlements -- it all depends who the non-Amish settlers were who the Amish encountered when they got to different regions. Here, they encountered Connecticut Yankees.'

While we drove, Peter explained that he got interested in wild foods at an early age in San Gabriel, California after his father died. Peter collected "goosefoot" – the common lamb's quarter to help feed the family. Lamb's quarter is arguably one of the most tasty and nutritious greens in the world. This is why he named his company Goosefoot Acres. Goosefoot Acres is still operated by family members, selling his books and selling a top quality dandelion coffee-substitute.

SPRING HAS SPRUNG A LEAK THIS YEAR

It was in the middle of Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage said most world is Spring going to get here?"

As a veteran husband, I knew this was not thing man can do about it. a question for me to ponder or even to answer. completely. I learned these things down the years, which is why I have survived so many years. If silence is golden then I have reached those golden years of life.

I wouldn't say this to her, but I was thinking the same thing myself. When is Spring ever going to

I was counting the days when it would be Spring and we could enjoy some graciously warm weather for a change. This weather has been stinking chilly for a long time and I was getting tired of it. I could tell my wife was getting tired of it too, but I didn't want to go in that direction with any kind of conversation. Sometimes the best thing to do is not do or say anything.

It was unusually cold here in Florida and I was tired of it. Personally, I was looking forward to Spring when things would automatically change and I could put away my sweater.

That magical day arrived. The day before my wife said, "Well, tomorrow is Spring and all this nasty, rainy, chilly weather will be over."

If only my wife was in charge of the weather. That would be a wonderful thing because the weather would be perfect every day. At least according to her calculation.

I remember when I tried to explain to her that we needed change in the weather and we needed rain in order for crops to grow, trees to grow and so forth. After my explanation she put both hands on her hips and stared at me one of those stares that I'm so familiar with. She didn't say anything, she didn't have to.

My wife has relatives up in the state of New things she enjoys doing during the winter time is to text them and tell them how wonderfully warm and sunny it is down here. This year, however, she wasn't able to do that.

When Spring did arrive, there was no magical change in the weather. In fact, it was the worst rainy weather we had all year. It was rainy and thundering and even in some places there were tornadoes. It didn't look or feel like Spring.

I didn't say anything all morning. I knew no matter what I would say it would get me in trouble. She wasn't in the mood for any joking or jestering on my part.

She didn't say much, but she sighed very deeply February during a very all morning long. Fortunately for me, I had work shivering cold time that the to do and so occupied myself with that work.

Isn't it strange that man, being who he thinks he dramatically, "I can't wait for Spring. When in the is has no control of the weather? It rains when it rains and it snows when it snows and there's not a

The weatherman is a very strange individual. Rather, it was something I needed to ignore It doesn't matter if he gets the whether right or wrong, he still has a job. Nobody thinks badly of him because he miscalculated the weather. Then my wife made a very interesting comment,

Why can't Mother Nature keep to the schedule at hand. Spring is supposed to be nice weather." It was a good point. We have a date for Spring and Mother Nature should keep that date. We have all year long for rain and tornadoes and lightning and thundering why can't she organize her schedule a little better.

I might recommend that my wife take over the duties of Mother Nature. If anybody can organize anything, it's her. Well, she hasn't quite organized me, but that's a different story. But she can organize everything right down to the second.

If there was an opening for a new Mother Nature, I think I would recommend my wife. I'm not sure she would have much competition there, and she would win hands down. Then we would have weather organized on a very strict schedule. Under her supervision, we would have rain when it's scheduled and snow when it's scheduled. The sun would shine, without clouds, at least 90% of the time. I wanted to say 100%, but I'll give her a little leeway in this.

Thinking about this I have come to the conclusion that there are a lot of things in this world and also in my life that I cannot control. The frustration of life is when I try to control things that I can't control. Even though I know I can't control everything, at least I try. And I try to my own failure.

One of my favorite passages of Scripture is, "Trust in the LORD with all thine heart; and lean York. Not New York City, thankfully. One of the not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths" (Proverbs 3:5-6).

