VOLUME 12 NO. 35

BETHANY CHURCH: 100 YEARS & GROWING

100 years ago, a group of 30 people, seeking to follow Christ fully and to honor the Word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ, met for a home Bible study. They first met at the home of H.J. Kirby at 185 W. Sierra Madre Boulevard. This new Bible study group consisted of former members of another church who felt that the gospel of Jesus and the Word of God were becoming compromised. They loved Jesus and yearned for a place where they could connect as followers of Jesus around core Biblical teaching. As they met each week for prayer, the study of God's Word, and fellowship, they realized they needed to start a church, one that would honor Christ and His teaching. Bethany Church of Sierra Madre was born. This same passion still burns today 100 years later. Dr. William Henry Rawlings, no small figure at 250 pounds and 6'6" tall, was the first pastor, fresh out of Biola University, the Bible Institute of Los Angeles. From that point on, the church grew and they decided they needed a permanent building to meet in. A charter member and French stonemason, Louis D. Corneulle built the original domed stone church between 1920-21. Many pastors went on to serve Bethany Church over the course of the next decades. In 1957, the "new" Bethany Church building, which is the same sanctuary that stands today, held its first worship service. After taking down the old dome church, which was a difficult decision, pastor Robert Schaper said, "A church is not the building in which it meets, but the consecrated people who serve God through it. We must keep faith with the present, and we must provide for the future. We have sensed the leadership and presence of God in what we have done thus far, and we shall seek the same for the actions ahead.

It is in that same spirit that the current Bethany Church of Sierra Madre wishes to move. We desire to be a missional group of followers of Jesus who connect with one another, grow together in knowing and obeying Jesus, and serve each other and the world around us, both locally and globally. In our current society, church is a word and a place that often carries a lot of misunderstanding and even hurt for those who do not regularly attend. Bethany desires to connect with those outside the church walls and introduce them to a loving God Who desires a personal relationship with them. We are not interested in being a social club, but rather a group of people who have experienced forgiveness and transformation through Jesus Christ and who desire to share and serve others.

On September 9, 2018, Bethany Church will celebrate its 100thyear of Connecting, Growing, and Serving in the Sierra Madre community and around the world. Currently, we meet every Sunday at 9:30am for a time of worship and learning. The service is followed by a Café time of fellowship and coffee. From 11:00am-12noon, our small groups meet, which are times of deeper sharing and learning. On Wednesday nights from 6:00-8:00pm, we have The Mix, where all ages come together to share dinner, games and small group times of learning and fellowship. Our youth group also meets on Wednesday nights, as well as Sunday mornings from 11am-12noon. Our school, Bethany Christian School is a wonderful place of spiritual nurture and growth and serves students from preschool through thgrade. We continue be involved in local outreach in places such as the Hoving Home in Pasadena, Here to Serve-a ministry to support families going through cancer treatment, and Foothill Unity Center, as well as globally by supporting missionaries who serve in our country and other countries around the

At the 50thanniversary celebration of Bethany Church, these words were written in the program, "Bethany's present task is equally demanding as the one facing its founders in 1918 in that tiny pool hall. It is essentially the task of making the love of Christ so real and so transforming in the lives of its members that they will carry the message of God's love to those around us..." We can say the same today at our 100thyear anniversary. The church not only exists for the growth of its members but for the transforming work of Jesus in the lives of those who have not yet met Him.

As the current pastor of Bethany Church, I welcome you to come check us out. I would love to have you worship with us on a Sunday morning or fellowship with us on a Wednesday evening during The Mix. My passion and the current vision of our church is to develop fully committed followers of Jesus who know and love God and who strive to make Him known. I believe that we are all seeking neaning and a place to belong.

I welcome you to Bethany, and my door is always open. Sincerely, Pastor Brant

SIERRA MADREAN HAS A PLAN

Library Supporter Gary Hood Has A Plan To Save The Library

Greetings Friends & Neighbors

City Hall is in the process of bringing the Sierra Madre Public Library up to code. We should look at this up-date as an opportunity to fix something that is long out of compliance with safety standards. I'm sure we all have heard over the years when our city has asked us to raise the User Utility Tax that the Library is in need of updating to the requirements of The American Disabilities Act and to bring it up to the Californias Seismic Code. Right now sections of the Library are closed off for use because that area is unsafe. The last council meeting I attended, council was talking about a $150 a year parcel tax to build a new 8 to $9,000,000 Library. I would guess that 9 mil is just the starting price, İ might add that the only person who spoke up against that Parcel Tax was councilwoman Arizmendi. Talk was to tear down the old Library and a few trees and build a totally new 2 story structure. To help pay for the new Library it was discussed to sell off the back lot altho many feel selling off city assets is not the right thing to do. A group in town called Preserve Sierra Madre has worked hard to preserving our unique little old town. With that being said a lot of the community likes the 1955 design of the Library and wish to preserve it and the park like grounds around it. Many feel there is no reason to be cutting down some of those beautiful trees for a new 2 story building. A local artist provided the attached picture to show one of many designs that would allow the city to keep the 1955 design while still up dating the Library. A design like this would allow the existing Library, to continue providing services during most of the construction.

The exciting opportunity we have here is that there is an Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture that are looking for projects like ours for their students to work on. What this means is that we as a city can give them a list of our wants to design to and have a competition for a design we can pick from, at little to no cost. You may ask what are is a special community that does work together.

some of the request that we may ask for? First might be a design that fits a grant from the CALIFORNIA DEPARTMENT OF WATER RESOURCES in which they want to see a Recycling or a Desalination or Stormwater or Gray Water design. How about a Germ Free building or a Geothermal Heating and Cooling system design. A solar powered building with a Virtual Reality Room, a Digitizing Room for teaching, preserving and digitizing some of the Cities important old documents or, renting out that room for families to digitize old pictures and documents to be forever preserved. Also, in the digitizing room we could have access to printing out books that would pay the author and the library at the same time, a win for many. The list goes on and none of it is pie in the sky technology, all that has been mentioned is in use

Our fabulous little town is home to friends and neighbors who work at JPL and CAL-TECH, people who can help with this new Library, neighbors who work at local schools and the movie industry that can help make this Library the envy of anyone interested in Library's and without a $150 a year parcel tax.

