PROPOSITION 2018 WATER RATES INCREASE BALLOTS MAILED

The Sierra Madre City Council authorized city staff to proceed with the Prop 218 process at its last meeting. Water users in the city will vote on whether or not to approve the proposed rate changes. To that end, the ballots arrived this week in the mailboxes of all ratepayers.

The City's water distribution system is comprised of 47.6 miles of pipeline, a large majority of which is over 70 years beyond useful life. The increased amount of water main leaks, totaling approximately 600 in 2016, is directly attributed to the age of the pipes (Bucknam & Associates, 2018).

California Proposition 218 requires that a public agency proposing a new or increased property-related fee or charge provide written notice by mail to the owner of each parcel upon which the fee or charge will be imposed. This notice was mailed to the address of each parcel number in Sierra Madre as well as to the owner's address of each parcel in Sierra Madre.

A Public Hearing is set for July 31, 2018 on the matter of a proposed water rate increase. The Hearing will be held at 6:30 pm in City Hall Council Chambers at 232 W. Sierra Madre Blvd., Sierra Madre, CA

SIERRA MADRE CIVIC CLUB - CONFETTI EGGS

Sierra Madre Civic Club is a not-for-profit, community service organization that was founded by a small group of women in 1944. Since that time, Civic Club has grown to over a hundred members of all ages who are committed to creating a better community. Civic Club members raise money throughout the year that is re-invested in the community through philanthropic donations to local projects and organizations, as well as fund education awards to local high school seniors. One such fund raining event is Confetti Eggs sales.

Last week members filled over 300 dozen eggs with confetti. Confetti-filled eggs will be sold July 3rd in Memorial Park as part of Sierra Madre 4th of July activities. KATIE TseThis and That SUMMER TIME... AND THE JELL-O IS NASTY...

Happy Summer! I love flavors. summer. It's light late, the late May, I get to sleep in almost every day. With creative, like write for this paper or try out a new how olives, radishes, and cabbage looked recipe. I'm all over the former, but the latter is suspended all together in a gelatinous mass.

been reworked to include snarky sayings. One get any worse, the recipe specifies the cheese as of my favorites is of a stylish woman on a sofa with the caption "A" woman's work is never done... at this house it's rarely started." I can relate to the couch sitting part, not the stylish part so much. Another good one is of a smiling couple with the caption "I'm lucky I don't!" Totally us.

So the other day I was visiting my parents and my mom was looking for cookie recipes in one of my grandmother's old cookbooks. It is a well-loved volume stuffed with handwritten cards and pages torn from magazines. In her cookie quest, she came across four pages of "Salad Secrets," basically an ad for Jell-O. Some of their suggestions sounded fine, like rolling a ball of cream cheese Patio Salad" is the one with Worcestershire in crushed cereal and nuts as an appetizer with in the emoji swirl molds, but you could use crackers or vegetable sticks. But some of the whatever shape you want). other secrets should have stayed secrets. ("What happens in the 50's stays in the 50's.")

Most of the Jello-O creations came in fanciful molds. Some looked like your typical bundt cake, some looked like little castles, and some looked like the emoji "poop" swirl you're used to seeing on your phone. Another thing they had like to see his face!" he said, "You should take in common was that they all used either lime a picture." "Won't work, Dad," I told him. "He or lemon Jell-O. That's cool, I dig both those of knows I never cook. Not even Jell-O."

What wasn't cool, however, were the weather's nice for the most suggested additions, such as avocado, shredded part, and since the school where I work ends in cabbage, chives, hard-boiled egg, radishes, and Worcestershire sauce -- of all things. Each recipe free time on my hands, I should do something was photographed, in case the reader wondered probably not going to happen. It's not that I'm The worst-sounding recipe of all combined lime against cooking, it's more that I'm against effort. Jell-O with vinegar, grated onion, celery, stuffed I love those retro advertisements that have olives, and cubed cheese. Just as if it couldn't "processed." One wonders why the authors felt free to experiment with weird ingredients, but felt constrained to use either the lemon or lime flavors.

While most of these creations had descriptive titles, such as "Cabbage Grapefruit Salad" or "Jellied Potato Salad" (another mustmiss, but at least there'll be no surprise about what's in it), someone got creative with naming the other dishes (e.g., "Sea Dream Salad" which as far as I can tell, is Jell-O with cucumbers served over salad greens with a salmon salad mayonnaise mixture. "Cranberry Come-On" actually had the least repulsive list of ingredients. "Jell-O

It was fairly entertaining to read these and other recipes from a bygone era. My dad had the idea that I should play a practical joke on my husband and show him one of the recipes when he got home and tell him that I already made it that day and it was chilling in the fridge. "I'd just Morley Safer, Canadian Journalist You're a monster, Mr. Grinch. Your heart's an empty hole, your brain is full of spiders, you've got garlic in your soul, Mr. Grinch!" Dr. Seuss. Garlic lowers blood sugar, reduces cholesterol, is an antioxidant, an antibiotic, prevents blood clots, strengthens the immune system, inhibits cancer, fights respiratory diseases, detoxifies, is rich in manganese and vitamin B6, has been shown to help with the metabolizing of iron, and is an aphrodisiac.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE... The Social Side By Deanne Davis

