SIERRA MADRE CELEBRATES ITS VETERANS

November 11, 2018 marks one hundred years since World War I ended. The first Veteran's Day was celebrated in 1921, as a day to honor those who served and sacrificed in the United States' Military. Every year in Sierra Madre, the Knights of Columbus and the VFW Lieutenant Kenneth Bell Post 3208 hold a Veteran's Day ceremony to commemorate this day and to celebrate and recognize the many veterans in town. This year, the Veteran's Day ceremony was held ndoors at Memorial Park. Charlie Pritchard read a letter from his grandfather, Private Charles S. Pritchard, to his grandmother, Pearl Pritchard, written on October 18, 1918, just weeks before the end of the war. After this, MaryAnn MacGillivray-a former mayor of Sierra Madre- read an open letter written by an Air Force veteran who had served in Afghanistan.

Sierra Madre is a town with many veterans, and many of the guests at the ceremony were veterans. Some came in dress uniform and some came in street clothes, but whether they had served in the Army, Marines, Navy Air Force, National Guard, or Coast Guard, they all came together to observe this day of memorial and respect. Thank you to our

This past weekend, featuring beautiful weather, was filled with celebrations of our veterans throughout the land. Children sang, veterans came out in full dress in state, uniforms, and our Nation thanked them once again for their service and their sacrifice. As I watched, I was reminded that my Dad was in the Navy during World War II. He never talked much about what he did, what his job was, what happened to him. As we commemorated Veteran's Day this week, I thought I'd unsung put up a picture of some of our Sierra Madre veterans and add the following poem. We are fortunate here land in Sierra Madre, to have quite a few veterans who A guy who breaks his promises and cons his fellow come out smartly and impeccably dressed in their man? uniforms to carry the flag, march in our July 4th parade, be on hand to kick off the Mt. > "Just A Common Soldier" A. Lawrence Vaincourt

He was getting old and paunchy and his hair was falling fast,

And he sat around the Legion, telling stories of the

he had done,

In his exploits with his buddies; they were heroes, every one

And tho' sometimes, to his neighbors, his tales

All his Legion buddies listened, for they knew whereof he spoke

But we'll hear his tales no longer for old Bill has passed away,

And the world's a little poorer, for a soldier died

He will not be mourned by many, just his children

For he lived an ordinary and quite uneventful life Held a job and raised a family, quietly going his own

And the world won't note his passing, though a soldier died today

When politicians leave this earth, their bodies lie

While thousands note their passing and proclaim that they were great.

Papers tell their whole life stories, from the time that they were young,

But the passing of a soldier goes unnoticed and Is the greatest contribution to the welfare of our

Or the ordinary fellow who, in times of war and

Goes off to serve his Country and offers up his life? A politician's stipend and the style in which he lives Are sometimes disproportionate to the service that

While the ordinary soldier, who offered up his all, Is paid off with a medal and perhaps, a pension small It's so easy to forget them for it was so long ago

That the old Bills of our Country went to battle, but we know

It was not the politicians, with their compromise and ploys,

Who won for us the freedom that our Country now enjoys.

Of a war that he had fought in and the deeds that Next time you see the flag go by, held in the hands of one of our veterans, stand and salute, for our flag and our veterans both deserve that honor.

KATIE Tse.....This and That HAPPY LITTLE ACCIDENTS

Reading "This & That," right? than going to a therapist! Just kidding, but seriously, day. But don't get me started on Day Light Saving,

I wrote a whole article on the topic a few years ago.)

Anyway, I love sleeping in. After I finally wake up, I still don't actually get out of bed for a long time. Even though our house is in a perpetual state of squalor, and getting an earlier start on the day would be a good idea, I loll under the covers and look at pointless memes on my phone that's charging on the bed stand. (My husband showed me an article a while ago that claimed charging phones may emit some harmful energy waves, or something of that nature. That newfound knowledge did nothing to make us change our charging habits, though. So we're probably knocking a good few years off our lives at this rate. But I

For those of you who don't know what a meme is, it's essentially a picture to which someone has attached a funny caption. One of my favorite sites for these is Dumpaday, followed closely by Bored Panda. I believe it was on the latter that I saw a collection of hilarious Bob Ross memes.

You remember Bob Ross. He was the guy who had a half hour Do-It-Yourself oil painting show on PBS in the 1980's and 90's. We didn't have a TV show as a child at my grandma's house.

If you haven't watched "The Joy of Painting" recently, I highly recommend that you go on Ross everyday the world would be a better place. For YouTube right now and spend a half hour with this my part, I'm going to try. Think I'll close my column master of landscapes and happiness! Especially in today with the same send off Bob used on his show. our political climate, a little peace and love is a real tonic. As a child, I didn't pay much attention to what time!"

What's the highlight of he was saying. But now that I'm an adult, I realized Saturday for you? I know! that listening to him talk as he worked was better

He talks to you in velvety tones with all the what do you cherish most gentleness of Santa Claus on valium, and truly makes about Saturdays? For me, you believe that any ninny off the street can be a great it's sleeping in. Getting up artist. Often he uses a big two inch brush to capture for work hasn't been so bad lately because we just the intricacies of a tree or cloud, but sometimes he'll had the time change. (However, I would trade an just use a knife to create something miraculous. A extra hour of sleep for an extra hour of sunlight any particularly funny meme was a picture of him with a striking woodland mountain view. The caption said something to the effect of, "Bob Ross painted this with a rock and a knife in 23 minutes, using only the color orange." Captivating stuff, to say the least.

But what's more impressive than the actual art is the man's perspective on life in general. Bob's using a 24 x 36 canvas, but he tells you to use whatever is most convenient for you. It's all up to you what goes on in "your world," he says. He walks you through building the background, and although his brush strokes look difficult, he assures you that you're just making little x's.

If you worry that you've made a mistake, you haven't. According to Bob they're just "happy little accidents," and he shows you how to turn them into something beautiful. There are no lone trees, bushes, clouds, or branches in Bob's world because "Everyone needs a friend." He even has a pet squirrel that sits in his front pocket and watches him as he works in some episodes.