On February 23rd a 27 page report was given to our City Council showing how a design competition could be had and how costs could be covered. On February 28th hat same report was given to the Library Board with an 8 page cover letter showing how most or all cost could be covered. In that letter there were over 30 sources of funding that could cover costs. This information was also talked about at the Kiwanis Club and The Friends Of The Library.

While many may consider the cost as a problem it may be an opportunity to have the Best Little Library around without having to vote in a $150 a year parcel

Within the next 2 weeks I hope to show the links to many sources that can make our Library a reality and an email address to put us all in touch. Communication is the first link in bringing a community together and we all know Sierra Madre

PROFILES: A Look Behind The Scenes by Rebecca Wright AND THE BAND PLAYS ON AND ON!

Principal Hernandez knows how important music is. As a child, he was involved in a Fine Arts program from Kindergarten through 8th grade. He spent several years as a principal in Houston Texas, first at a middle school and then at an early college high school. Now, having been at Pasadena High School (PHS) for three years, he is excited to see that the music program is growing.

Band is on an upward trajectory. Recently the PHS band has seen a lot of growth and improvement in their halftime shows and has placed in a variety of competitions. It is also an integral part of school spirit at PHS, playing at pep rallies and at games. Mr. Hernandez mentions that there are a larger number of students in band, (continued pg.3)

A CALL TO ARMS (AND HEADS AND LEGS)

First come the crows, then the witches! Sleekly feathered and raucous, a murder of crows is beginning to descend on our foothill village portending the approaching autumn and the countdown to the witching hours of All Hallow's Eve. Is it any coincidence that both of these iconic images are clad in black, can take flight, and herald the season when night begins to overtake the long hours of daylight? We think not!

Residents of Sierra Madre, this is your clarion call to put aside petty interests and trivial pastimes such as work or school and mount a vigorous defense by creating an army of scarecrows. ### KATIE Tse.....This and That BETA: THE EPIC SAGA OF THE DOMESTICATION OF CATS husband last weekend! I'm no movie critic, but I thought it was pretty good. If you haven't seen it, this film is about how man's relationship with dogs began millennia ago, or at least how Hollywood envisions that it might have began. If you plan to see the film and you don't want the ending spoiled, come back to this article after you've seen it, because I'll probably spill some details. Here's a spoiler alert -- the dog doesn't die and it's a happy ending.

The setting is Europe 20,000 years ago. The main character is the young son of a chief who, on his first buffalo hunt with his father and the other tribal warriors, becomes separated from the group and they leave him for dead. What follows is his arduous journey home with the unlikely companionship of an injured wolf who he nurses back

Not only am I not a film critic, but I'm no world history buff either. So, as I was watching this movie I found myself wondering if there were really buffalo, rhinos, hyenas, and large cats roaming Europe 20,000 years ago. I always think of Plains Indians when I think of buffalo, but I guess there are those ancient cave paintings in France depicting them. Intrigued by the question of which animals were in Europe at that time, I started looking

I was reminded of an Art History class I took at PCC as a freshman my first year out of high school 18 years ago. (Oh my gosh I'm so old! I belong in a cave painting

My random internet wanderings led me to an interesting article about how ancient man must have been of cats is that far fetched. Sure, the human cast may dealing with some serious inner demons, based upon cave paintings discovered in Spain. One of the paintings shows a downcast figure with slumped shoulders and another read it here first.

I just watched "Alpha" with my who appears to be beating both the floor and his own head simultaneously. I can relate to that one. He probably had insomnia.

The article went on to describe a sequence of cave paintings depicting a portly prehistoric man gorging himself on bison to the degree that he can no longer fit into his buck skin trousers. At the end of the series he decides to stay in his cave to avoid further humiliation. It was at this point that I suspected the whole article might have been in jest. That, and the fact that this scholarly piece was published on a site called "The Onion." But, what really got me thinking, as I reflected upon "Alpha," was the history of man's relationship with cats. Clearly that is a story worth telling. What would that movie be like? Certainly there could be no epic fight scenes with Fluffy baring her teeth and swatting at a rhino or pack of hyenas that threatened her master. Nor can I envision a cat trekking through the snow for days without food just for the sake of faithfully sticking with her human. On the contrary, most of the cats I know seem like they'd be giving me a rude finger gesture half the time if they had opposable digits.

But this doesn't stop the entertainment industry from trying to come up with rugged, "taming of the cat" tales. I recall an amusing commercial about cat herding. We saw up cave paintings. Some of them are truly beautiful, and it at work during a professional development event. I don't recall what product was being promoted, but I remember the point was that, in education, we often feel like we're tasked with the impossible, like herding wild cats across the open prairie.

So I don't think a film about ancient man's domestication get bloodied by their feline costars as if they become displeased, but it's all for art, right? Just remember, you

music program overall from parents, administration, and the Instrumental Music Club (IMC).

Orchestra Is working hard to grow as well. This year, for the first time, Orchestra is being offered during the school day instead of only being offered as a zero period. Scheduling has been an issue; Mr. Hernandez says, "It's a juggling act with the schedules," but the goal is to make Orchestra more accessible to students.

Offering it during the day so that there are more opportunities for students is one way to do that.

"The High School Program is only as strong as the Middle School programs," and fortunately the middle school programs are strong. The District Fine Arts Coordinator was Jen Olsen, who did a fantastic job, and Karen Anderson has continued to help the arts grow and facilitate communication between middle schools and high schools in the district.

PHS wants to connect with local middle schoolers involved in music to help recruit them in band and encourage them to continue with music. For the past few years, PHS has put on a Middle School Night where students from the local middle schools including Wilson, Eliot, and Sierra Madre Middle School have a chance to play with high schoolers at a home football game. This year, the Middle School Night is September 28th

At around 9:30 p.m., officers responded to a residence in the 400 block of Genoa Street regarding a domestic dispute. An intoxicated husband and his wife were arguing when the husband slapped his wife across her face causing her to fall to the ground. The 60-year-old male from Arcadia was arrested and transported to the Arcadia City Jail for booking.

