MISSING HIKER FOUND ALIVE AND WELL AFTER 7 DAYS

On Saturday June 22nd, 73 year old Eugene Jo went hiking out of the Three Points trailhead in the San Gabriel Mountains with 6 other hikers. Around 3:00 pm Jo became separated from the group. He was found 1 week later on Saturday June 29th after a massive search effort by search and rescue teams from across California.

The Montrose Search and Rescue Team received a report of a missing hiker around 7:00 pm on Saturday June 22nd. As they began their search, the Sierra Madre Search and Rescue Team and the Altadena Mountain Rescue Team were called to assist. Field teams searched the area through the night, watching the sunrise on their assignments.

On Sunday, fresh searchers from 7 of Los Angeles County's search and rescue teams deployed, and search assignments expanded. In the daylight they searched the trails in the Mt Waterman area, as well as off trail areas near where Jo's hiking group had lunch. On Monday June 24th teams throughout California were called to join the search.

In the end, 25 teams responded from 10 counties including teams as far away as Marin and San Diego counties. Approximately 3,200 acres were searched by 327 searchers alongside LA Search Dogs, Special Enforcement Bureau's Unmanned Aircraft System, LA Sheriff's Department and LA County Fire Department helicopters.

On Saturday June 29th over 75 searchers deployed into the field. That morning Jo was located deep in Devil's Canyon by a field team from the Altadena Mountain Rescue Team. Jo was extracted by Air Rescue 5 and taken to Huntington Memorial Hospital where he was released later the same day.

Jo's family said that he would not give up. They were correct. Jo drank stream water, ate plants and tried to signal helicopters with his red vest. He was deep in thick brush in a huge search area though so he wasn't located until a ground team got close to him and heard his response to their voices.

The Sierra Madre Search and Rescue Team (SMSR) fielded 23 team members who logged over 650 hours between time spent in the field and assisting the Montrose Search and Rescue Team with overhead management of the operation. In large scale searches Incident Management Teams play a critical role. Throughout the day, personnel in the command post manage radio communication with field teams, interview the friends and family, interact with the media, debrief search teams, and processes GPS track logs. Based on information from each days' search assignments and new information, the Planning Section works through the night to determine where teams will search the next day.

As for the reactions when Jo was located, one SMSR team member reported, "I was elated when the radio call came in," and another member shared that, "there were smiles, hugs, and tears of joy." For now team members have returned home to wash off the dirt, tend to their bruises, and catch up on some much needed sleep. For SMSR it was a week spent in the service of their motto, "Anywhere in the wilderness someone needs help. . ."

Since 1951, the all-volunteer Sierra Madre Search and Rescue Team has responded to calls for help in the local mountains and beyond. SMSR also provides a range of wilderness safety programs. The Team never charges for any of these services, and is funded entirely by charitable donations. For more information, to donate, or to arrange a wilderness safety demonstration for your school or group, visit www.smsr.org.

ALL-STAR RE-SWEEP!

Sierra Madre Little League All Stars Repeat Sweep of District 17 Tournament

Submitted by Walker Haynes

The Sierra Madre 11-12 year old All-Star team swept the District 17 tournament last week in un-precedented fashion, punching their ticket for the second year in a row to the California Section 2 All-Star tournament. This team, led by manager Brian Kriebs, is made up of mostly the same players that won the 10-11 year old district tournament last season in similar fashion.

The District 17 tournament was hosted by Pasadena Southwest Little League, and all games were played at Stan Gray Field in Allendale Park. The first game was against Arcadia American, and Sierra Madre came out on top, 7-3. The second match-up was against Central Altadena, and that 10-1 win put Madre squarely in the winners bracket.

The semifinal game, against a tough Santa Anita squad, was a bonafide pitcher's duel between some of the best pitchers in the district. Madre prevailed 5-1, setting the stage for a championship game against the winning team from the los-ers bracket. That game, played on Tuesday, July 9th, was a rematch against Santa Anita, ad had all the drama of a championship game. The stands were packed, and the stage was set as Madre's ace Cash Carroll took the mound. Santa Anita jumped out to an early 1-0 lead, and Sier-ra Madre answered, scoring two runs in the third inning and one run in the fourth inning. Santa Anita added one run in the fifth inning, and the score was 3-2 heading into the sixth inning. That inning was the turning point: Madre's bats went to work, scoring seven additional runs to clinch the 10-2 win. Carroll pitched the entire game, throwing 75 pitches, allowing only five hits and two runs, with five strikeouts and zero walks, and the Madre offense had eight hits, led by Yahir Tre-to, who was 2 for 3. In their four tournament games, Sierra Madre allowed only seven runs while offensively overpowering the competition, scoring a total of 32 runs.

The team will head to the California Section 2 All-Star tournament in Northridge, which runs July 13th-17th.

RUPERT SPIRA-NON DUALITY

From the viewpoint of the earth, the sun comes and goes, whereas it is, in fact, always present. Likewise, from the viewpoint of the body and mind, our essential nature of pure Awareness comes and goes, but, in its own experience of itself, it is ever-present. All experience is illuminated, or made knowable, by the light of pure Knowing. This Knowing pervades all thoughts, feelings, sensations and perceptions, irrespective of their particular characteristics. We are this transparent, unchanging Knowing.Our self - luminous, open, empty Awareness - cannot be enlightened. It is already the light that illuminates all experience. Nor can a separate self be enlightened, for when the separate self faces the light of Awareness, it vanishes, just as a shadow does when exposed to the sun.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE - The Social Side by Deanne Davis

"Being there for a child is the most noble thing a toy can do."

