VOLUME 12 NO. 32

HONORING OUR HEROES: SIERRA MADRE SEARCH AND RESCUE

"Each rescue is an impromptu engineering problem.", says Susan McCreary as she shows me around the Sierra Madre Search and Rescue (SMSR) station. Susan is in charge of Public Education and Outreach with SMSR. She showcases the trucks, the 160-pound dummy that the team takes out into the field to practice rescues with, and she also shows off her gear. Her pack is heavy. She tells me that this is only her summer gear, and that in the winter the team's packs will be much heavier because there will be ice axes and crampons included.

I ask her about the history of the station and SMSR. A plaque on the front of the building explains that SMSR was able to buy the station in 1997 thanks to 'the generous donations from the citizens of the San Gabriel Valley and a major grant from the Webb-Berger foundation'. Susan tells me that before SMSR had this station, they met in the basement of the old City Hall- what many of you know today as the Jailhouse Inn. She also tells me that back then, if a call came in, the first person to get it would call other members, who would then call other members, and so on until everyone knew. Now, since everyone has pagers or cell phones, the phone tree is no longer needed.

Susan describes the founding of SMSR. The LaLone brothers were local hunters who were called out twice within a few months to search for a fellow hunter and later, a young boy. The brothers decided to put together a team in 1951. This team was the first Sierra Madre Search and Rescue. SMSR and Altadena Mountain Rescue Team were the first two Search and Rescue teams in all of California, and in 1959, Altadena became a founding member of the Mountain Rescue Association (MRA). The founding teams met at Timberline Lodge on Mount Hood, Oregon. SMSR joined the MRA shortly thereafter.

In the 1960s-1970s, the team received international acclaim due to their many searches, some of which took place out of state, in the Adirondacks of New York, for example, and some which took place out of the country, often in Baja Mexico. Susan says, 'We don't do it as much anymore because there are more Mountain Rescue teams than there used to be.'

Although they still do get called out to assist other areas at times, the SMSR is responsible for a swath of land that goes from Fish Canyon and the west edge of the San Gabriel River in Duarte to East Pasadena, at Hastings Canyon, just before Eaton Canyon. They also cover all the way up to Mt. Wilson's Rincon Redbox Road. Other nearby teams include Montrose SR, Malibu SR, Altadena SR, and San Dimas SR. The team reliably shows up in numbers for searches in Yosemite, Sequoia Kings Canyon, Death Valley, Joshua Tree and many other parks and counties in

When a 911 call or a call to Sierra Madre Police Department comes in, dispatch notifies SMSR. All team members are EMTs and are qualified to do some emergency medical work, such as splinting broken bones and giving oxygen or aspirin, but for more serious injuries the paramedics are called in to assist. On rescues, SMSR is associated with the LA Sheriff's' Department (LASD) because the Sheriff's department has responsibility for wilderness search and rescue. However, SMSR is a separate entity from the Sheriff's Department. The team is classified as about a year and a half, probationary members sit for a written exam and then must pass a field test. This earns them their 'blue patch', their MRA shield, and they become full members. Next, they must take a semester's worth of EMT training. No matter what job you do with SMSR, you must meet these requirements, as well as an annual fitness test. The time commitment is a minimum of 800 hours a year, more for a probationary member.

'High Risk Civilian Volunteers'. They are not law enforcement, nor do they carry sidearms. SMSR does not receive any tax dollars or federal funding. They also do not charge for rescues or emergency help; every cent they have comes from donations.

Susan recounts some recent rescues for me. Heat injuries and illness are common right now. Recently, the team rescued an overheated dog on the trail. She noted that it's quite common to get calls up by Hermit Falls in Chantry Flats, because that area often attracts inexperienced hikers who are unfamiliar with the area.

The team has seen many fatalities, back injuries, broken bones, and concussions resulting from cliff jumping up there. She also says that Mount Baldy is a common spot that the team is called to, to assist with searches. She tells me that there was a Thanksgiving where she was taking the turkey out of the oven as the call came in and she had to leave immediately to respond.

She also describes a search that took place last year for Carl Foote. She grows quiet as she recounts this one, mentioning that this particular search was very hard on the team. But she also mentions that the community rallied, bringing SMSR members food and water while they searched for six days and over 1000 hours.

I ask Susan what it takes to become a member of SMSR. She tells me that new recruits must be between ages 25-55 when they join. New members spend between $2-3,000 for the necessary equipment in the first year or so. Additionally, members must live no more than 20 minutes from the station, be able to leave work at a moment's notice if a call comes in and be able to be away from work for 72 hours at a time on searches. If recruits meet all these requirements, they go through their probationary period. During this time, they are learning everything they might need to know for a search or a rescue. Probationary members are required to show up for at least 75% of call outs so that they can continue to learn, whereas full members must show up to at least 50%. After

So, who are the people that make up this team? She describes a mix of people, for example, a 2nd grade teacher, a Cal Tech trained rocket scientist, a microbiologist, a small business owner, a healthcare administrator, a machinist, a few IT specialists, a few nurses, an engineer. Susan herself has been a nurse with City of Hope for 33 years and a member of SMSR for 15. She tells me that she and some other team members just got back from a 6-day vacation/ training on Mt. Rainier.

Another member Susan mentions is Arnold Gaffey, who just retired after dedicating 45 years to the team. Arnold started with SMSR at the age of 23 and is very well-known across California as a search manager. Big, multi-day searches require many teams and a LOT of coordination. 'Gaffey was a master of that. He taught search management to teams all over California, including National Park Rangers and Forest Rangers.' He also designed software to help keep track of clues, tracks, and areas searched to make big searches run more efficiently.

SMSR is very involved in outreach all year long. They often show students and young children a video called 'Hug a Tree' which teaches them what to do if they get lost. The children also get whistle packs that come with a whistle, an emergency shelter bag, and instructions on what to do if they get lost and how to use the contents. Susan says that SMSR reaches out to local schools, scouting troops, clubs like the Rotary Club, Lions Club, and the Women's Club, and also sets up booths at community events like the Wisteria Festival and the Art Fair. She mentions that the team has given talks to UCLA's hiking club and the Angeles Chapter of the Sierra Club. PR booths at events usually contain displays with FAQs and information about how to stay safe, as well as how to volunteer. SMSR is always recruiting and hoping to get new members to join.

