CITY STAFF PRAISED FOR CREATIVE PENSION RATE STABILIZATION PLAN

Pasadena Edition: Pasadena - South Pasadena - Altadena - San Marino

"I am proud we were able to come to a solution without having to eliminate services or having to ask our residents to pay another tax. This Council has been committed to achieving a sustainable budget and invest in our infrastructure. Mayor Pro Tempe Harabedian was correct, the sustainable pension plan is another investment investment in our City.

Sierra Madre Mayor Denise DelMar

Sierra Madre City Council approved a Pension Rate Stabilization Plan, Tuesday, which would require the City to pay a lump sum pre-payment to CalPERS for Unfunded Accrued Liability (UAL), and also authorize the establishment of a trust fund to help alleviate expenditures.

Pension costs are expected to increase over time, triggering the City to look at options that would not include depending on residents to foot the bill, or cutting or outsourcing services. For fiscal year 16-17 UAL payments increased from $754,000 to $1 million and another increase of 32% is expected for fiscal year ending 18-19.

Paying CalPERS UAL rates above the annual requirements is one of the targeted goals suggested by City Management. Staff suggests a $5 million payment for UAL to be paid by July 31, 2018, which will increase pension expense for this fiscal year, but will result around $6.9 million in interest savings. The sources for the pre-payment of the  $5^{-}$  million of the UAL include:

- 1. General Fund balance above 50% ($1.8 million)
- 2. Sale of SCE underground credits ($628,000).
- 3. Close out of accounts/transfers ($800,000).
- 4. Revision of General Fund balance from 50% to 25% ($2.5 million).

During the July 24, 2018 meeting, Council did approve Resolution 18-40, to revise the General Fund Balance Policy from 50% operating revenues to 25%. This will free up approximately $2.5 million for pension stabilization.

In addition, a 115 Trust Fund is expected to receive subsidy at a later date and the City will earmark $600,000, which is one year's PERS Rate payment to be deposited down the road. The City is expected to receive greater returns using the 115 Trust than they would with their current investment policy. And, these funds can be used to offset pension costs.

Local California government setting up 115 Trust Funds is a pretty recent idea. The hope is this funding will also improve Sierra Madre's credit rating, while the City continues to maintain local control over assets. The funding would also be available for emergencies such as fires, wind storms, etc.

Authorization of the lump sum payment to UAL, the establishment of the 115 Trust Fund, and the passing of Resolution 18-40, were all unanimously approved by Council. All members were present.

A few Council Members vocalized their displeasure over having to pre-pay $5 million, all took time to praise the efforts of the City Manager, Gabriel Engeland, Assistant City Manager, Marcie Medina and staff for constructing a "creative" pension stabilization plan that did not included raising taxes on Sierra Madre residents. "I do have to commend our City Manager and Assistant City Manager, and the staff and whole finance department for coming up with what we feel is a solution to a problem that we didn't think had a solution," Mayor Delmar said at the close of the meeting.

City Council will meet on July 31, 2018, at 6:30 p.m. for a public hearing to discuss Proposition 218, on Water and Sewer Rate Adjustment, before they break for the K. McGuire/MVNews summer.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE... The Social Side By Deanne Davis

"Perhaps they are not stars, but rather openings the night, a coffin on the lawn with a Dracula in heaven where the love of our lost ones pours through and shines down upon us to let us know they are happy."

Do you think there are parades in heaven? With floats and princesses who ride on them and wave the Alegria Halloween tradition with great at all the saints and angels? Maybe! And if there enthusiasm! are, our friend, Donna Sutcliffe, is organizing the princesses, making sure they sit up straight, don't chew gum, and smile at everyone.

For more years than we can remember, probably from about 1990 on, Doug and Donna Sutcliffe worked on the Sierra Madre Rose Float. Doug as a fix-it guy, bringing all those years of experience at JPL as a Fabrication Engineer to work on our float until he took up residence in heaven in 2013. Remember the float that year? The Sky's The Limit with the little fishing boat with Doug's name on it? Donna and the family were so pleased to see him honored that way. And now, we honor Donna for all the years she spent as the Sierra Madre Rose Princess Wrangler. It will be hard to find someone to take her place.

After a year of being in and out of the hospital, suffering the effects of leukemia, but never losing her optimistic spirit, even after eight solid weeks of hospital food, the family got permission to celebrate last Thanksgiving there in the cafeteria - bringing in the turkey and all the fixings. They celebrated! Donna left her family and friends on July 22, 2018 - just days after celebrating her 83rd birthday, which was a joyful event on several levels, not only was it her birthday, but she had just been released from the hospital and was ready to party! 1. Don't let anyone say, "She's in a better place!" Son, Andrew, raced to Baskin-Robbins and found the perfect party confection – not just an ordinary Instead The Desiderata by Max Ehrmann will old cake, but ice cream cones with sherbet! He bundled 83 birthday candles together, lit them for her to blow out, and you may remember a light in the sky on July 11th - Donna's birthday candles! They celebrated! Last New Year's Eve day, Donna was able to watch the float safety test and final judging, again, just after escaping the hospital. Another celebration!

Donna's parents, Irma Wanda Stewart and Melvin Orval Stewart, residents of Kansas, welcomed their new little girl on July 11, 1935. The family moved to California and Donna attended PCC. She met Doug Sutcliffe at The Church of Truth, their lifelong family church, just before he left to serve his country in the Korean conflict. They met again when he returned and were married in 1956 at, of course, The Church of Truth. The Sutcliffe's moved to their first home on Montecito in 1956 and became lifelong Sierra Madreans. They moved to the home on Alegria, the former residence of C.W. Jones, the first mayor of Sierra Madre, in 1969. This home, built in 1906 was a great place for Lynn and Andrew to grow up, along with the Blakeslee, Witter, Davis and Biely kids. And, of course, the family participated in the Halloween celebrations in a BIG way, Lynn as a witch up on the balcony, shrieking through com/@playwrightdd rising up out of it. Good times! Donna left the house on Alegria to move into a charming condo on Sierra Madre Blvd. in 2013. It is now the home of Wyatt and Renee Sullivan, who have continued

Donna served for many years as the Wedding Hostess at Church of Truth, guiding countless brides and grooms through their rehearsal, making sure they knew what to do, where to stand, what to do with the bouquet, how to get the ring in place without dropping it when the big moment arrived, and then sending the brides and bridesmaids down the aisle during their weddings. She also served in this capacity at Santa Anita Church in Arcadia. But Donna's first love was the Sierra Madre Rose Float and the princesses. She was so very proud of these young ladies and, in fact, for many years held the princess teas at their home on Alegria.

