TAX ME PLEASE

'Please Tax Me" -said no one ever. But if I'm going to be taxed, I want maximize the amount that stays right here in the Village Foothills: Our quaint City of Sierra Madre. When you compare taxes California to other states, it should come as no surprise that California ranks amongst one the highest in the nation. SST Then you add the Districts' 2.25% Sales Tax on top of the State Sales Tax and Sierra Madreans end up paying a grand total of 9.50% in taxes any time we buy a pair of socks or a box of paper towels in town. it means that

The most notable concern for us is the District Tax. It is supposed to cap at 2.0% but because 1% is exempted by the State, there is still a remaining 0.75% that can be taxed under the limit.

There are multiple entities fighting for that 0.75% and it's only a matter of time. If the past decade has demonstrated a trend, in LA County alone we have seen 7 of 9 different taxes pass. We expect more tax proposals on the upcoming November 2020 General Election ballot.

If that happens, and other tax measures pass, Sierra Madre may only be left with the 1% sales tax the State automatically allocates. Doing nothing and waiting for others to take our money is not an option.

The way I see it, we need to establish our own District/City Sales Tax to 1) keep our dollars local; and 2) block the ability of other entities' to collect revenues through sales tax. We have three ways to accomplish that: Firstly and ideally, we gather signature from voters that support a City Sales Tax of 0.75%. Of the 8149 registered voters in Sierra Madre, if at least 15% of those sign the initiative- the City Council has the authority to adopt this Citizen's Initiative.

Not as attractive, but achievable, is the second option of gathering 10% of registered voters signatures and call for a special election in November 2019. Assuming there are surrounding cities that would participate in a special electionit may cost approximately $200,000 from our general fund.

• Thirdly, we wait until November 2020 to put a Sierra Madre Sales Tax on the Ballot where it is likely that competing tax measures will pass. If this happens, we may have to share any voter approved tax measures but can't exceed the 0.75% cap (unless the entity is exempted by the State). The need for action is evident- we need to keep Sierra Madre Dollars IN Sierra Madre to maintain our quality of life. The window of opportunity is small and we only have until the end of May to gather enough signatures if we're serious about keeping our sales tax revenue local.

I know I'll be signing the petition to establish a local sales tax. Will you?

"Please Tax Me."

WALKING SIERRA MADRE by Deanne Davis

SPEND YOUR KISSES

"Jenny kissed me when we met, jumping from the chair she sat in; Time, you thief, who love to get sweets into your list, put that in! Say I'm weary, say I'm sad, say that health and wealth have missed me, Say I'm growing old, but add.... Jenny kissed me." James Henry Leigh Hunt

We're coming to the end of Lent here shortly, with Easter right around the bend on April 21st, and I don't know if it's a kinder, gentler spirit, due to the Lenten season, that has overtaken us, but I've been observing a nice thing lately, walking through Sierra Madre. It's people kissing. Couples sharing a quick kiss as they're heading off to work, jumping into separate cars with a cup of coffee; friends giving a goodbye smooch after class in front of Sierra Fit Pilates as they scatter to start their day; a kiss on top of the head for a dog who has sat patiently in front of Starbucks waiting for his/her owner to return; and best of all, parents kissing their little ones goodbye before they race off to school. The daily morning scramble is a very hectic time, an hour packed with trying to get little people dressed, teeth brushed, something nutritious in their tummies, organizing the backpack, getting the hair combed, finding the permission slip and the lunch, and not losing the parental temper because wee ones have a tendency to move at snail speed in the morning. I shudder to think how many times I did not kiss my little ones goodbye before they left for school. I think parents are doing it better these days. Spending all their kisses in the picture are daughter, Crissy, and granddaughter, Jessie, who was about three at the time.

Recently I came across one of my favorite books, autographed by the author and given to me by my Aunt Helen, who was the jewelry and gift buyer for I. Magnin's department store, long defunct, but such a beautiful store there on Lake Street just south of Bullock's, now Macy's. The book is "Spend All Your Kisses, Mr. Smith" by Jack Smith, a columnist for the Los Angeles Times that I read faithfully for years and years. Jack Smith was acerbic, opinionated, and funny. He held back very little regarding his personal life and family. Of course, personal stuff is the most interesting thing anyone can write about as we are all consumed with curiosity about how those around us live. He wrote: "For Helen Sessions, Vaya con Dios, Jack Smith."

Jack came across the quote, "Spend All Your Kisses," in a book which he put down and was never able to locate again among his stacks and stacks of books. He attributed it to a Roman Philosopher, but wasn't sure which one. The phrase and the concept stuck with him, and, apparently, with his wife, Denny, too, and a couple of years later on Christmas morning Jack found she had "laid out 18 pieces of wooden type – each piece ¾ of an inch thick and one inch tall, backwards, of course, the words being in reverse order and each letter backwards, in the way of moveable type. The type face still bore the stain of the ink used to print out the message on a long piece of coarse linen, which was also laid out on the couch - Spend All Your Kisses." He was beyond delighted.

Jack Smith went on to conjecture about the fact that "there is no point in taking any of one's wealth into the next world. Why keep a kiss, a gesture, a word that might give a moment's pleasure or reassurance to someone else." He finished, "there is little chance, that I will get out of this world with money...and now, thanks to my wife, an ancient poet and my ability to read backwards – I am not likely to get out with any unspent kisses, either."

Maybe the reason I've been noticing kiss giving and receiving a lot lately is that we've just passed April 1^{st} , which would have been John's and my 52^{nd} anniversary. As we spent all our spare time together, and worked together, too, before we were married, I figure I spent 54 years kissing that same nifty guy before he relocated to heaven. That's a lot of kisses! But, just like Jack Smith, I want to spend all my kisses...

"Just Today...Spend All Your Kisses!"

If each of us had time, and time, and time enough to spare,
There still would not be time enough to turn away from love.
But each of us has just today, held tightly in our hands.
So what's the perfect thing that we can do with our today?

We can spend all our kisses, and squander our smiles!
We can hug everyone that we see.
We can find something wonderful in everything,
And folks will find something wonderful in you and in me.

We'll delight in our dinner, and eat dessert first. We can live out this day and make it our best, A day filled with joy and fun, laughter and zest.

So let's plant a flower, and pull out a thistle!
And notice! Oh notice!
If God has put a rainbow in our sky.
Let's spend all our kisses today...at least give it a try!

THROWBACK: WINDSTORM

Oh, you don't know how close I was to breaking my New Year's resolution of not recycling old articles! It's been one of those weeks. But, as you can see, I rose to the occasion and came up with something new. Actually, it's not a new topic, but it's a new article, so resolution preserved.

This last week we had a couple days of high winds. I read that they even lost power in some parts of L.A. Knock on wood Sierra Madre's been alright so far, at least where my husband and I live and at my parents' place. It reminded me a little of that crazy wind storm we had that knocked out power for days. Do you remember it?

I don't remember the exact date, but I want to say it was maybe ten or so years ago. I think it happened on a Thursday night. I was carpooling with one of my friends from work at the time and enroute the next morning we got an automated call that school was canceled due to damage from the storm.

That thing was insane! Street signs were bent like matchsticks, in addition to other impressive examples of the power of the unleashed forces of nature. Of course trees came down. Although the damage was nothing to laugh at, I thought it kind of funny that some of the more dramatic felled trees came to be used as photo ops. One ripped up a big chunk of the sidewalk and parents would set their children on the upturned ledges to take their picture.

Driving was rough while the roads were being cleared, but the lack of electricity was more inconvenient. Thank God that we personally didn't have any structural damage --it could've been a lot worse!

It's during long power outages that you truly appreciate gas water heaters. Those who are tankless have to take cold showers, and the only thing worse than being without power is shivering in a cold water while you wait for the electricity to come back on. Think I'd rather stay dirty in that case.

Of course here in Southern California we don't have to contend with serious wind disasters like hurricanes or tornadoes. My mom's from Michigan and is fond of telling about when she and my dad (a Southern California native) went back there for their honeymoon.

The trip started out fine, but one night the sky turned green and their hotel sent out a tornado warning and told all the guests to report to the lobby. It was like that scene from "The Birds" when all the old timers told of previous instances of birds gone murderously wild. The locals bided their time swapping horror stories of tornados from the past while my dad's knuckles turned white and his face began to match the green sky outside.

Luckily no tornado touched down, but it was still a memorable experience. Those kinds of experiences of the power of nature are the best --the ones you just hear about instead of actually experiencing.

Unlicensed Lawyer Found Guilty

A Pasadena man who falsely claimed to be a licensed attorney was remanded into custody last week after a federal jury found him guilty of fraud charges related to his representation of "clients" in federal and state courts.

