Community News Comes First

VOLUME 12 NO. 28

Mayor Denise Delmar, Mayor Pro Tem John Harabedian, and Councilmembers John Capoccia, Gene Goss and Rachelle Arizmendi held a public meeting with Library Trustees Patricia Hall, Chair and Trustees Shannon King, Rich Proctor, Rod Spears and Barry Ziff on the future of the beloved Sierra Madre library. The agenda included discussion on the recent survey results, the Vision of the Library Board, the timeline and funding options.

The survey, which was conducted earlier this year, was conducted via mail to slightly over 4,000 households. Respondents were given 4 options:

- 1. Move the library from its current location to the Community Center.
- Keep the library at its current location, move programs to other locations, sell the
- adjoining lot to pay for structural improvements.3. Keep the library at its current location, enhance and expand programs, fund
- increased services and structural improvements with a property tax.Keep the library at its current location, reduce services, and limit public access.
- Do not sell any land or increase taxes.

The public chose Option 2 – Keeping the Library at its' current location, repair and move programs. This was the only option that received support from a majority of the residents – 59%. It also garnered more strong support, 32% compared to strong opposition 22%.

A Majority of residents do not support:

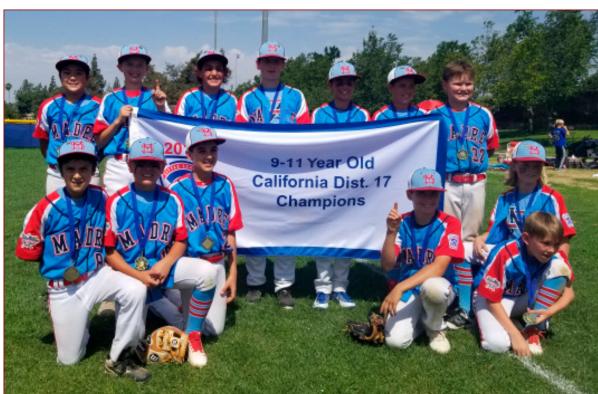

- Moving the Library to a new location A significant reduction in services
- A parcel tax to pay for a new Library or enhanced services

Financial options for the library as presented in the staff report dominated much of the conversation:

- 1.Minimal Investment:$1,400,000 (2017 Master Plan)2.Meaningful Improvement:$3,700,000 (2017 Master Plan)3.Modest Library Rebuild:$8,900,000 (Board of Trustees)4.Fully Outfitted New Building:$11,130,000 (Joe Matthews Report)
- The Trustees vision is to do a Modest Library Rebuild of $8.900,000 which would include : Razing existing building and replace with a new 14,000 sq ft structure Address the needs identified in the Library Master Plan Adjacent Lot may or may not be used in construction.
 - The timeline would be 2020 and later.

Sources of funding such a venture could include creating a foundation and raising money through the foundation. It was noted that South Pasadena successfully gained approval for a parcel tax. Included in the staff report was an example of possible funding:

The Sierra Madre Little League All Stars went undefeated in the District 17 ages 9-11 tournament.

Manager Brian Kriebs gathered the best of the SMLL players and spent most of June working on getting the team game ready, as the tournament would boast the usual heavy hitters from around the district.

The tournament was hosted by Pasadena American Little League, and the host team faced off against Sierra Madre on June 30th at Victory Park. The Sierra Madre All-Stars managed a come from behind victory, with a walk off double in the bottom of the 6th inning, and the next night, they ended the game in similar fashion, with a rally late in the game against Pasadena Southwest. That victory put SMLL squarely in the winners bracket, as the other teams were forced to battle each other for a chance to see SMLL again.

On July 3rd, Madre squared off against San Marino, and secured the win, punching their ticket to the championship game. Due to the heatwave that baked the valley, the championship game was postponed until 8am on Sunday, July 8th, and Sierra Madre would face San Marino again. With the district championship on the line, along with a trip to the sectional tournament, the Sierra Madre community came out in droves to support the undefeated 9-11 All Stars, and chants of "Let's go, Madre!" were heard from the beginning of the game through the exciting finish. Madre prevailed, and went undefeated in the district.

The team will head to Tehachapi to participate in the California Section 2 All Star tournament. Play begins on July 14th, with the championship game on July 18th.

The consensus leaned toward accepting the Trustee's Vision of a Modest Rebuild. However, the council has different views on how to fund the project.

THE STONE MENAGERIE

KATIE TseThis and That things about Sierra Madre is its quirkiness. If you watched the Fourth of July parade, you know what I'm talking about. Shout out to Barry Schwam and the musical dill pickles! Sierra Madre strikes the perfect balance of quaint foothill community and aging hippy art colony. Take a drive around the canyon for an example of this.

Another perk of living in this town is all the a little gray gnome. I can understand leaving things great hiking opportunities.

Even if you don't actually "hike," trekking up the sharp inclines on streets like Auburn and Oak Crest will certainly get your heart rate going. It was at the intersection of North Lima, Carter, and Oak Crest that I first spotted what I call "The Stone Menagerie."

The Stone Menagerie started when someone put a large white pelican on one of the rocks by the "Oak Crest" sign. He (I assume it's a he) looked kind of regal, and he seemed to really "fit" there. For a while the pelican was alone, but then a white rabbit appeared on a rock beneath him, positioned so that the rabbit was looking up at him. This gave the impression that the pelican was can't relate, it's because you're more outgoing than I teaching the rabbit something really important, like how to file his taxes or put together a winning pick 6 ticket at the races.

After the rabbit came a white duck. At first he (I guess most animals are male in my imagination) was turned the wrong way, looking at the pedestrians instead of paying attention to the pelican's tax and handicapping tips. One day I took the liberty of adjusting him back the way I felt he was supposed to be facing.

After the second identical white stone duck

I love Sierra Madre! I've lived appeared, there was a proverbial explosion of stone here my whole life and I cannot lawn decorations. Instead of a new one appearing imagine calling anywhere else every couple of days, a bunch started popping up home. One thing of my favorite overnight like mushrooms. I think the first statue to break the all-white theme was a gray turtle, followed by a gray frog. There was also a yellow duck, and a bearded man holding a bowl that is probably supposed to be a bird feeder.