> One of the hardest things in my life to do is to simply trust God for everything in my life. When I try to control things in my life, I always make a mess. Just ask the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage.

OBSERVING WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH: TRAILBLAZERS FROM THE PAST

By Joan Schmidt

In 1987, March became Women's History Month. From our sixth grade reading series, I learned of two great women from the past, Katherine Stinson and Laura Bridgeman. Katherine's story begins prior to World War I; she never dreamed she'd be a pilot or of her family's Stinson School of Flying in Texas.

Katherine's goal was to become a great piano teacher. First, she would have go to Europe to study, but that cost a lot of money, and her family was not wealthy. In 1910, possible and low-paying job prospects included secretary, store clerk, and teacher. She'd be ninety years old before she could save enough! One day, she saw an ad for a stunt pilot; pay could be $1000 a day! That was for her, but she'd have to get her parents' permission. Mom was easy, but Dad took a lot of convincing. First hurdle passed. Now she needed a teacher and that was difficult. In 1910 there were only 200 licensed pilots worldwide and only three were women! She contacted Max Lillie of Chicago, who initially refused. (Katherine was only five feet tall and 101 pounds.) But she convinced him.

Katherine performed in shows in the US and broad. She would travel by train and would take her plane apart and put it back together upon arriving at her destination! They loved her in Japan! Katherine broke the world long-distance record by flying the San Diego to San Francisco route over treacherous mountains in southern California and was the first woman to fly mail in the country.

During World War I, Katherine drove ambulances in Europe and developed tuberculosis, which ended her flying career. After she recuperated, she studied architecture, became an award-winning home designer and lived to be eighty-six.

The second woman was Laura Bridgeman. Our reading selection was from The Remarkable Education of Laura Bridgeman by Richard B. Lyttle. Laura was the FIRST deaf/blind person worldwide who was able to be educated. And if it weren't for Laura, perhaps, there may have been no Helen Keller.

Laura was born in December, 1829 in Hanover, New Hampshire. She was weak in her infancy, but by twenty months, was healthy and robust. Six months later, tragedy occurred. She contracted scarlet fever, and within seven weeks, lost her hearing and sight.

Laura was such a cheerful child; a neighboring farmer would take her for walks and into the barn, where he guided her hand to collect the eggs.

At this time, all attempts to teach children both deaf and blind were unsuccessful. But Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe of the Perkins Institution for the Blind in Boston heard of Laura and went to Hanover to see her in fall, 1837. If her parents would consent, he wanted to take her to Perkins.

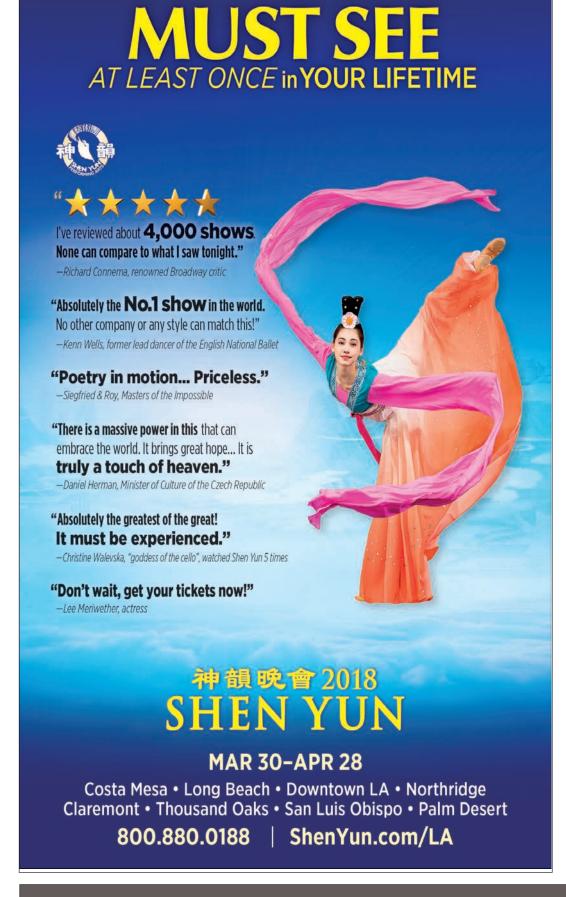

At Perkins, Laura learned the manual alphabet, vocabulary, and then had a formal education of info for our children.

