VOLUME 12 NO. 33

RED WATER, EXTREME HEAT....SIERRA MADRE WATER QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Earlier this week, many residents in the Southwest quadrant of Sierra Madre turned on their faucets on to see that disturbing rust colored water coming out. Needless to say, the panic level rose and calls started coming in to the Mountain Views News.

Fortunately, the worst fears were not the case. The city's water has not reverted to that horrible situation in 2013 that plagued the town when it became necessary to pump water from outside sources because of the drought. Instead, the situation this week was temporary.

We reached out to Sierra Madre's Department of Public Works Director, Chris Cimino and our Utilities Director, Jose Reynoso and they gave us the following information:

Q: Why was our water discolored:

A: This past Thursday our valve crew exercised 24 valves in one area of our system. To aid in clearing mainlines we flushed several additional hydrants capturing the water in our water tender then spread that water into our recharge basins to allow it to recharge the aquifer.

The red, yellow or brown water some of our residents experienced was due to our valve exercising program. We have just under 1,200 valves in our water system. Each of these valves can isolate water to a block in the City. It's important to have operational valves as they can minimize water outages in the event of a major leak.

Our goal is to exercise at least 50% of these valves each year. Exercising a valve involves closing and opening the valve to make sure it is operational. The operator logs the number of turns and the torque needed to operate the valve. In addition any valve that is not operational is logged and scheduled for replacement.

During the process of exercising a valve any iron deposits that have built up on the valve come dislodged and appear as color in the water. Typically an operator will exercise a cluster of 4 valves then go to the nearest hydrant to flush out any discoloration that occurred in the process. If a resident opens a water fixture during the valve exercising process it is possible they can draw water with iron deposits into their house. This water will appear red, yellow or brown. Typically a few minutes of flushing the fixture will remedy the situation.

Residents are encouraged to contact the Water Department any time they experience red water.

Q: What is the status of our wells/groundwater levels?

A: Many of our residents are unaware we can no longer meet the communities water needs with our local groundwater supply alone. The lack of natural recharge from precipitation over the past 7 years has depleted our local groundwater source. Our aquifer is an adjudicated basin which means when ground water levels are safe, Sierra Madre can extract 1,764 Acre Feet* per year from the basin. When groundwater levels are low, there is a clause in our adjudication that puts a pumping restriction on our rights and reduces them to 940 Acre feet per year. This occurs when groundwater levels drop below 500 feet above mean sea level. As of today our ground water level is at 364' above sea level.

Q: Are we still importing water?

A: We are currently operating under the 500' rule restriction. Water levels in the aquifer need to gain 136 feet for Sierra Madre to be able to once again produce our full allocation. The reality is this may never happen and we will likely need to import 50% or more or our demand each and every year.

SPECTACULAR SIERRA MADRE RETREAT!

To meet the needs of the community and make up the difference between our rights and demand we purchase imported water from the San Gabriel Valley Municipal Water District. Water imported from the District is placed in our recharge basins at the City Yard. Water is allowed to naturally percolate into the ground where it eventually reaches our groundwater supply. Each year the City of Sierra Madre imports as much water as needed to make up the difference between our pumping rights and our demand. This can vary from 1,200 to 2,500 acre feet per year. Imported water originates in either Northern California and is conveyed via the California Aqueduct or is diverted from the Colorado River. Either way imported water has a long journey to make it to Sierra Madre.

Water Department staff monitors and tracks groundwater levels very closely. This year's rainfall was a below average and groundwater levels did not recover very much over the Spring. As a result we began importing water a month early to get ahead of our peak season. Spreading imported water a month early allowed us to put 300 AF in the ground and slow the expected drop caused by peak summer demand.

This July felt like one of the hottest ever. In July we produced 2,525,345 gallons more than we did last year (7.75 AF). Historically August and September are our biggest production months.

PROFILES: A Look At The People Behind The Scenes MATT VIDIMOS @ BEANTOWN

By Rebecca Wright

With 12 years under his belt, Matt Vidimos has worked at Beantown longer than almost everyone else there. Only the chef has been there longer. In Pasadena, 12 years, a lot has changed. The layout inside has visiting his changed. There are now tables where the couches used to be. While some might say that the loss of the couches has changed the feel of Beantown, Matt says that he has seen more families come in because there is more room to sit now. And families are the biggest group that has changed in the 12 years that Matt has been here. He has seen children grow up and some of them have even had children of their own. Even Matt's drink of choice has changed. While he used to drink vanilla lattes, he now likes his coffee black.

Not everything has changed though. The pastries are still made fresh, "Not just off a truck or in a bag." And Matt's favorite shift has not changed either. He likes the morning shift because even though it means starting around 5AM, he is done by noon and has the rest of the day to himself. This often means going to work at his second job: screen printing.

Matt's connection to Sierra Madre runs deep. He has lived in town for 30 years and he grew up in a family that was highly involved in the community. Elementary and his brother Joe worked as a security spending time at the local events and festivals such the organization to this day. as the Art Fair and the Wisteria Festival because the whole community comes together, and it feels like a huge event. Matt also likes the fact that Beantown hi often gets involved in the community by donating coffee to events and auctions.

