VOTE NO ON MEASURE D

By City Councilman and Former Mayor, John Harabedian

One of the most fascinating developments in politics in recent history was the emergence of the Rent Is Too Damn High Party in New York city in 2005. The Party's platform was selfevident, and it gained attention because it was both humorous and undeniably true. Rent in New York city was and still is too high. But the Rent Is Too Damn High Party did nothing to solve the problem it was seeking to addressin fact, the problem has only become worse because it failed to address the complex issues underlying the problem it allegedly sought to fix or, more importantly, develop any empirically tested, fact-based solutions. The Party quickly became a punchline, and remains on the fringe somewhere between reality and fantasy.

The TeaPac – which is essentially the "Pensions Are Too Damn High Party" - and its latest attempt through Measure D is shockingly similar, and should be similarly discarded.

No one can deny that we would all love to be taxed less. And no one knowledgeable about state and local government in California can deny that pension liabilities will continue to be a serious ongoing problem that will require innovative solutions. Sierra Madre is not immune to this - although our pension liability is largely funded (75%) and relatively small compared to other cities ($10.7 million), we will continue to devote a material amount of our general fund to paying it and other post-employment benefits for our retired employees. This is not news: pensions are deferred compensation that employees are rightfully and contractually owed, and we as a City have and will continue to honor our obligations.

But the proponents of Measure D would have you think that Sierra Madre's pension liability is a run-away train, that the City is ill-equipped to deal with it (which is evident by the exorb salaries it pays its current employees), and that the only way to solve the problem is to repeal the Utility User's Tax, stripping $2.6 million from our General Fund. This is the synopsis of their "Taxpayer Gazette" that was strewn across our sidewalks and doorsteps and their arguments in the ballot statements. Of course, the first two assertions are patently untrue.

First, as stated above, our pension liability is managed properly and aggressively. Second, our employees are paid less than any of our peer cities and continue to receive belowmarket salaries. Just compare the salaries of our top managers with those in a city like La Canada Flintridge, which does not even operate its own Police and Fire Departments. What's more, nearly a third of the positions the TeaPac lists in its ballot statements and website have been eliminated or remain unfilled. In other words, the City is spending $0 on them. Thus, the TeaPac's assertions are baseless, just like their assertion that Sierra Madre's expenditures grew by 46% from 2006 to 2016. In reality, on an absolute basis, total expenditures increased by less than 1%. When adjusted for inflation, expenditures actually decreased by more than $2.6 million, or approximately 10%

Putting all of that aside, if there were such a problem to fix, Measure D would not be the solution. Indeed, it would only exacerbate the supposed problem that the TeaPac is trying to cure. It is illogical to think that slashing Sierra Madre's general fund to the point where disincorporation or bankruptcy would occur would somehow resolve our supposed budget issues, including our pension liability.

At a time when Sierra Madre continues to operate fiscally responsibly, we should be endeavoring to find elegant solutions to real problems, not wasting our time debating chaotic and half-baked proposals like Measure If the proposition is that the pensions are too damn high, then you have a receptive audience, including me.

Let's continue crafting real solutions to that problem after Measure D comes and goes like its failed predecessors before it, both near and

SIERRA MADRE BOMBARDED WITH OUTSIDE PROPAGANDA

Sierra Madre is truly an All-American city. Safe anonymous, listing themselves as "Little Bird, neighborhoods, good schools, a good police and contributor". fire department, an independent, very close, tight knit community. It is also a community with diverse opinions politically united by one mission, protecting the sanctity of the city. Differences of opinion regarding methodology on exactly how to Pigs for their ideas? Why are we being attacked?" achieve that exist, but the town remains united on keeping Sierra Madre as it is.

So, when "The Taxpayer Gazette" appeared on the doorsteps of residents earlier in the week with a rather provocative headline, "The Empire Strikes Back!", the initial response from some residents was shock, disapproval and outrage because no Sierra Madre resident's name was associated with it. Several residents wanted to see what the As referenced in John Harabedian's article, much 'gazette' was all about. It became crystal clear after reading the first few lines that it was a piece written in support of Measure D, a ballot measure calling for the repeal of the city's Utility Users Tax.

When the question was asked who printed the Gazette that is supporting the measure, the answer is, not one identifiable resident or business owner in Sierra Madre. Turns out, Michael T. Alexander. is the primary author. Alexander is the President of the California Tax Limitation Committee, and according to his own statement a few years ago, he does not and never has lived in Sierra Madre. The only other 'author' noted in the 'gazette' is of the information in the 'Gazette' is misleading and/or outdated. The city has actually performed better than expectations since 2016 streamlining staff efficiency, fully funding the city's Police and Fire Departments and much more.

One resident who contacted the Mountain Views News said, "Who are these people? Do they live here? Why are they using Sierra Madre as Guinea

Another resident who is actually an anti-tax person in general, indicated that the Gazette helped change his vote. He was inclined to vote yes but after receiving the 'Gazette' he said he sent in his ballot with a No vote. His reason, "....these people need to MYOB and leave us alone". (MYOB = Mind Your Own Business).

One thing that became very clear, residents of Sierra Madre want to make their own decisions, fight their own battles among themselves and resent being subjected to the influence of outside entities for the sake of outside agendas. "Perhaps the Empire needs to Go Back", piped up one upset resident. Clearly, the Empire isn't welcome here.

"I'm in a good place right now. No, not emotionally, I'm at the craft store!"

Have you been in to Craft yet? It's at 49 W. Sierra Madre Blvd and it's full of inspiration and all the ingredients you need to start something new in your life. For instance: Calligraphy - have you ever wished you could create your own awesome style of modern calligraphy? There's a class on April 15th to teach you all you need to know to get started. Three hours will teach you how to use that strange pen to create beautiful letters. You'll get an introduction to the tools, the basic practice strokes and next thing you know you'll be putting it all together to form letters and then develop your own personal style. Think of the exquisite cards you could create!

Craft opened their doors during the Wistaria Festival just a couple of weeks ago and owner, Arianna Reel, could not be happier. With her art background and years of being a restaurant consultant, she was ready to jump back into the world of crafts, creating and teaching others how to make the things which feed the soul. Arianna has been hosting pop-ups, many specializing in skin care, participating in street fairs throughout the Los Angeles area, and she was here for our Christmas Winter Village Festival; all of which helped her to realize the time was right to set her dream in motion. Craft is Arianna's 40th birthday present to herself. She and husband, Mike Cook he's involved in TV and film - live here in Sierra Madre with their son, Ian, who is a student at Sierra Madre Elementary. In the front window are colorful skeins of oversized merino wool. With the right sized knitting needles or crochet hook, you could create a king-sized afghan in no time at all! Arianna is ready to help you in just about any craft you can imagine: yarn work, printing, embroidery. She also has a consignment area for local artists and artisans to display and sell their work. The day I stopped in there were some excellent pottery pieces, paintings, purses, baby products and some really charming little glass hanging terrariums for succulents and air ferns. # Police Still Looking for Bomber

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is still looking for the individual, over a year later, believed to be responsible for an explosion at The Cheesecake Factory on Colorado Blvd.. in Pasadena

Agents turned to twitter Thursday releasing photos of the 6 foot tall man with dark hair with a beard waking down an aisle at a nearby Ralph's. Police said he discarded a jacket in a trash can outside the market.

