CITY TO CONSIDER PERMANENT WATER CONSERVATION RESTRICTIONS

On Tuesday, September 11, 2018 at the Sierra Madre day to prevent runoff and meet turf weekly watering permanent restrictions on wasteful water practices (including prohibiting watering of turf on medians and watering within 48 hours after precipitation or to cause runoff); expanding the prohibition on the period of time turf or landscaping may be irrigated to the hours of 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. The proposed Ordinance also amends Section 13.24.230 of the Sierra Madre Municipal Code to expand the number of days each week that irrigation is permitted, from two days to three days of irrigation per week as a permanent conservation practice.

According to the staff report prepared for the council, Mandatory Water Conservation Regulations became effective on July 29, 2014 establishing prohibited water uses. On April 7, 2017 Governor Brown declared that the statewide drought emergency had ended (although drought conditions persist in many parts of California) and ordered permanent restrictions on wasteful practices of water usage. The permanent prohibitions on wasteful use of water maintain conservation as a • Using non-recirculated watering a fountain or other

The lifting of the drought emergency allows the City to implement its own water conservation strategy. Over the past 4 years Sierra Madre residents struggled to keep turf areas healthy while they complied with the It is also being proposed that the city expand challenges of two days per week watering. The most prohibited use of irrigation to 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. notable challenge is meeting the weekly watering irrigation systems to cycle irrigation multiple times per aspx?itemId=13953906

City Council meeting, the Proposed Ordinance No. requirement. For irrigation systems with multiple 1403 relating to prohibited water uses, expanding controllers and settings this could be a complicated process. As a result some irrigation systems are applying water with the intent of maintaining landscape with little beneficial use.

> Staff is recommending amending SMMC 13.24.230 making three days a week outdoor watering a permanent conservation practice. By allowing an additional day of watering, residents will be able to more efficiently and effectively apply water to landscape by spreading the weekly requirement over a three day period. This would also permit shorter watering periods (and less run-off potential) for each of the three days.

> In addition, Staff is recommending that the ordinance include all permanent prohibitions on wasteful water use. Permanent restrictions shall prohibit wasteful practices such as:

- Hosing of sidewalks, driveways and other hardscapes;
- Washing automobiles with hoses not equipped with
- decorative water feature;
- Watering lawns in a manner that causes runoff, or within 48 hours after measurable precipitation; and • Irrigating ornamental turf on public streets medians.

requirement without allowing wasteful runoff. In To view the full report, go to: http://www. many cases two days per week watering requires cityofsierramadre.com/common/pages/DisplayFile.

his outstanding performance as a Drug A member of SMPD since 2016, Onderdonk along with SMPD Officer Mark Deem received training in the national Drug Recognition and Classification

Program. Their training is designed for the identification of abusers of prescription drugs, including narcotic analgesics such as those prescribed as anti-depressants and anti-anxiety medications. Operating motor vehicles under the influence of such drugs has increasingly become a problem as citations for Driving Under The Influence (DUI) is more than being impaired by either alcohol and marijuana.

Onderdonk, as an expert, recently conducted training for CalTech's security team for which he was widely praised by the Cal Tech officials.

A married father of two, Onderdonk managed to complete his Drug Evaluation training at the head of his class, No. 1 out of 98 participants. He and Deem are the first two SMPD officers to go through the DRE program courtesy of a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety and was administered by the California Highway Patrol. The program is one of several sponsored nationwide by the International Association of Chiefs of Police. The training includes a 72 hour classroom course and a separate 32 hour field certification course. S. Henderson/MVNews not disappoint, at least in the "stranger than fiction" category.

KATIE Tse.....This and That I LEFT MY HEART IN SAN FRANCISCO... AND MY KID IN KANSAS

During the Great Depression, two Florence's spinster aunts ran a bed and breakfast on some of the family's sprawling property in Kansas. On one occasion, a couple with twelve children stayed for several nights and then skipped out of town without paying their bill. But that's not the only thing they skipped out on --they also left behind one of their children!

"What do you mean they left one of their kids there?" I asked Mom incredulously after she returned from her dinner with Florence. I've heard of people depositing unwanted leave your flesh and blood in the uncertain custody of are already indebted.

Since this all took place during the Depression, I be stranger than fiction!

If you visit my column often you assume that the parents' decision was purely financial. know I've been guilty of recycling However, how did they choose which child they old articles lately. And just when would leave behind? Apparently he or she wasn't the I feared that I'd miss yet another week to submit a oldest or the youngest of the twelve. I can imagine new piece, my Mom's friend, Florence, came to the a line of reasoning that would either say the oldest rescue! Aside from being an all-around lovely person, should go because they are the most independent Florence is an endless source of anecdotes that are or the youngest should be left because they are the either hilarious, stranger than fiction, or, more often, most dependent. But how do you randomly pick one both. Needless to say, I shamelessly pilfer her stories from the middle? Child psychology says that middle whenever I get the chance. And this latest one does children are more well adjusted, so maybe this couple were ahead of their time in that regard. Or maybe they just chose the kid who annoyed them the most. That's what I would've done anyway.

Luckily for the child, Florence's aunts welcomed him or her into the family and possibly even went through the legalities of formal adoption. This brings up all sorts of fascinating hypothetical situations. If this child became the legal heir to Florence's family's estate, did the biological family try to horn in on the inheritance? I can totally imagine a group of greedy relatives pounding on the door for handouts. Wait, I think I did see this story before. Yes, it was "Secondhand Lions" with Robert newborns at fire stations. But how exactly do you Duvall and Michael Caine. However, I'm sure if we really analyzed the story against Florence's account, total strangers. Strangers to whom, I might add, you Florence's version would be even more outrageous. Like I said, with Florence you know the real story will

WALKING SIERRA MADRE... The Social Side By Deanne Davis

Walking Sierra Madre...The Social Side Deanne Davis August 15, 2018 For September 8th edition

"Becoming an Eagle Scout is just about the only thing you can put on your resume at age 50 that you did at age 14 - and it still impresses." Randy

"The unique leadership role in America over the past century of men who earned their Eagle Scout award as boys is unparalleled in business, the professions, politics, the military, and national security...Inspirational!" Secretary of Defense Robert M. Gates

"I have never forgotten my days as an Eagle Scout. I didn't know it at the time, but what really came out of my Scouting was learning how to lead and serve the community. It has come in handy in my career in government." Lloyd Bentsen

It has been my privilege to know two Eagle Scouts, my son-in-law, Dave Simon, and his son, Blake Simon. I was privileged to meet another voung man who is well on his way to earning his Eagle Scout award, fifteen-year old Ian Carson, who is currently involved in his Eagle Project.

one of his favorite subjects is science. He is also a shelter would be located after a major disaster part of the swim and water polo teams there. Ian which we all hope will never happen! started right out in scouting with the Tigers then Cub Scouts and has continued through his school career. He is currently part of Troop 110, which meets at St. Rita's.

