INCREASES FOR CITY EMPLOYEES

By Kevin McGuire/MVNews

With contract deadlines looming on the horizon, Sierra Madre City Council approved three resolutions consenting to pay increases for city employees during their regular scheduled meeting on Tuesday, June 26, 2018.

With the approval of Resolutions 18-35, 18-36 and 18-37, the City adopts the Classified Employees Association (CEA) Memorandum of Understanding (MOU); adopts the MOU between the City and the Police Officers Association; and amends the Classification Plan and Salary Matrix. Here is a breakdown of what was agreed upon.

The CEA's current contract ends on June 30, 2018. This new agreement would include:

1. A five-year contract allowing for the reopening of negotiations in years 3, 4 and 5. 2. Cost of Living increase of 1.9% to take place for Fiscal Year

3. Cost of Living increase of no less than 0.5% and no more that 3.0% for Fiscal Year 2019/2020. 4. Five-percent salary increase for Water Fund employees and Sewer Fund employees who hold sewer certifications in Fiscal Year 2018/2019 and, 5. Modifications to the City's Classification Plan and Salary

Matrix for Utilities Department employees in Fiscal Year The Police Officers' Association will receive the same as the CEA as noted in 1-3 of their agreement above, but in addition will receive Longevity Pay for employees reaching

10 years of service, a one-time bilingual stipend payment for eligible employees, and supplementary terms including adjustments to overtime and graveyard shift pay. The fiscal impact on the General Fund will be an increase of $86,000 for Fiscal Year 2018-2019, and an increase of $74, 000 for Fiscal Year 2019-2020. The Water and Sewer Fund and $30,000 in Fiscal Year 2019-2020. Sierra Madre residents had mixed reviews of the proposed increases. "The question of whether or not to give the city employees a raise has come at a very unfortunate time, said resident Barry Gold. "I believe we are facing costs of would see an increase of $34, 500 in Fiscal Year 2018-2019, replacing our deteriorating water pipes at around $30 million dollars [and] and unfunded CalPERS liability in the excess of $10 million; repairs to our city sidewalks are going to cost several more millions of dollars," Gold pointed out. "No matter how deserving our hard-working, loyal, dedicated city employees are, how can we possibly give them money we don't have?" Resident Debbie Sheridan approached the podium to express her agreement with Gold's remarks and questioned the reason behind the 5% increase for Water and Sewer employees.

In favor of the plan was resident Pat Alcorn, "I think that our public employees are our finest asset. And I do believe that they deserve a cost of living raise... If we don't do it now, when will we do it?" Alcorn questioned.

After public comment, Human Resources Manager Miguel Hernandez noted that despite a 5% increase for Water and Sewer employees, the rate of pay still ranks lower than surround cities. He emphasized the need for this incentive to help with certification costs and to keep employees from leaving for better-paying private sector jobs. "When you come across a job that is hard to fill like this, you always need to be as competitive as you possibly can," Mayor Denise Delmar acknowledged. "... especially when we are investing so much in our infrastructure over the next few years, we want to make sure we have staff that we need."

Council was short-handed with the absence of Council Members John Capoccia, and Gene Goss, but the remaining three members, Council Member Rachelle Arizmendi, Mayor Pro Tem John Harabedian and Mayor Denise Delmar, unanimously approved the three resolutions and voiced support of their decision. "I think this is a great deal for the city; I think this is a great deal for the employees," said Mayor Pro Tem John Harabedian. "I think it's not just important for morale...but also to help employees support

In addition, staff is recommending increases in pay to part-time Paramedics and Engineers from $12.50 per hour to $15.00 per hour and an increase in part-time Police

Officer's hourly rates from $32.66 an hour to $34.29 per hour. The City Council will next meet on Tuesday, July 10, 2018

SIERRA MADRE CIVIC CLUB - CONFETTI EGGS

Sierra Madre Civic Club is a not-for-profit, community service organization that was founded by a small group of women in 1944. Since that time, Civic Club has grown to over a hundred members of all ages who are committed to creating a better community. Members volunteer their time to support community events, such as the Huck Finn Fishing Derby, Halloween Window Painting, and more. Civic Club members raise money throughout the year that is re-invested in the community through philanthropic donations to local projects and organizations, as well as fund education awards to local high school seniors. One such fund raining event is Confetti Eggs sales.

Last week members filled over 300 dozen eggs with confetti. Confetti-filled eggs will be sold July 3rd in Memorial Park as part of Sierra Madre 4th of July activities. Stop by the Civic Club booth to purchase your confetti-filled eggs and support Sierra Madre Civic Club in their fundraising activities.

Sierra Madre-Pasadena-Altadena-

KATIE TseThis and That BODY SNATCHERS

Mount Wilson Trail race, and memories of Bean the eye. Town even before it expanded to its current size (bonus points for buying things from Robert's Market and Little Stuga!). One other experience vital for anv Sierra Madrean is seeing "Invasion of the Body Snatchers' at least once. Just the name lets vou know it must be great!

This 1956 cinematic gem stars Kevin McCarthy as protagonist Dr. Miles and tonic. Becky is particularly distressed, so Bennel and Dana Wynter as Becky Driscoll, Miles gives her a couple pills to go with her his love interest. It's your typical sci-fi mystery drink. He is a doctor, after all. Wow, the 50's thriller with all the corny effects and acting must've been something! you'd expect from a film of that era. Here's the story in a nutshell. Aliens are invading Earth by sending out "pods" containing blank prototype male and female bodies. These bodies assume of Kersting Court, Sierra Madre Blvd., and the your features until they resemble you completely at which point they "take over" your body when you fall asleep. Great stuff! The "pods" are as they mature. (I think they used dish soap.) When ripe, the pod bursts open and the body inside flops out like a blow-up doll. Classic!

Happy Fourth of July! To There'd be nothing noteworthy about this, me, Sierra Madre's Fourth of except that it's about nine in the morning, and July parade is the essence of Becky is wearing a low - I mean LOW - cut dress summer! It's Mayberry from with what appear to be little wads of tissue or "The Andy Griffith Show," a living Norman cotton balls barely covering her bosom. What? Rockwell Americana painting, and "The Far You mean you don't wear this when traveling? Side" rolled into one. It's one of those things that The next half-hour of the film follows Becky goes in the "You know you're a Sierra Madrean meeting various other Santa Mira folks, the men if..." category along with Mary's Market, the making a conscious effort to look her straight in

Other highlights include a great scene in which

Becky, and their friends Jack and Teddy (that's woman) Belicec discover a pod at the Belicec residence. After killing the sudsy podman with a garden pitch fork, Jack and Miles lay him out on Jack's pool table while they all smoke and get a couple rounds of gin

While "Invasion of the Body Snatchers" is a must-see in it's own right, it's unique because it was filmed in Sierra Madre! (prominent footage old building that is now Sierra Fitness) When the city started showing movies in the park, the first was "Invasion of the Body Snatchers" on the sleeping bag-sized leafy shells that start foaming Fourth of July. My dad was sorely disappointed when this did not become an annual Sierra Madre Fourth of July event. But that doesn't mean that you can't start your very own Body We first meet Becky as she gets off a train Snatchers 7/04 tradition! Then you can brag in the quaint Santa Mira station to meet Miles. that you're a truer Sierra Madrean, too!