Reports of newly released surveillance video shows the suspect walking blocks away into the Parson's parking lot and then walking back towards The Cheesecake Factory.

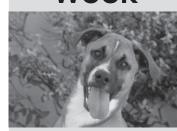

Authorities say they want the man caught so he does not try and do the same thing, possibly at a larger, more crowed, event.

According to Police Lt. Art Chute, at the time last year, officers responded shortly after 6 p.m. February 2, 2017 to the Cheesecake Factory located at 2 West Colorado Blvd. Witnesses said a man opened the front doors, lit and threw a round object inside landing near the bar area. Some witness said the object landed under a table, exploded, and then poured heavy smoke.

Police Lt. Vasken Gourdikian, Friday called the object a "glorified firecracker" saying the situation was most likely a prank. Pasadena Mayor Terry Tornek also told reporters the object was more like a firecracker than a bomb.

Police Officers Cleared in Death of Reginald Thomas

The Justice System Integrity Division of the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office (LACDAO) has completed its review of the September 30, 2016 incustody death of Reginald Thomas and has concluded Pasadena Department Officers used reasonable force in subduing Thomas. No further action will be taken by the District Attorney's Office.

"We want to thank the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office for their comprehensive work and for their commitment to finding the truth in this matter," said City Manager Steve Mermell. ""The loss of Reginald Thomas' life is tragic but the District Attorney's review concludes that the responding Pasadena Police Officers acted within reason and their use of force was lawful."

The LACDAO conclusions were based on investigative reports, witness statements, recordings, audio photographs, video, 9-1-1 recordings and the autopsy report generated by the Los Angeles County Coroner. It also included a review of the compelled witness statements of all of the Pasadena Police Officers who were a part of the incident.

The memorandum issued to the City by the District Attorney's Office, reveals "that the officers began by simply asking Thomas to drop his weapons and allow them to enter the residence.

Thomas refused and began actively and physically officers' resisting the lawful efforts. The officers resorted to more forcible measures only after other means, including the Taser, proved ineffective. Their escalation of force was in direct response to Thomas' escalating resistance. Further, the Taser deployments and baton strikes, manual strikes, kicks and restraint methods were a reasonable response to Thomas' escalating and continued resistance."

The Coroner's examination of Thomas concluded that the manner of death was undetermined, but the District Attorney's Office concluded that "all the force used by the officers appears to have been reasonable under the circumstances. Thus, even if the officers' use of force contributed to Thomas' death, their use of force was not unlawful."

The District Attorney's office will be making a public version of their memo available on their website at a

"I felt pretty confident going into the test, but also a bit nervous," shared Arcadia High senior Ryan Leung. "It was pretty exhilarating to get my test results back. I definitely had not been expecting to get a perfect score on the exam, and I never imagined that I'd be able to pull off something like this."

According to the College Board's AP Exam Program Summary Report, over 4.9 million AP exams were taken in 2017, and of those exams, only 511 students worldwide earned perfect scores.

"I am unbelievably proud of Ryan," expressed Arcadia High School Principal Dr. Brent Forsee. "Achievements like this also highlight the amazing work our teachers, counselors, and staff do to support our students' pursuit of studying and School District, please visit www.ausd.net.

What's next for Leung? "I'm definitely planning on pursuing a career in computer science in the future," confirmed Leung. "I'm still deciding on whether or not I want to focus on a particular subfield of the industry. I'm leaning towards software engineering at the moment, although I have also considered working on artificial intelligence due to its recent rising popularity."

Further investigation revealed the owner of the wallet was a victim of a robbery that had occurred around 2:30 a.m. The victim and his girlfriend were seated in his car when he was approached by the suspect armed with a black handgun. The suspect opened the unlocked door of the victim's vehicle and demanded cash. The victim handed his wallet to the suspect and the suspect fled into a blue vehicle. The suspect was described as a male Black, approximately 5 feet 9 inches tall and 140 pounds, wearing a black hooded sweatshirt with dark colored pants.

Just before 5:00 p.m., an officer responded to Sephora, 400 South Baldwin Avenue, regarding a female being detained for shoplifting. A loss prevention specialist witnessed the suspect conceal 15 items (over $400.00 in value) in her purse before exiting the store, failing to make payment. The 22-year-old female from Los Angeles was cited and released

we know she is happy. We give her lots of love and attention, we take her out for a daily walk, we play with her around the house and yard and we make sure she gets to the vet for her annual check ups. It gives us much pleasure to know that our Molly is happy and

Our pets give us so much in terms of entertainment, fur therapy and relentless love. I just want to give back to them at least as much as they give to us. I also believe it is my responsibility to be a good steward of is equal to the calories of half a hamburger, and one God's creatures, particularly those I invite into my life, whether it be my own pet or those whom my clients

There is nothing at all wrong with wanting to please our pets, however I do wonder if it is possible to well - kill them with kindness. By this I mean do we sometimes allow them to have more than they actually need? For example, we have a cookie jar in our home, decorated with dog bones all over the outside. It sits atop our kitchen counter. That's where we keep all the canine cookies and other tasty treats for Molly to enjoy, now and then. The problem is, the times we are tempted to give her treats is more often NOW than Pet obesity in America is on the rise and has been for several years. Did you know that there is actually an organization focused specifically on researching the blight of pet obesity in America? The Association for Pet Obesity Prevention conducts an annual survey to analyze the percentage of pets that are considered clinically obese in America, and the most recent study showed that a whopping 54% of dogs and cats in the US are overweight.

I'm sure most pet owners don't intentionally fatten up their furry friends, and I totally understand how tempting it is to hand out goodies to our darling dogs and kitties when the notion arises, but let's face it folks, food is not the only way to show our pets how much we love them. It's time we start reigning it in when it comes to feeding our pets as a way of showing them our affection. In fact, it seems we are on the verge of loving our pets nearly to death.

Animals are a lot like humans in terms of how obesity effects their health. The difference is, we humans are the ones in charge of what goes on the plate or in the bowl. Our pets have to rely on us to do daily diet and regulating their rations.

I realized how important it is to be careful in selecting the quality and quantity of food I feed my dog while reading an article in the waiting room at my vet's office. The article compared the affects of certain foods on animals versus human beings. It listed cookies, cheese, hot dogs, hamburgers - items that one might be tempted to share with their pet during a casual summer meal. It showed the caloric equivalent for a dog eating those items compared to the human. The results were mind-boggling and devastating to the health of a dog or cat.

