URGENT FIRE WEATHER WARNING

National Weather Service Los Angeles/Oxnard CA

NOW IN EFFECT UNTIL 5 PM PST TUESDAY NOVEMBER 13, 2018

GUSTY NORTH TO NORTHEAST WINDS AND VERY LOW RELATIVE HUMID-ITY FOR THE VALLEYS OF LOS ANGELES AND VENTURA COUNTIES...

A red flag warning is a forecast warning issued by the United States National Weather Service to inform area firefighting and land management agencies that conditions are ideal for wildland fire combustion, and rapid spread.[1] After drought conditions, when humidity is very low, and especially when there are high or erratic winds which may include lightning as a factor, the Red Flag Warning becomes a critical statement for firefighting agencies. These agencies often alter their staffing and equipment resources dramatically to accommodate the forecast risk. To the public, a Red Flag Warning means high fire danger with increased probability of a quickly spreading vegetation fire in the area within 24 hours.

Sierra Madre-Pasadena-

KATIE Tse.....This and That LATITUDE ZERO

statement that it's Springtime! SO EMBARRASSING! I actually updated it with a little disclaimer at the beginning, but in my haste I must not have clicked "save." Anyway, so sorry about that!

This week's offering is a movie review about a very cheesy cinematic gem my dad discovered on the Internet among other forgotten relics from Hollywood. In this case, it wasn't Hollywood, Japan.

Takarada Akira Masumi and Okada star in this production. Joseph

Cotten, Caesar Romero, and Richard Jaekel are the only recognizable American actors (at least, the only ones I knew outside of this movie). The plot in a nutshell is that an Perry Lawton (Jaekel) an American journalist and photographer, along with a Dr. Ken Tashiro, a Japanese oceanographer (Takarada), and a Dr. Jules Masson, a supposedly French geologist (Okada) meet with disaster shortly after they embark on a deep sea exploration in a tiny diving pod. They are rescued by Cotten, who introduces himself as Craig McKenzie, Captain of the Alpha, a futuristic submarine manned primarily by Kobo, a burly Japanese fellow (Kin Omae) and Dr. Barton, a scantily clad blonde (Linda Haynes), and some other crewmen.

Masson took the worst of hit of three men when their pod was violently severed from the main ship by means of an underwater volcanic eruption. Barton recommends docking at Latitude Zero so that Okada can receive advanced medical treatment. Latitude Zero is a Utopian deep ocean piece of real estate protected by an expansive selectively permeable barrier, like a big bubble enclosing acre upon acre of fertile land. Its citizens do not ascribe to any one particular nation or political ideology (Ah, how refreshing!), and live together in peaceful harmony. They're mostly made up of intellectuals and scientists on the cutting edge of technological progress.

First off I want to apologize Slowly, the three rescued men come to realize that for last week's article! I've many of Latitude Zero's inhabitants are in fact quite made a horrible habit of older than they appear, and many of them were recycling old articles when I reported to have mysteriously vanished from the fail to finish something new outside world. Tashiro and Masson embrace this any given week. If you read newfound paradise, but Lawton is skeptical. With last week's, it started with the Craig's permission, he pockets a small bag of diamonds to sell when the men return home. Latitude Zero's population use diamonds as common potting soil!

Masson eventually wakes up and there's the suggestion that he and Barton have some romantic involvement. who couldn't fall for a knock out like Barton who goes around in a backless gold lame mini skirt? Only the most professional apparel for doctors aboard the Alpha.

Conflict comes in the form of Malic (Romero), an evil scientist and long time rival of McKenzie. His minion, female

Captain Kuroiga (Hikaru Kuroki), commands the Black Shark, another super submarine that constantly goads McKenzie and the Alpha. Kuroiga is in love with Malic, who already has an evil partner in crime (Patricia Medina as "Lucretia," in real life married to Joseph Cotten!), but he's just using Kuroiga's loyalty to further his own dastardly plans.

The highlight of the whole film is when Malic surgically removes Kuroiga's brain and implants it in a lion and attaches condor wings to the whole thing. He accomplishes this feat of medical ingenuity in about 5 minutes, laughing wickedly all the way. Both the lion and condor are stuffed animals with absolutely no attempt at realism. Clearly this production didn't budget anything for special effects.

The good guys win and Lawton wakes up to find himself rescued by Captain Glenn McKenzie (Cotten again) and Lt. Hastings (Romero again). In disbelief he opens his film canister to discover blank tape. His pouch of diamonds, too, turns out to be nothing but tobacco. Was it all just a dream? But then a wire comes in, informing Lawton that cache of diamonds has been deposited in a New York safety deposit box in his name. Maybe it wasn't a dream after all!

Great stuff! Highly recommend you watch it for yourself. Just fast forward to the lion-condor bit at least, that's the best part.

"New England Clam Chowder, made as it should be, is a dish to preach about, to chant praises and sing hymns and burn incense before...it is as National Anthem. It is Yankee Doodle in a kettle!" Joseph C. Lincoln

"You can't escape the taste of the food you had comfort. It brings you home." Jacques Pepin

Now that Halloween is behind us, we can start thinking about something other than whether 8 slices bacon, chopped we'll have enough candy for the trick or treaters or if we should buy another bag of baby Milky Ways. It's still pumpkin pancake season and my survey says that the best ones this year are to be found at MiMi's Café. They are thin, very pumpkin-y and 1 cup regular strength chicken broth simply delicious, served with an apple topping you 3 medium size red potatoes (about a lb.) peeled can have on the side if you want your pancakes unsullied... Just saying...