Eventually, the interview ends, and Susan walks me out. The quote that sticks with me the most is this, "I'm proud to be a part of this organization because everybody is dedicated to what they signed up for. They show up." Rebecca Wright/MVNews

August 5th is National Friendship Day, but somewhere right around now is National Friendship Week. As this week is going to be way too hot for much Walking Sierra Madre, I thought, How about something pleasant to read and think about. Former Sierra Madre resident Dick Witter, who used to be my next door neighbor and made the best Huevos Rancheros and Margaritas we've ever tasted, and who had the bad taste to move to Big Bear, sent me a piece written by Andy Rooney. As you'll recall, Andy Rooney, who is now in heaven, was an award-winning journalist and part of CBS' Sunday Night 60 Minutes program for many years. Just about everything Andy Rooney had to say was worth hearing, and remembering, but this piece will make you smile and maybe think a little... The picture is of one of my favorite friends, my husband, John, who is now hanging out with Andy Rooney. The other guy is a new friend he found at Costco.

Wiggle Waggle Walk Registration is Open

The Pasadena Humane Society is reminding the community, and four-legged best friends, that Early Bird Registration for this year's Annual Wiggle Waggle Walk and fundraiser is still open.

The walk steps off Sunday, September 30 at Brookside Park at the Rose Bowl. Early Bird Registration ($20) ends September 16. After that General Registration is $25. Online registration ends 11:59 p.m. the night before the event. Day-of registration begins at 8:00 am at the event.

The walk will be led by a pace car, followed by the PHS shelter dogs, followed by the Top Team, Top Fundraiser, and Top Donor. General participants may begin lining up behind the cones at 8:50 am. "There will be water available for you and your dog but you should consider bringing your own water as temperatures may rise throughout the event" organizers said.

There will also be a Wiggle Waggle Walk and Expo starting at 8:00 a.m. until noon.

"It's a day of fun for the whole family with festivities including demonstrations, vendor booths, food trucks, entertainment, team photos and much more," organizers said. As of now, 78 participants have

Exhibit: The Art of High Altitude Travel

Peekaboo Gallery presents "The Art of High Altitude Travel," a travel exhibition and sale dedicated to the golden age of flying. Take a nostalgic look back to the time of glamorous air hostesses and gourmet meals, when one could jaunt from New York to Paris on a supersonic 3.5hour flight while enjoying champagne and canapés to live organ accompaniment.

The gallery showcases airlines memorabilia and presented collectibles in a striking Jumbo Jet stage set. Inside, you can find original lithographs and paintings of classic travel art, and industrial and commercial aircraft

For those interested in nostalgic fashion of the skies, look for vintage flight attendant uniforms from the 1940s through the 1990s, worn by crews on PAN AM, Braniff Airways, TWA, United, Eastern, British Airways, and the Soviet Aeroflot.

Peekaboo is a unique gallery where everything in the curated displays are for sale. It offers visitors an "unabashed celebration of that most fantastic, turbulent and innovative period in history known as the Twentieth Century."

The exhibit runs August 18 to Sunday, September

GUEST SPEAKER AT TOWN COUNCIL MEETING: CHP COMMANDER, CAPTAIN SUSAN ESTREM

By Joan Schmidt Please join the Monrovia Arcadia Duarte Town

Council at their next meeting, August 15, 2018, 7:00 p.m., at Annunciation Church Hall, 1307 East Longden Avenue, Arcadia.

The featured guest speaker is Captain Susan Estrem, from the Baldwin Park, #525 Office of the California Highway Patrol. The California Highway Patrol is responsible for traffic issues in the unincorporated L.A. County areas; the Sheriff's Department handles crimes in our areas. Captain Estrem recently resumed command at the Baldwin Park Office after the retirement of Captain Greg Hammond.

At every Town Council Meeting, there are reports from various groups. Senior Field Deputy Debra Mendelsohn reports on the various projects our Supervisor Kathryn Barger is working on. Mrs. Mendelsohn also answers residents' questions; she either contacts the appropriate agency or refers residents to them as needed.

Deputy April Nelson, who oversees our area, brings crime stats to every meeting and briefs the public on crime patterns and safety measures. Often Captain Dave Flores, Temple Station Commander attends the Meetings. Many residents do not realize Temple Station's area includes FIVE cities: Bradbury, Duarte, Rosemead, South El Monte and Temple City and the unincorporated areas such as "MAD", East Pasadena and South San Gabriel. The Town Council is very grateful to Deputy Nelson for her dedication and hard work; and to Captain Flores, when he takes time from his busy schedule to attend our meetings.

There are also reports from the public libraries and Pamela Park. Please join us on August 15, 7 pm, Annunciation Hall, 1307 E. Longden Ave., Arcadia.

Happy Tails

by Chris Leclerc

a human's practical day-to-day needs totally amaze me! So many kind canines are willing to do whatever it takes to help facilitate tasks that would otherwise be extremely difficult, if not impossible, for folks with special needs to achieve. The focus of those fabulous, furry four-footers is to keep their human companions happy, during the good times and the bad. We're talking about dogs committed to being true-blue friends through thick or thin, and I believe that God planned it that way when he created them.

I'll never forget the first time I saw a blind person walking with a seeing-eye dog at the mall when I was a kid. I must have been about 10 years old at the time and I was shopping with my mom. Naturally, being the animal lover that I already was, I reached out to pet the dog. That's when the owner warned me to keep my distance because he was a service dog "on the job" and it would be inappropriate for him to socialize with a stranger.

At first I thought that lady was being snobby and rude, but I later learned that service dogs are trained to focus on their masters' needs at all times, so they are not in the position to meet and greet others in public. When I later learned even more about the role of a trained seeing eye dog, I fully understood why that lady responded the way she did when I approached her gorgeous, stoic German shepherd at the mall that day.

Because of my early encounter with a seeing-eye dog, the concept of canines catering to humans with special needs became familiar to me at a young age and it thrilled me to know that a dog can and will be a help-meet on behalf of a human. Over the years I have learned much more about dogs and what they are capable of, so while I am still thrilled, I am rarely surprised when I hear news about the remarkable roles they are playing in today's society. When given love, respect and care they deserve along with proper training, dogs can do amazing things.

The idea of a canine helping a blind person make their way through the day is a common concept to most of us, but I must admit the idea of a dog assisting a deaf person in any effective way is relatively new to me. Until my neighbor introduced me to an organization called Dogs for the Deaf (which has since changed its name to Dogs for Better Lives), I was unaware that canines were actually being trained to assist people with hearing loss.

