FELONY ARREST FOR CHILD ENDANGERMENT

Sierra Madre, CA. - October 10, 2018 - While responding to a call for domestic disturbance, the Sierra Madre Police Department took possession of 22 firearms and made an arrest for child endangerment and unlawful storage of a handgun. Sierra Madre Police Chief Ortiz stated "the children were removed from the home and placed in the custody of the Los Angeles County Department of Children and Family Services, due to the general living conditions and safety concerns found in the residence, including leaving a loaded handgun on a dresser in the children's bedroom."

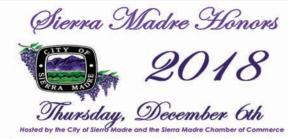

In the morning hours of October 8, 2018, the Sierra Madre Police Department went to a residence in the 500 block of N. Michillinda Avenue, in regards to a domestic disturbance involving a husband and wife. While officers were completing their investigation, they learned the wife had allegedly injured the husband during the incident. The wife was arrested for suspicion of domestic violence. While still at the scene, officers saw a loaded handgun lying on a "...we are legally and morally redresser in a bedroom belonging to the couple's children. Chief Joe Ortiz said "we respect the people's constitutional right to have firearms inside their residences, however we are legally and morally responsible to ensure firearms do not get into the hands of our most precious members of our community, which are our children. Thankfully, a tragedy may have been averted thanks to the observations and thorough investigations of the officers involved in this incident."

GENERATIONS CONNECT....

Kareen have started something big. The mother-daughter duo have always known that they wanted to work on a big project together, preferably something that involves either service or giving back to a community. Their initial ideas ranged from service in Armenia to starting a swimming club somewhere in Africa. Ultimately, they decided on something closer to home: starting a program at the Kensington Senior Living in Sierra Madre.

Service has always been important to the Manuelian family. Kareen did 400 service hours in two years and has earned the President's Award twice. When she was in middle school, Kareen joined the Service Club at her school and immediately began doing two hours a week instead of the two hours a month requirement. Her mother has experience in retirement homes, so Kareen looked to the Kensington. At the time she was only 11, and the typical age requirement was 15, but because of her familiarity with her mother's field, the Kensington decided to make an exception and make Kareen their youngest volunteer ever.

Kareen loved the work she was doing, and she told her mom that she had found the perfect place to start a mother-daughter project, Moment2Connect. Kareen says that she felt so connected to the people she was working with and she wanted to share that experience with her peers. Her goal is, "to help kids reach out and experience connection,". Her mom, Lisa, describes the social skills that kids get to work on as they play games and do teambuilding exercises with the residents. She says that during the sessions there are no phones or electronics; the kids talk to the residents and get to know them. The kids, "Don't want to leave," when time

The program is not yet open to the public; Kareen and her mom say that they have 18 students and a waiting list already. Currently they have children from local elementary schools, middle schools, and high schools. Kareen serves as a leader and since she is also a co-founder, she is working to be able to teach other teens in the group to lead as well. Her responsibilities currently include handling calls, meetings, and working on research.

Within the next six months, Kareen and her mother want to begin the process to make Moment2Connect a non-profit that reaches out to less privileged facilities. They say that they are up for the challenge; it was over a year-long process to start Moment2Connect simply because the approval process took a long time. But after a lot of review and a lot of meetings they started the program in late Spring. They took time off for the summer because the program was so new and most of the kids had vacation commitments, but the hope is that next year there will be enough students that is up around 11:00AM; they usually stay until about the program can continue. Lisa says that now that the program is established, and on the calendar every month, everything she and Kareen do needs to be planned around it.

> To find out more about the program, or to donate anything you have that might be useful, follow the program on Instagram @moment2connect or email Dr. Lisa Manuelian at lisa@drlisamanuelian.com.

PUBLIC MEETING NOTICE

The City of Sierra Madre Subject: Applicant: Project Location: Second Unit Ordinance Amendment Omitting Periodic Inspection Requirement City of Sierra Madre Properties in the City of Sierra Madre, County of Los Angeles, State of California

The City of Sierra Madre gives notice, pursuant to State of California law, that the City Council will conduct a second reading of Ordinance 1404 at the October 23, 2018 City Council Meeting at 6:30 PM in the City Council Chambers at 232 West Sierra Madre Boulevard. All interested persons may attend this meeting and the City Council will them with

On October 9, 2018 the City Council introduce for first reading, recommending adoption of Ordinance 1404 amending Title 17-Zoning of the Sierra Madre Municipal Code, Chapter 17.22-Second Units, by amending Section 17.22.130-Recordation, omitting the periodic inspection requirement for a second unit permit.

ENVIRONMENTAL DETERMINATION: The adoption of this ordinance qualifies for an exemption from the California Environmental Quality Act review pursuant to Title 14, Section 15061(b)(3) of the California Code of Regulations as it can be seen with certainty that there is no possibility the adoption of this Ordinance may have a significant effect on the environment, because omitting the regulatory requirement to conduct periodic inspections in order to build a second unit is not likely to result in additional construction beyond that already permissible. Therefore, the City Council concludes that the amendments to Chapter 17.22 will not have a significant effect on the environment.

APPEAL: If in the future anyone wishes to challenge the decision of the City Council in court, one may be limited to raising the issues that were raised or presented in written correspondence delivered to the City Council at, or before, the scheduled public hearing. For further information on this subject, please contact the Sierra Madre Police Department at (626) 355-1414.

While reading my way through the September 8th issue of the Mountain Views News, I happened on "Jeff's Book Pics" by Jeff Brown. I always check to see what Jeff has been reading as he's always got something interesting he's reviewing and, a couple of times, it's been a book of mine. In addition to "Leadership: In Turbulent Times' by Doris Kearns Goodwin and "Becoming" by Michelle Obama, Jeff reviewed Anne Bogel's book, "I'd Rather Be Reading: The Delights and Dilemmas of the Reading Life."