"Be who you are right now." Bo Peep
"As the years go by, our friendship will never die. You're gonna see it's our destiny. You've got a friend in me." Randy Newman "Seek out people who are willing to level with you, and when you find them, hold them close." Creativity Inc., Ed Catmull

"The important thing is that we stick together." Buzz Lightyear

We went to see Toy Story 4. OK, I admit it, I wanted to see Toy Story 4 so I asked everybody else if they wanted to go. They did. What a great movie, filled with wonderful things like loyalty and love and caring and how hard change is to deal with... something I certainly agree with as there's been so much change in my life the last year and a half and none of it was easy. Oh! and never giving up. Woody goes to great amazing lengths to make sure all works out well for his little owner girl, Bonnie. I'm being careful here not to say too much as I don't want to spoil the movie for you, but if you haven't been, go!

Movies seem to be playing a major role currently in what's going on around me. My church is doing a summer series entitled, "At The Movies," based on Ecclesiastes – those profound words from Solomon, the wisest man who ever lived - and clips from various movies. When I first heard this plan I thought, "Seriously? Movies for church? Is this summer off for the staff?" But then the first Sunday came and the movie was "The Lion King." You're all familiar with this plot: Little cub, Simba, the heir to the lion throne, is tricked by his evil uncle, Scar, into playing a part in his father, Mustafa's, death. He runs away and finds new friends in a different land where he spends his time hangin' out and growing up. Eventually confronted with who he is and what he should be doing, he has a visitation from his father, reminding him of exactly that. The message, of course, had me in tears, being reminded of Whose we are and how we are to live, which is not just hangin' out.

Last Sunday, the movie was "Titanic" featuring the gorgeous Kate Winslet and the equally gorgeous Leonardo DiCaprio. Spoiler alert: Everybody dies! Well, not everybody, just 1500 people. 700 were saved. The point we were being shown was that we need to be sure we help everybody into the lifeboat and not turn away because we're too busy or scared or whatever. A story was told about one of the lifeboats full of people; they came alongside a young man in the water; he cried to them to help him into the boat and was told, "Sorry, man, if we bring you in we'll probably go under ourselves. Just can't take anymore people on." A woman in the boat cried out, "Stop, that's my son! You have to save him!" They turned and pulled him in. At that point he was unconscious, the water temperature being about 28 degrees F, below freezing. Life expectancy at that temperature was about 20 minutes before hypothermia took charge of the body. Some hours later, he awoke to find himself on the Carpathia in a warm bed, covered with blankets. He had no idea at all what had happened to him. Moments later the woman who had saved his life came through the door to tell him how he had been rescued. Suffice to say, she was NOT his mother and they had never before met, but in the days, months and years to come, they became as close as a mother and son could be. He was her "one." We were encouraged to think who our "one" might be, whose life we could impact.

Jessie and Emily, who are 11 and 8, saw "Frozen" and so far we've been unable to get anything out of them at all about what life message they got. I figure it's pretty much the same as Toy Story 4: loyalty, selfless love, caring and how difficult change is.

Meanwhile, I'm waiting for HBO to show Titanic because now I'm dying to see it again! Did you know Kate Winslet took a lot of heat from stupid people who said she was too fat! I'd love to be that "too fat!" Speaking of HBO, they are showing "Bohemian Rhapsody" next Saturday night and, as I totally missed it in the theaters, I'm recording.

Other movie messages: "Rocketman" - don't do drugs or try to live like Elton John in his early days. "Secret Life of Pets 2" - love, loyalty, courage in the face of danger and how difficult change is to deal with. Hmmmmmmmm.... sensing a trend here.

As you can see below here, my new book is available and there's a copy at Amazon.com just waiting for you to order it for yourself or for that special someone who deserves a special gift.

KATIE Tse....This and That

ng class this summer, and it's gotten me thinking more about word choice and language overall. I feel I'm becoming a bit more cognizant, more aware, you could say. That's my hope,

And in doing so, I've noticed that when describing attractive men in fiction, adjectives usually follow this formula: "tall, [fill in the blank], and [fill in the blank]." Classic examples include "tall, dark, and handsome," tall, built, and handsome," or my personal favorite, "tall, built, and delicious." (See my character Humphrey for a good example of the latter. Details at the end of this article. On one hand, I feel a little guilty sticking in this shameless plug. But on the other hand, if I don't promote my book, who will?)

But back to the topic. You may not realize how firmly ingrained this "tall, [X], and [Y]" pattern is, but I think by the time you finish reading this you'll agree with my observation. 'Consider, for instance, how differently the following phrase would be interpreted: "dark, handsome, and tall."

Putting "tall" at the end begs the question, "What?! Is he FREAKISHLY tall? Does this guy have some pituitary condition the

Now let's consider the implications of leaving "tall" out entirely. "Dark, built, and handsome." "Handsome, built, and delicious." Or even, "Deliciously handsome and darkly built," if that even makes sense... Mess around with the modifiers any way you please, but if you leave out "tall" altogether, I can guarantee the reader's got a nagging suspicion you're describing a midget.

It's fair to assume that in real life, most normal-sized guys hook up with normal-sized girls and don't have to worry about height discrepancies. These things tend to shake themselves out. Of course there are always exceptions, such as Tom Cruise and Nichole Kidman, back in the day. But it seems such departures from the norm are fairly rare.