Ian's Eagle Project is to build and install an AREDN (Amateur Radio Emergency Data Network) network node which will go on a hillside in Sierra Madre. These nodes are compact, low-power, high frequency radio repeaters. The project process itself isn't that easy. First of all, Ian had to get permission for the project then he entered into the exciting world of fundraising as this project eventually will cost in the neighborhood of $1,500.00. Ian has been contacting Rotary Clubs and the Sierra Madre Rotary Club has donated $500 toward his project. Ian is hoping that organizations in other cities which will benefit from this system will donate playwrightdd the balance of his needed funds. Are you listening out there, friends and neighbors who belong to Rotary? This is a worthwhile project.

Ian will purchase his equipment under the direction of Sierra Madre CERT (Community Emergency Response Team) and his next step is to recruit volunteers to help him. This is where he'll be bringing in younger scouts in his Troop. Finally, he and his team of scouts will install the system somewhere above the tree line, at an elevation of about 1500 ft on one of our hillsides. The antenna location needs to be approved by the Sierra Madre Mountains Conservancy. A proposed site for this project has been selected and a final proposal is being submitted for approval by the city and SMCC. This AREDN system is like a wireless emergency internet which will operate when there is no power and when other forms of communication are not working...major earthquake or other disaster...and will fill a hole from the Mt. Wilson AREDN node where Mt. Harvard and Jones Peak block the signal to all of Sierra Madre, East Pasadena and most of Arcadia and Monrovia.

There will be multiple nodes throughout Sierra Madre, including at the City Hall Emergency Ian is entering his sophomore year at PHS and Operations Center and at Sierra Vista Park, where

> The picture is of Ian and Bob Speers. Bob is one of those splendid people who maintain the trails for both Bailey Canyon and Mt. Wilson. The drone Ian is holding belongs to the Sierra Madre Drone Association and was used to take pictures of potential hillside sites.

> I find myself astonished when I have the opportunity to chat with a young person like Ian, who is filled with purpose. Gives me hope...like sunrises!

INTERESTED IN ROSE PARADE/ROSE BOWL GAME TICKETS?

Each year SMRFA has the opportunity to purchase tickets to the Rose Parade and Rose Bowl game. The SMRFA application for tickets will be due in September. For 2019 they have changed pricing. The new prices for Parade tickets are $100 each and the Game tickets are $245, $215, or $160 depending on the location.

If you are interested in getting tickets to either event, please let me know ASAP so that I can start putting together a list. The list is created in the order requests are received (with possible limits on how many a person can get initially). Let me know which event and how many tickets (and which price game tickets) you are interested in. We can get a limited number of tickets to both events, guaranteed. We can request more, but there is no guarantee we will get them and the tickets may be split up (not seated together).

The due date to Tournament is September 30th, so I need to know by September 20th if you want tickets. We will then let you know if you will be able to get the requested number of tickets.

We will need a check for the tickets (made out to SMRFA) for the total amount prior to September 26th.

Macho (A271176) is an 8-year-old domestic shorthair in need of a loving family. He is a very sweet cat who spends most of his day in his cat tower or snuggled up with his roommates (he currently resides in a staff office). He meows for attention and will curiously come up to meet you. He head bumps you to pet him and purrs and rubs against you. Despite being 20 pounds he still loves to jump onto chairs and work desks to sniff around and find a better napping spot. Come meet Macho today at the Pasadena Humane Society!

The adoption fee for cats is $75. All cats are spayed or neutered, microchipped, and vaccinated before being adopted.

New adopters will receive a complimentary health-andwellness exam from VCA Animal Hospitals, as well as a goody bag filled with information about how to care for your pet.

View photos of adoptable pets at pasadenahumane. org. Adoption hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday; and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Residents Give Input on Next Police Chief

The public got a chance Thursday night to give input into what they think the most important qualities potential candidates for the city's next police chief should have. Many said all candidates should be familiar with Pasadena.

Some of the top priorities the community wanted to see in a chief included, dealing with homelessness, people that might be mentally ill, gang violence, public trust, and knowing the city's history among other things. They also wanted someone with strong leadership and someone visible in the community, "Not afraid to get out and attend local

City Urge Patience in Investigation

South Pasadena city leaders said last last week they welcome the two separate, independent investigations being conducted by the L.A. County Sheriff's Department and District Attorney's office into the officer-involved shooting on August 30, and caution against preliminary judgements about the incident.

"We believe our officers acted appropriately under a tragic set of circumstances," said South Pasadena City Manager Stephanie DeWolfe. "We are asking the public to respect the investigative process and allow the Sheriff's Department and D.A.'s office to gather and release the facts."

The city is working closely and willingly with the investigating DeWolfe said. agencies,

The Sheriff's Department is the lead agency on the case and will be coordinating the release of all public information concerning the August 30 shooting. The public is encouraged to visit the Sheriff's Department web site for an official account of the incident along with ongoing updates at this link.

DeWolfe, on behalf of the South Pasadena City Council, expressed condolences for all those affected by the tragedy. "It is very unfortunate and sad that the August 30 incident involving one of our residents, Vanessa Marquez, ended tragically with the loss of her life. Our thoughts are with her family, friends, colleagues and fans during this difficult time."

GET YOUR KICKS ON ROUTE 66 AND MEETING ARCADIA POLICE BLOTTER OLD FRIENDS AT THE L.A. COUNTY FAIR DAY

Sho and Sherry Tay

By Joan Schmidt

Bob and I, fellow Town Council Members Linda Sells and Terrence Williams got our Kicks on Route 66 at L.A. County Day at the Fair this past Sunday.

