4TH OF JULY GRAND MARSHAL STEVE HEYDORFF

The volunteers of the Sierra Madre 4th of July Committee are pleased and excited to announce that the 2018 Fourth of July Parade Grand Marshal will be Sierra Madre's very own Steve Heydorff. "The Grand Marshal is a person or persons whose efforts over a long period of time has been beneficial to the community of Sierra Madre. The title of Grand Marshal is intended to honor a person or persons' volume of work, dedication and overall enhancements to our community." Steve recently retired as Sierra Madre's Fire Chief after serving 37 years (mostly volunteer) on the Sierra Madre Fire Department. Steve really is our Hometown Hero making a difference in our lives

Chief Heydorff joined the then Volunteer Fire Department in 1981, became a volunteer Engineer in 1985, volunteer EMT in 1988, volunteer Captain in 1989, and in 2001 continuing his volunteer duties and began serving part-time in the City's Fire Prevention

In 1993 serving on a State Strike Team Steve visited four major fires in a 56 hour period including Kineloa-Mesa, Anaheim Hills, Laguna and Malibu. In 2002, he was promoted to volunteer Battalion Chief and in 2003 spent please visit www.sierramadre4thofjuly.com.

a month helping in Mississippi and Louisiana after Hurricane Katrina. In 2006 he was hired by the City as the Director of Fire Services and in 2007 was elected as the City's last and final Volunteer Fire Chief. The position was transitioned to a paid Chief by the City in 2008. Over the course of his service in Sierra Madre, he responded to over 9000 calls, was the leading force to bring paramedic service to the community and assisted the City with the transition from the last volunteer fire department in Los Angeles County to a combination model. He's final act was to create a children's education area next to the Station so youth tours could continue and kids could learn what firefighters do while on the job.

In his free time, Steve and local firefighter Charlie Childs opened the Sierra Madre Brewing Company in 1997 at the Old Ice House on Montecito and he got his pilot license.

Steve proudly states that his biggest accomplishment is seeing all the career firefighters who began their careers volunteering right here in Sierra Madre, finding their passion and following their dreams.

Overall, as a true Hometown Hero, Steve is a dedicated husband, father and friend to many. He is funny, kind, generous, and a whole-heartedly devoted contributor to our town; a shining example of the sort of person who makes Sierra Madre such a magical place to live.

TOO MUCH TRAFFIC IN THE VILLAGE?

Is technology eroding the village nature of Sierra Madre

Despite the best efforts of the citizens of Sierra Madre, the world beyond its boundaries are slowly bringing about unwanted changes. In this instance the villain isn't some money grubbing capitalist, but rather the town has become another victim via the unintentional consequence of technology.

Last week this paper reported on an accident caused by an out of control vehicle. Earlier this week, the Mountain Views News was contacted by resident Scott Bernstein who was a few feet away from the scene and who narrowly escaped being struck by the SUV. Still audibly shaken, Bernstein who is blind, was in the yard with his service dog when it happened. While sharing the details of his harrowing experience, the conversation changed to the increased frequency of traffic and its impact on Sierra Madre.

While it is a fact that the population of Sierra Madre has not fluctuated much in the last few decades (10,000 - 11,000+ residents), it is also a fact that the amount of traffic that traverses the streets has increased dramatically.

So, if the demographics of the town is pretty stable, what has changed? According to Captain Donna Cayson the number of traffic incidents, including accidents and moving violations such as speeding and illegal turns is on a steady rise. Streets like Grandview, Sierra Madre Boulevard, Orange Grove, Mountain Trail, Highland, Lima and Sunnyside have been burdened with additional traffic without any regard for the the expectedsafety and tranquility of the town. Much of the increased traffic is believed to be the result of motorists' increased use of GPS systems such as WAZE which encourages users to go through city streets and avoid slow freeway traffic. The headline of a story that appeared in the New York Times last year perhaps said it best, "Navigation Apps Are Turning Quiet Neighborhoods Into Traffic Nightmares." Smartphone services like Google Maps, Waze and Apple Maps, send too much traffic through the heretofore quiet streets in town. Add to that the propensity of some residents to get everywhere in a hurry, signs like one posted on Sunnyside have started to appear. It says, "Drive like your child lives here"

So what can be done to suppress this unwanted traffic flow? Residents like Bernstein would like to see more speed bumps in town. Others would like to see more enforcement activities.

The city is very aware of the growing problem, as residents do express their traffic concerns to City Hall according to CM Gabe Engeland. The challenge however, is to find solutions that not only help curtail the Sierra Madre 210 Alternative traffic flow, but does not have a negative impact on the residents of Sierra Madre who want to keep the town with safe streets and traffic light free.

REMEMBRANCE JOHN ROBINSON

John W. Robinson, wellrespected Southern California historian, hiker, and author, who's Sierra Madre's Old Mount Wilson Trail about our local hiking trail is a favorite in town, has died at the age of 88. John died in his sleep on April 25 after a short hospice stay. He had been residing in Colorado for several years in order to be closer to his family. His daughter Cathy reports that she visited with her father a few hours before he passed. The hospice had him on medication, so he was not in pain, and even though he was not "awake", she felt that he could hear her. She played his favorite big band and jazz music and read to him from many of the articles that John had written over the years. Cathy says he left this world in peace.

He was to be cremated on Friday, April 27, with the family sending his ashes to California for a memorial service to be announced.

John's most popular book, Trails of the Angeles: 100 Hikes in the San Gabriels was first published in May 1971 and has been continuously updated and in print since then. With the eighth edition (April 2005) John took on a coauthor, Doug Christiansen, to help with some of the hiking updates that John could not longer physically take care of. The ninth edition was released in July of 2013. He has also written about the history of our local mountains in The San Gabriels, which continues to be considered the ultimate guide to this beautiful mountain range. In 2005, Robinson published Gateways to Southern California, a comprehensive work that tells the fascinating history of the mountain passes and trails used by the pioneers and settlers who built Southern California. John considered this book his "magnum opus" and the culmination of his lifetime of work. Additionally, he published many other books about Southern California mountain ranges, along with several booklets, and wrote numerous articles for a wide variety of publications.

John was a native of California, born in Long Beach, July 8, 1929. He graduated from the University of Southern California in 1951 with a B.A., and from California State University, Long Beach in 1966 with an M.A. He taught school for 35 years, with the last 32 of those years in the Newport-Mesa Unified School District in Orange County. John's love of the outdoors led him to hike the mountains of Southern California, where he gained a firsthand insight of the trails and unique history of the ranges. In his early years he was an avid backpacker and mountain climber in rugged locations ranging from Mexico to

In 1992, John received the Donald H. Pflueger Award from the Historical Society of Southern California, for excellence in writing local history. He received the Westerners International's Coke award for best journal articles in 1990 and 1994. And in October 2005, Robinson was made a Fellow of the Historical Society of Southern California, honoring "exceptional lifetime achievements that have brought distinction to history."

On the local Sierra Madre front, Dr. Bill White, long time friend of John's and historian of local mountain lore, is planning a Sierra Madre celebration of John's life. The plans are still in the works, but a tentative date has been set for the Saturday after the Mt. Wilson Trail Race later this month. Details will be announced by Dr. White later in the month. John was an integral part of Dr. White's Hikes Into History that were held for many years and based out of Lizzie's Trail Inn, and many of our area residents will recall fondly hiking and exploring in our local San Gabriel mountains with John Robinson as he led the group and told stories about the mountains and the people who have inhabited

WALKING SIERRA MADRE... The Social Side By Deanne Davis

"Who you are tomorrow begins with what you do today." Tim Fargo

"Almost every successful person begins with two beliefs: the future can be better than the present and I have the power to make it so!"