That last one applies only if you and whomever you are romancing both ate the garlic dish. In the United States, California is the major garlic producing state, followed by Nevada and Oregon. The value of U.S. garlic production has steadily increased, reaching a record $286.8 million in 2011. Really, you're saying...and why, exactly are we talking about garlic? Last Monday I was driving back from Arizona where I had spent a delightful week hanging out with my Arizona family and granddaughters Jessie, who is 10, and Emily who will be 8 next to their swimming lesson and admired their floating month. We saw The Incredibles, which was fun, went techniques, went out to lunch every day, and spent Father's Day celebrating their daddy, Chris. Arizona sunsets are beyond vivid and seem to last for hours. So! Driving back to Sierra Madre, I was passing semi after semi, with attached trailer filled with garlic and, even with my A/C on, the heady garlic scent wafted right into my car, reminding me of a lamb dish I cooked a few times early in my marriage to the adorable John, who never complained about anything I cooked, except once when I made pork chops covered with cranberry sauce. He liked the olive oil, salt and pepper. Cut one head of garlic in half crosswise and then break the other into cloves, leaving them unpeeled. Place the lamb in an oiled roasting pan with the onions, potatoes and ALL the garlic, and bake, uncovered for 30 minutes. Reduce the temperature to 225. Whisk the tomato paste into the red wine and add to the pan (Yes, the chef can have another sip or two at this point.) along with the rosemary and bay leaves, cover tightly with foil and bake for 3-1/2 – 4 hours until fork tender. Strain the sauce into a bowl and chill in the fridge

Heat the oven to 425. Rub the lamb shoulder with for one hour then remove that top layer of fat. Cover that luscious tender lamb and the veggies and keep warm. Bring the sauce to a boil in a small pan, whisk in the butter and pour it back in with the lamb.

When you're ready to serve, reheat the lamb in the sauce, then gently slice the meat and serve it with the potatoes, onions, garlic cloves and the sauce.

See what happens when you're on a long car ride? And you're hungry? I'm not an especially big fan of garlic, but this lamb was GOOD!

Man stabbed during home invasion robbery

Police are asking for the public's help after releasing a sketch of one of two suspects wanted for a home invasion robbery and stabbing Sunday that left a Pasadena man with multiple stab wounds.

According to police and news reports, two suspects broke into a home in the 1900 block of East Villa Street just before 2 a.m. A man and woman were in the home at the time. The woman was in bed while her boyfriend worked on his computer.

The suspects demanded money and valuables, steeling cash, a computer, cellphones, and the woman purse. During the robbery, the man was struck in the head with a gun and stabbed multiple times with a knife.

The woman described one of the men as dressed in back with a bandana across his face. Police are looking for a 19 to 24 year-old male Black, 5 feet 11 inches. No description of the other suspect was given.

The man was taken to a nearby hospital in stable condition. The woman was not hurt.

Sierra Madre-Pasadena-Altadena-

CITY WORKS TO FIND BALANCED SOLUTIONS AS WE ENTER A HOUSING DEVELOPMENT RENAISSANCE

Here in Southern California, we are faced with the daunting reality that things are about to get a lot more crowded. Based on the latest demographic projections available, in the next 25-year planning period, the SCAG region (which includes LA County, Orange County, San Bernardino County, Riverside County, Ventura County, and Imperial County) will, through natural growth patterns unrelated to immigration, add the equivalent population of the states of Oregon and Washington...

That's around 11 million more people in the greater Southern California region!

Against that backdrop, California is in the midst of a true housing crisis. An oft-cited report published by McKinsey Global Institute illustrated the depths of the housing crunch here in the Golden State, where real estate prices are rising 3x faster than household income... where 50% of the State's population cannot afford housing... where California needs to build 3.5 million more homes by 2025 to truly stabilize the housing situation.

And here in Monrovia, we're impacted by these broader housing trends facing the State. Because did you know... here in our City, the average rent for an apartment these days is around $3 / square foot.

$3 / square foot... which means that a 1,000 square foot apartment will cost you $3,000 per month in rent.

That's just not okay. While there are many different proposed solutions to the housing issues we're faced with today, there is only one for which there is near universal agreement... and that is the need for a massive increase in the supply of available housing in order to stabilize costs. Because unless we address the housing scarcity issue, we will not be able to make an impact on the overall problem of housing

For us here in Monrovia, we have been planning for this increase in housing during the past 20+ years. Our initial ideas were developed through a 2004 Urban Land Institute Study commissioned by the City. Those concepts were then codified in a 2008 General Plan Update that created areas of focused housing density in the edges surrounding Old Town, at Station Square, and on the west end of Huntington Drive. Finally, in 2014, the City adopted the Station Square Transit Village Planned Development Area to allow for greater housing densities around our Gold Line Station. And now, during the next several months, all of those plans will be coming to life as Monrovia is set to consider several large residential development projects that truly do reflect our community's long term plans and vision for the City. All told, there are currently around 2,200 housing units / rooms in the development pipeline, which constitutes a 15% increase in our total housing supply. The map below outlines the location of these proposed development projects in the City.