Thus, we should be able to conceivably assume that even without "tall" being included in the narrative, the guy who's being described is probably looking straight at, or down at, the girl in question. Course that isn't always the case, but I'm speaking generally here. In discussing this topic with my parents, my dad brought up the question of how attractive females are most typically described in novels. As in, is there a comparable formula to their "tall, dark, and handsome" male counterpart? I'm embarrassed to say I was a bit stumped trying to come up with an similar equation to answer his question. 'Uh, pretty, curved, and sassy?" "Beautiful, voluptuous, and engaging?" "Cute in a girl-next-door, baseball-and-apple-pie sort of way?" Shoot, I don't know! But I can tell you what my protagonist attractive female is like. She's got a knockout figure, long dark hair, mahogany eyes, and cheeks that dimple when she laughs. But she doesn't laugh like that for just anyone. Sorry I didn't come up with a picture for this week's article. I considered drawing the rabbit as a male model, but I chickened out. That, and I'm a little bit lazy where drawing's concerned sometimes. I promised to come up with a new story each week this year, but I never said anything about a new picture. But hey, you all have imaginations!

* Check out my novel, "A Year at Apex" in paperback and ebook on Amazon and Barnes & Noble! A classic love story between a school teacher and one-handed plumber, Apex has it all --humor, romance, the human condition, and public education. Perfect for you and the educator in your life!

There was a special presentation of Certificates to Viet Nam Veteran Ruben Valencia, best friend of Raul Guerra, a U.S. Navy Journalist, who was killed in a plane crash over Viet Nam, fiftytwo years ago. In 2007, the remains of the seven men who died in that crash made their way to Hawaii; they were interred at Arlington Cemetery, except for Raul's. His remains could not be identified; he had been adopted in Mexico. Ruben would not give up, and with a group of friends, lobbied politicians. Raul was finally brought home, and there was a beautiful Mass at St. Alphonus Church, East Los Angeles, and burial at Rose hills. Also attending Raul's services was Mary Barrow Sometlott, Raul's fiancée who was so moved and grateful for all who came to honor Raul. Because of Ruben and members of the Committee who worked so long to bring Raul home to be laid to rest, the Congresswomen, Supervisor Barger and Assemblywoman Rubio all had special Certificates of Recognition.

In addition, all Viet Nam Veterans in attendance received the Viet Nam Lapel Pin with an explanation of the pin and a Proclamation from the President on the 50th Anniversary of the

Tenant Protection Ordinance Takes Effect

Officials announced Thursday that the City of Pasadena Tenant Protection Ordinance (TPO) has been modified to provide greater tenant protections. The new protections take effect today.

The ordinance, which was adopted in 2004 and amended in 2017, requires landlords to provide relocation benefits to tenants who are displaced under specific circumstances. The recently modified TPO now covers situations in which a change in property ownership has occurred within 18 months prior to the tenant being issued a notice of eviction, tenancy termination, or rent increase which exceeds 5% plus the percentage annual change in the Consumer Price Index. Other circumstances which require landlords to pay relocation benefits to displaced tenants are: demolition, conversion to condominium, or permanent removal of the unit from the rental market; occupancy by the landlord or landlord's family member; government order to vacate; or the displacement of tenants from housing owned by educational institutions under certain situations. Multifamily rental properties with two or more units on a single parcel are subject to TPO. Single-family homes and condominium units are exempt from TPO.

To be eligible for TPO relocation benefits, tenants must be in good standing with incomes not exceeding 140% of the Los Angeles County area median income. The current annual gross income limit for a household of four persons is $102,340. TPO benefits consist of a relocation allowance and a moving expense allowance. For a 2-bedroom unit, current relocation allowance is $4,478. The moving expense allowance is currently $1,338 for adult households and $4,033 for households with dependents, disabled or senior members In addition, qualified tenants may be eligible for increased TPO benefits if they have maintained a continuous period of tenancy in their rental units for at least 10

SCAG LOCAL PROFILES REPORT HOW DOES YOUR CITY COMPARE?

SCAG - The Southern California Association of Governments The Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG) is the largest Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO) in the nation, with nearly 19 million residents. The SCAG region includes six counties (Imperial, Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, and Ventura) and 191 incorporated cities. In addition, the SCAG region is a major hub of global economic activity, representing the 16th largest economy in the world and is considered the nation's gateway for international trade, with two of the largest ports in the nation.

The SCAG region is the also the most culturally diverse region in the nation, with no single ethnic group comprising a majority of the population. With a robust, diversified economy and a growing population substantially fueled by international immigration, the SCAG region is poised to continue its role as a primary metropolitan center on the Pacific Rim.

The purpose of this report is to provide current information and data for Los Angeles County for planning and outreach efforts. Information on population, housing, transportation, employment, retail sales, and education can be utilized by the city to make well informed planning decisions.

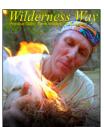

The report provides a portrait of the County and its changes since 2000, using average figures for SCAG Region as a comparative baseline. In addition, the most current data available for the region is also included in the Statistical Summary (left). This profile report illustrates current trends occurring in Los Angeles County. Factors Affecting Local Changes Reflected in the 2019 Report Overall, member jurisdictions since 2000 have been impacted by a variety of factors at the national, regional, and local levels. For example, the vast majority of member jurisdictions included in the 2019 Local Profiles reflect national demographic trends toward an older and more diverse population. Evidence of continued economic growth is also apparent through increases in employment, retail sales, building permits, and home prices. Work destinations and commute times correlate with regional development patterns and the location of local jurisdictions, particu-larly in relation to the regional transportation system.

Until supplies were restored, you'd want to have your needed water on-site at your own home.

