Aedes mosquitoes, which can transmit Zika, yellow fever and dengue fever, recently infested San Gabriel Valley

San Gabriel Valley, Calif. - Amid year-round mosquito threats and an increase in demand for vector control protection, residents in Baldwin Park, Pasadena and South Pasadena can rest a little easier knowing their cities are protected by vector control. However, vector control officials stress that every resident must still take responsibility of mosquito control in and around their home.

The San Gabriel Valley Mosquito and Vector Control District (SGVMVCD) is providing full service to 26 San Gabriel Valley cities and parts of unincorporated L.A. County. SGVMVCD is one of five vector control districts in L.A. County.

Benefits of an Enhanced Mosquito Control Program

Programs provided throughout SGVMVCD include mosquito and disease surveillance; collection of dead birds for West Nile testing; regular inspections and control of standing water sources; and education and outreach. SGVMVCD does not provide control services for bees and rodents.

For more than 10 years, SGVMVCD staff dedicated efforts to control native Culex mosquitoes, which can spread West Nile virus and bite during dawn and dusk.

The Mosquito Threats Continue to Grow battling infestations of invasive, black-and-white striped Aedes mosquitoes. These aggressive daytime-biting mosquitoes are adapted to city environments. Presence of Aedes mosquitoes increases the outbreak risk of Zika, dengue fever, yellow fever and chikungunya viruses. Currently, there is no confirmation of a local outbreak of these viruses.

"Residents in newly added cities will benefit from a comprehensive mosquito control program," said Levy Sun, public information officer for SGVMVCD. "However, the fight against mosquitoes is in people's backyards and patios places where residents must take responsibility for stagnant water sources."

Let's Work Together

Vector control is calling upon all residents to do their part of this shared responsibility by following these steps:

· Tip stagnant water out and toss all unused containers that may hold water. Eliminate plant saucers and unnecessary containers. Do not keep uncovered buckets of water.

· Do not transport or share plant stems rooted in · Use insect repellent containing CDC-approved active ingredients, such as oil of lemon eucalyptus, DEET, Picaridin or IR3535 to avoid bites.

· If, after dumping stagnant water, residents continue to experience mosquito problems, they can submit a service request to SGVMVCD at sgymosquito.org or call 626-814-9466.

SIERRA MADRE NEWS BRIEFS

FIRST RESPONDERS TO BE HONORED ON 9/11

Residents in Sierra Madre see them almost everyday as they go about their daily lives. The police officers, fire fighters, SM Search and Rescue members, CERT Voluntters that the village knows will always be there in case of disaster, large or small. Sometimes when we see them, they are in their civilian clothes, other times they are in their offiial regalia taking on one dangerous challenge after another. Without question, a great deal of the ambience of Sierra Madre is due to their presence. So the question must be asked 'do we say thank you enough?' Probably not. asked, 'do we say thank you enough?' Probably not.

Often when one thinks of First Responders in a small town, they think of the cat stuck in the tree, or other every day occurrences. However, the truth is SM First Responders have been there through floods, fires, windstorms, lost hikers, and much more.

So, on Tuesday, September 11, 2018, the Sierra Madre Kiwanis Club will honor their efforts at a luncheon.

The Kiwanis Club, celebrating 71 years of existence in Sierra Madre, has a mission that is focused on helping our children, 'one child, one community at a time'. In order to achieve that goal, supporting those who keep our community safe fpr all of us is also a priority.

The event will be held at The Lodge, 33 E. Sierra Madre Blvd., Sierra Madre at noon. The public is invited. Lunch is $10. Make your reservations early as there will be limited seating available. Contact Kiwanis President, Judy Webb-Martin at 626-688-2273.

MANDATORY WATER CONSERVATION IS STILL IN EFFECT!

Efficient water use is a way of life in Sierra Madre, and it is important to remember that permanent water use restrictions remain in effect regardless of the drought status. In addition to efficient water use practices, the City has a number of resources available to help residents and businesses manage water consumption.

Are You Watering On The Right Days?

Wondering which days you can water your lawn or garden? Sierra Madre Municipal Code designates which days residents can water based on their residential address. Please refer to the following when planning your irrigation.

> Even-Numbered Addresses: Mondays and Thursdays Before 10:00 AM and After 4:00 PM

Odd-Numbered Addresses (and those ending in fractions): Tuesdays and Fridays Before 10:00 AM and After 4:00 PM

Need to Report Water Waste?

Do you notice water being wasted, such as irrigation water running down the street, broken or misdirected sprinklers watering pavement or watering in the middle of the day? You can anonymously report waste though the City's website,

SIERRA MADRE POLICE BLOTTER

August 12 to August 19, 2018

During this period, the Sierra Madre Police Department responded to approximately 362 day and night time calls for service.

Wednesday, August 15

Between 1:45PM and 2:15PM in the 600 block of E. Grandview Ave, unknown suspect(s) cut a padlock and stole a hedge trimmer from the victim's secured work truck. The hedge trimmer was valued at about $500.00.

Thursday, August 16

At about 9:04AM, officers responded to a call for service regarding a male sleeping in his car in the 300 block of W. Sierra Madre Bl. Upon further investigation of the male, it was determined that he had an outstanding felony warrant from an outside agency. The subject was arrested and transported to the Pasadena Jail.

This incident illustrates the importance of the Sierra Madre Police Department's campaign ...

IF YOU SEE SOMETHING, SAY SOMETHING!

Friday, August 17

In the 600 block of Edgeview Dr, between 8/16/18 at 3:30PM and 8/17/18 at 7:30AM, a case of vandalism was reported where an unknown suspect(s) in an attempt to get inside the victim's vehicle, damaged the driver's side door keyhole. 11:27PM

Officers responded to 500 block of Manzanita Ave. regarding subjects talking loudly in the backyard of a residence. Upon further investigation, it was determined that several individuals present at the gathering were under age and drinking alcohol. The home owner and parent of the teenager hosting the gathering was made responsible. Case to the Pasadena DA's office for review.

Saturday, August 18

At approximately 2:28AM, officers conducted a traffic stop for a vehicle code violation. Upon further investigation it was revealed that the driver was driving on a suspended license. A search of the vehicle revealed narcotics and drug paraphernalia. A female passenger was cited and released in the field for possession of a glass smoking pipe. The driver was arrested and transported to Pasadena Jail where he was booked, cited and released for possession of a controlled substance.