Thanksgiving is coming and we might be Pepper wondering if we could possibly serve a new dish this year. Maybe, but all the old favorites have to make don't subtract.

We've still got a couple of weeks before we cans gives me plenty of clams. There's prob have to start getting serious about Thanksgiving, better bargain but I haven't looked for one.) ordering the festive bird from Taylor's and so forth, and I've been thinking about clam chowder. I don't think anybody in my family has ever turned to my clam chowder as their 'go to' comfort food when the chips are down and life has been yucky. I think cheese toasties would win that contest and I've put them in this column before, I think. Scrambled egg sandwiches would be high on my list. Couple of eggs scrambled, toasted bread with a little mayo and mustard. Easy, warm and very comforting. Pizza is big in the comfort food department as you can order it no matter where you are and someone will bring it in no time at all. Right now, though, clam chowder sounds good. My husband, the adorable John, now residing in heaven and welcoming old friend, Charlie Kissinger, was very fond of peanut butter sandwiches. That was his favorite snack, lunch, occasional dinner and it had to be Laura Scudder's Nutty. My mother was also partial to peanut butter sandwiches, but with mayo and lettuce. To each his own, right? I like peanut butter and jam or apple butter.

Back to clam chowder... I like the white (New England) kind as opposed to the red (Manhattan) kind. Actually, I like that kind, too. But today we're American as the Stars & Stripes, as patriotic as the talking New England. Anyway, I really do love it, especially when I can find a few clams in it and it's not made totally of something resembling wallpaper paste. This version is not so thick you as a child. In times of stress, what do you dream have to eat it with a fork, and I, personally, think about? Your mother's clam chowder. It's security, it's awesome. It's easy to make, doesn't take all day to do and you'll like it. Trust me.

Voters Pass Pasadena Tax Measures

Voters in Pasadena overwhelmingly passed two ballot measures during Tuesday's election, Measure I enacting a new threequarter cent sales tax and Measure J which gives part of the revenue generated to the school system.

Measure I, passed with 68 percent of the vote, is projected to generate $21 million annually, of that, Measure J allows $7 million to go to the PUSD. Measure J passed with over 70 percent of the vote.

On Thursday, the school board was told, by the county, they are not allowed to calculate the Measure J revenue into the current budget shortfall. PUSD officials have until Nov. 15 to cut $10 million from the next two years, a decision that includes the closing of schools. Any new Measure J founds will be used to stabilized their budget in the longterm, including innovation and enhancements to academic programs. PUSD Superintendent Brian McDonald said (see "Thank You Letter" page 3). The PUSD has a mandated Congressman Adam Schiff also won getting 76 percent of the votes, wining his district that includes a small part of Pasadena that includes JPL.

Property Owners Pack Retrofit Meeting

By Dean Lee

City officials were caught off guard Thursday night as residents, mostly longtime property owners jam-packed the city hall council chambers during a meeting to provide general information about a proposed ordinance requiring retrofitting of wood soft-story apartments and condominium buildings.

"We never expected this outcome," Pasadena Building Official Sarkis Nazerian said. "I think I would have gotten a bigger room."

Many of those that attended stood outside a hallway watching the meeting on a televison provided by city staff. Inside people stood along every wall and cramped doorways trying to see. Most of the questions asked during the two hour meeting dealt with what exactly a wood soft-story building is? Many of the property owners held copies of a letter from the city saying their property had been placed on a list as "soft-story"

According to city staff, wood soft-story buildings are woodframed buildings with more than one story that typically have extensive ground story windows, garage doors, or openair spaces (such as parking) with little or no solid walls.

Zepeda said a survey was done in 2007. They estimated around 500 soft-story buildings citywide with approximately 4,500 units. Many owners asked about cost. Nazerian said Pasadena did not have a cost estimates although Zepeda and Nazerian both said city consultant helping draft in Los Angeles retrofit cost the proposed ordinance. He simply said the goal of the ordinance voluntary something Nazerian said they could look into. Any voluntary retrofitting program would not qualify for grant funding they both cautioned.

Nazerian said, if the ordinance passed, the only way for a property owner to be removed from the list is having an engineer writeoff that the retrofitting had been done. He did say that if someone though they are on the list by mistake, to call city hall and a city building inspector would look at the property.

Nazerian said the proposed ordinance would be discussed by the Public Safety Committee in December and then finalized in January. The ordinance would then go the city council sometime in January or February.

MONROVIA RECOMMEND-ED TO RECEIVE $4 MILLION TRANSPORTATION IMPROVEMENT GRANT FROM MEASURE M SUB-REGIONAL FUNDS THROUGH THE SGVCOG, FUNDING WOULD BE USED TO MAKE TRAFFIC & MO-BILITY IMPROVEMENTS AT I-210 UNDERPASSES AND AT STATION SQUARE

In November 2016, LA County voters approved Measure M, which is a 1/2-cent sales tax increase, which is expected to generate around $120 billion over the next 40 years for transportation enhancements across the region. As part of the authorized funding formula, a certain portion of Measure M funds have been set aside for different regions within LA County, and in mid-2017, Metro approved a process through which those funds would be distributed to sub-regional areas.