After an enjoyable Parade, we attended a special VIP Reception. Our awesome Supervisor Kathryn Barger greeted us. Her staff attendees included Senior Field Deputy Debby Mendelsohn and husband Bill and Assistant Field Deputy Sandy Maravilla and her boyfriend. Representing Arcadia were Mayor Sho and Sherry Tay, and City Manager Gene Glasco, catalyst for the beautiful Viet Nam monument at Arcadia County Park. Also attending were Mayor John and Kristen Fasana. (John was instrumental for the much-needed 210 Freeway sound walls) It was pleasant to chat with Temple City Councilmember, Cynthia Sternquist, accompanied by her husband. (Cynthia is a "doer"- honored recently in a business magazine and in 2015 as one of Representative Judy Chu's, "Women of Distinction". Cynthia's many hats include Temple City Parks and Recreation Commissioner, L.A. County Library Commissioner and Governing Board Member of Foothill Transit. She's also a retired elementary teacher.

Most heartwarming was seeing Covina Mayor Walter Allen III and a guest. Walter looked really happy. I met Walter and his wife Pat long ago when he was a Special Agent for the CA Bureau of Narcotics Enforcement. Tragically in 2006, Walter announced his retirement as the "Top Cop" for the CA Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation; Pat was diagnosed with Stage 4 Cancer. Their 35 year love story was an inspiration to all. The decision to retire and care for Pat was easy for Walter because Pat came first-she had supported his career all those years. In 2009, Pat succumbed to that terrible disease.

Fairplex President and CEO Miguel Santana also spoke. Earlier this year, he had taken the journey from Chicago to Santa Monica to celebrate L.A. County's Fair about the Mother Road. He left on May 30, traveling eight states in six days. He shared wonderful experiences during his journey and famous stops. The Fair has a great attraction-"Get Your Kicks on Route 66-Explore All 8 States", created on Picnic Hill. It features a miniature version of the highways' route and replicas of iconic stops along the way. Miguel felt that "Not everyone gets to take the road trip, so this was our way of saying come enjoy what we've seen."

I love animals. Because 150 goats, kids, sheep and lambs traveled from Cal Poly Pomona, there's a great petting zoo. Love old cars? They have a fleet of phenomenal ones on display. Are you a "foodie"? There are all kinds to try, but most importantly, each food vendor will have one selection available for $6.60.

There are so many interesting demonstrations/ exhibits. Also a few ways to get in for free: Children: 5 and younger-free every day; Seniors: Adults 60 and older, from noon to 3pm, Wednesdays with proper ID; School Supply Wednesdays: Bring in five new packaged school supplies and receive one free admission from noon-5pm, Wednesdays, Suggested items: boxes of crayons, markers or pencils, packages of notebook paper, glue sticks, erasers or highlighters, notebooks and pencil cases; Food Drive Thursdays: Bring five canned goods for donation to the LA Regional Food Bank and local charities and receive one admission from noon to 5pm, Thursdays. Please visit lacountyfair.com

MOLLY'S MIRACLE

Happy Tails

by Chris Leclerc

This week's Happy Tail - originally printed January, 2011 - is dedicated to my dear, late friend, Frederick Alfaro who exemplified what unconditional love looks like as manifested in his own life. Rest in Peace, Fred and thank you for being a person who really did love and

I will never forget the day I first met Molly. She had just been adopted by my neighbor, who fell in love with her the very moment he saw her. Fred called me when she arrived home, so I could be the first to welcome her to the neighborhood. Somehow I knew Molly would play a very important part in Frederick's life, but I had no idea of what special part she would play in mine as Frederick's visit to the San Gabriel Valley Humane Society that day proved to be a life-changing experience. It had been a few months since he'd said goodbye to his precious pup, "Chelsea" who died of bone cancer, and Fred finally felt ready to adopt a new companion. After a walk down the isles between the fenced kennels, he asked if there were any puppies available for adoption. He was lead to another area where he stepped through the doorway and immediately locked eyes with a browneyed babe who looked up at him with what could only be described as total desperation.

Frederick didn't even bother to take a closer look before he told the lady, "I want that one". He later confided in me that he felt as though Chelsea was there, telling him to take that little girl home; "She is the one for you". Chelsea had been the center of Frederick's life for the past several years, and that would be a tough act to follow for sure, but his inner instincts told him hed made the right choice.

My first impression of Molly was that she had the most darling, honest face and an amazing ability to show her appreciation for having been invited to live in such a cozy home with a big yard where she could romp and play freely. I remember thinking that somehow that little dog was fully aware that she would be loved unconditionally for the rest of her life!

Within a couple of days after her arrival home, Molly became very ill. The veterinarian diagnosed her with kennel cough and treated her accordingly. This was not great news, but with the proper treatment, there was high hope that Molly would recover and grow strong and healthy. Unfortunately, Molly did not respond to treatment as expected, and soon it became clear that there was something radically wrong with her. She was re-evaluated and rediagnosed with a much more serious disease... Molly had distemper.

Canine distemper is a contagious, very serious viral disease with 'technically' no known cure. The disease affects dogs and certain species of wildlife such as raccoons, wolves, foxes, skunks and ferrets. Young, unvaccinated puppies and non-immunized older dogs tend to be more susceptible to the disease. Molly had been vaccinated by the SPCA upon intake at the facility, but unfortunately it was too late. She had already been infected with the disease prior to being vaccinated.

This news broke Fred's heart. After the trauma of loosing Chelsea earlier that year, he was not ready to let go of his new-found friend. When I got the news about Molly's true diagnosis, it was all I could do to hold back the tears. I have always been a praying person, believing that God listens and answers our prayers, but it had been quite some time since I had prayed. I was way over-due for a talk with my Creator. I guess sometimes it takes a traumatic experience to drive us to our knees. I did get on my knees that day and I prayed that God would grant a miracle for Molly. I thanked Him for people like Fred who are willing to care for the animals that others could so old-heartedly discard. I asked God to let Molly live, for Fred's sake, because he needed her.