As it turns out, dogs

Dogs trained for the specific purpose of meeting understand way more than most of us think they do, and they can be trained to help bridge the gap between sound and silence for the hearingimpaired individual who is ready and willing to accept the kind of assistance that a trained canine companion can provide.

Dogs for Better Lives, Inc. is an Oregon-based nonprofit dedicated to rescuing shelter dogs that they train to assist people with a variety of challenges and unique needs, including hearing-impairment and autism. They also have a program devoted to creating "canine co-workers", where they train the dogs to team up with professionals such as physicians, teachers, counselors, and court room advocates by assisting in the treatment of patients and working with clients.

immediately touched by the creative way they found to show their compassion for both humans with special needs and animals that are desperate for a second chance at life. They make it their mission to adopt otherwise euthanized dogs and give them the opportunity to carry out the task at hand while satisfying the strongest desire of their heart, which is to make their master happy.

In my opinion, Dogs for Better Lives (previously Dogs for the Deaf) is the epitome of yet another win/win situation, wherein people work together to bring to fruition a worthwhile dream and support a worthwhile cause, which in this case is to train rescued dogs to help humans who, in turn give the dogs a loving home while benefiting from their assistance. Now that's what I call a true win/win!

As a final note - perhaps the most important point to be made in this Happy Tail - I just want to say that above-and-beyond the remarkable, life-changing practical tasks those kind canines perform for their human friends, I believe that even more remarkable is the beautiful bond they form with them, rooted in unconditional love and a willingness to put their twolegged friends first. I can only hope to become as kind as a canine in my lifetime.

Each time I read this paper I am amazed at the broad spectrum of different and talented writers that Susan whom we experienced mutual upliftment. Henderson has managed to cobble together as her "staff." I read with great enjoyment the column by this newspaper's "dog columnist," Chris Leclerc, about different animals that become friends. This struck home because the various members of my menagerie over the years have become quite close, often to the amazement of friends.

Popoki was a very friendly cat, and though the dogs didn't like her at first, she held her own, and eventually would squeeze in when the dogs were eating and eat out of their dish! That's no small feat, considering how jealously most dogs guard their food, and will often snap if another animal gets close. But Popoki often would be seen eating with Cassius Clay, who was a stout Staffordshire terrier, also known as a pitt bull.

Out back, Otis our pot-bellied pig had his own yard, and in the winter, Popoki would go out there and sleep in the straw with Otis. When it was really cold, Otis would burrow into the thick layers of straw, and only his back or belly would be sticking out. Frequently, we'd all go out back to see Popoki sleeping on the warm little patch of Otis' big body that was sticking out of the straw. It was quite a sight, but we all thought that the two of them became good buddies. We only had the one pig, and the one cat, and perhaps the two odd fellows stuck together. We also had a snow goose for the 17 years of her life. Blue Girl was pretty much a loner, but she too would warm up to Popoki during the spring when she was laying eggs. And occasionally in the early morning, when the roosters got going, she would attempt to crow along with the roosters, which gave her the nickname "Gooseter."

By the way, I had all these animals when I was living in Highland Park, and wrote about animal and food raising, and recycling, and gardening, Ghandi[Nyerges is the and self-reliance, in our book called "Extreme Simplicity, Homesteading in the City." It's a great "Self-Sufficient book, and I still see copies of it for sale on Amazon and Ebay.

Survive Anywhere." He also leads wilderness classes In addition, we became so close to most of our animals that we conducted funerals for nearly all of them. In other words, they were not mere "pets" or "livestock" or "animals." They were part of our family, sentient beings who shared our life and to

> When Cassius Clay died on Easter Sunday of 2008, I remember that same feeling I get when anyone close to me dies – the feeling of hopelessness, emptiness, experiencing the void, and a sense of inner darkness. I spent a week being with Cassius mentally, and preparing a gathering where I would honor our life together. It didn't matter that some people would laugh and ridicule. Nevertheless, I invited several friends, and prepared the site where I'd buried him.

On the Saturday after he died, I was a bit amazed that over 30 people showed up and sat in the quickly-dug outdoor amphitheater. I talked about the high lights of my life with Cassius, and felt a great joy that there were others I could share this with. And each person present shared their experience with Cassius, or something about their own personal pet.

The overall experience was more moving than many of the people funerals I'd been to. There was a little music, some soft drinks, and then everyone got to plant some herb or flower over Cassius' grave, and then water it.

In death, my close canis pal had brought so many like-minded people together. It was a real blessing. Again, I am reflecting upon these events because of the diversity of this newspaper's writers, and due to the ability of this paper's editor and publishing in bringing all these folks together.

[By the way, my experiences with the dog funerals is described in great detail in my book, "Til Death Do Us Part?", available from Kindle, or at the Store at www.ChristopherNyerges.com.].

If somebody can't con me, they can't con anybody. I admit that I am naïve about many things. A Girl Scout needs only smile, wink her brown eyes at me and I will buy all the cookies she

My problem is, I have a hard time believing anyone would lie to me. Why would someone lie in the first place? What does lying get you?

An incident happened this past week that sucked me into that whirlpool of naivety.

I received an email from somebody who wanted to give me a lot of money. It seems this woman was recently widowed and her husband was very wealthy and she wanted to give money to some charity. Would I be interested in receiving money? Well, when it comes to money you do have my interest.

Immediately I printed this email out and brought it to show the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. Now, if anybody can con her, they can con everybody. She can spot a lie three generations

She read the email and then looked at me with one of those "stares" and said, "You do know that this is a scam?"

"But," I said rather hesitatingly, "what if it isn't a scam? What if it's real? What have I got to lose?" "You mean," she said rather sarcastically,

"besides your mind?"

It was at that moment I had an overwhelming urge to prove finally that she did not know everything. When I follow through with this and get all that money in our bank, I will have a laughing party heard around the world at her expense.

I decided to see if maybe this was legitimate. So, I emailed them back and said I was interested in their money for our charity and explained a little bit about our charity.

Very soon, I got an email back congratulating me on a wise decision.

I sat back and grinned to myself; at least somebody appreciates my wisdom.

Then I received an email saying I needed to send them some information, so I immediately sent it. All the while, I'm thinking of how I'm going to rub this in someone's face for a very long time. After all, the amount of money they were talking about was $4.7 million. I started thinking about what I could do with all that money.