arithmetic, grammar, history and geography. Her teacher and great friend was Mary Swift. However, Mary eventually left and Laura was upset for a while. Then Sarah Wright taught Laura. Sarah permitted Laura to help others. This gave her a purpose in life.

Laura lived out her years in a cottage at Perkins. She maintained a correspondence with former students. She had deep sympathy for anyone suffering physical affliction. She heard of a boy who lost both feet in an accident and raised money among friends to send to him with a letter of encouragement. She passed away at age fifty-nine and was truly an inspiration to many.

Helen Keller was a bright, happy toddler, left blind and deaf after an illness. Her parents were going through a horrific time; she was wild and unruly. Her father and others wanted Helen committed, but her mother said, "I have heard of a girl, blind and deaf like Helen at Perkins Institution but was able to be educated. I will write to Dr. Howe and see if Helen can be helped." Of course everyone knows Helen's remarkable story, how she overcame her handicaps and inspired so many. What if Helen's mother had not read about Laura Bridgeman?

Thirty years ago, when we read of these ladies, I had limited access to Internet. PLEASE go on line and type in their names. Today, the photos and information are mind-boggling. Great reading and

How a Forbidden Religion Swept the World by Bart D. Ehrman

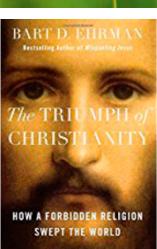

From the bestselling authority on early Christianity, the story of how Christianity grew from a religion of twenty or so peasants in rural Galilee to the dominant religion in the West in less than four hundred years.Christianity didn't have to become the dominant religion in the West. It easily could have remained a sect of Judaism fated to have the historical importance of the Sadducees or the Essenes. In The Triumph of Christianity, Bart Ehrman, a master explainer of Christian history, texts, and traditions, shows how a religion whose first believers were twenty or so illiterate day laborers in a remote part of the empire became the official religion of Rome, converting some thirty million people in just four centuries. The book combines deep knowledge and meticulous research in an eye-opening, immensely readable narrative that upends the way we think about the single most important cultural transformation our world has ever seen—one that revolutionized art, music, literature, philosophy, ethics, economics, and

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

HOW TO LEAVE ASSETS TO ADULT CHILDREN

When considering how to leave assets to adult children, the first step is to decide how much each one should receive. Most parents want to treat their children fairly, but this doesn't necessarily mean they should receive equal shares of your estate. For example, it may be desirable to give more to a child who is a teacher than to one who is the CEO of a successful business, or to "compensate" the child who has been your primary caregiver.

Some parents worry about leaving too much money to their children. They want their children to have enough to do whatever they wish, but not so much that they will be lazy and unproductive. So, instead of giving everything to their children, some parents leave inheritances for grandchildren and future generations through a trust, and/ or make a generous charitable contribution.

Inheritance Planning: Options

When deciding how or when adult children are to receive their inheritances, consider these options:

Option 1: Give Some Now

Those who can afford to give their children or grandchildren some of their inheritance now will experience the joy of seeing the results. Money given now can help a child buy a house, start a business, be a stayat-home parent, or send the grandchildren to college-milestones that may not have happened without this help. It also provides insight into how a child might handle a larger inheritance.

Option 2: Lump Sum

If the children are responsible adults, a lump sum distribution may seem like a good choice--especially if they are older and may not have as many years left to enjoy the inheritance. However, once a beneficiary has possession of the assets, he or she could lose them to creditors, a lawsuit, or a divorce settlement. Even a current spouse would have access to assets that are placed in a joint account or if the information.

recipient adds the spouse as a co-owner. For parents who are concerned that a son- or daughter-in law could end up with their assets, or that a creditor could seize them, or that a child might spend irresponsibly, a lump sum distribution may not be the right choice.