Who I am today, dear friends and neighbors, is a person who can type "A" with impunity as my little finger now works like the other ones! My hand surgery was a complete and total success and I couldn't be more pleased. There was practically no pain and I was out planting some new lavender plants in just a day or two. Duypuytrens Contracture is no longer part of my life and as soon as I get the stitches out on May 14th and do my exercises - making a fist and then seeing if I can press my whole hand down flat - I will be typing with all ten fingers to my heart's desire. I appreciate all those of you who sent good thoughts and prayers my way; it helped!

There was an article a few days ago in the Star News, " 'Empty Bowls' event flips idea of a soup line," by Steve Scauzillo, regarding an opportunity by Family Promise of San Gabriel Valley to choose a ceramic soup bowl created by a local artisan and partake of some soup, some fellowship, some really nifty cookies and a chance to walk away with a tremendous prize at the AOPE Center to find jobs and stable housing. silent auction. Sierra Madre Methodist Church hosted Family Promise last Sunday, April 29th from noon to show you the table where Jackie Satti was helping folks three. Entry was $30 in advance or $35 day of event and choose their beautiful, one-of-a-kind ceramic bowl. all the proceeds go toward families who are struggling. All I can say was this was just wonderful and I plan to to regain homes. I walked away with a gorgeous handthrown footed bowl in variegated blues and greens, which was held for me while I took a few pictures, by Jackie Satti. Everyone there couldn't have been more friendly and welcoming and I was astonished to learn this was the nonprofit's seventh annual Empty Bowls event. Family Promise has a network of fifteen churches in the San Gabriel Valley where families can seek shelter, "helping homeless children by assisting their families to stay intact and regain stable housing and employment within a supportive, volunteer-driven community." The ultimate vision of Family Promise is to empower local communities to end homelessness in the San Gabriel Valley. Now that's a really worthy goal!

Here are a few of the folks who provided food:

Green Street Restaurant, Heirloom Bakery, Margarita's Mexican Kitchen, North Woods Inn, our own Poppy Cake Baking Company, Souplantation, Subway, Urban Plates and a bunch of others. Soup choices included Beef Barley, Italian White Bean, Corn Chowder, playwrightdd

Minestrone, Chicken Posole, any of which you could have ladeled into your beautiful new ceramic bowl. There were at least a couple of hundred people gathered around round tables in the fellowship hall at Sierra Madre Methodist, laughing, chatting and mopping up their soup with the gorgeous bread which was on each table. Of course, there were occasional dashes toward the silent auction to up bids on the prizes...which were really super prizes!

Trader Joe's put up more than one basket; there was the Home Spa basket which included robes, vanilla shower gel, a shiatsu massage pillow and Ghirardelli mint chocolates. There was a 50" TV, a nice basket from Claim Jumper and many more.

Shirley Tatsuno, who has been part of Family Promise since 2011, showed me a mockup of what the churches involved with Family Promise provide for families who are in need. This included a nice mattress with sheets centered on a tarp, a lovely children's area with books and toys and, being inside a church facility meant safety and security as host congregations take turns housing families each week, offering meals and warm hospitality. Children go to school during the day and parents work or meet with case managers The picture here is of the soup area and I wish I could go again next year. If you're interested, you can contact Family Promise at: www.familypromisesgv.org. You already know that about 58,000 people are homeless in Los Angeles and more children and families are experiencing homelessness than ever before.

Plant something this week! I put in a new geranium, some dahlias, a pink petunia and a couple of lavender plants. They all look spectacular and my camellia is still blooming mightily, which makes me smile every time I walk out my front door! Sierra Madre is filled with flowers. We are so blessed!

Candidate forums canceled

Pasadena City College officials said Friday that Dr. Cliff Davis, vice chancellor of the Ozark Technical Community College System in Springfield, Mo., and president of the Ozarks Technical College Table Rock campus, dropped out as the last candidate for PCC president, forcing the school to start the search

In a letter to students faculty and staff Friday the school said two forums scheduled Monday at noon and 5 p.m. have been canceled.

In a special meeting Friday morning the PCC Board of Trustees voted to negotiate a contract to keep current President Dr. Rajen Vurdien through June 2019.

A new president search time line was also approved starting June 13 with the board approving the selection of an executive search firm and job announcement; September 7 Application packages due to the college; October 17 Board of Trustees select candidates to interview; November 10 Candidates interviewed and top two or three selected; December 10-11 Finalists meet the students faculty and staff on campus and December 19 with the board selection of superintendent/president.

The board also approved the creation of a committee to review, suggest changes to, or update its bylaws governing the executive search process. The committee will consist of tree members each of the Board of Trustees, tenured faculty, managers and classified staff. Board members said they expect work by the committee to be completed before June 6.

Pet of the Week

Larry (A452618) is a 2-yearold pit bull who loves toys. He can hear a squeaky toy from a mile away and will stop whatever he is doing and perk up. His absolute favorite toy is the Jolly Ball. Our volunteers have noticed he has good focus and is good with commands. While out on our Wiggle Waggle Wagon, he has met many children and is friendly to people of all ages. Larry has received his blue ribbon, so he knows his "sit," "down," and "stay" and is ready to find a home.

The adoption fee for dogs is $130. All dogs are spayed or neutered, microchipped, and vaccinated before going to their new home.

New adopters will receive a complimentary healthand-wellness exam from VCA Animal Hospitals, as well as a goody bag filled with information about how to care for your pet.

View photos of adoptable pets at pasadenahumane. org. Adoption hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday; and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Pets may not be available for adoption and cannot be held for potential adopters by phone calls or

Metro Bike Share Looking for Input on Stations

Metro is constantly looking to improve the bike share system and is interested in relocating some stations in Pasadena to better serve residents and visitors. To give your input, visit: bikeshare.metro. net/suggest-a-location.

locations. Accessibility - Stations should be visible from the street and easy, safe and comfortable to get to.

Sun – Sunny spots are best since stations run on solar power. Demand and Support - Stations should be located where there is high demand. Convenient & Close to Bike Lanes - Stations should be as close

Celebrate Cinco de Mayo Responsibly

In the United States, the Cinco de Mayo holiday is often associated with parties and alcohol. If you're celebrating with friends and family this weekend, remember that at the end of the night, you need to have a safe and sober ride home. Police, Sheriff and the CHP will be out in force looking for the telltale signs of impaired driving this weekend.

In the rush to prepare for a night out, it's easy to forget the most important Cinco de Mayo plan of all: designating a sober driver. Going out for a night of drinking without a plan for getting home safely is a recipe for disaster.

Pasadena Police Department will deploy additional officers on special DUI Saturation Patrols specifically to stop and arrest drivers showing signs of alcohol or drug impairment during the hours of 6:00 PM and 3:00 AM., in areas with history of DUI crashes and DUI arrests.

Pasadena Police Department supports the new effort from the Office of Traffic Safety (OTS) that aims to educate all drivers that "DUI Doesn't Just Mean Booze." If you take prescription drugs, particularly those with a driving or operating machinery warning on the label, you might be impaired enough to get a DUI. Marijuana use can also be impairing, especially in combination with alcohol or other drugs, and can result in a DUI.