"For so many people, reading isn't just a hobby or a way to pass the time," Anne says, " – it's a lifestyle. Our books shape us, define us, enchant us, and even sometimes infuriate us. Our books are a part of who we are as people, and we can't imagine life without them."

When I was about 8 years old, my mother and her best friend, Florene, had taken me and Florene's two children, Glen and Marsha to the beach to spend the day. I was lying on my towel squinting against the sun and reading. Glen and Marsha were in the water but I could have cared less. I was reading. My mother said to me, "You'll never have any character lines on your face because you never stop reading long enough to develop any character!" I wittily replied, "Huh?" and continued reading. Well, I've developed plenty of character lines and have never stopped reading. When we were first married, John discovered that I read constantly and I even brought several books on our honeymoon. He got used to the fact that I had a book propped up in the kitchen, one in the dressing room and had several on my nightstand. He read mostly technical journals when we first met and eventually married, but subscriptions to everything IEEE puts out eventually loses it's charm when one's life partner reads one amusing passages from Fannie Flagg's "Standing In The Rainbow" or death defying excerpts from John Caldwell's book, "Desperate Voyage," like the one below, especially when we had actually MET John Caldwell!

"From Perlas to Galapagos, and from Galapagos on west, I had uttered such curses as I doubt have ever been heard over the keel of a ship. In every squall, gale, calm, cloudburst, and contrary current, I had unloosed a flood of invective to shame a mule skinner. But more than that...in the height of my extremities I had profaned God Himself. MUSD_Hickey_1: Monrovia High senior Nathan Hickey biked 550 miles down the California coast from San Francisco to Los Angeles from Sept. 30 to Oct. 6 to raise money and awareness for pediatric cancer research.

MONROVIA, CA - Monrovia High senior Foundation, he decided to use his hobby to help Nathan Hickey was about 7 years old when he first raised money for pediatric cancer research by biking 30 miles in one day. Now, he has taken those efforts to a new level by biking 550 miles down the California coast from San Francisco to Los Angeles from Sept. 30 to Oct. 6.

The funds he's raised since he first started biking go toward The Pablove Foundation, an organization that supports children diagnosed with cancer by donating to cancer research, including funds raised through sale of photos taken by children with cancer.

"Doing this ride for The Pablove Foundation is huge and I can reach a whole new audience, especially since I'm one of the youngest riders doing the whole ride," Hickey said. "I can really put my message out through my own biking pediatric cancer is really underfunded, and kids getting cancer is really a scary thing. No one wants to be put through that."

Hickey was inspired to raise awareness of children's cancer after seeing family members battle the cancer. Currently, two uncles and two aunts are fighting cancer. His cousin passed away to brain cancer a few years ago. After his father introduced him to mountain biking, and he was connected with the founders of The Pablove the organization's mission.

'It's cool to help and to be doing something with my skills," Hickey said.

Hickey is a varsity member of Monrovia High's mountain bike team and a junior ambassador for the Children's Hospital of Los Angeles. He gives speeches and volunteers at the hospital with patients.

"Congratulations to Nathan for completing his ride and for gaining large support for a great cause," Board of Education President Terrence Williams said. "His dedication to the community is a great lesson for all of us."

Hickey rode 30 to 50 miles a day to train for the 550-mile ride. He's raised well over his $7,500 goal and continues to gain the support of community members. Donate to his fundraising page at: https://www.classy.org/ fundraiser/1270870.

difference for the better, one can. There are countless opportunities to give back, it only takes a willingness to be a part of something bigger than one's self.

Thankfully, there are many people today who are willing to take part in making a positive impact on the environment by dedicating their skills and time to doing things that will benefit the greater good, and I always enjoy sharing their stories.

In the late 1990's, Ken Nedimyer, a longtime resident of the Florida Keys, had seen first-hand the decline of the local coral reefs during the years he'd lived there. Running from north Miami down to Key West, the Florida Reef Tract is the third largest barrier reef in the world and the only barrier coral reef in the continental US.

Sadly, due to a variety of destructive factors (not the least of which were human-inflicted), the staghorn and elkhorn coral that made up the Florida Reef Tract were reduced to a mere 3% of their original coverage during the short years between the 1970's and 1990's, resulting in both species being listed as critically-endangered.

At the time, Nedimyer was a commercial aquarium fish collector and live rock farmer when, by a fortuitous turn of events, a colony of critically-endangered staghorn coral settled onto one of his farms off the coast of Tevernier, Florida. As Nedimyer observed the 'volunteer' coral colony swiftly grow in his live rock farm, he began to envision the potential for a new type of marine conservation that could not only protect threatened reef habitats but could actively restore them.

Driven by a burning desire to help make a change for the better and a hope that this may be a way to reverse the tragic reef loss process, Nedimyer immediately went to work demonstrating that staghorn coral could be farmgrown rapidly and out-planted to the reef. In 2007, with the assistance of his family and a small dedicated staff, he founded the Coral Restoration Foundation (CRF™) and began working to build up stock of staghorn and elkhorn

Drawing on Nedimyer's experience in the aquarium industry and applying knowledge they gained through coral research findings from around the world, the CRF team started to experiment with different methods for growing coral in offshore, in-situ nurseries.

If one wishes to make a difference...to truly make a They tried several growth techniques to cultivate their coral - including disk nurseries, line nurseries and various forms of tree nurseries - before the tree structure they are currently using was finally invented. With the help of the Florida Keys National Marine Sanctuary, CRFTM was granted permission to collect clippings and broken fragments of coral from remaining wild populations of staghorn and elkhorn in southern Florida, to propagate.

> Their early endeavor to build a genetically diverse portfolio of coral has proven to be critical for the Foundation's current restoration work, which aims to restore the genetic diversity of wild coral populations rather than rely only on corals with perceived - yet scientifically unproven - strengths.

> Today, the Coral Restoration Foundation™ (CRF) is the world's largest non-profit marine conservation organization dedicated to restoring coral reefs to a healthy state, both in Florida and globally. In recognition for his remarkable work, Nedimyer was presented with the Wyland ICON Award and was named a CNN Hero and a Disney Worldwide Conservation Hero.