The weird thing about this collection is that occasionally someone removes one or two of the statues. This happened with the big red rooster and > there, but taking stuff that other people have left away seems odd.

> The last time I counted, there were 13 items gathered around the original pelican. I think the red USC gnome might be from my neighbors. At this point, the items are definitely made out of a wider variety of materials than stone or plaster. But calling it "The Plastic Menagerie" sounds cheesy.

> Also, the sheer number of figurines has detracted from the original vision of a simple lesson in taxes and gambling advice. Like any gathering of individuals, the event starts to feel strained once the group grows too large (The words of an introvert. If you

am –congratulations.)

But that's the beauty of our community. Just because the lawn decoration party at N. Lima/ Carter/Oak Crest got overcrowded doesn't mean there aren't a dozen other options available for new stone menageries to spring up elsewhere around town. "Turtle Park" at the top of Mountain Trail seems ideal, as does the canyon or any shady corner of the "Pool Park." Can't wait to see what creative collections my fellow Sierra Madreans will come up with next!

WALKING SIERRA MADRE... The Social Side By Deanne Davis

"Rockin' Rollers (Rock for music and Rollers for hair) began with the vision of delightful and talented married couple, Joe and Gigi Hutchinson, to combine their two passions: "Music Enrichment and Hairdressing in a creative atmosphere that brings together Music and Image."

have been beautifying Sierra Madre's hair and teaching music to all sorts of folks for the last two and a half and good experiences for autistic kids. Watching Joe years at their charming salon/studio in Suite 10 at the and Gigi relate to each other, talk excitedly about all 38 E. Montecito center. That's the center where the RT they're doing and plan to do was such a joy for me. Rogers Brewing Company has set up shop, providing one of the more delightful places to sit and enjoy a glass of something exquisitely tasty Ryan Rogers has brewed right there on the premises and listen to a little music. Joe, and occasionally, his band - Joe Normal & The Anytown'rs appear every first Friday at RT Rogers Brewing Company. Mark your calendar! Joe and Gigi realized that hair and music definitely go together some time ago when they met on the Sunset Strip in 1986 and operated a salon in the mid-90's in Hollywood. Before opening their salon on Montecito, they were both making house calls, teaching guitar in somebody's living room and doing a shampoo and blowout in the kitchen. Now Gigi, Sabin Parsi and Claire Rodgers do fabulous hair and makeup on Montecito, partnering with our own Sierra Madre Playhouse where these artists did the hair and makeup for "A Christmas Story" and are consulting with Alison Kalmus on an upcoming junior production of "Babes In Barns' which is a take-off on all those great old Mickey Rooney-Judy Garland movies. You remember... "Hey Gang! Let's put on a show!!" I first saw Gigi's work a few weeks ago when she, Sabin and Claire did the hair and makeup for the Vintage Treasures Fashion Show, held poolside at the Double Tree Hotel in Monrovia. The models looked spectacular and watching Gigi and her team transform ladies of all ages into flat-out gorgeous was awesome. This was a huge event and with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres, couldn't have been more fun. I remembered seeing my mother wearing a trapeze dress, like one that was modeled, back in the late 50's. clients achieve the look that shows their own particular brand and lifestyle. A Mother's Day complete makeover contest with moms nominating moms was a huge success, too. You'll want to check out the free monthly Open Mic show on the second Sunday of every month from 3:30 to 5:30 there at Rockin Rollers and Joe's starting a songwriter's night, too on the second Wednesday of the month. Again, mark your calendar!

Joe and Gigi have two sons, 16 and 13, one of whom is living on the autism spectrum. Needless to say, like all parents of special needs kids, Joe and Gigi volunteer with several organizations which provide help, like Danny's Farm, which gives special needs kids experiences with animals in a farm atmosphere. And I have to say they've succeeded! Gigi and Joe They've involved themselves with autism walks and I asked them what a few keys to happy marriage are for them and they pretty much agreed it was shared goals, gratitude and an attitude of humbleness. Yep, that's pretty much it, friends and neighbors. Looking around the salon, I noticed the products Gigi uses, Loma and Marrakesh. She explained they are very particular about what they use and these are family companies, using as many natural ingredients as possible. As Rockin Rollers is a boutique salon, they like to support boutique style companies. I left laden down with samples and am expecting "significantly improved hair condition and texture, silky smooth with glossy shine!" Joe, along with fellow teachers Dan Buccat, Damien de la Cruz and Barbara Jenice, is planning Uke & Rock Summer Camps, a Songwriter's Workshop, more appearances at RT Rogers Brewing Company, and other places 'round the San Gabriel Valley. You can buy Joe's CDs at www.joenormalusa. com and if you're contemplating a CD of your own, he can help you with your recording, publishing, copywriting and just about anything you need. If you haven't checked out Rockin Rollers, go take a look! Call 626-355-0101 for an appointment or to schedule a lesson on guitar, ukulele, bass, drums, piano or even an entire rock band class! Appointments definitely appreciated, but Gigi strives to be open on Mondays when every other salon is closed and she will take walk-in's if possible. You can book online, too: RockinrollersUSA@ gmail.com. These guys are charming, delightful, uplifting, inspirational and talented! You'll agree that they bring enjoyment, enrichment and well-Gigi and Joe feel that hair/image and music being to their clients and community in a creative definitely belong together and they work to help atmosphere for music exploration and artistic discovery. Go in and say hi! My book page: Amazon.com: Deanne Davis Kindle books of all sorts and hardcover "Tablespoon of Love" are on there, as is "Star of Wonder." Star of Wonder the CD is now on TuneCore! Man crashes into parked cars, cuts himself with Scissors

According to police and news reports, a 38-year-old man, thought to be on drugs, cashed into three separate parked cars Wednesday morning, including a Pasadena police car. The man then ran into AAA office on Union Street grabbed scissors from a desk and began cutting his arm. Police said they first got a report around 9:25 a.m. of a possible hit and run car crash on Colorado Blvd. near St. John Ave. Minutes later they received another call of a second hit and run at Colorado Boulevard near De Lacey Ave. Another call within minutes of that reported a crash involving a parked police car.