Donna's memorial service will be Saturday, August 11 at 10:00 a.m. at The Church of Truth, 690 E. Orange Grove Blvd., Pasadena 91104. Donna was able to spend her last days at home with her family, all of whom look forward to seeing you. Donna leaves her son, Andrew, daughter, Lynn (Dan) Turpin, and grandchildren Christopher, Samantha, Ashley and Jacob. She was pre-deceased by her brother, Darrell Stewart.

This service will be a true celebration of Donna's life as she left definite instructions about what she most definitely did NOT want to have happen:

be read:

"Go placidly amid the noise and haste, and remember what peace there may be in

As far as possible without surrender be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly and clearly; and listen to others, even the dull and the ignorant; they too have their story."

Donna Sutcliffe was a gentle, humble, kind person with a heart for her community and her

With all its sham, drudgery, and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world.

Pasadena Shooting Victim Identified

Police on Friday were still looking for the suspects who shot and killed 35-yearold Luis Arita near the 300 block of East Villa Street. Arita was found dead early Tuesday around 1:25 a.m. in a parked vehicle after being shot multiple times according to Pasadena police. He was pronounced dead at the scene. Arita, from Los Angeles, had ties to Pasadena.

They gave no actual cost of the construction and designs are expected to be ready in June, next year. The new barriers are expected to be two feet taller than the current 32 inch K-rails. They will also have reinforced bar to keep vehicles from crashing onto the tracks.

The design is very complex for this project, we are finding that there are very restricted areas... we're working closely with Caltrans," said Metro Chief Program Management Officer Richard Clarke. "Given to a wide variety of dog breeds that exist today, truly amazes me. According to the American Kennel Club website, they currently recognize 192 pure breeds. If you add the list of un-registered breeds that have been officially named and propagated throughout the US and other parts of the world, the count comes somewhere around 210(+/-) canine breeds. That blows my mind! Especially since the noticeable differences from one breed to another, are due to nothing more than a .2% genetic differential.

asphyxiated with forming the "perfect" dog through the applied science of eugenics, the intentional practice of "improving" or somehow altering the genetic composition of a given population. In this case the population happens to be the canine, or what we dog-lovers like to call "Man's Best Friend". What lead to the human's insatiable desire to create extensive research & scientific studies have left little room for argument that the dog we are familiar with today, originated from the grey wolf (Canis lupus). The mainstream theory among most canine history research scientists is that man's first one-on-one process. contact with the grey wolf occurred unintentionally. It is said to have happened circa 7000 BC when the human population began to grow, moving away from a primitive living, to occupy un-developed territories where they built dwelling structures and established unprecedented property perimeters. eugenics, we are now learning how to treat some of The grey wolf was already in residence in the natural pristine spaces where man first made claim to the land, therefore the interface between the two species was inevitable.

Remains of the earliest known domesticated dog (Canis lupus familiaris) were discovered at the Jaihu archaeological site in China, dating back to thin, from beginning to end.

the early Neolithic period (7000-5800 BC). Needless to say, a lot of changes occurred between that time and about two centuries ago, when intentional breeding was introduced, resulting in the wide variety of dogs we know and love today. By the early 17th century, the dog had worked it's way into being a major part of human life. In fact, without the dog I often wonder where man would be today.

During the earlier stages of canine breeding, the main focus

While the dog has proven to be man's best friend through centuries of change, ironically man has proven to be somewhat less of a best friend in return. Though the side effects of inbreeding were certainly not intentional, they have definitely taken their toll. One example of eugenics gone bad is apparent in For the past two centuries, man has been the Dalmatian. Sometimes known as the Firehouse Dog" and used as a carriage dog in it's early days, the Dalmatian's white and spotted coat are what set this breed apart from the others. However, it is the white beneath the spots that is directly associated with it's tendency for blindness due to a gene that will not allow vitamin A to nourish the retina.

Other examples of side effects caused by intensive the ideal dog? How did man come to rely on the modern-day canine to be his "best friend"? inbreeding include hip dysplasia in larger breeds such as Labs & Shepherds, canine A.D.D. & O.C.D. While opinions vary as to how it all came about, in certain breeds such as terriers & herders, and eye, skin & ear allergies in numerous breeds such as bulldogs and hounds. Indeed, man has benefited from the efforts made to create the perfect pup, but a high price has been paid (by the pup) in the

But if there is a proverbial pot of gold at the end of the eugenics rainbow, it is this. Scientific research on how to reduce the side effects of breeding have had a double benefit to human society. By studying the problems that prevail as a result of canine the diseases that we humans fall victim to. So, the dog has done it again! In early days, it helped the human move from the cave to the castle, now it is lending knowledge that will benefit the human's

Meet Betty DeVille models her distinctive black and white colored fur coat markings. It looks like she's wearing a solid color designer cap with cat ears attached. She has the same name as a Rugrats cartoon mother, who has a nice but loud personality. Our Betty also was a loving mother to her two kittens named Phil and Lil. (Who are also currently available for adoption.) Betty has a calm loving nature, is friendly, and enjoys seeing new people coming to meet her. Melting into hands that massage her head and throat, Betty purrs with contentment. A lap is always nice to sit on when offered. If given a toy, she will show her sporting playful side which ranges from bat and pat to attack and toss, depending on what is being offered for her amusement. Whether it's a still object, a flying teaser, or the laser dot, Betty takes the challenge. Her adoption fee is $99 and includes spay surgery, vaccinations, microchip and a free wellness exam at a participating veterinarian. Sierra Madre's resident musician Jane Fuller will be performing her latest song, "Social Graveyard," at Corfu Restaurant on Saturday, August 11, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

I met with Jane at Sierra Madre's Pioneer Graveyard to ask her about "Social Graveyard"

"Haven't you ever felt like you're awake, alive, and seeking the truth?" she asked me. "But who do you talk to about this? When I've had this feeling, it feels as if everyone else is like the walking-dead, zombies or ghosts. That was the feeling and insight that led to this song," she explained.