WALKING SIERRA MADRE... The Social Side By Deanne Davis

"My grandfather's clock was too large for the shelf So it stood ninety years on the

It was taller by half than the old man himself

Though it weighed not a pennyweight more Ît was bought on the morn of the day that he was born And was always his treasure and

But it stopped, short never to go again

When the old man died Ninety years without slumbering His life seconds numbering It stopped, short never to go again When the old man died." (Erich Doll/Henry Clay Work)

As you can see from the picture, this particular clock hasn't spent any time on the floor. It sat on our mantle for more years than I can remember and was my clockloving husband, John's, blessing and bane. This clock was more temperamental than a cranky two year old and he loved it dearly. It would go faster than it needed to, or slower, or throw it's chimes out of sync but it was one of our rituals, that before we left for church every Sunday morning, John would wind the clock.

The clock, by the way is a Seth Thomas constructed of wood with a Bakelite veneer. It features Sonora Chimes, which were made in the early 1900's and most of our life here in this house we regulated our sleep by hearing what time it was by the chimes, which marked the quarter, the half, the three-quarter and, of course, every hour.

John's Uncle Virgil, who lived in Union Oregon until his death many years ago was the original owner of the clock and when he went to his heavenly reward, the clock went to John. I suspect Uncle Virgil bought the clock not long after it was born and it has been in our family always.

Last March I took it in to our very own Berj DerMovsesian, owner of Baldwin Jewelers right here in Kersting Court, as it had not been running for quite a while and I wanted to see if Berj could whip it back into shape as I wanted to pass it along to our oldest daughter, Leah. Berj's eyes lit up like he'd just won the lottery and I was thrilled that he would be able to work on it.

Months later, earlier this week in fact, I went in and asked whatever happened to my clock. Berj said he had just gotten all the parts, was fine tuning it and it would be ready any time this week. So, Tuesday morning at 9:00, Leah, her husband, Chuck, and I met at Baldwin Jewelers so Berj could explain to all of us exactly how to care for the Davis Family Seth Thomas Clock. Let me just say that it was complicated and I am glad Leah and Chuck will be in charge of this precious heirloom. Berj confided that he liked the clock so much that he kept it on his workstation so he could hear it chime while he worked as it has such a beautiful sound. It didn't surprise me. Waking playwrightdd at night and hearing the clock chime was comforting, reassuring and gave a feeling of permanence and peace. I want Leah to have those same feelings now that she had when she was a child and always knew what time it was when the clock chimed.

Wanting to know just a little bit more about our clock, I googled it (I love you, Google!) and found Seth Thomas was born in Wolcott, Connecticut in 1785, went to work for clockmaker Eli Terry in 1807, bought out Mr. Terry's factory together with Silas Hoadley in 1810 and in December 1813, bought out Heman Clark's clock-making business in Plymouth Hollow. Seth Thomas Clock Company began producing clocks in 1813. According to Berj, this particular Seth Thomas clock is a gem and, even though incompetent hands have invaded it, it is still in splendid shape...now that Berj has performed his magic on it. Hearing the Sonora Chimes again was just plain awesome! Thank you Berj!

Have you noticed the new sign at Taylor's Market? Very nice! And we're having streets resurfaced! And July 4th is next week! Summer is definitely here. All the gardenias are blooming and smell delicious and the jacarandas! Oh, dear friends and neighbors, the jacarandas are beyond gorgeous this year! Look up! My book page: Amazon.com: Deanne Davis

Pasadena Residents may have experienced discolored water

City officials form the Pasadena Water and Power said that as part of routine adjustments to the city's water supply, that involved calibrating disinfectants, as part of balancing imported and local water supplies, water could be discolored.

Officials said that running the faucet for five to 10 seconds would flush out any discoloration. They said the water is safe and exceeds drinking water standards set by the Federal EPA and state regulations.

According to city records, about 41 percent of the water supply is groundwater Raymond the Groundwater Basin and is pumped out of 16 deep wells located throughout Pasadena, 58 percent of the water is imported from the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California (MWD) and consists of a blend of water from Northern California and the Colorado River. remaining percent is purchased from neighboring water agencies.

After 10 years, Sunday service is returning to Pasadena Transit as part of a three-year, $772,507 Federal Transit Administration, Job Access Reverse Commute grant. This new Sunday service will help close a mobility gap in this popular local service on Routes 10, 20, 31/32, 40 and 51. Also, additional service will be provided during the weekdays on the very popular Route 20; the added service is funded by Measure M funds. Measure M was passed in November 2016 and is a half-cent sales tax to fund transportation project in Los Angeles County in perpetuity. Riders on most routes will notice schedule adjustments to improve on-time arrival performance. Adjustments were based on customer and driver feedback and analysis of actual route travel times. Many of the scheduled "stop times" on this route have been shifted—in some cases by several minutes—so all riders are advised to check updated schedules on the City's

ATHENS SOLID WASTE SERVICE RATES SET TO INCREASE BY 5% BEGINNING JULY 1, 2018

- The Typical Residential Customer Will See an Increase of $1.50 / Month

Pursuant to the City's current contract with month. Athens Services (Athens), the company is adjustments, along with CPI related cost increases.

Late last week, representatives from Athens institute a 5% increase for solid waste services effective July 1, 2018. This particular adjustment takes into account both CPI and State minimum wage cost increases, and is actually less than what Athens could have contractually requested as a rate increase. Based on CIP increases and mandated minimum wage increases in California ($11 / hour in 2018, $12 / hour in 2019), Athens was eligible for an increase of 5.51%. After discussions with staff, Athens agreed to cap their increase request at 5% effective July 1, 2018.

Based on this cost adjustment request, the cost for trash / recycling services will be increasing by 5% beginning July 1, 2018. The actual dollar cost impact of the rate adjustment is projected to be as follows: For the typical residential customer (who is enrolled in the 90-gallon trash / recycling barrel program), solid waste services will increase by $1.50 / month, from $30.03 / month to $31.53 /

For the typical commercial / multi-family allowed annual rate increases, pursuant to customer (who is enrolled in the one 3-yard bin an agreed upon schedule which factors in which is serviced once per week), solid waste mandated State of California minimum wage services will increase by $11.70 / month, from $172.24 / month to $183.94 / month.

As City staff analyzed the proposed adjustments, notified the City of their formal request to we have also developed a unique program for Athens customers. There are times when adjusting solid waste service levels can end up saving a customer money, without impacting their trash service needs. To that end, if any Athens Services customer would like to have a 1-on-1 Solid Waste Services Optimization Meeting to explore possible ways of saving money for on your trash recycling services bill, please contact Alex Tachiki, Senior Management Analyst, at (626) 932-5553, or via e-mail at atachiki@ci.monrovia. ca.us. Alex will review each individual situation and work with each customer to determine the feasibility of making service changes that save money but don't impact trash / recycling needs.