Still, even His mom, Pat, worked in the office at Sierra Madre though he did not play Little League himself, he went to many of his brothers' games, and admires the level guard at Sierra Madre Middle School. Matt loves of commitment that Sierra Madre families have to

WALKING SIERRA MADRE... The Social Side By Deanne Davis

"Success...What's Your Definition?"

"Success," according to Michelle Griep, a fellow author of several splendid Christian adventure novels, "is harder to pin down than simply slapping a dollar sign in front of a number and then running headlong toward that amount. There are other things to take into consideration when defining if you're successful at any given task, things such as:

Contentment

Contribution to Society

Knowing you're doing what God wants you to do Putting a smile on someone's face"

Have you noticed how many succulent gardens are showing up all over town? I have a bunch of containers filled with them and even part of our front yard. These things are so cool, I just break pieces off of one that's already doing well, stick them in somewhere else and, voila! they grow. I actually started with a couple of tiny pots from Home Depot and now they're everywhere. I'd really like one of those Golden Barrel Cactuses like they've got at the Huntington Library Desert Garden, but they're prickly and I'm a little concerned that somebody might fall into it, most likely me.

It's tough to see all the trees that were mortally wounded on that horrible 116 degree day. The avocadoes especially have taken a hit. I have three that, hopefully, will recover. Have you seen the one up on Grandview and Santa Anita in front of that house that has been for sale forever? It looks like someone took a flamethrower to it. My son-in-law, Chuck's, azaleas were also hit hard. His geraniums - he is an award-winning geranium propagator, btw – seemed to have done OK. The citrus trees are thirsty, but what isn't. Rain would be wonderful as water is just not available anymore to give all the

I'm sure you've read one of those adorable books that well-meaning people write for children about crickets and other unpleasant varmints? Tailored, of course, for the well-meaning people who buy them for children because they are so adorable... the varmints, that is...well, the children, too. The Very Quiet Cricket, Oscar and the Cricket, and, of course, that all time favorite: Cricket on the Hearth. Obviously, these authors, sterling folk though they may be, have never actually HAD a Cricket on their Hearth, in the bedroom or in their kitchen. Did you know that you can actually buy Cricket Cages on Amazon.com? I suspect these cricket cages were created for a darker purpose, such as keeping crickets alive so one can feed them to a larger, quieter and more sinister pet.

I have had, on more than one occasion, a cricket in the bedroom and the little creep could drown out a helicopter. Here's some extraneous information you can consider while wishing you didn't have a cricket anywhere near you: Did you know that they make their chirping sounds by rubbing their wings together, and that only male crickets can chirp? Fascinating, huh. Especially at 2:00 a.m. when you wonder what God was thinking on this cricket thing. Trying to find a chirping cricket is an xercise in futility.

Bears occasionally wander through our town, many of them spending these hot days relaxing in various fish ponds and pools, especially up in the Canyon. Robert Gjerde has taken many splendid photos of visiting bears. Deer, coyotes, raccoons, skunks also roam about here and we even had a fox living under our garage for a while. He (or she) would venture out each evening around cocktail time to see what was going on in the neighborhood. The day a very large bear walked down our driveway, stepped over a four foot gate like it was a stepping stone and proceeded through our yard was memorable and a little terrifying. But I'll take the bear in our pool yard over a cricket in my bedroom any day of the week. Here's to a cricket free week! And a little monsoonal rain would be really nice to see, wouldn't it! The picture is a few monsoonal clouds...just hoping!

Happy Tails

by Chris Leclerc

I am convinced that God allowed the animals He system. created to become domesticated for a very specific purpose - to help the people get along in this life on earth. While humans like to consider themselves the superior species in the animal kingdom, I believe that we should be very careful in assuming we're "top dog" among all living things. I guess it depends on how you define superior, and what set of criteria you choose to apply to the honor of that particularly important title.

These are just a few of the emotionally charged thoughts that came to mind while I was viewing a documentary about a prison dog program at Dixon Correctional Institute in Jackson, Louisiana. The dog rescue & training / prisoner rehabilitation program was born out of necessity when thousands of pets were inadvertently released, ran away or were abandoned during the torrents of hurricane Katrina.

The documentary was so touching, I was compelled to seek out similar stories to feed my need to know more about how convicts are learning to 'love and let live' through intimate interaction with canines & cats in need. What I found was quite astounding, in terms of the positive results of inmates coming together with pets in prison. There are numerous such programs throughout the US, and statistics show that prisoners who participate, are far more likely to live productive lives upon release, than those who did not.

What enthralls me most about pet shelter programs in prisons, is that it demonstrates the universal structure and balance of symbiotic relationships between species, and the important role those relationships play in forming a better future for all involved. Needy animals get the love, attention and training they desperately need while inmates learn to be responsible for and care about another being. Inmates become very attached to the animals they are responsible for and many choose to pursue certifications that, upon release, will allow them to care for and train animals in municipal shelters, forever loving homes.