It is amazing what happens when a person starts is www.whatafellowship.com.

I know I am not the sharpest thinking about all the money he is going to get. pencil in the drawer, or the Then the thoughts go to "things." Things that I brightest bulb on the porch, cannot afford right now. I tried to think of all of the things that I would buy as soon as I got this money. I got some paper and a pen and started to make a list.

> I ran into a little problem here. I could not think of anything I wanted that I did not already have. I don't have a long list of things I want. I like books, pens and pocketknives. Of course, I could buy my own Apple fritter bakery. That would be a good option.

> For a couple days, I shot emails back and forth with this company that happened to be in Nigeria, Africa. I have some wonderful friends there so I was not even thinking on the negative side of this

> Of course, being a pastor, I would donate some of that money to my church. Then I got thinking about what we could do in the church with that kind of money. How many people could we bless and encourage with the programs we could do with that kind of money?

> I continued emailing back to this widow and she connected me with the bank that was going to handle the transaction. I was beginning to feel a little more comfortable with this. I know my wife thought this was a scam, but I'm not so sure it is a scam. I think it is some dear widow who wants to give her money to somebody that she doesn't know. What a sweet and wonderful woman she must be.

> Then I got THE defining email. In order for this transaction to go forward, they needed from me a processing fee of $1,000. After all, I would more than make that up once the transaction was done. At least, according to them.

> It was then I began to realize I had been bamboozled. Ask me for anything but don't ask me for my money!

> It was a scam and I am quite reluctant to pass this information off to the other resident of our house. One of us was right and it sure wasn't me.

> I did not get the $4.7 million, but on the other hand, I did not lose $1000. At least that's something to celebrate.

> Thinking about this reminded me of one of my favorite Bible verses. "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths" (Proverbs 3:5-6).

Here are my favorite dining experiences so far for 2018. Look at this as an early report card to dining in the Pasadena area. If you're looking for a steak, I recommend the Arroyo Chop House. In Pasadena, the steaks are above average and the Grand Marnier Soufflé for dessert is a must. I also recommend Taylor's Steak House in La Canada, an old-school steak house. It's a little less pricey then the aforementioned Chop House, and I love their Molly Salad, and although service can favor the regulars, it's one of my favorites. Looking for ribs? There is only one place to go in the San Gabriel Valley -- Robin's Wood Fire Grill. Robin Salzar has been smoking the best beef and baby back ribs for years. Lunch? I have two places in mind. First is the Central Grille (formally Central Park); I always order the ahi tuna sandwich with the delicious broccoli salad on the side, and you can't go wrong with the short ribs. Also, I like Houston's. It's called a steak house, and but while I've been there twenty times in the past few years, I've never have ordered a steak (I'll bet its good, though!) I love the service and the non-chain attitude, the beef dip sandwich is my favorite, and the $20 price is worth it. A favorite of mine in Sierra Madre is Zugos, a little café on Sierra Madre Blvd., which features al fresco dining and wine and beer. Order the gnocchi -- I liked it and you will too. Pizza? I like several places, but the one out-of-towners must check out is Tarantino's on Green St. They are small and quaint, and only take cash, but the pizza is great - you can get traditional style pepperoni or sausage. The lasagna is a hit as well, and they offer sandwiches, but stick with the pizza. Last but not least try the Mai Tai at the Canoe House in South Pasadena, it is a special one.. Go on Monday Nights it's only $6!!

JOURNEY TO TOUCH THE SUN LAUNCHING AUGUST 11

When NASA's Parker Solar Probe launches into space from the Kennedy Space Center August 11, it will begin its journey to the Sun, our nearest star. The Parker Solar Probe will travel almost 90 million miles and eventually enter through the Sun's outer atmosphere to encounter a dangerous environment of intense heat and solar radiation. During this harrowing journey, it will fly closer to the Sun than any other human-made object.

To revolutionize our understanding of our most important and life-sustaining star, scientists and engineers have built a suite of instruments aboard the Parker Solar Probe to conduct different experiments. Some of these instruments will be protected by a thick carbon-composite heat shield. However, others will be more exposed.

The Solar Wind Electrons Alphas and Protons (SWEAP) investigation is the set of instruments that will directly measure the hot ionized gas in the solar atmosphere during the solar encounters. A key instrument on SWEAP called the Solar Probe Cup (SPC) was built at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory (SAO) in Cambridge, Mass.

The SPC is a small metal device that will peer around the protective heat shield of the spacecraft directly at the Sun. It will face some of the most extreme conditions ever encountered by a scientific instrument, and allow a sample of the Sun's atmosphere to be swept up for the first time.

The SPC uses high voltages to determine what type of particles can enter, which is a way of measuring the energy of the particle. This is crucial information for probing the wind of hot ionized gas that is constantly produced by the Sun. As the spacecraft flies towards the Sun for an encounter, the wind is directed straight into the cup. This unique probe of the solar wind is important for scientists to better understand space weather, which is responsible for effects that range from endangering astronauts on space walks to impacting the electronics in communications satellites.

The solar probe will travel faster than any spacecraft in history, at its peak reaching 430,000 miles per hour, and will be only four-and-a-half solar diameters, or 3.8 million miles, above the solar surface at its closet approach to the Sun around

2024. The probe is equipped with a heat shield to the planets at high speed. protect its sensors from the Sun's heat, which could reach 2,500 degrees Fahrenheit, nearly hot enough

At this distance, the solar probe will be within a region where electrons and ionized atoms-mostly hydrogen ions, or protons, and helium ions, called alpha particles—are accelerated and shot out toward to melt steel.

When these ions, called the solar wind, hit Earth, they interact with Earth's magnetic fields and generate the northern and southern lights as well as storms in the outermost atmosphere that interfere with radio communications and satellite operations. Accelerated to higher speeds, so-called "solar energetic" particles can pose a hazard to astronauts. MtnViewsNews.com.

The namesake of the mission is a Caltech alumnus, 91-year-old Eugene Parker (PhD '51), who predicted, in 1958, the existence of a supersonic solar wind—a flow of charged particles that stream off the Sun, accelerating at speeds faster than that of

EDUCATION & YOUTH

6 WAYS TO PREPARE FOR A NEW SCHOOL YEAR

(StatePoint) Want to ensure the transition from summer to school goes smoothly for your family? Check out these six tips.