In addition, if anyone else has any questions / concerns regarding this matter, please feel free to contact Alex Tachiki, Senior Management Analyst, at (626) 932-5553, or via e-mail at atachiki@ ci.monrovia.ca.us.

STING OF THE BOTHERED BEE

Happy Tails

by Chris Leclerc

As a young child, I was terrified of any bug or insect I came a dog can smell fear or danger. into contact with, particularly those that I knew could bite or sting me. I'll never forget the first time I was stung by a bee. Or, to put it in more specific terms, the first time I was stung by an entire swarm of bees. I was five years old, and I knew very little about how nature works. I had yet to understand the creeping, crawling, flying creatures that lived outside the four walls of my comfortable home.

The angry bee attack was my own fault. I had spent the morning obnoxiously tapping on my parents' bedroom window, knowing there was a bee hive beneath the sill outside. I had been aggravating them as they flew to and from their nest, so I'm unsure why it came as a shock to me when I stepped out the front door a little later, to find myself covered with angry bees. Several found their way into my t-shirt and proceeded to plant their tiny, needlelike stingers deeply into the delicate skin of my neck and shoulders.

I immediately panicked and began yelling for someone to come and rescue me. Within moments my mother yanked my t-shirt off and took me back into the house where she applied a mixture of baking soda, peroxide and milk to the welts where the bees had stung. Meanwhile my temperature rose and I became quite queasy. I don't know which was more swollen by the end of that fiasco; my face, from crying so hard, or my back, from the numerous bee stings I'd sustained.

Eventually the raised, rosy-red marks went down and my fever subsided. I remember being amazed that my mother knew enough to use a homemade concoction to draw out the poison those bothered bees had injected into my skin. As it turns out, my loving mother had all kinds of alternative health care remedies up her sleeve. Good thing, too, since she had seven kids to keep up with.

To this day, I'm unsure why I felt the need to pester those poor bees. Maybe I got some sense of satisfaction annoying them from within the safety of my home. What I didn't know was that those bees had no desire to terrorize me, they were simply going about the business

God created them for; to work hard, breed freely and protect their nest. It wasn't until later in life that I learned about the purpose of bees and the important role they play in nature, and I was finally able to let go of my fear.

Bees only attack as a response to aggravation. It is not in their nature to do so at random. So many aspects of life depend on the bee's persistent activity, so it is important that we humans leave them alone and allow them to go about their business. Another thing I didn't know back then is that a bee can feel the vibration of fear being emitted from a human, much in the same way

The best thing to do if you happen to come into contact with a swarm of bees is to remain calm and back away slowly. If you handle the situation in this manner, bees are far more likely to ignore you and continue their work than to become aggravated and attack. If you become fearful and react with loud noises or sudden movements, they are likely to respond with aggression and give chase. For bees, it's all about being left alone to complete the task at hand.

Now that I know a little bit about bees, I'm able to relax and enjoy watching them do their work with no anxiety or fear. It is a fabulous feeling to sit calmly, feel their vibration, hear their buzzing and observe them as they fly about doing what they were created to do. This lesson in nature came with an additional bonus, above and beyond the fact that bees no longer sting me.

Somehow, understanding what makes bees "tick", and learning to trust them not to attack, has helped me come to a higher level of understanding about life, in general. Getting to know what bees are about has taught me to relax and let all of nature do it's thing. Every creature has a purpose, even the ones that seem scary. A little knowledge can go a long way. Certainly this approach to life beats living in fear and causing a disruptive ripple in nature's

There are so many lessons to be learned from the many creatures we share our lives on earth with. If we are willing students, all the other creatures can teach us how to be better human beings. Perhaps the proverbial "birds and the bees" story that we've historically attempted to tell our children during adolescence has more substance than we might have expected.

I believe that to achieve a true understanding of one's own purpose, one must learn to tolerate and be respectful of all other life forms. As I like to say, "love and let live". Relax, and enjoy your surroundings, fear-free. Even if this ideology doesn't resonate with you as it does with me, you might find yourself way less likely to get stung by a buzzing, bothered bee if you give it a try.

At one time, life stretched out like eternity, like the last scene from "The Good, The Bad, The Ugly," where you knew there were winners and losers and fools, and you hoped desperately that you'd be a winner. Well, at least a good guy. That's the perspective of a child, seeing the world through simplistic eyes, black and white, good and bad, right and wrong. That's good, really, but as Mark Twain once noted, there is enough good in the worst of us, and enough bad in the best of us, that we should quit pretending and start working together. At least Twain said something like that, and what he meant was that only in movies and childhood dreams do we ever get to see absolute clarity which doesn't exist in the real world.

In childhood, I assumed that the older bodies also contained minds that were more developed, and advanced, and therefore more objective and mature. I assumed that parents were the fair arbiters of disputes and that elected officials took those positions because they cared about the good of the people they represented. I believed in the Jimmy Stewart world of "It's a Wonderful Life," even though I never found it.

I believed that there must be a sanctuary of sanity somewhere where people practiced lives of sanity and non-prejudice, and where fraud and cheating were unheard of. I lived on a farm for awhile right after high school, and I felt that perhaps there, in the rough existence where your work resulted in a very tangible result that supported your existence, it was hard to cheat and defraud, and the folks had pride in their skills, their sense of community, and their honesty.

Could the urbanization of the world be part of the culprit in our fall from grace? Perhaps. But it's still no excuse. Even if I never found Shangra-la on earth, I have not stopped believing in the principles by which such a place must exist. For example, you must keep your word. Yes, printed papers are OK for poor memories, and for those who are inclined to twist the words later to mean something else from the original intent. But when you twist your word, and bend your word, you bend your very soul, and you dis-integrate your very integrity. That's why my father always said to keep your word, that a person is only as good as their word. Even in middle-class Pasadena, my father knew that there was an ineffable something about the giving and keeping of your word. In Shangri-la, you would always keep your word.

In my vision of Paradise, there would be work, but the god that we all trusted wouldn't be money. Money, or some version of it, seems inescapable for daily commerce and for converting your work and time into a medium of useful, recognizable exchange.

is the author But in Paradise, money would naturally be a tool to assist others to get their own enterprises going, and to provide for the common good. People would not be obsessed by money and would not be driven by the desire for money. Killing for money would be unheard

> Work must have a tangible result, within the framework of a goal. A person must naturally feel uplifted by doing one's work, and when one knowingly works at a menial and pointless job to fulfill someone else's desires and goals, it's hard to feel uplifted.

> Of course, bits and pieces of this Shangra-la exist right now, everywhere, in most people. I believe that everyone has an innate desire to find rightness, and even fairness, and everyone ultimately recognizes the objective reality of the Law of Thought, that what you think and what you do has ramifications that are scientific result of those specific thoughts and actions.

> If you inwardly believe in the possibility of a Paradise on earth, you must start to grasp those principles of living and thinking that lead to Shangri-La. And though you must do so personally, on your own, it is fortunate that there are others, if you can find them, who are also seeking a higher road.