Kenneth Paul Ferreyro was also convicted of tax offenses for seeking well over $100,000 in refunds on federal tax returns that falsely claimed substantial payroll taxes had been withheld and remitted to the Internal Revenue Service.

Following a four-day trial in United States District Court, the jury deliberated for about two hours before convicting Ferreyro of four counts of wire fraud and four counts of making false claims on his tax

The evidence presented at trial showed that, from at least 2010 to 2017, Ferreyro told people that he could represent them in United States Bankruptcy Court and other courts and that he could perform work related to real estate refinancing and tax liens. While Ferreyro did graduate from a law school, he never received a license to practice law.

Ferreyro is scheduled to be sentenced by United States District Judge John F. Walter on June 24. Ferreyro faces a statutory maximum sentence of 100 years in federal prison.

NASA invites the public to celebrate Earth with a #PictureEarth social media event. Post a close-up photo on social media of your favorite natural features, such as crashing waves, ancient trees, blooming flowers or stunning sunsets. Use the hashtag #PictureEarth and upload the photo on April 22. They advise to be sure to include the location where the photo was taken in the text of your social media post.

On Earth Day, they will share some of NASA's most stunning images of Earth from space to inspire you. NASA will check Instagram, Twitter and our NASA Earth Facebook event page to find posted images and select photos from around the world to showcase later in videos and composite images.

NASA satellite and airborne instruments picture Earth every day to increase our knowledge of our home and improve lives. These images, shared with scientists and the public worldwide, may use visible light, like a photographer's camera, or peer into infrared, microwave and radio wavelengths that are invisible to human eyes.

Scientists use data from all of our instruments, and from Earth-observing spacecraft from other nations, to build a picture of the planet that grows more and more complete over time. On April 26, our next addition to our Earth-observing fleet, the Orbiting Carbon Observatory 3, is set to launch to the International Space Station. The new knowledge made possible by this fleet helps create solutions to important global issues such as changing freshwater availability, food security and human health. For more information about

710 Legislation Passes First Committee

The Senate Transportation Committee Tuesday passed SB 7, the State Highway Route 710 bill, authored by Senator Anthony Portantino. The bill would allow the surplus of the non-profit properties to be purchased at their current use value. In addition, SB 7 would prohibit Caltrans from implementing a tunnel surface freeway or expressway for Route 710 between Route 10 and Route 210 and it lays the foundation for the state to return surplus freeway stubs back to local cities in the freeway corridor. The California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) currently owns properties in the State Route 710 (SR 710) corridor, including 330 homes and 103 multi-family housing units. Originally, the properties purchased in the corridor with the intent to remove the structures for the extension of the SR 710 freeway. The purpose was to close a 4.5 mile unconstructed gap between the City of Alhambra and the City of Pasadena. Last year, Los Angeles Metropolitan County Transportation Authority withdrew its support and funding for a proposed project, it was determined that the freeway project will never be built. With the certification the final EIR of the 710 corridor, there is no longer a threat of the freeway. SB 7 will forever prohibit the implementation of a freeway tunnel or surface freeway in the gap between Alhambra and Pasadena. The six community nonprofits who provide a public good by serving the most vulnerable in our state need to be able to continue their good work, but will not be able to do so if the price of the property is out of their reach.

The City of South Pasadena, the City of Pasadena, the Cottage Co-Op, Pasadena Ronald McDonald House, LA County Supervisor Kathryn Barger and the Board of Supervisors all formally support SB 7.

New Pasadena Director of Public Health Appointed

City Manager Steve Mermell has appointed Dr. Ying-Ying Goh to lead the Pasadena Public Health Department (PPHD). Mermell made the announcement Tuesday.

Dr. Goh is a board-certified pediatrician and has been serving as the City's Health Officer since 2015. In this new role, Dr. Goh will continue to serve as the City's Health Officer.

Prior to her appointment as PPHD's Director of Public Health, Dr. Goh served as Medical Director for Programs and Research the Department, for securing grant funding and managing programs related to diabetes care management and childhood obesity prevention. Her professional experience includes clinical pediatric practice; management of a California Endowment task force to improve healthcare access and quality in Los Angeles County; design and implementation of a case management program for seniors with chronic conditions; and research to improve nutrition and physical activity for youth.

Dr. Goh earned a bachelor's degree from Stanford University, a medical degree from the Stanford University School of Medicine and a master's degree in Health Services from the UCLA Fielding School of Public Health, and she completed pediatric residency programs at Boston Children's Hospital and Boston Medical Center. "Dr. Goh brings valuable insight in the areas of public policy, research and medicine. She has worked on a wide range of special projects to bring healthcare access, community-based programs and grant funding to our city, improving the quality of life for so many. Playhouse Appoints New Director of Development

Pasadena Playhouse, the State Theater of California, announced Wednesday that Nancy Griffith Baxter will serve as the organization's new Director of Development, bringing with her more than 30 years of experience in fundraising and wealth management with a deep understanding of philanthropic strategies.

"I am thrilled to welcome Nancy to the leadership team as we continue to take the Playhouse in a new and exciting direction. I know her wealth of energy and experience will be invaluable to us in garnering support for from the Pasadena community and beyond," said Producing Artistic Director Danny Feldman.

Nancy Baxter adds, "It's an honor to work with a dynamic leadership team at an institution with the amazing history and impact that Pasadena Playhouse has had on both the local and national entertainment industry, including theater, film and television. I look forward to working with the community to ensure the longevity of this amazing theater for another 100 years."

Baxter most recently served as Director of Gift Planning at LA Opera, where she expanded gift planning messaging to highlight the LA Opera family through storytelling and worked with the gift officers to establish blended gifts. Year-over-year future gift contributed revenue increased nine-fold during her tenure at the organization.

dormancy. Baxter grew the Legacy Society significantly in terms of participants as well as commitments, raising new future gifts in excess of $15 million during the 2015-2016 fiscal year. Baxter also has served as a Senior Vice President Senior Philanthropic Investment Manager for Wells Fargo from 1999 to 2012, where she earned the Concord Elite Award and was recognized as one of the top selling Investment Managers at Wells Fargo. Beginning in 2005, she led and managed the Bank's National Philanthropic Investment Team that oversaw and influenced $18 billion in charitable assets under management. Baxter built and coached wealth teams around the US to attract and expand philanthropic business opportunities and clients to optimize financial outcomes. She recruited and managed investment managers, worked with philanthropic families, trustees, boards of directors, senior staff and donors to match philanthropic intent with their asset base. Baxter also developed and executed customized investment strategies for endowments, deferred gift programs, and private foundations.

Prior to her time at LA Opera, Nancy was recruited by her alma mater Colorado College to serve as Director of Gift Planning and reimagine the gift-planning program after a decade of

ARCADIA JOINS LAWSUIT SEEKING TO STOP CANNABIS DELIVERY

4 local agencies in a lawsuit against the California Bureau of Cannabis Control (BCC) after a recent decision that allows commercial delivery of cannabis in California, including in cities that have regulated or banned commercial marijuana.

The lawsuit, filed by attorneys at Churchwell White LLP, seeks to invalidate recent regulations by the BCC that violate the will of voters and the law by purporting to allow delivery of commercial cannabis to any physical address in the state. The lawsuit contends that the regulations conflict with state law, which allows the commercial delivery of marijuana only when it complies with local law.

California voters passed Proposition 64 in 2016, which decriminalized marijuana possession for recreational use. The law, however, gave cities the ability to regulate or ban marijuana sales in their jurisdictions. The Arcadia City Council did just that, banning all commercial and industrial marijuana uses, including the prohibition of deliveries and mobile vending. While Proposition 64 specifically allowed cities to enact such bans, recent BCC regulations allow statelicensed marijuana businesses to deliver anywhere in California regardless of local preference.

"The BCC regulation eliminates the ability of cities to regulate commercial cannabis deliveries within their communities," said Mayor Sho Tay. "We want to make sure that the promises made to voters under Proposition 64 are kept, and ensure the state does not take away local

The lawsuit, filed in Fresno Superior Court, aims to overturn the state regulation so that cities and counties can block or restrict marijuana deliveries in their borders.

ARCADIA ADOPTS HISTORIC PRESERVATION ORDINANCE

On April 2, 2019, the Arcadia City Council adopted a Historic Preservation Ordinance, a first for the City of Arcadia and marking an important step in the identification and preservation of historic buildings throughout the City.

The Ordinance represented the culmination of several years of community engagement and involvement. The project began in 2015 with an effort to determine what historic resources exist in the City, and to identify the various patterns of development throughout the City's history. The City contracted with well-respected Pasadena historians Architectural Resources Group, Inc., to develop a Historic Resources Survey and Context Statement, as well as to draft the Historic Preservation

The Survey identified a number of important structures, some of which rise to the State and National levels for historic significance. Arcadia's rich history includes not only obviously important structures such as the Santa Anita Park Grandstand and Queen Anne cottage at the Los Angeles County Arboretum and Botanic Gardens, but also iconic structures related to City-founder Lucky Baldwin and the Baldwin family, homes designed by famed architects Wallace Neff and Richard Neutra, and commercial structures such as the Harold Bissner designed Denny's building with its famous windmill.