> It just goes to show that anyone can make a difference...truly make a difference, to benefit the greater good. Regardless of occupation or skill set, everyone has something to bring to the table. The knowledge and abilities one may possess, related to their particular trade or craft, can always act as building blocks for learning and for honing more specified skills that can be applied in practical ways to help restore our planet.

> Today, I see people everywhere getting on board with a plethora projects to help reverse the destructive process. Overdevelopment and a blatant disregard & disrespect for natural spaces and the wildlife that dwell within them have reeked havoc on our planet. It is refreshing to know that there are activists who are undoing the destructive deeds of the arrogant and ignorant.

> So why not get on board? Perhaps you can help turn today's resolution-minded minority into a resolutionminded majority. There are countless ways to help bring healing to your home, Mother Earth. It just takes a desire to be a part of something bigger than yourself, and a willingness to give back to what sustains you. For a more promising future, don't forget to love and let live.

Beyond the captivating beauty of Caterine is a calm lady who craves the peaceful continuity of life in her own home. She likes people to approach her slowly and will then relax into the hand massaging her head and ears and stroking down her soft white and gray coat. The attention is rewarded by her purring of contentment while she "makes biscuits" on the bed or lap she is on. Caterine is more than just a pretty face, which has the cutest smudge mustache. She enjoys playing with her visitors. A simple shoe string can be the beginning of a tug of war game that ends when she wins. Sometimes the laser dot game of chase will set off Caterine's huntress instincts. Other times she seems to not want to bother with something she wisely knows can't really catch. Caterine's beauty and sweetness will add décor and bring calmness to your home, while also adding some fun. Please come meet Caterine in Meow Manor. JAMES RUTHER: MAKER OF SPOONS

Nyerges is the author of "How to Survive Anywhere," "Foraging California," "Extreme Simplicity," and other books. Ĥe also leads outdoor field trips. He can be reached at www.SchoolofSelf-

Reliance.com.]

James Ruther is a diverse man. Day job, working for the Edison company, he's also quite an authority on knives and knife-sharpening, as well as several other bushcraft skills. One day, after we both finished a class about outdoor survival skills in the foothills of Pasadena, Ruther showed me a wooden spoon.

"That's nice," I said. I liked it, and it looked a bit different from the many wooden spoons I've seen over the years at thrift stores and novelty stores.

"Yeah, and I made this one," he continued.

"You made it,"? I replied, looking again more closely at the spoon, turning it over in my hands. "Yes," said Ruther, "and I made it mostly from this knife." He pulled out a Mora knife and handed it to me, which I also examined. Since I'd initially thought the spoon was something cranked out in a factory woodshop operation like so many others, I paid it little attention. Now that I knew this was individually carved, I examined it more closely, and saw the character that an assembly line product would not have.

"What kind of wood did you use?" I asked. "Ash," he replied. "I use ash for most of my spoons, because it's so common, and relatively easy to carve. Also, because the ash trees grow like weeds, no one minds if I trim a few branches and use them for making spoons."

Ruther gave me that beautiful spoon, and eventually I attended a spoon-carving class that he conducted.

CLASS SEQUENCE

Here's how the class went.

Once everyone is present, Ruther shared the basics of knife safety, and the importance of always handing a knife to another person with utmost care. He also emphasized that you always carve AWAY from your body and fingers. This sounds easy, but sometimes, to get a certain cut, you have to be very creative to not cut towards your body, and Ruther showed many of these methods. He also described the "blood circle" for safety. If you a standing too close to a person using a knife, and that person accidentally moves his knife in your direction, you might get cut. You're within his blood circle. To know if you're too close to someone, Ruther held his knife out horizontally from his body, and defined a large circle, front and back. If you're within that blood circle, you'll get cut.

Next, his class took a short walk to find and collect suitable woods. Ruther pointed out that just any wood could be used to make a spoon, even dead wood on the ground, though it's more desirable to use fresh sound wood. Oak is excellent, but harder to carve. Willow is abundant, and easy to carve, but might be a bit too soft for some applications. Ruther likes alder, ash, and other woods; that day, his students all collected pieces of ash wood, about a foot long and a few inches thick. On our way back to our tables, we observed many of the other trees and Ruther described some of their uses.

MAKING A SPOON

Ruther guided each student to take their section of ash, and to first split it, by batonning it with a sheath knife. Then, they decided which half would be used, and then the cut part of that piece of ash was flattened with the Next, the shape of the spoon was penciled onto the flat side of the wood, and careful carving began. There were various techniques of wood reduction which were shows to take the piece of wood to a spoon. For example, a saw was used to reduce some sections, such as to make the spoon part round.

To cut away the excess wood which would become the handle, the section would be sawed perpendicular to the handle, at various points, so that the unwanted wood could just be chiseled away.

Then, it was all slow but careful carving. The hollow of the spoon was carved with curved carving knives which made it much easier. However, the hollow could still be done with an ordinary knife, with much more care. Finally, the spoons were sanded with sandpaper. Or,

as woodscraft master Paul Campbell used to teach, the spoons could be "sanded" with a small rock, abrading little by little until the desired smoothness is achieved. 'What happens if the spoon breaks?" a student asked

Ruther. He smiles and responds, "Oh darn, you'd have to carve another!" Taking a more serious tone, Ruther says that to discard a biodegradable wooden spoon is not a problem, and is infinitely better than discarding a plastic spoon into a land fill that would take 100 years to decompose. "It's smart for the environment," he says, adding that if you cut from overgrown invasive trees, it's really a form of weed control. "It's always a good thing to learn to make something rather than buying something, and this produce no waste." Ruther points out that your second spoon will always be a better spoon than your first, because you're still figuring things out on spoon number one. To learn more about Ruther and his classes, he can be

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

"HERE'S MY HAMMER IF YOU NEED IT"

I am not known as "Mr. Fix-It Man". When it comes intelligent people running for office? to mechanical things, I am really handy-challenged. I can do many things, but I cannot fix anything.