Of course, Phil's had 80 years to grow into the diversely talented, charismatic individual that he is. However, those two conditions are usually mutually exclusive. You can either be charismatic or 80, but rarely is anyone both at the same time.

One of my favorite Phil stories is his account of the kinkajou. (Bonus points for you if you know what a kinkajou is before reading further!) Phil and his wife lived in South Pasadena for many years. Over that time, they had many neighbors who owned exotic and unusual pets.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE... The Social Side By Deanne Davis

OK, it's hot, you're tired of being hot, nothing tastes good, even chocolate, and you're sick of nothing good to watch on TV. So! How about a rip-roaring true adventure tale. This story was written by my Dad, Kim Weed, pictured here in his Navy uniform about 1943; about his brother Harold, and this really happened, friends and neighbors!

The Rattlesnake Bite

"In 1927, when my dad was just six, a farm laborer clearing brush out there in the wilds of Imperial Valley, was bitten by a diamondback rattlesnake. He was lying near death in the Holtville Hospital as staff members looked on helplessly, except for one doctor who was frantically telephoning every hospital in Imperial Valley, trying to locate some anti-venom, or Toxin-Anti-Toxin, as it was called in those days. There was none. The nearest vial was at the San Diego Zoo, more than a hundred miles

Obtaining a vial of anti-venom would be a piece of cake in this age of freeways, planes and helicopters, but this was 1927. No airplanes were available and the two-lane road from Holtville to San Diego was bad and downright dangerous along the fifty or so miles where it crossed the mountains, with long sections washed out, unimproved, graveled, and cut out of cliffs bottoming into canyons hundreds of feet below; little changed since stagecoaches crossed it two decades or so earlier with teams of eight and sometimes ten horses. This road was never attempted at night!

Harold Weed, my dad's big brother, was sixteen and a junior at Holtville High School. As the laborer grew weaker, it looked like just another day for Harold with late season football practice to look forward to, a string of cows to milk and the rest of his farm chores before he settled down to tackle his homework. But, plans were afoot to put another of Harold's talents to use. He was also a hotshot motorcycle rider and had the fastest, according to him, motorcycle in all of Imperial Valley. He had salvaged a World War I vintage Harley-Davidson from a junk yard, lovingly tinkered and tuned it to near perfection, mechanically, though it was described as something of an eyesore otherwise. But, hey! When your engine purrs, who needs paint!

Late that afternoon, desperate hospital officials went to Holtville High, pulled Harold out of his last class, grabbed this kid by the shoulder and said, "Harold, get on that motorcycle and ride like the wind. You've got to get to San Diego and pick up the serum. A man is dying and his life is in your hands!"

Harold, burning with that thrill of high adventure ahead, and, being a true romantic, took the challenge! He listened to a few directions, after all, he hadn't been to San Diego since he was five, kicked that Harley into life, rocked forward on the clutch and took off, burning rubber out of the high

He stopped at the Weed Ranch for just a few minutes to tell his parents where he was going, topped off his tanks, threw a few tools and a tire pump into one saddle bag and a can of gasoline Kim, "I'll tell ya, Kim, I thought I was gonna freeze took off in a cloud of dust. But in his haste, he left right over a cliff and never get home again!" his leather jacket with gloves in the pocket hanging on the limb of a tree. A significant oversight.

From there, Harold was on his own, full throttle through El Centro, on into the desert, past Coyote Falls, climbing through Devil's Canyon with a redhot exhaust pipe, on through treacherous winding grades high into the mountains, then down the long descent into San Diego where the curator of reptiles for the zoo was anxiously awaiting him, vial all it could take, but more than a little frightened now as it was getting cold and he had to cross those cursed mountains again, this time in the dark as his beloved Harley, alas, had no lights.

Harold slowed down just long enough to secure the vial and started back, giving the smoking engine playwrightdd

It was deep dusk when he descended the treacherous Via Viajos Grade, but didn't become dark until he was on the desert straight-away. There was no moon, but Harold managed to stay on the ribbon of narrow road, trusting to starlight as he pushed along at eighty where the road was paved.

Bad luck struck before he reached El Centro, running over a piece of barbed wire, puncturing his rear tire. From there he had to stop every few minutes to pump up the tire but it soon became hopeless and the last few miles were run on the flat. Finally, he arrived at the hospital where everyone was anxiously awaiting him, having heard the roaring of his burnt-out muffler for miles. The tire was in shreds and Harold, in just shirtsleeves, was nearly frozen, having made the fastest trip ever recorded between the Imperial Valley and San Diego, a little under four hours!

Yes, the man was saved, Harold was the town celebrity for a day, the Holtville Tribune gave him a front page write-up and the hospital staff were most appreciative and thankful. With gratitude in their hearts, they persuaded the high school to give Harold the following day off school as a reward for his heroism, saving a man's life at considerable risk to his own. Harold later confided to his little brother, with a potato plugging the spout into the other, and to death! And if I didn't freeze, I'd sure as hell ride

> It's going to cool off sometime, folks, I'm sure of it! If you want to read more of my Dad's adventures, look on my Amazon.com book page.

Orchard Hardware to Close

In an abrupt move Wednesday, officials Lowe's, the parent company of Orchard Supply Hardware, said they plan to close all Orchard stores, including locations in Pasadena and South Pasadena.

All 99 Orchard Supply Hardware, as well as the distribution facility that services those stores across the country are expected to close within months, "by the end of fiscal 2018," they said.

While it was a necessary business decision to exit Orchard Supply Hardware, decisions that impact our people are never easy," said Marvin R. Ellison, Lowe's president and CEO. "We will be providing outplacement services for impacted associates, and they will be given priority status if they choose to apply for other Lowe's positions, Company officials said it was unclear how many employees will be affected.

Ellison said the decision to exit Orchard Supply Hardware was part of Lowe's Business Outlook. The announcement was made during their "Lowe's Reports Second Quarter Sales and Earnings Results."

As of Friday the Orchard Supply Hardware website was replaced with a single banner saying, "Store Closing Sale. Prices Slashed, 10-30 percent off." Items can no longer be purchased on the website.

The Pasadena Orchard store is located 3425 E. Colorado Blvd and the South Pasadena store is at 452 Fair Oaks Ave.