The closest he ever comes to negativity is when he cleans his brush in paint thinner and shakes off the excess by whacking it back and forth across the leg of a utility table. He chuckles and calls it "beating the when I was growing up (that's another article), but devil out of it," which he says is the most fun part. I I recognized him from the few times I watched his want to be like this man! I can't even go five minutes without launching into negativity about something.

Maybe if we all spent 30 minutes watching Bob "God bless, and I look forward to seeing you next

Humane Society Helps Woolsey Fire Evacuees

Donations Matched to Help Animals Rescued

In response to the fastgrowing Woolsey wild fire, Pasadena Humane Society & SPCA officials announced Monday they have assisted LA County-Agoura Shelter in evacuating and housing its shelter animals.

Humane Society officials said they have taken in 15 dogs and 12 cats, 5 rabbits, 4 hamsters, and 2 mice over the weekend. "We anticipate more homeless pets to arrive this week," they said.

Humane Society officials also said they mobilized staff and volunteers to provide additional support at the shelter to care for the influx of animals. Animal control officers have deployed to the field to assist LA Animal Services at Taft High School and Pierce College in order to provide support for evacuated animals.

Officials are urging supporters to make a donation to assist them in providing life-saving and support services such as veterinary care, medication, food, blankets and more.

The Woolsey Fire first ignited Nov. 8 in Simi Valley then burned in Ventura and Los Angeles counties, including a mandatory evacuation of the entire city of Malibu.

NASA's ARIA Maps State Wildfires from Space

California continues to be plagued by wildfires — including the Woolsey Fire near Los Angeles and the Camp Fire in Northern California, now one of the deadliest in the state's history. NASA satellites are observing these fires — and the damage they're leaving behind — from space.

The Advanced Rapid Imaging and Analysis (ARIA) team at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, California, produced new damage maps using synthetic aperture radar images from the Copernicus Sentinel-1 satellites. The first map shows areas likely damaged by the Woolsey Fire as of Sunday, Nov. 11. It covers an area of about 50 miles by 25 miles (80 km by 40 km) — framed by the red polygon. The color variation from yellow to red indicates increasing ground surface change, or damage.

The second map (above) shows damage from the Camp Fire in Northern California as of Saturday, Nov. 10. It depicts an area of about 55 miles by 48 miles (88 km by 77 km) and includes the city of Paradise, one of the most devastated areas. Like the previous map, red areas show the most severe surface change, or damage. The ARIA team compared the data for both images to the Google Crisismap for preliminary

Although the maps may be less reliable over vegetated terrain, like farmland, they can help officials and first responders identify heavily damaged areas and allocate resources as needed.

MONROVIA HONORS OUR VETERANS

By Joan Schmidt

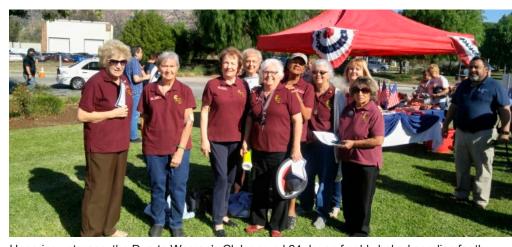

A very special Veterans Day Observance was held on November 12 at Monrovia's Library Park. Master of Ceremony Scott Sinclair, President, Allied Veterans Council welcomed us. He thanked us for attending and noted the poignant poem, "In Flanders' Field" printed on one side of the program. Since it was the 100th Anniversary of Armistice Day, Scott felt this was very appropriate. Floyd Henderson, Willie Williams, Craig Switzer, Ed Barlow and Brian Neumann from VFW 2070 posted Colors, followed by Monrovia HS Band's beautiful rendition of the National Anthem. The Band also performed "America the Beautiful", "God Bless America", a "Veterans Salute" (The "theme" song for each branch of service) and Taps. The beautiful Invocation and Benediction were done by Chaplain Lionel Moreno, 18th District American Legion. Presenters included Congresswoman Judy Chu, Monrovia Council Member Larry Spicer(Army Veteran), Arcadia City Clerk Gene Glasco, (Navy Veteran), Duarte Mayor John Fasana, Kristy Lopez for Senator Anthony Portantino and Hector Rodriguez for Assemblyman Holden. All thanked the Veterans not only for their service, but the sacrifices made by them and their families.

Guest speaker, Major General Mark MacCarley, Deputy Commanding General Support, First Army Rock Island Arsenal was phenomenal. As a military wife for twenty-two years, who lived in Germany and South Korea, I experienced firsthand difficult times-Korean President Park was assassinated and the wives and children were prepared to leave on short notice. What was so heartwarming to me and all attendees about the General was he acknowledged ALL MILITARY. It didn't matter what their rank, position, or assignment location was. All military men and women risk all and give all for our country. They make sacrifices leaving their families behind and going into harm's way. The General had great praise for lower ranks and non-commissioned officers; he spoke of all their hard work and how much officers needed and depended on them. Everyone in the audience was so blown away and appreciative of General MacCarley. I have heard many wonderful speakers over the years, but no one has ever come close to what he said. Whether you worked in a motor pool or an office, no matter what your MOS was, you made the sacrifice and commitment to serve our country.

Besides the Willie Williams and Ron Handy from VFW 2070, I was thrilled to see Chuck Keen and Earle Sweeney from American Legion Post 44.Other highlights included the Placement of the Wreath by Lt. Col. Charles West, Civil Air Patrol Vice President, and Flag Folding by G. Willie Williams, VFW Post #2070, (It is folded thirteen times and Janine Coyne read the significance of each fold.) There also was recognition of the Blue Star Families and a World War II Veteran was presented the medals he had lost. All attendees were given a small flag.

THANK YOU to all who played a role in this AWESOME OBSERVANCE. It meant so much to my daughter and me, and I am sure to all the Veterans and their families.

Honoring veterans, the Duarte Woman's Club served 24 dozen freshly baked goodies for the City of Duarte Veteran's Day Celebration held on November 12 at Thorson Park.

YOTE & RUEDE

A True Story Of Brotherly Love

Happy Tails

by Chris Leclerc

Just when I think I've met the sweetest, most loveable canine I could ever hope to meet, yet another furry four-legger comes along and proves me wrong! I'm specifically referring to a dog named Yote (pronounced Yotee") whom I befriended a few years ago, along with his human mom, Debra Herzog. The quaint canyon cottage Debra and Yote lived in at the time is tucked into the top of the lower canyon, just below the Woodland water basin, with an enormous evergreen tree shading a front yard that is just perfect for pups to play in.