> Shangri-La is not a place that you find, but rather, a place that you earn the right to be a part of, by the evolution of your thought and actions. What does that mean? What must someone do? Again, the answers are everywhere, hidden in plain view. They go by such names as learning to think, separating feeling from emotions, distinguishing empathy from sympathy, learning to use words precisely, working hard to see world events objectively, and not subjectively based on your personal cultural bias. It means learning the practical value and living the precepts taught by all the great Way-showers of history, from all cultures. Ever heard of the Golden Rule? That's a good place to start. How about the 10 Commandments? Another good starting point.

> One winter night during high school, my friend Nathaniel and I bicycled into a little side canyon of the Angeles National Forest, and we made a safe little fire in our campground and talked about the meaning of life and how we thought that civilization might fail. It had never occurred to us that we are barely civilized now, and we only believe we are "civilized" because of our material wealth and technological toys. We bemoaned the fact that society is on the fast road to uncivil barbarousness, and wondered what could be done, and what should be done.

> We always toyed with the idea of becoming hermits and hiding out in a cave somewhere, but both of us were way too social to live out our lives in a cave. By whatever choices we made, we felt that everyone should be a good example, and no one should assume that there is no hope for the future. Our civility, our culture, our sense of civilization, after all, is an internal concept that we first keep alive inside our thinking. Once that flame is bright within, it is proper to share with others, and attempt to be a part of the solution to the many problems we see all

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

"WHAT DO YOU MEAN IT'S TIME TO GO HOME?"

We had just started our vacation, or so I thought, when the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage said, "Hurry up; it's time to go home."

I have been married to my wife for almost 46 years and during that time, she has always teased me and tried to get my goat. My goat has long been gotten. So, I thought she was trying to tease me about our

As she said that, I noticed she was packing her suitcase. That was just strange. She is really going all out to fool me into thinking it is time to go home. I, however, know better and cannot be fooled even by

I laughed most heartily and said, "That's a good one, but you can't fool me. We're on vacation."

When she was planning the vacation, it took her quite a while to convince me we were going on vacation. I get so caught up in "life," that I often do not realize I need to take a break every once in a while. However, when I take a break, I Take a Break. Looking at me rather strangely, she said, "Our what I saved today, $26." Trust me, I never did that vacation is over and we need to go home."

"But, I thought we were supposed to be on vacation for a week. Why do you want to go home early?"

"Oh, silly boy, we have been here for a week and our time is up and we must go home."

All I could do was just stare at her. I honestly thought we were only halfway through our vacation. Where does time go when you are trying to relax? I started the vacation with only one plan and that was to do nothing. I was just beginning to enjoy this "Nothing Plan" and needed a few more days to

I guess I do have some of an obsessive aspect to my nature. When I start something, I don't want to stop until I have finished it. That's just a philosophy that I have had since I was a young boy. Why start something if you are not going to finish it? And, why start something new until you have finished what you had been doing?

That is why planning a vacation is so difficult. Whatever I am doing at the time I am obsessive about finishing it before going on to the next project. If I am working on a book, I cannot stop until it is finished and sent to the publisher. That is just my did have a wonderful time here on our vacation. Don't you agree?"

I had to stop and process that thought. Certainly, I agreed with her on that level. Where I disagreed was that it was over. "Yes, we sure did have a good time, but I have a hard time believing it's over already."

When on vacation, I usually do not take my watch. I do not want to know what time it is. Lunchtime is when I'm hungry and close to some restaurant. Nap time, is when I'm tired. No schedule. Just enjoying the moment I'm in at the time.

For my wife, vacation time gets her best planning schedule. Most of that schedule has to do with thrift stores. Every day in our vacation, she visited several thrift stores and brought back what she thought were "goodies." I have learned long ago that when she is excited about one of her "goodies," I join in her excitement. Most of the time I have no idea what it is, but what does that have to do with anything?

"Look what I got," she says as she burst into the hotel room, "and I only paid $3 for it. Wasn't that a bargain?"

I once made a mistake along this line. She came back with one of her purchases and I quickly pulled out my wallet that had $26 in it and said, "Look again. She responded by saying, "Great, you can buy supper tonight."

Vacation time means different things to different people. Years ago when I discovered what it meant to her, it made my vacation time all that much better.

I was begrudging the fact that our vacation time was over and slowly started packing my suitcase. I hope I got enough rest during this vacation. I am not sure you can get enough rest on any vacation, but at least I tried.

Driving home from our vacation, I could not help but think of that wonderful verse in the Old Testament. "Can two walk together, except they be agreed?" (Amos 3:3).

Working together doesn't mean you are dressed alike or you have the same likes and dislikes. Walking together means, you're going in the same

Her likes happened to be thrift stores. She knows everything there is to be known about a thrift store. She knows every thrift store within a 100-mile

Me, I know relatively little about a thrift store. If they have a shelf with some books on it, I will take Driving home, she gave a detailed description of "Well," my wife said in a more joyful mood, "we all the wonderful purchases she made at those thrift stores. It made her happy and therefore I was happy. That is what it means to "walk together."

Any great food reporter who turns his attention to writing a travel piece should have a fork in one hand and a travel map in the other. Little did I know I would also need to up the credit line on my card and bring a wallet of kronor. I planned a trip to Oslo, Norway to compete in their Rock N' Roll Half Marathon, intending to run and fill the idle moments with foreign beer. My scouts told me that Norway and Sweden swam in cold suds, and the most popular was lager, or liquid gold as I call it.

The most popular routes of escape consist of a layover on the east coast and a possible stop in Frankfurt (another excuse to have another half liter of beer). Air Lufthansa, part of the Star Alliance, has plenty of flights which are easily booked through a travel agent, or you can keep an eye on Orbitz and Priceline. Plan to budget $1300 to $1600 for a roundtrip ticket. Most major hotel chains including Sheraton and Days Inn have locations in Oslo, but my friend Brad Turner, beat writer for the LA Clippers, suggested renting an apartment or flat in the city. I followed that advice in Bergen, Norway and cut our National Geographic called the Fjords one of the top ten beautiful places in the world and I agree! Make sure you take a boat cruise -- two-hour, half-day and full-day trips are available. We spent the night in Flam and took the boat through the Fjords with the bookend cliffs and ribbons of water that wrap the imagination. If you're a museum junkie or history buff the Viking museum contains the explorer's age of small boats. In Sweden, I suggest the ABBA Museum - yes, the pop group has their own shrine - there is a small fee, but you get two hours of music and memories that will enchant your life. To get around Stockholm I took the Hop On/Hop Off bus. I like this way of seeing an entire city in one day at your own pace. If you are lucky enough to be in Sweden in late June there are plenty of city and country mid-summer celebrations where you'll discover it's their spirit that gets them through

For food, as you can imagine, salmon is plentiful, but an adventure of this magnitude calls for whale, elk, and reindeer, which are on many restaurant menus. I am happy to report they don't taste like chicken. The whale is a little salty, and cured as a beef jerky. Reindeer can be bought at many restaurants or outside markets, often sold like a pastrami roll. I had a fantastic elk burger at the Ardbeg Embassy in Stockholm. If you get frustrated in paying the high prices, look for a bakery and have some of the best sweet rolls in the world. The restaurants are expensive so look for Thai, Indian or Vietnamese if you

The best time to go is late June through September. In some parts of Norway there are year round blankets of snow to excite the desert creatures. Stockholm has more favorable weather conditions with temps reaching 75 degrees on a good day, but come November prepare for winter-like conditions. During the summer the sun is out most of the day, and while that makes it difficult to sleep, the 10 PM

NASA ASKS: WILL WE KNOW LIFE WHEN WE SEE IT?