Pet of the Week

Are you looking for a jogging buddy? Look no further than Felix (A463969), an athletic oneyear-old terrier mix. Felix is all about fun. He loves to play with toys and enjoys a good dog treat. Felix is also a straight A student. He already knows his sit, down, stay and shake commands. If you are looking for an exuberant young dog, ask for Felix.

The adoption fee for dogs is $130. All dogs are spayed or neutered, microchipped, vaccinated before going to their new home.

New adopters will receive a complimentary healthand-wellness exam from VCA Animal Hospitals, as well as a goody bag filled with information about how to care for your pet.

View photos of adoptable pets at pasadenahumane.org. Adoption hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday; and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Pets may not be available for adoption and cannot be held for potential adopters by phone calls or email.

Police DUI Campaign Through Labor Day

The Pasadena Police Department has started participating in a highvisibility national enforcement campaign, "Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over."

Pasadena Police Department will have a special emphasis during this 18-day during mobilization to enforce all traffic violations by deploying DUI Saturation Patrols.

During this extended period, Police and Sheriff's Departments statewide, along with the California Highway Patrol, will increase the number of officers on the road to stop suspected drunk or drug impaired drivers and motorcyclists.

The campaign started last night and runs through the Labor Day holiday weekend, which is one of the deadliest times of year in terms of alcohol-involved traffic deaths. One-third of all traffic deaths involve drunk drivers. Pasadena Police Department will show zero tolerance for impaired driving or riding and joins efforts by the California Office of Traffic Safety (OTS) to educate drivers that "DUI Doesn't Just Mean Booze If you take prescription drugs, particularly those with a driving or operating machinery warning label, you may be impaired enough to get a DÜI. that came from its own glands - is destroyed, they immediately climb back up and begin the project all over again. It's a repeat performance that puts my house-cleaning skills to shame!

At the same time, I also realize that some types of spiders can be dangerous or deadly, so it is important to know the difference between the good guys and the bad guys.

My home was built in the 1950's, and even least when it comes to spiders, we can count on though it is old, to me it is a refuge from the natural markings to know a friendly spider from a rest of the world where change and replacement potentially dangerous one, which is more than can

I was inspired to write about spiders when I saw a fact sheet showing images of the ones likely to be found in the United States. I was reminded of how the property it sits on, and the neighborhood important it is to know which ones are harmful and which ones should actually be protected. And in my opinion, letting the harmless ones live is equally important as avoiding contact with the lethal ones.

There is a wide variety of spiders found in the Pacific Northwest US, but only a couple among them are considered to be potentially dangerous or house or home, the way we wanted it. Thanks to deadly. The Black Widow and the Brown Recluse are dangerous, potentially deadly spiders that should be avoided and if found in your home or yard, destroyed. As much as I hate to kill any living thing, there are times when it is necessary to use common sense to protect oneself from harm, and this would definitely be one of those times.

The Hobo Spider used to be among those considered dangerous, but after more inlist. The Hobo Spider will bite if forced to do so and its bite is painful but its venom is not considered remarkably harmful, definitely not deadly. All three - the Black Widow, the Brown Recluse and the Hobo Spider can be identified by their tubular web construction.

Be aware that any spider would rather run than have to defend itself and for this reason, it is always best to let them go on their way. This is actually true of any wild living thing you may come across in the foothills where we live. Animals just want So now that the cat is out of the bag, it is no secret to be left alone and allowed to survive. Because we humans have infringed on much of the wild open space where lots of animals live, many with their work ethic. They never quit! When the have been forced to learn to survive by adapting practical, yet remarkably artistic web structure to cohabitation with us and it's about time we

Wegman is a beautiful Weimaraner mix about 8-years-old, weighing in at a healthy and hefty 90 pounds. He was found as a stray dog in Rosemead with no identification to trace his owner. Since no one has come to claim him, he is now available for adoption. Wegman is a lovely senior boy with a very affectionate disposition and the energy of a youngster. Wegman loves people and is not shy to show everyone affection. He is a stunning, confident and loving big boy with the most beautiful doggie smile. Wegman loves spending time with his human friends preferably cuddling cheek-to-cheek. He is still quite energetic and needs his daily exercise. He loves walks to the park or some playtime in our dog runs. Wegman is looking for a secure home with an active family who can give him the exercise, training and love he needs to thrive and live his best life. His adoption fee is $145 and includes neuter surgery, vaccinations, microchip and a free wellness exam at a participating veterinarian. Feel free to call us at (626) 286-1159 for more information. LAUGHTER IN ANY OTHER LANGUAGE IS JUST NOT FUNNY

When I was in high school, I played on the I did so and while I was doing it, she got the hot it. I just played anyway.

During the practice, I stepped forward to protect the player on the front line and when he jumped, he came down on my right foot. The consequence was he smashed my big toe.

team for the rest of the season. I had to go to the doctor and have him fix my toe. I had to go several times for him to fix it. Consequently, my toenail on my right foot grew in crooked. It has been a painful thing ever since.

For years, I took care of it, but not too long ago I was doing more damage than help and I did not know what to do about it.

The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage suggested that I go have a pedicure. Looking at her, I said rather sarcastically, "A pedicure is for girls."

"Well," she said rather slowly, "if you go to the doctor it will be about $300. A pedicure is around $25. Now," she continued, "you do the math." I must say it took me a long time to do the math on that one. I knew I had to have some kind of professional help with that toe. I was doing so much damage that it hurt just to walk. And, I'm not old enough to hobble around.

After a long evaluation I thought that I did not have anything to lose except, $275.

It was a very humiliating experience for me. After all, I'm not a "girl."

When I went in, finally, I noticed they were not speaking English. It turned out to be some Vietnamese family running this nail salon. When I walked in nobody was smiling, but as soon as the door shut behind me, everybody looked at me and started smiling. What's that all about?

then everybody looked at me and started to laugh. I too laughed.

I had a moment of hesitation and I was about to turn around and go outside as fast as I could. It must have been the owner or manager of the nail salon who come up to me, greeted me very graciously and took me back to a chair where I was to have my pedicure.

A very nice young lady came and said something to me that I could not understand. Then she pointed to my shoes and said something else I could not understand. I believe she wanted me to take off my shoes and socks.

She said something in English that sounded like, know if my toenails were too long or if I waited too long to come and get a pedicure.

Then she started the process of a pedicure. I started feeling like a "girl."