Things got worse before they got better. There were moments when it seemed Molly wouldn't make it, then she would get stronger and show signs of recovery. This went on for several weeks, but with continued medical attention and consistent tender loving care, Molly did indeed recover and she grew strong and healthy just as

A couple of years after Molly's miraculous recovery, Fred became extremely ill himself and sadly, he passed away after spending 5 weeks in a coma. During that 5 weeks I spent a lot more time on my knees praying for yet another Miracle for Molly...of course the miracle was actually for Fred, but for Molly as well, because now she was the one who needed him. As it turned out, God had other plans for Fred's soul, as well as for Molly's life. Rick and I took her into our home where she became Molly now lives a full, very happy & healthy life. She loves her house and yard, and she loves her humans. She brings smiles to the faces of all the neighbors who greet her during her walks. I don't know what I would do without seeing that open, honest little face with those perky ears peering up at me each morning. I believe God did grant Molly another miracle. Perhaps not the one I had in mind, but God always knows what is best for his children, and I feel sure she is just where she is supposed to be, as is my dear friend, Fred. Sometimes when I look into Molly's eyes I think I see Fred there, nudging my heart, letting me know that he's doing just fine. Thank God for "small" miracles!

Amos and Zeppo are a joyful bonded pair who are looking for a family who is able to give them a home together. They are perfectly matched in size, energy, and playfulness, and they both have the same wiry coat - the only difference is that Amos is white and Zeppo is black. Amos is 3-yearsold and Zeppo is 4-years-old. They both love human companionship and enjoy playing with other dogs. If you see them in action, you will see how great they are with each other, happily going on a walk to the park, playing with toys, getting affection from people and just enjoying being together. Last month's "little" earthquake (August 28) should serve as a constant reminder that we live in "Earthquake country," and that larger quakes could occur at any time. A thousand years ago, even a major quake would not have been as devastating as one today, because back then there was none of different today. A big quake today damages a lot of the things that we take for granted: electricity goes out, pipes break, cracks appear in roads, buildings debris that falls on them.

It behooves every one of us to understand how rapidly things could change, and to find ways to be more prepared should a big one hit.

SIERRA MADRE CERT

Sierra Madre residents are lucky that there is a very active CERT group which meets at least once a month in the Hart Building in Memorial park. The purpose of CERT is to train individuals in the to work together in the aftermath of any major

You can learn more about Sierra Madre CERT group by checking them out on Facebook, or their web page at www.sierramadreemergency. org. CERT means Civilian Emergency Response Training, so you can learn what to do in emergencies. The training is FEMA-sponsored.

MENTAL PREPAREDNESS IS IMPORTANT TOO

A major disaster is so disruptive that up to 15% of the people affected "go crazy" because their entire psychological point-of-reference has been quickly taken away, and now they have to re-think everything. Studies have also shown that up to a full 70% of people affected by a major disaster become "zombie-like" and while they do not cause harm, they wander about in a stupor makes quick, efficient, and appropriate decisions always a good thing.

People who often do well in emergencies are military personnel and police and other law enforcement officers, since they are somewhat used to operating in chaotic situations. Homeless people - especially those who have been homeless for an extended period – might also fare better than the average citizen because they're already living in a very temporary, semi-chaotic, peripatetic existence. Not all homeless people are taking drugs or drinking by the way, but those who do are their own worst enemies. A homeless person has somewhat, more-or-less, figured out how to sleep in a safe spot, how to find water and the infrastructure of modern life. But things are food, sometimes how to cook on the fringe, how to move about with little detection, how to find and use a toilet, how to get by on very little and nearly no electricity, and how to use trash and shake and fall, and people get hurt or die from recyclables to meet most needs. I'm not extolling homelessness, per se, because it is not a viable way to live in this society. However, there are many lessons that could be learned from some of the more canny homeless people.

Most people do not take the time to develop post-disaster skills because we all have busy lives with school, and family, and work, and all the pursuits that keep us so busy from dawn to dusk. Yet, there are plenty of ways to develop these skills without taking major chunks of time.

Family camping trips are a great way to details of being prepared individually, and how learn how to get by without all the modern conveniences. Another practice I've seen is creating an "earthquake camp" in your own back yard, where you cook on a stove with a fire, using plants from your garden for food, or stored food, and using water you've store. An earthquake camp should also have some sort of simple toilet (probably based on a five-gallon bucket) since drain pipes could break in a major earthquake. A little first aid station should be a part of your earthquake camp, and some sort of simple shelter, whether a tent or tarps.

> And if you live in Sierra Madre, you really have no excuse to not come to some of the CERT meetings, so convenient at Memorial Park, on the third Thursday of every month. You'll meet some great people, and you'll have a good time learning these essential skills.

When you actually put some of these skills into practice, you learn what deficiencies you might have in your planning and in your gear. Plus, you and don't know what to do. The purpose of any might actually discover that it's a source of joy survival training is to practice survival scenarios to try these skills with your friends and family. so you become a part of that 15% who usually Expanding beyond our comfortable limits is

I take my time, relax whenever possible and just do not get excited about anything. I have found out that when I get excited about something and want to go fast forward, I always get into trouble. Trouble has become my middle name in this regard.

As a child, my parents wanted me to speed up and get things done quickly. I never could figure out why. Very few things need to be done in a speedy order. I just do not have the energy, these days, to hurry up and get something done.

Last year, for example, the doctor gave me a little package to take home that I was supposed to put in a personal "sample" and send to the company. Certainly, I meant to do it as soon as I got home. But I took the slow way home, stopped and got a delicious banana split. I can only get these banana splits when I am driving by myself, for the other companion in our home has strict laws about such "nonsense," as she calls it.

I actually enjoyed my "nonsense" very much. When I got home, however, I had forgotten about the box in which I was supposed to put in know." my "sample" and send to the company. I put it somewhere and I just forgot about it. "When," my wife said, "are you going to take

"You know," argued my wife, "you're not doing yourself any favors by putting this off. Why don't you do it today?"

Finally, and I am not sure what motivated me to do it, but I did do the process and got my "sample" and mailed it to the company.

My wife was happy when she heard that I did it and said, "Now, don't you feel good?"

I had to smile at her, but I really did not feel good. I really did not feel anything.

Several weeks later, I got a letter in the mail from the company where I sent my "sample." I was not sure what they were writing to me about. At first, I thought maybe something went wrong and I was in a lot of trouble.

Slowly, I opened the envelope and found inside a letter thanking me and it included a $50 gift card. I could not believe what I just saw.

I could not wait for my wife to get home so I could share with her my good news.

I gave her the letter with the gift card and said,

"I guess it really does pay to procrastinate."