Every home has a toilet tank and water heater, two sources which should provide you with water for Day One. There are also water pipes that could be drained, and ornamental fountains, and even swimming pools. Yes, you could use the swimming pool water in an emergency, but I'd cook it first.

Bill Expands Protections of the San Gabriel Mountains

Rep. Judy Chu testified Thursday before the Natural Resources Subcommittee on National Parks, Forests and Public Lands in support of her bill, the San Gabriel Mountains Foothills and Rivers Protection Act (HR 2215). This bill would expand the borders of the San Gabriel Mountains National Monument to include the western Angeles National Forest. It also establishes a National Recreation Area to enhance historic habitats of species like the conservation, increase access for all communities by connecting park poor areas to open space, and improve the management of the area through improved resources, education, and public engagement. The 15,878 acres of expanded wilderness and 15,191 acres of new wilderness areas will benefit from the highest form of protection of any federal wildland. These areas of untouched nature will remain open to hiking, camping, and other recreation activities encouraged in the San Gabriel Mountains National Monument, but commercial activities and motorized vehicles will be prohibited in order to prevent pollution, over-development, and habitat destruction. Private property and other existing rights and claims will be unchanged. In the Senate, Sen. Kamala Harris (D-CA) introduced a companion bill. Rep. Chu released the following statement: "The San Gabriel Mountains provide 30 percent of Southern California's water, comprise 70 percent of Los Angeles County's open space, and are home to California Condor and Nelson Bighorn Sheep. That makes them the best, and one of the only, options for outdoor recreation for Los Angeles County, which averages just 3.3 acres of park space per 1,000 people. Already, President Obama's National Monument declaration has increased funding and resources for these mountains, allowing more visitors to appreciate these trails and rivers more safely. But there is still so much work to be done. That is why we need to expand the National Monument boundaries, protect more wilderness areas, and establish a new San Gabriel Mountains National Recreation Area to further connect urban and wild places, helping more communities improve access to the mountains and provide new recreation opportunities. I'm grateful for the opportunity to share the importance of these mountains and wilderness areas with the Committee and I'm eager to see this bill voted on soon so we can continue our work of preserving, protecting, and appreciating our environment."

NASA Maps Surface Change in Recent Quakes

Damage from two strong earthquakes that rattled Southern California on July 4 and July 5 — a magnitude 6.4 and a magnitude 7.1, respectively — can be seen from space. The epicenter of the quakes was near the city of Ridgecrest, about 150 miles (241 kilometers) northeast of Los Angeles. According to

The Advanced Rapid Imaging and Analysis (ARIA) Laboratory in Pasadena, used synthetic aperture radar (SAR) data from the ALOS-2 satellite to produce a map showing surface displacement post-quake imagery was acquired on July 8, 2019, and compared with April 8, 2018, data from the same region.

Each color cycle represents 4.8 inches (12 centimeters) of ground displacement either toward or away from the satellite. The linear features that cut the color fringes in the southeast indicate likely locations of surface rupture caused by the earthquakes, and the "noisy" areas in the northwest may indicate locations where the ground surface was disturbed by them. The USGS reported over

1,000 aftershocks in the region following the July 5 earthquake. State and federal scientists, including those from the California Geological Survey

USGS, are using this surface deformation map in the field for assessing the damages and mapping the faults that broke during the two major earthquakes as well as the thousands of aftershocks.

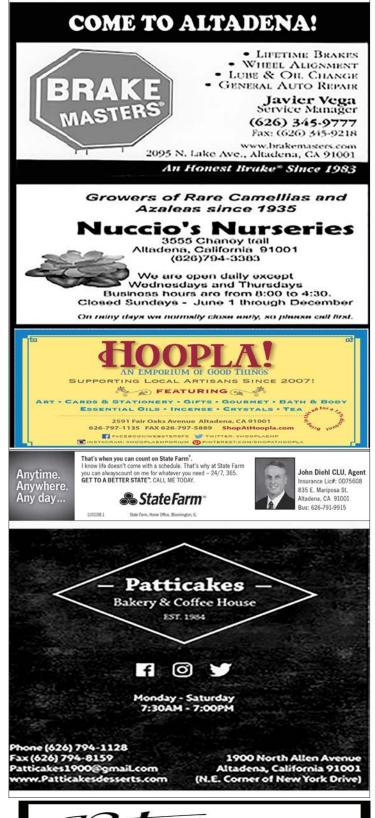

In the aftermath of the earthquakes, NASA's Earth Science Disasters Program is in communication with the California Earthquake the U.S. Geological Survey, Clearinghouse, which is the 7.1 quake was one of the largest to hit the region in some 40 years.

Coordinating response efforts with the California Air National Guard, the USGS and the Federal Emergency Management Agency. NASA team at NASA's Jet Propulsion analysts are using data from satellites to produce visualizations deformation and potential landslides, among other earthquake impacts, and from the earthquakes. The are making them available to response agencies. NASA's Disasters Program promotes the use of satellite observations in predicting, preparing for, responding to and recovering from disasters around the world.

The Japanese Aerospace Exploration Agency (JAXA) provided the ALOS-2 data for the production of the map. The ARIA team's analysis was funded by NASA's Disasters Program. To see the full photos in

ARCADIA-- School may be out for summer, but the Arcadia Unified School District is still making the grade. For the second consecutive year, Arcadia Unified was named to the 2018 - 2019 Educational Results Partnership Honor Roll for its high achievement in student success. There are over 900 school districts in California, and Arcadia Unified is one of only 26 public school districts to receive this recognition.