Now in the next few months (from June 2018 – September 2018), the City will be considering three major projects that will feature close to 600 units / hotel rooms (highlighted in blue in the map above -Richman Development, Marriott TownePlace Suites, and AvalonBay). Certainly, without proper context, these eyepopping numbers can be somewhat startling, and may elicit a strong initial reaction. Because when dealing with policies related to growth, housing, and development, the issues often times end up pitting two sides against one

On the one extreme, there are those who advocate for no-growth... that is, until we have more water, clean air, and no traffic, we should not allow any development whatsoever. And on the other extreme, you have those who advocate for a pure free-market approach... that government should allow developers to build whatever ey want, so long as the market will allow for it.

Here in our community, what we've been working on for the past 20+ years is to find a better way... a more balanced way... a true Monrovia way... in order to solve the pressing challenges facing our City. And in an effort to offset the impacts associated with new development, the City has instituted several new policies and programs to mitigate growth issues that could erode the quality of life in our community.

First, on the environmental front... the City recently adopted a New Development Water Rate, which will require that any new project adding 5 or more units to the City pay the full cost of importing water from outside the region for their use. This New Development Water Rate means that any new development projects will have to pay an effective water rate that is 34.4% more expensive than the normal water rate that current Monrovians are charged. This policy enhancement will ensure that our existing residents and businesses are not forced to bear the added cost of importing more water into the City to serve a new population base.

Next, on the service delivery front... the City has adopted a policy that will allow us to create Mello-Roos Districts that overlay on significant new development projects. Through this policy, all significant new developments will be required to pay an extra property tax assessment annually to offset the increased costs for police and fire services that are necessitated when major projects are constructed.

And finally, on the traffic front... the City recently instituted a new model of suburban mobility that provides Monrovians with simple, easy, and cheap public transportation options to combat increasing traffic and parking congestion trends. The program we developed, which is called GoMonrovia, provides enhanced public transportation options provided through Lyft and LimeBike. Under the GoMonrovia initiative, individuals have access to $0.50 Lyft rides anywhere in our service area. In addition, the partnership developed with LimeBike has resulted in the deployment of dockless, shareable bikes located throughout town that can be accessed for $1.00 for a 30-minute ride.

During the next several months, as Monrovia contemplates the significant development projects that have been proposed here in our community, we do hope that you stay informed and stay involved with the issues at hand. All of us here at the City have been working hard to try and find balanced solutions to the most important issues of our day. Because while we do have to make sure that we have strong environmental policies, and while we need to develop premier mobility / transportation options for our residents... we also have to find a way to do our part to address the severe housing crisis we are confronted with today. ANIMALS IN OUR OWN WORDS and if we happen to strike up a conversation along the way, you can be sure the topic of our talk will be, in some way, related to animals.

There is a reason why, after years of working in an office or on a construction site, I chose to occupy my time with the fine furry felines and kind canines in my community. If you ask me, more prestigious position than that of simply being beside a beloved pet.

I share my feelings about the importance of animals in this column every week and I imagine there are some readers who think I am quite a character (or perhaps a few other choice adjectives), for the way I refer to them as God's gift to mankind. That's okay with me. I will always stand strong on my conviction that God created all animals for an express purpose far and away beyond what we simple humans can fully fathom.

I once heard someone say the reason why dogs live such short lives compared to humans is because when God created all beings, he determined that each would be allowed into dogs 'get it' a lot sooner than humans do!

This week I thought I'd share a list of quotes from some of my fellow animal lovers, including a few words inspired by the Creator Himself. I often subscribe to such sayings in my daily life and I am pleased that there have been numerous folks throughout history who've had experiences similar to my own when it comes to understanding and appreciating what the animals have to offer.

Some of these quotes are rather whimsical in nature while others are more austere, but they interpretation; That the animals have made their mark in a very special way, both in our hearts and on this earth. I've always wanted to try writing a novel. I've even tried a few times, but I either didn't have the patience to take it all the way to the end, or I didn't have the imagination for a cogent story. Then one night I had a dream. I was visiting a friend of mine up at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) complex in the foothills of Altadena. Something was happening, and we were being chased by some unseen threatening entities. We ran eventually founded Scientology. Other local lore