When talking about the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage, it is a different story. If there is something she cannot fix then it isn't broken. No matter what is broken or how long it has been broken, she somehow can fix it. I do not know how she does it, and believe me, I am not going to ask.

There is nothing I cannot break and there is nothing she cannot fix. We make a wonderful team as long as I keep that scenario in my mind.

If I, for whatever reason, think I can fix something, I am in deep trouble. The more I try to fix something, the more broken it becomes. I have learned long ago to own up to this in my life.

I think it is wonderful to know what you cannot do. That eliminates trying to do something and failing every time. It is more wonderful to know who can fix what you break. "Honey," I say in a very sympathetic tone, "I broke this. Would you be able to fix it for me?"

"Of course," she will reply with a silly little grin on her face, "let me have it."

The only thing I could ever fix is something needing a hammer. I can hammer something, but I can't screw or unscrew a bolt. Of course, I can screw anything up with a hammer. A long time ago, I learned how to handle this.

Whenever anything breaks in the parsonage I immediately say, "Should I get my hammer and try to fix it?" To which I get a resounding "Nooooooo". I then say, "Well, if you need me just call for me." And I know I will never be called.

If I had the time, I would calculate how much money we have saved during our marriage by having her fix things that were broken. I think it would be an amazing amount of money. A few weeks back the front plastic bumper on my truck broke and was hanging. I casually mentioned it to my wife not expecting anything. About 30 minutes later she came in and said, "I got your truck fixed."

I am not sure how much that saved me on auto repair but I sure thanked her and then took her out

This all came to a head just a couple weeks ago. It is the beginning of a political cycle. We know it is a political cycle because all of the politicians are rather dizzy. My apologies to all the blondes out there. We kept hearing the same phrase from every for lunch. After all, what's a husband supposed to do?

politician that was running. "Washington is broken and I'm going there to fix it."

I was ignoring it because I know that every politician has their tongue detached from their brain.

As we were listening to some of these advertisements, my wife turned to me and said, "There, you could help them fix Washington."

I just looked at her and said, "Huh." I did not get anything that she was saying with that.

"You're always wanting to help fix things around here, why don't you offer to help fix Washington?" I did not know if I should laugh or if I should be

I was afraid to say anything but eventually I said, "What in the world do you mean?"

She looked at me with those giggly dancing eyes and said, "You are always offering to fix something with your hammer. Why don't you offer to give them your hammer so that they can fix Washington?"

Was she serious? Or, was she setting me up for something? Staring at me she finally broke down into hilarious laughter.

"How better could they fix Washington than using your hammer?"

It does not happen often, but I wholeheartedly agreed with what she was saying.

If Washington is broken, and I am not sure what that means, perhaps they could fix it with my hammer by smashing everything in Washington. My hammer is a good tool for that kind of work. I cannot tell you how many things I have smashed unintentionally with my hammer.

We enjoyed a hearty laugh on that one. I never knew my wife to be politically minded like this. However, she had it. Then I said, "Why don't you run for some political office? I'll let you borrow my hammer."

We laughed some more and I got to thinking. How would Washington change if my wife was elected to some office and borrowed my hammer? She surely would get things done, I am sure.

Her "fix-it" ability along with my hammer would go a long way in fixing Washington.

As I thought of that I was reminded of what King Solomon said, "The way of man is froward and strange: but as for the pure, his work is right" (Proverbs 21:8).

Some things are too broken to fix for any person except God. There is no person so broken that he cannot fix and fix for eternity. So, Mr. Politician Fix-It, you can use my hammer at any time if you want to.

near-Earth asteroid Ryugu, located approximately 300 million kilometers from Earth, has a new inhabitant: On 3 October 2018, the Mobile Asteroid Surface Scout (MASCOT) landed on the asteroid and began to work. The lander successfully separated from the Japanese Hayabusa2 space probe at 03:58 CEST. The 16 hours in which the lander will conduct measurements on the asteroid's surface have begun for the international team of engineers and scientists. The day before, the Japanese Space Agency's Hayabusa2 began its descent towards Ryugu. MASCOT was ejected at an altitude of 51 meters and descended in free fall—slower than an earthly pedestrian—to its destination, the asteroid.

The relief about the successful separation and subsequent confirmation of the landing was clearly noticeable In the MASCOT Control Centre at the German Aerospace Center (Deutsches Zentrum für Luft- und Raumfahrt; DLR) as well as in the adjoining room: "It could not have gone better," explained MASCOT project manager Tra-Mi Ho from the DLR Institute of Space Systems. "From the lander's telemetry, we were able to see that it separated from the mothercraft, and made contact with the asteroid surface approximately 20 minutes later." The team is now in contact with the lander.

The moment of separation was one of the risks of the mission: If MASCOT had not successfully separated from Hayabusa2 as planned and often tested, the lander's team would hardly have had the opportunity to solve this problem. But everything went smoothly: Already during the descent on the asteroid, the camera switched MASCAM on and took 20 pictures, which are now stored on board the Japanese space probe. "The camera worked perfectly," says Ralf Jaumann, DLR planetary scientist and scientific director of the camera separation, we expected a clear decrease of the There are four instruments on board: a DLR emphasises DLR planetary researcher Ralf instrument. ARCADIA UNIFIED ACCEPTED INTO NATIONAL NETWORK OF INNOVATIVE SCHOOL DISTRICTS

Arcadia Unified joins Digital Promise League of Innovative Schools, will partner with other leading educators, entrepreneurs, and researchers from across the country

ARCADIA-- Arcadia Unified School District was accepted into the League of Innovative Schools, a national coalition of forward-thinking school districts are connecting with students organized by Digital Promise, a nonprofit organization with the mission to accelerate innovation in education and improve the opportunity to learn for all through technology and research.