Police said the man, driving a silver Acura then pulled into the AAA Auto Club office. Police evacuated the building while they arrested the man and while Pasadena fire treated him for injuries.

Pasadena Bails on Metro's Bike Share

By Dean Lee

Pasadena Transportation Director Fred Dock told the city's Municipal Services Committee, Tuesday, the city's intent to end Metro's Bike Share program just a day before Metro plans to sharply reduce ride cost, and will also later add new features that include free 30 minute ride transfers and an electric bikes fleet.

In a letter to Metro officials Wednesday, the city said they will terminate the program within 60 days. Dock said this will prevent the $1.7 million project from operating at a deficit. At issue was a lack of sponsorship for the program and an unforseen cost of $468,411 by Metro for preplanning, logistics and installation of the bike share stations. Dock said, because of this, they only had funding to operate through the end of July.

"We have a contract with Metro that allows Metro to operate the bike share in the city of Pasadena, That's what we are

NASA Cassini Coverage Lands Emmy Nomination

The Academy of Television Arts & Sciences nominated NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, California, for Outstanding Original Interactive Program for its coverage of the Cassini mission's Grand Finale at Saturn, including news, web, education, television and social media efforts.

In 2017, after nearly 20 years in space and 13 years revealing the wonders of Saturn, NASA's Cassini orbiter was running out of fuel. As a final act, Cassini began a whole new mission -- its Grand Finale. This journey into the unknown would end with a spectacular plunge into the planet. JPL created a multimonth digital campaign to celebrate the mission's science and engineering accomplishments and communicate why the spacecraft must meet its end in the skies of Saturn.

Cassini's first, daring dive into the unexplored space between the giant planet and its rings kicked off the campaign on April 26, 2017. It culminated on Sept. 15, 2017, with live coverage of Cassini's plunge into Saturn's atmosphere, with the spacecraft sending back science to the very last second.

The multi-faceted campaign included regular updates on Twitter, Facebook, Snapchat, Instagram and the Cassini mission website; multiple live social, web and TV broadcasts during which reporter and public questions were answered; a dramatic short film to communicate the mission's story and preview Cassini endgame; multiple cassini. its 360-degree videos, including NASA's first 360-degree livestream of a mission event from inside JPL mission control; an interactive press kit; a steady drumbeat of articles to keep fans updated with news and features about the people behind the mission; state-standards educational aligned materials; a celebration of art by amateur space enthusiasts; and software to provide real-time tracking of the spacecraft, down to its final transmission to Earth.

The Primetime Emmys will be awarded by the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences in Los Angeles on Sept. 17. The Creative Arts Emmys, which includes interactive awards, will be presented during a separate ceremony on Saturday, Sept. 15, at the Microsoft Theatre in Los Angeles.

The Cassini-Huygens mission is a cooperative project of NASA, ESA (European Space Agency) and the Italian Space Agency. JPL, a division of Caltech in Pasadena, manages the mission for NASA's Science Mission Directorate, Washington. JPL designed, developed and assembled the Cassini orbiter.

the Richman Residential, authorizing the 296unit, multi-family housing development located just south of our Gold Line stop at Station Square (located at the NE corner of Duarte Avenue / Magnolia Avenue) to proceed. The City Council was pleased by many of the thoughtful design components and amenities that had been incorporated into the project with neighborhood compatibility and public benefit in mind. One component that was discussed in greater detail was parking, and the potential concern of overspill from the project into the neighborhood nearby. As part of the project development, a thorough parking study was conducted working with the firm LSA which determined that 522 parking spaces (or a parking ratio of 1.76 spaces per unit) would meet the needs of the development and the area. Currently, the total parking provision is broken down by 384 designated spaces for the residential units, 74 residential guest spaces, 15 spaces for the live/work visitors, and 49 paid-public parking spaces. It should be noted that according to the Institute of Transportation Engineer Parking Generation, determined a rate of 1.52 spaces per dwelling unit. Additionally, a survey of similar projects identified a parking ration of 1.55 spaces per dwelling unit. Thus, the parking analysis concluded that the proposed parking provision of 1.76 spaces per unit was conservative site connecting to the drop-off plaza when compared against several different metrics. • A 2,130 square foot publicly-accessible open In addition, should issues arise in the future space area fronting Magnolia Avenue

• On July 3, 2018, the City Council approved regarding the need for additional parking in the area, the proposed plan has built-in flexibility by being able to convert the 49 paid-public parking spaces back for residential uses.More background information, plans, and agenda materials can be found on the City's Development Spotlight for the project here: Station Square South Specific Plan Additional details related to the Richman Residential Project include the following: The project is being developed under the auspices of the Station Square South Specific Plan, which consists of a 3.79-acre property adjacent to and south of the Gold Line Monrovia Station, which includes several parcels in and around 1725 Peck Road and 225 West Duarte Road. The development will be a transit-oriented, 3, 4, and 5-story multifamily residential development of 296 dwelling units, yielding a density of 78 dwelling units per acre (gross). The project proposes to change Peck Road north of Duarte Road to a publicly accessible driveway and drop-off area for the adjacent Metro Gold Line Monrovia Station. The site is part of the Station Square Transit Village. The project also provides three types of planned public open spaces, including:A 15,488 square foot drop-off plaza (and accessible paths) for Gold Line station passengers

A PET PAMPERER'S PREPONDERANCES

One of the many unexpected, and perhaps while all the others remained unmoved. undeserved gifts that I have come to receive from the pets I get to pamper, is the feeling of inner peace their presence brings to me whenever we are together. You're probably thinking, "Oh boy, here we go, right off the bat this story is sounding pretty deep and introspective", and that's probably because it is.

Of recent months, I have been much more mindful of what's going on "inside" myself while I am out walking my canine clients. This relatively recent increase in inner-self-mindfulness has turned out to be an awesome asset for me. It proves particularly by the chaos that can occur on the outer surface of every day human life.