Jack Parsons figures large as part of local lore -- he was one of the early developers of JPL, who had a dark side. As a follower of Aleister Crowley, Parsons was known to hold satanic rituals in his South Orange Grove home. Additionally, Parson's most famous roommate was one L.Ron Hubbard, who ran away with Parson's girlfriend, and through what seemed to be underground parking structures, and after a while, the tunnels opened up into a green wilderness area where there were grassy plains and lots of trees. In the dream, I knew I could run there and be safe. As I exited the JPL tunnel, I looked up and saw the number "16" embossed on the cement wall. I don't recall what happened next in the dream. Later that day, I called my friend who works at JPL and asked, "Is there a tunnel 16 at your work site?" "Hmmm?" my friend responded. "I don't think so." Eventually, I was taken on a tour of JPL, and got to look at the Mars yard, and the entrances to various corridors and tunnels, but nothing like I saw in my dream. Regardless, little by little, I created a young character, Rick, and told the tale of how Rick accidentally discovered the hidden and secretive tunnels of Altadena. I used my knowledge of the physical terrain of Pasadena and includes the Angeles Forest as the so-called "forest of disappearing children," and the shaman's cave found by Dorothy Poole in Descanso Gardens. Rick begins to interact with a JPL security worker, Frank Landry, partly based on a real person, and Landry tries to unravel the mystery of the tunnel before having to report it to his superiors. Actual names and places are used throughout the book, which local residents will recognize.

Even famous skeptic Michael Shermer appears in this book, and also appears in the "Sinkhole 102" sequel. I enjoyed writing the book, and I was partly inspired by the fast-moving Hardy Boys novels, which I always enjoyed. A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder for the last several months. At first, I did not think it too serious but alas, we have reached a terrible

It started a few months ago when I came home, walked into the house and was hit in the face so hard I almost passed out. At the time, I was hoping I would pass out, but no such luck. I think everybody knows what it is like to be hit unexpectedly by something you do not actually expect. I guess that is why it is called unexpectedly. It happened to me and I am not sure I am over it yet.

Even though I have been married 46 years, of which most of it has been happily, I did not see this one coming. Just when you think you have your spouse figured out, they do something off the radar. Every husband knows exactly what I am talking about.

This makes it hard to buy Christmas and birthday presents. What they liked last year is not what they like this year. I remember buying my wife a watch one year for Christmas of which she was so delighted that for the next four years after I bought her a watch for Christmas. How was I supposed to know she only wanted one watch!

I think we hit one of those impasses.

Walking into the house, I was hit with the horrific smell of broccoli cooking on the stove. I do not know if you ever smelt such a smell as that but if you are not prepared for it and even if you are prepared for it, it can smack you in the face like you have never been smacked in the face before.

When I came to myself and gathered what little composure I could find, I queried the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage who was in the kitchen.

"What is that awful smell?" "I don't know, have you taken a shower yet?"

After being married for 46 years, I know when to respond to a question and when not to. I knew if I responded to this question the way I wanted to respond to this question, the smell of broccoli would be the least of my worries at the time.

'No," I said gathering a little bit of manliness about me, "Something in this house smells dreadful. I smelled it as soon as I walked in the door." Then she chuckled. I hate it when she chuckles.

Oh, that must be the wonderful aroma of broccoli cooking on the stove. Isn't it marvelous?" Adhering to my rules about questions, I tossed that one aside and opted for another one. 'You're not cooking broccoli for supper tonight, are you?"

I was hoping she would catch my attitude of disdain and disgust in this question. Obviously, for whatever reason, she did not catch the drift.

"Yes," she said as chipper as I have ever heard her

A certain situation has been building in the Parsonage chip, "I thought I would surprise you with a wonderful dish of broccoli for supper tonight, to go along with our pork chops." Can you live with a person for so long and not know what they like or do not like? Nobody has to be around me for five minutes before they will understand that broccoli and I have had a feud that has been going on since before the Hatfield's and McCoy's.

"But I thought you knew I do not like broccoli?"

"Oh, that," she said with another chuckle, "I just thought you were joking." Nobody jokes about broccoli, especially me.

Then a brilliant idea reverberated between my ears. thought I could take advantage of this situation and sneak in something forbidden in our kitchen and "I will then run to the store and get some fresh Apple Fritters for our dessert."

house for that matter, a rare delicacy.

I figured if she wants to put in front of me broccoli the least she can do is allow me an Apple Fritter or

In a moment, all the chipper drained from her person and she looked at me and said, "Apple Fritters are not allowed in this house."

"Let's negotiate," I said as calmly as I have ever been in my life. "I will allow you to eat broccoli tonight if you allow me an Apple Fritter for my dessert." I wonder if there is a husband living today, that has ever successfully negotiated with his wife. "This is how we will negotiate, we will have broccoli tonight without any Apple Fritter. I am only thinking of your health." The way she glared at me I knew negotiations were off the table at this time and in its place was some steaming broccoli. What I am going to do is sneak behind her back and eat two, not one but two, Apple Fritters and I will savor

If only we could act like grownups, come together, voice our differences and strike a compromise. After all, our government works that way.

I thought about this and came to a certain conclusion. The Christian life is not really negotiating your preference but rather honoring Christ. Jesus said, For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them" (Matthew 18:20 KJV).