She looked at the gift card and then looked up at me and said, "I did not know your 'sample' was worth that much money."

"Well," I said rather sarcastically, "now you

It only proved to me that sometimes procrastination does pay off. Sometimes when you jump into a problem or circumstance, you pay dearly for it. And sometimes, like my "sample" when you procrastinate you get paid.

I then reminded my wife of what King David said. "Wait on the Lord: be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart: wait, I say, on the Sometimes being slow has its rewards. Some Lord" (Psalm 27:14).

Of course, the key here is not waiting, but who you are waiting on. I like to procrastinate until I really know what God wants me to do. Sometimes it takes longer than I figured, but when I wait, I am never disappointed.

Cabernet Sauvignon is one of the world's most widely recognized red wine grape varieties. It is often called the "King of the California Grape". If you have followed me for the past five years, it isn't news to you that Santa Barbara County has its share of quality

This week I introduce you to a new wine, but not a new winemaker. Doug Margerum has been in the winemaking business for decades harvesting grapes since as far back as I can remember. I have to admit, on this particular review, my friend Jake Chueng from Gelson's gave me the heads up. It's not that this label is any more special then the hundred other cabernets that line my local Gelson's wine section, but this Cabernet is a stand out!

First, I will say this is one of the best $20 cabernets that I have had in recent memory - is this an introductory price? If so, get to your Gelson's and stock up. I interview chefs every week on my two radio shows, and the term "farm to table" has been used more then a dozen times. Doug Margerum uses that phrase with a bit of a twist, "farm to glass".

This 2017 cabernet is aged for 10 months in neutral French Oak, and the result is a dark red velvet color with a very pleasant first and last sip. This cabernet is very easy to drink and medium-bodied. The tannins (how it lays on your tongue and mouth) are smooth and structured. I was able to get winemaker Magerum on the phone for this article, and he told me "2017 was a warm dry year. It really allowed us to make picking decisions that were based on fruit flavor. We were able to let the grapes hang until optimum ripeness this translates directly into the wine, which is very fruit forward".

This cabernet goes great with a goat cheese salad, crusty sourdough bread, or even goat cheese pizza. The blending of this cabernet brings the alcohol content down to a modest 13.9%.

Each week I will give you my Dills Score. Starting with a base of 50 points, I add points for value - 8 points for color, 8 points for aroma or "nose", 8 points for taste, 8 points for finish, and 8 points for my overall

ULTIMA THULE IN VIEW: NEW HORIZONS MAKES FIRST DETECTION OF KUIPER BELT FLYBY TARGET

NASA's New Horizons spacecraft has made its first detection of its next flyby target, the Kuiper Belt object nicknamed Ultima Thule, more than four months ahead of its New Year's 2019 close encounter.

Mission team members were thrilled—if not a little surprised –that the New Horizons' telescopic Long Range Reconnaissance Imager (LORRI) was able to see the small, dim object while still more than 100 million miles away from it, and against a dense background of stars. Taken Aug. 16 and transmitted home through NASA's Deep Space Network over the following days, the set of 48 images marked the team's first attempt to find Ultima with the spacecraft's own cameras.

"The image field is extremely rich with background stars, which makes it difficult to detect faint objects," said Hal Weaver, New Horizons project scientist and LORRI principal investigator from the Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory in Laurel, Maryland. "It really is like finding a needle in a haystack. In these first images, Ultima appears only as a bump on the side of a background star that's roughly 17 times brighter, but Ultima will be getting brighter—and easier to see—as the spacecraft gets closer."

This first detection is important because the observations New Horizons makes of Ultima over the next four months will help the mission team refine the spacecraft's course toward a closest approach to Ultima, at 12:33 a.m. EST on Jan. 1, 2019. That Ultima was where mission scientists expected it to be-in precisely the spot they predicted, using data gathered by the Hubble Space Telescope—indicates the team already has a good idea of Ültima's orbit.

The Ultima flyby will be the first-ever closeup exploration of a small Kuiper Belt object and the farthest exploration of any planetary body in history, shattering the record New Horizons itself set at Pluto in July 2015 by about 1 billion miles. These images are also the most distant from the 1's "Pale Blue Dot" image of Earth taken in 1990. SCHOOL LUNCH HACKS FOR BUSY FAMILIES (StatePoint) Busy families are always looking for efficient ways to pack healthy, satisfying school lunches. Keep kids on their "A" game this year with the following tips.

Get the Kids Involved

Getting your kids involved in packing their lunches is not only a great way to teach responsibility, it's also an opportunity to discuss the fundamentals of healthy eating - plus with helpers afoot, it may just save you some time and energy.

Kids will enjoy feeling like they have some control over what goes into their lunches. Keep them focused by providing them with structured choices, such as -- turkey and swiss sandwich or cheddar and apple? Carrot sticks or sugar snap peas?

Include Fruit

Fruit is an important part of a child's nutritious diet, so be sure that lunches include healthy fruit servings. Juice labels can be especially confusing, however, sticking to options made from 100 percent juice is a good rule of thumb. For example, Mott's Sensibles, available in three flavors in convenient 6-ounce pouches, contain 30 percent less sugar compared to 100 percent apple juices, and contain no artificial flavors, colors or sweeteners.

Another way to include some fruit at lunch? Applesauce. A classic kids' favorite, today's applesauce is often healthier and more versatile than it once was. Free of added sugar and artificial colors, sweeteners and flavors, Mott's Unsweetened Applesauce, for example, comes in flavors like granny smith, strawberry and blueberry, and can be used in lunchtime recipes such as Applesauce Energy Bars or Golden Apple Raisin Squares to boost flavor and nutrition.

Pick the Right Pack

Make your life easy and promote wellness with great lunch gear. Check labels; dishwasher-safe containers will streamline your routine and nontoxic materials will help keep kids healthy and safe. If you plan to include both hot and cold food items, look into ice packs, sturdy leak-proof thermoses and lunch bags or boxes that feature compartments.

Consistently creating great midday meals may sound like a tall order, but with a few go-to essentials and some smart packing strategies, you can help keep kids fueled for more focused learning.