This program, run by the nonprofit organization, ERP, and sponsored by the Campaign for Business and Education Excellence, is part of a national effort to identify higher-performing schools and districts that are improving student outcomes. ERP maintains the nation's largest database on student achievement and employs data science to determine Honor Roll recipients.

"Every educator, staff member, and administrator on our team is dedicated to creating learnercentered environments, where positive educational outcomes can be a reality for every single one of our students," said Dr. David Vannasdall, Arcadia Unified Superintendent. "Being recognized by educational and business leaders as one of the best school districts in California helps us know we are on track to achieving our purpose of challenging and inspiring students to make a positive and profound impact on their world."

School districts that receive the ERP Honor Roll distinction have demonstrated consistent high levels of student academic achievement, improvement in achievement levels over time, and a reduction in achievement gaps among student populations. For districts with high schools, such as Arcadia Unified, the ERP Honor Roll recognition also includes measures of college readiness. Each of Arcadia Unified's six elementary schools, three middle schools, and high school were also individually named as ERP Honor Roll schools.

"ERP is all about improving educational equity and promoting career readiness for all students, regardless of their family income, background or ZIP code," said James Lanich, Ph.D., ERP president and CEO. "These Honor Roll schools and districts are living proof that our students can succeed when schools are committed to removing educational obstacles and accelerating student success. By focusing attention on these bright spots among our schools, we hope to change the conversation from 'what's wrong' to 'what's working,' and encourage others to replicate their success.'

In addition to this ERP Honor Roll recognition, Arcadia Unified achieved a rare feat of being named to the prestigious AP® District Honor Roll in consecutive years for 2017 and 2018. Likewise, Arcadia Unified was recently ranked by Niche.com as the District with the Best Teachers and the Best Place to Teach and landed in the top three best school districts in Los Angeles County. WHAT CRITICS ARE SAYING ABOUT DAMES AT SEA AT SIERRA MADRE PLAYHOUSE

"CRITIC'S PICK. This is a superior production of Dames at Sea. Wonderful direction by Finkel, stellar choreography by Parsons, and the six sparkling actors make it a must see treat. Sierra Madre has another hit on its hands through August 3.."---Don Grigware, Grigware Talks

""With its clever blend of nostalgia, camp, romance, melody, laughter, and dance, it's hard to imagine a more scrumdiddlyumptious musical theater treat than Dames At Sea, one of the best and most entertaining summer musicals ever to light up the Sierra Madre Play-house stage."---Steven Stanley, Stage Scene L.A.

"Dames at Sea" is silly, tuneful, and – for some nostalgic. It makes gentle fun of an entire film genre, but not in a mean way. Rather, that almost ferocious innocence proves an anti-dote to the tensions of our current world, just as was true back then. And in that, even it its occasional awkward moments, this production has something in common with what it celebrates .---Frances Baum Nicholson, Stage Struck Review

"Now, Sierra Madre Playhouse delivers the fluff big-time with Jeffrey Scott Parson's great tap numbers, and director Joshua Finkel's smooth direction. "---Tony Frankel, Stage & Cinema

..Outrageously talented troupe...sets the intimate theatre ablaze with rapid-fire tapping and excellent singing skills."---Lara Altunian, Stage

"SMP has successfully staged a big show on a small stage (effectively including the theater aisles as part of the set) and our senses are delighted with the impressive tap-dancing skills, comedic timing, and vocal talent that bring it all together."---Carol Edger Germain, Colorado Boulevard

"The cast who all are triple threats: Ruben Bravo, Katie Franqueira, Jennifer Knox, Maris-sa www.sierramadreplayhouse.org

Mayer, Chuck McLand and Aaron Shaw provide a glorious fast paced performance throughout."---Marla Halperin, FilmFestivals.com

"This entire triple-threat cast is talented, especially all three females (Jennifer Knox, Marissa Mayer, and Katie Franqueira,) who are all superb tap dancers with excellent voic-es and quality comedic skills. Each one excels at one of those skills, (Jennifer at comedy, Marissa at singing, and Katie at dancing,) so they make for a perfect blend of performers."---Karen Salkin, It;'s Not About Me

""The Sierre Madre Playhouse presents a full scale Busby Berkley-style show on a bread-line budget, making that kind of staging even more appealing! It features a selection of tunes that recall those tunes of the 30's as performed by musical director Sean Paxton on piano. Jeffrey Scott Parsons' choreography provides how much of the cast, especially Katie Franqueira's tap dancing, makes this show a real treat to experience. And Joshua Finkel's stage direction gives all of that dancing and romancing placing it into new heights"---Rich Borowy, Accessibly Live

This fun, flirtatious stage play first set sail off-Broadway in 1966.. Like many musicals of the Depression era, it seemed to provide optimism and escape for audiences. Perhaps the same is true today."--- Fran Syverson, Sierra Madre Weekly

a recent Facebook post "Processes to with arents before they Daniel die," Schmachtenberger, founder of the Critical Path Institute, outlined seven simple exercises to use with your parents that can offer significant healing and completion for their life and yours.

While Daniel shared these processes in the context of the impending death of a parent, the reality is that your parents are heading toward death, even if there is no official diagnosis. And starting these processes when mortality isn't immediately on the table is even better.

1. Help them make a timeline of their life

Create a timeline of all the big events in their life, starting with birth and their earliest memories up to the present. This is a great way to get to know them even better while you still can. Recalling their life through these stories can help them harvest the gifts, relive the good times, and identify any areas that still feel unresolved.