MONROVIA FIRE DEPARTMENT RETURNS FROM A 19-DAY TRIP FIGHTING THE CARR FIRE!

Last week, on August 16, 2018, Monrovia Fire Engine OES-341 arrived back in town at 1:00 a.m. after a 19-day deployment fighting the Carr Fire. As you may be aware, the Carr Fire (located near Redding) started on July 23, 2018, and has burned 229,651 acres. The conflagration has destroyed 1,079 residences, 22 commercial structures, and 503 outbuildings. Also, of particular note, 3 firefighters died fighting the Carr Fire.

Monrovia sent a crew which had the unique experience of being formed as a Task Force, rather than a Strike Team. A Strike Team consists of a grouping of similar personnel and apparatus, while a Task Force contains a mixture of different personnel and equipment. This unusual grouping was developed given the straining of resources with all of the fires that were burning throughout the State, and it provided our team with a unique experience.

In addition, our team (which was led by Captain Morton) returned safe with no injuries or issues reported. On their way home from the incident, the crew stopped by the State Capitol for a quick visit and picture, which is included for your review below. Many thanks to our personnel – and to all of the firefighters working throughout the State – for their amazing efforts to keep us all safe.

TULA'S TALE

Happy Tails

by Chris Leclerc

Before the mid-1700's, when Russian poachers were on a mission to kill sea otters and sell their pelts at market, countless numbers of the furry floating mammals thrived on the continental shores from Japan to Alaska. Sadly, that greed-driven killing spree left  $\bar{b}ehind\ only\ a$ handful along the northern Pacific coast of California.

In 1911, a school of about 50 sea otters was discovered in the waters of Bixby Creek near Big Sur. It was then that this amazing mammal gained it's recognition and status as an endangered species, and federal funds were made available for qualified projects to assist in encouraging the species to proliferate and re-gain it's position in nature's marine-life food chain.

Thanks to the hard work of dedicated researchers who've participated in the recovery of the sea otter since it's endangered status was granted, there are approximately 106,000 worldwide, with 3,000 living along the central California coast today. Still a sparse number compared to the population before the big kill occurred but definitely encouraging.

One might ask, "How important could the sea otter's role in nature be?" The otter's existence is actually paramount for maintaining a healthy balance for all life forms in the ocean. The story of their role begins with the fact that just about every creature in the sea depends on kelp to survive and the sea urchin, which eats more than it's share of kelp, has grown disproportionately in population without interruption for over two centuries. And so it is that the urchin has become known as the kelp-hog of the sea, leaving very little kelp to sustain the other creatures that depend on it to survive.

Not many ocean-going animals eat urchins, which adds more fuel to the kelp-hog's population explosion. But, guess what? Sea offers love to eat sea urchins, so if there are plenty of otters in the sea, the urchin population will be kept in check. In the absence of the otter, the urchin has thrived uncontrollably, causing the potential demise of numerous other kelp-eating

So now you know why the sea otter is so important in the big scheme of things for oceanic life forms, which is another example of why humans should never take it upon themselves to kill off any given species. The fact is, no amount of money can ever buy back nature's balance and, indeed we will all pay the price for what is taken away, at the end of the day.

share their intellect and understanding about nature to help mitigate the imbalance caused by poaching, the sea otter has been given a second chance. Karl Maher, Coordinator of the Sea Otter Research & Conservation Program at Monterrey Bay Aquarium is one of those people. He and his team of researchers are dedicated to rescuing, rehabilitating and releasing hundreds of otters found orphaned, in distress or injured along California's

During the early days of the otter rehabilitation program, care-takers didn't wear the uniform gear now being used to prevent intensive bonds between themselves and the animals, which inadvertently minimized the pups' chances for survival. Through trial and experience, the researchers now realize that wearing a thick rubber coat and a shielded helmet helps create a barrier for bonding. Now, when a pup is rescued, care-takers are required to don a suit and helmet, giving pups a much better chance to survive upon release.

More important than the use of rubber suits, has been the use of a surrogate mother to teach the otter pups the skills they need to survive in the wild. A baby otter is born with no innate survival skills, so much like a human baby, an otter pup can't do much of anything other than breath or cry. Left to it's own devices the pup will simply float on the surface of the water and clearly, this is no way for a young otter to survive in the sea with countless predators swimming about.

Interestingly enough, however, otters are able to learn remarkable skills that they are not born with. This is where Tula's tale comes in. Tula was rescued with her newborn pup, but her baby did not make it, so the rescue team decided to try matching her up with another pup who needed a mother to teach him the survival skills he would need upon release. Well, I'll tell vou what, Tula took to the task like a trooper! It was as if she was born to be a surrogate mother to the orphaned babes at the aquarium. Not only did she perform her duty as a surrogate herself, but she also taught other otter mothers how to do the job properly.

The idea of using a surrogate otter mom to teach orphaned pups revolutionized the MO of the program. Without Tula and the student moms she taught, the otter rescue and rehabilitation program would likely not have succeeded, and the otter population on California's northern central coast would not have grown to be what it is today.

Tula set a great example for all of us to be willing participants in our own survival. We should all be using our skills to beneift the greater good. I wonder what this world would be like with more Tulas teaching and mentoring those who need assistance in learning the skills of life! Thank you, Tula, for helping re-establish nature's balance in the sea and on dry land, since we all Because there are people who are willing to depend on the ocean to live a healthy life on earth.

his various books, is available at www.SchoolofSelf-Reliance.com. A schedule is available by calling (626) 791-3217]. Once a month on a Thursday evening, you can attend a CERT training meeting in Sierra Madre. All of us become acutely aware that emergencies and disaster can and do happen all the time. (What if last Tuesday's "little quake" had been loved ones in the aftermath of a major earthquake, and buy candles.) or storm, or other calamity.

CERT participants learn the basics of emergency POWER communication, first aid, what tools to always carry, and how to work together to restore a semblance of sanity. You can learn more about Sierra Madre CERT group by checking them out on Facebook, or their web page at www.sierramadreemergency. org. CERT means Civilian Emergency Response Training, so you can learn what to do in emergencies. The training is FEMA-sponsored.