For the San Gabriel Valley, the San Gabriel Valley Council of Governments (SGVCOG) was the entity selected to distribute the Measure M Subregional Funds, and during the current 5-year funding cycle, there is an estimated ~$31.7 million in available funding for local transportation projects. As the SGVCOG has worked to distribute those funds, Monrovia submitted a grant request asking for $4 million to make various active transportation enhancements at our I-210 Freeway underpasses, and in the area around Station Square.

Based on the current review process engaged by the SGVCOG, we are so pleased to share that after review by 4 different SGVCOG committees, Monrovia's $4 million grant request has been recommended for formal approval! The full SGVCOG Board is scheduled to consider the approval at their meeting in November 2018.

We are hopeful that these funds will be awarded to the City here in the near future, as staff has engaged project delivery efforts to ensure that we will be able to make the underpass and Station Square traffic improvements identified in our grant request.

DUARTE VOTERS ELECT TWO NEW COUNCILMEMBERS, RETURN LONG-TIME INCUMBENTS AND PASS MEASURE F BANNING LEGAL FIREWORKS IN TUESDAY'S ELECTION

DUARTE, CA, November 7, 2018 - Duarte residents set the course for the community's future November 6th by electing its first, seven member, by District City Council and by deciding to ban the sale and discharge of legal fireworks in the City.

Twelve candidates vied for four District based seats with residents returning long-time incumbents Margaret Finlay and Tzeitel Paras Caracci to their new District seats. Specifically, in District No. 1, Paras Caracci, local business owner of "See Jack Play" defeated Dolores Ortiz, a Production Manager and in District No. 4, Margaret Finlay, a six-term Mayor and immediate Past President of the Southern California Association of Governments defeated David Van de Wetering, a Management Assistant.

The race also featured two new Districts Nos. 6 and 7 that each had four candidates. In District No. 6, Bryan Urias, a Director from the Upper San Gabriel Municipal Water District came out on top against his other three opponents: Art Rodriguez Jr., a Business Consultant, Cesar Andres Garcia, a Business Person/Entertainer, and Evangelina Sanchez, an Educator. In District No. 7, with close to 50% of the vote, Jocelyn Nunez, a Healthcare Professional defeated Jarrett Stoltzfus, a Transportation Management Professional, Mike Sharble, a Service Director, and Jack Corson Chang, a Business Owner. No candidate filed against incumbent Samuel Kang in District No. 5 allowing the Council to re-appoint him to another four-year term earlier this year in a special meeting.

By a little over 1 percent, the Duarte community closely voted to ban the sale and discharge of safe and sane fireworks in the City by approving Measure F, 50.83% to 49.17%. Note: mail in and provisional ballots have not been counted which could effect the final official outcome of the measure. Earlier this year, the Duarte City Council had voted to put the measure prohibiting the sale of and discharge of legal fireworks starting in 2019 before the voters on the upcoming November 2018 ballot. Prior to that vote and over the last few years, a growing number of residents had begun to express significant concern regarding the sale and discharge of both legal and illegal fireworks in the City. Safe and sane fireworks sales and usage had been legal in the City since incorporation in

The Los Angeles County Registrar Recorder's Office does not officially certify election results until December 4, 2018. Per City ordinance, the newly elected Councilmembers and the annual City Council reorganization meeting where a new Mayor will be selected occurs at the first meeting in December or December 11th. For additional information on the election or ballot measure results, please call Duarte City Hall at 626 357-7931.

NED & PRINCE

My aunt Evelyn Swallow-Leake was born the eldest of three children in Worcester, Massachusetts in Happy Tails November, 1913. She, my mother and my uncle grew up during the Great Depression. It was a difficult time in American history, but to hear my by Chris Leclerc aunt Evelyn talk about it, you'd think those days were purely ethereal. She'd get pretty excited when she shared her childhood memories and I truly enjoyed hearing them. I did my best to document her stories as she told them, to help keep her memories alive.

In one of my conversations with Aunt Evelyn, she recounted a very vivid recollection of having accompanied her uncle (my great uncle) on lumber deliveries from one part of town to the other, in a horsedrawn cart. She was about 10-years-old at the time, and she remembered waiting by the road side after school

She remembered riding along with him as he finished his deliveries, then helping him to take the horses back to the

Aunt Evelyn's face lit up every time she reflected on her memory of the two horses that pulled uncle Carl's lumber cart. She delighted in relaying her memories of giving each one a carrot and a friendly pat on the nose before being hoisted up and assuming her position in the seat next to Carl, and off they'd go. I was surprised she remembered the name of the company Carl worked for; Stone & Berg Lumber Company in Worcester, Massachusetts. But even more amazing was the fact that she remembered the names of the horses that pulled the cart! She was certain they were Ned & Prince. Soon after aunt Evelyn told me this fascinating story, I decided to do a little research on Stone & Berg Lumber Company just to see if there was any history I could connect to her childhood memory, and I'm happy to say my Google search rendered far more than I'd expected to find.

Much to my surprise, I learned that Stone & Berg is still in business. Of course, they no longer deliver lumber via horse-drawn cart, but they are still operating as a building supply company in Worcester. I to listen as I told her about Evelyn's memories of being on Stone & Berg delivery excursions with her uncle Carl in the 1920's. Jennie was pleased that someone remembered the early days when her family's business was still in the hands of her grandfather. Then came the bombshell when Jennie confirmed that the horses' names were, indeed, Ned & Prince!