There are apps for creating timelines, but it's easily done with pen and paper. Create the timeline by writing "birth" on the far left of the page, and draw a horizontal line going towards "death" on the far right. Experiences are placed on the line chronologically in the order they occurred. Positive experiences are depicted as vertical lines going up from the horizontal line, and difficult experiences as lines going down. Write short descriptions to correspond with each experience.

One way to help prompt memories is to ask questions about different people, places, and things from their past: romantic relationships, jobs, and places they lived. Going through old photos, letters, and music can also trigger meaningful memories.

When documenting their life events, the positive experiences can simply be recalled and enjoyed. For the negative ones, you can ask them what they learned from the experience and write that lesson in the description. In this way, you can find beauty and meaning in all of it.

2. Relationship healing

To foster healing in your personal relationship with them, focus on three areas:

Peacemaking: Forgive them for any way they hurt you, and help them forgive themselves. Apologize for the ways you hurt them. You want to ensure that neither of you feels any residual pain (resentment, guilt, or remorse) in the relationship.

Appreciation and gratitude: Write them a letter detailing everything you learned from them and all the positive experiences you had together. Go deep within to discover all they did for you, really appreciate it, and use the letter to help them feel your appreciation. Pinpoint any of their virtues you hope to embody most in your life and share that commitment with them, so they know they'll live on through you once they're gone.

Reassurance: It's common for parents to resist leaving you over concerns for your future wellbeing. Reassure them that you are alright, will be alright, and it's okay for them to go. Using estate major part of this. 3. Family healing through If possible, help other family members go through your the above healing process with your parents. Help your dying parent make peace with everyone in their life, even if some individuals can't speak directly with them. Reassure them that you'll help take care of those loved ones who are in the most need.

4. Wisdom gathering

Ask them for life advice on anything and everything you can think of. As the old African proverb says, 'Every time an old person dies, a library burns,' so make sure to write down or record as much of their personal wisdom as possible.

Bucket list

To make the most of the time you have left, ask them if there's anything they really want to experience before they go, and fulfill as many of these bucket-list items as you can.

6. Help them see how they touched the world

In addition to documenting the positive impact they've had on your life, help them inventory all of the meaningful ways they've touched the lives of others. You want them to clearly see all of the beauty and meaning their life has brought to the

7. Help them be at peace with passing

While the above steps can help bring them peace, if they experience any fear of death, do your best to help them move through that. When death comes, you want them to be ready to greet him as an old friend. If they practice a particular religion, you can recite their favorite verses, hymns, and/or prayers. Or they might find comfort in hearing their most beloved poems or songs. Silent or guided meditation is often helpful as well. But sometimes, simply offering them your loving presence and holding their hand is enough.

Preserving your family's intangible assets

The life stories, lessons, and values that come from these final conversations can be among the most precious of all your family's assets. And to make sure these gifts aren't lost forever, we've developed our own process for preserving and passing on these intangible assets. Indeed, we consider such legacy planning so important, this service is included with every estate plan we create. Using a series of helpful questions and prompts like the exercises Daniel outlines, we'll guide you to create a customized video in which you share your most insightful memories and experiences with those you're leaving behind.

Though estate planning is mainly viewed as a way to pass on your financial wealth and property, when done right, it also enables you to preserve and pass on your true legacy: your memories, values, and wisdom. With the right support, having these all-important conversations doesn't have to be intimidating or awkward at all. Dedicated to empowering your family, building your wealth and defining your legacy, any seniors fear that moving out of their home into an assisted living residence means forfeiting control of their lives. At The Kensington, nothing could be further from the truth. We believe it is our role to support our residents, not to assume complete decision-making authority. Of course, as specialists in caring for older adults, we monitor routines, behavior and mood every day. If we see changes that concern us, then we talk with residents and their families immediately. MEN GET OSTEOPOROSIS

Dear Savvy Senior:

Can men get osteoporosis or is it primarily a problem for women? When I fell and broke my wrist last winter the doctor that treated me told me I might have osteoporosis, but I never got it checked. What can you tell me? Bony Bill

Many people think osteoporosis is a woman's disease, but men can get it too, especially in their later years. Here's what you should know.

Osteoporosis in Men

Osteoporosis is a disease that causes the bones to become weak and brittle and more susceptible to fractures. Inough women are four times more likely to acquire it, around 2 million American men have osteoporosis today, and another 12 million have "pre-osteoporosis," or osteopenia.

Unfortunately, men are much less likely than women to get the health of their bones checked even after they break a bone. That's because doctors are often unaware of the many factors that put men at risk of While menopause is a major component that accelerates bone loss in women, some of the key risk factors for men developing osteoporosis include: being over age 70; being thin or underweight; smoking; consuming more than three alcoholic drinks a day; having a parental history of osteoporosis; and having a previous Certain health conditions - such as rheumatoid arthritis, celiac disease, testosterone deficiency, hyperthyroidism, COPD, kidney or liver disease, and mobility disorders like Parkinson's disease, multiplé sclerosis or stroke – can also increase your risk. In addition, so can taking certain medications like anti-inflammatory steroids, prostate cancer drugs, proton pump inhibitors for GERDs, antidepressants, immunosuppressants,

To help you determine your risk of osteoporosis, the International Osteoporosis Foundation has a quick, online quiz you can take at RiskCheck.IOFBoneHealth.org.

Prevention and Treatment and anti-seizure drugs.

A good first step in preventing and treating osteoporosis is to get screened. All men over age 70 should have a bone density test, and those who've had a fracture or have other risk factors should be tested after age 50. Screening for osteoporosis is a simple, painless, bone density test, which takes about five minutes. Many health insurance companies will cover bone density tests, as does Medicare.