There are many other ways to ensure a safe ride home besides relying on a friend. The OTS DDVIP app is now available for free download on iOS and Android devices. The app offers enhanced features, allowing users to search all participating bars and restaurants throughout California. Additionally, the app users can easily order a sober ride from Uber or Lyft. A VISIT FROM NANA

ARE PETS PEOPLE TOO? Happy Tails

by Chris Leclerc

It's a matter of personal opinion, whether or not our confines of the family unit it is a matter of opinion. If you asked me, I'd say, "Yes, my dog is an important and integral part of my family, therefore I consider her to be a person, too." And I actually have lots of friends who would agree. They are far too precious to be placed into the same category with our inanimate personal possessions or assets, it's just that plain and simple.

Domestic pets spend more time sitting sideby-side, up close and personal with their humans these days than ever before in the recorded history of civilization. Most would agree that they have come to assume a familial position in the home that certainly precludes them from being considered no more important than a pair of boots in the closet or a bicycle in the garage, right? However, when it comes to the law in this country, a pet is actually regarded as just that - just another item on the list of things one might own.

I love to watch court shows on TV. You know the ones...Judge Judy, The People's Court, etc. And among the countless episodes I've viewed (more than I'm willing to admit), several have revolved around pet ownership. In each of those episodes, the judge always emphasizes the fact that according to the law, a pet is a personal possession, not a family member. Compensation for any "pain and suffering" that a plaintiff may have sustained due to the death or injury of a pet resulting from a defendant's negligent or malicious act are never considered. I'm not sure if that's how it pans out in a real court of law, but that's how it always goes in the court shows shown on TV.

I understand how and why the law may have come to recognize domestic animals as part of a person's estate versus part of the family. I imagine it started in the early days of homesteading when people kept dogs mainly to help protect their land or livestock. The dogs were typically made to stay outside where they could perform their "jobs". It made total sense then, considering the mentality that prevailed, to those days. Who still keeps dogs strictly for use love and let live!

as guards or shepherds? Really? I mean, just because you can doesn't mean you should.

It's 2016, folks! Everybody knows a dog is part of the family, don't they? Well, everybody but our beloved law-makers, lawenforcers and court judges, that is. I can't help wondering when the 'powers that be' in this country will finally get with it and start making appropriate legal changes to reflect the true sentiment we American animal lovers so clearly and strongly share.

The fact is, many states have been forced to address pets are part of the family. Or at least, within the this very issue in recent years, with pet-related cases occurring more often within their respective jurisdictions. In fact, it is my understanding that a couple of states have gone so far as to make significant changes to the laws they have in place pertaining to a pet being recognized as part of the family versus a possession or asset. Hopefully the trend will continue to catch on and other states will follow the lead.

The great state of Texas has made their legal stance on the issue crystal clear. When asked whether a furry four-legger should be included in the family tree in their jurisdiction, authorities emphatically reply (pardon my paraphrase), "Hell no, that ain't happenin' here!" Tell us how you really feel, lone star folks. Perhaps it's time to mess with Texas, y'all pup lovers out there!

While some states apparently maintain strong, long-term historic opinions against putting pets into the kin category, Americans in various other states are openly proclaiming their equally intense views in favor of the idea. I'm betting the folks who want their pets to be viewed as 'people, too' in all courts of law will probably have their way at the end of the day. It just seems inevitable, with the direction our society is taking as far as how we treat our animals. We have come to recognize the bountiful benefits and blessings we receive from them, and we insist on having them close by and inside our homes rather

After all, it would be very disingenuous and downright hypocritical of us to continue loving our pets and including them in our lives to the degree which we do nowadays, only to turn around and say they are just another item on the list of stuff we own. Law will eventually follow loving logic, I'm absolutely sure of it!

So, to answer the question that is the title of this happy tale, and to bring this week's short and per pondering article to a kindly close, I'd like to shout out a great big, "YES"! Pets ARE people, too. Just ask my Molly, she'll tell you! Enjoy your four-footed, treat them like possessions when or if someone furry friends. Share your home and lives with them. harmed or stole them. But a lot has changed since Give them the respect they deserve, and above all,

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

MY PASTRAMI DREAMS

When my friend and superstar Personal Trainer Darrian Dalangini challenged me to find the best Pastrami in the area, I thought "easy enough, I'll check out a few places, post a few notes on my facebook site www.facebook/peterdills.com, and the answer will appear". I found out quickly don't argue sex, politics or who has the best pastrami sandwich in town. Before we start this argument, let's take a look at the origins of pastrami. Like corned beef, pastrami was originally created as a way to preserve meat before modern refrigeration. For pastrami, the raw meat is brined, partly dried, seasoned with various herbs and spices, then smoked and steamed. In the United States, although beef plates are the traditional cut of meat for making pastrami, it is now common to see pastrami made from beef brisket, beef round, and turkey.

The Romanian specialty was introduced to the United States in a wave of Romanian Jewish immigration from Bessarabia and Romania in the second half of the 19th century, via the Yiddish. Early references in English used the spelling "pastrama", closer to the Romanian original. The modified "pastrami" spelling likely was introduced to sound related to the Italian salami.

Although New York's Sussman Volk is generally credited with producing the first pastrami sandwich in 1887, that claim is disputed by the founders of Katz's Deli in New York, which was founded in 1888. Volk, a kosher butcher, claimed he got the recipe from a Romanian friend in exchange for storing the friend's luggage while the friend returned to Romania. According to his descendant, Patricia Volk, Volk prepared pastrami according to the recipe and served it on sandwiches out of his butcher shop. The sandwich was so popular that Volk converted the butcher shop into a restaurant to sell pastrami sandwiches.

Romanian Jews immigrated to New York as early as 1872. Among Jewish Romanians, goose breasts were commonly made into pastrami because they were inexpensive. Beef navels were cheaper than goose meat in America, so the Romanian Jews in America adapted their recipe and began to make the cheaper beef pastrami.

Making foods to sell out of push carts in the Lower East Side of New York was one of the most popular occupations for immigrant Jews in the latter half of the 19th century. Because sandwiches were a hugely popular foodstuff in New York, it is possible Romanian Jewish immigrants were making and selling pastrami sandwiches from push carts on the streets of New York at least a decade before Sussman Volk converted his butcher shop into a restaurant.

With a little help from my friends, here are the top three choices for a pastrami sandwich in the Pasadena/ Los Angeles areas. In no particular order:

Johnnie Pastrami 4017 Sepulveda Blvd. Culver City. The names says it all. Although Johnnie recently passed on to the sandwich shop in the sky, visitors flock to this spot for pastrami on a buttery French roll, and ask for extra pickles.

Tied: Langers and Canters. These two veterans probably received the most passionate support with such postings as "no need to go anywhere else".

EDUCATION & YOUTH

STATE DEPARTMENT SHUTS OUT KIDS FROM SUMMER JOBS

By Joe Guzzardi

With summer just weeks away, teenagers and college students looking for seasonal employment will have to compete with the annual influx of international workers.

The State Department's Summer Work Travel Program (SWT) will once again, as it has for decades, provide an unlimited number of J-1 visas to young foreign nationals who will come to the U.S. to work at a variety of jobs. The State Department defends SWT as a valuable cultural exchange tool when in reality it's a cheap labor bonanza for

The jobs include lifeguarding, waiting tables at resorts, guiding tourists through national parks, scooping ice cream and providing child care as au pairs. These are jobs that most American kids would eagerly do, given the opportunity.