HACKS

shared "hacks" for dealing with emergency situations. "Hacks" means using things creatively to solve a problem, generally not the intended use of the particular product. Here are some of the ideas shared, divided by categories, presented by the CERT Board: Dennis Burton, Taylor Markel, Robert Gjerde, and Daniel Brownell.

FIRST AID

If you can't remove a splinter, put a glass with warm water over the splinter, and, with the use of suction, try to pull it out. Stop minor bleeding with Chapstick.Put toothpaste on burns.Cotton balls filled with liquid soap will cause ticks to come out of your skin. Use SuperGlue to close wounds. Create your own first aid kit with items from the 99 cent OTHER store. Use a balloon to cover a bleeding finger.

You can open a can of food by rubbing it endlessly on cement, and we tried this at the meeting and managed to get a can about half-open. Persistence!

FIX-IT

Use dental floss or a paperclip to repair a broken pair of eyeglasses. A cutting tool can be made from a piece of a can lid, with duct tape wrapped around the section where you will hold it. When the power goes out, gas stations cannot pump gas for you. Have a siphon handy. A simple "jiggle pump" siphon was be certain about availability.

[Nyerges has taught self- shown.FIRECan't start your fire? Use Doritos (or any potato chip or fried product). Use steel wool and classes and field trips since batteries to start a fire. Stretch the steel wool from pole to pole and the steel wool will ignite (Some of you have attended my Fire Workshops, right?)Use a balloon to store matches to keep them dry. Vaseline on cotton balls is a great fire starter.

Letting a personal headlamp shine through an opaque bottle will be a good light source. Try it. Sometimes it works, sometimes not, depending a big one?) The purpose of CERT training is to make on the bottle. Use a crayon as a candle substitute. you better prepared to handle yourself and your (Don't go out and buy crayons, by the way! Go out

You can charge your cell phone with your car charger (when you are away from your car) by pressing the car jack into one prong of a 9 volt battery, while pressing a key into the other terminal of the 9 volt battery while pressing the key onto the metal contact of the car jack's plug. (You really had to see this one- -but it worked!). You need an AA battery but you only have an AAA. You wrap the battery in tin foil to make it thicker, and the tin foil covers the negative terminal. (Yes, try it!) During the August CERT meeting, members Have a little inverter for your car's cigarette lighter so you can still power some small appliances from your car. Most appliances are designed to run on 110V AC, whereas the car generates 12V DC. The invertor changes the 12V DC to 110VAC.

WATER PURIFICATION

A simple seat-of-the-pants water filter is made by filling a container of suspect water and placing it at a higher location than another empty container, set below it. But a length of clean cotton so that it is in the suspect water container, and let it drape into the lower container. Water will wick through the cotton and drip into the lower container, removing sediment.

Many other ideas were shared, such as creating a simple survival kit from items purchased at the 99 cent store. Participants were shown how to create a simple backyard stove (a "rocket" stove) using cinder blocks, and how to make a little solar oven from a cereal box. You can check Youtube for more details on these. It's good to have a few 55 gallon drums on hand for storage, water storage, cooking, planters, and many more uses. Depending on usage, metal or plastic drums are desirable. A local source given was Wards at 273 E. Highland in Sierra Madre, where metal drums are sold for $5 and plastic for $10. HOW TO LIVE WITH A VEGGIE-HOLIC conflicts expose themselves. For the most part, it is a very quiet and serene home occupied by two lovebirds. I am not saying we are perfect. For we are not. The imperfect side of this marvelous relationship is Yours Truly. I was born imperfect and I have honored my birthright ever since. I do not care what some may say about crazy people, I have enjoyed my craziness all my life. When you are perfect, you have to be careful that you do not make any mistake or act crazy.

When, however, you are imperfect and tilt towards the crazy side of life, your life is a joy. If you make a mistake, well, that is part of life. But on the positive side, when you do something right, you become the amazement of people around you.

So, our relationship in the Parsonage has been a very wonderful relationship. At least, from my side of the room. What the other resident says may be quite different. We do make a great team, though. I can break anything and she can fix anything. How much better do you need to be? When İ make a mistake, she can correct me even in front of people. Now that is what I like. I would hate people to think I am stupid, crazy is one thing but stupid is something altogether different. And it is the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage that consistently rescues me from being stupid.

Being a non-perfectionist, I can enjoy every day of my life, no matter what happens or what doesn't happen. I cannot imagine what life is like for that person who is a perfectionist, like my wife. She sees something that needs fixing, and she is busy trying to fix it. to put it in its place. She has put me in my place for

Few things we disagree on but there is one thing on top of that list. They can be boiled down into one word, Vegetables.

My wife loves vegetables almost as much as I love apple fritters. I do not think since the day she was born a day has passed without her consuming some kind of vegetable. She knows vegetables like I know apple fritters. There is not a vegetable known to mankind that she has not consumed.

Even for breakfast, she likes to sneak in some kind of vegetable. With my oatmeal, for example, direction, you must have the same opinion that it is she likes to sneak in a carrot. What in the world do carrots have to do with breakfast?

Her response to this is simply, "Vegetables are good for you and it's good to start the day off with a He lives with the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage, vegetables. Some vegetables, however, I will not put www.whatafellowship.com.

In our house, not many up with, I have made my stand strong through the years and I have not moved. Leading the list would be Broccoli.

Yes, I know all of the benefits of eating broccoli. My wife has told me this over and over throughout the years and I can repeat it verbatim.

My problem is, I do not believe what anybody says about broccoli. First, broccoli looks like a miniature tree that has not grown up yet. Who likes to eat trees?

There is no way to prepare broccoli that my wife does not already know. For years, she tried to entice me and con me into eating broccoli. I will fall for just about anything, except broccoli.

Every once in a while my wife will say, "What would you like for supper tonight?"

I do not pause, but immediately say, "Anything but broccoli."

I have the same apprehension for broccoli as she does for apple fritters. I believe that an Apple fritter is basically "a fruit."

Once when I was trying to explain to her that an Apple fritter was a fruit she replied in disgust, "Anybody that believes that is just fruity." What she does not realize is, I do not mind being fruity. I would rather be fruity than eat any broccoli. The question here is how do you live with someone who is such a veggie-Holic?