Participation in prison animal shelter programs themselves trustworthy enough to safely handle and care for the animals and willing to show them due companion!

respect. The program presents a strong incentive for prisoners to work hard at maintaining a record of good behavior, which helps with the rehabilitation of those who may otherwise become frustrated or angry and cause disruption. The inmates who benefit most from the program are those who truly wish to move onward and upward in life, rather than allowing themselves to become perpetual victims of the

Another plus to having a cooperative canine, cat and con program is that the animals placed in prison shelters typically receive excellent, closely monitored care and even obedience training that is typically not provided in public animal shelters. While the SPCA, the Humane Society and other animal rescue agencies work hard to provide optimal treatment & sufficient time for placement, they are limited to minimal taxpaid and donated funding to carry out the task. In the case of most prison shelters, the inmates build and maintain the structures themselves, and in some cases are expected to cover part of the cost associated with owning a pet.

Dixon Correctional Institute is one of many prisons that have established pet shelter programs. Another one I was impressed with is called Operation Second Chance, sponsored by a partnership between the Gwinnett County Sherriff's Dept. and The Society of Humane Friends in the state of Georgia. This program, which involves inmates working one-onone with the animals and some becoming certified trainers, is made possible by volunteer efforts and pro-bono services provided by animal-loving pet professionals who believe in the idea of positive results coming from symbiotic relationships between inmates and animals.

Probably most unique among the prison pet programs is one in Alabama involving convicts who have been allowed to adopt the feral cats that were roaming the premises, causing chaos for security officers around the perimeter of the prison. In this particular program, hand-picked trustworthy inmates, including some on death row, are allowed to keep cats in their cells under the condition that they will accept responsibility for the cost to spay or neuter and that they will feed and care for them. Remarkably, most of the inmates who've qualified for the program have followed through with their bettering the chances of the pets being placed into responsibilities as promised and have fostered longterm, loving and affectionate relationships with their pets, not to mention have become very protective is a privilege limited strictly to inmates who prove of them. Apparently the message is made perfectly clear that nobody better mess with a con's kitty

Leaf blowers are causing much consternation

Yes, some cities have banned them, and yes the perpetrators can be fined when a police officer actually has the time to catch them.I have long been against leaf blowers. How many of you have seen "gardeners" simply blowing dirt and dust and bits of debris into the middle of the street, or audaciously blowing it into the neighbor's yard? I can no longer count the times I have seen this. Yes, I know some of the guys doing landscape work are conscientious individuals, but at least half are not, and they view a neighbor's yard as a good place as any to dispose of leaf and dirt and dust. I can recall when I did landscape and gardening work. We used some power tools, like a mower, but mostly rakes and brooms.

Though it was hard work most of the time, it was a silent meditation as we worked in some yard, cleaning and pruning with no adverse effects for the neighbors. Today's mow and blow crews are not artists, just guys moving from house to house, quickly knocking off each job with their blowers and week-wackers, and when you complain you are accused, at best, of interfering with someone's ability to make a living, and at worst, you are accused of being a racist. The racist accusation does not merit comment. As for interfering with someone's job, since when is how someone makes money not subject to regulation? If the leaf blowers were silent, that would reduce some of the criticism. And if the leaf blowing guys used [Nyerges is the author of the blowers only occasionally, blowing leafs into 'Self-Sufficient Home," a pile and then picking it up into a container, that too might reduce some of the criticism. When the blowers come in and do their dirty deed, asthma of a "front lawn." He is the sufferers suffer more, as all the nasties in the dust author of several other books, and leads regular are now in the air, things like arsenic, cadmium, chromium, dried fecal material, and more. That's what you're breathing when the knockoff gardeners pretend that the leaf blower is the only tool need for yard maintenance. I am on the extreme that believes we should just let all the leaves lie, and let a garden grow where you once had a lawn. Weed-wackers and leaf-blowers make our urban home a nightmare, not a paradise. What then can we do?

Do everything possible.

First, talk to your neighbor who employs the leaf-blowers. Some will understand that yard-work can be done without excessive noise, dust, and fumes, and they might be convinced to hire true gardeners. When I lived in L.A., I hired a gardener for some occasional work, before the blowers were banned. I told him he could not use the blower on my property. He objected at first, but I told him I'd not hire him otherwise. Of course, he found the way to do my yard without a blower.Other neighbors will not care until they are suffering from breathing problems, and the noise is driving them mad.If you want to keep your quiet Sierra Madre neighborhood tranquil, then go to the city meetings and bring up the topic. You could also speak up at your local Neighborhood Watch, assuming you have one. You may not get the quick action you want, but if you remain silent, you can be assured that no action will occur.Paradise is within, and it is an internal thing. We make our homes and neighborhoods a living paradise, or an excruciating hell, by all the choices we make. Let's learn to respect each other, and especially the needs of the elderly and infirm who are home all might get lucky."

IF IT WASN'T FOR BAD LUCK

I am not the kind of person looks like a good gamble to me, I run from it as fast as I can. If it looks too good to be true, believe me, it probably is not true.