Soon after our phone conversation, Jennie sent for uncle Carl to pass by, towing a load of lumber. me a package of Stone & Berg Lumber Company

It did my

my aunt Evelyn's remarkable childhood memory full circle and back to life. All it took was a listening ear and a little research on my part, along with a bit of random kindness on the part of a friendly stranger who appreciated that someone remembered a moment in time from her family history. Teamwork - that's what took - but we couldn't have done it without the help of that awesome team of two eloquent equines, Ned & Prince! Rest in peace, Auntie Evelyn. I miss

Besides soothing a sore throat and a cough, horehound is an expectorant, which means it can help clear your throat when it is congested.

To make horehound tea, I collect the young leaves in the spring. They can be used fresh or dried. like. Somebody is thinking it employees. is my wife's birthday and our wedding anniversary.

I worked that out a long time ago. My birthday is two days before the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage and our anniversary is three weeks after our birthday. No way can I forget that.

When my wife gives me a birthday card with needed done. some gift it reminds me that I have two days to reciprocate. And reciprocate, I do very well. I love it when a plan comes together.

I remember my wife's birthday and I remember our wedding anniversary, but more often than not, I cannot remember the years. I do not know how old my wife is. At least, that's my story. And, I am not sure how long we've been married.

I know we have been married long enough to work out many things.

The two days I'm not very happy with are the days when we turn the clock forward an hour and then turn the clock backward an hour. I still do not know why in the world we do that. We gain an hour in the spring, but then we lose an hour in the fall. What's the sense in all that?

I finally figured out what the sense of all that is. It is to confuse me, in particular. It is not that I am easily confused, but rather, I confuse easily. If that makes sense, I have a bridge I want to sell you. Why would you want to gain something and then give it back a couple months later?

I grew up in the non-technical age. I had to wind my watch every day to make sure it had the right time. It was not like it is today worth the time is set hysterically. automatically.

I look at my cell phone and the time is updated automatically. I look at our TV set and see that the time is updated automatically. I like that.

My problem is that I like it too much. I have become accustomed to things being adjusted automatically.

Now they have cars that part automatically and you can be sure I'm not going to buy one. I am satisfied with the automatic setting of my clock and

When I was in high school, I worked part-time for a woman. I mowed the grass and cleaned inside the house. One big thing she had in the house was about 25 clocks. I'm serious. Twenty-five clocks

The thing I did not know of course, the clocks were all set different on different levels of the house. I went around and set all 25 clocks to the same time. I was so happy.

I did not tell her because I wanted her to be

I was anxious to hear her commend me for a "job well done." I was not prepared for what she was going to do.

When I arrived on her property, she comes out yelling and screaming at me at the top of her lungs. Trust me, she had lungs. At first, I could not understand what she was so upset about.

"Did you," she said hysterically, "reset all the clocks in my house?"

I smiled back at her and said quite cheerfully,

"Yes, ma'am, I did." Courtesy keeps me from quoting her right here. It was more than French she was yelling back at me.

I have never been yelled at so much in my life and I did not really understand why. I stayed away from her for a couple of days and then I was working for her husband at his store. When I walked in, he looked at me and laughed

I was not sure what he was laughing at that he motioned me to come over. So, I did.

"My wife," he said between laughs, "told me what you did the other day." Then he broke into some more hysterical laughter. Why he was so cheerful about the incident was beyond me at the time.

Then he sat me down and explained the whole situation to me. I must confess when he finished telling me the whole story, I joined him in some hysterical laughter. We kept this to ourselves for as long as I worked there.

I thought of what Paul said, "Let's not get tired of doing what is good, for at the right time we will reap a harvest—if we do not give up" (Galatians

DILLS WINE PICKS FOR YOUR TURKEY PART 1

Thanksgiving is upon us and it is my sworn duty to come up with a handful of wines that will go with a traditional oven baked turkey /smoked turkey, even the duck substitution will go well with my list. First, sorry in advance for all my chardonnay loving readers (see blow for my apology) A high-acid, low-tannin Pinot, with bright cherry and cranberry flavors over rich spices, can do right by almost all the exuberant side dishes any turkey might require. B Side out of Sonoma makes a marvelous Pinot Noir under $20 it is a winner

My second choice, though, isn't a surprise, at least if you love bubbles like I do. Two California Sparklers that I enjoy, Domaine Carneros Brut ($30) from the house of Taittinger, I have said that this wine from California comes as close to a 'real" champagne that I've had, I picked up a bottle recently at Pavilions and it will also go great with Prime Rib. Newsweek Magazine selected the Roederer Estate their value for the New millennium and I agree, when I am shopping for that $20 wine it is my go to choice. How about a Rose, my friend Jason Valenzuela, wine steward par excellence recommends the Virage Rose it hails from Napa Valley and if you can find it for less than $20 buy it !! Last but not least do consider a Cabernet, a favorite side kick of Prime Rib for years, our own Maddelena has an outstanding one and the price of $15 is perfect for the holidays, who does Prime Rib on Thanksgiving? I must admit the Dills household has been doing it for years.

My Chardonnay apology, all that sauce, butter, gravy will absolutely kill any hope of your favorite buttery Oaky Chardonnay, though I defend your right to drink what you like to drink at any holiday party!

Peering through thick walls of gas and dust surrounding the messy cores of merging galaxies, astronomers are getting their best view yet of close pairs of supermassive black holes as they march toward coalescence into mega black holes.