But since the J-1 has no prevailing wage requirement, employers can pay the visa holders lower wages than those U.S. workers earn in similar occupations and in the same geographic region. Furthermore, employers are exempt from paying the Social Security, Medicare, federal and state unemployment taxes on J-1visa holders who are often required to work overtime without extra compensation.

about $1,100 in fees to private organizations that sponsor their participation in the program, the program generates well over $100 million in annual revenues for those organizations. Participants pay out millions more in visa fees to the State Department, and in travel expenses to and from the U.S. In the end, sponsors pay government dues to be part of the program; students pay the fees associated with the program and their own roundtrip travel expenses; employers pay nothing. Many unsuspecting SWTs return home disillusioned, often with little money saved.

program has led to multiple instances of exploitation like last year's Myrtle Beach case. Ten Dominican Republic college students were promised jobs at an Italian ice shop, plus adequate accommodations, but ended up keeping house and living in a bed bug-infested motel. Similar abuses have been documented in Virginia, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Mississippi.

Last year, The Wall Street Journal reported the Trump administration is considering reducing the number of visas issued under SWT. And as usual when employment-based visas are scrutinized with an eye toward cutting the total granted, businesses cry foul and falsely predict that without cheap foreign labor they'll go bankrupt.

Yet, despite well-deserved and documented criticism from labor experts who point to multiple SWT flaws, the program carries on year after year even though the unemployment rate among young Americans, and especially minorities, is high. Last summer, a survey showed that teens were about three times as likely to be unemployed as other Americans.

A few takeaways: serving gelato or waiting tables on the Boardwalk can't reasonably be considered cultural exchange. If employers offered decent wages and working conditions, they'd have little Because international students pay an average of trouble attracting American kids. Moreover, shutting Americans out of the labor market has negative long-term consequences. Unemployed young adults don't learn how to interact with their peers or their often demanding bosses. They don't acquire essential work qualities like timeliness and accountability that will lead to a productive career.

The most obvious and important conclusion of all to draw from SWT is that the federal government cannot enact or efficiently monitor any type of immigration legislation that helps American workers.

THE GOOD LIFE

NEW SHINGLES VACCINE PROVIDES BETTER PROTECTION FOR SENIORS

Dear Savvy Senior,

A good friend of mine got a bad case of shingles last year and has been urging me to get vaccinated.

Suspicious Susan

Dear Susan,

Yes! If you're 50 or older, there's a new shingles vaccine on the market that's far superior to the older vaccine, so now is a great time to get inoculated. Here's what you should know.

Shingles, also known as herpes zoster, is a burning, blistering, often excruciating skin rash that affects around 1 million Americans each year. The same virus that causes chickenpox causes shingles. What happens is the chickenpox virus that most people get as kids never leaves the body. It hides in the nerve cells near the spinal form of shingles.

In the U.S., almost one out of every three people will develop shingles during their lifetime. While anyone who's had chickenpox can get shingles, it most commonly occurs in people over age 50, along with people who have weakened immune systems. But you can't catch shingles from someone else.

Early signs of the disease include pain, itching or tingling before a blistering rash appears several days later, and can last up to four weeks. The rash typically occurs on one side of the body, often as a band of blisters that extends from the middle of your back around to the breastbone. It can also appear above an eye or on the side of the face or neck.

In addition to the rash, about 20 to 25 percent of those who get shingles go on to develop severe nerve pain (postherpetic neuralgia, or PHN) that can last for months or even years. And in rare cases, shingles can also cause strokes, encephalitis, spinal cord damage and vision loss.

New Shingles Vaccine

The Food and Drug Administration recently approved a new vaccine for shingles called Shingrix (see Shingrix.com), which provides much better protection than the older vaccine, is 97 percent effective in preventing shingles in show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

people 50 to 69 years old, and 91 percent effective in those 70 and older.

By comparison, Zostavax is 70 percent effective in your 50s; 64 percent effective in your 60s; 41 percent effective in your 70s; and 18 percent effective in your 80s.

Shingrix is also better that Zostavax in preventing nerve pain that continues after a shingles rash has cleared - about 90 percent effective versus 65 percent effective.

Because of this enhanced protection, the cord and, for some people, emerges later in the Center for Disease Control and Prevention recommends that everyone age 50 and older, receive the Shingrix vaccine, which is given in two doses, two to six months apart.

> Even if you've already had shingles, you still need these vaccinations because reoccurring cases are possible. The CDC also recommends that anyone previously vaccinated with Zostavax be revaccinated with Shingrix.

> You should also know that Shingrix can cause some adverse side effects for some people, including muscle pain, fatigue, headache, fever and upset stomach.

> Shingrix - which costs around $280 for both doses – is (or will soon be) covered by insurance including Medicare Part D prescription drug plans, but be aware that the shingles vaccines are not always well covered. So before getting vaccinated, call your plan to find out if it's covered, and if so, which pharmacies and doctors in your area you should use to insure the best coverage.

> Or, if you don't have health insurance or you're experiencing medical or financial hardship, you might qualify for GlaxoSmithKline's Patient Assistance Program, which provides free vaccinations to those who are eligible. For details, go to GSKforyou.com.

mostly healthy, beautiful, and, in middle and upper class America, blissfully unacquainted with the harsh realities of financial self-reliance and a diminished metabolism. Youth involves rites of passage. Kids learn to drive. Girls get training bras; boys' voices go through a crackling journey to manly tones. Everyone needs to use deodorant, contrary to the belief that "some people don't sweat." And usually somewhere in there is a "formal dance." Stopped in traffic by the Arboretum one spring day, I noticed a fashion shoot taking place on a grassy knoll. Five women, thigh-high haltertop dresses, posed as the photographer fired off rapid shots. After they were finished, the group headed toward some young men in suits and tuxedos. As the women awkwardly stepped into a stretch Hummer it dawned on me. That's not a fashion a shoot -that's someone's prom!

fooled her date (a well-known prankster) by opening the front door in a very old fashioned, dumpy dark turquoise taffeta dress and her Stouffer's waitress shoes (think the Queen Mum). She and her dad got a big laugh after he snapped a picture of the boy's horrified face. She then changed days. I have a few regrets about my youth. I wish I had put more effort into my second language I suppose it might've been good to attempt a sport. But one thing I've never regretted is not going to prom! I know that sounds bitter and antisocial,

In the same vein as class elections, proms years ago. But even after all this seemed to be another means of social exclusion. Every detail of the night involved decisions about Youth is a wonderful thing. The young are who was "in" and who was "out." Who's house do we meet up at? Who's riding in the [ostentatious vehicle of choice]? Who's sitting at our table? There's only room for eight, so that eliminates [the least-liked classmate]." It gave me a nervous ulcer just listening to it. drive home the point that prom was overrated, my boyfriend-less friends all complained about their dates' behavior the next day at school. Heck, even some of the girls who had boyfriends complained!

Of course, another reason I nixed the prom was because I'm cheap. I just couldn't rationalize the cost of the tickets, dress, etc. Even as an unemployed teenager, I had some concept of the value of money. On top of everything else, prom tends to bring out the worst in people -administrators as well as students. There's always a few headlines about some poor kid getting kicked out of prom for a dumb reason. Back when I first submitted this article, a boy in the Midwest asked his crush to the prom by

It goes without saying that proms have changed writing "Will you go to the prom with me?" on over the years. My mom enjoys telling how she a large poster. And she said "Yes!" Aww! But there was trouble in paradise when the villainous principal banned the boy from the prom because his placement of the sign was against school rules. In response to the national outcry against her decision, the principal finally reneged and allowed the young lovers to attend the prom. It would be in to her real dress. Yes, things are different these one thing if this were an isolated incident, but it seems that every year there's some news story about power-crazed administrators concocting frivolous reasons for excluding students from the courses (although I doubt it would've helped), and prom. One girl was denied admission because she came without a date. It's bad enough if you can't get a date, let alone the school broadcasting it! Like Maurice Chevalier crooned, "I'm --STILL-- so glad but even approaching 20 years later, I can still say I I'm not young anymore!"