Debra rescued Yote, a gorgeous and gregarious golden corgi chow mix, from an LA animal shelter when he was just a puppy. He had been abandoned along with his siblings in an apartment and when the authorities came to take the puppies to the shelter, he was left behind yet again. It seemed that little dog was destined to be alone without a loving home, but thanks to a remarkable stroke of luck (I actually like to think of it as a miracle) someone heard him crying in the apartment next door and called animal control.

The little, left-behind pup was finally rescued and brought to the shelter where he was found to have distemper. Because he was so sick, he stood less chance of being adopted, but Debra knew when she met Yote, that they were meant to be together, so she readily accepted the challenge of getting him healthy and giving him a happy life. Well, let me just say, Debra did a beautiful job meeting that challenge on Yote's behalf.

Soon after Yote's adoption, Debra's employment status changed and her new, more demanding work schedule began taking up much of the time she had hoped to spend working at home with Yote. She didn't want to leave him all alone during the day, so she enrolled him at a local doggy daycare where he could interact with other dogs. In fact, being the good dog-mom that she is, Debra tried out a few different doggy daycares in search of the perfect place, and everywhere she took him, Yote became known as the official "activities director"!

Yote is such a social guy, he refuses to leave anyone out of the fun. He showed affection to everyone at the daycare center. He made a point of engaging all his canine classmates, even the less social ones, and encouraged them to participate with the rest of the pack. At every daycare Yote visited, Debra was told the same thing; "That is one special dog with a very big heart. He makes it his mission to help other dogs get involved and come out of their shells."

When she moved to Sierra Madre, Debra called me for dog walking services and soon embarked on a quest to seek out a brother or sister for Yote so he could have a constant companion at home. Having looked at 10 or 15 different dogs without finding a good match, on the Friday just before Christmas, Debra heard about a chow mix at Devore, a high-kill shelter in San Bernardino County. This particular dog was scheduled to be euthanized that Sunday morning, so with no time to spare Debra called the shelter and begged them to hold out long enough for her to come with Yote to see if it was a good match.

The next day, Debra took Yote with her to the shelter where they met a very broken, sickly and desperate dog who looked so much like Yote, he really could be his brother! Debra told Yote, "Do your thing, little buddy, go and show some of that good love you've got in your heart to this guy because he really needs it." Within moments, in his typical prime form, Yote managed to brighten that would-be death-row doggie's spirits and had him wagging his tail in no time. Instantly, Debra and Yote both knew this was the right dog for them.

Next, Debra needed to pick a good name for their new-found friend. She chose the French name RueDe (pronounced "Rudy"), partly because Yote's favorite toy is "Rudy the Reindeer" and partly because of the significance of the French word "rue", as it is used when referring to a road or street. Debra thought this best fit because he was found carousing the streets near Perris (Get it? Perris - Paris) before he was rounded up and brought to the shelter. Remarkably, RueDe responded immediately to his new name and the three of them are living a happy and full life together, to this day.

Debra's experience with Yote and RueDe touched me to the core. The out-pouring of kindness on Debra's part truly warmed my heart, but it was the intense bond of brotherly love between two grateful dogs that really got me. Every time I hear a story about a successful shelter-pet adoption, I find it hard to hold back the tears that come from knowing animals that would have otherwise been euthanized were given a second chance and have brought immense joy to their new human companions. There is nothing like love to heal a broken heart, and I think brotherly love between two grateful dogs is the best medicine there is. I hope Yote & RueDe's story will inspire you as much as it has me. Love and let live.

Thanksgiving is our uniquely American holiday where the family gathers, where we remember our roots, we share a meal, and we hopefully "give

But look how quickly such simple and profound holidays get perverted. Today, we hardly know what "giving thanks" even means, and so the act of giving thanks is lost on most of us. Newscasters talk about "turkey day," as if all there was to the day was eating turkey. Interestingly, most folks would not know whether or not they were eating turkey, or eating crow, and most of the time we're doing the latter, figuratively speaking. Then, when we have barely taken the time to consider the notion of "giving thanks," we get up early on the following "black Friday" to rush around with the mobs "looking for a good deal" to help us celebrate the consumerdriven commercial craze into which we've morphed "Christmas."

Wow! How did we get here? What can we do about it? Let's take a moment to look at the roots of Thanksgiving.

In the history of North America, we are told that the first historic Thanksgiving Day was in October of 1621. After a successful harvest that year at the Plymouth colony, there was about a week or so of celebrations. The local Indians and the colonists joined together, with the Indians generally showing the colonists (mostly city folks) how to hunt for the meal which consisted of fowl, deer, duck, goose, and fish. Corn bread, wild greens, plums, leeks, and many other vegetables (wild and domestic) were shared in this celebration. Interestingly, there is no recorded evidence that wild turkey or wild cranberries were part of the menu. And we tell and re-tell this particular American story as if it is all about food!

In fact, some (but not all) historians question whether or not there were any religious overtones at all on this "first Thanksgiving," citing such [Nyerges is the author evidence as the archery and firearms games, and Survive the running and jumping competitions, which they "Foraging say would never be done at religious ceremonies by the Puritans. The "competition" was more likely the men on each side doing their shows of bravado with weapons and physical feats before sitting down to > Notwidelyknown-orremembered--isthatthis "first thanksgiving" feast had mostly political overtones, which seem to have largely backfired. Tisquantum ("Squanto") was the interpreter for Massasoit, who was the political-military leader of the local Wampanoag tribe. Massasoit was worried that his weakened tribe would be taken-advantage of by the stronger Narragansett, because his own group had been so reduced from disease. Massasoit would permit the European newcomers to stay as long as they liked, as long as they aligned with Massasoit against the Narraganset. (Read all about it in your history books). Tisquantum spoke English because he'd been to England and back, and had his own plan to re-establish his home-town village near what became the Plimouth colony.

> Though Tisquantum successfully helped Massasoit broker a pact with the newcomers from across the ocean, Tisquantum died about a year later. The truce that Massasoit hoped to cement lasted perhaps another 50 years until there were too many Europeans flooding into Massachusetts and all of what was to become the eastern United

> Despite the varied history of this day, Americans have chosen to see this as day set aside so that we do not lose sight of our spiritual blessings.