Luck has never been a friend of mine. The only luck I have ever had in life is when I conned a young lady into saying, "I do." That was 47 years ago and I have never had a luckier moment since.

Each year I appreciate that lucky moment more. Apart from that, I am not on the lucky side of the

It is not that I would not appreciate a lucky moment every now and again. It is just that I am not the lucky kind of a person that gets that kind

My father taught me that life is not built on luck, but rather on hard work. Then he would send me to the backyard to do the mowing. Looking back on that situation, I think he was pretty lucky that I did not know what he was talking about and went and mowed the grass for him.

I tried this on my son once and he came back and said, "Dad, the mower is broken I can't get it started." Lucky for him.

I do not know why people are so interested in luck. Whenever I go to a convenience store, there is a long line behind the lottery ticket counter buying their ticket for the week.

One time I stood back and watched people buy life. their lottery ticket and everyone's impression was they believed it was their lucky day and this was their lucky number.

I stopped one person and asked, "Do you buy lottery tickets often?"

The man looked at me and said very enthusiastically, "Yes, I buy them every week." Then he chuckled as he showed me his recent of my life I am lucky to have her in my life. lottery ticket.

"How often," I queried, "have you won?"

He looked at me and his smile evaporated and he mumbled, "Never."

As I thought about that, I began to realize how lucky the lottery was that there were so many people that did not have any luck whatsoever except bad luck.

I begin to calculate how much it would cost a year to buy lottery tickets every week. It was rather an amazing amount and I began to think how much bad luck really cost people.

It is lucky for me that I do not play the lottery because all I would experience is bad luck.

A young friend of mine was telling me that he had no luck in the dating compartment of his life. "All I have," he complained, "is bad luck when it comes to dating."

Then he explained that he was going to try his that dabbles in luck. [Knock luck at one of those online dating programs. I am on wood.] When something totally unfamiliar with that kind of thing, but he said that it might be his lucky day if he just went in that direction. "Who knows," he smiled, "I just

He just looked at me and said, "So far all I've had is bad luck." I thought about this for a moment. Which is worse bad luck; the lottery or the online dating Although I am not an expert along this line, I think the best bad luck would be in the lottery. As I processed these things, it occurred to me that I have been a rather lucky dude, in my time.

I was thinking of all the money I saved from not playing the lottery. That brought a smile to my face. Not losing money is rather a lucky thing as far as I am concerned. I like to think of myself as rather fugal when it comes to money. Another thing my father said, "A penny saved is a penny earned." I think I know where he got that saying. However, when looking at it, it is very lucky to save a penny. Every time I go past the lottery window at the convenience store, I count my lucky stars that I am not having bad luck today. Then I reminisced about the luckiest day of my

My friend had no luck at the online dating service. I, on the contrary, had all the luck in the world when the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage said to me, "I do." I do not know anybody luckier than me in this regard.

Now, I don't want this to get back to her, I'm hoping you'll keep my little secret, but every day

I must confess that I do not believe she is as lucky as I am. After all, I do have a mirror in the bathroom. But I am lucky that she does not take me to task with that one.

Thinking about this I remembered what David said in one of his Psalms. "For thou hast made him most blessed for ever: thou hast made him exceeding glad with thy countenance" (Psalm

Thinking about this a little more, I do not consider myself lucky. I consider myself to be blessed beyond words.

OHHHH THE TIMES, THEY ARE A-CHANGING...

I sat down with a local restaurant manager, and he asked me "what's happening in the local restaurant scene?" Well, did you know that Pasadena is right behind San Francisco for the number of restaurants per capita? It makes me wonder why anyone would open a new restaurant with all that competition, but I know the answer: everyone thinks they can do it better. My friend, David Yost, owner of some popular eateries in town, is not opening anything new, but he is changing things around a little. David's group of friends (as he calls them) has officially taken over the reigns of the Proper in La Canada and has renamed the Central Park to Central Grille. I once wrote that the Central Park was a true rising star on the Pasadena restaurant scene with their selection of reasonably priced entrees and wine list.

I recently went to Central Grille with friend Sean Lorenzini and his fiancée Gwynn. Sean religiously orders the eggs Benedict. Breakfast is notable here and it makes sense, since the owners also own Canoe House, Shakers, and the Diner on Main St., which are known for a good breakfast. Now,

I wouldn't call Central Grille "upscale", however it would be wrong to translate the visual and flavor experiences of those two restaurants to Central Grille.

Central Grille occupies the one hundred year-old flower warehouse. You might remember it as Soda Jerk's at one point. It still has the same beautifully exposed brick walls, and Central Grille has their own off-street parking, which gives you enough time to really enjoy your meal without worrying if there is enough money in your meter. I place Central Grille in a similar category with Parkway Grill, Houston's and Smitty's, the difference being that Central Grille is a little less expensive than these other three.

ARECIBO OBSERVATORY TO GET $5.8 MILLION UPGRADE TO EXPAND VIEW

The National Science Foundation has awarded a team of scientists $5.8 million to design and mount a supersensitive antenna at the focal point of the Arecibo Observatory's 1,000-foot-diameter dish, which is managed by the University of Central Florida (UCF). The antenna, called a phasedarray feed, will increase the telescope's observation capabilities 500 percent.