There could not be any bigger span of separation than between a veggie-holic and an Apple fritter

Recently we have come to an amicable agreement, which simply is, she does not talk about broccoli and I do not talk about apple fritters. She does not believe what I say about apple fritters anyway. And, I do not believe what she says about broccoli.

So, we have learned to respect each other's If something is out of place, she is the first one differences. That is what makes a relationship good. The only question I have is, and I don't bring it up very often, does an Apple fritter smell as bad as broccoli cooking on the stove? Looking back over our relationship very few things we disagree on and the things we disagree on are not that important that it should affect our relationship. I love what that wise old prophet in the Old Testament said, "Can two walk together, except they be agreed?" (Amos 3:3). It is not what we disagree on; rather, it is what we agree on that is important. If you are going in one the direction you are going.

FOOD & DRINK

TABLE FOR TWO by Peter Dills thechefknows@yahoo.com

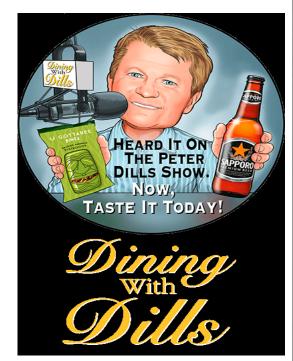

I grew up in a waste not want not house hold, it meant eat what you have and you can always have more. Not a bad deal I'd say. My drink of choice when going out to restaurants is bubbles, champagne or sparkling wine. Remember it can only be called champagne if the grapes were grown in the region of Champagne France. There is wonderful eatery in Pasadena called "Pop", and they specialize in (drum roll) sparkling wines and champagnes. They seem to be doing quite well with "mouse*" crowd, the story here is under different ownership a few years back they were open Wednesday through Sunday, I asked the bartender/sommelier Raphael what they did with the opened bottles of sparkling wine? He said they poured out in the sink; I shook and quivered at such a thought. We made a deal on the spot that I could come in on any Sunday night and for $15 (friends included) drink what otherwise would be thrown away.

Pop has changed hands since this great event but it got me to think about the wine that is sitting in your favorite restaurants refrigerator, how long has it been sitting there? As far as sparkling wines, there should still be a "pop" when your server takes off the "stopper" if you aren't sure simply grab a utensil and see if you can stir up some bubbles.

White wines and red will stay fresh a day or two longer, but here is my tried and true suggestion. And not once have I had a no or a roll of the eyes. Simply ask the server when the bottle was opened and if they aren't sure ask for a fresh bottle. The mark up on wines by the glass is in the restaurants favor, all you are doing is evening the odds.

There are a handful of restaurants that sell splits of sparkling wines, you get about a glass and a half from KRLA AM 870.

DO YOU NEED HELP

a split, though I don't and can't recommend them there are no corks -- they are screw tops. Sparkling wine with a screw top? Dom Perignon would turn over in his grave. Wine by the glass? Check out the Parkway Grill or Flemings in Pasadena, I promise that there will be no eye rolling and they do rotate their wines by the glass program often.

OSIRIS-REX CAPTURES FIRST GLIMPSE OF ASTEROID BENNU

After an almost two-year journey through space, NASA's asteroid sampling spacecraft, OSIRIS-REx, caught its first glimpse of asteroid Bennu last week and began the final approach toward its target. On Aug. 17, the spacecraft's PolyCam camera obtained the image from a distance of 1.4 million miles.

Led by the University of Arizona's Lunar and Planetary Laboratory, OSIRIS-REx is NASA's first mission to visit a near-Earth asteroid, survey the surface, collect a sample and deliver it safely back to Earth. The spacecraft has traveled approximately 1.1 billion miles since its Sept. 8, 2016 launch, and is scheduled to arrive at Bennu on Dec. 3.

"Now that OSIRIS-REx is close enough to observe Bennu, the mission team will spend the next few months learning as much as possible about Bennu's size, shape, surface features and surroundings before the spacecraft arrives at the asteroid," said Dante Lauretta, OSIRIS-REx principal investigator and professor of planetary science at the UA. "After spending so long planning for this moment, I can't wait to see what Bennu reveals to us."

To boost itself onto Bennu's orbital plane, OSIRIS-REx performed a slingshot maneuver, or gravity assist, around Earth 11 months ago. The craft is now zipping along at almost 32,000 mph relative to Earth, while catching up with Bennu at a little over 1,200 mph relative to the asteroid. The image was acquired using PolyCam, one of three cameras, all developed at the UA, that together comprise the OSIRIS-REx Camera Suite, OCAMS

As OSIRIS-REx approaches the asteroid, the study Bennu's light and spectral properties spacecraft will use its science instruments to the spacecraft's science payload includes the OTES thermal spectrometer, the OVIRS visible and infrared spectrometer, the OLA laser altimeter and the REXIS X-ray spectrometer.

THE GOOD LIFE

FINANCIAL AID FOR FAMILY CAREGIVERS

Dear Savvy Senior,

Do you know of any resources that help family caregivers monetarily? I have to miss a lot of work to take care of my elderly mother and it's financially stressing me.

Stretched Thin

Dear Stretched,

Caring for an elder parent can be challenging in many ways, but it can be especially difficult financially if you have to miss work or quit your job to provide care. Fortunately, there are a number of government programs, tax breaks, and other tips that may be able to help you monetarily while you care for your mother. Here are some options to explore.

State assistance: Most states have programs that help low-income seniors pay for in-home care services, including paying family members for care. These programs - which go by various names like "cash and counseling" or "consumer-directed" - vary greatly depending on where you live and, in some states, on whether your mom is on Medicaid. To find out what's available in your state, contact your local Medicaid office.

Veterans benefits: Veterans who need assistance with daily living activities can enroll in the Veteran-Directed Care program. This program, available through VA Medical Centers in 40 states, as well as in Washington, D.C., and Puerto Rico, provides as much as $2,000 a month, which can be used to pay family members for home care. Visit the "Home and Community Based Services" section at VA.gov/ geriatrics for information.