"Like any important new regulation, the Ordinance was truly a community effort, with numerous well-attended public meetings and discussions. In the end, the final Ordinance represents a balance between private property rights and the ability to protect and preserve important buildings," said Assistant City Manager/Development Services Director Jason Kruckeberg.

The main tenets of the Ordinance are the facts that it is voluntary, and property owners can come forward to designate their own properties. "The Historic Preservation Ordinance is a thoughtful, important step in the preservation of not only buildings but of Arcadia's heritage," said Mayor Sho Tay. "We listened to our residents and developed an Ordinance that fits our

Now that the Ordinance is in effect, the City will be working with local organizations such as the Arcadia Historical Society and Los Angeles Conservancy in assisting residents and property owners in designating their buildings as historic if they so choose. If you are interested in learning more about the Historic Preservation Ordinance and its implementation, please contact the Arcadia Planning Division at (626)574-5423 or visit the City's website at ArcadiaCA.gov/HistoricPreservation.

MONROVIA MAJOR PIPELINE CONSTRUCTION SET TO CONTINUE ON CANYON BOULEVARD AS PART OF MONROVIA RENEWAL NORTH SECTION EFFORTS!

Work is scheduled to continue this next week on construction of a 16" water pipeline as a part of the Monrovia Renewal North Section Infrastructure Improvements Project. This water improvement - which is designed to improve water flows, pressure, and reliability in the area - includes major construction efforts to install a 16" pipeline from the intersection of Laurel Lane / Canyon Crest Drive, over to Canyon Boulevard, and then north on Canyon Boulevard up to the Oakglade Reservoir. The map above highlights the section of Canyon Boulevard where the work will be taking place.

During construction, parking will be restricted during working hours along Canyon Boulevard, from Canyon Crest Drive to Oakglade Drive. This will be necessary given that traffic will be reduced to one lane, with proper traffic control and flaggers in place to safely direct vehicle traffic.

The City will maintain vehicle access to Canyon Park, and furthermore, pedestrian access along the sidewalk will also be maintained.

Given the extent of these improvements, we are asking that all motorists and pedestrians traveling in the area be cautious and aware of the activity occurring, and to expect delays when traveling through the identified construction area. Of note, we expect this particular bit of construction activity to be completed by Friday, April 25.

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact the Public Works Division at (626) 932-5575, or via email at Monroviarenewal@ci.monrovia.ca.us. Additionally, updated construction schedules and notices will be available on the City's website and on the City's social media accounts. And please know that all of us here at the City appreciate your patience during these periods of construction activity!

EDUCATION & YOUTH

CITRUS COLLEGE CONTINUES TO MEET WORKFORCE NEEDS THROUGH CAREER TECHNICAL EDUCATION

By Dr. Edward C. Ortell Citrus College Governing Board Member

This spring, representatives from school districts throughout the region will visit Citrus College for the annual K-14 Education Forum. During the event, local board of education members, superintendents and school administrators will join the college's administrators, deans and faculty for an informative morning of collaboration and discussion. The focus of this year's forum will be the career technical education (CTE) programs offered at Citrus College.

The forum's theme is relevant and timely. With employers struggling to find skilled workers to fill job openings, responding to labor market demands has become a state priority. In 2016, the California Community Colleges Chancellor's Office introduced its Strong Workforce program, which addresses the workforce crisis by providing funding for community colleges to improve and expand their career education programs. As a Strong Workforce partner, Citrus College has committed to supporting the program's objective of lifting low-wage workers into living-wage jobs.

Of course, preparing students to enter the workforce has long been the goal of Citrus College's CTE programs. Citrus College offers 18 CTE associate degrees, four CTE transfer degrees, and is currently awaiting the approval of an additional CTE transfer degree that has been sent to the Chancellor's Office. It also offers 38 certificates of achievement and more than 10 skill awards. The wide range of CTE programs includes automotive technology, biotechnology, nursing, water technology and more.

Each of these programs is designed to provide students with the education and skills needed to succeed in the workplace. Before a new program is introduced or curriculum is established, faculty and staff research industry demands and study the regional economy. Among other things, they determine which occupations are predicted to have growth, which have a shortage of workers and which pay a livable wage. Working closely with business and industry professionals, they identify the knowledge needed to secure and sustain employment.

This detailed and thoughtful approach led to the creation of Citrus College's newest CTE associate degree program, construction management. Debuting during the 2019-2020 academic year, this program will prepare students to hold entry-level construction management positions, work with public agencies or private construction firms or become employed with construction contractors. Program graduates will understand the fundamental systems and processes employed in building and heavy construction. They will also be prepared with specialized skills and certificates in construction inspection and quality control.

Another new CTE option is stationary power generation service, diagnosis and repair. This program, which will be the only one of its kind in Southern California, will allow students to complete courses in the maintenance of diesel-powered stationary power generators and associated equipment. After earning their technical certificate, graduates will be prepared to pursue careers as electrical and electronics repairers, power distributors and dispatchers, stationary engineers, and mobile heavy equipment mechanics.

I am confident that these new programs will be beneficial to the region. According to the Centers of Excellence for Labor Market Research, available data has determined that the programs will fulfill unmet workforce needs. In addition, the entry-level earnings of program graduates will exceed a living wage.

As the Duarte area's representative on the Citrus Community College District Board of Trustees, I am proud that the college equips students with highly marketable, specialized skills, and I am certain that it will continue to play a critical role in addressing labor market demands for years to come.

CONSIDERING EASTER AND WHAT IT MEANS

[Nyerges is the author of numerous books such as "Extreme Simplicity," "How to Survive Anywhere," and others. He can be reached at www.Schoolof Self-Reliance.com or Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041]

It is a time that millions of people the world over look forward to – the first Sunday after the first full moon after the spring equinox. What day is that, you ask? Easter, the day (and season) that Christians worldwide commemorate the trial, death, and resurrection from the dead of Jesus.

I grew up in a Catholic family going to a Catholic school and know well

I grew up in a Catholic family, going to a Catholic school, and know well the Easter motif, beginning with the "giving something up" for Lent, and then Palm Sunday when Jesus entered Jerusalem on a donkey (in fulfillment of scriptures). When Jesus turned over the tables of the vendors, he sealed his fate because he attacked the god of most eras, money. Though Jesus had been welcome to speak in the Temple, he was still regarded by those priests as an upstart, someone who seemed to know "the Truth" in a way that they had forgotten, a man who didn't have the Temple training and no formal training to become a Rabbi. Yet, there he was, in all his innocence, attracting crowds, purporting to heal, seeming to organically know the answers to life's deepest questions. His trial and death were almost predictable, as most societies do not like the rabble-rousers among them.

Every Easter I have enjoyed the inspiring messages that movie-makers have given us in their efforts to interpret the practical meaning of the Jesus message. I have particularly liked the six bour-plus presentation of "Jesus of Nazareth" produced by Franco in their efforts to interpret the practical meaning of the Jesus message. I have particularly liked the six hour-plus presentation of "Jesus of Nazareth" produced by Franco Zeffirelli, starring Robert Powell as Jesus. It is a rare presentation that brings the story alive, and takes it out of the pages of dry church reading. You cannot help but cry, and laugh, when viewing this unique presentation. I have kept a Bible (Lamsa translation) handy when viewing this to see how well Zeffirelli brought alive these ancient writings. You will likely agree that he did a great job. Actor Robert Powell said once in an interview that this role "changed my life." Indeed.

Though too many of us have gotten lost in the pre-Christian "Easter" symbolisms of eggs, bunnies, chocolate, pastel spring clothing, etc., it is still worth fighting to realize that there is still a real story here, about someone who worked hard, was ridiculed, laughed at, even killed, in order to help us to save ourselves. I have chosen to see the Easter story as a pattern that each of us should find and follow in our own lives.

And are there other stories out there which show this pattern in the so-called secular world? Movie-makers have given us many such stories, but we don't always see them for what they are. If we consider the themes of the Easter story – humble birth, hard work, trying to rise above mundanity, showing The Way to others, some sort of "death," and rising up again – then there are some excellent movies that give us this

For example, you can't go wrong with the classic "Whale Rider". If you've not seen it, get it immediately. The grandfather of the traditional village is hoping for a grandson to carry on the ways. A girl is born, and grandpa figures he'll have to wait some more. But the girl is "the one." She persists in her path of learning the traditional ways. And when a test is given to the boys to see which one will become the new spiritual leader, the girl nearly dies, but passes the test. She is the one. You have to see it, and feel it, and experience that Saviorness can occur at any time, anywhere. Of course, there are certain requirements, but chief among them is the willingness and desire to do the work required, and then doing that work.