Here's what else you can do to protect your bones.

Boost your calcium: The best way to get bone-building calcium is through your diet. Dairy products (low-fat milk, cheeses and yogurt), dark green leafy vegetables (broccoli, kale, collards), sardines and salmon, cooked dried beans, soy foods, almonds and fortified cereals and juices are all good sources of calcium. Vitamin D is also important to help your body absorb calcium.

The National Osteoporosis Foundation recommends 1,000 mg of calcium daily for men under 70, and 1,200 mg for those over 71. They also recommend 800 to 1,000 international units (IÚ) of vitamin D if you're over 50. If you're not getting enough vitamin D through sunlight or food, consider taking a supplement. Most daily multivitamins contain at least 400 IU.

Exercise: Weight-bearing exercises like walking, and strength training with weights or resistant bands three or four times a week, can significantly improve your bone health and reduce the risk of a fall that could cause

Control these vices: Avoid smoking, limit alcohol to no more than two or three drinks per day, and limit caffeine (coffee, tea or caffeinated soda) to three cups a day.

Consider medications: The same drugs to treat osteoporosis in women have also been approved for men. The most widely prescribed for osteoporosis are bisphosphonates, a class of drugs designed to slow or stop bone loss. Talk to your doctor about these and other medication options, as well as potential side effects.

OUT TO PASTOR

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

AND THEN THE THUNDER ROARED

In our house, thunder has a variety of meanings. Some not as good as others, but that is another story. Either way, I am not a fan of thunder.

Recently, some heavy thunder visited our area along with rain and lightning. I was beginning to un-derstand how Noah felt during his first night in that Ark. Some of the thunder was so loud it seemed like it was inside our house. Thankfully, I lost my heebie-jeebies a long time ago.

All week long the rain came and with the rain was lightning and of course, thunder. What in the world would a rainstorm be without thunder?

One night the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage and I decided to stay inside and enjoy listening to the thunder on the outside. Nothing is more cozy than listening to it rain and thunder while drinking a nice hot cup of coffee. It is even better when an Apple fritter comes with that coffee, but that would create a different kind of thunder on the inside.

I must point out during this time, young people were breaking into cars, rummaging through them and stealing whatever they could find. Even locked cars were broken into and I wished I knew how they did that. I have locked myself out of my car several times. If only I had the skills of a car thief, I would not worry so much nor call AAA.

I had my vehicle broken into once and they rummaged all through it. Unfortunately, for them, I had nothing of value to steal, except several Bibles and a dozen gospel tracts. Not one of my Bibles or one of my tracts was stolen. All that work and they found nothing to steal. I had considered putting an offering plate on my seat with a sign that said, "Your tithe goes here." When it comes to robbing vehicles, I have no experience. If I were going to rob a car the best time to do it is doing a heavy thunderstorm when nobody wants to come outside.

If I was going to invest time in stealing, which I am not, I would not focus on cars, especially in my neighborhood. People keep the dumbest things in cars.

While listening to the storm, it suddenly got quiet. Both my wife and I took a deep breath and she said, "I think the storm's over. I'm going to go out and check my car." I really never gave it much thought. I went back to the book I was reading and then I heard it. The thunder roared again like I have never heard it roar before. I was waiting for the lightning to flash, but again the thunder roared. Of course, I thought it was thunder, but it turned out to be my wife moaning in agony.

I was rattled, jumped out of my chair and ran to the door to see what was wrong. It took me a while to figure out what in the world was going on but when I did, I broke out in un-controllable laughter. I'm so sorry. That's the way my clock ticks. Standing there, I heard my wife screaming, "They broke into my car and stole everything inside. What kind of people does this?"

I rode in my wife's car many times and I have yet to find something in her car worth the effort of stealing. Of course, hidden in a little space on the dashboard are several gift cards for restaurants. She always keeps a collection of these so they are handy when we stop for lunch when traveling. Everything in that car had been rummaged through and trash thrown all over the place. The only thing these "amateur thieves" did not find was the gift cards. There they were as neatly as my wife had put them. If you would look at that part in the car, you would not know they were there.

In anguish my wife said, "Look at that part in the car, you would not know they were there."

In anguish my wife said, "Look at that mess in my car."

It was a mess for sure. I had to calm her down and so I said, "Look here, my dear. All your gift cards are in place. They didn't touch any of these. They didn't get anything worthwhile."

"That is," she said rather mournfully, "something to be thankful for."

She paused for a moment and then said, "Look at that mess in my car."

The said thing about the whole situation was been as a body of the is your about about about the whole situation was been looked. She is your about about a part of the said thing about the whole situation was been looked. She is your about a part of the said thing about the whole situation was been looked.

The sad thing about the whole situation was her car had been locked. She is very obsessive about locking her car at night. She always asks me, "Did you lock your car?"

I wanted to say, but I know when to keep quiet, that her car had been locked and still the thieves broke into it. Some things are to be left unsaid which creates a platform of happiness.

No matter what tragedy hits us, if you look for it, you can find something good. Sometimes it takes an awful lot of looking to find anything good in a situation. The effort, though, is certainly I thought about what the apostle Paul once said. "Rejoice evermore. Pray without ceasing. In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you" (1 Thessalo-

No matter what the situation, the great challenge of the Christian is to find something to give thanks for. A thief can't steal anything of real value.