For example, a chocolate chip cookie falls to the floor and gets gobbled up within seconds by your beloved beastly buddy, right? Well, if an average healthy human had eaten that cookie it would have

My husband and I love our dog and we're happy when rendered a reasonable amount of calories that could be easily burned. However, the caloric value and physical affect of a single cookie consumed by a canine, for him translates to the relative equivalent of eating an entire

> The article also showed the compared caloric value of a one ounce chunk of cheddar cheese, which to the human is a bit much but not a real big deal. But to a dog that chunk of cheese becomes equivalent to the caloric value of 1 ½ hamburgers. For a cat, a single potato chip cup of whole milk equals three entire burgers for your beloved feline friend.

> When we think about it this way, we begin to see how important it is to limit the types and amounts of foods we feed our pets. Their little bodies are simply not designed to process the variety and the amount of food we are accustomed to consuming. And if you don't mind me saying, it wouldn't hurt us to back off a bit on the binging ourselves!

> The "Treat Translator" article I read was meant to encourage us modern day animal lovers to resist feeding our pets fattening "people food", which is definitely a valuable message, but we should also be careful about how much pet food we give them. Some animals are pretty good about not eating more than they need, while others will devour every bit you put out for them. It is up to us to control their daily caloric

> In addition to a dog's diet, exercise also plays a very important role in keeping him or her happy and healthy. It goes without saying that physical activity is essential, and dogs are not much different from us when it comes to maintaining our cardio-vascular systems and burning access calories. For this reason, a daily walk is very important for our canine companions.

> Another reason why it is important for a dog to get regular walks, is so they can sniff around outdoors. The dog's olfactory system is a key stimulator for their mental and metabolic systems, so by allowing them to sniff about the neighborhood you are helping them "take care of business". There are other factors involved with keeping your dog in good health, but a daily walk is definitely a major factor.

We all like to think we are perfect pet owners, but let's not forget that food should not be the way we show love and affection to our furry four-legged the right thing by making healthy choices for their friends. We should focus more on giving them positive verbal reinforcement, grooming & massage therapy, loads of cuddling, daily walks & play time, and less on giving them treats, if we want them to live long, happy, healthy lives.

Yogic Wisdom for Everyday Life CHILD'S POSE

Child's pose, or the best poses in yoga. It's a forward fold that stretches the lower back, improves digestion, and encourages withdrawal of the senses (Pratyahara).

Because it is such a useful pose, it's important to know how to get comfortable in it. To begin, come onto all fours -- hands and knees. Inhale deeply and, as you exhale, lie your forearms down as you bring your bum back toward your heels. Your chest moves on top of thighs. This action requires deep flexion in the hips, knee flexion, and plantar flexion of the ankle and foot. It's common for the upper back to be tight and rounded. Arms can stay outstretched in front or you can bring them alongside your body, resting on the top of the forearms and flipping the palms face up. Ideally, the forehead is resting on the floor. It is meant to be relaxing. To assist with comfort in this pose, here are a few modifications that can make ALL the difference:

1. If your seat does not rest comfortably on your heels, place a folded blanket on the tops of your calves as an extra cushion between backs of thighs and calves.

2. To provide more space and comfort for the belly, bring big toes together in the back and spread the knees

3. If your forehead does not rest completely on the floor, place a blanket or block underneath your forehead in an effort raise the floor up to meet your

4. Try a variation. An alternate to the classic forward fold is reverse child's pose-apanasana, or knees to chest. Come to lie on your back and simply bring knees to chest. Hug the arms around the knees. You still get all the great benefits of the pose: improved digestion, grounding, and nice, safe stretch for the lower back.

5. Supported child's pose is lovely. Place a bolster underneath the chest and belly. Come to sit on your heels and lay your chest onto the bolster. Look left and rest on the right side of your face, after several breaths, Enjoy child's pose as a restful, calming forward fold. It's a pose of letting go, surrender, and conscious resting. It's the GO-TO for resting in a yoga class. Breathe steadily and freely in whatever modification you choose. Make sure to find comfort and what works for your individual body.

SPEAK THE TRUTH WITH LOVE

What would it take for you to speak the truth with love? As one of the 7 billion people living on this planet, we are forced to interact with each other. Our day to day interactions could be minefields; we can never know what another person is thinking or feeling. As a result, we judge people by their actions. Sometimes an incident will occur, and we reflect on the purpose of your communication, and you have an immediate reaction. Most often that reaction is not caused by the event, but rather our perception of it and the meaning we've attached to it.

Our minds receive and interpret data so quickly. Sometimes we make these judgments with limited, inaccurate information and it can lead to conflict. There are times when a situation escalates so rapidly that harm is inflicted unintentionally. What to do?

Sometimes the person jumping to conclusions is you and other times you will be the person that's misunderstood. This is the time to reach for your pause button. Take a breath. Stop and reflect on the moment. Think, "is it possible to see the situation a different way?" What would it look like to offer the benefit of the doubt? If you assumed the best about the other person, what would that look like?

Gather your thoughts and reflect on what you want to communicate? Is this person a service provider that is assisting you? How can you describe your requirements with respect? Is there someone else that might help you? Do you need to have this conversation right now?

When it's someone that you love the stakes are higher. Stop and could stake that purpose to your loved one. You could set the stage by stating your intention. "The reason for my call is ... fill in the blank." If you want to request some corrective action, you might try the sandwich method. Remind the person of something good that they do well. Then advise them of the improvement you seek. Then end on a positive

It is essential that we learn how to have a difficult conversation. When we don't, contrary emotions fester, and relationships are destroyed. We need to learn how to communicate our needs whether it is with a waiter, repair person or our beloved. We need to speak the truth with love because it will help us to feel better.

NO CHEESEBURGER CHEESEBURGER BUT GREAT MIDDLE EASTERN FOOD

Writing reviews on restaurants is subjective, as is drinking and wine. I love mom-and-pop restaurants that you've probably driven past 100 times. I always go to the restaurant at least three times before ink hits paper in the form of a review (I do take recommendations). I love Parkway Grill, Panda Inn and Houston's, but you know those already!

Sahara Restaurant in central Pasadena is one of my go-to spots for both takeout and sit-down dining. I probably eat at Sahara at least three times a month. I was born in Athens, Greece, and though Sahara leans towards Lebanese cuisine, Middle Eastern foods are universal in menu selections. They don't have Lebanese beer (the owner's son said they don't have their home brew because they'd drink it all!), so I have my meals with Heineken. The interior is somewhat plain with pictures of Lebanon, and the tables and chairs could be from any diner in the area. But, the food is the highlight of this show. The kitchen is open so you can watch your food being cooking on mesquite, and it's ably run by two brothers and their sons - it's a family affair.