She was rather gracious, and knew exactly what she was doing and did a wonderful job with the pedicure. She cut my toenails like they have never been cut before. And, there was no blood!

I never had a pedicure before and really was not sure what to expect. Not only did she cut my toenails, but also she massaged my foot and my toes and they never felt better.

Every once in a while, she would say something in Vietnamese and everybody in the salon would look at me and then laugh. At first, I was laughing along with them. I do not know what I was laughing at. I do suspicion that I was laughing at myself.

It began slowly to dawn on me that perhaps she was making fun of my foot. Could it be she's never seen a "non-girl foot?"

I was feeling a little strange and thought to myself that this will be the last time I ever come here. Then Not far from us was some kind of a Nail Salon. I when they were laughing at one point, I thought went to it at least five times before I finally went in. of the money involved. By coming here to this nail salon, I was saving $275. It was then that I began to laugh, and laugh very loud.

When I went to the check out to pay for the pedicure the manager said to me, "Come back soon?" I just nodded my head thinking of the $275 I was saving. Going out the door, I found myself still laughing.

I was reminded of what David said. "Then was Somebody started speaking in Vietnamese and our mouth filled with laughter, and our tongue with singing: then said they among the heathen, The Lord hath done great things for them" (Psalm

No Cheeseburger Cheeseburger But Great Middle Eastern Food

Writing reviews on restaurants is subjective, as is drinking and wine . I love mom-and-pop restaurants that you've probably driven past 100 times. I always go to the restaurant at least three times before ink hits paper in the form of a review (I do take recommendations). I love Parkway Grill, Panda Inn and Houston's, but you know those already!

Sahara Restaurant in central Pasadena is one of my go-to spots for both takeout and sit-down dining. probably eat at Sahara at least three times a month. I was born in Athens, Greece, and though Sahara leans towards Lebanese cuisine, Middle Eastern foods are universal in menu selections. They don't have Lebanese beer (the owner's son said they don't have their home brew because they'd drink it all!), so I have my meals with Heineken. The interior is somewhat plain with pictures of Lebanon, and the tables and chairs could be from any diner in the area. But, the food is the highlight of this show. The kitchen is open so you can watch your food being cooking on mesquite, and it's ably run by two brothers and their sons - it's a family affair.

They offer plenty of standard Middle Eastern dishes like kebabs, shawerma, and falafels. I love the lulu kebabs (ground seasoned lamb and beef ($11.25), and for those of you who can't decide, get the combination ($14.75) which has a little of everything. For you vegetarians the falafel is a crowd pleaser ($8.25). Order a side of babaghanouj (eggplant) ($4.50) - they tell me it's the real deal. My buddy Mike Bingley from the tv show Straight off the Menu swears by the by the chicken kebab. I like it but others seem to be juicer. All dishes come with feta cheese, a remarkable starter of pita bread, cucumber and your choice of lentil or cabbage salad. The cabbage is salad is great, and often I'll put it aside for my next days lunch. Two enthusiastic thumbs up for Sahara! Get here early - it's posted close time 8:30, but many times Sebestain says bro "we were busy we sold out on the food, just like a BBQ joint in Texas?" - when it's gone, it's gone. If you were a fan of Burger Continental 20 years ago, you will love Sahara.

SPOOKY ACTION AT A DISTANCE?

Last year, physicists at MIT, the University of Vienna, and elsewhere provided strong support for quantum entanglement, the seemingly far-out idea that two particles, no matter how distant from each other in space and time, can be inextricably linked, in a way that defies the rules of classical physics.

Take, for instance, two particles sitting on opposite edges of the universe. If they are truly entangled, then according to the theory of quantum mechanics their physical properties should be related in such a way that any measurement made on one particle should instantly convey information about any future measurement outcome of the other particle—correlations that Einstein skeptically saw as "spooky action at a distance."

In the 1960s, the physicist John Bell calculated a theoretical limit beyond which such correlations must have a quantum, rather than a classical, explanation.

But what if such correlations were the result not of quantum entanglement, but of some other hidden, classical explanation? Such "what-ifs" are known to physicists as loopholes to tests of Bell's inequality, the most stubborn of which is the "freedom-ofchoice" loophole: the possibility that some hidden, classical variable may influence the measurement that an experimenter chooses to perform on an entangled particle, making the outcome look quantumly correlated when in fact it isn't.

On Jan. 11, 2018, in a new experiment to test quantum entanglement, MIT's David Kaiser and other team members gathered on a mountaintop in the Canary Islands and began collecting data from two large, 4-meter-wide telescopes: the William Herschel Telescope and the Telescopio Nazionale Galileo, both situated on the same mountain and separated by about a kilometer.

while the other telescope looked at another quasar in a different patch of the night sky. Meanwhile, researchers at a station located between the two and beamed particles from each pair in opposite directions toward each telescope.

photon reached its detector, the instrumentation of quasars. For each run, they measured 17,663 and determined whether a single photon arriving from the quasar was more red or blue, a measurement One telescope focused on a particular quasar, that then automatically adjusted the angle of a polarizer that ultimately received and detected the tell there were strong correlations among the photon incoming entangled photon.

"The timing is very tricky," Kaiser says. telescopes created pairs of entangled photons "Everything has to happen within very tight windows, updating every microsecond or so." The researchers ran their experiment twice, each

In the fraction of a second before each entangled for around 15 minutes and with two different pairs

12,420 pairs of entangled photons, respectively. Within hours of closing the telescope domes and looking through preliminary data, the team could pairs, indicating that the photons were correlated in a quantum-mechanical manner.

The team performed a more detailed analysis to calculate the chance, however slight, that a classical mechanism might have produced the correlations the team observed.

They calculated that, for the best of the two runs, the probability that a mechanism based on classical physics could have achieved the observed correlation was about 10 to the minus 20—that is, about one part in one hundred billion billion outrageously small.

Sorry, Professor Einstein—it looks like "spooky action at a distance" is proving to be a reality.

SCHOLARSHIPS AVAILABLE FOR BEST STUDENT VIDEOS FEATURING SPECIAL DISTRICTS

Sacramento, Calif. - What is a special district? You tell complement of special districts that work together us! Better yet, show us, and perhaps win a scholarship. and provide a network of essential, specialized The Districts Make the Difference 2018 Student Video Contest for high school and college students challenges would-be filmmakers to produce a 60-second video that tells the story of a special district or districts in their community. The goal of each video is to increase public awareness and understanding of California's special districts and the services they provide to residents.

