RESIDENTS OF SIERRA COTTAGES NOW LIVING WITH FEAR AND UNCERTAINTY OVER PENDING SALE

Tenants of the iconic canyon community learn of possible evictions or unmanageable rent increases

The listing describes it as a "Once In A Lifetime Opportunity", calling the 15 units "whimsical cottages" in "serene magical surroundings". The sale price is shown as $4.9 million dollars, and the discovery that the property that had only listed on Zillow for 24 days was in escrow, has sent the tenants of this complex into a justifiable panic.

The residents, which include persons who have lived there more than 30 years, seniors and the disabled are now faced with having to move from their homes and enter a rental market that is limited and expensive and will most likely, not be in Sierra Madre.

Speculation is that the new owners, with a new mortgage of almost 5 million dollars, will ask all tenants to leave and increase the rents accordingly. It is assumed that with the property changing hands soon, and the state's mandatory 60 day notice, current tenants may be expected to vacate as early as October, 2019.

The speed to which the sale may move forward may also be enhanced by the fact that the California Senate Advanced AB 1482, a statewide rent control bill that includes a provision that would only allow landlords to evict tenants with "just cause". Examples of just cause include failing to pay rent, causing a nuisance, and "criminal activity by the tenant on the premises." The bill, which has already been passed by the Assembly, is sponsored by Assemblymember David Chiu of San Francisco, also protects tenants from rent gouging and would have the largest impact on cities that don't already have rent control laws. Sierra Madre does not have any rent control laws.

The sale of the property, which has not changed hands in over 30 years according to the agent representing the sellers. is more the result of a change in the owners circumstances rather than a desire to make a profit in a ever changing real estate market. According to the seller's agent, the current owners were a married couple. The husband passed away and apparently retaining ownership of the complex was no longer feasible for the widow. Nevertheless, the reality of being evicted and looking for a new place to live in today's rental market is frightening. For long time residents, especially those on a fixed income, it will be next to impossible to find a comparaable place to live in terms of their existing rent. The sale will impact 15 families, 19 people who very well may have to say goodbye to their beloved Sierra Madre.

No one is certain what will happen next but the Sierra Court community is anxious to hear from the new owners. Efforts to reach the buyers representative were unsuccessful at press time. In the meantime, fear and anxiety fill each and every day for the current tenants of the place also described as a place of "overall peaceful ambiance". S. Henderson/MVNews

AIR QUALITY IS UNHEALTHY FOR SENSITIVE INDIVIDUALS IN PARTS OF LA COUNTY

LOS ANGELES – According to the South Coast Air Quality Management District(AQMD) forecast, air quality will be unhealthy for sensitive individuals in Antelope Valley, East San Fernando Valley, West San Fernando Valley, San Gabriel Mountains, East San Gabriel Valley, West San Gabriel Valley, and Santa Clarita Valley tomorrow, Saturday, August 3.

Los Angeles County Health Officer, Muntu Davis, MD, MPH, advises people living or working in these areas with heart disease, asthma or other respiratory diseases to minimize outdoor activities.

Children who have sensitive conditions, including heart disease, asthma, and other chronic respiratory diseases, should not participate in outdoor physical activity at schools, camps and other recreational programs and should stay indoors as much as possible.

For current air quality maps and forecast, visit the AQMD website at www.aqmd.gov/home/air-quality.

- Avoid the sun stay indoors from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. when the burning rays are strongest.
- Drink plenty of fluids 2 to 4 glasses of water every hour during times of extreme heat.
- Replace salt and minerals sweating removes salt and minerals from your body, so replenish these nutrients with low sugar fruit
- juices or sports drinks during exercise or when working outside.Avoid alcohol.
- Pace yourself reduce physical activity and avoid exercising outdoors during peak heat hours.
- Wear appropriate clothing wear a wide-brimmed hat and light colored lightweight, loose-fitting clothes when you are outdoors.
- Stay cool indoors during peak hours- set your air conditioner between 75° to 80°. If you don't have air conditioning, take a cool shower twice a day and visit a public air conditioned facility. Find a local cooling center at lacounty.gov/emergency.
- Monitor those at high risk check on elderly neighbors and family and friends who do not have air conditioning. Infants and children up to 4 years old, people who overexert during work or exercise (e.g. construction workers) and people 65 years and older are at the highest risk of heat-related illnesses.
- Use sun screen with a sun protection factor of at least 15 if you need to be in the sun.
- Keep pets indoors heat also affects your pets, keep them indoors or if they will be outside, make sure they have plenty of water and a shaded area to help them keep cool.