"Powder" is another excellent movie that somewhat depicts the elements of the Easter theme, though not precisely. It has been described as a secular story of a Savior, and his departure. It's also worth watching to see how most of us treat our fellow man.

Yes, some of you will read your Encyclopedia and learn about the pre-Christian roots of Easter. There is no denying that the Holy Day, as practiced generally today, has so-called "pagan" roots, because the Catholic Church chose to overlay their new traditions over older prevailing pagan traditions. This may bother you, or it may not. Either way, you can still observe this day and find the way to use the major themes for your personal upliftment, and for the upliftment of those around you

HER BROTHER'S KEEPER

I believe God created the dog with a capacity to feel, among many When I was younger I was told it would be sacrilegious to assign that much meaning to an animal's way of thinking, but having spent countless hours with numerous does of all the sacrilegious to assign that much meaning to an animal's way of thinking, but having spent countless hours with numerous does of all the sacrilegious to assign that much meaning to an animal's way of thinking, but having spent countless hours with numerous does of all the sacrilegious to assign that much meaning to an animal's way of thinking, but having spent to all the sacrilegious to assign that much meaning to an animal's way of thinking, but having spent to all the sacrilegious to assign that much meaning to an animal's way of thinking, but having spent to all the sacrilegious to assign that much meaning to an animal's way of thinking, but having spent to all the sacrilegious to assign that much meaning to an animal's way of thinking, but having spent to all the sacrilegious to assign that much meaning to an animal's way of thinking, but having spent to all the sacrilegious to all the sacrilegious to assign that much meaning to an animal's way of thinking, but having spent to all the sacrilegious to all the s things, empathy and compassion. I didn't used to believe this. countless hours with numerous dogs of all types over the years, I am now totally convinced it is so. And I believe that God planned by Chris Leclerc it that way - to create a loveable creature that would properly manage the task of encouraging and loving those around them.

All one has to do is simply observe the behavior of a canine for a short while, to begin to understand that there is more going on inside than initially meets the eye. Here is a perfect example; Among the many fantastic furry four-leggers I have on my friends list, are two pups named Bo and Dixie. They live together along with two cats, Gus & Darby and their two humans, Jim & Janis. The two dogs are not blood-related nor are they the exact same breed - Bo is a cute curly-haired, standard size Labradoodle and Dixie is a sweet, petite purebred yellow lab - yet they clearly regard one another as complete equals and show full mutual respect.

Although they come from different backgrounds and there is a healthy gap between their ages - Bo is 11 years old and Dixie is a mere youngster at the age of 3 - they hit it off right away. They became instant friends and have been getting along famously since the first day they met. I should probably explain that prior to Dixie's arrival on Bo's turf, he had had another sister-dog named Loucie, several years his senior, who passed away a few years ago. Now, Dixie just so happens to resemble Loucie, and remarkably so. And, during that "between time" after Loucie's death and before Dixie's arrival, I must say poor Bo was beside himself. He would cry anytime he was left alone.

So, now Bo has a new little sister named Dixie and she is one of the sweetest, kindest, most thoughtful dogs I believe I've ever met. You might be wondering how I know all that about a dog who can't talk and tell me what she thinks or feels. Well, I'll tell you...I know it from the way she behaves! She doesn't have to talk the talk, because she walks the walk.

When Dixie came along, Bo suddenly gained a new attitude. He has always been a gentle giant, always wanting to meet and interact with others, regardless of their species. But after Loucie died, he seemed depressed and lonely. That is, until Jim and Janis introduced Dixie to the family. That's when the lights came back on in Bo's gorgeous golden eyes. It was like giving a child a new toy. He walked with renewed vigor, with his thick curly tail wagging wildly back and forth, nodding his darling head up and down like a pony who just won at show. Yes, that Bo was one happy boy again when Dixie came along.

It has been a couple of years since Bo and Dixie first met and moved in together, and they are absolutely inseparable now. They share a bond stronger than words can describe. Dixie assumed her role as little sister so graciously, and Bo invited her in with open paws. Their body language and behavior toward each other tells it all. It is a true love story. You see, Bo is moving up in his years and his body sometimes lags behind his young mind and energetic attitude. It is obvious that, if given the opportunity to have a new body, that big ole boy would jump at the chance.

Bo just loves to go for walks and his favorite part about getting out is meeting new people. Most dogs I know are content to be led on leash, just to sniff all the great scents and watch for squirrels. But for Bo, it's all about socializing. Whenever he sees a person while we are out walking, he gets all excited about greeting them. That person might be half a block away, and Bo's tail is already swishing to and fro with anticipation of having an interlude with a perfect stranger.

Oh, the lessons I learn from my canine companions. They are excellent teachers of kindness and good character. Dixie could easily run ahead of her older brother and leave him behind to fend for himself. But, no, she would never do that. She makes a point of walking within a range that she knows Bo can keep up with. Some days Bo's joints just don't want to work as smoothly as his youthful mind does, so he has to move slower than he'd prefer. As we move along at Bo's comfortable pace, Dixie leads the way but she is constantly looking over her shoulder to make sure Bo is close behind, because (I believe) she is truly concerned about her big brother.

It is clear to me that Dixie knows Bo is dealing with an aging body, and she wants to comfort him. She has an uncanny way of going slow so Bo can keep up, without letting him know. To me that exhibits respect for his dignity...empathy and compassion. I have no doubt that this is what is going on inside the mind of that darling lab. She could easily show Bo up by running ahead as if to win the race, but instead she does whatever it takes to make him feel like he is top dog.

I love Dixie and Bo so much, just as I love all the precious pups I get to spend time with. I really don't know what I would do without them in my life. Of course, I have a human family and plenty of human friends, but there is nothing like having a close relationship with a kind canine.

In Loving memory of Bo, precious gentle giant. (Original print - April, 2015)

CAT OF THE WEEK

Katnip News!

Twyla is a total lap cat and loves people. At just under age 1, she is super friendly and affectionate. She likes to sleep with you and cuddle. She's vocal too and talks to you with her sweet little meows. Twyla would be great with small children who would play with her and give her lots of attention. She likes having her foster mommy all to herself and

SAFE WAYS TO GET RID OF EXPIRED. UNUSED MEDICINE

Dear Savvy Senior:

Dear Protective:

What's the best, environmentally safe way to dispose of old and unused medications? My mother has a medicine cabinet chocked-full of pills, some of which haven't been touched in 25 years, and I'd like to clean it out for her. Protective Daughter

Cleaning out the medicine cabinet is a chore that most people don't think about, but it's an important task that can help prevent medication problems, and protect children who may have access to these old, unused drugs. Here's how you can clean out your mother's medicine cabinet so it's safe and useful.

Your local pharmacy, as well as hospitals, clinics, long-term-care facilities, and narcotic treatment programs, might accept your mom's unused medications, often as part of programs that collect and destroy unused drugs. Search for an authorized facility near you at DisposeMyMeds.org.

You can also drop off her unused meds at designated police departments, fire stations, and other sites on National Prescription Take Back Day, Saturday, April 27. To find a collection site near you, visit TakeBackDay.dea.gov.

Use a Disposal Kiosk

Many Walgreens and CVS stores have free, anonymous, and secure kiosks where you can dispose of any medication. Remove your personal information from the packaging and drop unwanted medication, including opioids, in the slot.

Costco, Rite Aid and CVS pharmacies sell postage-paid envelopes for customers to mail any prescription, including opioids and over-the-counter medications, to a disposal facility.

Throw Them Out

If mailing them in or getting to one of the drop-off sites is not an option, you can dispose of them yourself, but do so carefully. The Food and Drug Administration recommends taking the medications out of their original bottles and putting them in a sealable plastic bag with an undesirable substance like coffee grounds, dirt or kitty litter. Then seal the plastic bag and throw it in the trash. This will make the medication less appealing to children, pets or other people who may fish through your trash.

But don't do this with dangerous drugs, such as opioids, which can be abused. For these, the FDA says flushing them down the toilet is OK. But trace amounts of drugs can end up in the water supply so this should be done only as a last resort. To see the FDA list of medications that should be flushed when they are no longer needed, go to FDA.gov and type "flush list" into the search box.

Or, another option is to purchase some medication disposal bags like the Medsaway Medication Disposal System. These are carbon pouches that are designed to neutralize all medication including narcotics, liquid medication, transdermal patches and controlled substances so you can just add water, and toss them in the trash. You can find medication disposal bags at some local pharmacies or online at Amazon.com for around $15.

You'll also want to make sure to scratch out all your mom's personal information on the empty medicine bottles or other packaging before throwing it away to protect her identity and privacy.