The team, led by Brigham Young University engineering professors Brian Jeffs and Karl Warnick, includes collaborators at UCF and Cornell University. UCF and its partners have managed the facility since April when the team won a bid from the NSF to run the site.

'We already have one of the most powerful telescopes on the planet, and with this award we will be able to do even more," said Francisco Cordova, Arecibo site director and an engineer. "We are very excited with the award to fund the new ALPACA (Advanced Cryogenic L-Band Phased Array Camera for Arecibo) receiver at the Arecibo Observatory. This receiver, which is the next generation of our most-used receiver, will be able to increase the survey speed by a factor of five. The receiver will accelerate research in gravitational waves, fast radio bursts, dark matter and pulsar surveys, ensuring that AO continues to be at the forefront of radio astronomy for years to come."

Cordova has been working with BYU for months to prepare the NSF proposal. Jeffs and Warnick are considered the world's foremost experts in phasedarray feeds and are familiar with Arecibo. Nine years ago, they installed a gold-plated array of many small antennas at Arecibo that increased the surveying ability of the telescope from one beam of radio waves to seven beams. The new NSF-sponsored phased-array feed will have 166 antennas and will increase the field of view of the telescope to 40 beams, providing much smoother and continuous coverage of the sky than conventional receivers. The new array is scheduled to be installed by 2022.

"We're taking the most sensitive radio telescope in the world and opening it up so that it can view a larger part of the sky at one time," Warnick said. "There's a lot of things in space you can see with an optical camera, but you can see even more with a dark matter in the universe. radio telescope."

One scientific objective of the new feed will be tracking new pulsars—especially millisecond pulsars that help signal the presence of gravitational waves. Such waves are produced by catastrophic events, such as two colliding black holes, and they cause ripples in the fabric of space-time.

The phased-array feed will also search for extraterrestrial intelligence, detect fast radio bursts making headlines recently for its contributions to major space science news. It helped confirm gravitational waves and FRBs. Scientists from around the world use the facility's powerful instruments to study everything from pulsars and dark matter to solar weather, and NASA uses it to study asteroids.

UCF is leading the consortium that includes and conduct surveys to help unravel the mystery of Universidad Metropolitana in Puerto Rico and MtnViewsNews.com.

Yang Enterprises Inc. based in Oviedo, Florida, in Arecibo, which was built in the 1960s, has been managing the NSF facility. The facility, which was damaged when Hurricane Maria hit Puerto Rico last year, opened quickly after the storm. Emergency repairs that needed immediate attention, such as patching roofs and repairing electrical feeds, have been underway since May after the site received hurricane-relief funding.

THE GOOD LIFE

RETIREMENT PLANNING TIPS FOR SINGLE WOMEN

Dear Savvy Senior,

What retirement planning tips can you recommend to single women? I'm 54 and divorced with a teenage daughter and very little saved for retirement.

Financially Behind

Dear Behind,

It's an unfortunate reality, but most single women whether they're divorced, widowed or never married - face much greater financial challenges in retirement than men. Why?

Because women earn less money – about 80 cents for every dollar that men make, on average, and they have shorter working careers than men due to raising children and/or caring for aging parents. And less money earned usually translates into less money saved and a lower Social Security benefit when you retire.

In addition, women live an average of five years longer than men, which requires their retirement income to stretch farther for living expenses and healthcare costs. And, according to some studies, women tend to be less knowledgeable and more intimidated about financial issues than men, which means they don't always handle their money as well as NFCC.org or call 800-388-2227. they should.

Because of these issues, it's very important that women educate themselves on financial matters and learn how to save more effectively. Listed below are some tips and resources that may help you.

Start Saving

If your employer offers a retirement plan, such as a 401K, you should contribute enough to at least capitalize on a company match, if available. And if you can swing it, contribute even more. By law, you can save as much as $18,500 in a 401(k) in 2018, or $24,500 to those 50 and older, due to the catch-up rule.

If you don't have a workplace plan, consider opening a Traditional or Roth IRA. Both are powerful tax-advantaged retirement savings accounts that let you contribute up to $5,500 annually, or $6,500 when you're over 50. And if you're self-employed, consider a SEP-IRA, SIMPLE-IRA and/or a solo 401(k), all of which can help reduce your taxable income while putting money away for retirement.

Also, if you have a high-deductible health insurance policy, you should consider opening a health savings tool that can be used to sock away funds pre-tax and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

use them before or after retirement to pay for medical

Find Your Number

It's also important to get a handle on how much you need to save for a comfortable retirement. You can do this through a number of free online calculators like ChooseToSave.org or FinancialMentor.com/

Pay Off Debt

If you have debt, you need to get it under control. If you need some help with this, consider a nonprofit credit-counseling agency that provides free or low cost advice and solutions, and can help you set up a debt management plan. To locate an agency, use the National Foundation for Credit Counseling website at

Find Help

To help you educate yourself on financial matters like retirement planning, saving and investing, health care, annuities and more, a top resource is the Women's Institute for a Secure Retirement at WiserWomen.org.