Arcadia Unified was selected from a competitive national pool of applicants based on its leadership, evidence of results, innovative vision for learning, and commitment to collaboration.

"It's an honor and testament to our innovative teachers and staff that we are able to join such a distinguished group of schools and districts across the country," said Arcadia Unified School District Superintendent Dr. David Vannasdall. "We have long believed in sharing best practices and collaborating with others to benefit not only our students in Arcadia but students across the globe. It's the reason we started the Arcadia Innovation Summit four years ago and why we encourage our teachers to be on Twitter and social media."

The League of Innovative Schools, launched in late 2011, accepts new members through an open application process once per year. With the new members, the League now includes 102 school districts in 33 states. The full list of members can be found at digitalpromise.

and that the students are connecting to their learning, said Arcadia High School Principal Dr. Brent Forsee whose high school was just ranked in the top 1% of public high schools in the country by Niche.com. "We have teachers utilizing flexible seating, project-based learning, blended learning courses in several content areas, utilizing restorative practices, and they have created an environment where learning takes place all throughout the campus not just inside the classroom. This type of teaching takes place at every school in our district, and I'm always so inspired by all of the creative educators throughout Arcadia Unified," added Dr.

"As we expand our efforts to identify, build, and scale the innovative work of our League districts, I am excited to welcome a new cohort of districts who deepen the diversity, populations, and contexts of the network and move us further in advancing equity and excellence for every learner," said Kimberly Smith, Executive Director of the League of Innovative Schools.

The League will officially welcome new members at its fall 2018 meeting on October 10 in Park City, Utah. For more information on the Digital Promise League of Innovative Schools, visit: digitalpromise.org/league.

23 ARCADIA HIGH STUDENTS NAMED NATIONAL MERIT SCHOLARSHIP SEMIFINALISTS

program, with 23 Arcadia High seniors distinguished as 2019 National Merit Scholarship Semifinalists. Joining a group of students that represents less than one percent of high school seniors across the country, these academically adept students have an opportunity to compete for nearly 7,500 National Merit Scholarships that will be awarded next spring and are collectively worth more than $31 million.

Over $\dot{1.6}$ million juniors from 22,000 high schools vied for entrance into the 2019 National Merit Scholarship program, with close to 16,000 students chosen as semifinalists. Each year, the Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) serves an initial screen of program applicants.

"I took a popular prep course for the regular SAT the summer before my junior year, but I believe that it was my Arcadia High School studies that helped immensely," shared Arcadia High School senior and National Merit Semifinalist Estelle Hooper. "Really, my achievement is attributed to my hardworking classmates and teachers," said Hooper, who explained that she decided to register for the PSAT only after the encouragement she received from her peers.

Some high schools have less than a handful of seniors accepted into this program each school year. In the past 25 years, Arcadia High has had over 600 students named as National Merit Semifinalists, with an average of over 20 students accepted into the program each year.

"Our consistent representation in this program is a testament to the incredible teaching strategies implemented in classrooms throughout our district," said Arcadia Unified School District Superintendent Dr. David Vannasdall. "Our teachers truly help students imagine, inquire, ARCADIA-- Arcadia High School has had another and inspire, sparking students to have a relationship impressive showing in the National Merit Scholarship with learning that not only prepares them for success with learning that not only prepares them for success in high school but will serve them for years to come."

The nationwide pool of semifinalists includes entrants who score highest on the PSAT in each state, with the number of semifinalists in a state proportional to the state's percentage of the national total of graduating seniors. Approximately 15,000 students in the program will advance as finalists and will be notified of this designation in February 2019. On average, over 95% of Arcadia High semifinalists make it the finalist phase of this program.

Arcadia High School was recently ranked in the top 1% of public high schools in the nation by Niche.com. Its Class of 2018 saw a 100% graduation rate. The home of the Apaches has also been distinguished a U.S. News and World Report Gold Medal School three times, an honor bestowed on less than 3 percent of the more than 19,000 schools in the country. Similarly, Newsweek named Arcadia High on its Top Public High Schools in America list. Arcadia High graduates are represented in Ivy League schools and top universities across the country. Likewise, for two consecutive years, the Arcadia Unified School District has been named on the College Board's Annual AP® District Honor Roll. Arcadia High School National Merit Scholarship

THE GOOD LIFE

HOW TO MANAGE RESTLESS LEG SYNDROME

Dear Savvy Senior.

What can you tell me about restless leg syndrome? I'm 58 years old, and frequently have jerky, uncontrollable urges to move my legs, accompanied by a tingling sensation, and it keeps me awake at night.

Jumpy John

Dear John,

If an irresistible urge to move your legs has you kicking in your sleep, then chances are pretty good you have restless leg syndrome (RLS), a condition that affects 7 to 10 percent of Americans. Here's what you should know.

RLS, also known as Willis-Ekbom Disease, is a nervous system problem that causes uncomfortable sensations (often described as a creepy-crawly feeling, tingling, itching, throbbing, pulling or aching) and an irresistible urge to move one or both legs while you're sitting or lying down, and the symptoms usually get worse with age. It typically happens in the evenings or nights while resting. Moving eases the unpleasant feeling temporarily.

While RLS is not a life-threatening condition, the main problem, other than it being uncomfortable and annoying, is that it disrupts sleep, leading to daytime drowsiness, difficulty concentrating and even depression.

What exactly causes RLS is not known, but researchers suspect it could be linked to several things including iron deficiency, an imbalance of the brain chemical dopamine, and genetics – about 60 percent of people with RLS have a family member with the

Treatment Options
While there's no cure for RLS, there are things you can do to alleviate the symptoms. Depending on the severity of your case, some people turn to RLS Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and medications like gabapentin enacarbil (Horizant), author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

an anticonvulsant, and dopamine agonists ropinirole (Requip), rotigotine (Neupro) and pramipexole (Mirapex). But be aware that these drugs have side effects including nausea, lightheadedness, fatigue and insomnia. And, while these medications can provide short-term relief, they can also make symptoms worse in many people who use them long term.