1. Make a smooth transition. Been sleeping in all summer? Now's the time to get your body back into the routine of early mornings. Start slowly, setting the alarm earlier until you reach the time you'll be waking up for the school year. Parents can assist younger kids with this transition.

2. Get the right education tools. From highlighters to USB drives to loose-leaf paper, be sure you have a comprehensive list of all the school supplies and education tools you'll need for a successful year ahead. As far as tech tools like graphing calculators are concerned, opt for those that are jam packed with all the latest features. For example, the Casio fx-CG50 offers the ability to draw three dimensional graphs, such as planes, cylinders and spheres, and view them from various angles in order to better analyze their shape. It also features a cross-section option and a special zoom function for in-depth analysis.

3. Organize your agenda. Make sure everyone is ready for the busy year ahead. Plan your children's participation in after school activities. Then, display relevant items on a calendar where the whole family can see it to ensure no one misses a club meeting, rehearsal or team practice.

4. De-stress. The hectic back-to-school season can create tension and stress. Encourage hobbies that help students unwind as the school year gets back into full swing. For beginners of music, check out new tools that can make the learning process fun and easy, such as Casio's LK-265 keyboard, which features an LCD display that shows both music notation and correct hand positioning.

5. Get healthy. Crowded classrooms are a good place to pick up germs. Keep kids healthy with a daily multivitamin, plenty of fresh fruits and veggies and lots of sleep. Regular exercise is also an immunity booster, so encourage kids to get active.

6. Adapt to new school resources. Families aren't the only ones getting ready for back to school. Districts are incorporating the latest tech into classroom learning. Such tools include Casio LampFree Projectors, an eco-friendly technology that gives educators the ability to control the projector from a smartphone or tablet, expanding their ability to create and deliver dynamic lesson plans.

THE GOOD LIFE

WHERE SENIORS CAN GET HELP WITH HOME CHORES AND SMALL JOBS

Dear Savvy Senior,

What's the best way to find good, trustworthy, qualified people who can help seniors with home chores or small

Looking for Mom

Dear Looking,

Getting help at home for any number of household tasks is a lot easier than it use to be thanks to a number of webbased tools that can quickly and easily connect you and your mom to a wide variety of skilled, carefully vetted workers. Here's what you should know.

Finding Qualified Help

One of the best ways to find qualified, reliable, trustworthy people that can help with home chores and other small jobs is through referrals from people you trust. But if your friends or family don't have any recommendations, there are a number of online companies you can turn to now like TaskRabbit.com and Takl.com.

These are on-demand service companies that can quickly and easily connect you to skilled workers to handle a wide variety of household chores and small jobs, like cleaning and housekeeping, moving and packing, lawn and yard cleanup, handyman tasks, grocery shopping, running errands, furniture assembly, picture hanging, closet organizing, and much more.

TaskRabbit currently has more than 60,000 Taskers (workers) in 47 U.S. cities, while Takl currently serves 75 U.S. cities with around 35,000 workers.

All you need to do is download their app, or go to their website, and select the service your mom wants done and set a time when she would like the worker to show up. The software then matches your request and provides you a list of qualified, feedback rated workers (including their hourly rate) from which to choose. Once the job is complete, payment is done through the company's app.

You should also know that all TaskerRabbit and Takl workers have to go through a thorough vetting process before they can join their respective company including extensive background checks.

If, however, you can't find a skilled worker through TaskRabbit or Takl, or if they don't serve your area, another option is Amazon Home Services at Amazon. com/services. Like TaskRabbit and Takl, Amazon will connect you to qualified workers that handle dozens of household chores and other small jobs.

Amazon also screens all workers through media searches, online interviews, reference checks, and background checks. And all experts need to have licenses and insurance.

To purchase and book a service, you can either buy a pre-packaged service with a fixed price (like two hours of cleaning) or you can submit a custom request and receive estimates. When booking, you select three different dates and time frames and the pro confirms an appointment. All payment is done through your Amazon account.

If your mom primarily needs of a tradesman like a plumber, electrician, painter, roofer or carpenter for nome repairs or remodel projects, you should also check HomeAdvisor.com and AngiesList.com. Both of these sites can connect you with prescreened, customer-rated service professionals in your area for free.

Senior Specific

Another option you should know about is AskUmbrella. com, which is a fee-based membership service for seniors 60-plus that provides qualified, vetted workers to do small jobs in and around the house for only $16 per hour. Currently available in New York, they are expanding nationally over the next year.

Lower-Income Option

If your mom is on a tight budget, you should also contact her nearby Area Aging Agency (call 800-677-1116), who can refer you to services in her area, if available. For example, some communities have volunteer programs that provide chore and handyman services to help seniors in need. And some local non-profit's offer residential repair services that offer seniors minor upgrades and adaptations to their homes.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior.org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

1200 STUDENTS PREPARED FOR A GREAT SCHOOL YEAR:

Thanks Again, Foothill Unity Center

By Joan Schmidt

For the 20th year, Foothill Unity Center has provided 1200 students with a great start for the new school year. There is NOT ENOUGH one can say about this phenomenal non-profit started by Josephine Anderson thirty-eight years ago as a food pantry. Perhaps this is why Dr. Adam Two late friends Jan and Bob Wight were also very committed to the Center.

So many dear friends attended: Executive Director photos.) Other community partners include Party new backpacks, school supplies, clothing, shoe cards, haircuts, manicures, books, and vision, dental and hearing screenings. This year's event included a college area with representatives from 11 colleges who promoted scholarships, financial aid and higher education. CHP Officers attended, explained auto safety, use of booster seats and Kendall, a medical doctor, and talented musician provided them to parents who needed them. APD performs and donates his profits to the Center. officers and volunteers and AFD also were on hand to assist in making this day so phenomenal.

This event is a JOINT COMMUNITY EFFORT. What can I say about the event? It just gets better I first must acknowledge Lyd and Mo Photography, each year. ## ASSEMBLYMEMBER HOLDEN RECOGNIZES PASADENA TOURNAMENT OF ROSES' FIRST AFRICAN AMERICAN PRESIDENT, GERALD FREENY

On Friday, the California State Assembly Floor, Assemblymember Chris Holden recognized Gerald Freeny for his confirmation as the first African American president of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Board of Directors. Freeny will provide leadership for the 130th Rose Parade on Tuesday, January

"Gerald Freeny's confirmation as President of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses is a significant milestone in Black History," said Assemblymember Chris Holden. "Freeny is an example of the Black excellence that occurs every day and exemplifies the progress Tournament of Roses has made to further diversity and inclusiveness within their ranks."