Option 3: Installments

Many parents like to give their children more than one opportunity to invest or use the inheritance wisely, which doesn't always happen the first time around. Installments can be made at certain intervals (say, one-third upon the parent's death, one-third five years later, and the final third five years after that) or when the heir reaches certain ages (say, age 25, age 30 and age 35). In either case, it is important to review the instructions from time to time and make changes as needed. For example, if the parent lives a very long time, the children's life expectancy may not be long enough to receive the full inheritance--or, they may have passed the distribution ages and, by default, will receive the entire inheritance in a lump sum.

Keep in mind that pushing assets out of a trust in installments leaves those assets vulnerable to the problems mentioned above in the "lump sum" option. Assets can be lost in divorce, seized in lawsuits, or spent foolishly. Some parents are also concerned lump sum or installment gifts will fuel an addiction.

Option 4: Keep Assets in a Trust

Assets can be kept in a trust and provide for children and grandchildren, but not actually be given to them. Assets that remain in a trust are protected from a beneficiary's creditors, lawsuits, irresponsible spending, and ex- and current spouses. The trust can provide for a special needs dependent, or a child who might become incapacitated later, without jeopardizing valuable government benefits. If a child needs some incentive to earn a living, the trust can match the income he/she earns. (Be sure to allow for the possibility that this child might become unable to work or retires.) If a child is financially secure, assets can be kept in a trust for grandchildren and future generations, yet still provide a safety net should this child's financial situation change. This is our preferred method of inheritance planning as it's a win/win for all. Assets are protected yet square miles, a study published Thursday finds. That's twice the size of Texas. Winds and converging ocean currents funnel the garbage into a central location. First discovered in the early 1990s, Lebreton said the trash in the patch comes from countries around the Pacific Rim, including nations in Asia as well as North and South America. The patch is not a solid mass of plastic. It includes some 1.8 trillion pieces of plastic and weighs 88,000 tons. The new figures are as much as 16 times higher than previous estimates. Much of the garbage is rather large. "We were surprised by the amount of large plastic objects we encountered," said Julia Reisser, also of the foundation. "We used to think most of the debris consists of small fragments, but this new analysis shines a new light on the scope of the debris."The study was based on a three-year mapping effort conducted by an international team of scientists

THE WORLD'S LARGEST COLLECTION OF OCEAN GARBAGE IS GROWING.

The Great Pacific Garbage Patch, a collection of affiliated with the Ocean Cleanup Foundation, six plastic, floating trash located halfway between Hawaii universities and an aerial sensor company.Our trash and California, has grown to more than 600,000 is harming the deepest fish in the ocean. Humans have produced 18.2 trillion pounds of plastic since the 50s. That's equal in size to 1 billion elephants. Sadly, the Pacific patch isn't alone. The Pacific Garbage Patch is the largest of five known such trash collections in the ocean, Lebreton said. Scientists are working with the European Space Agency to take photos of the various garbage patches from space. With no governments stepping up to clean up the trash in the world's oceans, which are in international waters, it's up to privately funded groups like the Ocean Cleanup Foundation to take the lead on getting rid of the garbage. "It's a ticking time bomb of larger material," Dubois said. "We've got to get it before it breaks down into a size that's too small to collect and also dangerous for marine life.""How long plastic may remain in the ocean is a big unknown, but unless we begin to remove it, some would say it may remain there forever," Lebreton said.

THE LATEST FASHIONS & RELATIONSHIP MARKETING

What do the latest fashion crazes have in common with interaction and long-term engagement. popular business jargon? As I watch reruns of television shows that were popular during my childhood, I'm amazed at how many of the hairstyles and clothing have been repeatedly introduced as one of the new looks in a plethora of magazines and blogs specializing in fashion. Loosely referred to as retro or vintage fashion, it is nothing more than a return to a look from the past that has been revamped and reintroduced as the latest and greatest thing to wear. After all, there are only so many ways to reconstruct trousers, tops, hats, dresses and undergarments.