Also available to wartime veterans and their surviving spouses is a benefit called Aid and Attendance, which helps pay for in-home care, as well as assisted living and nursing home care. This benefit can also be used to pay family caregivers. To be eligible your mother must need assistance with daily living activities like bathing, dressing or going to the bathroom. And, her annual income must be under $14,133 as a surviving spouse or $21,962 for a single veteran, after medical expenses. Her assets must also be less than $80,000 excluding her home and car. To learn more, go to Vets.gov/pension.

Tax breaks: If you pay at least half of your mom's show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

yearly expenses, and her gross income is below $4,050 (in 2017) not counting her Social Security or disability, you can claim her as a dependent on your taxes and get a $500 tax credit. For more information, go to IRS.gov/help/ita and click on "Whom May I Claim as a Dependent?"

If you can't claim her as a dependent, you may still be able to get a tax break if you're paying more than half her living expenses including medical and longterm care costs, and they exceed 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income. You can include your own medical expenses in calculating the total. See IRS publication 502, Medical and Dental Expenses (IRS. gov/pub/irs-pdf/p502.pdf) for details.

Long-term care insurance: If your mother has long-term care insurance, check whether it covers inhome care. Some policies permit family members to be paid, although they may exclude people who live in the same household.

Paid caregiver leave: A small but growing number of companies offer paid caregiving leave as a way to recruit and retain their workforce. Additionally, some states provide caregiver benefits or paid leave to take care of ailing family members. Check with your employer to see what, if any, benefits are available to Family funds: If your mother has some savings or other assets, discuss the possibility of her paying you for the care you provide. If she agrees, consult with an elder law attorney about drafting a short-written contract that details the terms of the work and payment arrangements, so everyone involved knows what to expect.

You should also check BenefitsCheckup.org, a free, confidential Web tool that can help you search for financial assistance programs that your mom or you may be eligible for.

THANK YOU AND GOOD-BYE, ADAM KENDALL, PHYSICIAN AND MUSICIAN ON A MISSION

By Joan Schmidt

Last Friday evening, this reporter felt so privileged as Bob and I listened to Dr. Adam Kendall, an outstanding humanitarian, perform one last time.

My saga with Dr. Kendall began in December at Foothill Unity Center's wonderful Salon Concert and Art Show. Prior to the concert there were displays of beautiful paintings, photography, dresses/purses, jewelry and tasty hors oeuvres. The concert began; we were mesmerized by Dr. Kendall's piano performances. After a brief intermission were superb violin performances

When I returned home, I read Dr. Kendall's bio on the Program. I learned Dr. Kendall had a passion for classical music since his violin and piano under Ms. Hiroko Wiancko. In 2011, he began public concerts at train stations and on street corners. He teaches ten students and in lieu of performance fees and lesson fees, he encourages donations to the Foothill Unity Center.

Before I could write about Dr. Kendall and December's Salon Concert & Art Show, I researched on line, learned a lot and did my article. But at Kendall's last concert this past Friday, Jeannette Santana, his partner and patroness, handed me a copy of an outstanding commentary, "Monrovia's Classical Musician on a Mission", by Malak Hubbak. (A "must-read" for all Dr. Kendall's fans.)

I could write volumes about this wonderful man, but have limited space, so I will try my best to relay his received a performer's license and performed on Third Street Promenade in Santa Monica. He came to the San Gabriel Valley and began practicing medicine at HealthCare Partners in Arcadia. Dr. Kendall has been renting an apartment at the Parragon, and since 2013, has been performing at the Monrovia Street Fair. He wears a black tuxedo and plays on his 600 pound 1980's Yamaha U3 piano and his Hopf violin, no matter what the weather is. Every Friday, people of various ages come to listen to his performances. He wanted to bridge the gap between the listener and concert hall which he has successfully accomplished. But his mission is more. He wants people around him find a place of healing and to make the world a better place.

Always on hand for the concerts is Barney, his 13year old rescue Bichon Frise, sitting nearby on a dolly. The children love Barney and are encouraged to pet him. Twelve students have been taking lessons from Kendall at St. Luke's Episcopal Church who lends their facility and instruments. To show what he has done-In 2014, for instance, his performances raised over $25,000 for Foothill Unity Center and Bloom Where Planted, which supports education in Kenya.

Dr. Kendall and Jeannette are relocating to Orange County; there are career advancement opportunities. It was not an easy for Dr. Kendall. Many may not realize he still is paying for medical school. But he promises he will be returning to Monrovia-he has his music lessons for children and a deep commitment to Foothill Unity Center. God bless you, Dr. Kendall; thank you for all

Paper: Paging Through History by Mark Kurlansky

From the New York Times best-selling author of Cod and Salt, a definitive history of paper and the astonishing ways it has shaped today's world.Paper is one of the simplest and most essential pieces of human technology. For the past two millennia, the ability to produce it in ever more efficient ways has supported the proliferation of literacy, media, religion, education, commerce, and art; it has formed the foundation of civilizations, promoting revolutions and restoring stability. By tracing paper's evolution from antiquity to the present, with an emphasis on the contributions made in Asia and the Middle East, Kurlansky challenges common assumptions about technology's influence, affirming that paper is here to stay. Taming the Sun: Innovations to Harness Solar Energy and Power the Planet by Varun Sivaram

How solar could spark a clean-energy transition through transformative innovation-creative financing, revolutionary technologies, and flexible energy systems. Solar energy, once a niche application for a limited market, has become the cheapest and fastest-growing power source on earth. What's more, its potential is nearly limitless-every hour the sun beams down more energy than the world uses in a year. But in Taming the Sun, energy expert Varun Sivaram warns that the world is not yet equipped to harness