Gerald Freeny rose through the ranks of hundreds of "white suit volunteers" to become the 130th president of the Association. He previously worked as the chairman of parade operations, and has been a volunteer member of the Tournament of Roses Association since 1988.

Gerald Freeny announced "the Melody of Life" as this year's theme for the Tournament of Roses to encourage creativity and music as a way to bring people together.

"Many in the Pasadena community have waited and fought for this moment, and we are all excited about the leadership Gerald Freeny will bring to the Tournament of Roses," said Holden.

UPPER SAN GABRIEL VALLEY MWD SUPPORTS PROPOSITION 3. THE WATER SUPPLY AND WATER QUALITY ACT OF 2018

MONROVIA, CA - The Board of Directors of the Upper San Gabriel Valley Municipal Water District (Upper District) unanimously voted to support Proposition 3, the Water Supply and Water Quality Act of 2018. This statewide initiative would authorize $8.877 billion in general bonds to fund projects in water supply, water quality, watershed protection, fish and wildlife habitat, water conveyance, infrastructure repair, and groundwater sustainability and storage.

Proposition 3 is a citizen's initiative water bond that will appear on the November 2018 California general election ballot. If approved, the bond would provide available funds for key issues important to the San Gabriel Valley such as, safe drinking water and wastewater treatment, stormwater management and urban runoff, wastewater recycling, watershed restoration and urban water conservation.

"With increasing climate challenges and aging infrastructure, investment in our water system and habitats is critical for our State and is needed more now than ever before" stated  $Board\,President\,Ed\,Chavez.\,``This\,bond\,measure$ would provide substantial benefits across the state and specifically for the San Gabriel Valley. by providing available funding for improving our local water supply and allow for investments in recycled water projects."

Proposition 3 distributes most of its funding through grants to local governments, Indian tribes, non-profit organizations, and private water companies for specific projects. The initiative provides funding to more than a dozen state departments and are continuously appropriated funds ensuring programs are adequately funded. The Water Supply and Water Quality Act of 2018 is sponsored by a wide variety of conservation, agricultural, water, and environmental justice organizations. To find more information about Proposition 3, visit www.waterbond.org.

former poet laureate of the United States, essays from the vantage point of very old age. Donald Hall lived a remarkable life of letters, one capped most recently by the New York Times bestseller Essays After Eighty, a "treasure" of a book in which he "balance's frankness about losses with humor and gratitude" (Washington Post). Before his passing in 2018, nearing ninety, Hall delivered this new collection of self-knowing, fierce, and funny essays on aging, the pleasures of solitude, and the sometimes astonishing freedoms arising from both. He intersperses memories of exuberant days—as in Paris, 1951, with a French girl memorably inclined to say, "I couldn't care less"-with writing, visceral and hilarious, on what he has called the "unknown, unanticipated galaxy" of extreme old age. "Why should a nonagenarian hold anything back?" Hall answers his own question by revealing several vivid instances of "the worst thing I ever did," and through equally uncensored tales of literary friendships spanning decades, with James Wright, Richard Wilbur, Seamus Heaney, and other luminaries. Cementing his place alongside Roger Angell and Joan Didion as a generous and profound chronicler of loss, Hall returns to the death of his beloved wife, Jane Kenyon, in an essay as original and searing as anything he's written in his extraordinary literary

How to be a Happier Parent: Raising a Family, Having a Life, and Loving (Almost) Every Minute by KJ Dell'Antonia

An encouraging guide to helping parents find more happiness in their day-to-day family life, from the former lead editor of the New York Times Motherlode blog. In all the writing and reporting KJ Dell'Antonia has done on families over the years, one topic keeps coming up again and again: parents crave a greater sense of happiness in their daily lives. In this optimistic, solution-packed book, KJ asks: How can we change our family life so that it is full of the joy we'd always hoped for? Drawing from the latest research and interviews with families, KJ discovers that it's possible to do more by doing less, and make our family life a refuge and pleasure, rather than another stress point in a hectic day. She focuses on nine common problem spots that cause parents the most grief, explores why they are hard, and offers small, doable, sometimes surprising steps you can take to make them better. Whether it's getting everyone out

This Summer forests are bursting into flame all over the world. More than 50 wild fires have scorched a shocked Sweden, some of them north of the Arctic Circle as temperatures have soared into the 90's amid withering drought. In normally chilly Olso, the mercury climbed passed 86 degrees for 16 consecutive days. The Brits have been gobsmacked by 95 degree weather: it hit 98 in Montreal: and in Japan, 22,00 people were hospitalized when temperatures climbed to a record 106. In Arizona, Southern Calif., Pakistan, and India, Summer's broiler has been turned up to unbearable levels, passed 110 degrees, and people are dying. Heat, drought, and fires of this scale and scope are not normal or perhaps they now change and sacrifice as long as possible. We don't act, especially collectively, until a crises is upon us. ## FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

DO YOUR HOMEWORK TO ENSURE YOUR KIDS ARE PROPERLY CARED FOR NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENS

It's back-to-school time again, and when it comes to estate planning YOU may have homework to do. As a parent, your most critical—and often overlooked—task is to select and legally document guardians for your minor children. Guardians are people legally named to care for your children in the event of your death or incapacity.

If you haven't done that yet, you should immediately do so - or come to one of our "Guardian Naming Workshops" and get it done there. Information on our next workshop can be found at garlettlaw.com, or call the Sierra Madre Library at (626) 355 - 7186.

Don't think just because you've named godparents or have grandparents living nearby that's enough. You must name guardians in a legal document, or risk creating conflict and a long, expensive court process for your loved ones—all of which can be so easily avoided.

Covering all your bases

However, naming permanent guardians is just one step in protecting your kids. It's equally important to have someone (plus backups) with documented authority, who can stay with your children until the long-term guardians can be located and formally named by the court, which can take weeks or even months.

The last thing you want is for police to show up at your home and find your children with a caregiver, who doesn't have documented or legal authority to stay with them and doesn't have any idea how to contact someone with such authority. In such a case, police would have no choice but to call Child Protective Services.