A team of researchers led by Michael Koss of Eureka Scientific Inc., in Kirkland, Washington, performed the largest survey of the cores of nearby galaxies in near-infrared light, using high-resolution images taken by NASA's Hubble Space Telescope (http://www.nasa.gov/hubble) and the W. M. Keck Observatory (http:// keckobservatory.org) in Hawaii. The Hubble observations represent over 20 years' worth of snapshots from its vast archive.

"Seeing the pairs of merging galaxy nuclei associated with these huge black holes so close together was pretty amazing," Koss said. "In our study, we see two galaxy nuclei right when the images were taken. You can't argue with it; it's a very 'clean' result, which doesn't rely on interpretation."

The images also provide a close-up preview of a phenomenon that must have been more common in the early universe, when galaxy mergers were more frequent. When galaxies collide, their monster black holes can unleash powerful energy in the form of gravitational waves, the kind of ripples in space-time that were just recently detected by ground-breaking

The new study also offers a preview of what will likely happen in our own cosmic backyard, in several billion years, when our Milky Way combines with the neighboring Andromeda galaxy and their respective central black holes

"Computer simulations of galaxy smashups show us that black holes grow fastest during the final stages of mergers, near the time when the black holes interact, and that's what we have found in our survey," said study team member Laura Blecha of the University of Florida, in Gainesville. "The fact that black holes grow faster and faster as mergers progress tells us monstrously big."

FRED KAMPHUES CLINCHES 3RD PLACE IN THE LO206 SENIOR CLASS IN THE 2018 LOS ANGELES KARTING CHAMPIONSHIP

Sierra Madre resident Fred Kamphues competed this year in the popular LO206 4-stroke category in the Los Angeles Karting Championship.
With two wins and two second places, Fred Kamphues managed to secure 3rd overall in the championship.

'I discovered this type of motorsport in April and immediately got hooked, says Fred. LO206 is a relatively inexpensive form of karting. 'The engines are factory sealed and last all season without a rebuild. A set of tires can be used for 2-3 races. This very much levels the playing field between amateurs and pros. Races are usually extremely close. It's not uncommon for the first 10 drivers to finish a race within 2 seconds of each other and lap times are only fractions of a second apart. One small mistake can make the difference between a podium and finishing at the back of the pack.' The LO206 championships look to become even stronger in 2019, as several classes are likely to merge in grids with 20-30

Fred is currently supported by local Sierra Madre realtor Reni Rose and Eurol Lubricants from the Netherlands.

He is determined to further step up his game with a rigorous winter testing schedule and is aiming for more podiums in 2019.

THE GOOD LIFE

WHEN YOU NEED HELP CARING FOR AN AGING PARENT

Dear Savvy Senior.

Where can I turn for caregiving help? I help take care of my 78-year-old mother and work too, and it's wearing me to a frazzle.

Exhausted Daughter

Dear Exhausted,

Taking care of an aging parent over a period of time - especially when juggling work and other family obligations - can be physically and mentally exhausting. But help and resources are available.

To help you determine and prioritize the kinds of help you need, a good first step is to make a list of everything you do as a caregiver, big and small. Note the amount of time each one takes every day, week or month. Identify the times when you need help the most and which tasks others might be able to do for you, like making lunch for your mother when you're

Then list the types of care needed, such as simple companionship or doing active chores, like food shopping. Once you determine this, here are some tips and places you can reach out to for help.

Caregiving Help

If you have siblings or other loved ones close by, schedule a family meeting, in person or by phone, to discuss specific tasks they could provide. See if friends, neighbors or faith group members could help too.

You should also investigate resources in your mom's town. Many communities offer a range of free or subsidized services that help seniors and caregivers with basic needs such as home delivered meals, transportation, senior companion services and respite services, which offers short-term care so you can take an occasional break. Call your Area Agency on Aging (call 800-677-1116 for contact information) for referrals to services available in your community, or for respite services see ARCHrespite.org/respitelocator.

If you can afford it, you may want to hire someone part-time to help with things like preparing meals, housekeeping or even personal care. Costs can run anywhere from $12 up to $25 per hour. To find someone, ask for referrals through your mom's doctor or area hospital discharge planners, or try websites like Care.com, CareLinx.com, CareFamily.com or CareSpotter.com.

Financial Aids

If your handling your mom's financial chores, make things easier by arranging for direct deposit for her income sources, and set up automatic payments for her utilities and other routine bills. You may also want to set up your mom's online banking service, so you can pay bills and monitor her account anytime. Or, if you need help, hire a daily money manager (AADMM com) to do it for you. They charge between $25 and $100 per hour.

BenefitsCheckup.org is another excellent resource to look for financial assistance programs that may help your mom, particularly if she's lower-income.

Technology Assistance

To help you keep tabs on your mom when you are away at work or if she lives alone, there are affordable technologies that can help.

For example, there are medical alert systems (like Bay Alarm Medical, BayAlarmMedical.com), which provide a wearable "help button" that would allow your mom to call for help anytime she needed it.

Or, you could install a video-monitoring camera (like Lighthouse Al, Light.house/elderly-care) that lets you check in on her anytime via your smartphone or computer. These cameras have built-in motion and sound detection that will let you know when something is detected, and two-way audio that will let you talk and listen to her.

There are even websites (like LotsaHelpingHands com) that can help you more easily coordinate care with other family members.