Making a pointed effort to maintain some semblance of serenity within, while moving through a busy day has helped me stay happy, regardless of any noisy commotion that may erupt around me. I've been told I'm a sensitive soul. I'm not sure what that means exactly, but I imagine it has to do with my tendency to be overly vigilant with regard to daily walks out and about where I am subjected to friend, Carolyn who also happens to be one who what I may perceive to be intrusive stimuli, so that I am forced to adapt and become accustomed to it. For this I am grateful, because if there is one thing I have meaningless chatter, but instead turned out to be a learned about myself it is that, left to my own devices, I will avoid situations that take me out of my comfort zone.

on now, and get to the point of this meandering tale. There is something very therapeutic about the silence I share with the pets I spend time with. No one among us feels the need to fill the air with senseless chatter. It is a luxury; that unique quiet time, during which I often engage in introspection and more recently, I use the time to listen for the still small voice of God.

The air was very still that morning, as were the leaves on the trees and other fauna that "Patches", "Puck" and I passed by during a walk around their block. I thought it quite mysterious that with no wind whatsoever, the leaves of that one plant would be dancing

I found it remarkable enough to mention to a man saw doing yard work nearby. He smiled and said, That is probably because a gopher or mole is below, gnawing on the roots." Now, I hadn't thought of that before but it made total sense to me. Immediately the thought followed that there are many things in life that I'm either perplexed by or make erroneous assumptions about, because I am unable to see the whole picture.

Indeed, there are many instances in life wherein my view is very limited, and I would do better refraining valuable at times when I feel somewhat surrounded from making rash inferences based on what limited view I do have. My eyes see and perceive only those things that are within my field of human vision, but there is so much more going on beneath the surface.

To take that thought to a deeper level, much of what goes on in life happens outside the perimeters of my limited capacity to, not only see, but to truly understand. There is definitely a bigger picture - a back story as it were - only a portion of which I have been made privy to. That little plant brought a

CHRISTOPHER Nyerges DON'T BE A PART OF THE "CRAZY 15%": PRACTICE SURVIVAL SKILLS

In the "First Aid" chapter of How to Survive Anywhere, I address specific simple ways of dealing with the common medical emergencies that one can expect in the aftermath of a major disaster, or if lost and hurt in the woods. What would you do if a major earthquake struck Sierra Madre tomorrow?

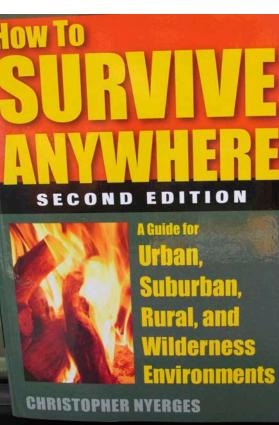

Also consider that it is not only the physical accidents that we need to be concerned about in the aftermath of some disaster. In studies that have been done of the survivors of major disasters, the following conclusions have been made about the mental state of the survivors. Approximately 15% made quick, appropriate, and efficient choices and actions which were well-suited to their safety and security. Another 15% "went crazy," making wild irrational choices and even getting hurt as a result of their "losing it."

The rest, about 70% of the survivors - a full majority - neither went crazy nor did they make wise and efficient choices and actions, but rather wandered about somewhat zombie-like, spaced-out, in a state of stupor and shock, simply not knowing what to do, where to go, what to think. This shocked majority tends to be passive, with the express purpose of expanding limits, but will take orders from someone who seems to be in control and who seems to know what they are doing and why.

The point: None of us wants to be a part of that majority, and definitely we don't want to be a TAKE CLASSES part of that "crazy 15." No one would want to be wandering around Sierra Madre Blvd. in a dazed state of mind.

What can we do to ensure that in a time of disaster, we find ourselves in that 15% category of wise, appropriate, efficient actions? I FELL FOR IT... AGAIN

An old saying more or less defines my life, "What we anything from history. learn from history is that we don't learn from history.

When I was younger, I assumed that the older I got, the smarter I would become. I have not achieved that at this point in my life. It gets so in for the evening. tiresome to repeat the same mistakes over and over again.

I do hope though, that this will change somewhere along my life. I am hoping it changes before I die.

I was reminded of this flaw in my personality several weeks ago when the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage and I spent a little bit of vacation time at St. Augustine. Someone had given us tickets for several nights in a bed and breakfast.

We spent the whole week just enjoying ourselves. I should correct that though. I spent the whole week reading and meditating with my eyes closed.

The other side of our relationship went to all the thrift stores in the area. She would leave right after breakfast, stop back for lunch, then spend the rest of the day until suppertime going from one thrift shop to another. How she can do this for days on end is beyond my wildest dream.

Several times, she asked if I wanted to go with her, but I declined this most gracious invitation. I remember the last time I took her up on that offer and we bounce from one thrift store to the next thrift store. They all started to look alike after a while.

It only takes me five minutes to thoroughly examine the thrift store, while my wife takes two hours to go through bit-by-bit every aspect of that thrift store. Every thrift store in the area knows her by name at this point.

To be honest, she has gotten many wonderful deals at some of these thrift stores. Whenever we need anything, she knows exactly which thrift store to go to and she can barter them down to the I like what the wise old man in the Bible said, "A very bottom. How they make any money on her shopping I do not know.

Every once in a while I suffer this awful nightmare. I wake up sweating and breathing really hard.

The nightmare is that we have opened up our own thrift store. No dream can get any worse than that!

I never tell her of these nightmares because I do not want to plant any ideas in her head. I lean 4240 or e-mail jamessnyder2@att.net. The church strictly away from that idea.

I wish I would know when to keep my mouth shut. As we were finishing our casual supper, I said something that I now regret very much. I said, "Boy, it sure would be nice to have one of those lap desks so I could use my computer while I'm sitting here in the bed."

I did not mean for this to be a point of discussion just a casual observation, that is all.

Then I took it a step further. "Have you ever seen any lap desks in the thrift stores that you visit?'

If there is anything I could ever take back in my life, this would have been one of them. I did not know how serious the subject was.

"I don't know," she said most enthusiastically, "but I'll go and find out right..."

Before she could say the word "now," she had gone out the door and shut it most soundly. The rest of the evening she was visiting thrift stores all over the place. I was afraid, very much afraid, that she would actually find one and bring it back.