TAMING THE MULTIVERSE: Stephen Hawking's Final Theory About the Big Bang

Professor Stephen Hawking's final theory on the origin of the universe, which he worked on in collaboration with Professor Thomas Hertog from KU Leuven, was published last week in the Journal of High Energy Physics.

before Hawking's death earlier this year, is based on string theory and predicts the universe is finite and far simpler than many current theories about the big bang say.

Professor Hertog, whose work has been supported by the European Research Council, first announced the new theory at a conference at organized on the occasion of Professor Hawking's 75th birthday.

our local universe came into existence with a brief burst of inflation—in other words, a tiny fraction of a second after the big bang itself, the universe expanded at an exponential rate. It is widely believed, however, that once inflation starts, there The theory, which was submitted for publication are regions where it never stops. It is thought that quantum effects can keep inflation going forever in some regions of the universe so that globally, inflation is eternal. The observable part of our universe would then be just a hospitable pocket universe, a region in which inflation has ended and stars and galaxies formed.

'The usual theory of eternal inflation predicts the University of Cambridge in July of last year, that globally our universe is like an infinite fractal, with a mosaic of different pocket universes, separated by an inflating ocean," said Hawking in an interview last autumn. "The local laws of physics and chemistry can differ from one pocket universe to another, which together would form a multiverse. But I have never been a fan of the multiverse. If the surface. scale of different universes in the multiverse is large or infinite the theory can't be tested".

'We predict that our universe, on the largest scales, is reasonably smooth and globally finite. So it is not a fractal structure," said Hawking.

The theory of eternal inflation that Hawking and Hertog put forward is based on string theory: a branch of theoretical physics that attempts quantum physics, in part by describing the fundamental constituents of the universe as tiny vibrating strings. Their approach uses the string Hertog. theory concept of holography, which postulates that the universe is a large and complex hologram: b.eklund@MtnViewsNews.com.

physical reality in certain 3D spaces can be mathematically reduced to 2D projections on a Hawking and Hertog developed a variation of this concept of holography to project out the time dimension in eternal inflation. This enabled them to describe eternal inflation without having to rely on Einstein's theory. In the new theory, eternal inflation is reduced to a timeless state defined on a spatial surface at the beginning of time.

"When we trace the evolution of our universe to reconcile gravity and general relativity with backwards in time, at some point we arrive at the threshold of eternal inflation, where our familiar notion of time ceases to have any meaning," said

In the natural forest, trees sprout up from the EVERGREEN VS. DECIDUOUS become the fertilizer for other trees and vegetation. Life and death is the cycle of the forest.

And in our urban areas, the life cycle of trees continues unabated, though the cycle is strongly controlled by the hand of man. Trees are continually cut down for developments and roads, and new trees are continually planted, sometimes for the mere appearance that the tree

Are there any guidelines that we might follow for the ideal tree selection? Should we be thinking about much more than convenience and appearance when planting trees?

Certainly all of us have read gardening and landscaping magazines which extoll the beauty of this or that "new" tree. But there are always many problems down the road by simply choosing a tree based on appearances. I prefer the long term path of sustainability, following the principles of permaculture where nature can take care of itself if we let it.

When I first moved into a new home in FRUITING OR NOT Highland Park, some of my neighbors were into my picture of productivity and sustainability. So let's begin with what not to plant.

EUCALYPTUS

Though Eucalyptus has numerous medical and aesthetic values, it's best left in its Australian homeland. I've researched extensively on the pros and cons of eucalyptus, and there are many reasons to never plant more eucalyptus trees in your Southern California yards. Eucalyptus trees suck up inordinate amounts of water, inhibit the growth of other vegetation under the trees, and LOCAL CONSIDERATIONS actually cause the nearby soil to be less able to fences), and firewood.

NATIVES

Natives of any given area should be among your top choices. Here in Southern California, there are plenty of natives which also produce beauty and food. Native cherries are evergreen and they produce delicious fruits. Toyon is another native everyone living there. evergreen tree whose little red fruits can be eaten, if you take the time to learn how to prepare them. [Nyerges is the author Elder tree is a deciduous tree that requires a bit of "Nuts and Berries of more maintenance, but does produce edible and "Extreme medicinal flowers and fruits.

humus of the forest floor, and grow upwards to the Landscapers are often the ones who have light. Other older trees succumb to old age, or fire or promoted particular trees for their beauty or lightning strikes, and eventually fall back to earth to convenience. They are the ones who've given us so many of the poisonous oleanders throughout Southern California. To be fair, the evergreen oleander requires so little maintenance that it is no wonder you see it along so many freeways. But if you have limited space and you want a productive yard, you'd not choose an oleander.

For you non-gardeners, evergreens are those trees and bushes which never go bare, and always have some leaves, year-round. Deciduous means that they drop their leaves in the winter, and go bare. In some situations, a deciduous tree is a good choice in front of a south-facing window, so that it's shady in summer, but sun is allowed into the home in winter when desired.

Although a deciduous tree means that you might have to "clean-up" the fallen leaves, you should also consider the possibility of just letting the leaves lay there. After all, in the forest, the dropped and decaying leaves are what provides "food" for the trees, season after season.

Yard spaces vary, and everyone's needs vary surprised that I cut down a few trees that didn't fit as well. After I've selected natives for my yard, the next consideration is whether or not I want to grow some of my own food in my own yard. There are quite a few good choices for Southern California, and you should begin by making a list of those foods you enjoy eating. Then, cross off all that don't grow well here in Southern California. My short list for this area includes avocadoes (each variety has different fruiting patterns), apples (Anna and Beverly Hills do well here), Santa Rosa plum, all citrus, figs, loquats, etc.

Regardless of where you live, there are local absorb water. However, if you must cut one down, weather patterns and wind patterns that can affect the hard wood is good for building projects (like the trees that you grow in your property. Before purchasing and planting new trees, you should consider the lay of your land, wind patterns, sun exposure, soil type, and perhaps dominant trees in the area. If you're like me, you'll want to plant for the long term, to create a mini-environment which creates a pleasant living condition, is easy to care for, and produces food and fragrance for

DEALING WITH TUESDAY, THE WORST DAY OF THE WEEK

The worst day of the week for me is Monday. That wife. means that I'm starting a new week and usually I have to start from scratch. All the things around

I cannot wait until the weekend gets here. It is the weekend where I can enjoy myself the most.

I know on Sunday, the best day of the week for me, I enjoy fellowshipping with other believers and preaching the word of God. I do not claim to be the best preacher in the world, I just love preaching. When Sunday comes around, I have an opportunity to preach.

The rest of the week, however, is really a drag. It was Tuesday morning and I was a little down, drinking my coffee rather slowly and the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage looked at me and said quite sternly, "What's wrong with you?"

It is a simple question and deserves a simple answer. From my point of view, it's not really that

Tuesday is not really Monday, which is a little better. However, Tuesday is not Wednesday either. Tuesday is a very slow day in my week and, do not quote me here, but I think there are at least 30 hours on Tuesday. At least 30. Probably more.