Entries may be submitted between August 27 and September 30. Finalists will be announced November 1, and winners announced in December.

The competition gives entrants an opportunity to practice film-making with the potential to win a $2,000 scholarship while learning about perhaps the most enigmatic arm of local government - often unsung special districts that provide a wide range of specialized, focused services throughout California. Contestants may choose to tell the story of a local sewer and sanitation district, fire or public safety district, water district, or even a cemetery or park district. Contestants may work alone or in a team effort. Some may zoom their cameras in on something as specific as a mosquito abatement, airport, or healthcare districts. Others may choose to explore a districtsmakethedifference.org/video-contest.

The video contest is organized by Districts Make the Difference, the public outreach campaign launched by the California Special Districts Association (CSDA) to highlight the important work of the almost 2,000 special districts in California. "This contest is one of our favorite programs each year," noted Neil McCormick, CEO of CSDA. "It provides students with the opportunity to learn about districts, show off their artistic talents, and express those talents in a way that helps educate the public – and perhaps win a scholarship in the process."

Entries will be judged using four criteria: accuracy and effectiveness, creativity and originality, production quality and entertainment value. Last year, videos were submitted from all over the state. Once submitted, a panel of CSDA officials will select five finalist videos, which will go through a month-long period of public voting to determine the winners. First, second and third-place scholarships will be awarded.

THE GOOD LIFE

HOW OLDER PEOPLE CAN FIND CLINICAL TRIALS

Dear Savvy Senior,

What can you tell me about clinical trials and how to go about finding one?

Old and Ill

Dear Old,

participate in clinical trials in hopes of gaining access to the latest, and possibly greatest, but not yet on the market treatments for all types of illnesses. But, you need to be aware that clinical trials can vary greatly in what they're designed to do, so be careful to choose one that can actually benefits you. Here's what you should know along with some tips for locating one.

Clinical Trials

A clinical trial is the scientific term for a test or research study of a drug, device or medical procedure using people. These trials – sponsored by drug companies, doctors, hospitals and the But, keep in mind that these new treatments are also unproven, so there may be risks too.

Also be aware that all clinical trials have certain eligibility criteria (age, gender, health status, etc.) that you must meet in order to be accepted. And before taking part in a trial, you'll be asked to sign leave a study at any time.

Find a Trial

Every year, there are more than 100,000 clinical trials conducted in the U.S. You can find them by asking your doctor who may be monitoring trials in his or her specialty. Or, you can look for them on your own at ClinicalTrials.gov. This website, sponsored by the National Institutes of Heath, contains a comprehensive database of federally and privately supported clinical studies in the U.S. and abroad on a wide range of diseases and conditions, including information about each trial's purpose, who may participate, locations, and phone numbers for more details.

try ResearchMatch.org, a web-based resource show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

Each year, hundreds of thousands of Americans created by Vanderbilt University that connects willing patients with researchers of clinical trial. Or, use the Center for Information and Study on Clinical Research Participation at CISCRP.org. This is a nonprofit organization that will take your information online or over the phone and do a thorough clinical trials search for you, and mail or email you the results within a week or two. Call 877-633-4376 for assistance.

Those with dementia and their caregivers can also locate clinical trials at the Alzheimer's Association TrialMatch at TrialMatch.alz.org.

Things to Know

Before deciding to participate in a trial, you federal government - are conducted to learn need to first discuss it with your doctor to make whether a new treatment is safe and if it works. sure it is appropriate for you. Then, schedule an appointment with the study's medical team and ask lots of questions, such as:

What's the purpose of the study and can it improve my condition?

What are the risks?

What kinds of tests and treatments does the an informed consent agreement. You can also study involve, and how often and where they are performed?

Is the experimental treatment in the study being compared with a standard treatment or a placebo? Who's paying for the study? Will I have any costs, and if so, will my insurance plan or Medicare cover the rest? What if something goes wrong during or after the trial and I need extra medical care? Who pays? For more information on clinical trials for older adults visit the National Institute on Aging (nia. nih.gov/health/clinical-trials), which has many

FIRST CONTRACT FOR FOOTHILL GOLD LINE LIGHT RAIL EXTENSION IS COMPLETED UNDER BUDGET AND AHEAD OF SCHEDULE AN EARLY SUCCESS FOR MEASURE M AND SB1 FUNDING

(Construction Authority) announced completion of the $2.6 million Utility Relocation designbid-build contract, awarded to W.A. Rasic Construction Company, Inc. (Rasic) in September 2017. Over the last 11 months, Rasic crews successfully relocated and/or protected a dozen strategically-located sewer and water lines that cross the railroad corridor where the Foothill Gold Line is being built. Today's announcement marks the successful completion of the first of three contracts to be awarded over the life of the $1.5 billion, six-station Foothill Gold Line light rail extension from Glendora to Montclair. The project will add new Metro Gold Line stations in the cities of Glendora, San Dimas, La Verne, Pomona, Claremont and Montclair.

"The utility work went very smoothly and was completed two months ahead of schedule," stated Construction Authority CEO, Habib F. Balian. "We were very pleased with Rasic's work, which helps pave the way for the main design-build contractor to begin work as soon as they are Procurement for the Alignment design-build contract began in November 2017 and will include all work on the 12.3-mile light rail extension with the exception of parking. Proposals are due on September 12, and the Construction Authority anticipates awarding the contract later this year. Major construction is expected to begin in early 2020 and consist of two construction phrases. First, the Alignment contractor will rebuild and relocate the freight and Metrolink systems that currently operate in the middle of the rail corridor. Once the relocation is done, crews will build the light rail system. Completion is expected in 2026. "This is an early success for the project and for our to break ground."

Monrovia, CA – Today, the Foothill Gold Line Construction funding partners," added Balian. "Getting this work done ahead of the main design-build team being hired reduces risk for the four shortlisted bidding teams and hopefully reduces their final bid prices and keeps the project within our current estimates."

The Foothill Gold Line light rail project is being funded by local county sales tax measures and the State of California. The portion of the project within Los Angeles County (Glendora to Claremont) is being mostly funded by LA Metro's Measure M, with just under $100 million in Measure R funding designated for the project. The portion from Claremont to Montclair is being funded by San Bernardino County's Measure I. In April 2018, the project received nearly $300 million from the State of California's Transit and Intercity Rail Capital Program, a grant program funded by SB1 and the State's Cap and Trade Auction. State funds will be used to fill the estimated funding gap needed to complete the project in both counties.