Insurance Questions?

If you have questions about Medicare, Medicaid or long-term care, your State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP) offers free counseling and advice on these issues. Call 877-839-2675 or visit ShiptaCenter. org to locate a nearby counselor. You can also get help through the Medicare Rights Center, which staffs a help-line at 800-333-4114.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, Ok 73070, or visit SavvySenior.org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

Washington's Farewell: The Founding Father's Warning to Future Generations by John Avlon

"A vivid portrait... A thoughtful consideration of Washington's wisdom that couldn't be timelier." -Kirkus Reviews .George Washington's Farewell Address was a prophetic letter from a "parting friend" to his fellow citizens about the forces he feared could destroy our democracy: hyper-partisanship, excessive debt, and foreign wars. Once celebrated as civic scripture, more widely reprinted than the Declaration of Independence, the Farewell Address is now almost forgotten. Its message remains starkly relevant. In Washington's Farewell, John Avlon offers a stunning portrait of our first president and his battle to save America from self-destruction. At the end of his second term, Washington surprised Americans by publishing his Farewell message in a newspaper. The President called for unity among "citizens by birth or choice," advocated moderation, defended religious pluralism, proposed a foreign policy of independence (not isolation), and proposed that education is essential to democracy. He established the precedent for the peaceful transfer of power. Washington's urgent message was adopted by Jefferson after years of opposition and quoted by Lincoln in defense of the Union. Woodrow Wilson invoked it for nation-building; Eisenhower for Cold War; Reagan for religion. Now the Farewell Address may inspire a new generation to re-center our politics and reunite our nation through the lessons rooted in Washington's experience. As John Avlon describes the perilous state of the new nation that Washington was preparing to leave as its leader, with enduring wisdom, he reveals him to be the indispensable Founding

The Allies: Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin, and the Unlikely Alliance That Won World War II Kindle Edition by Winston

Best-selling author Winston Groom tells the complex story of how Franklin Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, and Joseph Stalin--the three iconic and vastly different Allied leaders--aligned to win World War II and created a new world order. By the end of World War II, 59 nations were arrayed against the axis powers, but three great Allied leaders--Franklin Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, and Joseph Stalin--had emerged to control the war in Europe and the Pacific. Vastly different in upbringing and political beliefs, they were not always in agreement--or even on good terms. But, often led by Churchill's enduring spirit, in the end these three men changed the course of history. Using the remarkable letters between the three world leaders, enriching narrative details of their personal lives, and riveting tales of battles won and lost, best-selling historian Winston Groom returns to share one of the biggest stories of the 20th century: The interwoven and remarkable tale, and a fascinating study of leadership styles, of three world leaders who fought the largest war

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

USE ESTATE PLANNING TO ENRICH YOUR FAMILY WITH MORE THAN JUST MATERIAL WEALTH

In the weeks before her death from ovarian cancer, author Amy Krouse Rosenthal gave her husband Jason one of the most treasured gifts a person could

She penned the touching essay "You May Want to Marry My Husband" in the New York Times as a final love letter to him. The essay took the form of a heart-wrenching yet-humorous dating profile that encouraged him to begin dating again once she was gone. In her opening description of Jason, she writes: "He is an easy man to fall in love with. I did it in one

What followed was an intimate list of attributes and anecdotes, highlighting what she loved most about Jason. It reads like a love story, encompassing 26 years of marriage, three grown children, and a bond that will last forever. She finished the essay on Valentine's Day, concluding with:

"The most genuine, non-vase-oriented gift I can hope for is that the right person reads this, finds Jason, and another love story begins."

Just 10 days after the essay was published in March 2017, Amy died at age 51.

Amy's essay immediately went viral, and Jason received countess letters from women across the globe. Although he has yet to begin a new relationship, Jason said the outpouring of letters gave him "solace and even laughter" in the darkest days following his wife's death.

Just over a year later, Jason wrote his own essay for the Times, "My Wife Said You May Want to Marry Me," in which he expressed how grateful he was for Amy's words and recounted the lessons he'd learned about loss and grief since her passing.

He said his wife's parting gift "continues to open doors for me, to affect my choices, to send me off into the world to make the most of it." Jason has since given a TED Talk on his grieving process in hopes of helping others deal with loss, something he said he never would've done without Amy's motivation.

Toward the end of his essay, Jason gave readers a bit of advice for how they can provide their loved ones with a similar gift:

"Talk with your mate, your children, and other loved ones about what you want for them when you are gone," he wrote. "By doing this, you give them liberty to live a full life and eventually find meaning

Preserving your intangible assets

This moving story highlights what could be the most valuable, yet often-overlooked aspect of estate planning. Planning isn't just about preserving and passing on your financial wealth and property in the event of your death or incapacity. When done right, it equates to sharing your family's stories, values, life lessons, and experiences, so your legacy carries on long after you (and your money) are gone.

Indeed, as the Rosenthals demonstrate, these intangible assets can be among the most profound gifts you can give. Of course, not everyone has the talent or time to write a similarly moving essay or have it published in the New York Times, nor is that necessary.

Priceless conversations

Our Family Legacy Interview (included in all of our estate plans) guides you to create a customized video in which you share your most insightful memories and life lessons with those you love most.

We've developed a series of helpful questions and prompts to make the process of sharing your life experiences not only easy, but enjoyable. And this isn't something you have to do on your own—which you know you wouldn't get around to—as we do it with you as an integral part of your planning services.