When self is at the center of my negotiations, Christ is never honored.

THANK THE MOON FOR EARTH'S LENGTHENING DAY

For anyone who has ever wished there were more hours in the day, geoscientists have some good news: Days on Earth are getting longer.

A new study that reconstructs the deep history of our planet's relationship to the Moon shows that 1.4 billion years ago, a day on Earth lasted just over 18 hours. This is at least in part because the Moon was closer and changed the way the Earth spun around

"As the Moon moves away, the Earth is like a spinning figure skater who slows down as they stretch their arms out," explains Stephen Meyers, professor of geoscience at the University of Wisconsin-Madison and co-author of the study published June 4 in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

It describes a tool, a statistical method, that links astronomical theory with geological observation (called astrochronology) to look back on Earth's geologic past, reconstruct the history of the solar system and understand ancient climate change as captured in the rock record.

One of our ambitions was to use astrochronology to tell time in the most distant past, to develop very ancient geological time scales," Meyers says. "We want to be able to study rocks that are billions of years old in a way that is comparable to how we study modern geologic processes."

Earth's movement in space is influenced by the other astronomical bodies that exert force on it, like other planets and the Moon. This helps determine variations in the Earth's rotation around and wobble on its axis, and in the orbit the Earth traces around the Sun.

These variations are collectively known as Milankovitch cycles and they determine where sunlight is distributed on Earth, which also means they determine Earth's climate rhythms. Scientists history of the Moon. like Meyers have observed this climate rhythm in the rock record, spanning hundreds of millions of

THE GOOD LIFE

TIPS FOR LIVING WITH LOW VISION

Dear Savvy Senior,

What resources can you recommend to help seniors with vision loss? My husband, who's 76, has macular degeneration that has progressed to the point that he can't do a lot of his routine activities anymore, and has become very discouraged.

Looking for Help

Dear Looking,

Unfortunately, there are around 15 million Americans, like your husband, living with macular degeneration today. Over time, this progressive disease can rob people of their central vision, making everyday tasks like driving a car, reading the newspaper or watching television extremely challenging. Here are some resources that can help.

Low Vision Help

The best place to get help living and coping with macular degeneration is at a vision rehabilitation agency or clinic. Typically run by state or nonprofit organizations, or private eye care clinics, there are more than 1,500 of these services scattered across the country that help people who are living with all types of uncorrectable vision impairments. Most state and nonprofit vision rehabilitation services are free or lowcost, while private clinics typically charge a fee or may accept Medicare.

While vision rehabilitation does not restore lost sight, it does help people maximize their existing sight, or, if and tools to help them maintain an independent

Services include counseling, along with training on Other Resources how to perform daily living tasks with low vision, and how to use visual and adaptive devices and assistive technologies that can help improve quality of life.

They also offer guidance for adapting your home that will make it safer and easier for your husband to maneuver, and can help him locate low-vision support groups. Some agencies will even send their specialist out to work with him in the comfort of your own home.

To find a vision rehabilitation service in your area, call the American Foundation for the Blind referral line at 800-232-5463 or visit VisionAware.org/directory. Or, if you use a smartphone or tablet, download their VisionConnect app (see AFB.org/VisionConnect), which connects you to all types of low-vision resources author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

İf, however, you don't live near a vision rehabilitation service, you can also get help from an occupational therapist (OT), who can provide low vision training in your home. Medicare, if prescribed by your eye doctor or healthcare provider, covers this.

Online Help

Another convenient place to find help for your husband is online at VisionAware.org. This free website, created by the American Foundation for the Blind and the Reader's Digest Partners for Sight Foundation, is designed to help older adults who are losing their sight.

It provides information on eye conditions, along with dozens of practical tips and instructional videos on living with vision loss, including concepts for adapting your home to make it easier to navigate, techniques for traveling safely outside the home, and various tips on how to manage things like finances, medications, and other tasks like cooking, cleaning, grooming, reading, writing and more. It also offers a comprehensive list of low vision products and technologies that can help your husband stay active and independent, including product reviews they have no vision, it can equip them with techniques that are published in their online magazine called AccessWorld that you can access at AFB.org/aw.

Some other good resources that can help include: the Hadley Institute (Hadley.edu, 800-323-4238), which offers dozens of free online instructional videos to help the blind or visually impaired live independently. Ears for Eyes (EarsForEyes.info, 800-843-6816) that provides free audio lessons that teach low-vision adaptive daily living skills. And Living Well with Low Vision (LowVision.PreventBlindness.org, which offers up-to-date information and free materials for people living with sever vision impairment.

NEW MOSQUITOES IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Global travel and trade have opened doors to cases from travelers coming back to the U.S. from invasive mosquitoes. Three new species making Southern California their home are the Asian tiger (Aedes albopictus), yellow fever (Aedes aegypti), and Austalian backyard (Aedes notoscriptus) mosquitoes. These mosquitoes adapt very well to urban environments. Once introduced, they can thrive in our neighborhoods.