Sometimes the remake is actually an improvement due to advances in technology, for example when fabrics that retained their colors after being washed were introduced, or when an entirely new branch of fabrics was launched with the introduction of polyester in 1951. The latter was indeed a revolution, providing clothing designers with the ability to create water-resistant raincoats and wrinkle-free fashions never before possible.

In similar fashion (pun intended), the world of business is filled with the introduction of new terms and concepts in research reports, news articles and online. Just like fashion, most of the fanfare surrounding the introduction of the latest trend serves as a distraction to the fact that the "new" item is nothing more than a remake of something that was in use more than fifty years ago.

"Relationship marketing" is a term that has received attention in business periodicals and articles since the late 1990's, and it is has now made a comeback as the new kid on the block to many readers. The term was initially defined as a type of marketing created from direct response campaigns that emphasized retaining and satisfying customers as opposed to a primary focus on generating sales transactions. A new and improved meaning has expanded beyond the original definition to encompass the adoption of a strategy that facilitates customer loyalty,

These definitions are nothing more than a superfluous reference to excellent customer service, before, during and after a transaction. Good old-fashioned business etiquette is the framework within which relationship marketing operates. It begins with good manners and the development of a personal connection with each customer, including those online. Relationship marketing must move beyond the adoption of key words in a company's mission statement and become the reality of a company's practice.

An article in the January-February 1998 issue of the Harvard Business Review noted, "Relationship marketing is powerful in theory but troubled in practice." Consider the pervasive use of special introductory discounts that credit card companies or cable television companies offer to first-time customers, which completely ignoring customers who have spent thousands of dollars with them over many years. What does that type of business practice say about how those companies value relationships with its existing

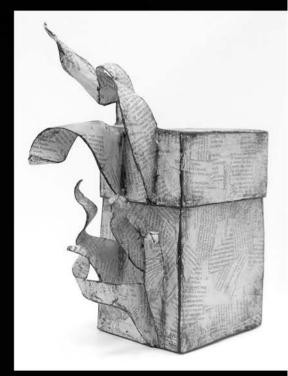

An online April 1, 2013 Forbes article by Steve Olenski about business-to-business marketing (B2B) referenced a 2012 quote by a chief marketing officer who was speaking about the upcoming year, "We will see the beginning of what I refer to as 'the relationship' whereby marketers will move away from an acquisition first mentality to a relationship first one. Marketers will focus more on the entire consumer experience to build and foster a long term relationship with a consumer as opposed to just that initial purchase phase?

News alert! We've seen these characteristics on the runway before, and we're elated that the experts are touting them as the latest fashions. We can only hope that relationship marketing will take hold as more than a passing fad.

IS DEVIN NUNES JUST DANGEROUS, OR IS HE DIRTY AS WELL?

Rep. Devin Nunes (R-CA), the unintelligent chair of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, continues to pose a clear and present danger to America.

Nunes babbles on, divulging delicate information and claiming there is no evidence to support a Russian plot to influence the 2016 presidential election and this American public opinion in general. This despite every intelligence agency, the Justice Department, and the FBI concluding that Russian interference occurred and is likely taking place right now with the intention of disrupting this November's election.

Nunes's ongoing leaks of private communications and top secret intel continue with the tacit approval of his patron saints in the House, Speaker Paul Ryan and Majority Leader Kevin McCarthy (R-CA). The same Kevin McCarthy who famously claimed during the 2016 campaign "There's only two people I think Putin pays: Rohrabacher and Trump." He was referring, of course, to the president; and his Republican colleague, Rep. Dana Rohrabacher (R-CA), known as "the Kremlin's favorite Congressman."

But what of Dangerous Devin? Why is he so insistent that corruption runs rampant in our intelligence, law enforcement, and justice communities? Nunes obfuscates and obstructs investigations into Russian meddling whenever possible. What's he hiding? Appearances may be deceiving, but they're not as deceptive as Nunes appears to be.