You can see an instrumental version of "Social Graveyard Chill" on Youtube, posted by apexofthesoul, one of Jane's bands.

"The chill version has gotten the most hits," she tells me, "and in that version, I show images from elementary school, earned her teaching credential, Sierra Madre's unique Hallowe'en celebration where all the decorated pumpkins are put out on Alegria Street. I also sing in "transylvanian vampirian," a language I invented."

Fuller, who performs with guitarist Mike Gallegos, calls their group Eventide Blend. Until very recently, she performed over the last 20 years under her name.

"But I want to express my music in a variety of genres," she explained. "Mike and I are going to use a few band names for the different styles of music we play, and from time to time you'll see new band members."

Fuller was interested in music from an early age, and began piano lessons at age 10. Eventually, she was given a guitar and she's played it ever since. She began by playing guitar at Mass, and eventually, began playing guitar for the masses.

When she went to college, she was majoring in music, but one day her father asked her how she expected to make a living as a musician. Her father Got the World on a String." To view, go to the You suggested that with a music degree, she might end up with a job washing dishes.

"Actually," says Jane with a smile, "if I did get that music degree, there would have been jobs out there, teaching, etc. But I knew my dad was very concerned about my being gainfully employed with job security, and I changed my major to creative writing. My dad approved, telling me that as much as I hate to admit my dad was right, I did

Twenty-some years ago, Fuller began teaching and still teaches. She especially loves teaching students in the primary grades, and it has inspired her songs and her upcoming book.

Fuller's book project is tentatively titled "How I Became a Teacher." She thinks that the subtitle will be "And Found Cost-free Solutions to Learning." The book will cater to teachers, parents, and anyone learning something new.

'When people say to spend more money on education, I think that the real solution to our educational problems is not spending more money, but to re-discover what teaching is all about. Of course the individual has to want to learn, but the teacher can be very inspirational in the goal," says Fuller, who wants to pass along in her book many of the solutions for meaningful learning.

She has also built a film studio in her garage where she is making short educational and musical videos. In one You Tube video, viewers are in virtual nightclub where Jane is performing "I've Tube platform and then type in the song title and Jane Fullers Music in the search box. Corfu is located at 48 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. in Sierra Madre. Reservations are highly recommended.

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

I THINK I NOW KNOW HOW NOAH FELT

Looking out the living room window the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage sighed very deeply and said, "When will this stinking rain stop?

I chuckled to myself very carefully not to let it come up to the surface of my face to let on to anybody in the

She turned around and said to me, "I am just about done with all this rain." With a fake grimace on my face I said, "I don't know, but I'm done with it too." I had to walk away at that point because I could not control the chuckles that were rising to the level of my

When I got some control of my emotions I thought to myself, this must be how Noah felt.

Whenever it rains as it has been doing lately, I usually think of Noah. Only this time I was thinking of Noah's wife.

Listening to my wife talk about the rain, I could not help but think maybe this is exactly what Noah's wife was saying to him.

"Noah," his wife said, "when will this stinking rain stop?" Then I can imagine her saying, "I can handle one day of rain or maybe two, but this is getting to be

After all, Noah's wife was just like anybody else's wife especially the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. Knowing my wife like I do, I know she likes to be in control. From the moment she gets up in the morning until she goes to bed at night, she likes to be in control. When something is going on that she cannot control, then we have a different situation.

Could that be said of Noah's wife? This rain was coming down day after day after day for 40 days and 40 nights. Nothing had ever happened like that before. I believe Noah's wife was a little frustrated with the fact that she was not in control with the rain.

My wife gets up every morning with a large list of things she wants to accomplish during the day. I need to be careful because sometimes she has one of her "Honey-Do-Lists" for you know who. She is very productive in her day and she hardly sits down to rest. She is proactive all day long.

When she decides to do something, she does it no matter what.

Now, for the last several weeks it has been raining just about every day. She enjoys yard work and even mowing. Now with the rain, it has disrupted her schedule.

The fact that she cannot control the rain carries with it a little hidden giggle inside of me. She takes pride in planning her day and fulfilling her plan to the letter. She is in control of everything.

Everything, that is, except the rain. I know the rain is playing with her.

Several times, especially this past week, the morning started out bright and sunny with barely a cloud in the air. When my wife saw that, she was very

"Finally," she said almost hysterically, "I can do some mowing."

With that, she was laughing and very excited and prepared to go out to do some mowing.

I think there was a cloud hidden somewhere watching for her because as soon as she got outside and got the mower running the rain started to come. With a great deal of haste she put the mower away and come inside to dry off.

As soon as she was inside and got dried off a little bit, the rain stopped, the clouds faded away and the sun was shining. She looked out and with a big smile on her face said, "Finally, this rain is over."

She got outside, got the lawn mower out and ready to go and was mowing for five minutes and as I watched I could see that smile on her face. Nothing she enjoys more than riding that lawnmower and making the lawn look beautiful.

Suddenly, I heard thunder in the distance and then came the rain.