So before turning to medication, you should consider some of the following natural RLS treatments first, which are very effective for most people.

Check your iron levels. Iron deficiency is believed to be one of the major contributors to RLS, so make an appointment with your doctor and get a blood test to check for this. If you test positive for iron deficiency your doctor may recommend iron supplements.

Exercise: Getting moderate, regular exercise like walking, cycling, water aerobics and yoga can relieve symptoms, but overdoing it or exercising late in the day may intensify them. Daily leg stretches - include calf, hamstring, quadriceps and hip flexor stretches are also helpful.

Check your medications: Certain drugs including antinausea drugs, antipsychotic drugs, some antidepressants, and cold and allergy medications containing sedating antihistamines can make RLS worse. If you take any of these, ask your doctor it something else can be prescribed.

Sierra Madre // This Week's Market Update

This Week Median List Price: $1,079,000

The Market Action Index has been climbing lately while days-on-market are trending down, these point to a positive near-term outlook for the market.

Supply & Demand

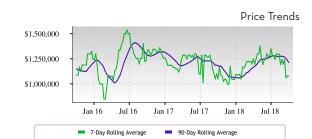

In the last few weeks, the Market Action Index has resumed a climb. Despite the fact that we're in a Seller's market, prices have not yet resumed upward momentum. However, it is likely that given these conditions, prices will at least level off very soon. If the increasing trend continues, expect that prices could shift higher quickly.

The Market Action Index answers the question "How's the Market?" by measuring the current rate of sale versus the amount of the inventory. Index above 30 implies Seller's Market conditions. Below 30, conditions favor the buyer.

Price

Again this week we see a downward notch for prices. Pricing has been weak in recent weeks & versus their absolute-high levels. The MAI is a good leading indicator for the durability of this trend.

FILM CHALLENGES IQ TESTING, LIMITS PLACED ON PEOPLE WITH INTELLECTUAL DISABILITIES

Pasadena, CA—The Frostig Center is proud to host a screening of the new documentary Intelligent Lives, which is shattering stereotypes about what it means to be "intelligent" and opening doors to more inclusive education and employment.

The screening will be held at The Frostig Center on Friday, Nov. 2 at 6:30 p.m. All are welcome and admission is free.

Intelligent Lives stars three young adults with intellectual disabilities who challenge perceptions of intelligence as they navigate high school, college, and the workforce. Academy Award-winning actor and narrator Chris Cooper contextualizes the lives of these central characters through the emotional story of his son Jesse, as the film unpacks the shameful and ongoing track record of intelligence testing in the U.S.

Following the screening, Executive Producer Amy Brenneman will lead a discussion of the film and the issues it raises.

"People with intellectual disabilities are the most segregated of all Americans," said Dan Habib, the producer, director and cinematographer of Intelligent Lives. "Only 17 percent of students with intellectual disabilities are included in regular education. Just 40 percent will graduate from high school. And of the 6.5 million Americans to improve the lives of children with learning with intellectual disability, barely 15 percent are

These Truths: A History of the United States by Jill Lepore

In the most ambitious one-volume American history in decades, awardwinning historian Jill Lepore offers a magisterial account of the origins and rise of a divided nation, an urgently needed reckoning with the beauty and tragedy of American history. Lepore's groundbreaking investigation places truth itself a devotion to facts, proof, and evidence at the center of the nation's history. The American experiment rests on three ideas "these truths," Jefferson called them political equality, natural rights, and the sovereignty of the people. And it rests, too, on a fearless dedication to inquiry, Lepore argues, because selfgovernment depends on it. But has the nation, and democracy itself, delivered on that promise? These Truths tells this uniquely American story, beginning in 1492, asking whether the course of events over more than five centuries has proven the nation's truths, or belied them. To answer that question, Lepore traces the intertwined histories of American politics, law, journalism, and technology, from the colonial town meeting to the nineteenth-century party machine, from talk radio to twenty-first-century Internet polls, from Magna Carta to the Patriot Act, from the printing press to Facebook News. Along the way, Lepore's sovereign chronicle is filled with arresting sketches of both well-known and lesser-known Americans, from a parade of presidents and a rogues' gallery of political mischief makers to the intrepid leaders of protest movements, including Frederick Douglass, the famed abolitionist orator; William Jennings Bryan, the three-time presidential candidate and ultimately tragic populist; Pauli Murray, the visionary civil rights strategist; and Phyllis Schlafly, the uncredited architect of modern conservatism. Americans are descended from slaves and slave owners, from conquerors and the conquered, from immigrants and from people who have fought to end immigration. "A nation born in contradiction will fight forever over the meaning of its history," Lepore writes, but engaging in that struggle by studying the past is part of the work of citizenship. "The past is an inheritance, a gift and a burden," These Truths observes. "It can't be shirked. There's nothing for it but to get to know it."

> Great Short Stories by American Women by Candace Ward

> Embracing a wide variety of subjects, this choice collection of 13 short stories represents the work of an elite group of American women writing in the 19th and earthly 20th centuries. The earliest stories are Rebecca Harding Davis' naturalistic "Life in the Iron Mills" (published in 1861) and predating Émile Zola's Germinal by almost 25 years) and Louisa May Alcott's semiautobiographical tale "Transcendental Wild Oats" (1873). The most recent ones are Zora Neale Hurston's "Sweat," an ironic tale of a failed marriage, published in 1926, and "Sanctuary" (1930), Nella Larsen's gripping and controversial tale of contested loyalty. In between is a grand cavalcade of superbly crafted fiction by Sarah Orne Jewett, Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Kate Chopin, Willa Cather, Alice Dunbar-Nelson, Diuna Barnes, Susan Glaspell and Edith Wharton. Brief biographies of each of the writers are included.