Nunes recently told Fox News, "The left controls not only the universities in this country, but they also control Hollywood in this country, and the mainstream media, so conservatives in this country are under attack... they attack people who are trying to get to the truth."

Rep. Nunes can't handle the truth. If there are a few good men in Washington, he isn't one

When lambasting "universities," is the congressman referring to hotbeds of liberalism like the community college from which he received an associate's degree and upon whose board he once served? Message to Devin regarding "leftist" news organizations: Richer-than-Midas conservative kingmaker Rupert Murdoch busted his butt to make Fox broadcasting and Fox News a part of the "mainstream media." If anyone is attacking people who are attempting to uncover the truth, it's Nunes. His late-night sojourn to the White House to review highly-classified information without the knowledge of his committee, last year, was problematic enough that it invited a congressional ethics investigation into his behavior. How did Nunes gain admission to view those documents? He was let in the back door by

White House National Security Council staffers Michael Ellis, who once worked for Nunes, and Ezra Cohen-Watnick, who previously served alongside Michael ("Lock him up!") Flynn at the Defense Intelligence Agency. Nunes's covert operation ultimately led to Cohen-Watnick being reassigned and eventually terminated. Cohen-Watnick then landed a cushy job, in Silicon Valley, at Oracle. After joining the company, he cruised around the executive offices and collected a little bundle of campaign contributions from five Oracle execs totaling $35,000. Take a guess who that was for.

The Daily Beast has reported on Nunes's influence over legislation involving government surveillance law which could conceivably have a positive impact on Oracle's cybersecurity business and government contracts. Pure coincidence.

According to multiple media outlets, Nunes's latest subterfuge is his alleged release of private text messages between Sen. Mark Warner (D-VA), the ranking member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, and a lawyer who purportedly has ties to a Russian oligarch. These messages related to setting up an interview as part of the committee's investigation into Russian meddling. To Nunes, however, they were just more evidence of a Deep State

While Rep. Devin Nunes may not represent your congressional district, his role as chair of the House Intelligence Committee and his questionable behavior when it comes to Russia should be of great concern to every American. If your congressional representative has been party to his shenanigans, the best you can ask for is that, henceforth, they steer clear of dangerous - possibly dirty - Devin Nunes. Send them an email, pick up the phone and call. Just do it. Your country is depending on you.

SIERRA MADRE UTILITY TAX -NO ON PROPOSITION D

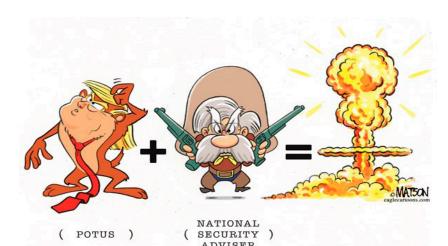

On April 10, 2018 we vote whether to preserve the Utility Tax against Proposition D which appears to have been placed on the ballot by outsiders who will not have to pay the price with only nominal local support.

I don't like paying taxes any more than anyone else, but at the same time I have read the official argument for Prop. D and I simply cannot figure out how it would leave the City able to fund the present level of modest expenditures. It is a truth we accept when we move here that we do not have the tax bases of other nearby communities and will need to do more for ourselves.

I have lived here since 1989. I can remember when Sierra Madre was so broke that when the City had to replace a police car we had to buy one used that another city was discarding. I can remember when the mechanic who serviced our fire trucks went unpaid for months and appeared before the Council begging for his bill to be paid. Things are no longer as desperate as that, but yet only a few years ago did we finally get our street resurfaced, which had needed it for years, and I look around and see that there are many other streets that equally need to be resurfaced and perhaps their water mains replaced.

Every house in the City is valued in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. In my opinion, that is an investment worth protecting. A modicum of public services, a library that we can be proud of, parks that I am happy to entertain my grandchildren at, streets that look like they are not in a slum, reasonable fire, paramedic and police protection, pay considerable dividends in the value of our property as part of being in a desirable community. The the loss of these expenditures would promptly cost us dearly far beyond any alleged "savings". Think of "saving" money by firing your gardener and letting the yard go, and wondering why your property value is down.