As quickly as possible, she put the lawnmower away and ran inside dripping with rain. I did my best to get out of her way because this was not one of her 'Happy Moods."

For the rest of the day she was working in her craft room and I heard her under her breath say, "Rain, rain go away and never come back any other day." I sympathize with her because the rain had kept me from doing some things I wanted to do.

If rain is the only thing my wife cannot control she is a very lucky person. I, for instance, cannot control very many things in my life. I would like to, but it just is not in the cards for me.

I cannot imagine Noah sitting in that ark for over a year not being able to control anything. That is the essence of what faith is all about. If I can control a situation, why do I need God?

I need to exchange my pride for faith in God. It reminds me of one of my favorite Bible verses. Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths" (Proverbs 3:5-6).

The best things in my life are those that are beyond my control where I can begin to see God at work in that situation.

One of my favorite local restaurants is Houston's. Although they could be considered a chain, I really like the food and service. The wine list is also topnotch, with over twenty wines by the glass. I would also call their wine program user friendly; in fact it is common for Houston's to waive their corkage fee if the wine you bring isn't on their menu - smart as smart can be. I heard through the grape-vine (get it?) that Houston's wine list was assembled through researching other geographically close restaurants/competitors wine lists, though this would have made a great story, I found out with a little research that this isn't the case. I was also told that their California restaurants might have a different list then other states, my snooping did confirm that . The reporter in me wouldn't give up, and I was pleasantly surprised by my own comparisons of other steakhouses wine prices in town that Houston's across the board has the smallest

Speaking of "corkage" I asked my friend Robert Simon owner of Bistro 45 for his thoughts on corkage. His response was straightforward. There are two schools of thought: there are restaurants that take a casual look at their wine list, and there are restaurants that you can and should trust to have a great $30 or $300 bottle of wine. If you trust the restaurant, order from their menu. If it's a special occasion, then bring a bottle and buy a bottle.

For me, I contend that corkage is generally meant as a courtesy for customers looking to savor a special bottle. Unfortunately, this isn't often what customers do. Instead, people will bring bad wine or argue over the fee. Here are a few of my tips on this: 1) Call the restaurant about their policy. I'd feel more comfortable taking a bottle to a restaurant where I am considered a regular. 2) Bring only a bottle that is not on their menu. If it is, that's fine - bring one, and also buy one of theirs. 3) Although the restaurant sommelier is almost a thing of the past, ask the owner/manager if they'd like a taste. 4) If they waived the fee, or if the corkage is reasonable, you must tip as if you bought the wine at the restaurant

Considering how much I eat out, I don't bring wines to restaurants that often. Sometimes it's easier to not do all the work. There is, however one place I wish I could always bring wine: weddings, where I never seem to be happy with the wine selection.

TWENTY YEARS OF PLANETARY DEFENSE:

NASA's Center for Near-Earth Object Studies Enters Third Decade

around the world received an ominous message: new observational data on the recently discovered asteroid 1997 XF11 suggested there was a chance that the halfmile-wide object could hit Earth in 2028.

The message came from the Minor Planet Center, in Cambridge, Massachusetts, the worldwide repository for such observations and initial determination of asteroid orbits. And although it was intended to alert only the very small astronomical community that hunts and tracks asteroids to call for more observations, the news spread quickly.

Most media outlets did not know what to make of the announcement, and mistakenly highlighted the prospect that Earth was Fortunately, it turned out that Earth was never in danger from 1997 XF11. After performing a more thorough orbit analysis with the available asteroid observations, Don Yeomans, then the leader of the Solar System Dynamics group at JPL, along with his colleague Paul Chodas, concluded otherwise. "The 2028 impact was essentially impossible," said Chodas, who is now director of NASA's Center for Near-Earth Object Studies (CNEOS), located at JPL.

"To this day we still get queries on the chances of XF11 impacting in 2028," Chodas said. "There is simply no chance of XF11 impacting our planet that year, or for the next 200 years."

Chodas knows this thanks to CNEOS' precise orbit calculations using observation data submitted to the Minor Planet Center by observatories all over the world that detect their discovery. Operating around the clock, and track the motion of asteroids and comets. the Scout system identifies the highest For the past two decades, CNEOS calculations have enabled NASA to become the world leader in these efforts, keeping close watch on MtnViewsNews.com.

On March 11, 1998, asteroid astronomers all nearby asteroids and comets—especially those that can cross Earth's orbit.

> "We compute high-precision orbits for all asteroids and comets and map their positions in the solar system, both forward in time to detect potential impacts, and backward to see where they've been in the sky," Chodas said. We provide the best map of orbits for all known small bodies in the solar system."

> Near-Earth objects (NEOs) are asteroids and comets in orbits that bring them into the inner solar system, within 121 million miles of the Sun, and also within roughly 30 million miles of Earth's orbit around the Sun.

> NASA's original intent was to fulfill a 1998 Congressional request to detect and catalogue at least 90 percent of all NEOs larger than one kilometer in size (roughly two-thirds of a mile) within 10 years.

> A CNEOS system called "Sentry" searches ahead for all potential future Earth impact possibilities over the next hundred yearsfor every known NEO. Sentry's impact monitoring runs continually using the latest CNEOS-generated orbit models, and the results are stored online. In most cases so far, the probabilities of any potential impacts are extremely small, and in other cases, the objects themselves are so small—less than 66 feet across— that they would almost certainly disintegrate even if they did enter Earth's atmosphere.

> More recently, CNEOS also developed a system called Scout to provide more immediate and automatic trajectory analyses for the most recently discovered objects, even before independent observatories confirm priority objects to be watched.

THE GOOD LIFE

CHOOSING AN EXECUTOR FOR YOUR WILL

Dear Savvy Senior,

What options can you recommend for finding a good executor for my will? At one time I thought one of my two kids could do it, but they are both financially inept and would probably make a mess of things.