They offer plenty of standard Middle Eastern dishes like kebabs, shawerma, and falafels. I love the lulu kebabs (ground seasoned lamb and beef ($11.25), and for those of you who can't decide, get the combination ($14.75) which has a little of everything. For you vegetarians the falafel is a crowd pleaser ($8.25). Order a side of babaghanouj (eggplant) ($4.50) - they tell me it's the real deal. My buddy Mike Bingley from the tv show Straight off the Menu swears by the by the chicken kebab. I like it but others seem to be juicer. All dishes come with feta cheese, a remarkable starter of pita bread, cucumber and your choice of lentil or cabbage salad. The cabbage is salad is great, and often I'll put it aside for my next days lunch. Two enthusiastic thumbs up for Sahara! Get here early - it's posted close time 8:30, but many times Sebestain says bro "we were busy we sold out on the food, just like a BBQ joint in Texas" - when it's gone, it's gone. If you were a fan

COOKING FOR THE KIDS!

By Judy Gold

Did you know that the primary purpose of a Kiwanis Club is to benefit children? This ideology is at the heart of the Kiwanis Club of Sierra Madre, and one of the reasons that the club has their annual Chili Cook Off Event. The money raised goes to support the ImaginArt program at the Creative Arts Group right here in Sierra Madre. If your child attends Sierra Madre Elementary School he/she partakes in this outstanding program.

For a first hand look at the ImaginArt program. I spent some time with Kristin Naran, Executive Director of the Creative Arts Group. The program really acts like a field trip with each class walking a few blocks to Creative Arts on Baldwin. Grades 1-5 are given a project to complete. My observation of a Fourth Grade Class that was putting the final touches on their project: Crocagator.

Certain skills are taught to all grades in order to build for future years. Projects are tied into things they study in school. One of the teacher's, Cathy, gave the fourth graders information on American History as well as a history of the America's regarding the meaning of their project. The children learned the importance of animal spirits among Native Americans as well as cultures in Latin America.

The children were given the term "whimsy" as the focal point of their project. Each child was given a slab of clay to work and roll into a vessel. They choose a "whimsical" animal that they attach to the vessel. The skill of waxing the bottom of the vessel is taught. This keeps the bottom of the vessel from absorbing the paint. The object is then 'fired'. When I observed the class they were being taught how to mix colors with which to glaze their effigy. It is then fired for the last time. All the children get to display their projects at a children's art show

The teachers of these classes are remarkable. Cathy is also a public school teacher and Suzie is a local artist who works with ceramics.

I was also able to see the First Grade project which was a cut out by hand, attached to a slab, textured in the background, and painted and some of the finished projects from the third grade. They, too, started with a slab of clay that they learned to roll to shape the body, add pieces to make each witch unique, glaze and fire. I was amazed at how original and well done these witches were. Truly remarkable.

Kiwanis is one of the sponsors of this program raising money from the annual Chili Cook Off Event. Peter Dills, a well-known local food critic, judges the chili offered by the participants. Every person that attends also gets to vote for their favorite chili and awards are given for both the Celebrity Choice and the People's Choice later in the evening. This year, Henry Duenas will be the DJ. There will be wonderful music for dancing as well as people to teach line dancing. You know you've always wanted to learn that. only is there chili tasting but there will be great food, great music, a no-host bar, a Silent Auction and FUN! Lots of it!

Why not become a Kiwanis Member For A Day and attend our Dance The Night Away Chili Cook Off? Tickets can be bought at Savor the Flavor as well as by calling 626-627-3363. Each ticket is $30.00. The event will held at the Sierra Madre Recreational Center, May 12, 2018 from 6:00PM to 10:00PM.

Remember, without donor support the ImaginArt program would not exist. For more information please go to: sierramadrekiwanis. com/the-dance-the-night-away-chili-cook-off

SIMPLE VIDEO CALLING DEVICES FOR TECH-CHALLENGED SENIORS

Dear Savvy Senior,

Are there any senior-friendly devices that you can recommend for video calling? I live about a day's drive from my 83-year-old father and would like to see him more often but he doesn't use a computer, tablet or a smartphone.

Searching Susan

Video chatting is a great way to stay connected and keep tabs on an elder parent when you can't be there. To help you and your dad achieve this, there are various products on the market today that offer simple video calling for seniors who are unfamiliar or uncomfortable with technology. Here are three unique devices to consider.

If you're interested in a device that requires no input from your dad, check out the ViewClix Smart Frame. This is a 15-inch digital picture frame with video calling capabilities designed specifically for

Ready to use right out of the box, this device lets family and friends make video calls and send photos (displayed as a slideshow) directly to your dad's ViewClix Smart Frame anytime from their smartphone, tablet or computer. To do this, you simply download the free ViewClix app to your devices.

All photos sent and video calls made to your dad's ViewClix are received automatically. But, it is worth noting that this is a receiving device only. Your dad cannot initiate video calls from his ViewClix.

This device is available at ViewClix.com or 800-304-4281 for $299 (Wi-Fi is required), or you can purchase their 4G Broadband model that works with T-Mobile if Wi-Fi is not available for $299, plus a $20 monthly broadband fee.

GrandPad

Another nifty product that offers simple video calling, and much more, is the grandPad. This is an 8-inch touchscreen custom tablet designed for seniors, ages 75 and older. It comes with a stylus, charging stand and Verizon 4G LTE built-in so it works anywhere within the Verizon network – home Wi-Fi is not necessary.

This unique tablet provides a simplified menu of and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

big colorful icons and large text to only essential features, giving your dad clutter-free, one-touch access to make and receive video calls and phone calls, send voice emails, view photos and videos, listen to personalized music, check the weather, play games and more. But, to simplify usage and avoid confusion, it does not offer Web browsing.

GrandPad also has a "Help" button that offers 24/7 phone/tablet remote assistance to help your dad with any facet of his tablet, and it provides damage and theft insurance so if your dad breaks or loses his tablet it will be replaced at no additional cost. Available at grandPad.net or call 800-704-9412, a grand-Pad leases for $66 per month, or $49/month if you pay one year in advance.

Echo Show

If you don't think your dad would mind talking to a machine, the voice activated Amazon Echo Show is another senior-friendly device for video chatting (Wi-Fi is required).

Available at Amazon.com for $230, the Echo Show has a 7-inch color touchscreen that would let your dad make and receive video calls to those who have their own device, or who have the free Amazon Alexa app installed on their smartphone or tablet.

Once you set up his contacts, to make a call your dad would simply say, "Alexa, call Susan." And when a call comes in, he would ask Alexa to answer or ignore the call. There's also a feature called "drop-in," which could allow you and other preselected relatives or friends to video in to your dad's device at any time without his input.

The Echo Show also offers a bevy of other features your dad might enjoy like voice-activated access to news, weather, his favorite music and more.

THE WORLD AROUND US Looking

HERE, THERE AND EVERYWHERE: ACROSS THE UNIVERSE WITH THE BEATLES

The Beatles are one of the greatest cultural phenomena to come from the 20th century, yet many people are unaware of their impact on science.

In 'Here, There and Everywhere,' inspired by the book 'La Scienza dei Beatles' ('The Science of the Beatles'), Viviana Ambrosi shows how the Fab Four can bring the study of celestial objects and the exploration of the universe closer to a large public audience. This was set out in a presentation on April 3rd at the European Week of Astronomy and Space Science in Liverpool.