I suppose they are to be found in thrift stores somewhere. But I just meant it as a passing bit of conversation.

Four hours later, she returned and was very much excited. She had found something she had been looking for, for a very long time. It was a very eloquent teapot with 6 cups and saucers to it.

"Look what I found," she said most excitedly. "I've been looking for this and we can use it at our next lady's tea." According to her, this tea set I, the lazier part of the marital equation, chose matches the one she had back home. She was so

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

BRININGING YOUR OWN WINE? PLUS SUMMERTIME'S BLUES PARTY AT PACO'S

Recently I dined at a very upscale restaurant in Beverly Hills and became friendly with the owner. He told me that he flies from coast to coast monthly to take care of his restaurants in New York City. Being the curious sort, I asked my new friend what is the biggest difference between NYC patrons and Angelenos. Without hesitation he said that we "hometown folk" don't hesitate to bring our own wine into restaurants, whereas in New York City it is frowned upon, but he has learned to accept it as a part of doing business here in Los Angeles. He said that his food costs for a steak can run up as much as 40%, but he can triple the price of a bottle and more for wine by the glass.

My friend Robert Simon owner of Bistro 45 describes it this way: There are two schools of thought: there are restaurants that take a casual look at their wine list, and there are restaurants that you can and should trust to have a great $30 bottle (or wine by glass) or a $300 bottle of wine. If you trust the restaurant, order from their menu. If it's a special occasion, then bring a bottle and buy a bottle.

For me, I contend that corkage is generally meant as a courtesy for customers looking to savor a special bottle. Unfortunately, this isn't often what customers do. Instead, people will bring bad wine or argue over the fee. Here are a few of my tips on this: 1) Call the restaurant about their policy. I'd feel more comfortable taking a bottle to a restaurant where I am considered a regular. 2) Bring only a bottle that is not on their menu. If it is, ok, bring one, and also buy one of theirs. 3)Although the restaurant sommelier is almost a thing of the past, ask the owner/manager if they'd like a taste. 4) If they have waived the fee, or if the corkage is reasonable, you must tip as if you bought the wine at the restaurant

Considering how much I eat out, I don't bring wines to restaurants that often. Sometimes it's easier to not do all the work. There is, however one place where I wish I could always bring wine: weddings, seems I am never happy with the wine selection.

A NEW TELESCOPE EXPANDS BIG BEAR SOLAR OBSERVATORY'S VIEW OF THE SUN

A solar telescope that captures images of the entire global data of our star," notes Wenda Cao, an NJIT disk of the Sun, monitoring eruptions taking place simultaneously in different magnetic fields in both the photosphere and chromosphere, is now being installed beside the Goode Solar Telescope (GST) at NJIT's California-based Big Bear Solar Observatory (BBSO).

The telescope, SOLIS (Synoptic Optical Longterm Investigations of the Sun), collects images from three separate instruments over years and even decades, rather than minutes or hours, giving scientists a comprehensive view of solar activity such as flares and coronal mass injections over the long-term. It will complement the GST, which gathers high-resolution images of individual explosions at such detail that researchers are beginning to unveil the mechanical operations that trigger them.

With this important addition, BBSO becomes professor of physics and BBSO's director. "By monitoring variations in the Sun on a continuing basis for several decades, we will better understand the solar activity cycle, sudden energy releases in the solar atmosphere, fluxes in solar irradiance, or brightness, and their relationship to global change on Earth."

Earlier this month, BBSO received a $2.3 million grant from the National Science Foundation (NSF) that will fund continuing scientific study of the Sun using the 1.6-meter GST at Big Bear, which is currently the highest resolution solar telescope in the world.

"GST will continue to play a crucial, leading role in advancing solar studies until the end of this decade and beyond. We will obtain, analyze and interpret the highest resolution solar data ever taken, while developing and applying analytical a comprehensive observing site that offers not tools to attack a number of critical, leading-edge only high-resolution solar observations, but also problems in solar research," says Cao, the grant's principal investigator.

Big Bear Lake is an ideal location, because the lake minimizes atmospheric turbulence caused by heating thermals, offering exceptional "seeing" for long periods per day on its more than 286 sunny days per year.

SOLIS is a suite of three innovative instruments that greatly improve ground-based synoptic solar observations. The 50-cm vector spectromagnetograph is a compact, highthroughput vector-polarimeter with an active secondary mirror, an actively controlled grating spectrograph and two high-speed cameras with silicon-on-CMOS-multiplexer hybrid focal plane arrays. It will measure the magnetic field strength and direction over the full solar disk within 15 minutes.

"SOLIS continues a 45-year record of data on the at the Sun's core. behavior of the Sun's magnetic field that originally began at Kitt Peak, Arizona. It is also the longest consistent provider of data on the direction of the MtnViewsNews.com.

magnetic field in the photosphere, stretching back to 2003." says Frank Hill, associate director of the NSO.

Earlier this year, a team of physicists led by NJIT's Gregory Fleishman discovered a phenomenon that may begin to untangle what they call "one of the greatest challenges for solar modeling"determining the physical mechanisms that heat the corona, or upper atmosphere, to 1 million degrees Fahrenheit and higher.

Invisible to the human eye except when it appears briefly as a fiery halo of plasma during a solar eclipse, the corona remains a puzzle even to scientists who study it closely. Beginning 1,300 miles from the star's surface and extending millions more in every direction, it is more than a hundred times hotter than lower layers much closer to the fusion reactor

CAN A DEBT COLLECTOR TAKE MY SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS?

Dear Savvy Senior, Can my Social Security benefits be garnished if I have some outstanding debts? I just turned 62 and would like to start collecting my retirement benefits, but want to find this out before I apply.

Worried Retiree

Dear Worried,

Whether your Social Security benefits are garnishable or not depends on whom you owe. Banks and other financial creditors, for example, can't touch your Social Security checks. But if Uncle Sam is collecting on a debt, some of your benefits are fair game. Here's what you should know.

Creditor Protections

If you have credit card debts, medical bills, unpaid personal loans or pay day loans, you'll be happy to know that your Social Security benefits are safe from your creditors. Section 207 of the Social Security Act prohibits debt collectors or a bankruptcy court from dipping into your bank account to take Social Security money for purposes of paying off what you owe.