Looking for Options

Dear Looking,

Choosing an executor – the person or institution you put in charge of administering your estate and carrying out your final wishes – is one of the most important decisions in preparing a will.

A good executor can help ensure the prompt, accurate distribution of your possessions with minimal problems. Some of the duties required include: filing court papers to start the probate process; managing your estate's assets; using your estate's funds to pay debts, taxes and bills; handling you find someone. details like terminating credit cards, and notifying banks and government agencies like Social Security and the post office of the death; preparing and filing final income tax returns; and distributing assets to the beneficiaries named in the will.

Given all the responsibility, the ideal candidate should be someone who is honest, dependable, well organized, good with paperwork and vigilant about meeting deadlines.

Who to Choose

Most people think first of naming a family member, especially a spouse or child, as executor. If, however, you don't have an obvious family member to choose, you may want to ask a trusted friend, but be sure to choose someone in good health or younger than you who will likely be around after you're gone.

Also, if your executor of choice happens to live in another state, you'll need to check your state's law to see if it imposes any special requirements. Some states require an out-of-state executor to be a family member or a beneficiary, some require a bond to protect your heirs in case of mismanagement, and some require the appointment of an in-state agent.

Also keep in mind that if the person you choose needs help settling your estate they can always call show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

on an expert like an attorney or tax account to guide them through the process, with your estate picking up the cost.

If, however, you don't have a friend or relative you feel comfortable with, you could name a third party executor like a bank, trust company or a professional who has experience dealing with estates. If you need help locating a pro, the National Association of Estate Planners and Councils (NAEPC.org) and the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys (NAELA.org) are great resources that provide directories on their websites to help

Executor Fees

Most family members and close friends, especially if they're beneficiaries, serve for free because inherited money isn't taxable. But if you opt for a third party executor it will cost your estate. Each state has laws that govern how an executor is paid - either based on a percentage of the estate, a flat fee or an hourly rate.

Get Approval

Whoever you choose to serve as your executor, be sure you get their OK first before naming him or her in your will. And once you've made your choice, go over your financial details in your will with that person, and let him or her know where you keep all your important documents and financial information. This will make it easier on them after you're gone.

This Week Median List Price: $1,283,000

Inventory is tightening and days-on-market is falling. The Market Action Index shows demand heating up. These are relatively bullish signs for prices.

Supply & Demand

The market has been cooling over time and prices have recently flattened. Despite the consistent decrease in Market Action Index (MAI), we're in a Seller's Market (where significant demand leaves little inventory available). If the MAI begins to climb, prices will likely follow suit. If the MAI drops consistently or falls into the Buyer's zone, watch for downward pressure on prices.

The Market Action Index answers the question "How's the Market?" by measuring the current rate of sale versus the amount of the inventory. Index above 30 implies Seller's Market conditions. Below 30, conditions favor the buyer.

COUNTY TO DEVELOP CENTRALIZED RESOURCE HUB FOR TRANSITIONAL AGE FOSTER YOUTH

LOS ANGELES COUNTY – The Board of Supervisors unanimously approved a motion by Supervisor Kathryn Barger to create an online Centralized Transitional Age Youth (TAY) Hub to provide vital access to programs and services to youth, caregivers, social workers and advocates.

The proposed online Centralized TAY Hub will improve the county's ability to serve TAY as they age out of the foster care system by helping them connect to education, career and housing resources.

"The county has created countless programs over the years to provide valuable job training, access to transportation, educational stability and other services to foster youth. Yet, we continue to have a number of Transitional Age Youth exit out of the child welfare system facing poor outcomes and at risk of becoming another devastating statistic of homelessness, substance abuse addiction and mental health issues," Supervisor Kathryn Barger said. "We need to develop a coordinated system so youth know what is available to them and are connected to the right services at the right time to enrich their lives.

The 4-0 vote gave the Chief Executive Office the directive to explore means to develop and launch the Hub, coordinate with the Office of Child Protection and other relevant departments and agencies, and develop Management Appraisal Performance Program goals to ensure streamlined and effective service delivery.

Department of Children and Family Services Director Bobby Cagle cited that there are about 10,000 TAY in Los Angeles County who would benefit from this program.

"We have to do what we can to provide them with the tools and resources they need so they can achieve their dreams and live the lives they hope to lead when they reach adulthood," Cagle said. "As with any vulnerable population, we have learned that individual departments cannot effectively serve a child in isolation. We know that enhanced coordination, along with the better integration of resources, will improve services for our foster youth and help them achieve self-sufficiency."

The Omega Principle: Seafood and the Quest for a Long Life and a Healthier Planet by Paul

Greenberg By the bestselling author of Four Fish and American Catch, an eye-opening investigation of the history, science, and business behind omega-3 fatty acids, the "miracle compound" whose story is intertwined with human health and the future of our planet.Omega-3 fatty acids have long been celebrated by doctors and dieticians as key to a healthy heart and a sharper brain. Omega-3s are today a multi-billion dollar business, and sales are still growing apace--even as recent medical studies caution that the promise of omega-3s may not be what it first appeared. But a closer look at the omega-3 sensation reveals something much deeper and more troubling. The miracle pill is only the latest product of the reduction industry, a vast, global endeavor that over the last century has boiled down trillions of pounds of marine life into animal feed, fertilizer, margarine, and dietary supplements. The creatures that are the victims of that industry seem insignificant to the untrained eye, but turn out to be essential to the survival of whales, penguins, and fish of all kinds, including many that we love to eat. Behind these tiny molecules is a big story: of the push-and-pull of science and business; of the fate of our oceans in a human-dominated age; of the explosion of land food at the expense of healthier and more sustainable seafood; of the human quest for health and long life at all costs. James Beard Award-winning author Greenberg probes the rich and surprising history of omega-3s--from the dawn of complex life, when these compounds were first formed; to human prehistory, when the discovery of seafood may have produced major cognitive leaps for our species; and on to the modern era, when omega-3s may point the way to a bold new direction for our food system. With wit and boundless curiosity, Greenberg brings us along on his travels--from Peru powerful argument for a more deliberate and forward-thinking relationship to the food we eat and have long been central to our harvests, our mythologies, the oceans that sustain us.