How are they threats?

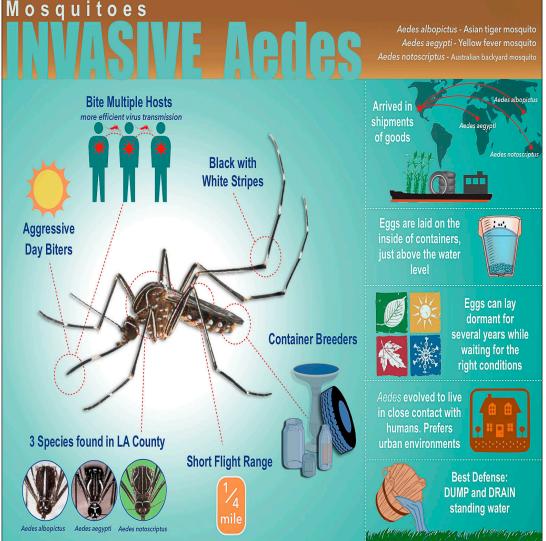

Disease carriers — The Asian tiger mosquito and yellow fever mosquito have the potential to transmit debilitating viruses such as dengue, yellow fever, zika virus and the painful chikungunya virus. These diseases have not been transmitted locally. However, if a person with the virus spends time in an area where these mosquitoes are found, there is an increased chance of an outbreak occurring in the country are reporting many chikungunya mosquitoes biting people inside offices and homes.

Mexico, the Caribbean, and Latin America. The Australian backyard mosquito is a concern for the veterinary community since it can transmit canine heartworm.

They can bite during the day — These bloodsuckers can ruin a family get-together or a warm day at a park. Normally, we expect mosquitoes to bite from dusk to dawn not so with these invasive mosquitoes.

Please report black and white, daytime-biting mosquitoes to the San Gabriel Valley Mosquito & Vector Control District at 626-814-9466.

They can lay eggs in small containers and thrive indoors — Do you have an old tire in your yard? Or maybe some plant cuttings in a bucket of water in your kitchen? These mosquitoes can lay their eggs in stagnant water sources as small as a bottle cap! There Los Angeles County. Currently, many cities across have been reports in Los Angeles County of these

Tip of the Iceberg: My 3,000-Mile Journey Around Wild Alaska, the Last Great American Frontier by Mark Adams

From the acclaimed, bestselling author of Turn Right at Machu Picchu, a fascinating and funny journey into Alaska, America's last frontier, retracing the historic 1899 Harriman Expedition.In 1899, railroad magnate Edward H. Harriman organized a most unusual summer voyage to the wilds of Alaska: He converted a steamship into a luxury "floating university," populated by some of America's best and brightest scientists and writers, including John Muir. Those aboard encountered a land of immeasurable beauty and impending environmental calamity. A hundred years later, Alaska is still America's most sublime wilderness. As ever, it remains a magnet for weirdos and dreamers. Armed with Dramamine and an industrialstrength mosquito net, Mark Adams sets out to retrace the 1899 expedition. Using the state's intricate public ferry system, the Alaska Marine Highway, Adams travels 3000 miles, following the George W. Elder's itinerary north through Wrangell, Juneau, and Glacier Bay, then continuing west into the colder and stranger regions of the Aleutians and the Arctic Circle. Along the way, he encounters dozens of unusual characters and investigates how lessons learned in 1899 might relate to Alaska's current struggles in adapting to climate change.

What the Eyes Don't See: A Story of Crisis, Resistance, and Hope in an American City by Mona Hanna-Attisha

The dramatic story of the Flint water crisis, told "with the gripping intrigue of a Grisham thriller" (O: The Oprah Magazine)—an inspiring tale of scientific resistance by a relentless physician who stood up to power. Flint was already a troubled city in 2014 when the state of Michigan—in the name of austerity—shifted the source of its water supply from Lake Huron to the Flint River. Soon after, citizens began complaining about the water that flowed from their taps—but officials rebuffed them, insisting that the water was fine. Dr. Mona Hanna-Attisha, a pediatrician at the city's public hospital, took state officials at their word and encouraged the parents and children in her care to continue drinking the water-after all, it was American tap water, blessed with the state's seal of approval.But a conversation at a cookout with an old friend, leaked documents from a rogue environmental inspector, and the activism of a concerned mother raised red flags about lead—a neurotoxin whose irreversible effects fall most heavily on children. Even as evidence mounted and protests grew, Dr. Mona knew that the only thing that could stop the lead poisoning was undeniable proof—and to get it, she'd have to enter the from Amazon.com.