HEAT ADVICE FOR PETS

Summer Heat and Animals

Summer is a great time to spend with our furry friends but we need to make sure that they are safe. Too much heat is dangerous. Here are some tips from your friends at DACC:

1. Keep pets cool by keeping them indoors or in well-shaded areas outdoors Pets need protection from direct sunlight. A shaded area outdoors can provide environment that is 10F less compared to being under direct sunlight. They also need good airflow to help them regulate their body heat. It is best to keep them in an area where the temperature and humidity can be controlled.

2. Provide plenty of fresh, clean water at all times

Water is the easiest way to help our pets cool down. They need the moisture in their body to cool themselves when they pant. Adding ice can help them cool faster.

3. Limit exercise

Take extra care when exercising your pet. Limit exercise to early morning and evening hours. Always carry water for your pet and pay attention to how well they are doing with the activity. Don't let your dogs walk on hot asphalt, concrete or artificial turf. If the surface is too hot for you to walk on bare foot, it is too hot for them.

4. Never, ever leave your pet in your parked car $\,$

Cars are like ovens and they heat up real fast, even with windows slightly open. An outside temp of 70F can easily rise to 90F or an outside temp of 85F rises to 102F within mins.

5. Trim , do not shave off body fur

Layers of fur on our pet's body can protect them from overheating and sunburn. Trimming layers or brushing regularly gets rid of the "winter coat" that some breeds grow for the cold months.

6. At Risk Pets

Animals with flat faces such as Pugs, Bulldogs, Boxers and Persian cats are more susceptible to heat . So are the elderly ,overweight pets, and pets with heart or lung conditions. These pets need to be kept in air conditioned rooms as much as possible.

Signs of Heat Stress

- Excessive panting
- Increased/Difficulty breathing
- Increased heart rate
- DroolingMild weak
- Mild weakness
- Collapse

What To Do? • Move your pet immediately to a shaded, wellventilated area • Apply icepacks or cold towels to footpads, abdomen and between their thighs where there is less fur • Offer small amounts of water to drink or some ice to lick. Make sure they are swallowing. • Take them directly to a Vet!

High School Broken into Twice within Days

Police on Sunday arrested Jordan Bailey, wanted in connection to a series of break-ins at Pasadena High, that left part of the school in shambles.

According to police, returned officers Pasadena High School last Sunday night after reports of a second burglary within days. They located additional evidence at the scene, which identified Bailey for allegedly breaking into the school, stealing items and vandalizing the location. Police said Bailey returned to the location and stole more items. Later that day, around 3 p.m., police found Bailey near Fair Oaks Ave. and Green Street. He was identified and arrested without incident, they said.

According to police, officers first responded to the school and investigated a commercial burglary during the overnight of July 23. Police said part of the H building had been ransacked and a laptop stolen among other possible items.

Police said Bailey was homeless and known to them. Police did not give any details on the evidence that led them to Bailey. There was also no estimated cost given for the damages to the school.

According to police, officers responded to the 1700 block of north Marengo Ave. July 21, around 9:42 p.m., after reports of a suspect threatening to kill her nextdoor neighbor.

During the officers said the suspect approached the victims and asked for her own mother's whereabouts. The suspect, who was acting very irrational, was carrying a chainsaw. The suspect was also asking for the whereabouts of the victim's adult sister. The suspect then attempted numerous times to start the chainsaw police said. All of the victims ran into their residence and hid in the bathroom. The suspect entered the victim's home. The suspect was still unable to start the chainsaw. The suspect discarded the chainsaw in the house, and waited for police outside. The suspect was arrested without incident.