And to help you get up to speed on Social Security, visit SSA.gov/people/women. This web page, dedicated to women, provides helpful publications like "What Every Women Should Know," along with links to benefit calculators and your personal Social Security account to help you figure out your future earnings at different retirement ages.

You should also consider getting a financial assessment with a fee-only financial advisor. Costs for these services will vary from around $150 to $300 per hour, but this can be very beneficial to help you set-up a retirement plan you can follow. See NAPFA.org or GarrettPlanningNetwork.com to locate an advisor in

Jeff's Book Pics By Jeff Brown

Energy: A Human History by Richard Rhodes

Pulitzer Prize- and National Book Award-winning author Richard Rhodes reveals the fascinating history behind energy transitions over time-wood to coal to oil to electricity and beyond. People have lived and died, businesses have prospered and failed, and nations have risen to world power and declined, all over energy challenges. Ultimately, the history of these challenges tells the story of humanity itself. Through an unforgettable cast of characters, Rhodes explains how wood gave way to coal and coal made room for oil, as we now turn to natural gas, nuclear power, and renewable energy. Rhodes looks back on five centuries of progress, through such influential figures as Queen Elizabeth I, King James I, Benjamin Franklin, Herman Melville, John D. Rockefeller, and Henry Ford. In Energy, Rhodes highlights the successes and failures that led to each breakthrough in energy production; from animal and waterpower to the steam engine, from internal-combustion to the electric motor. He addresses how we learned from such challenges, mastered their transitions, and capitalized on their opportunities. Rhodes also looks at the current energy landscape, with a focus on how wind energy is competing for dominance with cast supplies of coal and natural gas. He also addresses the specter of global warming, and a population hurtling towards ten billion by 2100. Human beings have confronted the problem of how to draw life from raw material since the beginning of time. Each invention, each discovery, each adaptation brought further challenges, and through such transformations, we arrived at where we are today. In Rhodes's singular style, Energy details how this knowledge of our history can

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

AVOID THIS MAJOR MISTAKE WHEN ADDING AN IRA TO YOUR ESTATE PLAN

Some people assume that because they've named a specific heir as the beneficiary of their IRA in their will or trust that there's no need to list the same person again as beneficiary in their IRA paperwork. Because of this, they often leave the IRA beneficiary form blank or list "my estate" as the beneficiary.

But this is a major mistake—and one that can lead to serious complications and expense.

IRAs Aren't Like Other Estate Assets

First off, the person you name on your IRA's beneficiary form is the one who will inherit the account's funds, even if a different person is named in your will or in a trust. Your IRA beneficiary designation controls who gets the funds, no matter what you may indicate elsewhere.

Given this, you must ensure your IRA's beneficiary designation form is up to date and lists either the name of the person you want to inherit your IRA, or the name of the trustee, if you want it to go to a revocable living trust or special IRA trust you've prepared. For example, if you listed an ex-spouse as the beneficiary of your IRA and forget to change it to your current spouse, your ex will get the funds when you die, even if your current spouse is listed as the beneficiary in your will.

Probate Problems

Moreover, not naming a beneficiary, or naming your "estate" in the IRA's beneficiary designation form, means your IRA account will be subject to the court process called probate. Probate costs unnecessary time and money and guarantees your family will get stuck in court.

When you name your desired heir on the IRA beneficiary form, those funds will be available almost immediately to the named beneficiary following your death, and the money will be protected from creditors. But if your beneficiary must go through probate to claim the funds, he or she might have to wait months, or even years, for probate to be finalized. Plus, your heir may also be on the hook for attorney and executor fees, as well as potential liabilities from creditor claims, associated with probate, thereby reducing the IRA's total value.

Reduced Growth And Tax Savings

Another big problem caused by naming your estate in the IRA beneficiary designation or forgetting to name anyone at all is that your heir will lose out on an important opportunity for tax savings and growth of the funds. This is because the IRS calculates how the IRA's funds will be dispersed and taxed based on the owner's life expectancy. Since your estate is not a human, it's ineligible for a valuable tax-savings option known as the "stretch provision" that would be available had you named the appropriate beneficiary.

Typically, when an individual is named as the IRA's beneficiary, he or she can choose to take only the required minimum distributions over the course of his or her life expectancy. "Stretching" out the payments in this way allows for much more tax-deferred growth of the IRA's invested funds and minimizes the amount of income tax due when withdrawals are made.

However, if the IRA's beneficiary designation lists "my estate" or is left blank, the option to stretch out payments is no longer available. In such cases, if you die before April 1st of the year you reach 70 ½ years old (the required beginning date for distributions), your estate will have to pay out all of the IRA's funds within five years of your death. If you die after age 70 1/2, the estate will have to make distributions over your remaining life expectancy.

This means the beneficiary who eventually gets your IRA funds from your estate will have to take the funds sooner-and pay the deferred taxes upon distribution. This limits their opportunity for additional tax-deferred growth of the account and requires him or her to pay a potentially hefty income tax bill.