This is a major hole in many parent's estate plans, as we know you'd never want your kids in the care of strangers, even for a short time. To fix this, we've created a comprehensive system called the Kids Protection Plan®, which lets you name temporary guardians who have immediate documented authority to care for your children until the long-term guardians you've appointed can be notified and get to your children.

The Kids Protection Plan® also includes specific instructions that are given to everyone entrusted with your children's care, explaining how to contact your short and long-term guardians. The plan also ensures everyone named by you has the legal documents they'd need on hand and knows exactly what to do if called upon. We even provide you with an ID card for your wallet and emergency instructions to post on your refrigerator, so the contacts and process are prominently available in case something happens to you.

A foolproof plan

With the Kids Protection Plan®, you'll name one permanent guardian and one temporary guardian, along with two or more backups, in case the primary isn't available or cannot serve. And we instruct caregivers to NEVER CALL POLICE IF YOU CANNOT BE REACHED UNTIL ONE OF THE NAMED GUARDIANS ARRIVES AND IS PRESENT WITH YOUR CHILDREN.

Finally, if there's anyone you'd never want raising your children, we confidentially document that in the plan, preventing them from wasting the time, energy, and assets of the people you do want caring for your children.

With us as your personal family lawyer, you have access to the Kids Protection Plan® to ensure the well-being of your children no matter what. As your kids head back to school, do your homework by contacting us today.

Dedicated to empowering your family, building your wealth and defining your legacy,

The life of a child is a life of adventure. We come here not knowing how to do anything, but nature has wired us for survival, so we learn very quickly. Somethings we learn over time and somethings come to us as if by magic. We scoot, crawl, pull up, cruise from table to chair, and eventually, we walk. Our parents are cheering for us from across the room, and that feels good. As we mature, there is a subtle shift, most of us don't notice it. Eventually, we get addicted to approval and resistant to criticism. To prosper we need to remember to listen to our inner wisdom. If you catch yourself tapping down your dreams before they can

TRUMP'S WAR ON THE PRESS WON'T END WELL

In baseball lingo, the high, inside fastball is known as the brushback, a tactic to inform the batter that he'd better be cautious about digging in.

The higher and tighter inside fastball is call head-hunting, a serious escalation of the fear tactic and infinitely more perilous.

In spending the first 18 months of his administration accusing the media of "fake news" and deliberate dishonesty, President Trump has been throwing brushback pitches, warning reporters they'd better mend their ways or face consequences.

By ratcheting up the rhetoric to characterize the media as "an enemy of the people" and suggest reporters are unpatriotic, the president has gone for head-hunting, signaling to the media that he wants them out of the game entirely.

If history is any guide, Trump is engaged in a fight he'll lose.

The relationship between the Trump Administration and the media long ago surpassed the normal tensions that have always existed between the elected and those assigned to record, parse and analyze their every move, comment and action.

Presidents have historically groused about the media, complaining about what they perceived as biased and unfair coverage colored by partisan sympathies on the part of reporters. President Eisenhower, perhaps the most beloved of all modern-day chief executives, sent delegates into a fist shaking uproar at the 1964 Republican national convention with his reference to "sensation seeking columnists and commentators."

President Nixon despised the press, and his erstwhile Vice President Spiro Agnew enraptured partisan audiences with his colorful and alliterative assaults on the media.

Despite this history, all concerned moved on, grudges faded away and animosities buried. Cooler heads prevailed and, while the slights inflicted may not have been totally forgotten, it was in the best interests and professional obligations of both sides to concentrate on their duties.

All that went before, though, seems tame next to the naked antagonism and rancor that has come to mark the daily interaction between the Trump administration and the media. The hardcore base supporting the president shows up at his rallies to roar approval for his ridicule of the media and gleefully join in derisive chants aimed at reporters. White House press briefings have deteriorated into loud and bitter arguments rather than civil exchanges designed to elicit information for readers and viewers.

One reporter, CNN White House correspondent Jim Acosta, stomped out of a recent briefing in a childish snit because he couldn't get an answer he wanted. He later suggested that reporters protest by marching on Pennsylvania Avenue outside the White House - a truly absurd notion that would play directly into the [resident's hands. (A "Trump Unfair" To Reporters" poster won't elicit much sympathy.)

Acosta, by his behavior - shouting questions, interrupting the press secretary midresponse, giving speeches and opinions rather than asking questions while playing to the camera - has become the stereotype of the obnoxious, overbearing, insufferable reporter Trump loves to lampoon. Sadly, he's not alone.

Acosta's right to display all those qualities is Constitutionally protected and he successfully hides any self-embarrassment he may feel.

The President is clearly convinced his disdain for the media is paying off handsomely politically and, being his own best advisor, is not about to change his approach. However, in the long run it's a losing strategy.

He still must deliver for the American people solutions to those issues that matter most to them - the economy, job creation, immigration, government spending, crime and public safety, among others. Running from rally to rally bellowing "fake news" to adoring audiences can only carry

The media will endure as it always has. It is not about to be cowed into silence or submission in the face of threats or obstacles thrown into its path. The media can play the long game; Trump cannot. At the same time, reporters such as Acosta must keep their composure, avoid the temptation to respond in kind to the President's taunts, and remember who they serve. Acosta's antics only detract from their mission and make fulfilling it all the more difficult. Trump will undoubtedly continue to throw brushback pitches and go headhunting. Reporters must remember to duck when necessary but be unafraid to dig in and wait for Trump will become arm weary for certain and overstay his time on the mound.

UNDER TRUMP, IT'S EASY TO LIKE IKE

GETTYSBURG, Pa. - The golf clubs in the laundry room at the rear of Dwight Eisenhower's farmhouse here are perched and ready, as if the 34th president of the United States might come and fetch them at

Eisenhower was a passionate golfer. His valet, Sergeant John Moaney, would be tasked with cleaning them after Eisenhower returned from one of his frequent rounds at the nearby Gettysburg Country Club. To step into this 1950s vintage home, here on the edge of what may be America's best-known

Civil War battlefield, is to step back into another era of American politics; though it's hard to miss the parallels between his time and our own. It's also nearly impossible to miss the contrasts between America's last outsider, Republican president and the current, outsider Republican president: Donald Trump, between the Republican Party as it was, and it is now. While fraught with its own unique complications and profound inequalities, Eisenhower's America was a youthful and optimistic one, emerging from the tumult of World War II to take its place as a global superpower and leader on the world stage. Compare that to an "America First," that increasingly sounds like "America Alone." Like Trump, Eisenhower presided over a booming economy, contended with the threat of a nuclear armed rival in eastern Europe (the enemy in that case was crystal clear), and though Twitter was still decades away, technology was growing by leaps and bounds.