In the last decade, we have discovered thousands of the scientific journal Astrobiology, NExSS scientists planets outside our solar system and have learned that rocky, temperate worlds are numerous in our galaxy. The next step will involve asking even bigger questions. Could some of these planets host life? And if so, will we be able to recognize life elsewhere if we see it?

A group of leading researchers in astronomy, biology and geology has come together under NASA's Nexus for Exoplanet System Science, or NExSS, to take stock of our knowledge in the search for life on distant planets and to lay the groundwork for moving the related sciences forward.

"We're moving from theorizing about life elsewhere in our galaxy to a robust science that will eventually give us the answer we seek to that profound question: Are we alone?" said Martin Still, an exoplanet scientist at NASA Headquarters, Washington.

of space and ground-based telescopes are in development. NASA's James Webb Space Telescope will characterize the atmospheres of some of the first small, rocky planets. There are plans for other observatories—such as the Giant Magellan Telescope and the Extremely Large Telescope, both in Chile—to carry sophisticated instruments capable of detecting the first biosignatures on faraway worlds.

Since we won't be able to visit distant planets The assessment comes as a new generation and collect samples anytime soon, the light that a telescope observes will be all we have in the search for life outside our solar system. Telescopes can examine the light reflecting off a distant world to show us the kinds of gases in the atmosphere and their "seasonal" variations, as well as colors like green that could indicate life.

These kinds of biosignatures can all be seen on our fertile Earth from space, but the new worlds we examine will differ significantly. For example, Through their work with NExSS, scientists many of the promising planets we have found are

'What does a living planet look like?" said Mary Parenteau, an astrobiologist and microbiologist at NASA's Ames Research Center in Silicon Valley and a co-author. "We have to be open to the possibility that life may arise in many contexts in a galaxy with so many diverse worlds-perhaps with purplecolored life instead of the familiar green-dominated life forms on Earth, for example."

The NExSS scientists will create a framework that can quantify how likely it is that a planet has life, based on all the available evidence. With the observation of many planets, scientists may begin to more broadly classify the "living worlds" that show common characteristics of life, versus the "nonliving worlds."

EDUCATION & YOUTH

GOLDENWORDS

Dr. Dan's College Corner

DON'T GET ALL "STEAMED" UP!"

Complement your high-analytic major with Humanities courses institutions have seen a large majority of students seeking to major in practical and pragmatic subject areas that, on the surface, seem to provide a workplaceready profile upon graduation. Even our greatest liberal arts and sciences colleges, long resistant to 'vocational' areas of study, have begun to craft their own versions of such in-demand majors as Communications and Business Studies, and have designed dual-degree paths for students to get a second, more "practical" degree in these areas, as well as Engineering disciplines.

We have in recent years also put a lot of K-12 focus on the STEAM disciplines (acronym for Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts and Mathematics) as we try to close mathematical/scientific/technology gaps compared to many other nations, and seek to prepare our children for all kinds of jobs that are constantly intensifying in analytical components.

"Study programming and you'll get a job as a programmer; study programming but major in History and you'll own the company!" So spoke one of my Wheaton college alumni about her path into creating and owning her own software company in Boulder, CO. Her point is a simple and important one to consider.

When you counterbalance the analytical demands of majors in Engineering or Finance or Biochemistry and similar fields with more extensive studies in English and the Social Sciences (more than the puny requirements of many analytically-focused majors), it turns out you are developing core skills that will allow you to advance more quickly and creatively in your professional life

Your friend who majors, say, in Finance has tons of knowledge about mathematical models in business environments, has mastered the mysteries of regression analysis, LIFO-FIFO, Hog Belly Futures and more. But this narrow and intense expertise sometimes has come at the expense of developing subtle life and human relationship skills that come from studying literature, philosophy, politics, history.

This hypothetical friend may get a job more easily thanks to his course content relevance (and we hope thanks to some related interning he's done during summers, too), but he might find himself lagging in his organizational advancement. Turns out he needed more of the strengths that come from the nuanced and imprecise and elusive fields on the other side of his

If you are really good at a precise core of knowledge, you get ahead up to a certain point, and then your reward is being asked to lead a team of other precision-focused employees. You quickly discover that you have tons of memo and report writing and employee evaluations to perform, you are on the spot every Tuesday when you have to give a 90 second verbal update in the presence of other managers and your Vice President, you have gmail.com.

In the past 20 years, American higher educational make a case to your boss for more resources at budget time--all these and related situations turn out to need qualities and strengths you may have been neglecting since your last writing or speech class in college!

Thirty years ago, I hosted a Humanities and the Professions conference at the JFK Library in Boston. One of our keynoters was the CEO of the Hanes corporation (think pantyhose, underwear, sweatclothes). Gordon Hanes was a garrulous storytelling North Carolinian, but he was wise far beyond his drawl. He said: "I love hiring English Majors, because they make far more rapacious businesspeople. I can teach anyone my business in a summer except a Business Major, and I can't teach them how to read people, how to speak another language, how to sit at a dinner party among powerful foreign professionals and know what fork to use, and talk intelligently about politics, movies, everything but the admittedly boring details of my product lines. I need educated employees as my raw material, my uncombed cotton."

Not interested in being the next pantyhose CEO? Well, how about being marked for success at Google? The mega-tech company conducted a study, cited by professor Cathy Davidson of the CUNY Graduate Center, who writes the results "shocked everyone by concluding that, among the eight most important qualities of Google's top employees, STEM expertise comes in dead last.

The seven top characteristics of success at Google are all soft skills: being a good coach; communicating and listening well; possessing insights into others [including others' different values and points of view]; having empathy toward and being supportive of one's colleagues; being a good critical thinker and problem solver; and being able to make connections across complex ideas..."

Hmm, as professor Davidson reminds us, these traits are often byproducts of the study of literature, theatre, human history and more. So for students solely focused on their initial employability, the STEAM fields can give you an edge, but the stuff that gets taught in those other buildings on your campus will give you the edge for promotion and advancement in your workplace and in your life, too.

Save time for some academic cross-training in the Humanities and Social Sciences, study the imprecise and ambiguous and nuanced arenas of life--for they will teach you a whole other code beyond computation.

THE GOOD LIFE

SIMPLE GADGETS THAT CAN HELP OLDER DRIVERS

Dear Savvy Senior,

that can help senior drivers? Both of my parents are in there eighties and still pretty good drivers, but due to arthritis and age they're very stiff, which causes them some driving problems.

Researching Daughter

Dear Researching,

To help keep senior drivers safe and prolong their driving years, there's a plethora of inexpensive, aftermarket vehicle adaptions you can purchase that can easily be added to your parent's vehicles to help with many different needs. Here are some good options.