Supplemental Security Income (SSI), veterans benefits, federal employee and civil service retirement benefits, and benefits administered by the Railroad Retirement Board Administration can't be touched either.

But be aware that your creditors can still take legal action against you to recover what you owe them, and depending on your state's law, they may be able to garnish your wages and tap into other allowable assets, if you have any.

Government Garnishment

If, however, you owe money to Uncle Sam, it's a very different story. The federal government can garnish a portion of your Social Security benefits for repayment of several types of debts, including federal income taxes, federal student loans, stateordered child support and alimony, nontax debt owed to other federal agencies, defaulted federal home loans and certain civil penalties. (If you receive SSI, those benefits cannot be garnished under any circumstance.)

How much can actually be taken depends on the type of debt you owe. In most situations, the government can pull 15 percent of your benefits to cover your debt, but under the Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1996, it must leave you at least $750 each month. That is, unless the levy is for federal income taxes. In that case, the government isn't required to leave $750 behind.

The other exception is for child support or alimony payments. Depending on your state laws, the court may be able to take half of your benefits or more to pay your obligations to your children or ex-spouse.

If you think your Social Security benefits might be raided to pay overdue bills, you need to address the problem - don't ignore it. Most government agencies are happy to work with you so long as you're willing to work with them.

The government typically sends several letters about a debt before it takes action. The final letter will inform you of the intent to levy Social Security payments, and after that, you have 30 days to contact the agency and work out a payment plan.

Sierra Madre // This Week's Market Update

This Week Median List Price: $1,350.000

Demand measured by the Market Action Index is increasing and days-on-market is holding steady. With more properties coming available, conditions are mildly positive.

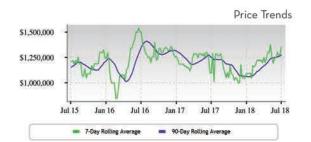

Supply & Demand

The market has started cooling and prices have recently plateaued. Since we're in the Seller's zone, watch for changes in MAI. If the MAI resumes its climb, prices will likely follow suit. If the MAI drops consistently or falls into the Buyer's zone, watch for downward pressure on prices.

The Market Action Index answers the question "How's the Market?" by measuring the current rate of sale versus the amount of the inventory. Index above 30 implies Seller's Market conditions. Below 30, conditions favor the buyer.

The market seems to have paused around this plateau. The Market Action Index is a good leading indicator for the durability of this trend.

AROUND SAN GABRIEL VALLEY

IN MEMORY OF ANTHONY AVALOS

By Joan Schmidt

By now, all are aware of the tragic death of 10 year old Anthony Avalos of Lancaster from repeated abuse by his mother and her boyfriend.

Recently I wrote that Supervisor Barger is outstanding; June 26, she reinforced my opinion. At the Board of Supervisors (BOS) Meeting, Barger introduced a motion. Barger began saying she was shocked and saddened by the horrible, tragic, senseless murder of a child, inside the home. Law enforcement, social workers, and family preservation workers all interacted with the family. She

Lincoln at Gettysburg: The Words that Remade America by Garry Wills

In a masterly work, Garry Wills shows how Lincoln reached back to the Declaration of Independence to write the greatest speech in the nation's history. The power of words has rarely been given a more compelling demonstration than in the Gettysburg Address. Lincoln was asked to memorialize the gruesome battle. Instead he gave the whole nation "a new birth of freedom" in the space of a mere 272 words. His entire life and previous training and his deep political experience went into this, his revolutionary masterpiece. By examining both the address and Lincoln in their historical moment and cultural frame, Wills breathes new life into words we thought we knew, and reveals much about a president so mythologized but often misunderstood. Wills shows how Lincoln came to change the world and to effect an intellectual revolution, how his words had to and did complete the work of the guns, and how Lincoln wove a spell that has not yet been broken.

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

WHAT IS A CHARITABLE REMAINDER TRUST?

If you have highly appreciated assets like stock and real estate you want to sell, it may make sense to use a charitable remainder trust (CRT) to avoid income and estate taxes-all while creating a lifetime income stream for yourself or your family AND supporting your favorite charity.

A CRT is a "split-interest" trust, meaning it provides financial benefits to both the charity and a non-charitable beneficiary. With CRTs, the non-charitable beneficiary—you, your child, spouse, or another heir—receives annual income from the trust, and whatever assets "remain" at the end of the donor's lifetime (or a fixed period up to 20 years), pass to the named charity(ties).

How a CRT works

You work with us to set up a CRT by naming a trustee, an income beneficiary, and a charitable beneficiary. The trustee will manage the trust's assets to produce income that's paid to you or another beneficiary.

The trustee can be yourself, a charity, another person, or a third-party entity. However, the trustee is not only responsible for seeing that your wishes are carried out properly, but also for staying compliant with complex state and federal laws, so be sure the trustee is well familiar with trust administration.

With the CRT set up, you transfer your appreciated assets into the trust, and the trustee sells it. Normally, this would generate capital gains taxes, but instead, you get a charitable deduction for the donation and face no capital gains when the assets are sold.

Once the appreciated assets are sold, the more information.

proceeds (which haven't been taxed) are invested to produce income. As long as it remains in the trust, the income isn't subject to taxes, so you're earning even more on pre-tax dollars.

Income options

You have two options for how the trust income is paid out. You can receive an annual fixed payment using a "charitable remainder annuity trust (CRAT)." With this option, your income will not change, regardless of the trust's investment performance.

Or you can be paid a fixed percentage of the trust's assets using a "charitable remainder unitrust (CRUT)," whereby the payouts fluctuate depending on the trust's investment performance and value.

Tax benefits

Right off the bat, as mentioned above, you can take an income tax deduction within the year the trust was created for the value of your donation-limited to 30% of adjusted gross income. You can carry over any excess into subsequent tax returns for up to five years. And again, profits from appreciated assets sold by the trustee aren't subject to capital gains taxes while they're in the trust. Plus, when the trust assets finally pass to the charity, that donation won't be subject to estate taxes.

You will pay income tax on income from the CRT at the time it's distributed. Whether that tax is capital gains or ordinary income depends on where the income came from-distributions of principal are tax free.