CHU CALLS FOR IMPEACHMENT INQUIRY INTO PRESIDENT TRUMP

Judy Chu issued the following statement Thursday calling for the opening of an impeachment inquiry into President Donald Trump:

"When Special Counsel Mueller testified before Congress, he reiterated clear evidence that President Trump obstructed justice and that if Trump were not the President, he would be on trial. The next day, the Senate Intelligence Committee released a bipartisan report on foreign interference in the 2016 election, confirming that Russia targeted election systems in every single state in our country. These threats undermine our democracy, and Donald Trump repeatedly attempted to obstruct the federal investigation into them. I believe it is time for Congress to open an impeachment inquiry into President Donald Trump. The proceedings must be

year-old Jordan Patton, repre-ACT-SO team, a program of the Pasadena NAACP Branch #1054, brought home the silver medal in Original Essay at the annual ACT-SO competition portion of the 110th NAACP Annual Convention in Detroit, Michigan. Since establishing the Pasadena/ Duarte competition in 2010, students competing in the Afro-Academic, Cultural, Technological Olympics (ACT-SO), have won nine national medals for the communities.

Patton's essay, "America's Unjust Criminal Justice System," focused on the inequities in the court and justice systems as evidenced by disproportionate sentencing of African American men compared to Caucasian men committing the same crimes. In addition to judging of the essay's writing - mechanics, ideas, organization students also prepared to answer questions from judges on their pieces, testing the competitors' ability to present themselves and stand behind their work. When Patton won the gold medal at the local ACT-SO competition held on April 27 in Duarte, CA, feedback from the judges emphasized that he would need to work on his presentation to better reflect the strength and power they felt from reading his essay.

Patton's diligent preparation paid off as this rising senior from Marshall Fundamental School in Pasadena will have a silver medal, a $1,500 prize, and a new iPad to brag about as he enters his last them. year of high school before starting college in fall 2020.

SCANDINAVIA AND BEYOND

My annual trek to Del Mar for the horse racing season so here an oldie but goodie!!!

Any great food reporter who turns his attention to writing a travel piece should have a fork in one hand and a travel map in the other. Little did I know I would also need to up the credit line on my card and bring a wallet of kronor. I planned a trip to Oslo, Norway to compete in their Rock N' Roll Half Marathon, intending to run and fill the idle moments with foreign beer. My scouts told me that Norway and Sweden swam in cold suds, and the most popular was lager, or liquid gold as I call it.

The most popular routes of escape consist of a layover on the east coast and a possible stop in Frankfurt (another excuse to have another half liter of beer). Air Lufthansa, part of the Star Alliance, has plenty of flights which are easily booked through a travel agent, or you can keep an eye on Orbitz and Priceline. Plan to budget $1300 to $1600 for a roundtrip ticket. Most major hotel chains including Sheraton and Days Inn have locations in Oslo, but my friend Brad Turner, beat writer for the LA Clippers, suggested renting an apartment or flat in the city. I followed that advice in Bergen, Norway and cut our lodging expense in half compared to the major hotels, plus it came with a refrigerator so we could stock up on supplies and save additional cash. Norway, while rich in oil reserves, gets richer on a 25% alcohol tax whether you drink in a restaurant or buy from a state run liquor store.

National Geographic called the Fjords one of the top ten beautiful places in the world and I agree! Make sure you take a boat cruise -- two-hour, half-day and full-day trips are available. We spent the night in Flam and took the boat through the Fjords with the bookend cliffs and ribbons of water that wrap the imagination. If you're a museum junkie or history buff the Viking museum contains the explorer's age of small boats. In Sweden, I suggest the ABBA Museum - yes, the pop group has their own shrine

- there is a small fee, but you get two hours of music and memories that will enchant your life. To get around Stockholm I took the Hop On/Hop Off bus. I like this way of seeing an entire city in one day at your own pace. If you are lucky enough to be in Sweden in late June there are plenty of city and country mid-summer celebrations where you'll discover it's their spirit that gets them through those

For food, as you can imagine, salmon is plentiful, but an adventure of this magnitude calls for whale, elk, and reindeer, which are on many restaurant menus. I am happy to report they don't taste like chicken. The whale is a little salty, and cured as a beef jerky. Reindeer can be bought at many restaurants or outside markets, often sold like a pastrami roll. I had a fantastic elk burger at the Ardbeg Embassy in Stockholm. If you get frustrated in paying the high prices, look for a bakery and have some of the best sweet rolls in the world. The restaurants are expensive so look for Thai, Indian or Vietnamese if you hope to save a krona.