> But we should not confuse "giving thanks" with "eating a lot of really good food." "Giving Thanks" is an enlightened attitude which accompanies specific actions. Perhaps sharing our bounty with the needy would be a better Thanksgiving activity than eating large volumes of food. More to the point, perhaps we should use Thanksgiving to give thanks where it is due -- to the indigenous peoples who have become the "forgotten minorities." Rather than "eat a lot," perhaps we could send blankets, food, or money to any of the American Indian families or nations who today live in Third World conditions.

> "Giving thanks" begins with the attitude of gratitude, and extends into the practical actions of assisting others less fortunate than yourself.

KITTY ON THE OUTSIDE OR A TREE FROG ON THE INSIDE

had pulled one over on the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. It is a rare occasion when I actually do something like this.

At my age, I assume I could get away with something. I guess I am just not old enough.

Several weeks ago, I happened to look out the back window and saw a kitty walking across our back yard. A little idea sneaked into my head. Maybe I could get some kitty treats and feed the kitty.

It is not that my wife does not like kitties; she just does not like them on our property. No way she would ever, and I mean ever, condone some kitty living on our property. However, my thought was, what if she does not know? I have always heard that what your wife doesn't know can't hurt you. So, I put together a very sneaky

I went and got a dish for the kitty as well as a bag of kitty food. I really thought I could pull this off. On the back porch, I put the dish and filled it with kitty food. I pushed it to the side so that you could not see it from the window. I am not an expert when it comes to sneaky, I'm still an amateur.

Later that evening I happened to look out the window and there it was. A tiger like kitty had found the dish and was feasting upon the food. I knew I had to take things slow. I did not want to scare off the

I kept this up for several days, quite proud of myself that I was not caught yet. I thought there was a chance I wouldn't get caught and I was living on that

It was on a Thursday evening and I was looking out the porch door, watching the kitty eat when I heard somebody say, "What are you staring at?"

Immediately I recognized the voice and had to be very careful so that I did not trip up on anything. "I'm just enjoying the backyard scenery. It looks so lovely in the evening shadows."

I sighed very deeply hoping I had escaped being Eventually I was getting to the point where I could open the door very carefully and the kitty would not get scared and run away. I was not able to pet it yet, but that was in my plans.

Then one night something else happened that pleased me deeply. A second kitty joined the back porch kitty diner. I really was ecstatic, but I had to keep myself calm because I did not want to give my secret away. Around our house, keeping secrets does not really

Everything was going fine until one night the kitty

I thought, which is a dangerous activity for me, that I came to the porch glass door and started meowing.

The knucklehead that I am, I meowed back. At that precise moment, my wife happened to walk into the kitchen area where the glass porch door was. She heard me meow and said, "There better not be a kitty on our porch!"

Before I could respond, she came up to the door and there was the kitty meowing at her.

"I don't want any old cat on our back porch."

I wanted to reply, but I didn't.

"I hope you're not feeding it!"

Do I need to call a lawyer?

At that moment, she went up to the door to open it so that she could shoo the cat away and there on the inside of the door was the biggest tree frog I have ever seen. When she saw that, she screamed, the kitty ran and the frog jumped inside our house.

It has been a long time since I have seen the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage dancing.

It was all I could do from laughing hysterically. I tried to control it, but you know how that works. The more I tried to restrain my laughter the louder it got.

Where is my cell phone when I need it? She ran, got a broom, came back and swept the frog outside. I haven't seen that frog since. So, being in a sense of hilarious insanity, I said, and I almost regret saying it, "Which do you want? The kitty or the frog?' She looked at me holding her broom in a very dangerous way and finally she broke down laughing. Life is full of choices. Some of our choices are not of our choosing. Sometimes it is choosing the better of

Since then we have had two kitties come to our back porch every evening to enjoy the kitty food that put out there in the kitty dish. I have not seen the frog, but I sure have been thinking about that frog ever since.

"What are you smiling at?"

"Nothing, I'm just having a happy moment."

"It better not have anything to do with that tree

Thinking about this I was reminded of what David said. "Blessed is the man whom thou choosest, and causest to approach unto thee, that he may dwell in thy courts: we shall be satisfied with the goodness of thy house, even of thy holy temple" (Psalm 65:4).

It is not important if you are a kitty or a frog only that God has chosen you. Live in that glory every day.

THANKSGIVING PART 2

I meant no disrespect with last week's column, excluding chardonnay from my Thanksgiving selections for top picks. So, here is my make-good with three go-to chardonnays

First, a brief history of chardonnay. Most good coastal chardonnay comes from a few areas that you might be familiar with: Anderson Valley, Santa Maria Valley, and Santa Rita Hills, and the coolest section of the Russian River Valley. Carneros is also ocean-influenced, though it's warmer there, since it's a bit inland. Chardonnays from vineyards on the mountain ridges at the edge of the Sonoma Coast AVA are some of the best in the state. Here are three chardonnays that I found "reliable" and all under $20:

Francis Ford Coppola's Diamond Collection Chardonnay - awarded Best in Class in 2015, it is bright and balanced. If you like your wine with a bit of fruity apple/pear flavor, this would be a good choice. This chardonnay hails from the Monterey region.

Dills Score 89

Retail $16; you can find it if you shop around for $12 Vons / Albertson's Wild Horse Chardonnay - wine maker Chrissy Whittmann's chardonnay from the Central Coast,

Paso Robles region. I found this to be crisp and delightful, and it goes well with the other white meat, pork. Dills Score 89

Retail $17; easily available in So Cal for $14 Vons

Our friends in France enjoy a 2013 Jadot Pouilly Fuisse made with 100% chardonnay grapes. While we tend to label California wines as "buttery", I'd go with "crisp". Interesting wine maker notes, one part of the wine is fermented in stainless steel vats and in oak barrels, this combination delivers a silky smooth finish. Pouilly Fuisse is a great representation of old world wine making. $21.99 average price

A COLD SUPER-EARTH IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD

An international group of astronomers, involving the Max Planck Institute for Astronomy (MPIA) in Heidelberg, has succeeded in detecting a planet around Barnard's star, which is only six light-years away. The planet has just over three times the mass of Earth and is slightly colder than Saturn. The discovery was made by measuring the periodic change in the radial velocity of the parent star. The spectrograph CARMENES, developed to a large part by the MPIA, played an important role in this discovery.