The Beatles formed at the start of the space race, and have always inspired scientists, whether they knew it or not.

The Beatles' record company (EMI) used money from the sale of the White Album to fund scientific research. Some of which went towards Godfrey Hounsfield's research into X-rays, which led to the invention of the CT scanner, for which he shared a Nobel Prize.

'Across the Universe' was transmitted into deep space in 2008, and numerous Beatles songs have been played as the wakeup call for astronauts on the International Space Station—including a live musical wakeup by Paul McCartney in 2005.

There are five asteroids named after this musical group: Beatles, Lennon, McCartney, Harrison, and Starr. There is also a crater on Mercury named 'Lennon,' and when a diamond star (a white dwarf covered in crystallised carbon) was discovered in 2004, it was nicknamed 'Lucy' after 'Lucy in the Sky with Diamonds.3

This was also the inspiration for 'Lucy,' the fossil that rewrote the story of humanity, and this in turn has inspired NASA to name their first mission to Jupiter's Trojan asteroids 'Lucy.'

The Lucy mission will launch in 2021 and will arrive at the L4 Trojan cloud (a group of asteroids that orbit the Sun in Jupiter's orbit, about 60° ahead of Jupiter) in 2027, where the spacecraft will fly by four Trojan asteroids—3548 Eurybates, 15094 Polymele, 11351 Leucus, and 21900 Orus.

After these flybys, Lucy will return to the vicinity of the Earth, whereupon it will receive a gravity assist to take it to the L5 Trojan cloud (which trails about 60° behind Jupiter), where it will visit the binary Trojan 617 Patroclus with its satellite Menoetius. Lucy will also fly by the inner main-belt asteroid 52246 Donaldjohanson, which was named for the discoverer of the Lucy hominin fossil.

Three instruments comprise Lucy's payload: a high-resolution visible imager, an optical and near-infrared imaging spectrometer, and a thermal infrared spectrometer. This mission is due to launch in 2021 and will take 12 years to complete its journey. It is safe to say that the Beatles will continue to be an inspiration for many years to come.

Los Angeles home. We were doing what our Appalachian friend used to describe as "living country in the city." We pursued all aspects of selfreliance, and wrote about it. Starting as soon as we moved in to our new home in 1986, we began task by task with limited income. We used our front lawn to grow food, we recycled our wash water, collected rain water, had chickens, a duck, bees, and a pig, had solar water heating and solar electricity, a wood stove, and we planted fruit trees and food everywhere. We describe our efforts to do "integral gardening" on every bit of usable land, to produce food (for people and wildlife), medicines, fragrance, shade, and useful tools. We describe the details of what it meant to raise Once, during a period of homelessness before we were earthworms, chickens, rabbits, bees, a goose, a pig, and our dogs in their typical suburban back yard. We took the reader along their journey to installing a wood fireplace, solar water heating, and a solar electric system. Though there is much "how to" in this book, it is full of personal stories and rich reading of the learning they experienced along the way. There is a section on recycling, and a unique section about the economics of self-reliance. It's worth noting that this is not a book we planned on writing. In 2000, we were called by the Mother Earth News magazine to write an article about our meaning of "alternate health" methods, and we wrote about the methods that could be called "new age" and could be called Hypocratean. We were on the cover, and a book publisher contacted us to see if we could turn that health article into a book. We said yes. But when we submitted the manuscript to the publisher, they said, hmm, not exactly what we were looking for. [That book, Integral Health, will be published eventually]. So they asked us if we could just write about how we live, which we did, and it became Extreme Simplicity.

HERE ARE SOME SELECTED EXCERPTS WOOD FIREPLACE

Our freestanding fireplace has completely transformed our home. We would strongly encourage anyone without one already to seriously consider installing one. On very cold nights, we had been using those small electric heaters that really drive up your electric bill. The fireplace made the house really feel like a home, and we now are uncertain how we got along without it. In our case, the transition to wood heating was fairly easy, because we had plenty of firewood readily available. We were actually doing a neighbor a favor by cleaning up and carting off large amounts season of firewood came entirely from our weekly model.

married, Christopher was engulfed in thoughts of "poor me" and "I'm destitute," and he could scarcely see a way out of the darkness. Dolores provided him with a simple set of practical tools that anyone can use if only they choose to do so. Here are four "magic" ways to improve your financial situation: 1. Never waste anything. 2. Continually improve your personal honesty. 3. Leave every situation or circumstance better than you found it. 4. Tithe to the church (or organization) of your choice. We know that these are genuine practical solutions. We have heard people say that they cannot make these efforts - such as tithing, or improving an environment - because "we are poor." Our perspective is that they have their reasoning backwards. They are poor because they do not engage themselves in the world in these ways. Logical thinking leads to erroneous conclusions when the premise is false.

3 STEPS TO HOUSEHOLD ENERGY EFFICIENCY 1. You can do without some electrical devices. This will probably involve changing your behavior, for instance, thinking twice before switching on an electrical tool or appliance when a non-electric alternative will work just as well or better. 2. You can learn to use your existing devices more efficiently. This step, too, requires changes in habit, but once you've understood the extra expenses caused by inefficiency and waste, you'll feel good about it - plus you'll save money by practicing efficiency. 3. You can purchase new appliances that render your household inherently more energy efficient. This step requires initial outlays of money, and in some cases higher short-term expenses, but with certain especially wasteful appliances, the best way to save energy and of dead and fallen wood from his property. My paternal grandfather was a Past Master in the area of practical jokes. No amount of time was too much to spend preparing for one of his famous practical jokes. His favorite holiday was April 1 and began preparing for this holiday right after Christmas.

The fact that his practical jokes at times got him into trouble did not seem to affect him at all.

Once while in the hospital for an extended period he had somebody smuggle in to him a can of snuff. For some reason he liked chewing snuff. It is the most disgusting habit I know of on earth.

He no sooner received his smuggled goods then he began chewing it. If you know anything about chewing snuff, you know it is accompanied by a lot of spitting. As usual, his timing was impeccable. Just as the head nurse passed his door and looked in, he leaned over and spit in to the garbage can he had next to his bed. The nurse, not knowing about the chewing snuff, thought he was spitting blood and immediately went into emergency mode. Immediately my grandfather was rushed into the operating room and the surgeon and medical team were assembled.

My grandfather was very sick at the time. Some did not think he would get out of the hospital.

Just as they got him situated in the operating room he pulled from under his sheet his can of person in the room that thought this was in any whatafellowship.com.

That year my grandfather found something new. Some people are about ninety-nine laughs short I am not sure where he found it but he probably spent a lot of time looking for something like this. It was a rubber facsimile of a very nasty looking piece of vomit. To him it was a prized possession.

He said to my aunt, "I haven't been feeling good lately. I really don't know what it is." Then he started to cough a little more seriously, to which, my aunt got up and went to the kitchen to get him a glass of water thinking that might help him.