Entry and Exit Aids

To help arthritic/mobility challenged seniors with getting into and out of their vehicle, there are a variety of portable support handles you can buy, like the "Emson Car Cane Portable Handle" ($12), which inserts into the U-shaped striker plate on the doorframe. And the "Standers CarCaddie" ($13) nylon support handle that hooks around the top of the door window frame.

Another useful product is the "DMI Deluxe Swivel Seat Cushion" ($22), which is a round portable cushion that turns 360 degrees to help drivers and passengers rotate their body into and out of their vehicle.

Enhanced Rear Vision

To help seniors with limited upper body range of motion, which makes looking over their shoulder to back-up or merge into traffic difficult, there are special mirrors you can add as well as back-up cameras.

For starters, to widen rear visibility, eliminate blind spots and even help with parallel parking, get an oversized rear view mirror like the "Allview Rearview Mirror" ($50) that clips on to the existing mirror. You should also purchase some "Ampper Blind Spot Mirrors" ($7.50), which are 2-inch adjustable convex mirrors that stick to the corner of the side view mirrors. Another helpful device is the "Auto-vox M1W

Wireless Backup Camera Kit" ($110). This comes with a night vision camera that attaches to the rear license plate, and a small monitor that mounts to the dash or windshield. When the vehicle is in reverse, it sends live images wirelessly to the monitor so you can see what's behind you.

To make buckling up a little easier, there are a variety of seat belt extension products offered by Seat Belt Extender Pros like the "Seat Belt Grabber Handle" ($8), which is a rubber extension handle that attaches to the seat belt strap to make it easier to reach. And the "7inch Rigid Seat Belt Extender" ($20) that fit into the seat belt buckle receiver to add a few inches of length, making them easier to fasten.

Gripping Devices

If your parents have hand arthritis that makes gripping the steering wheel, turning the ignition key or twisting open the gas cap difficult or painful, consider these products.

The "SEG Direct Steering Wheel Cover" ($15) that fits over the steering wheel to make it larger and easier to grip. The "Ableware Hole-In-One Key Holder" ($9), which is a small plastic handle that attaches to the car key to provide additional leverage to turn the key in the ignition or door. And for help at the pump, the "Gas Cap & Oil Cap Opener by Gascapoff" ($12) is a long handled device that works like a wrench to loosen and tighten the gas cap.

All of these products can be found online at Amazon. com. Just type the product name in the search bar to find them.

Safety and Security

To help ensure your parents safety, and provide you and them peace of mind, they should also consider an in-car medical alert system like "splitsecnd." Offered through Bay Alarm Medical (BayAlarmMedical. com, $30/month), his small device plugs into the vehicle's cigarette lighter to provide 24/7 roadside and emergency assistance at the push of a button, automatic crash detection and response, and GPS vehicle location and monitoring capabilities.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY AMERICA

The Declaration of Independence: A TRANSCRIPTION

IN CONGRESS, July 4, 1776.

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America,

When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, --That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security.--Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the Legislative powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the mean time exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavoured to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.

He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary powers.

He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harrass our people, and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies without the Consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation:

For Quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them, by a mock Trial, from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States:

For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent:

For depriving us in many cases, of the benefits of Trial by Jury:

For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offences

For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighbouring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies:

For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws, and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments:

For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us. He has plundered our seas, ravaged our Coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to compleat the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of Cruelty & perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.

circumstances of Cruelty & perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation. He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken Captive on the high Seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavoured to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare, is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these Oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have We been wanting in attentions to our Brittish brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which, would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends.

We, therefore, the Representatives of the united States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be Free and Independent States; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

WHAT THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE ACTUALLY SAYS SIERRA MADRE JULY 3RD & 4th ACTIVITIES PASADENA'S

CELEBRATE FREEDOM

SIERRA MADRE FOURTH OF JULY

For over 50 years the Sierra Madre Community has joined together in celebration of the great American tradition with music, picnics, games and the ever popular 4th of July Parade. Residents and guests crowd Sierra Madre Boulevard to watch youngsters on their patriotic bikes stroll down the route along side hometown heroes like the Sierra Madre Search and Rescue Team and Sierra Madre Fire Department. The Official Sponsor of the 2018 Parade is The Kensington. The Kensington-Sierra Madre is an assisted living and memory care residence in the heart of Sierra Madre, along the parade route.

The Sierra Madre 4th of July Committee is pleased to honor retired Fire Chief Stephen Heydorff as the 2018 Fourth of July Parade Grand Marshal. "The Grand Marshal is a person or persons whose efforts over a long period of time has been beneficial to the community of Sierra Madre. The title of Grand Marshal is intended to honor a person or persons' volume of work, dedication and overall enhancements to our community." Steve's 30 plus years on the Fire Department are shining examples of this.

Pre-parade Party - before the parade on the 4th, the town will be rockin' in Memorial Park for the Pre-Parade Party & Picnic on July 3rd from 5:30 - 10:30 pm featuring the outstanding local rock music of Groovy Lemon Pie and for the not to be missed Bubblewrap fireworks at 8:00 pm. Kids and grown-up alike stopping on hundreds of square feet of bubble wrap making the sounds of shooting fireworks. The American Revolution: A History by Gordon S. Wood

A magnificent account of the revolution in arms and consciousness that gave birth to the American republic. When Lincoln sought to define the significance of the United States, he naturally looked back to the Revolution. He knew that the Revolution not only had legally created the United States, but also had produced all of the great hopes and values of the American people. Our noblest ideals and aspirations-our commitments to freedom, constitutionalism, the well-being of ordinary people, and equality-came out of the Revolutionary era. Lincoln saw as well that the Revolution had convinced Americans that they were a special people with a special destiny to lead the world toward liberty. The Revolution gave birth to whatever sense of nationhood and national purpose Americans have had.13 insignificant colonies 3000 miles from the centers of Western civilization fought off British rule to become, in fewer than 30 years, a huge, sprawling, republic of nearly 4 million citizens.

Almost a Miracle: The American Victory in the War of Independence by John Ferling

In this gripping chronicle of America's struggle for independence, award-winning historian John Ferling transports readers to the grim realities of that war, capturing an eight-year conflict filled with heroism, suffering, cowardice, betrayal, and fierce dedication.It was a war that America came much closer to losing than is now usually remembered. General Washington put it best when he said that the American victory was "little short of a standing miracle." The book offers an illuminating portrait of America's triumph, offering vivid descriptions of all the major engagements, from the first shots fired on Lexington Green to the surrender of General Cornwallis at Yorktown, revealing how these battles often hinged on intangibles such as leadership under fire, heroism, good fortune, blunders, tenacity, and surprise. Ferling paints portraits of the key figures in the war, including General Washington and other American officers and civilian leaders. Some do not always measure up to their iconic reputations, including Washington himself. The book also examines the many faceless men who soldiered, often for years on end, braving untold dangers and enduring abounding miseries. The author explains why they served and sacrificed, and sees them as the forgotten heroes who won American independence