Barnard's star (GJ 699) is the single star closest to Earth, located at a distance of about 6 light-years. When viewed from Earth, it appears to move across the sky faster than any other star except Alpha Centauri. For a long time, the search for planets orbiting Barnard's star has been unsuccessful. But now astronomers have extracted a signal from 771 individual measurements they have collected over the recent 20 years, which points to a planet that travels around its host star once within 233 days. The planet has been named Barnard's star b.

"For the analysis we used observations from seven different instruments, spanning 20 years, making this one of the largest and most extensive datasets ever used for precise radial velocity studies," explains Ignasi Ribas of the Institut de Ciènces de l'Espai (ICE, CSIC), Spain, the first author of the underlying research published in Nature.

Since Barnard's star, a red dwarf star, only emits 0.4% of the Sun's radiant power, the planet Barnard's star b only receives about 2% of the intensity the Earth collects from the Sun. From this, the scientists conclude that the planet with an average temperature of about -170°C is probably a hostile, icy desert, in which there is no liquid water. With a mass of at least 3.3 Earth masses, it belongs to the class of super-Earths, i.e., exoplanets that fill the mass scale between Earth and Neptune.

The discovery is based on the radial velocity method. Here a sensitive spectrograph registers small periodic shifts of the spectral lines in the mass of the planet can be calculated.

The data collected up to 2015 already contained indications of a planet. MPIA astronomer Martin Kürster alone contributed 76 data sets from the UVES spectrograph. However, certainty was only obtained with additional measurements. Therefore, an international collaboration called "Red Dots" spectrum of a star due to its movement along the was formed to examine red dwarf stars such as line of sight caused by the planet. From this the Barnard's star in more detail employing state-ofthe-art spectrographs.

Martin Kürster comments: "Until the 1980s, almost all professional and popular astronomy books stated that two Jupiter-like planets had been systems at a distance of up to 10 light-years from the found near Barnard's star. This was found to be incorrect due to recent measurements in which I was partly involved. That is why it is all the more fascinating that we are now able to detect this planet with a much smaller mass."

In 2016, a planet was detected orbiting the star b.eklund@MtnViewsNews.com.

that is closest to the Sun, Proxima Centauri. With Barnard's star b, we now know four planetary solar system. Within a radius of 15 light-years we know of 14. Thus, the current discovery contributes to the perception that the formation of planets is apparently a very frequent cosmic phenomenon. You can contact Bob Eklund at:

MONROVIA UNIFIED DISPLAYS STUDENT CODING PROJECTS DURING EPIC BUILD SHOWCASE

Parents watch as a student demonstrates his coding project during a Code to the Future Epic Build Showcase on Nov. 7 at Mayflower Elementary.

MONROVIA, CA - Parents, administrators, and other community members observed Mayflower Elementary students as they showed off characters they built for stories and video games during an Epic Build Showcase

During the showcase, parents toured classrooms and watched students solve problems with commands and specific coding directions while demonstrating their coding accomplishments.

Epic Build showcases teach parents and the community the importance of Code to the Future, a computer language immersion program that incorporates coding across all subjects. During the showcase, students became the instructors, explaining how the projects were completed.

Visitors celebrated the coding accomplishments that students in kindergarten - through fifth grade had completed so far this school year with high-fives.

"I have been in coding since I was in first grade," thirdgrader Alyson Carroll said. "I have gained confidence in coding and now feel comfortable coming up on stage to present my projects."

Plymouth Elementary, which also has a Code to the Future curriculum, will host a similar Epic Build Showcase on Nov. 16.

Williams said. "Through Code to the Future, our students navigating life."

will gain the confidence they need to pursue science and technology career paths in the future."

Mayflower Elementary added coding to its lesson plans three years ago to prepare students for technologyoriented education and career paths. Writing code develops learning skills such as creativity, collaboration, and critical thinking.

Students work with block-based coding and JavaScript, and engage in hands-on programming, robotics, and analog activities.

"One of our priorities at Mayflower Elementary is to ensure our students are being prepared for the future," Principal Michele Costarella said. "The Code to the Future curriculum includes assignments and projects that make students critical thinkers and problem solvers."

Through learning code, students hone their ability to communicate with one another. Beginning in kindergarten, students apply the logic of computer science by creating loops, sequences and animations. By second grade, students begin building video games; by fifth grade, students skillfully combine coding concepts with an integrated story.

"The Code to the Future curriculum engages students in problem solving and persistence," Superintendent Katherine Thorossian said. "Through experience, "The Epic Build showcases are a way for our students students learn that the problems they face can be solved to engage not only with one another, but with parents and in a methodical manner. We are honing life skills, community members, as well," Board President Terrence not just in preparing for future careers, but also for

WHEN YOU NEED HELP CARING FOR AN AGING PARENT

Dear Savvy Senior,

Where can I turn for caregiving help? I help take care of my 78-year-old mother and work too, and it's wearing me to a frazzle.

Exhausted Daughter

Dear Exhausted,

exhausting. But help and resources are available.

To help you determine and prioritize the kinds of help you need, a good first step is to make a list of everything you do as a caregiver, big and small. Note the amount of time each one takes every day, week or month. Identify the times when you need help the most and which tasks others might be able to do for you, like making lunch for your mother when you're at

Then list the types of care needed, such as simple companionship or doing active chores, like food shopping. Once you determine this, here are some tips and places you can reach out to for help.

Caregiving Help

If you have siblings or other loved ones close by, schedule a family meeting, in person or by phone, to discuss specific tasks they could provide. See if friends, neighbors or faith group members could help too.

You should also investigate resources in your mom's town. Many communities offer a range of free or subsidized services that help seniors and caregivers with basic needs such as home delivered meals, transportation, senior companion services and respite services, which offers short-term care so you can take an occasional break. Call your Area Agency on Aging (call 800-677-1116 for contact information) for referrals to services available in your community, or for respite services see ARCHrespite.org/respitelocator.