If you have other questions about proper drug disposal, talk to your pharmacist.

OUT TO PASTOR

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

WHAT IT WAS, WAS A HUMMINGBIRD

Even as old as I am, there are still things I fear. I do not want to make a list, I'm afraid to. When I have conquered one fear, another one knocks on the door and introduces itself to me. Out of respect, I fear that fear.

This is not true of the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. As far as I know, she fears nothing, but many things and people fear her. I am the president of that Fear Group. She has a subtle way of expressing her fear and each day I am learning more of that subtlety. I am not sure why, but most of her fear has to do with what I am eating at the time. She has some phobia about apple fritters, especially me eatinAllg them.

One thing about her is that she always faces her fear head on. That was, until recently.

Last Tuesday I came home from my office and entering the house I heard some screaming, "Get away from me. Don't you dare come near me. Leave right away." I was scared at first. I was thinking these remarks were directed in my direction.

I always fear the worst in every situation. My philosophy is, if you fear the worse and it doesn't hap-

The turmoil going on inside the house as I entered was very mysterious to me. I never heard such loud yelling in our home before. My first thought was it was directed to me, then my second thought was, there is an intruder in our house. If that was true about an intruder, I felt sorry for him. Crossing our doorway and coming face-to-face with the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage would not be a good thing for him. He would encounter the other side of her graciousness.

 $ilde{ t I}$ can only remember one time when $ilde{ t I}$ encountered that side of her. The details are not necessary, the only thing important is, I survived.

Now, I was wondering if this intruder was going to survive. Very cautiously, I crossed the living room to where the noise was coming from. There she was, standing in front of our glass doors leading into the porch area. My wife was standing there with a broom in her hand, looking out and screaming, "Get away from here or I'm going At this point, I did not want to interrupt her. I did not want that fear she was experiencing directed in my direction. So, I waited. Finally, she whirled around, saw me and said, "Come here and help me."

One fear I have yet to overcome is stepping into a situation I know nothing about. This qualified as one of those situations.

I stood there, staring at her not knowing what to do or say. "Don't just stand there, come and help me." I took one step toward her and she said, "There are bumblebees out on our porch. They tried attacking me when I was out there. I'm afraid of bumblebees."

I did not have a notebook handy, but I wanted to jot down a new "fear" that she had. I had no idea that she was afraid of bumblebees. That information may come in handy down the road and so I tucked it into the back of my noggin.

When it comes to bumblebees and other kind of stinging insects, I like to keep my distance. "I want you," she said as sternly as I have ever heard her talk, "go out there and get rid of all those bumblebees."

I guess she is not afraid of bumblebees stinging me as much as stinging her. Being the wonderful gentleman husband that I am, or try to be, I put on my big pants and headed towards the back porch to deal with those bumblebees. Very carefully I walked out to the porch and stood there looking all around. Hiding behind the curtain the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage was watching.

Then, I broke out into hilarious laughter. Giving me one of her infamous quizzical looks, she said, "What in the world are you laughing about?"

I must admit that in any situation, I always am on the laughing side. Either somebody is laughing at me, or I am laughing at someone else. This time it was a little of both. "There are no bumblebees out here," I said between laughter.

I wanted to tell her, but I was going to relish the moment as long as I could. There is nothing quite like getting something over on your wife. It rarely happens and so when it does, I enjoy it.

I came into the house, looked at her with a smile all over my face and said, "What it was, was a Hummingbird." I barely got it out before laughing uncontrollably. Looking at me she said, "A Hummingbird?"

"Yes, my dear, it was a Hummingbird."

Looking at me with a rather dismal look she said, "Do you suppose we ought to get a hummingbird feeder?"

One of my favorite Bible verses came to mind, "Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness" (Isaiah 41:10). Fear is only an opportunity to trust God unconditionally.

PARKINSON'S DISEASE; HOW YOU CAN HELP WITH RESEARCH

April is Parkinson Awareness Month and to help combat this disease actor Michael J. Fox founded the Fox Insight Foundation. This foundation has collaborated with Altura a research company. They are conducting an important online clinical study, which empowers patients and researchers, to work together toward Parkinson's breakthroughs. This research study is open to people with Parkinson's disease and their loved ones. Participants will use a computer, go to a designated website, and fill out health-related questionnaires. To learn more about this research program Altura and Fox Insight will be at the Arcadia Community Center, 365 Campus Drive on Tuesday, April 16 at 1:30pm. It is for individuals 50 and over. FOOD & DRINK

DAY TRIPPIN!!

Peter Dills grew up as the foodie son of the Original Foodie Elmer Dills, and now goes by "The King of the Brunch". You can listen to his two shows on AM 830 KLAA every Sunday afternoon right after the Angel Baseball game, and every Sunday morning on GO Country 105 FM

History

The Brunch has its own history. How much of it is true lends itself to its own universe. Just like how certain food entrees got their start, the Brunch is said to have started at a Chicago Hotel. Back in the 1930's restaurants weren't open on Sundays, so hotels were the traveler's source of Sunday dining. Breakfast and Lunch combined, giving us "Brunch".

Where to go in Orange County and Long Beach

Balboa Bay Resort

My last visit might just be my favorite. I have been going to the Resort (formerly club) for over ten years and each time there seems to be something new to pique my interest. This time it was their Brunch - for $53 your visit has hot and cold items all included!! Maybe my eyes were bigger then my stomach because I never got to the hot items, having gone directly to the buffet line where I filled my plate with shrimp, lox, crab claws and decent-sized cut king crab legs. The brunch also includes unlimited mimosas (there was a room full of happy guests), but I opted to go off the menu and order a split of Moet Chandon - heck if you are going to drink, you might as well go all the way! After my meal the server insisted I try the dessert table, I said no I was full, and he said "no problem take some to go". I hope he doesn't get in trouble. All in all, this is a real value if you play your cards right.

Gladstones Long Beach

How do you choose one restaurant in a city with some many great places to not only brunch but to also dine? Many reasons I love Gladstones, first is the dining on the Sunset Deck, where else can you sip a bloody mary or an endless Mimosa while in the backdrop is the Queen Mary? How about Sunday Calypso music, it really is my go to spot in Long Beach Chef Pete Lehmar has been with Gladstones since they opened in 2004, and prides him self on the the ability to adapt. Sure, he has award wining clam chowder and has won best Readers choice as the best seafood restaurant in Long Beach, but ask him for a burger, He'll say "I can make that too"!

Café Jardin

Café Jardin Brunch is served on Sundays from 10:30 AM to 2 PM

It is four courses for $39.50, and there is a $5 admission fee to enter Sherman Library and Gardens. Originally this was where the volunteers of the library would have their lunch. Chef Pascal Olhats took over and has now made the restaurant his primary Orange County Home. I suggest the Indian Spiced Braised Lamb Osso-Bucco. It is one of the best I have ever had. You prefer Italian Indian or French food? Those are here, too. You won't find any warmers or chafing dishes, but what you will find is a beautiful setting for romance. If you are in the mood for mimosas they are endless at $14. A la Votre

Brigatine (Del Mar)

Bing Crosby and his friends decided on Del Mar for their Thoroughbred Club in 1936, a prime destination of horse racing fans for years. The Brigatine hasn't been around that long (last I heard was 45 years), and has turned itself into a mini chain. In the Del Mar/San Diego area I don't have to tell you that it's all about the fish tacos! Though the Sunday Brunch is a pleasing excuse to have a Bloody Mary before the 2 PM post time at Del Mar, you should enjoy Puerto Nuevo style lobsters (you know, the ones with no claws), For me the Crab Cake Benedict style is the real winner; they use lump Crab and come with a side of breakfast potatoes.

Listen to me on Go Country 105 every Sunday Morning at 8 AM

BARGER MOTION OFFERS COUNTY SUPPORT FOR ENDING HORSE FATALITIES AT SANTA ANITA

LOS ANGELES COUNTY – The Board of Supervisors has unanimously approved a motion by Supervisor Kathryn Barger to send a five-signature letter to the California Horse Racing Board supporting further efforts to investigate and advocate for solutions to end the spate of horse fatalities at Santa Anica Boards

Since December 26 of last year, there have been 23 horse deaths at the racetrack, and the reasons for this significant increase remain unclear. Some have speculated that the winter rains caused the soil to become too soft. Others with the Stronach Group, which owns Santa Anita Park, argue that standards for veterinary treatment need to be updated.

Barger's motion directs the Chief Executive Officer to work with the Department of Animal Care and Control to offer cooperation with those responsible for horse fatalities at Santa Anita Park, including support for updated standards, if appropriate.