HEALTH INSURANCE TIPS FOR TRAVELING ABROAD

Dear Savvy Senior,

How does health insurance and Medicare cover health care outside the U.S.? My husband and I have a trip abroad planned this fall and would like to find out if we should buy extra insurance. What can you

Your first step is to contact your health insurer to find out exactly what your plan covers when you're traveling abroad.

your care when you're traveling abroad. To avoid any expensive surprises, here are some tips to help make

If you have health coverage through an employer, the Health Insurance Marketplace or a private insurance company, the level of coverage can vary and then tack on a pre-existing-condition waiver. widely depending on your policy.

If your plan does provide coverage abroad ask about the specifics, such as whether the plan includes coverage for emergency evacuations to the U.S. and pre-existing medical conditions. You should also find out what your out-of-pocket costs will be if you need medical care while you're away.

If, however, you or your husband has original Medicare, it does not provide coverage outside the U.S. except in certain circumstances - on a cruise ship within six hours of a U.S., for instance. Some coverage is built in if you have one of the Medigap supplemental plans (C, D, F, G, M, N) that pay 80 percent of bills for emergency care as long as it's during the first 60 days of the trip abroad. There's also a $250 annual deductible plus a lifetime limit of $50,000 for foreign travel emergency care.

If you happen to have a Medicare Advantage plan, your coverage outside the U.S. will depend on the plan. Some plans offer emergency care coverage while others don't. You'll need to check your plan can get reimbursed when you get home. for details.

Buy Extra Protection

If your policy doesn't provide health coverage outside the U.S., or if the coverage is limited with high out-of-pocket costs, you can purchase a travel medical insurance policy to cover you, or supplement what your insurer won't cover.

To shop and compare plans, visit sites like you a general idea of what travel medical insurance cost. A couple in their sixties planning a two-week trip to Europe, for example, could get a $50,000 medical coverage limit and $100,000 for a medical evacuation for around $100 or higher.

You also need to know that most travel medical plans do not cover costs related to a pre-existing health conditions. So if you or your husband has a pre-existing condition that might require medical care, choose a comprehensive travel policy, which typically covers medical care, medical evacuation, trip cancellation, trip interruption and baggage loss,

If you get sick or injured during your trip, call your travel insurer who can recommend local care options. For extra help, consider joining the International Association for Medical Assistance to Travelers (IAMAT.org), which provides its members access to a worldwide network of physicians who speak English and have agreed to affordable prearranged fees. Membership is free. Also visit Step.State.gov to enroll your trip with nearest U.S. Embassy or Consulate. They too can offer health care referrals.

Reimbursement

If you do have travel medical insurance, and you receive medical care while traveling abroad, you will probably be required to file a claim and show medical records outlining the care you received and receipts. So make sure you get copies of these so you

SCHIFF ANNOUNCES $150,000 IN DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE FUNDING COMING TO GLENDALE'S VERDUGO REGIONAL CRIME LABORATORY

Washington, DC - Today, Rep. Adam Schiff (D-Burbank) announced that the Verdugo Regional Crime Laboratory (VRCL) in Glendale has been awarded $150,000 through the FY18 DNA Capacity Enhancement and Backlog Reduction (CEBR) Program administered by the Department of Justice (DOJ). This funding will help the lab increase capacity and more quickly process DNA evidence, including sexual assault kits. The DNA Lab serves Glendale, Pasadena, Burbank, and the surrounding communities.

"The Verdugo Regional Crime Laboratory is accomplishing exactly what we hoped when it was created by improving public safety in Glendale, Pasadena, Burbank, and the surrounding communities and investigating a range of crimes including the most serious violent offenses," Rep. Schiff said. "This grant will allow the lab to increase its capacity to process DNA samples from crime scenes, and also ensure that DNA evidence from rape kits does not go untested."

According to the Department of Justice, in order to address increased demand for DNA testing and the existing DNA backlog, the VRCL Forensic Biology Unit increased its staffing

In 2009, Schiff helped secure $1.5 million to build the Lab as part of the appropriations process. In 2010, Schiff secured an additional $1 million to expand and fully fund the Lab. Since securing the initial funding to help build and expand the lab, Schiff has consistently supported additional funding and grants for the program through the appropriations and grants process.

Leadership: In Turbulent Times while also establishing herself as a by Doris Kearns Goodwin

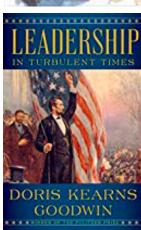

In this culmination of five decades of acclaimed studies in presidential history, Pulitzer Prize-winning author Doris Kearns Goodwin offers an illuminating exploration of the early development, growth, and exercise of leadership. Are leaders born or made? Where does ambition come from? How does adversity affect the growth of leadership? Does the leader make the times or do the times make the leader? In Leadership, Goodwin draws upon the four presidents she has studied most closely—Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Lyndon B. Johnson (in civil rights)—to show how they recognized leadership qualities within themselves and were recognized as leaders by others. By looking back to their first entries into public life, we encounter them at a time when their paths were filled with confusion, fear, and hope. Leadership tells the story of how they all collided with dramatic reversals that disrupted their lives and threatened to shatter forever their ambitions. Nonetheless, they all emerged fitted to confront the contours and dilemmas of their times. No common pattern describes the trajectory of leadership. Although set apart in background, abilities, and temperament, these men shared a fierce ambition and a deep-seated resilience that enabled them to surmount uncommon hardships. At their best, all four were guided by a sense of moral purpose. At moments of great challenge, they were able to summon their talents to enlarge the opportunities and lives of others. This seminal work provides an accessible and essential road map for aspiring and established leaders in every field. In companion for everyone who feels that way. In this today's polarized world, these stories of authentic leadership in times of apprehension and fracture take on a singular urgency.

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

ARETHA FRANKLIN DIES WITHOUT A WILL AND LEAVES HER FAMILY TO DEAL WITH COURT AND CONFLICT

Aretha Franklin, heralded as the "Queen of Soul," died from pancreatic cancer at age 76 on August 16th at her home in Detroit. Like Prince, who died in 2016, Franklin was one of the greatest musicians of our time. Also like Prince, she died without a will or trust to pass on her multimillion-dollar estate. Franklin's lack of estate planning was a huge mistake that will undoubtedly lead to lengthy court battles and major expenses for her family. What's especially unfortunate is that all this trouble could have been easily prevented.

Such lack of estate planning is common. A 2017 poll by the senior-care referral service, Caring.com, revealed that more than 60 percent of U.S. adults currently do not have a will or trust in place. The most common excuse given for not creating these documents was simply "not getting around to it."