If you can afford it, you may want to hire someone part-time to help with things like preparing meals, housekeeping or even personal care. Costs can run anywhere from $12 up to $25 per hour. To find someone, ask for referrals through your mom's doctor or area hospital discharge planners, or try websites like Care.com, CareLinx.com, CareFamily.com or CareSpotter.com.

Financial Aids

If your handling your mom's financial chores, make and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

Taking care of an aging parent over a period of things easier by arranging for direct deposit for her time – especially when juggling work and other family obligations – can be physically and mentally her utilities and other routine bills. You may also want to set up your mom's online banking service, so you can pay bills and monitor her account anytime. Or, if you need help, hire a daily money manager (AADMM. com) to do it for you. They charge between $25 and $100 per hour.

BenefitsCheckup.org is another excellent resource to look for financial assistance programs that may help your mom, particularly if she's lower-income.

Technology Assistance

To help you keep tabs on your mom when you are away at work or if she lives alone, there are affordable technologies that can help.

For example, there are medical alert systems (like Bay Alarm Medical, BayAlarmMedical.com), which provide a wearable "help button" that would allow your mom to call for help anytime she needed it.

Or, you could install a video-monitoring camera (like Lighthouse Al, Light.house/elderly-care) that lets you check in on her anytime via your smartphone or computer. These cameras have built-in motion and sound detection that will let you know when something is detected, and two-way audio that will let you talk and listen to her.

There are even websites (like LotsaHelpingHands. com) that can help you more easily coordinate care with other family members.

Insurance Ouestions?

If you have questions about Medicare, Medicaid or long-term care, your State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP) offers free counseling and advice on these issues. Call 877-839-2675 or visit ShiptaCenter. org to locate a nearby counselor. You can also get help through the Medicare Rights Center, which staffs a help-line at 800-333-4114.

A NEW PLACE TO SHOP IN SIERRA MADRE: KOI

Koi may be new to Sierra Madre, but Linda Davis has owned this store for over 18 years. She started in a 6000 square foot location in South Pasadena and is now located at 26 N Baldwin in Sierra Madre. As this location is smaller-800 square feet-, Linda is looking to add a second, larger location in Pasadena in the near future. The Sierra Madre location is affectionately dubbed 'Little Koi'.

Linda started off as a top-notch vintage buyer. She has an excellent eye for products and can see how to put pieces together to create an artsy and unique outfit. All of her merchandise at Koi fits this category. She views getting dressed as, "a kind of art," and so do her customers. Women flock to Koi, and Linda comments that Koi has become a clubhouse of sorts, where "Koi Women" meet up to talk to each other and Linda while they shop. She comments that "Hairdressers are described as therapists, and that's what we

Koi is, "a little bit like a museum...plenty of people come in to look," and it is easy to see why. The store is filled with colorful and textured clothing items, as well and handmade jewelry. Brenda Henriques makes most of the jewelry sold in Koi, and just like the clothing it is textured, artsy, and unique. You would be hard pressed to find pieces as beautiful as Brenda's at a department store.

Linda is, and always has been, the single buyer for Koi. She shops with an eye for what more mature women might want to wear.

Linda also designed the interior, picking colors that would make the space feel happy and using vintage pieces because of the comfort that they bring. From the moment you walk in, there are so many interesting things that it is hard to know where to look first. From purses and scarves to statement skirts, to the jewelry, to fantastic coats. It is not unusual for popular items to move quickly, because Linda has an excellent sense of what her customers want. Next time you are on Baldwin, make sure to stop in and take a look! R. Dark Sacred Night (A Ballard and Bosch Novel) by Michael Connelly Harry Bosch teams up with LAPD detective Renée Ballard to solve the murder of a young girl in the new thriller from #1 New York Times bestselling author Michael Connelly. Detective Renée Ballard is working the night beat -known in LAPD slang as "the late show" -- and returns to Hollywood Station in the early hours to find a stranger rifling through old file cabinets. The intruder is retired detective Bosch, working a cold case that has gotten under his skin. Ballard can't let him go through department records, but when he leaves, she looks into the case herself and feels a deep tug of empathy and anger. She has never been the kind of cop who leaves the job behind at the end of her shift -and she wants in. The murder, unsolved, was of fifteen-year-old Daisy Clayton, a runaway on the streets of Hollywood who was brutally killed, her body left in a dumpster like so much trash. Now Ballard joins forces with Bosch to find out what happened to Daisy, and to finally bring her killer to justice. Along the way, the two detectives forge a fragile trust, but this new partnership is put to the test when the case takes an unexpected and dangerous turn. Dark Sacred Night for the first time brings together these two powerhouse detectives in a riveting story that unfolds with furious momentum. And it shows once more why "there's no doubt Connelly is a master of crime fiction" (Associated Press).

HOW TO FIX ERRORS IN YOUR CREDIT REPORT

From late payments that were actually made on time to paid debts that are still listed in collections to fake accounts opened in your name by identity thieves, there are all kinds of errors that can end up in your credit report. What's more, even if the mistakes were made by the banks, lenders, and/or credit bureaus, they have no obligation to fix them-unless you report them.

Given this, it's vital to monitor your credit score regularly and take immediate action to have any errors corrected. Here, we'll discuss a few of the most common mistakes found in credit reports and how to fix them.

Finding and fixing errors

The first step to ensure your credit report stays errorfree is to obtain a copy of your report from each of the three major credit-reporting agencies: Experian, TransUnion and Equifax. You can get free access to your reports and even helpful credit monitoring services from companies like CreditKarma.com. Check each of the reports closely for errors. Some of the most common mistakes include: Misspellings and other errors in your name,

- address, and/or Social Security number
- Accounts that are mistakenly reported more than once
- Loan inquiries you didn't authorize
- Payments inadvertently applied to the wrong account or noted as unpaid, when they were in fact
- Old debts that have been paid off or should've been removed from your report after seven years • Fake accounts and debts created by identity thieves
- Filing a dispute

If anything is inaccurate on your report, file a dispute with the credit bureaus as soon as possible. In fact, notifying these agencies is a prerequisite if you eventually decide to take legal action. Note that if a mistake appears on more than one report, you'll need to file a dispute with each credit bureau involved.