The Trouble with Women by Jacky Fleming

Perfect for fans of Kate Beaton, Lena Dunham, and Caitlin Moran, The Trouble with Women is a feminist's brilliant, tongue-in-cheek, hysterical look at women's "issues," "frailties," and 'failures" in our not-so-distant history. Ever noticed that women don't feature much in history books, and wondered why? Then this is the book for you. In The Trouble with Women, feminist artist Jacky Fleming illustrates how the opinions of supposed male geniuses, such as Charles Darwin (who believed that women have smaller brains than men) and John Ruskin (who believed that women's main function was to praise men), have shaped the fate of women through history, confining them to a life of domesticity and very little else. Get ready to laugh, wince, and rescue forgotten women from the "dustbin of history," while keeping a close eye out for tell-tale "genius hair,

DO WHAT'S ESSENTIAL, DO WHAT YOU LOVE!

Henry David Thoreau is a much-loved man of nature. is not new, Thoreau once wrote, We love him because he stopped to notice life, nature, and wrote about his observations. His simple thoughtful words are guides to remember to live and enjoy life.

I ask my clients to face the essential facts of life. I ask them to ask themselves, "what is essential?" As you rise to live each day, I invite you to live with enthusiasm. Are in engaged in a life that you truly love living? A little over two hundred years ago, a man lived for just under 45 years. He was an abolitionist, a handyman, and a writer. While Henry David Thoreau's life was brief, his writing continues to instruct and inspire.

"I went to the woods because I wished to live deliberately," Thoreau writes, "to front only the essential facts of life, and see if I could not learn what it had to teach, and not, when I came to die, discover that I had

Mr. Thoreau conducted an experiment where he went to the woods for two years, two months and two days to see what he could see and learn. He wanted to "suck the marrow out of life." I do too. We can decide to live intentionally.

Each of us is blessed with a unique view. Our interests, gifts, and talents are individual expressions of life, yet most people are stuck in a rut and are not enjoying their lives. If you are attentive, and on social media, you'll notice that many people are in a kind of groupthink, this more about her at www.GratitudeTrain.com

When I host a workshop, I help my guests ask themselves big questions, "what would I love?" In that question people discover their deepest desires: whether it's spending more time in nature, repairing a broken Lori A. Harris relationship, or learning to dance. That question is the spark of a dream. "If one advances confidently in the direction of his dreams, and endeavors to live the life which he has imagined, he will meet with a success unexpected in

FAILING U.S. CITIZENSHIP

"If younger generations don't know why and how America is such a great nation, we are doomed!"

"Ah, you speak of the recent Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation survey that finds only one in three Americans can pass the U.S. Citizenship Test."

"You got that right. Two-thirds of Americans failed the 10-multiple-choicequestion test even though they only needed six correct answers to pass."

"That is troubling. The foundation says, 'Only 13 percent of those surveyed knew when the U.S. Constitution was ratified. It says: 'More than half of respondents (60 percent) didn't know which countries the United States fought in World War II. And despite the recent media spotlight on the U.S. Supreme Court, 57 percent of those surveyed did not know how many Justices actually serve on the nation's highest court."

"What are these people being taught in high school and college?"

"A better question is what are they NOT being taught? As the foundation notes, 'It would be an error to view these findings as merely an embarrassment. Knowledge of the history of our country is fundamental to maintaining a democratic society, which is imperiled today."

"Just for the heck of it, I took the test. The questions aren't so difficult. How can so many Americans not answer at least six correctly?"

"The foundation reports that 72 percent of respondents weren't sure about or misidentified the 13 original states, and just 24 percent 'could correctly identify one thing Benjamin Franklin was famous for, with 37 percent believing he invented the lightbulb" - the same percentage who 'knew the correct answer as to why the colonists fought the British."

"Yeah, and I'm especially worried about the 2 percent who thought climate change was the cause of the Cold War!"

"The survey also found that younger generations are especially ignorant of the American system. Americans age 65 or older 'scored the best, with 74 percent answering at least six in 10 questions correctly.' But only 19 percent of those under 45 passed, 'with 81 percent scoring a 59 percent or lower."

"That means older generations, who understand the importance of checks and balances to restrict each government branch's power - and the triumph of our free-market system over socialism and communism - will eventually give way to younger generations who don't understand these basic concepts."

"Yes, that's our greatest worry. Per Chicago Tribune columnist Steve Chapman, the University of Chicago's GenForward Survey of Americans age 18 to 34 finds that 62 percent of them think 'we need a strong government to handle today's complex economic problems,' but only 35 percent say 'the free market can handle these problems without government being involved.' What's worse: 61 percent of millennial Democrats - and 25 percent of millennial Republicans - have a positive view of socialism."

"As I said, we're doomed!"

"Not if we heed the words of President Abraham Lincoln: 'America will never be destroyed from the outside. If we falter and lose our freedoms, it will be because we destroyed ourselves.' We have our work cut out for us, but we must teach the young why and how America became so great."

Tom Purcell, author of "Misadventures of a 1970's Childhood," a humorous memoir available at amazon.com, is a Pittsburgh Tribune-Review humor columnist

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Ms. Henderson:

Thank you for your column in the September 29th issue.

The raucous, ridiculous hearing showed the good ole boy mentality of our seventy and eighty year old male elected officials is still alive and well. So Kavanaugh drank too much and may have made sexual advances toward a woman when a young man, boys will be boys, so what. Let's get this nominee confirmed.

Michael Reagan, in his column the same day, admitted although he had been sexually assaulted but was vague on many details. Did he report the affair to his parents, other friends, the police? If so, when. Was he afraid he would not be believed, was he afraid he would be blamed for where he was, how he acted, what he said, what he

All the questions above are faced by a female suffering the same treatment. Young women faced the same questions if they reported sexual assault when it happened or even years after. Even today, girls and boys telling parents are not believed. It's a fact.

I was sexually assaulted by my stepgrandfather as a child. I do not remember the first time or how man times after. I didn't tell anyone. To this day, (I'm in my eighties) this is the first time I have admitted it to anyone. I know my cousin, six months older, was also a victim. I ton't think she ever told anyone, but I'm not sure. I also don't know if her older brother or sister was also a victim.