BEFORE AGREEING TO SERVE AS TRUSTEE, CAREFULLY CONSIDER THE DUTIES AND OBLIGATIONS INVOLVED—PART 2

Last week, I shared the first part of this series explaining the powers and duties that come with serving as trustee. Here in part two, I discuss the rest of a trustee's core responsibilities.

Being asked to serve as trustee can be a huge honor—but it's also a major responsibility. Indeed, the job entails a wide array of complex duties, and trustees are both ethically and legally required to effectively execute those functions or face significant liability.

To this end, you should thoroughly understand exactly what your role as trustee requires before agreeing to accept the position. Last week, I highlighted three of a trustee's primary functions, and here we add on to that list, starting with one of the most labor-intensive of all duties—managing and accounting for a trust's assets.

Manage and account for trust assets

Before a trustee can sell, invest, or make distributions to beneficiaries, he or she must take control of, inventory, and value all trust assets. Ideally, this happens as soon as possible after the death of the grantor in the privacy of a lawyer's office. If assets are properly titled in the name of the trust, there's no need for court involvement—unless a beneficiary or creditor forces it with a claim against the trust.

In the best case, the person who created the trust and was the original trustee—usually the grantor will have maintained an up-to-date inventory of all trust assets. If not, gathering those assets can be a major undertaking, so contact a trusted legal advisor to help review the trust and determine the best course of action.

The value of some assets, like financial accounts, securities, and insurance, will be easy to determine. But with other property—real estate, vehicles, businesses, artwork, furniture, and jewelry-a trustee may need to hire a professional appraiser to determine those values. With the assets secured and valued, the trustee must then identify and pay the grantor's creditors and other debts.

Be careful about ensuring regularly scheduled payments, such as mortgages, property taxes, and insurance, are promptly paid, or trustees risk personal liability for late payments and/or other penalties. A local attorney and father, Marc Garlett is on a Trustees are also required to prepare and file the grantor's tax returns This inch les the final income tax return for the year of the decedent's death and any Madre, CA 91024. Schedule an appointment to prior years' returns on extension, along with filing an annual return during each subsequent year the trust remains open. For high-value estates, trustees may also have to file a federal estate tax return.

During this entire process, it's vital that trustees keep strict accounting of every transaction (bills paid and income received) made using the trust's assets, no matter how small. In fact, if a trustee fails to fully pay the trust's debts, taxes, and expenses before distributing assets to beneficiaries, he or she can be held personally liable if there are insufficient assets to pay for outstanding estate expenses.

Given this, it's crucial to work with a trusted legal advisor and a qualified accountant to properly account for and pay all trust-related expenses and debts as well as ensure all tax returns are filed on behalf of the trust.

Personally administer the trust

While trustees are nearly always permitted to hire outside advisers like lawyers, accountants, and even professional trust administration services, trustees must personally communicate with those advisors and be the one to make all final decisions on trust

So even though trustees can delegate much of the underlying legwork, they're still required to serve as the lead decision maker. What's more, trustees are ultimately responsible if any mistakes are made. In the end, a trustee's full range of powers, duties, and discretion will depend on the terms of the trust, so always refer to the trust for specific instructions when delegating tasks and/or making tough decisions.

Clear communication with beneficiaries

To keep them informed and updated as to the status of the trust, trustees are required to provide beneficiaries with regular information and reports related to trust matters. Typically, trustees provide such information on an annual basis, but again, the level of communication depends on the trust's terms. In general, trustees should provide annual status reports with complete and accurate accounting of the trust's assets. Moreover, trustees must permit beneficiaries to personally inspect trust property, accounts, and any related documents if requested. Additionally, trustees must provide an annual tax return statement (Schedule K-1) to each beneficiary who's taxed on income earned by the trust. Entitled to reasonable fees for services rendered Given such extensive duties and responsibilities, trustees are almost always entitled to receive reasonable fees for their services. Determining what's "reasonable," however, can be challenging. Entities like accounting firms, lawyers, banks, and trust administration companies typically charge a percentage of the funds under their management or a set fee for their time. In the end, what's reasonable is based on the amount of work involved, the level of funds in the trust, the trust's other expenses, and whether the trustee was chosen for their professional experience.

Since the trustee's duties are comprehensive, complex, and foreign to most people, if you've been asked to serve as trustee, it's critical you have a professional advisor who can give you a clear and accurate assessment of what's required of you before you accept the position. And if you do choose to serve as trustee, it's even more important that you have someone who can guide you step-by-step throughout the entire process. # YOGIC WISDOM - Practice Yoga / Live Life Better

Have you ever had a doctor, counselor, or friend recommend yoga? Ideally, a yoga practice will lead to better health, keep the body active, and settle the mind. Overall, a good practice can destress and take you out of distress.Take a broad view and remember each one of us is a dynamic multi-layered being. The first layer of being is just the physical body, inside and out. As our vessel for experiencing life, it requires great care. As miraculous as it is, we've just got one body to get us through. Lifestyle, life experiences, and genetics all play a role in physical health. Yoga is unique in nourishing the physical body; it can strengthen, relieve pain, and create flexibility which makes being active easier. It can slow down and stretch the students who are athletes and make movement possible for someone who's not moving at all. The second layer that we often are not tuned into is the energetic layer. We are energetic beings and the world and our experiences affect us. Conversely, we affect people around us with our energy, abundance of, or lack thereof. Breathing plays a huge role in our energetic layer. Between breath and movement, yoga shapes and calms. It tones, enlivens or soothes our energetic body. Even if this concept is hard to buy into, you can't deny that you FEEL different or you SENSE enlivenment after yoga. Breathing in a conscious way or practicing specific breath techniques helps usher in this awareness and balance. Another layer is the mind and, oh wow - is there a lot going on there. We've got all sorts of battles going on, thoughts flying and ways of seeing the world and our lives. The mind needs nourishment just as much as the body. Intellect and self-identity need to be satisfied. Yoga, Breath, Sound (or Mantra) and Meditation help direct and soothe the mind. Simply, yoga and all its practices can settle the mind enough so clarity and connection to the greater universe can be found. After the mind, there are more layers which go to the deepest part of who we are. This is why the practice is so profound and deep. It pays attention to all these layers. Consider how each one of the layers affects one another: exercising the body may positively affect the mind or how meditation might relieve pain from a chronic condition. They all work together. Having a gratitude practice means that rather than waiting for something to happen to appreciate, we live in a grateful state. We bend toward gratitude and look for the good in every situation and condition. It means we notice. We decide to generate gratitude.