"The extent of loss of these beautiful animals is truly heartbreaking, yet despite all the analysis, concern, and care shown by a multitude of experts, advocates, and concerned citizens, the number of injuries and fatalities continues to grow," said Supervisor Barger. "My motion expresses the county's concern over the matter and offers the full support of county agencies and departments who wish to partner with state agencies and Santa Anita Park to solve this problem and protect these animals."

Despite the most recent fatality, Santa Anita Park will remain open to host the Santa Anita Derby, a significant race for those hoping to make it to the Kentucky Derby on May 2, 2019.

COUNTY ALSO APPROVES MOTION TO EXPAND YOUTH ACCESS TO MENTAL HEALTH TREATMENT

LOS ANGELES COUNTY – In an effort to improve the county's ability to effectively identify and address trauma and emotional distress affecting youth, the Board of Supervisors has unanimously approved a motion by Supervisor Kathryn Barger to launch the Community Schools Initiative in 15 high-need school districts.

The motion directs the Department of Mental Health, in coordination with the Los Angeles County Office of Education, to identify nearly $4.3 million to hire 45 positions and deploy 10 regional mental health teams to serve the 80 school districts countywide.

A recent study by the Journal of Abnormal Psychology reveals that rates of major depressive episodes among adolescents ages 12-17 increased 52% between 2005 and 2017. The study found a similar increase in rates of major depressive episodes among young adults ages 18-25, which increased 63% between 2009 and 2017.

"These statistics are alarming and clearly demonstrate the immediate need for expanded access to mental health and well-being services for our youth," said Barger. "This initiative will integrate evidence-based practices on school campuses and improve the connectivity of students and their families to service providers and holistic programs. By eliminating socio-emotional barriers, we will see improved learning outcomes and overall wellness for our students."

The initiative will achieve these goals through dedicated school-based mental health social workers and regional mental health teams that will provide an array of school-based services, including but not limited to community outreach, peer support, crisis response, screening, triage, and linkage for students and families in need. Additionally, the initiative will provide education and training to school staff and administrators on the impacts of trauma and how to improve student achievement by creating a trauma-informed learning environment.

The Department of Mental Health has conducted broad stakeholder outreach to develop a community-driven plan to action. The proposed initiatives were presented to over 100 stakeholders including students, parents, teachers, psychiatric social workers, providers, and other community members to get feedback and input on the development of a comprehensive initiative.

Barger's motion directs county agencies to begin implementing this initiative and report back in 60 days with additional pilot schools, as well as framework for a Mental Health First Aid program which will educate students on how to support a friend or loved one who is experiencing mental health

THE FRIENDS OF THE SIERRA MADRE PUBLIC LIBRARY ARE PROUD TO ANNOUNCE THE FEATURED ARTIST FOR THE 57TH ANNUAL SIERRA MADRE ART FAIR IS WARREN YIP.

Warren S. Wing Yip studied architecture at Oklahoma State University and did his postgraduate work at Columbia University in New York. He practiced architecture in New York and Florida for 15 years before turning to designing products and importing and wholesaling his designs. His designs included display fixtures, desktop accessories such as lamps, and picture frames.

In the mid 2000's, and after doing business in Hawaii for a number of years, Warren slowly absorbed the local cultures and sensed the potential of the art of floral presentation by creating contemporary containers. He also felt the need to set up his own studio in California where he lives for its design development and quality.

The blending of cultures on the islands gave him the incentive to further develop this floral presentation concept for the mainland lifestyle. This harmonious fusion for modern day living is the foundation of his work. His medium is simple wooden pieces, and his focus is utilizing simplicity to bring out the natural beauty of flowers while allowing the containers to be both a complimenting and stand-alone art form

He is now semi-retired and enjoys doing his wood work and art shows with help from his wife Janet.

Warren describes his featured art piece, 'Giraffe,' as: "I chose a laminated block made from small pieces of Maple wood as the body for the vase. The block was cut to show the end grains of the wood which gave me a texture in various tones. The vase was designed for directional and single-stem floral arrangement in the Asian fashion. It was also meant to be sculptural by itself. The glass liner was purposely exposed for contrast with wood. For the frame, I used a very hard wood from Indonesia called Balau which allowed me to cut it into narrow pieces for a sense of slenderness."

This year's Art Fair is being held in Memorial Park on Saturday, May 4, from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., and Sunday, May 5, from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Be sure to stop by Warren's booth (#53) to admire and purchase his inspiring creations.

VASTER THAN SKY, GREATER THAN SPACE by Mooji

Brilliant Illuminations for Awakening to the Absolute. What if all that you believe yourself to be—your body, mind, emotions, and conditioning—is actually what you are not? What if this is merely a self-portrait shaped by false identification, habit, and assumptions? In ever-growing gatherings worldwide, the revered teacher Mooji has opened the eyes of thousands through his rare ability to shine light on the ineffable with uncommon clarity, humor, and warmth. Now Mooji invites and inspires readers everywhere to discover the true essence from which we all arise. The Advaita Vedanta tradition teaches that through simple questioning and introspection, we can awaken to something far greater than the ego self, a nondual Oneness with the ground of Being. Mooji guides us into the adventure of deep inquiry, sparking direct Self-realization through parables, insights, wisdom teachings, and responses to the common questions of readers, such as: If I've always been one with the eternal Self, why do I feel so anxious, depressed, or angry? How do I attain a state of peace, joy, and timeless presence? As pure and infinite Being, of what importance are my personal relationships, aspirations, or efforts to help others in need? I've suffered so much trauma in my life—is psychotherapy helpful on this path? How do I forgive others who have hurt me? Are intimate relationships a help or a hindrance to awakening? I understand these words, but I continue to be filled with the chatter of the mind—what should I do? Through our own engagement and self-exploration, Mooji helps us to arrive at the answers, not from the limited perspective in which we've been conditioned, but from our own deepest Knowing-revealing the timeless, boundless love and freedom that is the natural perfume of the Absolute.

All Things By Jeff Brown

PEOPLE WHO BELIEVE THIS ABOUT THE WORLD ARE FAR HAPPIER

Those who believe in the concept of oneness — that all things are connected and interdependent -- are more satisfied with their lives than people who don't share this belief, according to research published by the American Psychological Association on Thursday. That's true regardless of religion. The research, published in the journal Psychology of Religion and Spirituality, was composed of two surveys of nearly 75,000 people. People who agreed with statements like the ones below were more likely to believe in the concept of oneness; they were also tested on concepts related to oneness like social connectedness, connectedness to nature and empathy.1. I believe that everything in the world is based on a common principle. 2. All things in the world have a common source. 3. I believe that everything in the world is connected to each other. 4. I believe in a divine principle underlying all being. 5. Everything in the world is interdependent and influenced by each other. Other studies on oneness find a correlation between that belief and compassion for others and concern for human welfare. And it's a popular philosophy among spiritual leaders like the Dalai Lama. So can you develop or further a belief in oneness? Maybe. Most religions believe in oneness to some degree or another, so it could help to worship with others. Not your thing? LIVING THIS DAY

Over two thousand years ago, there was a rabbi, a preacher who taught us how to pray, today we call it the Lord's Prayer. In it, he reminded us to value every day and to appreciate the singularity of each moment.

Give us this day our daily bread.

Each day we are gifted with a new day. We get to choose whether we will rise to meet a day in its new, and magnificent splendor. Or we can be shackled with regret over the days in the past. Will we allow our mind to race ahead worry about the time that hasn't arrived yet? Is it possible to rejoice in this life now while we are living it?

"Someday there will be no more time." Pablo Cuelo

What does it take to live a vision driven life, while appreciating this moment?

It requires a decision. We must ask ourselves who do we want to be?

It requires truth and rigor.

To have what we truly want we must be willing to face our desire and the absence of the of our object of desire. We must stay in the habit of telling ourselves the truth. Sometimes it will require risk and leaving behind the familiar.

If we fail to devote our attention to our life at this moment, it is very easy to fall into bad habits and routines. We must become rigorous with monitoring our thoughts and banish those that don't bring us life. We must set aside activities that do not support our vision. The Latin root of the word decide means to cut away. We must excise things not in alignment with our vision.

When you are having difficulty, and we do. Remind yourself that every condition is temporary, it came to pass, not to stay. As thoughts come to mind that are frightening or worrisome, reject them, you can even speak to your self and say, "no." You will need a replacement thought. It's not enough to tell yourself, "be positive." Actively conjure more pleasing thoughts. Instead of worrying about your kid who's out late at night, think a good thought. Imagine the child walking in the door, safe and happy to share the story of their adventure. Decide to reject suffering. There is no more important and rigorous work than directing your mind.

Decide to sieze this day.

6 QUESTIONS TO CONSIDER WHEN SELECTING BENEFICIARIES FOR YOUR LIFE INSURANCE POLICY—PART 2

Last week I discussed the first three of six questions you should ask yourself when selecting a life insurance beneficiary. Here I'll cover the remaining three.