Financial innovation is already enticing deep-pocketed investors to fund solar projects around the world, from the sunniest deserts to the poorest villages. Technological innovation could replace today's solar panels with coatings as cheap as paint and employ artificial photosynthesis to store intermittent sunshine as convenient fuels. ### THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

by William Falk, Editor-in-Chief The Week

Decades after I graduated from a Catholic all boys high school in Brooklyn, I received a letter notifying that Brother Kyrin Powers, the principal during my years there, had been accused of molesting students. Online, I found several posts by students expanding on Powers predations. "The things he did to me and to other student were horrendous," one wrote. "I'm sure he is burning in hell." (Powers had escaped earthly justice, in the unlikely event there was to be any, by dying.) During my high school years, I had no inkling of any abuses, but even to my adolescent eye, many of the celibate Xaverian brothers who ran the place seemed vaguely unhappy or openly angry about their constricted lives. A few had obvious drinking problems. Several quit the order. Before class one day, one brother flew into a spittle flecked rage when he saw a group of grinning boys looking out the window at a pretty girl."What are you, animals?" He shouted, and stormed from the room period. As Catholics struggle to save their church from the clergy, the issue of celibacy can no longer be ignored. The celibacy requirement, imposed in 1139 A.D., has drawn men into the priesthood who are seeking to flee their sexual attractions; it twist the normal human need for touch and intimacy into something dark, furtive, and predatory. "When no form of sex is allowed," said Andrew Sullivan this week in NY Mag.com, "All forms of sex can seem immoral." That moral confusion among priests has created tens of thousands of victims around the world, who faith brought them lifelong emotional wounds. Enough, surely, is enough. If the church is to reclaim it's lost moral authority, it will have to tear down it's secretive, all male hierarchy. If the church is to saved, it will let priest marry, and it will welcome women

Whether it's therapy, support groups, trusted confidants, and/or meditative solitude, you should take this opportunity to practice self-care. For better or worse, our personal identities are often largely centered around our marriages, so it's perfectly natural to go through a grieving process when they end. Just don't let the grief become what defines you.

Use conscious co-parenting to achieve personal growth

While it may sound paradoxical, divorce can offer a perfect opportunity for personal growth. The steps discussed here can help you adjust to your new life in divorce's immediate aftermath, but they can also allow you to better express yourself throughout your life overall.

Consciously choosing a cooperative coparenting relationship is just the beginning. You can bring the same mindful focus to every other area of your life. Treating your co-parent in a compassionate, respectful, and patient manner can provide the foundation for how you deal with all of life's relationships and circumstances.

By doing this, you can serve as a role model for your children, demonstrating how they can deal with adversity in their own lives. In fact, conscious co-parenting can provide them with an array of vital skills that will strengthen their ability to endure the trials and tribulations they're likely face in the future.

From custody agreements to alimony payments, there are numerous legal issues that can arise when co-parenting, so be sure you have the legal support you need. The side body, or laterals, are opened and the inner thighs, hamstrings, and muscles of the outer hips get an excellent stretch. Simultaneously, muscles not being lengthened, stay engaged and strong. Other transformative poses are the warrior poses: Warrior I, II, and III. They lengthen the legs, upper body, and the back. All of the them are incredibly empowering as well, hence the name, warrior.

GOOGLE POLITICALLY INCORRECT? SEARCH ME.

The White House has launched a new salvo in its ongoing assault on the media and free speech. Instead of railing against newspapers and cable news channels, Donald J. Trump's ire is now being directed at Google.

Somehow the president's gotten it into his head that the search engine's algorithms are "rigged." He's convinced that whenever anyone inputs "Trump news," only negative stories - the ubiquitous "fake news" stories - about him rise to the top.

It's a little unclear how the president developed this theory, although his favorite "real news" channel, Fox, had reported similar claims early Tuesday morning. If Trump was more adept at using computers, he might realize that sites linked to "real news" organizations tend to take precedence over blogs and conservative opinion sites.

The president's aversion to email and computers is well-known. It appears his only nod to technology manifests itself in his compulsive urge to tweet whatever happens to be on his mind. If he was truly concerned about the negative coverage he invites, he might re-think some of the actions he takes and statements he makes. Major news organizations are focused on fact, not fiction.

Late on Tuesday, the president said, "Google and Twitter and Facebook, they're really treading on very, very troubled territory. And they have to be careful."

That may not sound like a threat, but nothing the administration does should be taken at face value. Trump's ongoing assaults on the media and his obsessive attempts to employ government agencies - including the FCC, the IRS, and the Department of Justice - to bend established norms is on display for all the world to see on an almostdaily basis. Presidential musings are often menacing and meant to intimidate; rarely are

Portions of a pair of Tuesday's Trump Tweets read as follows: "They are controlling what we can and cannot see. This is a very serious situation - will be addressed!" He also queried of algorithm-driven search results: "Illegal?"

Realistically, the only thing the president wants anyone to see is what he wants us to see: good news about Trump, 24/7. Anything else should be outlawed. Earlier in the day, Trump's economic adviser Larry Kudlow stated that the White House is "taking a look" at whether or how Google should be regulated by the government.

Republicans, as a rule, do not believe in government overreach. They find excessive rules and over-regulation abhorrent. So, it should come as no surprise that they and their Democratic nemeses actually agreed in pointing out that government has no place monitoring search results or regulating online content. Nor did advocates of free speech - both conservative and progressive - or the folks in Silicon Valley.

Several weeks back, an internal letter - made available to The New York Times circulated among Google employees that voiced concerns over the company's willingness to adhere to censorship requirements "that raise urgent moral and ethical Google's employees were responding to the company's decision to secretly build a censored version of its search engine for China. Which, if Trump had his way, is exactly what he would have Google do for all of us here at home.

Most Americans don't understand what bots are. We don't quite get trolling. For many, cookies are something that make us gain weight, not annoying tech tidbits whose purpose is to clutter our computer screens with useless junk and unwanted ads. We may not understand how algorithms work or how invasive revolutionary forms of artificial intelligence programs are fast becoming. It sounds a bit ominous. You can almost understand how it makes the president a little crazy.

Enduring nuisances and sensory overload is a necessary evil when consumers opt to use search engines like Google. As bad as it may be, however, it's a lot better than having Big Brother - or Donald J. Trump - dictate what we can and cannot see, hear or think.

DICK POLMAN

DEMOCRATIC DIVERSITY IS MAKING AMERICA GREAT AGAIN

Let's begin with a biographical sketch, a very 21st-century American dream.