Whether or not Franklin's case involved similar procrastination is unclear, but what is clear is that her estimated $80-million estate will now have to go through the lengthy and expensive court process known as probate, her assets will be made public, and there could be a big battle brewing for her family.

could last for years due to the size of her estate. And all court proceedings will be public, including any disputes that arise along the way.

Such contentious court disputes are common with famous musicians. In Prince's case, his estate has been subject to numerous family disputes since his death two years ago, even causing the revocation of a multimillion-dollar music contract. The same thing could happen to Franklin's estate, as high-profile performers often have complex assets, like music rights.

Learn from Franklin's mistakes can learn from her mistakes by beginning the estate planning process now. It would've been ideal if Franklin nad a will, but even with a will, her estate would still be subject to probate and open to the public. To keep everything private and out of court altogether, Franklin could've created a will and a trust. And, within a trust, she could have created a Special Needs Trust for her child who has special needs, thereby giving him full access to governmental support, plus supplemental support from her assets.

Although Franklin's situation is unfortunate, you

While trusts used to be available only to the mega wealthy, they're now used by people of all incomes and asset values. Unlike wills, trusts keep your family out of the probate court, which can save time, money, and a huge amount of heartache. Plus, a properly funded trust (meaning all of your assets are titled in the name of the trust) keeps everything totally private.

Trusts also offer several protections for your assets and family that wills alone don't. With a trust, for example, it's possible to shield the inheritance you're leaving behind from the creditors of your heirs or even a future divorce.

Don't wait another day

Regardless of your financial status, estate planning something that you should immediately address, especially if you have children. You never know when tragedy may strike, and by being properly prepared, you can save both yourself and your family massive expense and trauma. Don't follow in Franklin's footsteps; use her death as a learning experience. Proper estate planning can keep your family out of conflict, out of court, and out of the public eye. JOHN L. MICEK

We have been informed, twice now this week, that there are alleged "adults" in Donald Trump's White House who supposedly are acting as a hedge against the 45th president's worst

And this, in some weird way, is both weirdly comforting and profoundly depressing.

Comforting because it means that there are apparently some hardworking souls trying to preserve a semblance of order in a White House dedicated to knocking down the norms of a liberal democracy and undermining the very institutions that make government function.

Depressing because, well, no one elected this college of cardinals that is now apparently functioning as a shadow government. As The Washington Post's Jennifer Rubin sagely remarked, when this happens in other countries, it's referred to a "coup

Let's take these revelations in order.

Earlier this week, the blitz of coverage accompanying veteran Watergate reporter Bob Woodward's new book "Fear: Trump in the White House," confirmed things that most Americans either knew or long suspected about an unstable chief executive who is routinely derided by his most senior advisers. Woodward reveals a president who has zero intellectual curiosity and even less impulse control, and who boasts an obsession with his media image that scores a 12 out of 10 on the Kardashi-

Woodward's book is a tragicomic catalogue of life in a White House lorded over by an apparently unmoored president, even as top officials such as former economic adviser Gary Cohn snatched potentially destructive documents off the president's desk so he wouldn't sign them.

From former White House lawyer John Dowd, we learned - or rather had confirmed - that Trump is incapable of getting through a single blustery sentence without uttering some spectacular falsehood, making him a prime candidate for perjury in any potential sit-down with Special Counsel Robert Mueller.

Barely two days later, the New York York Times took the extraordinary step of publishing an anonymously penned op-ed by a "senior Trump administration official" who claimed to speak for an internal resistance movement that "[wants] the administration to succeed and think that many of its policies have already made America safer and more prosperous.'

Through the Times' anonymous correspondent, we also know that "many Trump appointees have vowed to do what we can to preserve our democratic institutions while thwarting Mr. Trump's more misguided impulses until he is out of office."

We also know, but shouldn't be surprised to learn that "the root of the problem is the News in Harrisburg, Pa.

HAVING ADULTS IN THE WHITE HOUSE IS SUPPOSED TO BE NORMAL

president's amorality. Anyone who works with him knows he is not moored to any discernible first principles that guide his decision making," the anonymous staffer

And "given the instability many witnessed, there were early whispers within the cabinet of invoking the 25th Amendment, which would start a complex process for removing the president. But no one wanted to precipitate a constitutional crisis. So we will do what we can to steer the administration in the right direction until - one way or another - it's over," the anonymous op-Ed writer opined.

Predictably, Trump has lashed out at Woodward, calling his book "a con on the public." Senior White House officials, including Chief of Staff John Kelly and Defense Secretary James Mattis, have denied the words that were attributed to them in the meticulously researched and reported

The White House can rage against Woodward's book all it wants.

Other White Houses, Democrat and Republican alike, have done the same in the half-century that the respected journalist has chronicled their triumphs and failures. It hasn't worked. There is little reason to think Trump will be any more successful.

The Times' op-ed, while well-intentioned, is more problematic on at least two levels.

While it's true that the paper's editors knew their correspondent's identity, the op-ed's anonymous allegations will only fuel Trump's one-man war on the media and add fire to his ridiculous and damaging claim that journalists are the "enemy of the people."

And if there are, indeed, adults in the White House working to short-circuit Trump's authoritarian impulses, they should step up, speak out, and then resign, putting the good of the nation ahead of their future professional viability.

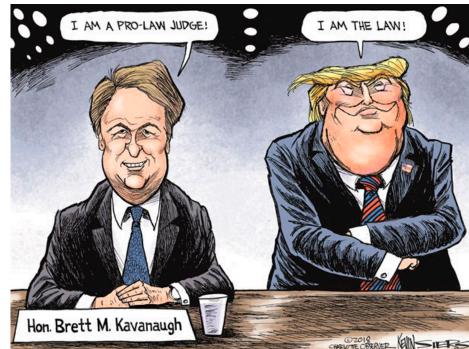

If not, it will only fuel and confirm the hard-right's paranoid delusions that a non-existent "deep states" is actively working to thwart Trump's agenda.

An overly compliant and supine Republican-controlled Congress has utterly abdicated its responsibilities as a co-equal branch of government.

Some Republicans, including the the conservative columnists Max Boot and George F. Will, have argued that the only way to restore sanity is vote out the GOP and install Democratic majorities in the U.S. House and Senate.