When she got back, she was shocked to see on her new coffee table a very horrible sight. My grandfather was bent over the coffee table hacking and coughing as though he was in the process of dying. On the coffee table was a very nasty looking piece of vomit.

My aunt went into hysterics. She whirled around and within a moment had grabbed her broom and started towards my grandfather. My grandfather was laughing but not for long.

Suddenly he realized that the flailing broom in my aunt's hand was aimed at him. She chased him out of the house, down the driveway and for at least three blocks yelling obscenities at him that I dare not repeat in public society.

Laughter is the fresh air of the soul. Even the Bible thinks so.

"A merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance: but by sorrow of the heart the spirit is broken" (Proverbs 15:13). And, my favorite, "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine: but a broken spirit drieth the bones" (Proverbs 17:22).

KIKI THE BEAR: A TRUE STORY BY NUBIE (MARISELA ADAMS)

By Joan Schmidt

A few years ago, I met a local author, Marisela Adams, who resides in Bradbury. At that time, her trilogy, Breaking Faith had just been published. They are not books about religion, but exciting mystery novels taking place in Louisiana where two women have been found dead. Most recently Marisela penned her spy thriller, KISSZZZZZZ. Did you know that Marisela also writes children's books; her pseudonym is Marisela has quite an interesting background. She was born in Palau, Coahuila, Mexico; her family was one of the first to settle among the Kickapoo Indians. Her great-grandfather Don Marcelino and her grandfather Jesus were great friends of the Kickapoo Chieftain Papicuno who often came to their hacienda. He told many great stories, which provided Marisela with background for her book, Taste of The family relocated to Texas, and from the age of eight, Marisela loved writing stories. Her family later moved to California for Marisela's education. She attended Cal State LA and received her teaching degree. In addition to teaching, Marisela was also a High School Guidance Counselor. While at college, degree. In addition to teaching, Marisela was also a High School Guidance Counselor. While at college, Marisela met her husband Jim, and it was, "Hate at First Sight." But he pursued her; they dated and have been married many years. They have two children, James and Danube and four grandsons. Jim, her husband encouraged Marisela to "follow" her dream; hence her writing career began.

Jim is a semi-retired, financial advisor, an avid pilot and photographer. He flew Marisela to Louisiana; they found a perfect setting-the beautiful cover for Breaking Faith. Jim does all the covers for her novels.

A few days ago, Marisela and Jim came over for a visit with copies of "Kiki the Bear: A True American Story" by Nubie for our young granddaughters. ("Nubie" is Marisela's pseudonym for her children's books and it is the nickname for her daughter, "Danube".) You may have seen "Kiki"- she was on the news several times when she appeared in Duarte and several neighborhoods times when she appeared in Duarte and several neighborhoods.

Kiki's story began while she was still a cub. She appeared at Marisela and Jim's house, she already had been tagged, but it was obvious she was orphaned. Jim and Marisela, and their next door neighbors, the Chens, have great fruit trees which provided Kiki with food. It was so amazing to watch Kiki grow and see her bathe-first in a little fountain and eventually in the Chen's pool. Kiki was friendly; they talked to her. She lived under their deck for two years. She was not hostile, but eventually wondered down into Duarte, and Animal Control was called. They tranquilized Kiki and relocated her.

Marisela and Jim love animals. They have lived in Bradbury twenty years and have seen many bears. When you move up to the Foothills, you are going into an area which has been the habitat for certain animals. The Adams feel people can live in peace with the animals if they follow the rules such as "bear proof" garbage cans and keep food trash cans in garage until trash pick-up day.

If you have young children, they surely will love the story of Kiki by Nubie! (I even read it before I wrapped them and mailed them off to New Mexico.) The pictures, illustrations, and story itself are awesome! You may find the book on line, but please go to Marisela Adams' website.

FIVE SURPRISINGLY COMMON PLANNING MISTAKES BABY BOOMERS ARE MAKING IN DROVES

Baby boomers, which includes those born between 1946 and 1964, have entered and continue to enter into retirement. As they make this financial transition, many boomers are learning that they have made some of the most typical retirement

But, even if you've made a financial mistake or two, there's still time to avoid these five surprisingly common estate planning mistakes baby boomers are making in droves.

Mistake #1: Believing Estate Planning is Only for the Wealthy: While baby boomers are not the only ones guilty of this mistake, the common misconception is that only the ultra-rich need to have an estate plan prepared. By some reports, about half of Americans between the ages of 55 and 64 do not even have a will. Because estate planning encompasses not only protection of your assets (regardless of how much you've accumulated), but also your healthcare choices, a lack of planning can leave you in a dire situation should any medical issues arise.

Mistake #2: Checklist Mentality: For many, estate planning is just the preparation of legal documents. Once the documents are signed, the client crosses off estate planning from his or her to-do list and moves on. And truth be told, the legal industry itself is guilty of creating this misperception. But don't be fooled! Your circumstances may (and usually will) change. And the likelihood of this happening increases as time goes by. To ensure your estate planning objectives are carried out, you should update your estate plan every time a major (or sometimes, minor) life changes happen - such Mistake #3: Not Completing Your Estate information.

Planning Homework: Just because the estate planning documents have been signed does not necessarily mean that the planning is complete. It is important that any assets which need to be retitled are done so as soon as possible, before you forget. If the ownership or designations on financial accounts and property do not align with your estate planning strategy, there can be major problems in the future. Improper titling of financial accounts or property can result in an unexpected or undesirable distribution. This can happen because you may make one plan through your will or trust, but the ultimate determination of who inherits will rely on the ownership or beneficiary designation of those assets upon your death.

Mistake #4: Leaving Out Little (And Not So Little) Things: It is important to consider all forms of property, not just the high-value assets when putting together an estate plan. Some of the most commonly overlooked assets include digital assets and family pets. If not expressly addressed in your estate plan, your family may end up fighting over valuable assets, abandoning those they deem worthless, or not even realizing certain assets Mistake #5: Not Preparing for Life Events & Emergencies: No one has a crystal ball. However, with proper estate planning, you may be able to weather the storm brought on by some of life's unexpected events or emergencies. With long term care costs increasing year after year, planning for the future possibility of that level of care can save you money and reduce worry if and when it becomes necessary.

Estate Planning Help

Although many baby boomers have made these mistakes - and unfortunately, won't realize it until it becomes too late - you do not have to be one of them. Please let me know if you have any questions about your estate planning options and how to make sure you and your family are protected from these common mistakes.