No matter what I do on Tuesday, it has nothing whatsoever to do with getting me to the weekend. Not only is this the slowest day of the week, but it is the least productive.

If I do not do very much on Monday, I can always blame the fact that it's Monday and I am just getting started. Tuesday I can't say that. Monday should prepare me for Tuesday and Tuesday should be the most productive day of my week. Either, I'm not using Monday as I should or, Tuesday is just a bad day for me.

I still did not know how to answer my wife. I was so gloomy that I really did not have any way to explain why I was so gloomy.
"Why," my wife said, "Tuesday is my favorite day of the week."

I just looked at her in my gloomy attire, grunted and couldn't say anything to her.

"I can get more done on Tuesday than any day of the week," she boasted.

I do admit she gets a lot done on Tuesday, but that has nothing whatsoever to do with me. She is the most talented multitasker I have ever known. She can handle up to a dozen projects simultaneously. Get her going, and she does not know how to stop.

If I had her talent, I could conquer the world. However, after all, it's only Tuesday and I was a

On Monday, I can say I worked hard over the weekend and deserve to take a little bit of a rest. Nobody would worry about that not even my

But Tuesday? There is no excuse I have ever made that justifies not doing something on a me that annoy me, make me itchy and I have to Tuesday, I know because I have tried everyone on Tuesday is the dead point in my week. On Monday, for example, I can relax and just think about what I did over the weekend and how my I cannot do that on a Tuesday. The weekend is already over and the next weekend is far down the road. I can sit in my chair, sigh deeply and think about how soon the weekend will get here. It could be that as you get older your brain does not function as much as it did when you were younger. I wonder if that is a good excuse? "Oh," I could say to my wife, "I'm getting older now and my brain doesn't function as it once did. I got to slow down a little bit." She could look at me and say, "Your brain never functioned as long as I've known you. It has nothing whatsoever to do with how old you are. It has everything to do with a nonfunctioning

So, I'm not going to give her an opportunity to opinionize on the functionality of my brain. My brain works enough to know that I better let that I have a lot of guilt on a Tuesday. I should be doing things, but I just cannot get the focus on what I should be doing. I'm looking down the week and I vaguely see Saturday approaching. It is so far down the road I am not sure I am going to get it in time. In time for what? I don't know.

At least on Wednesday the week is half over. Monday means a new week has started, but Tuesday does not mean anything.

I was sitting in my chair drinking some coffee when my wife comes up and saw me and asked me, "Do you have anything to do?"

Since my brain functioning was limited because of my age, I quickly responded, "No."

Before I realized what I had said, I was in deep trouble. My wife said, "Good, you can help me with some chores today."

As she led me to the garage, I thought of the Scripture, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest" (Ecclesiastes 9:10).

The weekend cannot come soon enough for

The Market Action Index has been trending down lately, while inventory and days-on-market are climbing. The trends imply a weakening market.

Supply and Demand

The market has been cooling over time and prices plateaued for a while. Despite the consistent decrease in MAI, we're in the Seller's zone. Watch for changes in MAI. If the MAI resumes it's climb, prices will likely follow suit. If the MAI drops consistently or falls into the Buyer's zone, watch for downward pressure on prices.

The Market Action Index answers the question "How's the Market?" by measuring the current rate of sale versus the amount of the inventory. Index above 30 implies Seller's Market conditions. Below 30, conditions favor the buyer.

AN EXCITING SATURDAY AT THE GREAT RACE PLACE!

By Joan Schmidt

Last Saturday, Bob and I went to Santa Anita; there were two great Stakes races. My favorite Frenchman, Flavien Pratt, took the "Santa Anita Stakes" on Queen Blossom; in addition he had THREE other wins on Passionate Reward, Duranga and Skelton Pass. Joe Talamo won the "Californian Stakes" on Dr. Dorr with a SEVEN-AND A-HALF LENGTH lead! This beautiful horse is owned by Jill Baffert, wife of trainer, Bob. It was surprising that many of the favored horses didn't win. We were happy to see 10 year old Soi Phet, who unfortunately didn't win; however Kent Desourmeaux was victorious on an Irish-bred horse, Oscar Dominquez. Kent wore green and white silks, and his black boots with a green stripe around them; when I congratulated Kent, he quipped, "It was the matching boots". Kent is truly a nice guy and what a sense of humor!

Other winners were Joe on Pappou; Drayden Van Dyke, Cute Knows Cute; Octavio Vergara Jr., Over Promised; and Geovanni Franco, Fender Bender and Loving Lynda. Sunday was a great racing day also. Tyler Baze had a

"hat trick"-wins on War Heroine, Foxtail and Belvoir Bay; Apprentice Franklin Ceballos, Jr. won twice-on Tell Me More and Eagle Screams. The other winners were: Santiago Gonzalez on Wild Lando, (wishing Santiago "Good Luck" as he's taking his tack to Canterbury Park in Minnesota), Edwin Maldonado on Sturdy One, Joe Talamo on Smiling Angelo and Kyle Frey on King Cause.

Among new faces in the Jockey Colony is Apprentice Asa Espinosa, Victor's nephew who hails from Mexico City. The other successful apprentice is Venezuelan Good Magic (12-1) 7. Justify (3-1) 8. Lone Sailor (50-Franklin Ceballos, Jr.. Franklin's dad was a jockey and Jr. 1) 9. Hot Bug (20-1) 10. My Boy Jack(30-1) 11. began riding at the early age of 5, as a jockey in Pony Races, which I never heard of before!

I met Octavio Vegara Jr.; his father, Octavio Sr., also was a jockey, whose career spanned from 1986-2011 with a 10,000+ wins career. Junior, a native of Torrance, CA, began racing in 2013.

The big excitement is this year's Kentucky Derby; May 5 is the big day! The Post Time is 3:40 PM back East! Turn to NBC at 11:30 am Pacific Time.

Jeff's Book Pics By Jeff Brown

Mom & Me & Mom by Maya Angelou

In this book the legendary author shares the deepest personal story of her life: her relationship with her mother. For the first time, Angelou reveals the triumphs and struggles of being the daughter of Vivian Baxter, an indomitable spirit whose petite size belied her larger-thanlife presence—a presence absent during much of Angelou's early life. When her marriage began to crumble, Vivian famously sent three-yearold Maya and her older brother away from their California home to live with their grandmother in Stamps, Arkansas. The subsequent feelings of abandonment stayed with Angelou for years, but their reunion, a decade later, began a story that has never before been told. Angelou dramatizes her years reconciling with the mother she preferred to simply call "Lady," revealing the profound moments that shifted the balance of love and respect between them. Delving into one of her life's most rich, rewarding, and fraught relationships, Mom & Me & Mom explores the healing and love that evolved between the two women over the course of their lives, the love that fostered Maya Angelou's rise from immeasurable depths to reach impossible heights.