fight of her life. The book is the inspiring story of how Dr. Mona—accompanied by a team of researchers, parents, friends, and community leaders—proved that Flint's kids were exposed to lead and then fought her own government and a brutal backlash to expose that truth to the world. Paced like a scientific thriller, this book shows how misguided austerity policies, and callous bureaucratic indifference placed an entire city at risk. And at the center of the story is A GOOD MAN. A GREAT DAD AND A LOVING HUSBAND Dr. Mona herself—an immigrant, doctor, scientist, and mother whose family's activist roots inspired her pursuit of justice. The book is a riveting, beautifully rendered account of a disaster that became a tale of hope, the story of a city on the ropes that came together to fight for justice, self-determination, and the right to build a better world for their children. Monastery. One day, a great storm passes through the village, and Tama is caught in the rain outside the temple. She waits under the eaves of a small shrine, cleaning her face and whiskers as best she can with her paw. A noble samurai is also passing through, and stops his horse under the cover of a large tree. But through the rain, what does he see? A cat with a raised paw, beckoning him forward? Curious, the samurai urges his horse forward. Just then, a bolt of lightning flashes and strikes the tree behind him, splitting it in two. The beckoning cat has saved his life. In his gratitude, the samurai brings riches to the small temple and the monk, who shares his wealth with the village.So goes the Japanese legend of Maneki Neko, the beckoning cat. And to this day, the cat with raised paw beckoning guests is a symbol of good luck and good fortune in many Asian countries. FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

SQUABBLES BETWEEN ALAN THICKE'S HEIRS HIGHLIGHT THE IMPORTANCE OF PROPERLY DRAFTED AND UPDATED ESTATE PLANNING

In the 1980s, the late actor Alan Thicke played the wise-but-hip father figure and psychiatrist Dr. Jason Seaver in the sitcom Growing Pains. Following Alan's sudden death in December 2016, with his children and widow battling over his estate, one can only wonder what sage advice Dr. Seaver would have had for Thicke's heirs.

Alan collapsed and died from a heart attack at age 69, while playing ice hockey with his youngest son, Carter. Unlike some celebrities, he had a fairly comprehensive estate plan. But with three marriages, three sons from two of those unions, and an estate worth an estimated $40 million, the planning is proving insufficient to stave off family

Stepmom vs. Stepchildren

Specifically, Alan's two oldest sons—Robin and Brennan—have been fighting his third wife, Tanya Callau Thicke, for almost two years. At issue was the division of Alan's $3.5 million ranch in Carpinteria, where he and Tanya lived. The prenup states that Tanya would get 25% of his net estate, including a five-acre parcel of the ranch property. However, the trust—last updated in 2016—doesn't grant her any ownership of the ranch, only the right to live there provided she pays all the expenses.

Robin and Brennan's petition alleged that Tanya demanded a larger portion of Alan's estate than she was allocated in the trust and that she planned to contest the validity of the prenuptial agreement. Tanya claimed her stepsons' legal claim was merely aimed at smearing her in the media, and she never had any intention of challenging the prenup. Other reports allege the petition was retaliation for Tanya's refusal to allow the brothers to convert the ranch into a medical marijuana farm.

Breach of Duty?

BUSINESS NEWS & TRENDS

Tanya recently filed papers accusing Robin and Brennan of violating their fiduciary duties as cotrustees. She claims they're spending the estate assets recklessly, failing to pay her share of the inheritance, unfairly saddling her with taxes and other expenses that are not her responsibility, and failing to keep her clearly informed about estate proceedings.

Tanya plans to file a lawsuit against the siblings if they don't meet her demands. And her suit may have merit, as trustees owe a fiduciary duty to act in the best interests of beneficiaries and account for all financial transactions related to the trust.

Lessons Learned

Though most of us don't have $40 million in assets to worry about, this case highlights several important estate planning issues.

First, multiple marriages – especially with children from a prior marriage – are always at risk of going down the road of conflict. If you are in such a marriage, it's critical to plan in advance to ensure the people you love have the best chance of continuing to love each other after your incapacity

Second, even with a trust in place, it's vital the document is regularly updated to ensure it stays current and doesn't conflict with other legal agreements, like the prenup in this case. Please contact us now if your plan has not been reviewed or updated within the past few years.

Finally, this case demonstrates that a trust won't stay private if the heirs have a conflict that results in court proceedings. One of a trust's key benefits is that it keeps the contents of the estate confidential. But if a dispute ends up in court, the estate documents can be made public, exposing not only your assets, but all your family's "dirty laundry" as well.