PLASTIC PARTICLES FOUND IN BOTTLED WATER!

water brands contain tiny particles of plastic. That's according to research conducted at the State University of New York by Orb Media, a nonprofit journalism group, which detected "constellations" of plastic in brands including Aqua, Aquafina, Dasani, Evian and Nestle Pure Life. Tests on more than 250 bottles from 11 brands showed contamination with plastic including polypropylene, nylon and polyethylene terephthalate. Plastic particles in the 0.10 millimeter size range were found in bottled water at an average of 10.4 per liter, while smaller particles likely to be plastic averaged 314.6 per liter." Orb's findings suggest that a person who drinks a liter of bottled water a day might be consuming tens of thousands of microplastic particles each year," it said. The health ramifications are far from clear, but Morethan 90 percent of some of the most popular bottled the findings are part of the impetus behind a World Health Organization plan to review the potential risks of drinking plastic in water, according to the BBC. The impact of digesting plastic on human health is not known. That said, the organization's priority remains 'promoting access to safe water for 2 billion people who currently use and drink contaminated water," the spokesperson added. The concern about plastic contained in the plastic bottles is somewhat ironic considering the bottles themselves are inefficient and environmentally unsound, given that the majority are not recycled, Lovera added. Orb's findings are "pretty disturbing," said Lovera, who noted the world is still "playing catch-up" in determining the potential harm to humans from all the plastic disposed in oceans and the environment.

ROSEANNE IS RAISING THE BARR

Roseanne Barr has risen from the dead.

After a lengthy absence from television, Roseanne and the rest of her fictional Conner family are once again gracing our living rooms. And now, as then, she's not limiting herself to once-weekly sitcom appearances to make her presence known. Her recent use of Twitter assures us of Roseanne was - and remains - a brilliant media strategist. In addition to the role she played on her show, she fostered a public persona that sometimes, quite deliberately, left her looking as though she were the sole survivor of a very bad train wreck. And the American people loved her for it.

For close to a decade, Roseanne was fine fodder for the tabloids as well. They endlessly detailed her personal foibles, multiple marriages, family crises, and fractious relationships with co-workers and network executives. Viewers and readers hung on every word, both in print and on-screen.

If the share of viewers who tuned in to her revamped show's premiere last week is any indicator, the romance continues.

Roof-raising ratings demonstrate that, 30 years later, Roseanne is still relevant. And it's not just because the character of Roseanne Conner is a lapsed Clintonite who has wholeheartedly embraced Donald Trump. To many, her evolution makes Working-class Americans like the Conners have always struggled to get by. Whereas former President Bill Clinton once stood up for working men and women and fought to make America a more equitable place for them to live (at least publicly), so, too, does President Trump today (at least publicly). Comparisons, however, end there.

When Bill Clinton left office, he left behind an economy that was healthier than it had been in decades. Rather than increase the budget deficits he inherited at the beginning of his first term, Clinton left office with the government in the black and surpluses recorded for the better part of his last term.

Moral failings aside, President Clinton did, for the most part, take care of the little guy. Moral failings aside, President Trump's ability to do so will be left for future historians to decide.

Supporters of the president point to the current state of the economy: significant reductions in taxes, a jump in the stock market, and the prospect of a resurgent pro-business environment - in part, through massive deregulation and punishing tariffs. In exchange, we've been saddled with a deficit of approximately $1.5 trillion dollars. As for middle-class tax breaks, most of them will expire in 2025.

Roseanne and Dan Conner better start socking away any refund checks they're hoping to get as a result of recent Republican tax legislation. They're going to need all the cash they can muster when it comes time for them to enjoy retirement. If they can ever afford to have a retirement.

Not too much of a concern for Roseanne Barr, however. That same Republican tax legislation assures her of personally faring quite nicely. Realistically, she didn't have to come out of retirement for the money. She came back because she missed us. Then again, Roseanne never really went away.

There was her turn as the moderately successful host of a television talk show. Her 2012 run for the Green Party presidential nomination. Her eventual campaign as the Peace and Freedom Party candidate. The documentary about her presidential bid. Her reality show. The NBC sitcom pilot that was never picked up. And now, Roseanne: The Reboot.

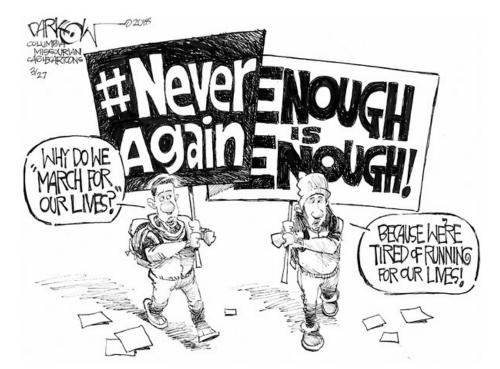

Screen superstardom was never enough for Roseanne, though, nor will it ever be. And that's just fine. As is her decision - calculated or not - to embrace the man who will make America great again. And while her somewhat skewed ideology may make for good ratings, it is potentially harmful to her and those whom she has chosen to target.

Like Parkland shooting survivor David Hogg. Roseanne recently re-tweeted a doctored photo of Hogg and accused him of giving the "Nazi salute" (False). Past re-tweets have included untruths about Hillary Clinton being part of a sex trafficking ring. Then there's the interminable list of right-wing conspiracy theories she's espoused.

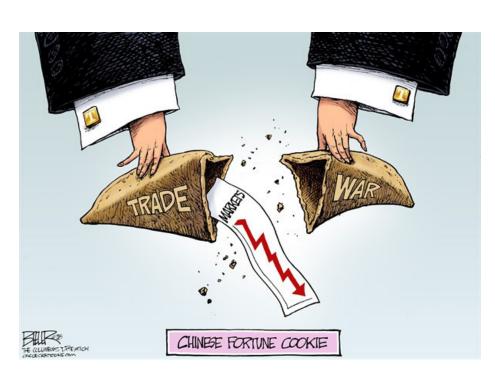

But, hey, let Roseanne be Roseanne. She's not the president. She's a comedian. It's all just an act. Right? She's messing with us, telling jokes funny enough to make network executives squirm in their seats; which may possibly have led to the sudden disappearance of her ill-advised tweets. Better those than a sitcom destined to rake in huge profits. Now, that's show biz.

TRUMP'S LATEST HEADACHE IS IN WISCONSIN

Earlier this week in Wisconsin, a state governed by Koch Brothers subsidiary Scott Walker, one million voters cast ballots to fill a seat on the state Supreme Court. I've long argued that judicial elections are idiotic - judges should be immune to partisan politics; they shouldn't make campaign promises - but such are the rules in states like Wisconsin and Pennsylvania. And sure enough, the Wisconsin race featured two lower-court judges with overtly partisan brands: Right-wing Walker clone and NRA fave Michael Screnock, and anti-Trump progressive Rebecca Dallet.

The race was called within minutes of the polls' closing. Dallet eviscerated Screnock by 12 percentage points.

It was the first time in 23 years that a progressive (the traditional Wisconsin word for "liberal") won an open seat on the state's highest court, and it prompted Scott Walker to freak out on Twitter: "Tonight's results show we are at risk of a #BlueWave in Wisconsin ... we need conservatives to take action and stop a #BlueWave."