Not surprisingly, he discovers a fascinating story where internal British political and economic concerns, the doggedness of the revolutionaries, and the distance between Britain and the colonies slowly degraded the ability and the willingness of the British to continue fighting

Maier's book does a masterful job both explaining the origins of the Declaration of Independence and how the Second Continental Congress transformed itself into a national government. FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

PROTECTING THE FINANCIAL FUTURE OF YOUR CHILD WITH SPECIAL NEEDS

It always surprises me to hear parents who have a child with special needs tell me that they were not aware of what they needed to do to ensure the future well-being and care of their child is properly handled. Or sometimes, they tell me they didn't know they needed to do anything at

If that's you, and you have a child with special needs at home, this article is for you. And if you have friends or family who have a child with special needs, please share this article with them. Every parent who has a child with special needs MUST understand what's needed to provide for the emotional, physical, and financial needs of their child, if and when something happens to

Naming Guardians

Of course, the first and most critical step in ensuring the well-being and care of your child with special needs' future is to name both short and long-term legal guardians to take custody of and care of your child, in the event of your death or incapacity. And as you well know, this responsibility doesn't end at age 18, if your child will not grow into an adult who can independently care for him or herself.

While we understand this lifetime responsibility probably feels overwhelming, we've been told repeatedly by parents that naming legal guardians in writing and knowing their child will be cared for in the way they want, by the people they want, creates immense relief.

Beyond naming a guardian, you'll also need to provide financial resources to allow your child to live out his or her life in the manner you desire. with special needs. In fact, it may seem like a more information.

'Catch-22" situation. You want to leave your child enough money to afford the support they need to live a comfortable life. Yet, if you leave money directly to a person with special needs, you risk disqualifying him or her for government

Special Needs Trusts

BUSINESS NEWS & TRENDS

Fortunately, the government allows assets to be held in what's known as a "special needs trust" to provide supplemental financial resources for a physically, mentally, or developmentally disabled child without affecting his or her eligibility for public healthcare and income assistance benefits. However, the rules for such trusts are complicated and can vary greatly between different states, so a comprehensive special needs trust needs to be properly structured and appropriate for your child's specific situation. There are two ways to set up a special needs trust. In certain situations, we build it into your revocable living trust, and it will arise, or spring up, upon your death. From there, assets that are held in your revocable living trust will be used to fund your child's special needs trust.

In other cases, we can set up a special needs trust that acts as a vehicle for receiving and holding assets for your child now. This makes sense if you have parents or other relatives who want to give your child with special needs gifts sooner rather than later.

Once the trust is funded, it's the trustee's job to use its funds to support the beneficiary without jeopardizing eligibility for government benefits. To handle this properly, the trustee must have a thorough understanding of how eligibility for such benefits works and stay current with the law. The trustee is also required to pay the beneficiary's taxes, keep detailed records, invest trust property, and stay current with the beneficiary's needs.

If you need help creating a special needs trust for your child, contact us. We can develop a sustainable living plan for your child with special needs that will provide her or him with the financial means they need to live a full life, while preserving their access to government benefits.

WISDOM & COURAGE

There's a lovely prayer I use often, "God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to the know the difference." It's such a complete picture and remedy for almost any trouble. The words courage and wisdom always have an impact. Both play a huge role in our progress as yogis on the path. There are many who practice yoga solely for the the physical benefits; but most practitioners do seek the opportunity for greater development that yoga offers.

My teacher Yogarupa Rod Stryker, states, "the single hardest yoga practice is the same for everyone. It's called change." Evolving and transforming isn't easy and nor is the path always clear. Courage is an essential ingredient in not only implementing change, but sustaining the effort. Remember, courage is not fearlessness, it's taking actions in the face of fear. You may have had to summon the courage to attend your first yoga class, or chose to take a risk that benefitted the greater good. There are many experiences of courage in life, big and small. What we fall back upon is wisdom and resolve. Wisdom comes from many sources: pivotal texts, wise and truthful people, and straight from divinity. Often, it's the inner wisdom that provides the clarity and stamina we need to proceed forward. There's no comfort quite like knowing we're on the right path in the midst of challenging circumstances. As courage and wisdom become cornerstones of practice, self-

PARTNER IN BELIEVING

Solid Rocket Boosters are the primary propulsion force on a vehicle used for human spaceflight and provide the majority of a space shuttle's thrust during the first two minutes of flight. Boosters give the energy to overcome gravity and exit the earth's atmosphere. Putting a man on the moon and returning him safely to land was the dream of the 1960's American space program. Having a coach and mentor believe in you and hold your vision is your rocket fuel for transformation. When I was young, most of my friends were old, much older than myself. In college, I made friends with the Black professors at other universities near my school. I would show up out of nowhere, without warning to hang out; they were Lori A. Harris very kind and put up with my unexpected visits. I just wanted to know more about the world and life; I was hungry. I wanted more knowledge, experience, and freedom. I was curious about art, politics, and I wanted to travel, to see the world. Becoming a traveler seemed like an impossible dream until I met Jack. He was my first mentor and coach.

Throughout history artists, inventors, entrepreneurs, and dreamers have needed someone in their corner to believe in them and to keep them from becoming discouraged. When you aspire to do something that you have never done before it can be frightening. It is natural to have doubts and fears, without support, your doubts can be like quicksand. A partner in believing is the rocket booster that can bust through the forces that seem to be holding you back.

Having someone that can hold your dream when things seem impossible to you is essential. Jack was my someone. He listened to me. I told him all of my secret hopes, fears, and my biggest dreams. He saw something in me that I couldn't see myself. He believed in me; he was my partner in believing. I remember Jack saying to me with conviction, "you will see the world." I didn't know how it could happen, but I believed in his belief. Not long after his proclamation, I took my first trip outside the country and I have been traveling ever since. With Jack's encouragement, I soared and did impossible things. Now I delight in supporting people in their dreams. Do you have someone with whom you can share your truth? Is there someone that holds your vision when you feel discouraged? Is there someone that delights in your success and still believes in you when you fail? All you need is one.

Having a partner in believing is rocket fuel. If you are tired of trying to go it alone or don't know where to start, schedule a free strategy session, I would love to help you get started on your next

NOT A HAPPY BIRTHDAY

We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America." Preamble to the United States Constitution

It is under above statement that we, Americans, celebrate the establishment of our country each July 4th. It is the 'birthday' that we all share in common. In a recent column I mentioned how my dad taught me that birthdays are our own 'personal' holidays! That being said, as a nation, our own personal holiday - July 4, 2018 should be a great cause of celebration. After all we will be 242 years old and formerly the beacon of a free and democratic society to the world. Instead, regardless of which side of the argument you are on, this 'birthday' is one where we are divided by hate, fear, intolerance, alienation and ignorance.

On this birthday we are being scorned and ridiculed around the world. We have withdrawn from just about every effort to be a part of the world community. We are portraying ourselves as the victims of everything and everybody by an administration that needs to read and reread our great Constitution. If they would just read the preamble, perhaps with a tutor, they might get a clue.

"We the People"....not just this administration and their business associates.