About the Foothill Gold Line - The Foothill Gold Line Construction Authority is an independent transportation planning and construction agency created in 1998 by the California State Legislature to plan, design and build the Metro Gold Line light rail system from Union Station to Montclair. The agency completed the first segment from Union Station to Pasadena in 2003 and the Pasadena to Azusa segment in 2015; both on time and under budget. The agency began work on the Foothill Gold Line from Glendora to Montclair in 2003. The Glendora to Montclair project was environmentally cleared under CEQA in March 2013 and completed advanced conceptual engineering in 2016. The project was the first Measure M-funded project

2019 BREEDERS' CUP RETURNS TO SANTA ANITA PARK AND DRAYDEN VAN DYKE SETS RECORD AT DEL MAR

Drayden Van Dyke and Gary Stevens at Clocker's Corner, Santa Anita Park

By Joan Schmidt

WOW! What a week this has been for racing fans! First last Friday, the Media was invited to Santa Anita's Chandelier Room, for a special announcementthe Breeders' Cup is returning to Santa Anita, next year, Nov. 1 and Nov. 2. In 2016, the Breeders' Cup consecutive years. (2012-2014)

It was a pleasure to meet Craig Fravel, Breeders' Cup President and CEO, who said, "We look forward to another outstanding Breeders Cup World Championships at Santa Anita...one of the world's greatest racing venues." Tim Ritvo, CEO, The Stonach Group told us, "We are thrilled to have the Breeders Cup back here at Santa Anita for a record 10th time in 2019."

With the San Gabriel Mountains as a backdrop, Santa Anita has one of the most beautiful racing venues. Previously, over $35 million has been invested towards improved premium seating areas, racing surfaces and enhanced wagering product. Additionally, the Park plans to invest $5 million to add new premium seating, and renovations to the 4th and 5th floor restaurants prior to the Breeders'

Also attending were Mayor Sho Tay, Mayor Pro Tem April Verlato and Council Member Roger Chandler, who has been a racing fan for years, and told us that he was at the 1986 event-first time Breeders' Cup was at Santa Anita!

On Sunday, August 19, the unthinkable happened at Del Mar. Twenty-three year old Drayden Van Dyke won SEVEN of the 10 races on the program. Not the first time a jockey won 7. Drayden tied Victor's record of 7 wins on Sept, 4, 2006!) They included NeighborhoodBully, Quebec, Triple Shot, Tantara, Catapult, Policy, and Ohio. Drayden was in 8 races that day. Besides the seven wins, he came in 2nd in Race 6 on Allaboutaction.

A few years ago, I saw a young seventeen-yearold apprentice at the annual Jockeys VS Holy Angels Benefit game; what an outstanding basketball player he was! One morning at Clockers, I told Drayden I established a two-day attendance record of 118,484 didn't realize he had two great talents-racing horses at Santa Anita, the only track who hosted it, three and playing basketball! Drayden's father had passed away, but he won the Eclipse Apprentice Award and everyone was so happy for him.

> As of August 23, 2018, Drayden leads the Jockeys with 29 wins; Flavien Pratt is close behind with 26, Tyler Baze and Apprentice Heriberto Figueroa are tied with 19 wins and Assael Espinosa has 17.

The Pacific Stakes were BEYOND exciting and Accelerate really showed his great talent. A media email revealed that Accelerate had surpassed Justify in weekly standings. Congrats to Jockey Joel Rosario, John Sadler and all connections. At Santa Anita, racing expert Linda always praised Rosario's abilities.

Victor Espinosa is in Rehab at Scripts in Orange County. On Saturday between races, they televised an interview with Victor. We saw him workout and he explained the accident and how grateful he was to be alive. Victor is truly one of the kindest, most compassionate people I know. When he speaks of young cancer patients, he gets misty-eyed. We wish Victor a complete, speedy recovery.

Important upcoming dates: Del Mar racing ends on Labor Day; Los Alamitos opens on Sept.6. (Racing is Thursdays-Sundays, Closing Day-September 23.)

The GREAT RACE PLACE opens on September 27- November 4. Racing is Thurs.-Sun. except Thurs., Oct. 11. Columbus Day, Oct. 8 will feature racing.

See you at the Races!

The Unfindable Inquiry: One Simple Tool to Overcome Feelings of Unworthiness and Find Inner Peace by Scott

This book presents the Unfindable Inquiry, the central tool of the Living Inquiries approach to nondual self-inquiry—a process author Scott Kiloby developed to help you overcome your false sense of separation and the all-too-common, deep-seated belief that you're not good enough. With this powerful blend of psychology and spirituality, you'll come to understand that the separate, deficient self cannot be found. What you'll find instead is a profound sense of peace. Many of us carry an ingrained belief that we're somehow inadequate and that we're separate and alone, which can lead to a general dissatisfaction with life, conflicts with others, and an estrangement from ourselves that causes us to look outward for what we feel is lacking. When we look outside rather than looking within, it's easy to find ways to confirm our false beliefs about ourselves. With the Living Inquiries, you'll be able to see your mistaken belief in the "core deficient self" and realize the essential oneness that exists in the here and now. Starting with the Boomerang Inquiry and the Panorama Inquiry, two selfinquisitive processes of the Living Inquiries, you'll learn to identify and explore the stories you tell yourself that underlie the challenges and disharmony you experience. Then, once you've cracked the foundation of the false deficient self, you'll use the Unfindable Inquiry and one simple question—Is that you?—to reveal that you are not who or what you've taken yourself to be.No matter what it is you struggle with—anxiety, depression, relationships, trauma, addiction—it's likely that painful self-judgments, and the belief that you're separate from the world around you, are at the root of

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

6 KEY STEPS FOR CONSCIOUS CO-PARENTING—PART ONE

Committing to an amicable divorce means protecting your children from end-ofmarriage related trauma. When the marriage ends in a cooperative manner, divorce can be transformed from a contentious event into one that can inspire growth and healing.

But getting the divorce finalized is only the first step. Where the rubber really meets the road is how you navigate your new relationship as a co-parent. And co-parenting means both parents must put aside any negativity they may have toward one another, so they can place their children's needs first.