In the end, your family's most precious wealth is not money, but the memories you make, the values you instill, and the lessons you hand down. And left to chance, these assets are likely to be lost forever.

If you want to pass down a truly meaningful legacy, one that can provide the kind of inspiration Amy's letter did for Jason, contact us. Our customized estate planning services will preserve and pass on not only your financial wealth, but your most treasured family values as well. Start by scheduling a Family Estate Planning Session, where we'll discuss what kind of assets you have, what matters most to you, and what you want to leave behind.

Dedicated to empowering your family, building your wealth and defining your legacy,

IT'S YOUR TURN—SEIZE THE DAY AMERICA!

I woke up early Wednesday after only four hours of fitful sleep. The results were pretty much the same as when I dozed off on my couch. Democrats had won back the House from Republicans, by an estimated 27 seats, 225 to 197. Senate Republicans successfully fought off the Democratic Blue Wave, increasing their majority, 51 to 46, including two Independents, whom usually vote with Democrats. I hate to say this, but according to MSNBC, at least some of Congressional seats still in play, like rumored "Putin's favorite Congressman," Dana Rohrabacher [R-Huntington Beach], may be the result of possible fraud and vote tampering!

Checking my cell for messages, I discovered a message from my oldest friend who lives in Burbank. It was short and telling. He said, "I didn't know there were so many racists still out there." "Telling," because his father was Filipino, serving in the U.S. Navy during WW II during some of the bloodiest battles in the Pacific, earning his U.S. Citizenship the hard way!

I immediately texted him back, replying jokingly, I said: "Where have you been since 2016? Trump has been bad mouthing everybody and everything most Americans cherish and set their moral compass by. Trump has done everything as president to undermine everything we learned as kids from our parents, teachers, and from a lifetime of living free in the United States of America."

The same day, I watched with utter disgust as President Trump gave his worst press conference EVER—a two hour vitriolic, angry assault on the "fake" news media in general, and certain CNN reporters specifically, as "enemies of the people—as he tried to turn Democratic victories in the House and around the country in state and local governments—upside down with his lies, half-truths, and special hocus-pocus into a personal victory for Donald Trump..

Thursday morning I woke up to the sickening news of another mass shooting, the second in 11 days. This time it was late Wednesday evening at a popular college bar in Thousand Oaks, 40 miles north of downtown Los Angeles, leaving 13 dead, including the gunman, and 15 others with minor injuries from jumping out of windows. The alleged shooter was an ex-Marine, a veteran of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, known to be suffering from PTSD

Now, just as I'm trying to finish my OpEd for Saturday's paper, I'm reading a recent text from another good friend commenting on Sarah Sander's video about the White House revoking a CNN reporter's press credentials: "What that LYING Sarah Sanders said to justify their [The White House] actions is disgraceful. Watch the video. The President appears to really be going off the rails against the media. Just when we thought things might get better. The midterms are over Senate and House will be okay but 45 not!'

If adding insult to injury wasn't enough, Trump, continues his meddling and attempts to obstruct Mueller's investigation into Russian collusion by ousting Attorney General Jeff Sessions and Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein for doing their jobs according to Justice Department guidelines. Then he replaces Rosenstein [very likely illegally and unconstitutionally] with Matt Whitaker, an outspoken opponent of the Mueller's investigation and convicted criminal for a $25 million fraud to boot, as Mueller's boss. Nice choice Mr. President!

If Special Counsel Robert Mueller is also ousted, ending his investigation into Russian collusion in the 2016 Presidential Election, Trump will have committed one more in his long list of obstructions of justice, further eroding confidence in our federal criminal justice system. Protecting Mueller, therefore, and his investigation must be top priority in any Democratic House agenda. His investigation is Donald Trump's Achilles Heal and Trump knows it!

House Democrats must also do whatever it takes to defend and expand Obama Care, Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, federal aid to education, housing, environmental protection, and pass election finance reform over stonewalling Republicans. They must take the fight over social spending to the streets, better informing the public of the real costs of Trump tax cuts on the skyrocketing deficit, and how tax cuts are paid for by taking money away from social programs and improved infrastructure. It's your turn—seize the day America!

SMALLER AMERICAN TOWNS CONNECT IN WAYS WASHINGTONIANS DON'T

After living in Washington, D.C., for nearly 8 years, I love being back home in Pittsburgh.

I met many interesting people in the D.C. region, but one thing was missing there that's common in places such as Pittsburgh: a basic connection among people.

I remember visiting Pittsburgh one Saturday morning while I lived in D.C. As I walked to a downtown coffee shop to meet some friends, a short, elderly Pittsburgher shouted at me.

"Hey, pal, your wallet is about to fall out of your pocket!"

I explained that my wallet was long and designed for the vest pocket of a sport coat. It appeared to be falling out of my pants' pocket, but wasn't. I thanked him and began walking away.

"But, pal," he said, "a dollar bill is showing at the top of your wallet. Flip it around." I continued walking, smiling at him.

"I said flip it around," he shouted.

In Pittsburgh, you see, people are outgoing and concerned about their fellow man. The kindly old Pittsburgher didn't want someone to swipe my wallet (though the odds of that in Pittsburgh are much lower than in D.C.).