"..form a more perfect union:..." Most of us recognize that our country and its laws are not perfect and we need to strive to improve, not focus on destruction.

establish justice"......and that means for everyone regardless or race, religion, creed or national origin.

"Insure Domestic Tranquility".....not feed the bear (my apologies to bears worldwide), not stir the pot of divisiveness and

"provide for the common defence" - defense of all, not some. Promote the general welfare"......this country was not founded on the 'Friends and Family' plan. The rest of us matter also

"Secure the blessings of Liberty for ourselves and our Posterity".... i.e., life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness now and for future generations.

Just this morning I heard Donald J. Trump say, "My Government..." and therein lies a major part of the problem. It isn't his government, it is OUR GOVERNMENT and we need to start acting like it. Right or Left, Independent or Green, it is OURS..... not one side or the other.

I used to be a proud American. I am not now. Nor would my father and grandfather, WWII and WWI Veterans respectively be, if they were alive today. Both risked their lives for a country that did not even respect them as men, yet they fought regardless in an effort to make things better for all. That is what we are all supposed to do, fight to make things better for all, together!

Our country has gone from a beacon of freedom and liberty to a cesspool of selfish and inhumane actions, and we have done so in just 525+ days. Ironic isn't it that this destructive administration has a leader who touts the slogan, "Make America Great Again". Clearly what he refers to as great, based upon his 525 days of action, is something we have never been before.

So as we prepare to pay homage to OUR COUNTRY on July 4th, let's all, left and right, demand of all elected officials that they focus on upholding the tenets of the Constitution and restoring America back to being a true democracy, a system of government by the whole population. If we do that, then maybe our 243rd birthday will truly be a joyous one.

TOM PURCELL CONFUSING FACTS & OPINIONS

The Pew Research Center quiz was harder than I expected." "Ah, yes, you speak of the recently released survey in which

Pew quizzed 5,035 adult Americans to determine their ability to distinguish between factual information and opinion statements in the news."

"That's right. The Pew website lets anyone take a quiz featuring 10 statements, five that are true-or-false factual statements and five that are opinion statements. Pew told me to ignore whether or not a statement is accurate and also to ignore whether or not I agree with it. I follow the news and figured I'd ace the quiz, but I didn't."

"Let's take a look at the quiz. Pew's first statement says, 'Abortion should be legal in most cases.' Did you classify that as a fact or an opinion?"

"I classified it as an opinion and got it right. This is a contentious issue, but the statement is still an opinion."

"Pew's second statement said, 'Immigrants who are in the U.S. illegally have some rights under the Constitution.' How did you classify that one?"

"It's factual. Look, it's true that undocumented immigrants don't have the full rights of a U.S. citizen, but, according to the ACLU, our Constitution does afford them some rights, such as freedom of speech, religion, privacy and others. I struggled with Pew's next statement, however."

"That 'Democracy is the greatest form of government'?"

"Yes. I classified it as a fact, because I strongly believe that democracy - in our case a representative republic - is the greatest, but the statement is, in truth, an opinion."

"It's not always easy to separate one's strong beliefs and opinions from facts. Pew found that each participant was more likely to classify both factual and opinion statements as factual when the statements validated his or her personal politics or

'That's probably why Pew chose 10 statements that may get people fired up, depending on their political points of view. Such as this one that's still driving conspiracy nuts crazy: 'President Barack Obama was born in the United States.' correctly classified that as a fact."

"Which others did you get right? "It's a fact that 'Health care costs per person in the U.S. are the highest in the

'Spending on Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid make up the largest portion of the U.S. federal budget,' and that 'ISIS lost a significant portion of its territory in Iraq and Syria in 2017.

Which opinions did you classify correctly?"

"It's an opinion, not a fact, that 'Immigrants who are in the U.S. illegally are a very big problem for the country today,' and that 'A $15 federal minimum wage is essential to the health of the U.S. Economy." "That leaves us with one more statement: 'Government is almost always wasteful and inefficient." "Even though I know that statement is an opinion, I couldn't resist classifying it as 'You did better than most. Pew reports that only 26 percent of the adults surveyed correctly identified all five factual statements as factual, and just 35 percent identified all five opinion statements as opinion."

"That's worrisome."

"To be sure. Our republic depends on a well-informed populace to remain strong. If the majority of our people can't differentiate between fact and opinion - or fact and fiction, for that matter - they can be easily misled. That doesn't bode well for our future."

RAGING MODERATE by WILL DURST

THE TRUMP ADMINISTRATION: ABSURDITY, NORMALIZED

People keep wondering how the hell we got here. How did America become a country that forcibly separates kids from their parents? The answer is obvious: we got Trumped.

Since the election of the 45th POTUS, everything we know is wrong. Racism is good. Health care is bad. Coal is the future. Rich people need more money. North Korea is our friend. Canada and the free press are the enemy. Judges aren't necessary, since we can tell who's guilty just by looking at them.

The very phrase "President Donald Trump" should be surreal. Like saying Pope Charlie Sheen. It's a Saturday Night Live skit. One of those not very funny SNL skits they slap on after the second appearance of the band. The Golden Canopy drags us down to his level, and just when we think we've reached a new low, another sub-basement gets dug. In a year and a half we've sunk so low we can feel the heat on our feet from the core of the earth.

Absurdity has become normalized. We've built up a tolerance to delusions. We're constantly jonesing for another shot of narcissistic confusion. We've turned into adrenaline junkies demanding our larger daily dose of preposterousness.

On April 6th, Attorney General Jefferson Beauregard Sessions III announced the administration's zero tolerance policy. He then used the Bible to justify its policy of separating immigrant parents from their children. Citing the same passage the south used to defend slavery. Maybe the plan was to rent the kids out to corporate farms. That cotton isn't going to pick itself, you know.

Trump and other administration officials proceeded to hold a competition for the most ludicrous excuse with a veritable bevy of them. "The Democrats are responsible." "We're just upholding the law." "Using kids as hostages is not our policy." "The courts made us do it." "Only Congress can undo it." "Our hands are tied." "The Torah says it's okay." "Obama did it first." "The kids are drug mules." "They're tiny future rapists." "Crooked Hillary is to blame." "Mexico is to blame." "Bill Clinton had an affair." "911 was an inside job." "Putin should be emperor of the world." "What kids?"

The problem was the optics. Kids in cages may look good on paper, but it doesn't play so well on TV. And the rest of the Republican Party has tied their future to him with knots that would earn a boy scout merit badges. These enablers have already revealed themselves to being anti-logic, anti-environment, anti-democracy and antifidelity. What difference does anti-family make?

Under pressure from his own party, especially from that select group of members up for election in November, the President signed an executive order to change the policy he claimed wasn't a policy and couldn't be changed.

And both Republicans and Democrats are planning partisan political ploys to highlight evidence that the other side is using the immigration crisis as a partisan political ploy coming up in the Midterms.

Then to put the oddest of exclamation marks on the proceedings, the First Lady visited a detention center while wearing a $39 jacket that had the words "I don't really care. Do U?" painted on the back. And the overwhelming response of seeing toddlers crying for absent parents was "Yessss." At least she didn't offer to bring the kids cake.