Given the hard truths America faced this week, a divided government is the only way for the nation to ride out whatever time remains before Trump is either removed from office or defeated.

THE HIGHER TECH GETS. THE RUDER WE GET

Our rapidly growing incivility started with the invention of the telephone-answering machine.

Before the answering machine's widespread adoption, people answered their landline phones with a pleasant "hello," eager to learn who was calling. To be sure, says social scientist James Katz, answering machines were considered rude By the '90s, however, most homes had them and lots of people were using them, quite rudely, to screen calls - people like my pal, Griffy.

Calls to Griffy's landline always made me grumpy:

"Hello, this is Griffy, leave a message at the beep."

"Pick up the phone, Griffy, I know you're there!

Griffy demanded his friends leave messages on his machine, but always hung up on mine - until the invention of the "star 69" feature.

When you punched "star 69" into your phone keypad, you'd get the number of the jerk who had last hung up on your machine.

Boy, did that technology innovation escalate rudeness!

I had a telephone confrontation once with a fellow who had hung up on my machine. I keyed in star 69, got his number, dialed it, then got his answering machine:

"Hello, this is Bill. Sally and I aren't in right now" I didn't know who the fellow was - I figured he'd dialed my number by mistake - so I

Later that day, after returning from a business meeting, I saw that someone had hung up on my machine again.

I dialed star 69, got the number, dialed it, then heard, "Hello, this is Bill. Sally and I aren't in right now"

I hung up again. A few moments later, my phone rang. I picked it up. "Hello," I said.

"Who is this?" said the man. I recognized the voice. It was Bill.

"You called me and hung up!" I said.

"You called me and hung up!" said Bill.

"Yuh-huh!" he said.

"Nuh-huh!" I said.

Street Journal story about two Boston lawyers whose email exchange went viral. One lawyer, a 24-year-old woman, sent an e-mail to an older, established lawyer, declining his job offer.

Email was another innovation that escalated rudeness. I remember reading a Wall

The older lawyer, miffed that the woman would email her rejection after she'd already accepted the job offer in person, fired off an email telling her she wasn't very professional. She replied that if he were a real lawyer he would have made her sign a contract. He replied, in so many words, that she was a snot. She sent one last reply: "blah, blah," These are just some examples of how earlier technology innovations made us ruder. And now, the era of smartphones and social media - the era of nasty tweets and

Facebook insults - is making rudeness, reports Psychology Today, "our new normal." The magazine cites research, published in the journal Computers in Human Behavior, that finds technology-enabled anonymity and "a lack of eye contact" are chief contributors to our growing incivility. To wit: Technology is making it easier than ever to be rude to our fellow man, but we must fight this impulse, or else our already overheated public discourse will become increasingly uncivil.

It's not going to be easy, though.

Even my parents use their answering machine to screen calls from my sisters and me. Mom and Dad, I know you're home. Please pick up the phone!

DEMOCRATIC DIVERSITY IS MAKING AMERICA GREAT AGAIN

Let's begin with a biographical sketch, a very 21st-century American dream.

When David Hallquist was a child attending Catholic schools in Syracuse, New York, he always felt female. He knew he was "different," but he couldn't find a word for it. He hid his impulses and played men's sports at school. He pursued a career in energy technology, got married, raised a family, and finally, in 2004, he began the long process of coming out. Six years later, he confided his secret side to his family. And in 2015, his son made a movie, entitled "Denial," that publicly tracked his transition to who she is today, Christine Hallquist.

Then, at a women's march in Montpelier, Vt. this past January, Hallquist had an epiphany. She later said, "One of the things the Me Too movement has been pushing is that we need to get involved in politics." So she did. She filed as a candidate for governor of Vermont, and in the state's Democratic primary, she became the first transgender woman in America to win a major party nomination.

Christine epitomizes the 2018 Democratic zeitgeist. On the cusp of the autumn general elections, grassroots Democrats have sharpened their message that diversity will make America great again. Despite the Trumpist Republicans' relentless attempts to turn back the clock, the inexorable future awaits confirmation in November.

With virtually all the primaries completed, Democratic voters have made it abundantly clear that they want more women in elective office. At this point, 200 women - 155 of them Democrats – have won their House primaries in 2018. That's a record, trumping all previous records. Viewed from another angle, 41 percent of all Democratic nominees – and 48 percent of all non-incumbents - are women. That too is a milestone. (Women are only 13 percent of the GOP's nominees.)

This surge of women candidates, with heavy support from Democratic women voters, may be historic, but it's not a huge surprise - given how fervently most women (with the probable exception of blue-collar white women) have come to detest Trump. If his goal this year was to talk and behave in ways designed to guarantee a female backlash against the party he purports to lead, he can probably chalk that up as one of his few tangible achievements.

Let's scan the updated national map. Connecticut Democrats chose, as one of their House candidates, a black woman – the first to carry the party banner in a Connecticut congressional race. Minnesota Democrats chose, as one of their House candidates, a Somali-American woman - who's likely to join a Muslim woman from Michigan in the next Congress.

In addition, a lesbian recently won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Texas, a bisexual woman - the sitting governor of Oregon - recently won her Democratic primary, and a black woman recently won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in

Gender news aside, Democratic Party leaders are pinning their hopes on one particular midwestern male. In Speaker Paul Ryan's Wisconsin district, ironworker and union activist Randy "Ironstache" Bryce defeated a female for the right to contest the Ryanendorsed Republican, businessman Bryan Steil. Bryce has been buoyed by a sizable war chest, an endorsement from Bernie Sanders and a grassroots Democratic hunger to occupy the seat held by one of Trump's most spineless enablers. It's not an impossible quest, considering Barack Obama won the district's presidential balloting by one point in

If Bryce can pull off a win in November, despite some personal baggage (arrests for driving under the influence, late payments for child support), it would truly signal that a blue wave was cresting.

And a working-stiff white guy nicknamed "Ironstache," joining the swelling ranks of women, would be another victory for Democratic diversity. Jennifer Rubin, the center-right columnist, took it even further, declaring that a "demographically diverse repudiation of Trump up and down the ballot will have obvious consequences for the remainder of his term. It may also be the final opportunity for Republicans to get off the sinking ship, push Trump aside and try to regain their sanity." I wince at her confident certitude, but those are indeed the stakes in November.