PETER FUNT

WITH TRUMP, THE JOKE'S OVER

All kidding aside: Donald Trump is no longer funny.

Entertainers, writers, social observers - myself included have relished taking shots at the president. And why not? Jokes about Trump are the lowest-hanging fruits in comedy.

But recently we have begun to hear politicians and pundits say, "This is different." The White House is in chaos and the jokes are falling flat. Maybe it's time to knock it off.

Throughout 2017 I included about 10 minutes of Trump material in my live stage show. As soon as I flashed a giant photo of his orange hair caught in a gust of wind, audiences burst into laughter. When I showed a clip of Trump's guest appearance on "Candid Camera" from back in the 1990s in which he ruined every scene by stumbling over his own ego, the crowd ate it up. I've taken it all out because I no longer have the stomach for it. Moreover, jokes about Trump now seem tired, even passe.

Looking back over presidential comedy, a benchmark came in 1962 when a littleknown performer named Vaughn Meader spoofed John F. Kennedy in an album titled "The First Family." It was mild stuff, kidding JFK about his "rubber ducky" and mocking his pronounced Boston accent, yet it sold an incredible 7 million copies. Every president since has been lampooned - from Chevy Chase's bumbling Gerald Ford to Will Ferrell's malaprop-prone George W. Bush.

But, except for some dark Nixon humor, notably by the comedian David Frye, modern presidents have generally been mocked with a gentle wink, not a snarl.

Trump is different and fatigue is setting in. Comedy Central is practically an all-Trump channel; "Saturday Night Live" dutifully trots out Alec Baldwin in the role, but increasingly the script isn't as funny as whatever Trump actually said that week. Stephen Colbert's nightly anti-Trump rants on CBS are becoming strained. Remember, it was Colbert's boss, Leslie Moonves, who famously said in 2016 that Trump's campaign "may not be good for America, but it's damn good for CBS."

Has it finally reached a tipping point, where Trump's presidency is too damaging to Comedians who fantasize that they are doing some kind of public service by going after Trump are kidding themselves. He loves it. He even tweeted that NBC should dump Baldwin and give the Trump role to Darrell Hammond. Face it: Trump relishes being the center of attention, even bad attention.

What's needed is a Trump Comedy Freeze, and a good place to begin would be the White House Correspondents' Association dinner on April 28. Trump skipped the event last year and has not said if he plans to attend this time.

This year's roastmaster is Michelle Wolf of Comedy Central, who once observed that Trump "shouldn't even be president of lunch meat" and that he's "the worst thing to happen to women since yeast." She has already pledged that she won't hold back at Nerd Prom, as the correspondents' dinner is known, whether Trump attends or not.

But why not hold back? Not out of fear but as a show of strength. Imagine Trump's surprise, whether sitting on the dais or watching from bed in the Executive Residence, if his name is never mentioned all night.

The Gridiron Club's anniversary dinner earlier this month proved conclusively that making jokes about Trump and allowing him to joke back about the media he hates has reached new heights on the cringe meter. Trump jokes are now in the same category as jokes about Bill Cosby or Harvey Weinstein - or at least they should be because Trump has jumped the shark.

At some point, even a comical president is no longer a laughing matter.

FAKE STORM

So now it's collusion with Stormy Daniels?

The obsession by some in the media with the affair that Donald Trump allegedly had with a porn star 12 years ago shows how desperate his haters are to drive him from office.

For the anti-Trump forces in the media, Stormy has become the Joan of Arc that will bring down the president who was elected in large part because everyone hated Hillary.

But don't bet on it.

I have no idea - and don't really want to know - what Stormy did to become "an award winning American pornographic actress, stripper, political figure, screenwriter and director," as Wikipedia describes her. Stormy is now 39 and not the porn star she used to be. Maybe she's launching a whole new career - going on "60 Minutes" and tattling on the famous people she had sex with. I have no idea if she and Mr. Trump had a tempestuous affair, a one-night fling, or if they innocently shared a round of golf and split a case of Diet Coke.