Metaxas From bestselling author Eric Metaxas comes a brilliant and inspiring biography of the most influential man in modern history, Martin Luther, in time for the 500th anniversary of the ReformationOn All Hallow's Eve in 1517, a young monk named Martin Luther posted a document he hoped would spark an academic debate, but that instead ignited a conflagration that would forever destroy the world he knew. Five hundred years after Luther's now famous Ninety-five Theses appeared, Eric Metaxas, acclaimed biographer of the bestselling Bonhoeffer: Pastor, Martyr, Prophet, Spy and Amazing Grace: William Wilberforce and the Heroic Campaign to End Slavery, paints a startling portrait of the wild figure whose adamantine faith cracked the edifice of Western Christendom and dragged medieval Europe into the future. Written in riveting prose and impeccably researched, Martin Luther tells the searing tale of a humble man who, by bringing ugly truths to the highest seats of power, caused the explosion whose sound is still ringing in our ears. Luther's monumental

WHAT MAKES YOU AN AMERICAN? Photos by Gina Long

Told with humor and with important resonances to today, The Immigrant is based on a true story of a young Jew who fled the pogroms of Czarist Russia in 1909 and pushed his banana cart into the tiny Baptist community of Hamilton, Texas. FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

WHY NOT JUST GO ONLINE AND CREATE YOUR OWN ESTATE PLANNING DOCUMENTS CHEAPLY?

There are many software programs, as well as websites, that sell do-it-yourself estate planning documents. These websites and form creation tools seem to offer a convenient and costeffective alternative to consulting with an estate planning attorney. But will they really meet your needs and protect your family? Is online, do-ityourself estate planning worth the perceived upfront savings?

Penny Wise and Pound Foolish

In all but the simplest scenarios, do-it-yourself estate planning is risky at best and can become a costly substitute for comprehensive in-person planning with a professional legal advisor. Typically, these online programs and services have significant limitations when it comes to gathering the information needed to properly craft an estate plan. This can result in crucial defects that, sadly, won't become apparent until the situation becomes a legal and financial mess for your loved ones.

Creating your own estate plan without professional advice can also have unintended consequences. Bad or thoughtless documents can be invalid and/or useless when they are needed. For example, you can create a plan that has no instructions for when a beneficiary passes away or when a specific asset left to a loved one no longer exists. Ŷou may create a trust on your own but fail to fund it, resulting in your assets being tied up in probate courts, potentially for years. Worse yet, what you leave behind may then pass to those you did not intend.

more than the perfunctory attention offered by template documents. There are nuances which simply can't be adequately addressed in an off-the-shelf document. In addition, nontraditional families, or those with a complicated family arrangement, require more thorough estate planning. The options available in a doit-yourself system may not provide the solutions that are necessary. A computer program or website cannot replicate the intricate knowledge a qualified local estate planning attorney will have and use to apply to your particular circumstances.

If you're a person of significant wealth, then concerns about income and estate taxes enter the picture too. An online estate planning website or program that prepares basic wills without taking into account the size of the estate can result in hundreds of thousands of dollars in increased (and usually completely avoidable) tax liability. A qualified estate planning attorney will know how to structure your legal affairs to properly manage - or, in many cases, even avoid - the burden of the death tax as well as minimize the impact of ongoing income taxes.

One important aspect of estate planning is protecting adult children from the negative financial consequences of divorce, bankruptcy, lawsuits, or illness. An online planning tool will not take these additional steps into account when putting together what is usually a basic estate plan. Similarly, parents who have children or adult loved ones with special needs must take extra caution when planning. There are complicated rules regarding government benefits that must be considered, so these valuable benefits are not lost due to an inheritance.

Consult an Estate Planning Attorney

No matter how good a do-it-yourself estate planning document may seem, it is no substitute for personalized advice. Estate planning is more than just document production. In many cases, the right legal solution to your situation will not be adequately addressed by these do-ityourself products - affecting not just you, but generations to come.

THE LATEST FASHIONS & RELATIONSHIP MARKETING

What do the latest fashion crazes have in common with to encompass the adoption of a strategy that facilitates popular business jargon? As I watch reruns of television shows that were popular during my childhood, I'm amazed at how many of the hairstyles and clothing have been repeatedly introduced as one of the new looks in a plethora of magazines and blogs specializing in fashion. Loosely referred to as retro or vintage fashion, it is nothing more than a return to a look from the past that has been revamped and reintroduced as the latest and greatest thing to wear. After all, there are only so many ways to reconstruct trousers, tops, hats, dresses and undergarments.

Sometimes the remake is actually an improvement due to advances in technology, for example when fabrics that retained their colors after being washed were introduced, or when an entirely new branch of fabrics was launched with the introduction of polyester in 1951. The latter was indeed a revolution, providing clothing designers with the ability to create water-resistant raincoats and wrinkle-free fashions never before possible.

In similar fashion (pun intended), the world of business is filled with the introduction of new terms and concepts in research reports, news articles and online. Just like fashion, most of the fanfare surrounding the introduction of the latest trend serves as a distraction to the fact that the "new" item is nothing more than a remake of something that was in use more than fifty years ago.

"Relationship marketing" is a term that has received attention in business periodicals and articles since the late 1990's, and it is has now made a comeback as the new kid on the block to many readers. The term was initially defined as a type of marketing created from direct response campaigns that emphasized retaining and satisfying customers as opposed to a primary focus on generating sales transactions. A new and improved meaning has expanded beyond the original definition customer loyalty, interaction and long-term engagement.

These definitions are nothing more than a superfluous reference to excellent customer service, before, during and after a transaction. Good old-fashioned business etiquette is the framework within which relationship marketing operates. It begins with good manners and the development of a personal connection with each customer, including those online. Relationship marketing must move beyond the adoption of key words in a company's mission statement and become the reality of a company's practice.

An article in the January-February 1998 issue of the Harvard Business Review noted, "Relationship marketing is powerful in theory but troubled in practice." Consider the pervasive use of special introductory discounts that credit card companies or cable television companies offer to first-time customers, which completely ignoring customers who have spent thousands of dollars with them over many years. What does that type of business practice say about how those companies value relationships with its existing customers? A Forbes magazine article by Steve Olenski about business-to-business marketing (B2B) referenced a quote by a chief marketing officer who was speaking about the upcoming year, "We will see the beginning of what I refer to as 'the relationship' whereby marketers will move away from an acquisition first mentality to a relationship first one. Marketers will focus more on the entire consumer experience to build and foster a long term relationship with a consumer as opposed to just that initial purchase phase."

News alert! We've seen these characteristics on the runway before, and we're elated that the experts are touting them as the latest fashions. We can only hope that relationship marketing will take hold as more than a

ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION IN THE AGE OF TRUMP

The National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) has been called the Magna Carta of our nation's environmental laws. Passed in 1969, Congress designed NEPA to provide for environmentally informed decision-making and public outreach on the part of federal agencies. NEPA requires that all the consequences and potential environmental problems of an agency's actions must be carefully considered before an agency acts.

Though signed into law by President Richard Nixon, a Republican, the championing of environmental causes is more likely to be heard now on the Democratic side of the aisle. For instance, at the end of 2016, Democrats on the House Committee on Natural Resources accused Republicans of waging a "campaign to attack NEPA." The Democrats of the committee stated:

"NEPA has proven to be a remarkably effective tool for ensuring that people have a say in federal government decisions that could impact the places they live. Because of NEPA, the public has the ability to know in advance about major federal actions and the right to provide input and have their voices heard. Before NEPA, a disproportionate share of heavily polluting projects ended up being sited in poor and minority communities that lacked political connections."

President Donald J. Trump picked Scott Pruitt to head the EPA, a person who doesn't believe CO2 emissions are a primary contributor to climate change and who has been accused of working to "cripple the agency." With the election of President Trump, perhaps the world's most famous real estate developer, many in the environmental movement fear more than ever that environmental regulations will be on the chopping block.