While this may sound simple, it can be challenging. To help you get started, I've outlined six steps that are crucial to a collaborative approach to co-parenting.

1. Establish a "professional" relationship with

Your marriage with your ex may done, but your relationship as co-parents will last a lifetime. Think of your new co-parenting relationship as a business partnership, where your business is raising successful, well-adjusted children. This professional approach can not only help you become a more effective parent, but it also helps prevent unnecessary conflict over personal boundaries and past problems.

For example, if you schedule a time to pick up the kids, treat it like an appointment with a colleague; don't blow it off or be late. Be as A local attorney and father, Marc Garlett is on a courteous to your co-parent as you would with mission to help parents protect what they love most. any business colleague.

challenge if poor communication was a primary cause of the divorce. By setting a professional tone, however, you may find communication becomes easier, since it's free from emotional baggage.

When communicating, make your kids and their healthy adjustment the focal point. Tailor everything you say in terms of shared responsibility, using terms like "we" and "us," instead of "you" or "me." Avoid anything judgmental: stick to the facts and how they affect your children's well-being.

Never talk down about your ex in front of the kids, and don't allow your children to be disrespectful toward your co-parent, either. You never want them to feel like they must choose a

Finally, don't use your children as messengers. Speak directly to the co-parent yourself.

3. Create a comprehensive parenting plan

Every successful partnership requires planning, so sit down together and come up with a set of mutually agreed-upon guidelines and routines. This is essential for fostering security and predictability to help the children quickly and comfortably adapt to their new situation.

The more details the plan includes, the better. Try to anticipate potential problems ahead of time. How will holidays, birthdays, and vacations be shared? How will you resolve major disagreements between co-parents? How will new romantic relationships be handled? Be sure to revisit and update the plan regularly as the kids mature.

Developing such a comprehensive plan with an ex is challenging, so it's often helpful to have a third-party present for advice and dispute mediation. As your Personal Family Lawyer, we can bring in trusted colleagues in the community who can help you to develop and maintain conscious co-parenting arrangements while we make sure your estate planning reflects your custody wishes.

Next week, I'll continue with part two in this series, discussing the other 3 key steps to conscious co-parenting.

Dedicated to empowering your family, building your wealth and defining your legacy,

When working properly, respond. the immune system is responsible for keeping healthy and the body from foreign protecting invaders. Having well-functioning strong, immune system is vital to functioning in everyday life. It helps our physical and mental body and shapes our emotional disposition in the world.

Our immune system is comprised of many parts working together -- glands, immune organs, hormones and other biochemicals plus one underlying, more subtle, vital energy reserve called Ojas. Ojas is like the glue that holds everything together and one of the three vital essences -- immunity, vitality, and positive stability. Besides the risk of actual diseases of the immune system, the amount of stress that we are under also greatly affects and depletes this vital energy reserve and the physical body. It leaves us subject to overeating and, without time to unwind or when in worry or fear, it disconnects us spiritually. Physically, the adrenal glands become Keely Totten, E-RYT 500, Yoga & Meditation Teacher, overtaxed by continuous stress, as they overwork to Yoga offers some real help when it comes to boosting the immune system and staying healthy. On a basic note, yogic movement with conscious, intentional breathing reduces stress. In most classes, (not all!) the student gets to have an experience of calm or feeling "ok." The more often we can have this experience of being in a calm and balanced state of mind, the better. It activates the parasympathetic nervous system and helps to combat the stress response state. Yoga practiced in silence and other practices that facilitate withdrawal of the senses (or pratyahara) are essential for building our vital energy reserve. Along with a healthy, easily digestible diet, this has an impact on the immune system as a whole. A strong body and mind mean that we are protected from illness while allowing room for us to weather the ups and downs of life with greater ease.

VISA OVERSTAYS PROBLEMATIC FOR U.S. TECH WORKERS

The Department of Homeland Security's recently released Entry/Exit Overstay Report on visa overstays found that more than 700,000 foreign nationals didn't honor the terms of their temporary authorization to work or visit in the United States. Analyzed in depth, DHS found that among the overstays, India had 21,000, the largest number. Some of the 21,000 eventually returned home, but after their assigned departure date.

In 2017, DHS said 127,435 Indian students and researchers entered the U.S. on F, J and M visas. Of these, 4,400 Indians overstayed. Figures indicated that 1,567 Indians left the U.S. later on, while 2,833 remain in the U.S.

For nonimmigrants who entered on a student or exchange visitor visa, DHS determined that there were 1,662,369 total F, J or M visa holders scheduled to complete their U.S. study programs. However, 4.15 percent stayed beyond the authorized departure date when their program ended. For India, the rate was 3.4 percent, below the national average.

The DHS data raises troubling questions about the number of student visas issued and the disregard some have for adhering to their visas' terms. Visas routinely morph into jobs, specifically in the tech industry, that often displace American workers. Foreign nationals currently enrolled in U.S. higher education institutions with F or M visas total more than 1 million. India ranks second behind China in enrollment from overseas, 211,703 versus 377,070.

Significantly, 48 percent of international students were in science, technology, engineering and math, the STEM fields, and eligible for the Optional Practical Training after their graduation. Now available for STEM graduates for up to 36 months, OPT originally had timeframes of 12, and then 17, months.

Employers use the F-1/OPT program to circumvent the congressionally established 85,000 H-1B visa cap. The Pew Research Center confirms that OPT is an employer bonanza. Between 2008 and 2016, OPT grew 400 percent, and either displaced American workers or forced them to compete for new jobs with overseas workers.

Little wonder that OPT is so popular with overseas students and domestic employers. Students look for an employer willing to offer an OPT job, gain a STEM extension, then an H-1B sponsorship which in turn creates a green card opportunity, and ultimately U.S. citizenship. Citizenship is a long way from the original temporary F visa with the understanding that students will return home upon coursework completion, and apply what was learned in the U.S. to improve their native countries. Employers, for their part, benefit from cheaper labor.

H-1B, M and F visas are harmful to U.S. students, workers and prospective employees. Overseas students compete with Americans for a fixed number of college enrollment slots; the employment-based H-1B visa creates head-to-head job competition of foreign nationals versus Americans, and OPT, never congressionally approved, extends visa holders' work permission stays in the U.S.

Congress should view tech issues through the American workers' eyes. The annual inflow of guest workers is equal to about half of all tech hires each year at a time when U.S. colleges are graduating plenty of STEM workers.