If you have highly appreciated assets you'd like to sell while minimizing tax impact, maximizing income, and benefiting charity, give us a call, so we can find the best planning options for you.

YOGIC WISDOM -EXPANSION/CONTRACTION

as a way to stretch body and mind.

Through a dynamic mix of breathing and postures, yoga improves circulation just as much as it improves mental perception. And further, yoga in its totality offers a philosophy for living that embodies powerful spiritual principles. One of the laws of nature within this philosophy that holds true is the principle of expansion and contraction. The world and consciousness-- in essence (and reality)- is ever expanding. Aside from the universe, our knowledge expands, population expands and awareness expands. We must grow, create and explore more. When we live according to our own expanding nature, the world is our oyster. We are open to possibility and opportunity. We are open to new experiences and wisdom from unexpected sources. This paves the way for increasing love and compassion and embodiment of an open heart. In this approach, what we are open to often comes to us with ease. Consider the level of acceptance and connection with others living from this point of view.Now, consider the flip side, existing in a state of contraction.

I've always seen yoga It's understandable that some self-protection may be warranted, but this state, taken in a prolonged way, keeps the world small and contained. It can often bring feelings of isolation and separation. Emotions of the small-self dominate and self-seeking runs riot. There's little room for new awareness, higher consciousness or joy. How would you proceed into a loving nature of expansion? Would it be possible to begin to expand your body first? Expand your breath first? Breath is life and the body is a temple. So, absolutely yes! Get 'unsmall' with yoga. Find joy and possibility in meditation. The choice is yours and the change can begin anytime you're ready.Begin your journey by inquiring about starting a yoga practice or giving your current practice some new juice. GRAHAM WEST

THE BENEFITS OF NATO In 1949, President Harry Truman led the way in forming the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, known today as NATO. For more than 60 years, this alliance, founded on the idea that "an attack on one is an attack on all," has stood as a cornerstone of the interconnected world that Truman worked to build - one of allies who share common interests and common values working together for the greater good. NATO's collective defense provision, Article V, has only been invoked once in its decades-long history. But the alliance wasn't activated to answer a move of Soviet aggression, or for a stronger ally like the United States to come to the aid of a smaller, weaker one.

The only time NATO has committed troops to a cause was when it came to our aid.

Article V was invoked on September 12, 2001, less than 24 hours after the Twin Towers were struck. The first military action, Operation Eagle Assist, began less than a month later with pilots from 13 different countries flying sorties across American skies. Since then, more than 1,110 troops from NATO-allied countries have given their lives alongside U.S. troops in Afghanistan.

This is all relevant now because President Trump - who has been attacking NATO since the campaign trail - just concluded a NATO leaders' summit in Brussels. After a week of hostile rhetoric, he opened the conference with an attack on Germany and then stayed up sending angry tweets late into the night. The president's standard gripe with NATO is the cost-sharing. Currently, member states are working towards a goal of spending 2 percent of their GDP on defense. President Trump, who has railed against U.S. contributions to collective defense efforts since the late 1980s, has arbitrarily demanded that this target be increased to 4 percent - a monumental ask for those not yet hitting the original goal.

The core of the president's critique is not wrong. It has been a longstanding bipartisan U.S. foreign policy goal to encourage our NATO allies to spend more on national security. As in all things, however, his opinion is tainted by ignorance and mistruths; he continually insists that NATO members are 'behind on dues' or 'owe us money,' while neither is an accurate description of how NATO works. And of course, his blustering and cajoling delivery is unhelpful. Would a good businessman convince someone to invest in a project by degrading both them and the partnership you want them to invest in? The modern benefits of NATO, meanwhile, transcend just what happened in 2001. Sharing bases with our allies saves the United States billions of dollars, and having troops around the world keeps our transportation costs down. There are also strategic benefits of the alliance - including the ability to train our troops alongside those of our partners. This increases readiness, including both lethality and effectiveness, and ensures interoperability, or the technical compatibility of our forces and hardware. But the fundamental benefit of NATO is that it remains a preventative mechanism. The alliance was founded as a check on Soviet aggression (one still needed today, given that Vladimir Putin has invaded two European countries in the past ten years), but it was also an effort to keep the world from collapsing into global conflict. The costs of the alliance are a drop in a bucket compared to the carnage wrought by past world wars.

The collaborative deterrent power of NATO is what makes it the bedrock of the international system that President Truman built. The idea that countries can work together and pay into something that produces not profit but a common good - specifically, more peace - is critical. Unfortunately, it may also be anathema to President Trump's views of politics and 'negotiation,' which so often focus on dominance and maximalism.

President Trump would do well to think on Truman's worldview - as well as NATO's demonstrated commitment to the security interests of the United States - as he concludes the summit. One can only hope that U.S. leadership in a historic organization will continue, even on his watch.

Mountain Views News Mission Statement

traditions The of community newspapers and the concerns of our readers are this newspaper's top priorities. We support a prosperous community of wellinformed citizens. We hold in high regard the values of the exceptional quality of life in our community, including the magnificence of our natural resources. Integrity will be our guide.

You may not have noticed it amid the White House's bluster on NATO this week, but Congress utterly face-planted in its effort to rein in President Donald Trump's ever-escalating global trade war.

As The Washington Post reports, the Republican-controlled U.S. Senate courageously approved a non-binding resolution that says Congress should have "a role" when the White House imposes tariffs for national security reasons.

The resolution, which came after retiring U.S. Sen. Jeff Flake, R-Ariz., dropped his demands for a "substantive" measure constraining the president's ability to impose tariffs, does not actually say what the role should be.

Flake said he'd hold up filling federal circuit court vacancies until he got that vote. Then he folded like a cheap suit in exchange for that toothless language, the newspaper reported.

The 'motion to instruct' was so harmless that it passed on an 88-11 vote, The Post reported. In case you missed it, the White House is using national security concerns for its slender justification for slapping punitive tariffs on steel imports from Canada, Mexico and the European Union - who are actual U.S. allies.

It's also hitting China, a geopolitical rival, with steep tariffs.