Proper estate planning can keep your family out of conflict, out of court, and out of the public eye. If you're ready to create a comprehensive estate plan, contact us today. If you already have a plan in place, we can review it to help you avoid similar

MY FRIEND'S PLACE/A GREAT ORGANIZATION

My Friend's Place assists and inspires homeless youth to build self-sufficient lives.In 1988, Steve LePore and Craig Scholz initiated a volunteer-led, mobile meal program to distribute sack lunches to the homeless youth in the Hollywood community. Soon the volunteers built trust with the young people and realized that youth are driven to the streets by abuse, abandonment and neglect by families and caregivers. The needs and challenges of homeless youth go well beyond the critical condition of hunger.Two years later, the volunteer group first opened the doors of a facility they called My Friend's Place where they began to offer social services and creative opportunities in addition to basic needs . Today, My Friend's Place is a thriving, professionally staffed drop-in Resource Center serving over 1,400 homeless youth ages 12 to 25 and their children each year. Each year, they welcomes nearly 1,500 homeless youth between the ages of 12 and 25 and their children. Many are escaping abusive homes, emancipating from foster care with insufficient skills and resources, or were raised on the street caught in the cycle of homelessness.Once on the streets, the necessities of survival and need to cope force youth to compromise their health and well being through high-risk behaviors including survival sex, substance abuse, illegal activity and violence. In turn, they are at great risk of contracting life-threatening diseases, developing drug and alcohol addictions, and engaging in disruptive behavior that increases the likelihood of juvenile detention and incarceration. Our primary goal is to lower barriers to service and provide homeless youth with the opportunity to improve their psychological, intellectual and physical capacity to reach their potential. In collaboration with the leading social services providers and educational institutions in the region as well as over 500 volunteers, we offer a free and comprehensive continuum of care that combines emergency necessities with therapeutic, health, employment and education assistance, and creative arts services through three programmatic areas:Safe Haven Program,Transformative Education Program, Health & Well Being Program. This is a wonderful non profit agency in Hollywood. If you would like to help or contribute go to Myfriendsplace.org or call (323) 908-0011 or 1-888-YOUTH-50.

WILL TRUMP'S KID CRUELTY SINK THE GOP IN NOVEMBER?

It may seem crass to discuss the potential political impact of Trump's family separation policy - especially when we can hear the kids wailing for their parents - but we do need to ask: Is this finally the issue that will shock voters back to sanity? Is this finally the issue that will prompt Democratic-leaning Americans, who usually skip the midterms, to punish the Trump-abetting GOP, turn the House blue, and deal a major blow to Trump's racist authoritarian dreams?

Maybe there's reason to hope. Even Anthony "The Mooch" Scaramucci, the short-lived Trump flack, says that the TV "optics" of little kids crying for their moms are bad for a president who understands the power of imagery. He tells CNN, "It's not good for the Congress if we want to win the midterms."

Chris Warshaw, a political scientist at George Washington University, having crunched the poll numbers from Quinnipiac and Ipsos, says that public support for Trump's caging of kids is the lowest for any policy proposal in the last 30 years. And one of the most highly motivated cohorts in the projected midterm electorate - women - are especially

According to Quinnipiac, 66 percent of voters (including 68 percent of independents) gave a thumbs down to Trump administration's no-tolerance policy. Women in particular were more fervent about it. A whopping 70 percent said they were opposed; only 22 percent supported. Those were the stats for all women, including minorities. But the numbers were virtually the same for white women (65 percent opposed, 25 percent support) - and that's significant, because a majority of white women voted for Trump in

The obvious risk for Trump and the GOP (even as Trump continued to fake-blame "Democrats" for the policy he owns) is that women in particular won't vote for a heartless party that treats children like animals. As one Republican strategist told NBC News, "The media will broadcast these images of brutality and chaos, and the public will associate them with the Republicans that run the House and Senate." A second GOP strategist said, "The images are devastating."

The pollsters at Ipsos basically asked people whether they agreed with Jeff Sessions' argument that the separation policy is designed to be a deterrent. But again, the public signaled strong opposition; 56 percent said the policy is inappropriate, only 27 percent signaled support. And that sentiment was stronger among women; 59 percent oppose it, Granted, it's only June. One dares not even imagine what else Trump will do between now and November, with only a smattering of Republicans bleating empty words. But Trump being Trump, he shows no signs of backing away from his border brutality. According to projections by the Department of Health and Human Services, the number of undocumented immigrant kids in federal custody could top 20,000 by August.

That should keep the issue alive for the electorate. Stephen Miller, the white nationalist adviser who pushed for Trump's policy, apparently thinks it's a boffo way to gin up whitegrievance midterm turnout, but his strategy may well backfire. The Ipsos poll reports that only 46 percent of self-identified Republicans support family separation, and that's a very low figure for a party that typically marches in lockstep. Meanwhile, the slice of the electorate that rightly detests Trump - the same slice that has triggered Democratic wins in scores of state and federal special elections - now has another issue to stoke its ire. And because it's about children, it's arguably the most visceral issue of all.

Trump, of course, has the power to pull the plug and prevent his opponents from using it against him. As he said at the 2016 Republican convention, referring to America's ills, "I alone can fix it."

So fix it already. Do it for the kids.

For more than thirty years, no matter which party controlled Congress or the White House, they did nothing significant to fix our illegal immigration problem - which now should be more accurately described as "an illegal invasion problem." House Republicans today can't even get bill and send it to the Senate, where they'd never get it passed anyway.

There are no good or easy answers.

But if we really want to make sure kids and their parents from Honduras or Guatemala are kept together after we catch them trying to break into the United States, I've got a cheap and sensible idea we could try.