When I was in my teens, I hinted at my cousin's abuse to my grandmother, father and step mother in one day. It was obvious they either didn't understand what I was trying to tell them or if they simply chose not to accept the truth.

When a man sexually assaults or abuses a woman, whether it was thirty years or thirty minutes ago, it makes no difference. That man's thought process is rightfully brought into question. While the Supreme Court Justices are to rule base on the Constitution and Rule of Law, they are human and their mental state of mind can determine their decisions.

It is my hope that women, watching the hearing and reading your column, will no longer tolerate men who don't deserve our support and vote accordingly.

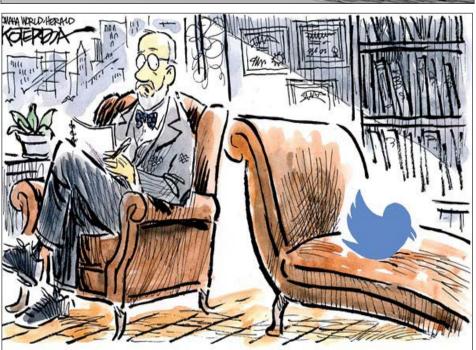

Please, if you print any or all of this letter, do not print my name. There are others alive who do not need to know my story. I'm just telling you so you understand how much your column meant to me and should to other women. Sierra Madre Resident

Dear Reader: Thank you for your letter. I hope your sharing will also help others understand the dirty little secrets that women and men have kept inside for so long and work to become part of the solution by voting. We need to vote for elected officials that will protect everyone, and who will never again elevate predators and self serving individuals to positions of power.

TRUMP GOES FULL TRUMP IN YET ANOTHER PENNSYLVANIA RALLY

ERIE, PA - With his second U.S. Supreme Court confirmation in the bag, President Donald Trump took a victory lap around this city by the lake on Wednesday night, skewering "radical" Capitol Hill Democrats and the "dishonest" media, even as he exhorted supporters to vote in next month's midterm election.

Standing in a hockey arena just blocks from the shores of Lake Erie, Trump called Democratic efforts to defeat new Justice Brett M. Kavanaugh's nomination "a national disgrace," and dismissed Democrats "as the party of crime."

Amid predictions of a Democratic take-over the House and a possible one in the Senate, Trump warned that if current House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi and "the Democrats take over Congress, they will try to raise your taxes - we've lowered them tremendously - impose socialism, which is where they are coming from; and take over and destroy American health

"I say this and I mean this, the Democrats are the party of crime," Trump continued. "Republicans are the party of law, order and justice. And we are also the party of jobs, jobs, jobs." Across an hour-long speech, Trump hit on familiar themes. He touted tax cuts passed last December, bragged about the resurgence of "beautiful, clean Pennsylvania coal," his renegotiation of the North American Free Trade Agreement, and his efforts to contain illegal immigration. Still, Trump's visit to Pennsylvania, his second in as many weeks and seventh in 2018, comes at a tenuous time for Keystone State Republicans. State party leaders have already acknowledged that they will lose House seats in the mid-term contest. The question is how many seats will be turned.

Pennsylvania was central to Trump's 2016 White House win. He beat Democrat Hillary Clinton by 44,000 votes, snapping a three-decade-old presidential winning streaks for Democrats. But thanks to a court-imposed congressional map that strengthened the Democrats' hand, as many as a half-dozen Pennsylvania seats could flip from red to blue in November.

While Republicans narrowed the enthusiasm gap with Democrats nationally in the wake of the conflagration surrounding Kavanaugh's confirmation, the generic ballot remains favorable to Democrats by an average of 6.9 percentage points, according to RealClear Politics.

Republican Senate candidate Lou Barletta has struggled to close a fund-raising and polling gap with Democratic incumbent Democratic Sen. Bob Casey, who has held an average 16-point lead in the race, according to RealClear Politics. Trump, who nicknamed Casey "Sleepy Bob" during a rally in Wilkes-Barre in August, kept up his drumbeat of criticism against the two-term Democrat.

"While Lou is fighting for you, Bob Casey is fighting to protect violent criminal aliens. Bob Casey voted for deadly sanctuary cities that release thousands upon thousands of violent criminal gang members to prey on Pennsylvania citizens," Trump said.

Trump also repeated a false claim that Casey wants to abolish Immigration and Customs Enforcement. He does not.

"Pennsylvanians will see these desperate scare tactics for what they are because they know Bob Casey has always fought for them," Casey's campaign spokesman, Max Steele, said in an email. The race between Erie-area Republican Rep. Mike Kelly, a four-term incumbent, and Democrat Ron DiNicola, a former Marine and former Erie County solicitor, has been a talker in northwestern Pennsylvania this year.

"Take the enthusiasm you have tonight and the love you have in your hear for the greatest nation in the history of mankind, and you're going to get out and vote," Kelly said. "You're going to turnout in numbers you never thought you'd turn out. You've got to play it through the whistle." As he has at other rallies, Trump made it clear Wednesday that it's on his MAGA faithful to turn out on Election Day.

"I need your help this Election Day on Nov. 6 to stop the radical Democrat mob from trying to take it away. I need you to show up at the polls to continue this incredible movement, like the country has never seen before. The only reason to vote Democrat is if you are tired of winning."

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge vou a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 916-939-0772 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this Internet Web site http://www.qualityloan.com, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: 261579CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the property address or other common designation, if any, shown herein. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days. of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. If the sale is set aside for any reason, including if the Trustee is unable to convey title, the Purchaser at the sale shall be entitled only to a return of the monies paid to the Trustee. This shall be the Purchaser's sole and exclusive remedy. The purchaser shall have no further recourse against the Trustor, the Trustee, the Beneficiary, the Beneficiary's Agent, or the Beneficiary's Attorney. If you have previously been discharged through bankruptcy, you may have been released of personal liability for this loan in which case this letter is intended to exercise the note holders right's against the real property only.