Canadian officials, including Foreign Minister Chrystia Freeland and Prime Minister Justin Trudeau, have each decried the White House's heavy-handed tactics. And Canada has moved to impose punitive tariffs on American goods in retaliation.

As The Post reported, Trump is threatening to invoke that same standard to hit foreign cars, distorting the intent of the 1962 tariff law. But this White House has never been one to be deterred by such formalities.

"It's a non-binding vote, but if we had a substantive vote, it would fail today," Flake said. "To put members on record, 88 of them, in support of Congress having a role in determining the national security implications of [Section 232] of the tariff law is substantive."

No it's not. It's a joke. And it's an abdication of Congress' authority.

There is an easy way for the Senate to determine what its role should be, It could stand up, exercise its power as a co-equal branch of government, and vote on tariffs imposed on national security grounds.

But it won't.

Of course, the phenomenon is hardly new. Congress, under both parties, has been gradually surrendering its power to the White House for years now. On issues from immigration to warmaking, the co-equal branch of government has only been too happy to leave the heavy lifting to the occupant of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

"Congress has been dropping in relative power along a descending curve of 60 years' duration, with the rate of fall markedly increased since 1933... The fall of the American Congress seems to be correlated with a more general historical transformation toward political and social forms within which the representative assembly - the major political organism of post-Renaissance Western civilization - does not have a primary political function."

American political theorist James Burnhan wrote those words ... in 1959. The curve has only grown steeper since, conservative columnist George F. Will wrote in late 2017.

And true to form, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., blocked an effort by Republican Sens. Pat Toomey and Bob Corker to close a national security loophole on the issue of trade.

Senior Republicans, who have proven spectacularly inept at standing up to the White House, are even more reluctant to do so in a mid-term election year when there's a chance that Democrats could flip the chamber in November.

The pointless vote (sort of) immunizes Republicans facing tough re-election races (especially in farm country) from accusations that they didn't up stand up to the White House on polices that are potentially destructive for their home states.

The House is even worse. There, retiring Speaker Paul J. Ryan, R-Wisc., has said he has zero plans to try to rein in the White House. And Ryan opposes the tariffs.

Still, there's almost zero downside for the White House in the face of this Congressional acquiescence. A Post poll found that, among the 15 hardest hit states, Trump's approval rating stands at 57 percent.

And with lawmakers more concerned about self-preservation in November than their constitutional prerogatives, that's reason enough to play along.

IN CHINA, 'SHARP EYES' AND CICADAS

Recently, business reporter Harrison Jacobs accurately described China as a "techno-authoritarian" state. Where the Nazis used inaccurate Phrenology and calipers to identify enemies of the state, China uses the latest in technology to constantly identify, monitor, exhort and if need be, round up recalcitrant citizens.

China's "Sharp Eyes" program will to install a nationwide surveillance camera network extending from public spaces to inside businesses and even private homes. The goal is for everyone to be on TV by 2020.

The accelerated development of facial recognition software makes the program feasible. The program's rollout doesn't leave much time for worries about early software bugs connected with real time surveillance of 1.4 billion people. Chinese state security is so efficient that even if the wrong man is identified, they'll make sure he's guilty of something. The data produced by "Sharp Eyes" will be used to build an individual "social credit" score for every Chinese citizen. In the U.S., a low credit score might prevent you from buying a car. In China, a low social credit score will keep you from buying a train ticket.

According to Breitbart, by using surveillance cameras, informers and state security the gov-ernment "closely monitors the behavior of all individuals...People considered loyal, law-abiding members of the Communist Party are assigned high social credit scores, while those who violate the law...are assigned lower scores.'

By May of this year 11 million Chinese with low social credit scores had been prevented from boarding airplanes, and another four million couldn't get on a train. No reports as yet of low scorers being forbidden to buy shoes.

The social credit system originally documented Internet activity - where Chinese went on the web, what they posted and even what they bought. Now the system has grown to encompass a wide range of transgressions including "jaywalking, returning library books late [or] possessing frownedupon religious or political materials, or [exhibiting] insufficient patriotism.

Regardless of how much this system would improve the quality of life in San Francisco and the NFL, it still sounds ominous to me. And now that China has announced a cicada infestation, the other shoe has dropped.

For those of you who don't keep current on bugs, cicadas are noisy critters who are chained to a calendar cycle, much like comets and women. Only the insect's cycle is once every 17 years. Cicadas make their way out of the ground in multitudes, produce an incredible amount of noise and then molt out of their current body into a completely new version, something like aging trophy wives.

My local Washington Post is so obsessed with these bugs that it almost has a cicada beat. As the time for Peak Cicada approaches one finds the paper filled with headlines like:

Are Cicada Infestations Harsher and More Frequent Due to Global Warming?

Insect Activist Is the First to Take a Selfie With a Cicada

Trump and Cicadas: Is There a Russian Connection?

Even the Style and Food sections join in the excitement: 'Expert Suggestions for Removing Cicadas from Your Shoes'; and 'Cicada Crunch: A Protein-Packed, Summer Casserole With No Trans-fat'.

Some claim cicadas even taste like shrimp which, if true, will come in handy, because that's what the Chinese government wants citizens to do. The South China Morning Post reports the city of Hangzhou, located in eastern China, is under attack by cicadas and a city official is urging residents to save the trees by eating a bug.

"Sun Xiaoping, the official in charge of green spaces...[said] the best way to deal with the problem was for the local community to turn the tables on the creepy-crawlies and do some eating of their own.'

Cicadas travel in swarms that can approach one million bugs per acre. That's enough insects to feed an extended Chinese family of 48 for almost a year or a North Korean family for a decade.

There's been no talk of consumption quota, but it's still early in the infestation. How cicada crunching will affect one's social credit score is unknown, too. Will eating just one be enough to preserve your social credit score or will you get bonus points for sharing recipes? Vegans may also face a Hobson's Choice between obeying their dietary neuroses or maintaining a mass-transit level social credit score.

The fact cicadas as a whole are able to defeat predators by swarming in such large numbers may offer hope for fastidious Chinese. The trick is to enter a swarm, eat nothing, but emerge smacking their lips. Just don't forget to face a camera.