HUMOR THE CURE FOR WHAT AILS AMERICA

It's never too late for a good belly laugh. July 1 was, unofficially, International Joke Day. The origins of the day are unclear, but whoever started it was on to something - because our country sure could use a good belly laugh about now. Which reminds me of the man who walked into a dentist's office one

"I think I'm a moth," said the man.
"I'm sorry," said the dentist. "But I can't help you. You need to see a psychiatrist."

"I am seeing a psychiatrist," said the man. "Then why did you come to my office?" said the dentist.

"Your light was on," said the man. I'm not sure where or when social media started making us more strident. But as we share ever-more-angry news posts that demonize those with whom we disagree, we are sacrificing

The political jokes of many late-night comedians appeal to half of the country as their snarky nature polarizes the other half - which means those jokes are sarcasm, not humor. Humor doesn't take political sides. Humor brings us together.

"Anthropological studies have shown that laughter evolved as a way for humans to signal friendship and as a way to create and strengthen ties with a group," reports timeanddate.

Which reminds me of the time Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson went camping.

They pitched their tent and went to sleep.
In the middle of the night, Holmes woke up and said,

"Watson, look up and tell me what you see."

"Millions of magnificent stars," said Watson.

"And what do you deduce from that?" said Holmes. "That life may exist on other planets?" said Watson.

"No, you idiot," said Holmes. "It means somebody stole our tent."

In his book "Anatomy of an Illness," Norman Cousins reported that laughter helped him cure his serious collagen disease. Since then, scientists have discovered that humor really is good for our health.

Laughter produces pain-killing endorphins. It strengthens our immune system.

"A good belly laugh increases production of T-cells, interferon and immune proteins called globulins," reports PsychCentral. It also decreases stress.

"When under stress, we produce a hormone called cortisol," reports PsychCentral. "Laughter significantly lowers cortisol levels and returns the body to a more relaxed state.' But we aren't laughing enough.

Which reminds me of the three fellows stranded on a deserted island. One morning, a magic lantern washes ashore. A genie pops out and grants each of the men one wish. The first fellow wishes he was off the island and, poof, he's home. The second fellow wishes the same and, poof, he's home too. The third fellow says, "I'm lonely. I wish my friends were back here." The wonderful thing about humor is that it is infectious. It promotes good will, thoughtfulness and civility.

Regrettably, rudeness, anger and hatred are also infectious. They agitate us and tear us apart. We must choose humor. We must rise above those who seek to agitate and divide us. We must use social media to share fun, uplifting content, rather than derisive and divisive content.

Here's a start:

A three-legged dog walks into a bar and sets his pistol on the table.

"I don't want any trouble," says the bartender, nervously.
"I have no beef with you," says the dog. "I'm looking for the man who shot my paw."

APOLLO 11 GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY: SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE?

I feared that the upcoming 50th anniversary of the first manned moon landing might get eclipsed by other celebrations (the 75th anniversary of D-Day, the 50th anniversary of the Stonewall Riots, the 10th anniversary of financier Jeffrey Epstein's latest girlfriend learning to tie her shoes, etc.), but apparently the sky is the limit for Apollo 11 remembrances.

And why not? This milestone offers something for everyone.

Those of us with enough gray hairs and wrinkles to remember the moon landing as "current events" view the New Frontier nostalgically, although we now experience some of the era's buzzwords with a different perspective. Nowadays the eagerly awaited "splashdown" has less to do with an ocean rendezvous than with the hoped-for results of our latest high-fiber diet.

Youngsters with aspirations of a STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math) career relish seeing footage of the myriad behind-the-scenes folks who made the moon landing possible, On the negative side, therapists feel the films may encourage teen suicide. ("Seriously, dude – if I ever get a haircut like that one, strap me to a Saturn rocket and aim me at a brick wall.")

Dance enthusiasts are excited that archival material may finally confirm that Neil Armstrong's hastily scrapped original plans for his first words on the moon were "Put your right foot in, take your right foot out, right foot in and you shake it all about..

On a related note, linguists and survivalists alike are glad that President Kennedy's 1962 speech gave Americans a challenge that was characterized as "hard" -- not "Easy peasy, lemon squeezy."

Stamp collectors are ecstatic that the United States Postal Service is releasing two commemorative stamps featuring iconic images of the Apollo 11 mission. Next year, the USPS will issue commemorative stamps with iconic images of stamp collectors sitting home alone while their spouses are out on the town.

Conspiracy theorists are keenly interested in the anniversary. ("Of COURSE, we actually went to the moon instead of filming it out in the desert. But the average person doesn't realize that it was all part of a botched scheme to beam deadly VACCINATION RAYS back down on an unsuspecting earth!")

Representatives of a certain fledgling industry hope to capitalize on the wistful thoughts of peaceniks who reminisce, "Maybe it cost billions, but for a few brief days in July of 1969, the world forgot its differences and pulled together." ("Ahem – it might have been cheaper to have given everyone a lifetime supply of marijuana-infused Tang. Just saying.")

Native American activists, mindful of how painfully slow our manned space explorations have been in the past half-century (compared to the rapid spread of railroads, highways and communications infrastructure) look with bemusement on the anniversary. ("Sure, if Columbus had spent three days here, then gone home and 50 years later sponsored a Duran Duran concert...yeah, I could live with that.")

More visionary thinkers, on the other hand, see the Apollo 11 hoopla as a jumpstart for manned missions to Mars and beyond. Like the Whos in the Dr. Seuss book, certain segments of mankind want to announce to the vast universe, "We are here, we are here, we are here..."

Granted, when the bill for the deficit spending comes due, they may sing a different tune. ("We are temporarily indisposed, we are temporarily indisposed, we are temporarily indisposed...and we didn't leave a forwarding address!")