It's the second time this year that Walker has clanged the alarm. Back in the winter, there was a special election for a vacant state Senate seat, in a rural-red district where 59 percent of the 2016 voters had supported Trump, a district where the previous state Senate Republican candidate had won the seat by a margin of 26 points. But 10 weeks ago, in a huge switcheroo, the Democratic candidate snatched the rural-red seat by a margin of 9 points. The reasons were obvious: blue voters were stoked to turn out; red voters were too dispirited to show up. Some even switched sides.

In 2016, Trump easily won Wisconsin's Eighth Congressional District, in the state's northeastern corner; on Tuesday, Dallet won the district's voters by 5 points. Trump also won the Third Congressional District, in the state's southwestern corner; on Tuesday, Dallet the progressive swept the district's voters by a whopping 16 points. In the words of Washington Republican analyst Rich Galen, "this election was so one-sided that, taken along with Pennsylvania (a reference to last month's upset Democratic win in a special House election), it may be another precursor of things to come on Nov. 6."

Walker, fearing more losses, has even tried to cancel a pair of Wisconsin special elections. Last winter, he appointed two state legislators to fill posts in his regime. Then he refused to schedule special elections to fill their seats. I kid you not.

He claimed in various statements that the elections were "unnecessary" and a "waste of taxpayer resources," but it was obvious that he and his Republican allies were terrified that a blue wave would sweep those seats away - further confirming the national trend. Since Trump took the oath, 39 state legislative seats have flipped from red to blue (only four have flipped from blue to red), and the GOP would prefer not to suffer more humiliations.

Alas, Wisconsin law requires that legislative vacancies be promptly filled, for the selfevident reason that citizens deserve to be represented. This is called democracy, a concept that appears to flummox Republicans in the age of Trump.

Walker was speedily sued in court for his failure to follow the law. A few weeks ago, a judge - whom Walker has appointed to the bench - ruled that Walker had a "plain and positive duty" to schedule those special elections.

Walker refused to obey. He went to the state appeals court. He lost again. Last week an appeals judge ruled: "Representative government and the election of our representatives are never 'unnecessary,' never 'a waste of taxpayer resources.' [Walker] has an obligation to the follow the law." Walker finally gave up and scheduled the two contests for June.

Could there possibly be better evidence of Republican panic than their bright idea of canceling elections? Wisconsin's judicial tally is merely their latest grim portent. As Mitch McConnell said Tuesday, "We know the wind is going to be in our face. We don't know whether it's going to be a Category 3, 4 or 5." Show of hands, please. Who's up for a Category 5?

TO OPIOID HELL AND BACK

I'm feeling human again, thanks.

After three weeks of living in opioid hell - of constantly being sick to my stomach, of throwing up, of having the shakes and feeling depressed and crying - my body and brain are back to normal.

I'm no longer high and messed up on pain killers. I'm no longer trying to withdraw from them.

And I have a new, up-close-and-personal understanding of the country's opioid epidemic and how easy it is for a 70-something guy like me to become addicted to potent pain pills. My opioid nightmare started on March 13 when I had my left knee replaced. The surgery went fine, but with knee replacement all the pain comes during recovery. When I was released from the hospital on March 15 my doctor wrote me a prescription for Fifty pills. Two every four hours at first, then one every 12 hours.

Hello opioid addiction.

For the first 10 days and 30 oxycodones, I was pain-free but a complete mess. I was often nauseous. I threw up now and then.

I tried to do my knee exercises as I sat in my recliner chair and watched "The Voice" and what-I don't really remember much else from those first 10 days, except for feeling sick and occasionally throwing up, but my wife told me my whole personality changed.

I was angry. I was sad and depressed. The pressure I was putting on my family to take care of me made me start crying.

On Sunday, March 25, my wife took my opioids away, but I took pill No. 30 against her will.

On Monday morning I got up, felt nauseous - and threw up. I threw up every day after that for ten days, but the third day of my withdrawal was the worst. I felt like I had been hit by an earthquake. I had the shakes all day.

When I went to have my surgery staples removed, the knee doctor took one look at me and sent me straight to my heart doctor.

The heart doctor took one look at me, ran an ultra-sound on my heart and sent me back to the ER for blood tests.

At the ER I threw up. I sat in the ER for several hours, then went home and got lots of fluids. I was shaking so much I couldn't hold my hand steady or sign my name. Today - April 5 - I can say I'm finally recovering from addiction. Yesterday was the first day since March 15 that I woke up and didn't feel like I was going to be sick. For the last week I haven't thrown up once. Last night was the first time I thought I could safely go out to dinner and order food. My wife

Colleen and I split a dinner.

The worst for me is over and I've learned some lessons the hard way.

I now understand how powerful and dangerous opioids are. And how important it is to have a loving family at home to take care of you when you're taking them or trying to get off them.

During the last few days I've run into several other guys who had their knees replaced. What they said made me feel kind of stupid.

One guy said he never touched oxycodone. He took Tylenol 3, which has codeine but is less

When I ran into George Thomas, the retired foreman of my father's ranch, he told me he had had both of his knees replaced.

When I told him I was still recovering from opiates, he said, "I didn't take anything."

I'm not as tough as old George.

I know opioids are valuable weapons against pain, and that before they were over-prescribed to help create the current crisis they were often under-prescribed.  $\bar{\rm B}{\rm ut}$  if I have to have my other knee replaced, I'm going to take Tylenol 3 and keep the oxycodone

RE-ELECT Rachelle Arizmendi

to the Sierra Madre City Council

As a Council Member and your current Mayor, it has been my honor to serve you for the last four years.

I have worked with my City Council colleagues to:

- Balance the city budget and reduce total annual expenses by $1M
- Restore full Police Department staffing
- Establish a professional Fire Department
- Hire a new City Manager
- Reduce water loss by investing in water infrastructure

As a Sierra Madre homeowner, I know that overdevelopment can ruin the quality of life in a neighborhood.

Sierra Madre's unique small town character and charm brought many of us here to stay.

Let's Keep Sierra Madre Great!

Rachelle Arizmendi was first elected to the Sierra Madre City Council in 2014 and currently serves as the Mayor of the City of Sierra Madre.

In 2017, Rachelle was appointed by California's Governor to serve on the State's Board of Food and Agriculture. She also serves on several Boards including the California League of Cities and Foothill Workforce Development Policy. Rachelle is a Governor Appointee to the Interagency Council on Early Intervention and is an Advisory Member of the South Coast AQMD Local Government & Small Business Advisory Group.

Rachelle is the Vice President & Chief Operating Officer of PACE (Pacific Asian Consortium in Employment). PACE is a non-profit community development organization that serves over 40,000 people every year in the areas of job training and employment, business development, early education, asset building, energy, and weatherization. She oversees a budget of $25M and a staff of 300 employees. In her previous capacity, she held the position of Education Project Director for 16 years. She was also the Executive Director for 2-1-1- California (an affiliate of the United Ways of California).

"I am committed to maintaining a beautiful, safe place where individuals, seniors and families can flourish." - Rachelle Arizmendi