The best time to go is late June through September. In some parts of Norway there are year round blankets of snow to excite the desert creatures. Stockholm has more favorable weather conditions with temps reaching 75 degrees on a good day, but come November prepare for winter-like conditions. During the summer the sun is out most of the day, and while that makes it difficult to sleep, the 10 PM sunsets are spectacular.

TEACHING HOW TO DEAL WITH EARTHQUAKES

Using Natural and Low-Cost Methods

According to Julie Balaa, Neighborhood Watch meetings are one of the best ways to be prepared for earth-quakes. "Neighborhood quakes. "Neighborhood Watch meetings give you the chance to get to know your neighbors and to explore ways to work together, especially in the aftermath of an earthquake," she explains. Balaa is a board member of the non-profit WTI, which has been conducting earthquake preparedness classes in Northeast L.A. and Pasadena for over 50 years.

'Getting to know your neighbors, and working with your neighbors, is perhaps one of the most important ways to be ready for an earthquake," says Balaa. She quickly adds that there are many economical ways to be ready for a quake, methods that have been taught in the seminars since the mid-1970s.

Balaa explains that "You never know what might happen in an earthquake," she explains, "but you could expect electricity to go out, and for water supplies to be sporadic."

Julie Balaa, right, discusses how to store water, and collect rain water, with Timothy Hall, former owner of the Daily Bread Café on Figueroa.

Balaa suggests that every household store as much water as possible, since about 75% of L.A.'s water comes from about 300+ miles away. "With only about a quarter of our water coming from local water, it makes sense to store water," she explains. In the WTI seminars, they instruct how low income people can store water without having to buy expensive water containers. Plastic and glass beverage containers can be cleaned out and filled with tap water or filtered rain water and stored for future use. Since the government response time in past emergencies can be as much as two weeks, they advise people to store as much as two weeks worth of water, in whatever containers you have.

Food storage is also a part of their earthquake seminars, such as storing canned goods, and dry goods (beans and pasta, for example), that do not require electricity for storage. WTI has published a Food Storage booklet which is simple, but advocates that everyone "store what you eat, and eat what you store." The details of food storage are shared in the non-profit's seminars. However, they also recommend that everyone grows at least some of their food, so fresh food is always available. This includes vegetables and greens, but also simply replacing ornamental hedges and trees with those that produce food, such as citrus trees, avocadoes, loquats, edible cacti, figs, grapes, apples, and even roses.

"Did you know that the rose petals, and rose fruits, are edible?" asks Balaa. Plus, in the aftermath of an earthquake, you could also trade and barter some of your excess food for other supplies. Balaa took a moment to show how some of the wild and cultivated plants on the non-profit's property were also medicinal and edible. These were all extremely easy-to-grow, and useful as articles of trade, such as aloe plants, Peruvian mint, and green onions.

Balaa points out that the WTI Earthquake Seminars are very comprehensive, and go into the details of food and water storage, how to cope with no electricity, no toilet facilities, and the possibility of no fast food sources (including supermarkets) and no hospital services.

"We encourage everyone to have as many manual appliances as possible," suggests Balaa, "as well as having at least a small solar battery setup so you can produce some electricity. It's not too expensive to buy a small solar panel and inverter on-line," she says The toilet is often the area that is most sensitive to the attendees of their seminars, and should not be ignored. Acto cause it to flush. Otherwise, there are a variety of toilet alternatives, such as hospital porta-potties, and compost cording to Balaa, if your sewer line is not broken, you could still use your toilet by pouring waste water into the toilet

"Medical emergencies could be common," warns Balaa, so she suggests that everyone maintain a simple first aid kit to deal with cuts, burns, and abrasions. Most of the contents could actually be purchased at the 99 Cent store, and Balaa highly recommends that everyone take an Emergency First Aid course by the Red Cross

"We should never be complacent here in L.A.," says Balaa, "because an earthquake could strike at any moment. But if we get to know our neighbors, and all work together, we might all be able to survive such an emergency with strength."

WTI Earthquake preparedness seminars, and other seminars, are scheduled throughout the year. Balaa suggests that interested parties check their website at www.wtinc.info, or check their Facebook page, or just call her at 323 255-4028, or Prudence at 323 620-4720. Also, be sure to check out the meetings of the Sierra Madre CERT group.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE - The Social Side by Deanne Davis

TOMORROW IS OUR DAUGHTER, CRISSY'S 50TH BIRTHDAY! HAPPY BIRTHDAY, SWEETIE PIE!