Selecting a beneficiary for your life insurance policy sounds pretty straightforward. But given all of the options available and the potential for unforeseen problems, it can be a more complicated decision than you might imagine.

For instance, when purchasing a life insurance policy, your primary goal is most likely to make the named beneficiary's life better or easier in some way in the aftermath of your death. However, unless you consider all the unique circumstances involved with your choice, you might actually end up creating additional problems for your loved ones.

BUSINESS NEWS & TRENDS

4. Are any of your beneficiaries minors?

While you're technically allowed to name a minor as the beneficiary of your life insurance policy, it's a bad idea to do so. Insurance carriers will not allow a minor child to receive the insurance benefits directly until they reach the age of majority.

If you have a minor named as your beneficiary when you die, then the proceeds would be distributed to a court-appointed custodian tasked with managing the funds, often at a financial cost to your beneficiary. And this is true even if the minor has a living parent. This means that even the child's other living birth parent would have to go to court to be appointed as custodian if he or she wanted to manage the funds. And, in some cases, that parent would not be able to be appointed (for example, if they have poor credit), and the court would appoint a paid fiduciary to hold the funds.

Rather than naming a minor child as beneficiary, it's better to set up a trust for your child to receive the insurance proceeds. That way, you get to choose who would manage your child's inheritance, and how and when the insurance proceeds would be used and distributed.

5. Would the money negatively affect a beneficiary?

When considering how your insurance funds might help a beneficiary in your absence, you also need to consider how it might potentially cause harm. This is particularly true in the case of young

For example, think about what could go wrong if an 18-year-old suddenly receives a huge windfall of cash. At best, the 18-year-old might blow through the money in a short period of time. At worst, getting all that money at once could lead to actual physical harm (even death), as could be the case for someone with substance-abuse issues.

If you set up a trust to receive the insurance payment, you would have total control over the conditions that must be met for proceeds to be used or distributed. For example, you could build the trust so that the insurance proceeds would be kept in trust for beneficiary's use inside the trust, yet still keep the funds totally protected from future creditors, lawsuits, and/or divorce.

6. Is the beneficiary eligible for government benefits?

Considering how your life insurance money might negatively affect a beneficiary is critical when it comes to those with special needs. If you leave the money directly to someone with special needs, an insurance payout could disqualify your beneficiary from receiving government benefits.

Under federal law, if someone with special needs receives a gift or inheritance of more than $2,000, they can be disqualified for Supplemental Security Income and Medicaid. Since life insurance proceeds are considered inheritance under the law, an individual with special needs SHOULD NEVER be named as beneficiary.

To avoid disqualifying an individual with special needs from receiving government benefits, you would create a "special needs" trust to receive the proceeds. In this way, the money will not go directly to the beneficiary upon your death, but be managed by the trustee you name and dispersed per the trust's terms without affecting benefit eligibility.

Make sure you've considered all potential circumstances

These are just a few of the questions you should consider when choosing a life insurance beneficiary. Consult with us a trusted advisor to be certain you've thought through all possible circumstances and named your beneficiaries in the best way possible.

EXPLAINING WHAT WE DO NOT BUT SHOULD KNOW

So after spending 22 months investigating, On March 22, Special Counsel Robert Mueller submitted his report to Attorney General William Barr. The investigation garnered 199 criminal charges, 37 indictments or guilty pleas, and 5 prison sentences, and cost to the American taxpayer about $25 million—A bargain compared to the $25 million spent in 1974 dollars on the Watergate investigation. Mueller's report has not yet been made public.

Two days later, On March 24, Barr sent a four-page summary to Congress detailing the what he called the "principal conclusions" of special counsel's findings to key members of congress. Barr wrote in his summary "that the report is divided into two parts: the results of the investigation into Russia's interference into the 2016 presidential election, and an examination of whether the president obstructed justice."

Barr said that the special counsel "did not find that the Trump campaign or anyone associated with it conspired or coordinated with Russia in its efforts to influence the 2016 U.S. presidential election, and an examination of whether the president obstructed justice. He quoted directly from the report:"The investigation did not establish that members of the Trump Campaign conspired or coordinated with the Russian government in its election interference activities."

Barr said that Mueller's team did not determine whether Trump illegally obstructed justice either: "while this report does not conclude that the president committed a crime, it also does no exonerate him." In his summary, Barr wrote that he and Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein "determined that the special counsel's investigator's did not have enough evidence to prove Trump had obstructed justice."

There seems to be some confusion over what the standard of proof Mueller should have been using. Grand juries, unlike petit criminal trial courts, where beyond a reasonable doubt is the standard. Grand juries use this, not the higher standard. They are generally impaneled with 16 to 24 jurors for extended periods time to investigate serious, more complicated crimes.

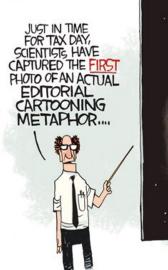

For a quorum to vote 2/3rds of the grand jurors have to be present, or 8 to 16 respectively, the same number needed to indict or charge a person with a crime. Not meeting this threshold of proof was the reason why the president and other administration officials were not held accountable—not that President Trump and his cronies have been exonerated!

AG Barr reported by Politico indicated: "...he's prepared to share a redacted copy of special counsel Robert Mueller's report with lawmakers and the public by mid-April 'if not sooner' and indicated he's prepared to testify to Congress by early May."

Yet why the need for any redactions at all? The committees members can use the un-redacted copies in closed, non-public sessions. My understanding is that all members of the House and Senate committees holding hearing on the Mueller investigation have sufficiently high security clearances to read the un-redacted version of the report.

The Politico article also noted that "Barr's initial summary of Mueller's conclusions also omitted central swaths of the areas Mueller investigated, including whether he reached counterintelligence findings that might show whether any Americans were compromised by Russians even if they committed no crimes."

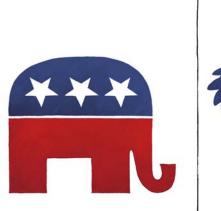

Donald Rumsfeld, Former Secretary of Defense under President George W. Bush, once said, "Reports that say that something hasn't happened are always interesting to me, because, as we know, there are known knowns; there are things we know that we know. There are known unknowns. That is to say, there are things that we know we don't want to know, and there are things governments do not want you to know. "This is what I call Rumsfeld's General Theory of Relative Unknowns.

BEFORE TRUMP

RICH MANIERI

FORGET TRUMP'S TAX RETURNS, WHAT ABOUT MINE?

I don't care about President Trump's tax returns.

With the filing deadline approaching, I'm far more interested in my tax return. Because as fascinating as the contents of the president's returns might be, it's my own that give me agita.

Of course, I do realize that some Americans, most of whom are House Democrats, care deeply about Trump's tax returns.

They thought Robert Mueller had delivered them a present in the completed Russian collusion investigation. It was all wrapped up in a nice shiny package with a pretty red bow. But inside, the Democrats found only irregular underwear.

Undaunted, the members of the House Financial Services Committee, led by Rep. Maxine Waters (D-Calif.), who hates Trump more than a canker, now have another object of their obsession – Trump's tax returns.

Because the president has told the Democrats to go pound sand, the Financial Services Committee gave the IRS a Wednesday deadline to hand the returns over.

On Wednesday, Trump said he won't provide six years' worth of returns for which the Democrats are asking because he's under audit. He also pointed out that he got elected with this issue hanging over his head and those who voted for him didn't seem to care. There's no reason to believe that isn't still the case.

All of this is likely to degenerate into a long, rancorous legal battle.

But that's the Democrats' problem.

In the meantime, I have to write a fat check to the IRS this year.

My father, who was a CPA, used to say that if you owe money, be thankful because it means you've had a pretty good year. That's a far better approach than my usual --tearing my garments, followed by the first four of the five stages of grief. (I can't seem to make the jump from depression to acceptance.)

In the Bible, in Matthew (22:21) Jesus said "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's." That's a tough one, especially when you know that sound financial stewardship is not one of Caesar's strengths.

Still, I take my responsibilities seriously. I might have to do it but I don't have to like it. By the way, I'd like to make the offer now to who anyone wants to see my returns. They're all yours.

In fact, my accountant put them in a smartly bound, blue folder. It all looks perfectly professional and official. Production values aside, there's nothing in there that's particularly interesting, just in case the IRS is reading this.

I didn't claim my dog as a dependent or my big screen TV as a business expense. My returns are above board and boring. Others, however, are far more creative.

How about hiring an arsonist to burn down your business and deducting the $10,000 fee paid to the arsonist? True, according to TurboTax. Or trying to deduct a tattoo as a medical expense? Also, true.

There are some unusual, legal deductions of which you might not be aware. If you haven't filed yet, consider these for next year.