Pittsburghers hold doors open for strangers. They politely wave your car ahead in traffic. They don't hesitate to help in your time of need - as they demonstrated when thousands of Pittsburghers came together in response to the horrible Tree of Life synagogue shooting a few weeks ago.

I remember when a hurricane-like burst - a macroburst - hit just blocks from my mom and dad's house one Sunday morning. It toppled large trees in a 10-block area, blocking roads. Within minutes, people in their Sunday clothes were getting soaked by rain as they directed traffic around downed trees, helped clear roads and kept others away from downed power lines.

I hate to say it, but such a response likely wouldn't happen in the D.C. region. People connect with each other in the Pittsburghs of the world, but there's a lack of connection among people in Washington. Walk down a D.C. street and people go out of their way to avoid eye contact. Strangers don't often hold doors open for others. And good luck if you break down on the highway.

According to the Brookings Institution, the 53 largest U.S. metropolitan areas, with populations over 1 million, are experiencing significant growth, while smaller metro areas, with fewer than 250,000 people, are shrinking.

I wonder how this trend will affect our country's "friendliness factor."

As we get farther away from our roots and hometowns, will we become less friendly and less concerned for our neighbors, as I experienced in Washington?

Will people become more generic and bland and less like the many colorful characters who are common in Pittsburgh? As we move to larger areas of sprawl will we lose our sense of place and home? Will we begin to care less?

There's a story about a large Pittsburgher visiting D.C. He's in a bar, watching the Steelers play. A Washingtonian shouts, "There are only two types of people in Pittsburgh - prostitutes and football players!"

The large Pittsburgher grabs the Washingtonian by the shoulder.

"My mother is from Pittsburgh!" he says.

"What position did she play?" says the Washingtonian.

You've got to love a town that creates colorful characters who care so much! Tom Purcell, author of "Misadventures of a 1970's Childhood," a humorous memoir available at amazon.com, is a Pittsburgh Tribune-Review humor columnist and is nationally syndicated.

WHY TRUMP SHOULDN'T MESS WITH BIRTHRIGHT CITIZENSHIP

Whenever I talk about immigration matters, I try not to let people see that tattoo on my forehead, the one with the Statue of Liberty wrapped in a copy of the 14th Amendment. It's a conversation killer.

raw meat for the social media masses birthright citizenship, something which has been fairly settled law for over a century. That is, until the topic of illegal immigration became a useful arrow in the campaign quivers of both parties. The GOP, which used to have a healthy appreciation for the contributions of immigrants to society, has morphed into the party of "they all killed Kate Steinle." And the Democrats have reacted by doing absolutely nothing, even when they were in the majority, to alleviate the problems caused by a broken border and ineffective laws that paralyze families and

It was inevitable that immigrants would once again become that convenient political football,

I'm hip to the games people play, and I usually ignore the comments about criminal aliens, gang members, racist Republicans and the like. That's because I'm an immigration lawyer and know a lot more about the inner workings of the laws and the real world impact on people like my clients than the Facebook scholars who keep posting links on my page about "birth tourism," which I thought was what happened when Mary and Joseph were scouting out a room at the inn. If that makes me sound pretentious, so be it. I tend to hide my law degree under a bushel until

I hear something that twists my lower intestine into a pretzel. And my lower intestine is ready for some mustard this week, because the drumbeat of "eliminating birthright citizenship" has gotten louder. The useful imagery of the caravan at our southern border was diminished somewhat by the intervening tragedies of the pipe bomber and the murderous anti-Semite in Pittsburgh. So the White House did a masterful pivot, and raised the specter of scary "anchor babies" and the harm they pose to good, decent Americans.

The term "anchor baby" was coined about 20 years ago, but it really gained prominence in 2006 when the country was embroiled in a debate about comprehensive immigration reform. When I first heard it, I envisioned Walter Cronkite with a bib and a rattle, until I realized that this derogatory term was being used to denote a child born in the United States who would be able to confer benefits upon an illegal alien parent.

By 2006, I had been practicing immigration law for over a decade, and knew that there was no such thing as a baby who could immediately legalize mommy and daddy. In most cases, that child needed to reach the age of 21 before he or she could sponsor a parent for lawful permanent residence or "the green card," so it appeared to me as if that anchor were about as heavy as a

Then, proponents of the term started talking about all the government benefits that baby could get, which are really just the same benefits any U.S. citizen is entitled to receive.

And, kaboom!, the whole issue of birthright citizenship reared its anachronistic head. Since the time of the Civil War, the 14th Amendment has held that any person born in the United States and "subject to the jurisdiction thereof" is a native born citizen. Now, Trump and his friends who want to eliminate birthright citizenship or "ius solis" are saying that the children of illegal aliens are not "subject to the jurisdiction" of the U.S. and therefore not entitled to citizenship. I'm having a hard time trying to figure out how an illegal alien who commits a crime in the U.S. is not "subject to the jurisdiction" of our laws, and I'm sure all of those people worried about their daughters being raped by MS-13 members are equally interested.

But even if this were a legitimate argument, there are a lot of problems with the way that the White House is approaching it. First, you don't fix a policy problem by erasing parts of the Constitution with that pen you swiped from former President Barack Obama. Second, you generally don't ignore the clear wording of a statute unless there is compelling evidence to the contrary. And most important, you don't dare change the thing that makes us exceptional: the fact that prince and pauper, invalid and healthy, black man and white woman, are equally entitled Lay off my Constitution, Mr. President. to the great gift of citizenship.