It's the act of pausing to notice those things that make a difference.

I recently heard the author Ernest J. Gaines interviewed on the "What it Takes" podcast. The interviewer asked about him becoming a writer.

He spoke of many influences, his parents, his aunt, the elders on the farm where he lived as a child. Then he mentioned the library.

He said he used an Andrew Carnegie Library in Vallejo, California. He specified that he used a Carnegie Library. Attribution is an important aspect of gratitude. His specificity was an act of grace and appreciation.

FACEBOOK'S OFF THE MARK ZUCKERBERG

Every time Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg opens his mouth he somehow manages to stick his foot in it. It's not so much what he says that is harmful to both himself and his company, it's how he says it.

Last week, Zuckerberg managed to infuriate a large segment of the population by defending Facebook's policy to permit blatantly anti-Semitic posts on the site. His rationale for allowing hate speak to continue unfettered was a veritable cornucopia of double-speak; the kind that is both acceptable to and tolerated by an everincreasing number of Americans.

During an interview with Recode's Kara Swisher which alluded to Sandy Hook conspiracy theorists - a group that includes Infowars host Alex Jones - Zuckerberg seemed to liken those who push alternative realities (i.e. that the massacre of 20 children and six adults at Sandy Hook Elementary School never happened) to Holocaust deniers.

While Zuckerberg pointed out that he is Jewish and that he finds those who propagate lies regarding the Holocaust offensive, he also said that he didn't believe they were "intentionally getting it wrong" by misleading readers, nor that those who disseminated this type of misinformation should be taken off his platform "if they get things wrong,

Like many public figures prone to confounding or deliberately misleading statements, Zuckerberg found himself under fire for his comments and attempted to walk them back. He even resorted to having his sister, Randi, come to his defense as his surrogate.

Randi Zuckerberg is active in Jewish organizations so she lends credibility to her brother's position when she says "those bent on lying, sowing misunderstanding, and breeding hate will never be truly silenced." She went on to say that, "Unfortunately, when we give a voice to everyone, we give it to people who use that voice for good and to people

Fair enough. But again, it's not so much what was said, rather how it was said; and in Zuckerberg's case, stated somewhat cavalierly.

One of the things that has always made America great (always, not "again") has been the freedom its citizens and its press have possessed to voice their opinions and observations, to report the news, keep us informed, and share ideas. Sadly, the very thing that makes us great can sometimes contribute to our vulnerability as well.

The First Amendment and our open, uncensored channels of expression are part of the reason Vladimir Putin's regime was so easily able to meddle into the 2016 presidential election. They provided Russia's security services and intelligence apparatchiks access to the hearts and minds of the American people through the deployment of highly effective disinformation, or dezinformatsiya as the Kremlin calls it. And they did so through

While Russian stage-management of public opinion is not the sole reason for Mr. Trump's current occupation of the White House, it certainly contributed to the American people's opinion of him and his opponent which, in turn, may or may not have led to a favorable outcome for Vlad's favorite marionette. More significantly, the propaganda and disinformation promulgated by Russian intelligence was highly effective in re-opening festering cultural wounds and in manipulating the emotions and reason of the American people.

As evidence continues to mount that Russian dezinformatsiya played a significant role in influencing public opinion leading up to the 2016 election, we are faced with a larger dilemma: namely, can we combat future intrusions into the American psyche without sacrificing a cornerstone of our democracy? The answer - fortunately - is no.

The First Amendment sets us free, but it also leaves us susceptible to those who wish to manipulate the beliefs and values that have long set this nation apart. At a time when the current administration is disseminating "alternative facts," and while they continue to accuse the mainstream media of spreading "fake news," it's up to all of us individually to dig deep and verify what we read and see online and on-air rather than blindly accept that which is placed before us.

And while it is not Mark Zuckerberg's obligation to protect us from the ills of the world, it is his responsibility to be more introspective when assessing the impact his creation has on the nearly 2.2 billion active monthly Facebook users around the globe.

LOTS OF TIPS ON HOW TO LIVE SANELY IN TRUMPLANDIA

The pollsters at Pew recently reported that 68 percent of Americans are suffering from news exhaustion, and that jibes with what I witness on an anecdotal basis. I don't presume to everyone, but many of you probably agree that conversations with friends these days are sometimes strained.

The dialogue often goes something like this: "We've gotta talk about Trump and everything that's going on."
"I'm so sick of it. Must we?"

"How can we not?" "Can't we talk about something else?"

Sure we can. But we're also well aware (or we certainly should be) that democracy at home and the western peacekeeping alliance abroad are under unprecedented attack by destructive forces in Washington and Moscow. With each passing week, the challenge facing each of us becomes more urgent: What's the best way to remain vigilant and still lead a sane life? What's the best way to balance obligations to self, friends, and family with the obligations of citizenship? Is it possible to monitor the avalanche of news without going nuts? How can we best calibrate these factors in year two of Trumplandia?

I brought this up on Facebook recently, and not surprisingly, nearly 100 friends shared their angst and exhaustion.