When David Hallquist was a child attending Catholic schools in Syracuse, New York, he always felt female. He knew he was "different," but he couldn't find a word for it. He hid his impulses and played men's sports at school. He pursued a career in energy technology, got married, raised a family, and finally, in 2004, he began the long process of coming out. Six years later, he confided his secret side to his family. And in 2015, his son made a movie, entitled "Denial," that publicly tracked his transition to who she is today, Christine Hallquist. Then, at a women's march in Montpelier, Vt. this past January, Hallquist had an epiphany. She later said, "One of the things the Me Too movement has been pushing is that we need to get involved in politics." So she did. She filed as a candidate for governor of Vermont, and in the state's Democratic primary, she became the first transgender woman in America to win a major party nomination.

Christine epitomizes the 2018 Democratic zeitgeist. On the cusp of the autumn general elections, grassroots Democrats have sharpened their message that diversity will make America great again. Despite the Trumpist Republicans' relentless attempts to turn back the clock, the inexorable future awaits confirmation in November.

With virtually all the primaries completed, Democratic voters have made it abundantly clear that they want more women in elective office. At this point, 200 women - 155 of them Democrats – have won their House primaries in 2018. That's a record, trumping all previous records. Viewed from another angle, 41 percent of all Democratic nominees and 48 percent of all non-incumbents - are women. That too is a milestone. (Women are only 13 percent of the GOP's nominees.)

This surge of women candidates, with heavy support from Democratic women voters, may be historic, but it's not a huge surprise – given how fervently most women (with the probable exception of blue-collar white women) have come to detest Trump. If his goal this year was to talk and behave in ways designed to guarantee a female backlash against the party he purports to lead, he can probably chalk that up as one of his few tangible achievements.

Let's scan the updated national map. Connecticut Democrats chose, as one of their House candidates, a black woman - the first to carry the party banner in a Connecticut congressional race. Minnesota Democrats chose, as one of their House candidates, a Somali-American woman - who's likely to join a Muslim woman from Michigan in the next Congress.

In addition, a lesbian recently won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Texas, a bisexual woman - the sitting governor of Oregon - recently won her Democratic primary, and a black woman recently won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Georgia.

Gender news aside, Democratic Party leaders are pinning their hopes on one particular midwestern male. In Speaker Paul Ryan's Wisconsin district, ironworker and union activist Randy "Ironstache" Bryce defeated a female for the right to contest the Ryan-endorsed Republican, businessman Bryan Steil. Bryce has been buoyed by a sizable war chest, an endorsement from Bernie Sanders and a grassroots Democratic hunger to occupy the seat held by one of Trump's most spineless enablers. It's not an impossible quest, considering Barack Obama won the district's presidential balloting by one point in 2008.

If Bryce can pull off a win in November, despite some personal baggage (arrests for driving under the influence, late payments for child support), it would truly signal that a blue wave

And a working-stiff white guy nicknamed "Ironstache," joining the swelling ranks of women, would be another victory for Democratic diversity. Jennifer Rubin, the center-right columnist, took it even further, declaring that a

"demographically diverse repudiation of Trump up and down the ballot will have obvious consequences for the remainder of his term. It may also be the final opportunity for Republicans to get off the sinking ship, push Trump aside and try to regain their sanity." I wince at her confident certitude, but those are indeed the stakes in November.

MAKING SENSE by MICHAEL REAGAN MR. TRUMP'S

Along with his many other daily Tweet targets, President Trump can't stop beating up on Jeff Sessions for being a lousy attorney general. When it comes to Sessions, the president leaves no petty pebble un-thrown. This week, Trump supposedly was heard telling his aides that he didn't like Sessions' Alabama accent or the fact that he didn't go to an Ivy League school like the Trump isn't the only Republican who's unhappy with Sessions, who obviously should have told the president before he was hired that he was planning to recuse himself from the Russian collusion investigation.

Trump supporters and the conservative media have been clamoring for the president to force

Sessions to resign since day one. They want the president to hire a new attorney general who'll rein in special counselor Robert

Mueller or, better yet, they say, fire him. They want someone who'll also name a special counsel to aggressively prosecute Hillary Clinton for destroying her emails, or to fully investigate the political corruption we've learned thrived at the top of the Obama administration's FBI and intelligence agencies.

Any other cabinet member who had been criticized and demeaned so many times in public by his president would have cleared out his desk and left a year ago.

So why hasn't Sessions resigned? I think it's because he is a lot smarter than people - and maybe even the president -- think he

I think he knows that by staying at his attorney general's job, he is actually helping President Trump politically. Sessions, who as a senator was one of Trump's earliest and most vocal supporters, knows that as soon as he's gone his boss will appoint a new attorney general whose litmus test would be to promise to fire Robert Mueller ASAP.

Whether Mueller deserves to be fired is not the issue.

Neither is the fact that President Trump and his campaign did not collude with Russia to steal the 2016 election from Hillary Clinton or hack the Democrat National Committee's computers. But the second Sessions is canned or resigns, the president will be accused of obstructing justice by everyone on the planet except Vladimir Putin.

Democrats, Republicans and the mainstream media will be united against him. It wouldn't matter how innocent President Trump is of colluding. It would look like he was trying to obstruct justice. He'd be severely hurt politically - as would the Republican Party in the midterm elections this

Jeff Sessions has to know all of this. I think he knows that by not resigning until the Mueller investigation is over he's protecting the president from himself and from doing major political harm to the GOP. Despite suffering 18 months of verbal abuse from his tough boss, Sessions just could still be one of President Trump's best friends.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

RE: MICHAEL REAGAN"S EDITORIAL

In response to Michael Regan's Editorial "Purging the Church's Predatory Priests" in the Aug. 25th Mt. Views News, no Michael I assure you that you are not the only Catholic who thinks the church needs to consider getting rid of the old guard - all the way up to the Pope. I have been a practicing Catholic for 63 years (I am a convert) and I feel like the foundation of my spiritual home has crumbled. I am angry, distressed and floundering. We have heard apology after apology. The apologies are now falling on deaf ears. Some corrective actions have been taken, some clergy have been dismissed and some have been charged in the courts. This is well and good, but now we need the rest of the predators and those who covered up the abuse to be dismissed and stripped of their positions in the church. I am writing letters to the hierarchy of the church expressing my anger and advising them of what I expect them to do to save the Catholic church.