When President Trump signed Executive Order 13766 and 13807, which called for shortening the environmental review process under NEPA for infrastructure projects, it seems the president sees environmental regulation only as unnecessary and burdensome "red tape" to be cut away. Many environmentalists expressed dismay that this "hacking" away at regulations is not helping the environment.

But does there exist a reason why Trump would embrace NEPA? I would argue there not only exists a reason why he'd embrace it but become its greatest

The effects of population growth on the environment are undeniable. When NEPA was first passed, only a modest portion of U.S. population growth was attributable to immigration. Today things are very different. Mass immigration drives American population growth almost entirely.

There was a time when environmental hardliners correctly connected the dots between population growth and its harmful impact on the environment. Sadly, those folks along with their views were pushed to the side decades ago. Moreover, environmental organizations have retreated from the topic, knowing that their own big donors and Democratic politicians want unrestrained immigration policies.

The connection among immigration, population growth and the environment may be conservationists' best chance of preserving our nation's bedrock environmental law. NEPA has never been applied to immigration policy, although the law contains no waiver for immigration. On the contrary, DHS implements mass immigration programs leading to the importation of tens of millions of foreign nationals without any environmental review whatsoever.

There is no justification under the law for this neglect!

If the administration were to be the first to apply NEPA to the nation's immigration programs, it would only further Trump's agenda. The public has only a poor understanding of the connection between the environment and immigration. The use of NEPA would allow those "poor and minority communities lacking political connections" to finally weigh in on how mass immigration affects the quality of their daily lives and their environment - the expressed concern of open border proponents who claim to want to protect the public against environmental degradation. Indeed, the public should have been allowed to do so before the nation's immigration agencies implemented their programs. Until this is done, the Trump Administration should pause these programs.

Our current system is mass immigration on autopilot with no analysis of the environmental consequences. NEPA does not allow this. Neither should President

THE GROWING ART OF AMERICAN CURSING

Get this: the average American can't get through the day without

So is the finding of a recent 9Round Kickbox Fitness survey, as reported in the New York Post. Why are Americans cursing so much? One reason is stress.

Fifty six percent of survey respondents say financial worries are their biggest source of stress. A lack of sleep (36 percent), health concerns (35 percent), work (30 percent), the environment (9 percent) and our $20 trillion deficit (4 percent) are other sources of

The survey didn't explore politics, but the names "Trump" and "Pelosi" are generating an explosion of salty-tongued originality across our great land.

Whatever the source of our stress, cursing DOES relieve it.

A 2011 Keele University study, reports Forbes, found that yelling out curse words increases pain and stress tolerance. Volunteers were asked to hold their hands in freezing-cold water twice. The first time, they shouted curse words. The second time they used inoffensive phrases. Each volunteer was able to keep his or her hands in the cold water longer while cursing.

"The researchers found that the enraged yelling raised the heart rate, which, they hypothesize, means that the yelling triggered a fight-or-flight response, 'downplaying feebleness in favor of a more pain-tolerant machismo.'

That's one reason why, concluded the researchers, that "swearing has been around for centuries and is an almost universal human linguistic phenomenon." Cursing has certainly improved my capacity to deal with stress. I studied cussing under the tutelage of my father, now 85, a maestro in the art form. He perfected his skills while attempting plumbing repairs in our home. Over the years, cursing has helped me ease the pain of financial setbacks, a broken heart and unpleasant co-workers. On a daily basis, it helps me cope with people who write checks in front of me at the grocery store and moronic drivers who drive too slowly in the passing lane.

But the question is, why are so many Americans cursing these days?

Some argue that it reflects a breakdown in manners and civility and a growing coarseness in our culture. San Diego State University psychologist Jean M. Twenge offers a more intriguing theory.

According to the National Post, Twenge conducted a 2017 study that explored how the use of the "seven dirty words" featured in comedian George Carlin's 1972 monologue, Seven Words You Can Never Say on Television," changed in literature between 1950

Twenge found that the rise in profanity was dramatic — she measured a 28-fold increase between 2005 and 2008. She said the increase can be blamed on growing individualism, which is "a cultural system that emphasizes the self more and social rules

Twenge says that "as social rules fell by the wayside, and people were told to express themselves, swearing became more common."

That makes perfect sense to me.

Whereas younger generations are being taught to freely express their innermost feelings and frustrations using words that were once considered taboo, prior generations were taught the opposite.

When I was a kid in the 70s, we knew we were pushing the line if we used words such as "son of a gun," "gadzooks" and "h-e-double-hockey-sticks."

If we got caught using real curse words, we'd be enjoying a bar of Dove soap for

In any event, now that cursing is no longer considered taboo, I see one big problem. As more people cuss freely, curse words will lose their shock value and their capacity to relieve our stress. The h-e-double-hockey-sticks with that!

STATE DEPARTMENT SHUTS OUT lacksquareKIDS FROM SUMMER JOBS

With summer just weeks away, teenagers and college students looking for seasonal employment will have to compete with the annual influx of international workers.

The State Department's Summer Work Travel Program (SWT) will once again, as it has for decades, provide an unlimited number of J-1 visas to young foreign nationals who will come to the U.S. to work at a variety of jobs. The State Department defends

SWT as a valuable cultural exchange tool when in reality it's a cheap labor bonanza for employers. The jobs include lifeguarding, waiting tables at resorts, guiding tourists through national parks, scooping ice cream and providing child care as au pairs. These are jobs that most American kids would eagerly do, given the opportunity.

But since the J-1 has no prevailing wage requirement, employers can pay the visa holders lower wages than those U.S. workers earn in similar occupations and in the same geographic region. Furthermore, employers are exempt from paying the Social Security, Medicare, federal and state unemployment taxes on J-1visa holders who are often required to work overtime without extra compensation.

Because international students pay an average of about $1,100 in fees to private organizations that sponsor their participation in the program, the program generates well over $100 million in annual revenues for those organizations. Participants pay out millions more in visa fees to the State Department, and in travel expenses to and from the U.S. In the end, sponsors pay government dues to be part of the program; students pay the fees associated with the program and their own roundtrip travel expenses; employers pay nothing. Many unsuspecting SWTs return home disillusioned, often with little money saved.

The State Department's failure to oversee its own program has led to multiple instances of exploitation like last year's Myrtle Beach case. Ten Dominican Republic college students were promised jobs at an Italian ice shop, plus adequate accommodations, but ended up keeping house and living in a bed bug-infested motel. Similar abuses have been documented in Virginia, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Mississippi.

Last year, The Wall Street Journal reported the Trump administration is considering reducing the number of visas issued under SWT. And as usual when employment-based visas are scrutinized with an eye toward cutting the total granted, businesses cry foul and falsely predict that without cheap foreign labor they'll go

Yet, despite well-deserved and documented criticism from labor experts who point to multiple SWT flaws, the program carries on year after year even though the unemployment rate among young Americans, and especially minorities, is high. Last summer, a survey showed that teens were about three times as likely to be unemployed as other Americans.

A few takeaways: serving gelato or waiting tables on the Boardwalk can't reasonably be considered cultural exchange. If employers offered decent wages and working conditions, they'd have little trouble attracting American kids. Moreover, shutting Americans out of the labor market has negative long-term consequences. Unemployed young adults don't learn how to interact with their peers or their often demanding bosses. They don't acquire essential work qualities like timeliness and accountability that will lead to a productive career.

The most obvious and important conclusion of all to draw from SWT is that the federal government cannot enact or efficiently monitor any type of immigration legislation that helps American workers.