A Simple Fix

Fortunately, preventing these complications is super easy—just be sure to name your chosen heir as beneficiary in your IRA paperwork (along with at least one alternate beneficiary). And remember to update the named beneficiary if your life circumstances change, such as after a death or divorce.

YOGIC WISDOM - On Beauty

UNFOLD THE BEAUTY OF PRACTICE A few friends tried yoga for the first time recently. Both were in wonder and awe over the practice, particularly the physical and mental effect produced by yoga. "Why does it work?" they asked. How does it work so well? My simple answer is energy. Did you know each and every practice has an effect on you? Depending on the kind of practice, the body and mind can end up invigorated or completely calm and relaxed. Yoga Teachers really are artists weaving in techniques and creating practices for a multitude of reasons: balance, calm, energy, focus, creativity, or healing. It's interesting to practice with different teachers and different styles just to find out what the effects are of the practice. As both lab rat and observer, we can learn a lot. Every practice creates an effect or feeling at the end.

As you continue in your yoga practice, more layers of the onion are peeled away and the subtleties of how you're changing can seep into your awareness. You might gravitate toward a specific practice because it makes you more productive during your work day or because it grounds you during times of upheaval. It becomes important to observe this about yourself. Once you know, you have the ability to practice yoga that's right for you and supports you in all areas of your life. And conversely, stay away from practices that aren't ideal for your body, your mental or emotional state, or your spiritual health.

Next time you are practicing or attending class, place your point of view in both the experience of one who is practicing and one who is observing. See what you notice.

SWAMP THING

During the 2016 presidential election, Donald Trump famously proclaimed he would drain the swamp in Washington. But looking at the cast of characters he's surrounded himself with, it seems more like Trump invited all his carnivorous reptilian buddies to come drain their bladders in the swamp, and now it's not only bigger but warmer as well.

Mr. Art of the Deal's career is littered with pyramid schemes, reneging on contracts, unpaid loans, phony foundations, phantom donations, broken promises, deceit, mendacity, moral turpitude and bad hair. He is a parody of avarice spreading a culture of corruption so large it can probably be seen from the Hubble Telescope.

Trump is the King of Corruption. The Maharajah of Malfeasance. Good God of Graft. Captain Crooked. The Pharaoh of Fraud. The Overlord of Venality. The creator and originator of Orange Collar Crime. Wouldn't be surprised if he hadn't trademarked that. His insatiable greed and con-man ways give rich people a bad name. Okay, a badder name. Boss Tweed had nothing on this Boss Tweet.

You almost can't blame his cronies. Once they ooze into the president's orbit and see everyone else making money hand over fist, they figure they'd better get while the getting's good. There's only so much ripe low-hanging fruit. Not to mention Forbes Magazine suggests Commerce Secretary Wilbur Ross might have stolen upwards of $120 million and wrote that he could be "one of the biggest grifters in American history." They also said he was a skinflint who'd pocket packets of Sweet'n Low in restaurants so he didn't have to buy them. The kind of guy you see and discreetly lock up the silverware.

One of his "best people," former EPA Director Scott Pruitt was forced to resign after a series of scandals that pegged him as more crooked than a dumpster full of Like Health & Human Services Secretary Tom Price who also resigned under a cloud, Ryan Zinke, Secretary of Interior, loves to travel first class on the taxpayers' dime and has left a trail of dodgy banking schemes in his wake. These guys are fast turning the swamp into a Jurassic Cesspool.

The first congressman to endorse Trump, Christopher Collins, R-N.Y., was indicted for insider trading. Michael Cohen, the president's fixer, is presently fixing to fix his fixee. Another early supporter, Duncan Hunter, is under FBI criminal investigation for using campaign funds for personal purposes. These guys are seriously threatening Nixon's record for most Cabinet members perp- walked up a courthouse steps with a raincoat draped over their handcuffs. In one- third the

New York's Attorney General is suing Trump and his three kids alleging the president used his foundation to benefit himself financially and politically. They also want him banned from running any charity in the state for 10 years for being reckless, unethical and just plain despicable.

During court testimony, former administration official Rick Gates admitted not only to committing crimes at the behest of Trump's campaign manager, Paul Manafort, but also stealing from him. Manafort allegedly stashed his stolen money in hidden offshore accounts. And both are reported to have stolen from Trump who steals from everyone. This administration is the Russian nesting dolls of crime. And there you go, another connection to Russia. Coincidence? You be the judge.

AMERICANS TOO WORRIED TO VACATION

"Here we are in peak vacation season, but I'm afraid to take my paid vacation time off!"

'Regrettably, you are not alone. According to the U.S. Travel Association, more than half of American workers aren't using all of their vacation time. In its Project: Time Off report, the association found that nearly a quarter of Americans haven't had a vacation in the past year - some 12 percent haven't had a vacation in three years!'