If you are the captain of a whaling vessel, you are eligible for up to $10,000 in ship repairs. I hope Captain Ahab didn't waste all that time chasing Moby Dick without getting a tax break.

Under very specific circumstances, you can deduct cat food. "The IRS allowed a junk-yard owner to deduct the cost of cat food as a business expense," according to CNBC. "In this case, the taxpayer asserted that the food was necessary to attract feral cats, which kept the junkyard's pests - wild rats and snakes - in check."

Exotic dancers have deducted breast augmentation surgery. Hey, it's a legitimate business expense.

And thanks to a 1962 case in which an orthodontist said playing the clarinet would correct an overbite, you might be able to deduct your kid's clarinet lessons, assuming you're willing to listen to a lot of off-key squealing while you're waiting for his teeth to straighten. Could be a long year.

But whaling is illegal (unless you're Native American), I don't own a cat or a junkyard, and I'm not willing to endure a protracted period of bad B flats.

I'll just write my check and hope Caesar appreciates it.

JOHN L. MICEK STREAMING 'GAME OF THRONES?' YOU SHOULD CARE ABOUT NET NEUTRALITY BILL

THE COLUMNS DEPARTS

If you're like me, you're probably going to sit down on Sunday night, popcorn and adult beverage in hand, to watch the start of the final season of "Game of Thrones."

And if, like me, you're one of the roughly 33 million other Americans last year who were expected to cut the cord with their cable companies, then you're probably watching "Game of Thrones" on your laptop or streaming device.

So, Mother of Dragons, you're going to need to pay attention to some recent developments in Washington.

This week, the majority-Democrat U.S. House voted to reinstate Obama-era "net neutrality" rules that prevent internet service providers from meddling with web traffic

The "Save the Internet Act," sponsored by Rep. Mike Doyle, D-Pa., passed on a 232-190 vote, largely along party lines. One Republican, Rep. Bill Posey, of Florida, broke ranks with the GOP to side with Democrats.

President Trump's Federal Communications Commission reversed the rules in 2017 - a major win for big telecom like Comcast and Verizon, who were effectively freed to charge super-users more for their data consumption and cut off the competition at the knees.

But the bill is in for a bumpy ride in the Republican-controlled Senate, where, according to Slate, Majority Leader Mitch McConnell has pronounced it "dead on arrival."

As an added bonus, Slate reports, aides to President Trump have recommended a veto. Which is a shame, because if there's anyone who needs access to streaming high-quality historical documentaries about the basics of American history, it's Trump.

Last year, the Senate approved a resolution to undo the administration's rule reversal, with the support of Republican Sens. Susan Collins of Maine, John Kennedy of Louisiana, and Lisa Murkowski of Alaska. Every Democratic senator backed the resolution. Even still, it failed to get the votes for passage in the Republican-controlled House, Slate noted.

According to Doyle, it's likely that lawmakers will face some significant pressure from the folks back home to approve the legislation, something that's backed up by polling data.

As ZDNet reports, 80 percent of respondents to a recent Comparitech Poll said they supported net neutrality. The support, according to ZDNet, cuts across party lines: 87 percent of Democrats and 77 percent of Republican respondents said they supported net neutrality.

We're now at a point where there's a nexus between the content-creators and the content-providers. And anything that further cements that relationship - and chokes off choice - is a bad thing.

"In other words, major ISPs will be able to promote the media companies they own ... while punishing competitors' offerings," Paul Blumenthal wrote for HuffPost in 2017. "That will force consumers, who often have no choice in internet service providers, into walled gardens of content that the ISPs create."

The other issue is that while many Americans have access to broadband internet, there are many thousands more - particularly in rural areas - who do not.

As ZDNet also reports, research by Microsoft found that 162.8 million people (that's half the nation, by the way) don't have access to broadband-speed access.

The digital divide is one of the starker reminders of the gap between the haves- and the have-nots in Donald Trump's America.

It's nearly impossible to do anything these days - from registering to vote and paying your electric bill to shopping or obtaining access to basic information - without an internet hook-up. And there is nothing less patriotic than balkanizing Americans and cutting them off from a civic debate that occurs largely online, simply because of an accident of geography.

In the early 1990s, when the first blush of this thing called the internet was upon us, it was viewed as a liberating force, one that would level the playing field by democratizing the flow of information and opening channels of communication to everyone.

It has been successful - and failed - beyond our wildest expectations. For every social media campaign that's resulted in policy change, there's been the revelation of foreign meddling and the unsettling, but inevitable, reality that the concept of "online privacy" is now an oxymoron.

While the early days of the internet are long gone, the restoration of net neutrality rules would at least restore some fairness and preserve consumer freedoms.

And that doesn't seem like a whole lot to ask.

Call your Senator and let them know winter will be coming if they don't vote to support the House bill.

FICTITIOUS BUSINESS NAME STATEMENT

FICTITIOUS BUSINESS NAME STATEMENT

ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: SHIRLEY ANNE YERGEAU AKA SHIRLEY A. YERGEAU, SHIRLEY YERGEAU AND SHIRLEY ANN GUSTAVSON CASE NO. 19STPB02957

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of SHIRLEY ANNE YERGEAU AKA SHIRLEY A. YERGEAU, SHIR-LEY YERGEAU AND SHIRLEY ANN GUSTAVSON.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by DEBRA ANN HARRIS in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that DEBRA ANN HARRIS be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act . (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 04/29/19 at 8:30AM in Dept. 9 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

City of Sierra Madre

Properties in the City of Sierra Madre, County of Los Angeles, State of California Project Location:

On April 9, 2019, the City Council introduced for second reading Ordinance 1411 recommending adoption of Municipal Code Text Amendment 19-01 regulating small wireless facilities. This summary is published pursuant to Government Code Section 36933(e)(1) and a full and complete certified copy of the text of Ordinance 1411 are available at the Sierra Madre City Manager's Office located at City of Sierra Madre City Hall, 232 W. Sierra Madre Blvd., Sierra Madre, CA. Ordinance 1411 will become effective on May 9, 2019. The purpose of Municipal Code Text Amendment 19-01 amends Title 17, Chapter 17.93-Standards and Criteria for Wireless Communications Facilities of the Sierra Madre Municipal Code. The amendments update the City's standards for wireless facilities and rules for reviewing, processing, and approving wireless facility applications. Each ordinance addresses recent changes to federal and state law including a new "shot clock rule" establishing 60 days to process permits to attach 5G small cell sites to existing structures, and 90 days for attached equipment to new structures. The ordinance also addresses reasonable

ENVIRONMENTAL DETERMINATION: The adoption of this ordinance qualifies for an exemption from the California Environmental Quality Act review pursuant to Title 14, Section 15061(b)(3) of the California Code of Regulations as it can be seen with certainty that there is no possibility the adoption of this Ordinance may have a significant effect on the environment.

requirements on siting, appearance, structure, and other aspects of the facility. It further limits fees for 5G small cell applications

APPEAL: If in the future anyone wishes to challenge the decision of the City Council in court, one may be limited to raising the issues that were raised or presented in written correspondence delivered to the City Council at, or before, the scheduled public hearing. ADOPTION OF ORDINANCE 1412 PROVIDING GENERAL CLEAN-UP OF VARIOUS CODE SECTIONS OF THE SIERRA MADRE MUNICIPAL CODE (SMMC) INCLUDING

PLACE OF HEARING

TITLE 10-VEHICLES AND TRAFFIC AND TITLE 17-ZONING

City of Sierra Madre Applicant: Project Location: Properties in the City of Sierra Madre, County of Los Angeles, State of California

The City of Sierra Madre gives notice, pursuant to State of California law, that the City Council will introduce, waive reading in full, and conduct a public hearing to consider recommending adoption of Ordinance 1412, amending sections of the SMMC with the intent to achieve consistency and clarity included within Title 10 "Vehicles and Traffic" and Title 17 "Zoning." The Municipal Code Text Amendments accomplish the following: To more clearly define parking restrictions for commercial and recreational vehicles in residential districts; to achieve consistency in notification procedures for ministerial and discretionary applications specific to mailed and posted notices; to utilize the Department of Parks and Recreation (DPR Series 523) Forms to determine historic eligibility for structures 75 years of age and older and requiring architectural historians preparing such reports to be certified by the Secretary of the Interior's Standards; excluding discretionary design review as part of a reasonable accommodation application to limit potential exposure of a protected class in a public setting, and establishing driveway width standards in the R -1 (One-Family Residential) and R-2 (Two-family residential) zoning districts to be not less than 10 feet in

This summary is published pursuant to Government Code Section 36933(c)(1) and a full and complete certified copy of the text of Ordinance 1412 is available at the Sierra Madre City Manager's Office located at City of Sierra Madre City Hall, 232 W. Sierra Madre Blvd., Sierra Madre, CA.