To ensure your dispute has the best chances of success, follow these steps:

• Use the appropriate forms: Each credit bureau has different processes for filing a dispute—whether via regular mail or online—so check the particular bureau's website for instructions and forms. You can find sample letters showing how to dispute credit reports on the FTC and Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) websites.

• Be absolutely clear: Clearly identify each disputed item in your report, state the facts explaining why the information is incorrect, and request a deletion or correction. If you've found multiple errors, include an itemized list of each one.

• Provide evidence: It's not enough to just say there's a mistake; you should substantiate your claim with proof. Collect all documents related to the account, including account statements, letters, emails, and legal correspondence. Include copies (never originals) of this paperwork, and highlight or circle the relevant information.

• Contact credit providers: In addition to the credit bureaus, the CFPB recommends you also contact the credit providers that supplied the incorrect information to the bureaus. Check with the particular company to learn how to file a dispute, and then send it the same documentation to them that you sent to the bureaus.

• Review the results of the investigation: Credit bureaus typically get back to you within a month, but their response can take up to 45 days. The response will tell you if the disputed item was deleted, fixed, or remains the same. Disputes basically boil down to whether or not the creditor agrees with your claim or not, and what they say typically goes.

If you're not happy with the result of the dispute or how the dispute was handled, you can file a complaint with the CFPB, which regulates the credit bureaus. They'll forward your complaint to the credit provider and update you on the response they receive.

If the credit provider insists the information is accurate, you can provide the bureaus with a statement summarizing your dispute and request they include it in your file, in future reports, and to anyone who received a copy of the old report in the recent past.

Legal action

Finally, if the investigation isn't resolved to your satisfaction and the inaccurate information in your credit report is causing you harm, contact a trusted attorney to determine if taking legal action would be worthwhile. Your attorney can review the information, and if necessary, help you develop and litigate your case.

FEAR, PARANOIA, OR JUST MORE POLITICAL DRAMA?

[Correction: In my OpEd last Saturday—11/ I0/18—I stated that Trump's newly appointed Acting Attorney General Matt Whitaker is a "convicted criminal" for defrauding investors of $25 million in a securities scam. NOT TRUE! Whitaker's legal troubles began in 2014 after he was named to the advisory board of World Patent Marketing, a patent securities firm, while still serving as U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of Iowa, when in 2017 he was reassigned to the Justice Department in Washington, D.C., to work as an aid for Attorney General Jeff Sessions.]

A story recently reported, in the Daily Beast [11/07/18] by Michael Daly, "In May of this year, a federal judge issued a permanent injunction barring World Patent Marketing from conducting business. The judge also imposed a $25,987,192 fine, [for defrauding investors millions of dollars] which little is expected to be paid as the company's CEO Scott Cooper pleads inability to pay... The FTC complaint notes that six members of the World Patent Marketing advisory board never gave advise, but it's not clear whether Whitaker was one of them...."] I stand by my other remarks last weekend why it is my opinion Matt Whitaker is a terrible choice as Acting AG.

The big story this week is, of course, the first arrival of Central American refugeeimmigrants at the U.S.—Mexico border, just south of San Diego. NPR's Tuesday evening [11/13/18] blog report, complete with a large banner headline, said: "LGBT Splinter Group From Migrant Caravan Is The 1st To Arrive In Tijuana." The report continues: "About 80 migrants, the majority of whom identify as LGBT, splintered off from the larger group in Mexico City after weeks of what they say was discriminatory treatment by local residents and other travelers..." Estimates of immigrants coming to U.S. seeking asylum now range from 7,500 to 11,000.

Has President Trump's fear-mongering about criminal immigrants "invading" our southern border really improved the lot of republicans in Congress, state houses, or governorships? Has his non-stop motor mouthing about alien murders and rapists, complete with MS-13, roaming the America's hinterland, really justified deploying the U.S. Army to the border to defend us? Or maybe, just maybe the real purpose of the President's incessant jabbering is to create a fearful climate conducive to his kind of political drama, to cynically manipulate the results of the midterm elections?

It makes me think of a twisted version of an old Warner Brothers war movie, where "the Gipper," Ronald Reagan, and his movie star buddies instead of winning the war, loses it! Germany gets the bomb before we do, just in time to wipe out our allies great Britain, France, and the Soviet Union-ending with the world divided along the lines George Orwell described it in his dystopian novel "1984"—complete with Big brother

Fear is a fundamental force in human nature. It lies deep in our collective conscience, stemming from thousands of years of internecine warfare. It goes hand-in-hand with wanting something that ISN'T yours with somebody else wanting something that IS yours. What President Trump is doing is as old as politics itself—pitting each of us against each other-making us delude ourselves into believing we are God's chosen righteous Christian soldiers fighting a holy war against everyone we consider Philistine heretics. This is the same "nativism" that welcomed my Irish, Scottish immigrant ancestors, and every other racial-religious-ethnic immigrant group since the United

The immigrant caravans President Trump spoke about with such vitriol before the midterms are coming and justifiably so, because U.S. exceptionalism under the Monroe Doctrine has made their countries what they are today—corrupt oligarchies. Psychically, however, the caravans the President quit harping about abruptly after the elections, when they had served their purpose, are where they have always been, in the dark recesses of his bigoted, intolerant mind, where his devilish nihilism has created them to terrorize the rest of us, as they have by every other demigod throughout human Concluding one of my favorite Twilight Zone episodes, "The Monsters are due on Maple Street," creator Rod Serling says these prophetic words: "The tools of conquest do not necessarily come with bombs and explosions and fallout. There are weapons that are simply thoughts, attitudes—to be found only in the minds of men. For the record, prejudices can kill and suspicions can destroy, and a thoughtless, frightened search for a scapegoat has a fallout of its own for the children... the children yet unborn... And the pity of it is... that these things cannot be confined to... The Twilight Zone!"

SPENDING MY CHILDHOOD WITH STAN LEE

On Sunday afternoons in the late 1970s and early 1980s, long after 11 a.m. mass had finished, my cousin and I would head down the street to a little convenience store, hard against the Berlin Turnpike, that sold milk, bread, snacks, sundries, and, most important of all - comic books. We'd let ourselves in, the bell hanging on top of the door jingling, the traffic still echoing in our ears in the brisk snap of a New England fall, and head for the spinning rack where four-color heroes on newsprint pulled us in with gravitational force.