I also don't care. It was 2006. Whatever it was, the Story-Trump deal was a private and consensual relationship. The liberal media shouldn't care about Stormy's relationship with Trump, either, but they are drooling over her sex story and trying to weaponize her.

Is her story real news or fake? If it's true, so what? It was 2006. Does it disqualify Trump from being a good president or just prove he's a lousy husband?

For Republicans, does it wash away the successes he's had in office - tax reform, lower unemployment, deregulation, potential peace deals with North Korea? I get tweets from people all the time who ask, "How can you support someone disgusting like Trump who was having all that sex and being unfaithful to his wife? People tell me I'm disgracing my father's name with my support for Donald Trump.

Wait a minute," I say. "I don't approve of what Trump may or may not have done with Stormy or anyone else when he was married. But I also don't think it's anyone's business."

On that score, I agree with my father. In 1960 he knew the Republican National Committee and Richard Nixon were in possession of photos that showed the very married John Kennedy entering and leaving various hotels with young women who were not named Jackie.

When Nancy, my sister Maureen and I asked my father at dinner if the Republicans were going to use the photos to help Nixon win, he said, "No - and they shouldn't."

"It's a private affair between a man and his wife," he said. "It's not a public affair, and it should not be made public." My father knew that JFK's busy career as a philandering senator had nothing to do with whether he'd make a good or bad president. Likewise, what Donald Trump did with Stormy Daniels in 2006 says nothing about his presidency. It says more about how our society has changed since the 1960s. Back then, when it came to sex, Jack and Bobby Kennedy were as professional as Stormy Daniels - and almost everyone in Washington, Manhattan and Hollywood and the media knew

But back then people were allowed to have a less-than-perfect private life - even if they were from the other party.

Today it's totally different.

Because of social media, there's no such thing as privacy anymore.

Mainstream journalism has adopted the standards of the National Inquirer and when it comes to politicians, movie stars and athletes, the public has come to expect to hear the latest private dirt on them all the time. People didn't stop liking Frank Sinatra's music when they heard about the things he did in his private life. Nobody cared about what NBA superstars Kobe Bryant or Magic Johnson did in private as long as they performed on the court. So when it comes to President Trump, maybe we should count the scoring he's been doing in Washington - not the kind he did in private before he was elected president.

RE-ELECT Rachelle Arizmendi

to the Sierra Madre City Council

As a Council Member and your current Mayor, it has been my honor to serve you for the last four years.

I have worked with my City Council colleagues to:

- Balance the city budget and reduce total annual expenses by $1M
- Restore full Police Department staffing
- Establish a professional Fire Department
- Hire a new City Manager
- Reduce water loss by investing in water infrastructure

As a Sierra Madre homeowner, I know that overdevelopment can ruin the quality of life in a neighborhood.

Sierra Madre's unique small town character and charm brought many of us here to stay.

Let's Keep Sierra Madre Great!

Rachelle Arizmendi was first elected to the Sierra Madre City Council in 2014 and currently serves as the Mayor of the City of Sierra Madre.

In 2017, Rachelle was appointed by California's Governor to serve on the State's Board of Food and Agriculture. She also serves on several Boards including the California League of Cities and Foothill Workforce Development Policy. Rachelle is a Governor Appointee to the Interagency Council on Early Intervention and is an Advisory Member of the South Coast AQMD Local Government & Small Business Advisory Group.

Rachelle is the Vice President & Chief Operating Officer of PACE (Pacific Asian Consortium in Employment). PACE is a non-profit community development organization that serves over 40,000 people every year in the areas of job training and employment, business development, early education, asset building, energy, and weatherization. She oversees a budget of $25M and a staff of 300 employees. In her previous capacity, she held the position of Education Project Director for 16 years. She was also the Executive Director for 2-1-1- California (an affiliate of the United Ways of California).

"I am committed to maintaining a beautiful, safe place where individuals, seniors and families can flourish." - Rachelle Arizmendi