On the homefront, Eisenhower oversaw the construction of the interstate highway system; he sent federal troops to Arkansas in in 1957 to ensure the desegregation of the public schools; he prompted the United States to take its first baby-steps in the space race, and he famously warned against the emergence of the "military-industrial complex." One of the clearest contrasts comes on the civil rights front. Yes, racism was rampant, but you could count on Ike to like civil rights, as The New York Times put it.

Ever the soldier bound by the chain of command, Eisenhower enforced the terms of Brown v. Board of Education, the 1954 U.S. Supreme Court decision desegregating American public schools. Eisenhower also signed the Civil Rights Act of 1957 into law, providing voting protections for black Americans.

Compare that to our current "both-siderism" on matters of race relations, and the seemingly undying push for "Voter ID" that critics believe will specifically disenfranchise black voters. Overseas, before becoming president, Eisenhower served as NATO's first supreme commander, where he helped forged an alliance that kept the peace for some 70 years.

Like no one else, [Eisenhower] saw the challenges of maintaining an alliance, the egoes on different sides, just keeping it together," Muhlenberg College political science professor Christopher Borick observed. "I can only imagine his thoughts on NATO today and [President Trump's] perspective on it. They're 60 years and light years apart."

Indeed, during a rally in northeastern Pennsylvania last week, Trump groused about the alliance, and again falsely claimed that member nations were "delinquent" in their payments to NATO until he forced them to pony up.

Like Eisenhower, Trump loves golf, and has spent 135 days on the links since becoming

Trump has also spent a total of 170 days at Trump-owned properties since last January. Eisenhower spent just one year of his eight years in the White House at the farm, our tour guide

Yes, there are similarities. Eisenhower believed in the power of personal interface, but not in Ike entertained Winston Churchill and Charles DeGaulle at the farm, and even deployed his grandchildren as secret weapons in a charm offensive against Soviet Premier Nikita Khruschev, National Park Service ranger told our tour group. Like Trump, Eisenhower was a political cypher. At one point, he was courted by Democrats as their presidential candidate. Ike eventually revealed himself as a Republican. Trump, who spent eight years registered as a Democrat and gave to Democratic candidates and causes, embraced his inner Republican for his 2016 White House bid, though he has little in common with the old-guard GOP of Eisenhower.

I can't see Ike tweeting," Borick quipped. "He didn't like to say a lot more than he had to."

Indeed, Eisenhower embraced what some have referred to as "strategic patience," preferring to wait until the right time to act on an issue. It's hard to imagine the brash and impatient Trump employing a similar approach. Eisenhower's actions were "defined by his willingness not to speak in a rash way, Borick observed. "His speech was always very measured and not one to change course really quickly. Or to throw out actions or ideas without considerable thought." In our whirlwind time, amid our breakneck politics, that almost seems a charmingly quaint notion; a relic of a simpler era. It's easy to like Ike. Especially now.

MAKING SENSE by MICHAEL REAGAN

TWEET PRESIDENTIALLY, MR. TRUMP

Trump is still being Trump. Whether he's holding his stand-up political rallies in Wilkes-Barre or Ohio, or delivering his incendiary early morning tweet storms, he's not going to change his wild and crazy ways. He's been doing a lot of great stuff in Washington, but if he wants to stay there he'd better be careful.

The raw party numbers are against him.

Last time around, in 2016, the Democrats had a deplorable candidate - Hillary Clinton who lots of Democrats didn't like, either, and therefore didn't show up to vote for at the polls.

Now Democrats have someone even bigger to collectively hate - Donald Trump. He's already given them plenty of reasons to put on their "Impeach Trump Hats" and get out and vote for Democrats in the November congressional elections.

But last week the president made things more difficult for himself by foolishly making a few million new enemies in the sports world by personally attacking LeBron James. Responding to the negative things the NBA superstar had said in a CNN interview with professional Trump-hater Don Lemon, the president tweeted: LeBron James was just interviewed by the dumbest man on television, Don Lemon. He made LeBron look smart, which isn't easy to do. I like Mike!" Though the president sided with Michael Jordan fans in the great debate over who's the greatest NBA player of all time, "Mike" sided with LeBron James, who had charged the president with using athletics and athletes to divide the country. Through a spokeswoman, Jordan responded, "I support LeBron James. He's doing an amazing job for his community."

Though the Lemon interview included CNN's standard anti-Trump political slant, it was focused on James' foundation's contribution of $2 million to help at-risk public school kids in

The tweeter in chief might have been pleased with himself for scoring a few political dunks and inflaming the anti-Trump media for the millionth time.

But if he wants to keep Congress Republican this fall, or have a second term, he's going to have to change - and learn. We know he gets beat up unfairly by the liberal media and Democrats every day, all day.

But so did Ronald Reagan. My father fought back on the issues or made jokes, but he never attacked anyone personally.

President Trump should not have kept quiet about the Lemon and LeBron insults, but he's got to learn how to turn his enemies' blind hatred of him to his own advantage.

He should have tweeted something like, "I'm sorry LeBron disagrees with me personally and doesn't appreciate the historically low unemployment rates and middle-class tax cuts my policies have created. But I like what he'd doing for those third and fourth graders in Akron. Our star athletes can do great things for their communities and I hope others follow LeBron's

It wouldn't have been very Trumpian. It wouldn't have fit in a tweet. And it wouldn't have gotten the liberal media's panties in a twist for three days.

But it would have immediately turned Lemon's and LeBron's cheap shots back on them and the rest of the liberal media and allowed the president to score a few political three-pointers of

As some point President Trump has to rise above this personal crap.

His family already knows how to do it. First Lady Melania Trump publicly supported James' work in Akron through a spokesman. First Daughter Ivanka supported the press against her father, saying she didn't think journalists were the "enemy of the people." In one smart tweet the president could have turned the tables on Lemon and LeBron.

The liberal media would never have given him credit for taking the high road, but that's OK. It's time the man who is president of us all starts acting presidential. It'd be for his own political good. But more important, it'd be for the good of the country.