Our prizes collected, we'd pay, and head back for an afternoon of heavy reading, passing the books between us until the sun hung low in the sky and our parents were beckoning from the front door, the cars warming in the driveway.

I'd read the Marvel titles and pretend I liked them. In truth, it was mostly to humor my cousin. I was a DC kid through and through.

Then one Saturday afternoon, I discovered a copy of a paperback collection called "Origins of Marvel Comics." It was pretty much what it sounded like: An omnibus reprint of the origin stories of "The Fantastic Four," "The Hulk," "Spider-Man," "Thor," and the mysterious "Dr. Strange."

I finally understood the human-level dramas of the dysfunctional "Fantastic Four." The dangers of the nuclear age, and the Cold War, then still very real, were driven home in the tragedy of "The Hulk." Thor's pseudo-Chaucerian dialogue was preposterous, but I loved it anyway. The ostracization "The X-Men" endured was a metaphor for every repressed minority, a reminder of how easy it is to hate and fear someone or something

A New York kid with outsized ambitions, Lee (born Stanley Liber) figured his work in comics would be a way station on the way to literary greatness. It didn't happen, but something even more profound did.

Lee became an assistant at Timely Comics in 1939, which would later evolve into Marvel Comics. After a decade or so of post-World War II artistic stagnation, Lee helped spark what's become known as "The Silver Age" of comics in the early 1960s. Lee rose to become Marvel's editor-in-chief.

While he was a visionary, Lee was hardly perfect - as a unsparing 2016 profile in New York Magazine made painfully clear.

He had a nasty habit of hogging credit for his heroes. His gift for unrelenting selfpromotion meant that the real talent behind the books - the great Jack "King" Kirby, Steve Ditko (who died in June at age 90) and the surrealistically stylish Jim Steranko were unjustly overshadowed and robbed of the credit they so richly deserved.

"Stan Lee and I never collaborated on anything," Kirby told an interviewer in 1989, according to that 2016 New York Magazine profile. "It wasn't possible for a man like Stan Lee to come up with new things - or old things, for that matter. Stan Lee wasn't a guy that read or that told stories."

But Lee, as the face of Marvel, helped keep the company afloat through fallow times. And his high-stepping style drew in generations of fans. He penned a florid monthly column in those 1970s comics, signing off with a jaunty "Excelsior!" at the end of each

And even though he didn't own the rights to his creations, Lee parted from Marvel in the early 1990s with a severance package so immense that the child of The Great Depression never had to worry about money ever again.

At the end of his life, Lee battled failing health and allegations that he was the subject of elder abuse, which played out in a Los Angeles courtroom over the course of this

Even so, that didn't keep him from hitting the convention circuit. Lee's 2018 schedule included Silicon Valley Comic Con. At that convention, his health had deteriorated to the point where he was struggling to sign his name. He announced his exit from the convention circuit in August. Maybe it's true that Lee didn't exactly tell stories. It's more accurate to say that he provided the architecture for greater writing talents to tell those stories, and for gifted artists to make them leap off the page. But it's also true that Lee did something of equal, or, perhaps greater importance:

His pride in those creations and his unrelenting promotion of them, now means that garishly costumed heroes, whose adventures are disposable by their very nature, have survived, and have been passed down to new generations of readers. Yes, I know, those heroes are now multi-billion dollar properties that effectively print money for their Hollywood overlords. But that won't keep me from getting more than a tad nostalgic about it. After all, myths and legends fade from memory if there's no one around to repeat them. And Lee, who helped give breath to our latter-day myths and legends, did that almost better than anyone. So, one last time, "Éxcelsior!"

JEFF SESSIONS DESERVED BETTER

that it won't elicit enthusiasm from the extremes on the left or the right, particularly after the midterms. At the outset, I have to note that I abhor the immigration policies put into place under Sessions, who embraced with obvious enthusiasm his role as Deporter-in-Chief. After he took office, the following groups of people were on his hit list: refugees, mothers with children, victims of domestic abuse, victims of gang violence, and anyone who uses the word caravan. He reinterpreted longstanding administrative policy to narrow the options for asylum seekers, tried to end Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA), severely limited the ability of immigration judges to exercise discretion, and implied that people like me are coaching our clients to lie about the persecution they

He did all of this under the guise of making America safer, which seems ironic, since the only largescale terror attacks while Sessions was in office were conducted by U.S. citizens already in the country, including Wednesday night's shooting in Thousand Oaks, Calif., that left 12 dead; the 2017 assault on GOP congressmen in which Sen. Steve Scalise was shot; and last month's assassination of 11 worshippers at the Tree of Life synagogue in Pittsburgh.

The perpetrators of those crimes? Not a Middle Easterner, Latino gang-banger, or anchor baby in the bunch. So I am not a huge fan of Sessions' approach to keeping America safe on the backs of people who are themselves desperate to find safety. His version of immigration reform is cruel and draconian. Nevertheless, I'm disgusted by President Trump's treatment of a man who was loyal to him, but who no longer served his purposes. I believe that Trump demanded Sessions' resignation because he knows that come January, he will be heading into choppy waters as the opposition party takes control of the House. With images of subpoenas dancing in his head, it seems that he wanted to put a firewall between himself and some crusading Democrats. Plus, he has always seemingly resented Sessions for recusing himself from the But with that recusal, Sessions showed loyalty and integrity, two qualities that I admire and treasure.

He deserves our respect for showing allegiance to the country over his boss. I'm outraged about Trump's firing of his most loyal minion. If the president actually looked at his

Justice Department, he would see that Sessions had single-handedly advanced the Trump agenda on drugs, criminal justice, and, as I noted ruefully above, immigration. Trump gets up on his high horse at those ridiculous rallies and screams about caravans and the invasion at the southern border, but Sessions was the one who actually did something about it. Take the word of an immigration lawyer: He made my life and my clients' lives hell.

I'm also nauseated by the mean-spirited, petty way that Trump dispatched Sessions. According to reports, he sent John Kelly to do his dirty work and didn't even have the guts to meet personally with the very first senator to endorse him at the start of his then-quixotic campaign.

The immigration lawyer in me is glad to see Sessions go. But the part of me that respects courage, independence, and integrity is disgusted with the shameful treatment he received.