One popular piece of advice, as articulated by Steve Rosenthal: "No cable news. Repeat, no cable news ever." Peter Landry seconds that: "I never watch Shout TV on cable." Karen Rile says: "Something about large talking heads in the house is particularly stressful." Glenn Burkins says: "In our house, my wife keeps CNN on constantly, but I have limited my time with (cable) to the time it takes me to walk across our family room."

Some of my respondents gave shout-outs to Rachel Maddow, Brian Williams, and Nicolle Wallace (I do like Wallace, a career Republican who has great Republican sources), but there seems to be a general belief (which I endorse) that cable commentary is shrill, speculative, repetitive, and therefore easily culled.

Another favorite: Staying off or reducing reliance on Twitter. That's easier for some than others. I'm pro-Twitter, at least for its usefulness as a breaking news bulletin board. But it's also a bottomless rabbit hole for ranters, and much time can be wasted crafting pithy ripostes. As Tom Felicetti says, Twitter all too often is a haven for "polarizing emotional non-factual" people. Murray Dubin finds that "closing that Twitter window makes me a little less nuts."

Matthew Cooper, and others, have zapped the Twitter app off their phones. Some people use their phones more qualitatively; Maria Cardenas says, "I get my news strictly from the BBC app, The Globalist, and NPR podcasts...Sometimes I feel out of the loop but I prefer it to every gory detail." And some people have found ways to reduce their phone exposure; Bambi L. Feaster says, "I've taken to leaving my phone on my desk when I walk the dog...The dog is happier because the property and I've pat investigate."

we play more, walk more, and I'm not impatient."

Walking the dog is one way to disconnect, but the list of diversions is blessedly lengthy. Baseball appears to be a favorite. Jeff Brown says the Trump news is "relentless and depressing," so he signed up for the DirecTV MLB package, which is "more soothing," and I can attest that watching the MLB Network on basic cable is a guaranteed way to dwell for hours in an apolitical

Exercise is also big. Tom Harkins likes long bike rides. Miriam Hill says, "I am swimming a lot more laps in the pool. My minimum pool workout used to be 1,000 meters. In the last few months, I've doubled that on some days just to increase the amount of time my brain gets a

As for me, I'm not the best person to advise anyone on the proper calibration. My latest idea of escapist reading was Daniel Silva's excellent new spy novel, "The Other Woman" – which turned out to be a parallel-universe tale of Russia's penetration of America. In the author's note, he writes: "Russia under Vladimir Putin is both revanchist and paranoid, a dangerous combination... When Putin sows political chaos in Western Europe and seeks to disrupt and discredit an American election, he is reaching deep in the KGB's playbook."

I suppose I can escape, albeit temporarily, by hanging with the grandchildren – another popular tip. But my oldest one, who is five, recently informed me with great solemnity: "There are bad guys in the world. You know that, right?" I managed a reassuring smile. But I said to myself: "Yeah. I think I read something about that."

Perhaps cockeyed optimism is the best escape of all. As Phaedra Trethan says that "while we all know our history is rife with racism, injustice, corruption and genocide, I still believe that arc bends toward justice. Maybe because if I didn't believe that, I'd have drawn a nice warm bath, gotten in the tub, and opened my wrists by now.

MAKING SENSE by MICHAEL REAGAN

A MAN OF GOD SINS AGAINST MY FATHER

If a liberal like Jesse Jackson went on CNN and accused my father of being a "known womanizer" like President Trump, conservatives across America would go off the rails. They'd defend the reputation of Ronald Reagan to the max and blast Jackson for his false and evil equivalency.

They'd point out that it is totally outrageous to compare the personal lives of President Trump and my father.

Yet look what happened last week when a prominent conservative evangelical pastor from Dallas went on Fox News and called my father a "known womanizer."

The Rev. Robert Jeffress, who's a Fox contributor, was asked by Ed Henry to respond to another minister who had accused Republican lawmakers of selling their good Christian souls by supporting a serial bed-hopper like Trump.

"You know," Jeffress responded, "this is not an unusual thing - we've been here before. Back in 1980, evangelicals chose to support a twice-married Hollywood actor who was a known womanizer in Hollywood. His name was Ronald Reagan. ...

"The reason we supported President Reagan was not because we were supporting womanizing or divorce. We supported his policies."

When I heard Jeffress say that I blew my top and started angrily tweeting.

The first tweet I fired off to the Southern Baptist minister was pretty blunt - "All I can say is go F yourself."

My second tweet was "Dr. Jeffress. How dare you compare my father to Trump." Apparently, I was the only conservative Reagan Republican in North America who actually cared that Pastor Jeffress was casually throwing my father under the bus to

All I heard from my fellow conservatives in the twittersphere was crickets - and a week later I still do.

What that holy man from Dallas said was absolutely outrageous.

He equated my father - who was divorced from my mother Jane Wyman when he was dating in Hollywood and not yet married to Nancy - to Donald Trump, who was dating Playboy playmates and who knows who else when he was married.

What was more outrageous, however, was that no conservative Republicans or Fox commentators rose up in defense of my father and his reputation.

As I also pointed out in a tweet last week, all those conservative talk show hosts and politicians who keep saying how much they love Ronald Reagan are either lying or have lost their spines and a pair of other things.

I don't believe those so-called "Reagan conservatives" anymore.

If they wouldn't stand up and defend my father against a vile and uninformed statement from someone like Jeffress', there's no reason to assume they love my father at

I don't care what the president of the United States does in his personal life. I care what he does as president of the United States.

If you want to defend Trump, fine.

support his beloved sinner-in-chief.

But for God's sake, why would you use my father to make excuses for a president who has cheated on every woman he's been married to?

To rephrase that famous old line, Rev. Jeffress, "I knew Ronald Reagan. Ronald Reagan was a friend of mine. And Donald Trump ain't no Ronald Reagan - a vice versa."