In his congressional testimony, Rutgers University Professor Hal Salzman summed up the reality. Said Salzman: "The U.S. supply of top performing graduates is large and far exceeds the hiring needs of the STEM industries, with only half of new STEM graduates finding jobs in a STEM occupation, and only a third of all STEM graduates in the workforce holding a STEM job.

Congress must protect Americans against job loss and displacement that unnecessary visas and irresponsible immigration programs like OPT create.

WOULD YOU MOVE FOR A BETTER JOB? REALLY?

When I was in school, many of my classmates were probably descended from settlers who built the town's first log courthouse.

Others, however, stood out as the proverbial new kid In

Most likely, these students were surrounded by strangers because of the postwar model of the American dream: dad excels at work and gets offered a juicy promotion if he will simply load up the station wagon and drag his dutiful wife, their two-point-five kids and the family dog halfway across the country so he can work his magic as a plant manager, efficiency expert or chemical engineer.

Let's not dwell on a corporation's arrogance in dispatching an ambitious "yes man" (who can't make his own coffee!) to straighten out the yokels at the company operation in Podunk. ("You still haven't got the coffee quite right, Miss Samuelson. Maybe if you wore pearls while making it, like my wife does. No, no, THAT'S the hand for holding the toilet brush while wearing pearls...")

But I digress. According to the Wall Street Journal, job relocations are becoming an increasingly harder sell for businesses. In the late 80s, one-third of workers moved to seek new opportunities elsewhere; but now the hassle of selling a home (a well as many other factors) causes the once-coveted career advancements to be turned down flat.

Today's workers have more options than the parents of the Baby Boomers did. The miraculous internet makes it easier to track down jobs closer to home, or even WORK from home - assuming you haven't signed over your home to a Nigerian widow.

With the increase of two-income families, it's difficult to get an employee to relocate unless their spouse also has a high-paying new job waiting. ("Benefits? Sure, the Lions Auxiliary will throw you a benefit CARWASH when you see your first paycheck.")

Complex divorces and joint custody make relocations impractical. ("Honest, I thought the drone could get Junior back to Jersey without running afoul of duck hunters.")

Modern parents consider how a move would disrupt the friendships and academic continuity of their children. A far cry from the old days of "Don't worry if the local girls won't invite you to their slumber party, Princess. The products we manufacture will probably make them sterile and unable to host slumber parties when they grow up, anyway. Chuckle" More and more workers are tending to the needs of aging parents and would feel guilty traveling thousands of miles away just for a little more prestige. ("Yes, Mom, I know you fed me with those breasts. But the other retirement home residents don't need VISUAL AIDS when you reminisce about it. And assure Dad I'll get the Forestry Service to trim his toenails again.")

Finally, Americans are no longer as skilled at conning themselves. ("C'mon, this move is a chance to grow and learn new things. And as soon as we get settled, I'm running for the school board and city council and Rotary Club presidency, so we can remake this town JUST LIKE HOME. Bwahahahaha...")

I still live about 15 minutes from the former site of the hospital where I was born. I don't regret not climbing corporate ladders.

Chasing the Almighty Dollar isn't worth hauling two-point-five children across the country. Especially the point-five child. ("Yeah, I've needed 326 bathroom breaks, but I have only point-five of a bladder!")

MAKING SENSE by MICHAEL REAGAN

PURGING THE CHURCH'S PREDATORY PRIESTS

Am I the only Catholic who thinks the church needs to consider getting rid of the old guard – all the way up to the Pope?

That may be the only way to finally purge the predatory priests who have been allowed to exist within the bowels of the Catholic Church for so long. The church has been rocked in recent years by sexual abuse scandals in Ireland, Australia, Chile,

Then two weeks ago we got the shocking results of the country's largest investigation ever into the sex crimes of Catholic priests. A grand jury in Pennsylvania identified more than 300 "predator priests" in six dioceses who over the course of 70 years had molested and raped nearly 1,000 children, mostly boys. The bombshell report named the priests who had been caught abusing kids, and in graphic and sordid detail it described what they did - again and again, even after their superiors learned of their molesting. According to the grand jury report, the priests' serial sexual abuse was only possible because of a church-wide cover up that reached all the way to the Vatican.

The scandal in Pennsylvania is the familiar horror story: The children who were victimized were not believed while the pedophile priests were protected by the church.

The priests were not defrocked, not reported to police and were often moved to other parishes where their history of abuse was kept quiet and they were able to prey on more children.

As usual, the Vatican's PR machine said all the right things.

A spokesman expressed "shame and sorrow" and decried the pattern of abuse and coverup in Pennsylvania as "criminally and morally reprehensible." He said the abuse "robbed survivors of their dignity and their faith.

Earlier this week Pope Francis himself issued a letter in seven languages admitting the church had shamefully failed to protect or care for "the little ones," whose pain "was long ignored, kept quiet or silenced."

No kidding.

The pope also vowed to prevent further cover-ups of what he correctly called "crimes" and promised accountability for the abusers -- and those above them who permitted the abuse to That sounded good, but at least one Cardinal, Sergio Obeso Rivera of Mexico, didn't get the

Obeso Rivera said this week that victims of priestly sexual abuse - i.e., children - should be "ashamed" to accuse "men of the church."

Maybe something the cardinal said was lost in translation, but if Pope Francis is serious about cleaning up the church it has to get rid of men like Obeso Rivera. It's his generation that has been protecting pedophile priests for decades.

It's because of old men like him that the people in the pews don't believe the church is ever going to do what it should to solve its predatory priest problem. It's because of old men like the Mexican cardinal that the church is fighting for a statute of limitations on filing child sexual abuse charges instead of fighting to have no statute of limitations

There's no statute of limitations for murder and there shouldn't be one for child molesting.

The molesting of a child is the murdering of a soul. I know from experience that when a young boy is molested, as I was by a camp counselor in 1953, it is something that affects you for the rest of

Maybe the Catholic Church needs to start with a clean slate.

It does no good for the pope to meet with kids who've been sexually abused and tell them how sorry he is when he has old cardinals in power like Obeso Rivera who believe it's the child's fault. If the pope doesn't have the guts to take away the red cap, the miter, from a Mexican cardinal who makes that kind of idiotic statement, then maybe the pope needs to be replaced also.