You're not alone there, either. According to CNBC, the association found that 61 percent of employees surveyed said they feared appearing replaceable to their bosses, while 56 percent said they can't take a break because there is too much work on their plate. In the 1980s and 1990s, Americans averaged 20 days of vacation a year, now it's down to 17 days a year."

"As bad as I am about taking vacation, the younger people in my office are even worse. They hardly take time off."

"It's funny you say that, because the association found that older generations are more willing to use their vacation time than younger generations. Baby boomers take almost 20 days off a year, whereas millennials, often maligned as lazy, take fewer than 15 days of vacation each year. According to CNBC, this is partly because millennials have fewer vacation days, but also because they 'are preoccupied by a host of worries, including heavy debt loads and career fulfillment."

"Sometimes I wish I lived in Europe. Those cats know how to enjoy paid time

"That is true. According to CBS News, workers in France are guaranteed at least five weeks of paid vacation, as well as a dozen public holidays and a maximum 35hour work week. Such policies may be why France's economy is barely growing and why unemployment is hovering around 9 percent, but the French surely know how to vacation. Besides, many Americans prefer to work because it makes us happy."

"It does?"

"Sure! According to a report by the Journal of Happiness Studies, Americans believe hard work is associated with success. The harder we work and the more successful we become, the happier we become."

"With all due respect, I'd be happy with more leisure time. When I've taken vacations in the past, it really helped me recharge my batteries."

"You speak the truth. The association found that people who enjoy true breaks are more creative and productive when they return to work."

"Maybe there should be a law forcing us to take time off!"

"An interesting point. According to Forbes, the U.S. is the world's only advanced economy that does not require employers to provide paid time off. Unlike France, I suppose, we prefer that free individuals negotiate their vacation time with their employers."

"Whatever the case, my wife and I are not taking enough time off this year. It's not just that we worry someone else may take our jobs. We also feel oddly guilty whenever we're not working hard - as though we'd be breaking an unwritten law."

'You and the rest of America have to get beyond such silly guilt. Vacation is good for you!"

THE MEDIA'S TRUMP CRISIS OF THE WEEK

What's the mainstream liberal media's most overblown Trump crisis of

First, it was the president's tweet calling former staffer Omarosa Manigault Newman a "dog" for betraying him and his administration with her new book, "Unhinged," and her stash of secret White House recordings.

Then on Wednesday came the president's revocation of the security clearance of John Brennan, Obama's former CIA director and full-time Trump basher.

From the liberal media's reaction, you'd have thought President Trump had sentenced Brennan to death and declared himself dictator for life.

The New York Times called it "a striking act of retaliation against an outspoken critic." Poor hysterical Andrea Mitchell of NBC, who pretended to worry that the president was "denying his own CIA ... access to the wise counsel of Brennan," said the action was "akin to the Trump's action was, as usual, pure Trumpian. Brennan definitely deserved to have his security clearance taken away.

Instead of acting like a respectable ex-government servant and keeping his partisan comments to himself, he's been acting like a political hack or MSNBC talk show host.

After the Trump-Putin press conference in Helsinki, for example, Brennan tweeted that the president's performance "rises to & exceeds the threshold of 'high crimes & misdemeanors.' It was nothing short of treasonous. Not only were Trump's comments imbecilic, he is wholly in the pocket of Putin. Republican Patriots: Where are you???"

Other former Obama/Hillary partisans with security clearances who've been investigating or critiquing Trump and his staff are reportedly being considered for the same treatment including James Clapper, James Comey and FBI super villains Peter Strzok, Lisa Page and Bruce

By the way, the whole security-clearance issue for former intelligence officials has been blown out of proportion by the media.

There's a long history of allowing the clearances for certain officials to continue from one administration to the next. It's practical. It has worked. That's why it was done.

But in the past the officials from the previous administrations were not professional public

Some people apparently think that Brennan and the other ex-Obama people with security clearances are able to just walk into their nearest federal building and start looking at top-secret

No, they can't do that. They have to be invited by the current administration to come and look at material or give them advice based on their experiences or knowledge. Even Mitchell knows there's no way in hell the Trump administration is going to ask any of those Obama/Hillary partisans to come in to help.

As usual, the president messed up. He managed to turn a decision he had every right to make into a vindictive political and personal act. If he's going to pull security clearances on Obama alums, he should have done it on everyone at the same time and done it a long time ago. My problem with revoking the clearances is that once a president goes down this road, it's

We Republicans may all be happy and excited about what Trump did to Brennan, but one day were going to be angry and upset when a Democrat president does it to one of our guys.

We obviously live in a different presidency today than ever before. Things are much different.

Can anyone ever remember a former CIA director pointing a finger and speaking ill of a sitting president? Or a former president speaking ill of a sitting president?

This is the post-Trump world were living in now. We've lost complete respect for everything and everyone in Washington. We're now at a point where no one in D.C. works together. No one looks for common ground. The reality is, while this is going on in D.C., the American economy is growing at 4.1 percent, unemployment is down dramatically and taxes and regulations have been cut.

What gets lost in the big media's over-the-top coverage of petty D.C. beltway crap like the Omarosa tapes and revoked security clearances is that America is doing pretty great - again.