I hope you read Christopher Nyerges column in last week's Mountain Views News, about when he and his brother did what they thought would be a good work, appreciated by the family, painting the Ohio farmhouse kitchen a lovely light turquoise blue. Not knowing any better, they painted it with flat paint instead of glossy and were then subjected to unreasonable amounts of ridicule from various family members. Let me quote a little bit of this...hope you won't mind, Christopher... as this zeroes in on how we can positively or negatively impact those closest to us, our families:

"I began to think about how Uncle Joe responded and how he could have responded. I realized then, the great truth in the phrase that WHAT we do is of little or no importance, but HOW we do it is everything.... I realized how important such 'little things' can be, and I wondered how well I would do when my next opportunity arose. It is especially important with impressionable youth to do the very best we can to be a good example."

Go back and look up last week's paper online if you can't find it in town and read Christopher's excellent column on Page 5. This is so true, that the way we treat young people can affect them

I don't know about you, but when it's been over a hundred degrees, even with air conditioning, sleep doesn't seem to come as easily as it once did and, it's also one of those topics of discussion that one never intended to discuss. It certainly never came up when I was in my early 20=s and could stay up all night dancing, laughing and hurling myself into assorted other delightful activities. Then, with the arrival of babies - sleep, would return some time in the future. It hasn't.

To Sleep, Perchance to Dream

My children, their children, my money, my soul, When DID I last sleep through the night! Then throw in my weight, And the state of the state, And my night brain is out of control.

This crowd in my head seems to hog the whole bed. I wish they=d stay out in the hall! My mind=s turned to mush, a musical gush, A lyrical madhouse from Disney!

Aladdin meets Beauty in a verse from the Psalms, My checkbook balance warbles along. Then a long grocery list and a pain in my wrist Keep me tossing and turning till dawn.

When 4 o=clock gleams, That=s the end of my dreams, And I=m left with these old movie scores. The theme from Zhivago, a song from Chicago, All of them great crashing bores!

It=s those little nasty foxes, Who keep spoiling all the vines, And these nasty nighttime foxes Are surely spoiling all of mine!

TAN LINES

Warm milk doesn=t help it, Nor thinking good thoughts, Nor planning revenge on my foes. This is just one more thing that getting older brings, Till one finds sleep in eterrnal repose......I suppose.

Hope you're all sleeping better than I am! It's not too late to put in a tomato plant. Be good to yourself and drink a lot of water. Take heart: Fall is on the way. At least, I think it is. The picture is a bouquet of bright yellow daisies. They cheer up the entire house no matter how hot it is!

KATIE Tse....This and That

Ah, summer! A time when people flock to the beaches, or just their backyards, and work on their tans. By the time I go back to school I'm usually "brown as a berry." Not because we've been to any exotic destinations, I just like to spend a lot of time outside.

While I enjoy being tan, I typically develop tan lines that correspond to my shorts and tank tops. I'm fine with that. This particular article, however, has to do with my dad's unfortunate sock tan he acquired after changing up the kind of socks he wears. My dad, bless his heart, wears shorts as long as the weather permits.

Often he'll be sporting shorts farther into winter than most would, which he claims is a form of season denial. Kind of like, "If you keep telling yourself it's summer, eventually it will be."

The only problem is that he recently got a nice, new pair of tennis shoes and some socks that sit lower on his ankles compared to his old ones. Did I mention that he, too, spends a lot of time baking outdoors? So by the time he got these new socks, his legs had reached a nice golden brown. Kind of the color of burnt caramel.

If this had happened to my husband, he would've worn socks that covered his tan line all through winter and hope for different results next year. I'm not going to say he's vain, I'll call it a heightened sense of fashion consciousness.

My dad, on the other hand, couldn't care less if he's got a big band of white flesh noticeably brimming over the top of his socks. The contrast between the two colors is like marshmallow against a graham cracker.

The story could've ended here, but my dad had an unfortunate incident at his dentist's office regarding his boldly revealed pasty ankles. Let me start by saying that my dad's new to this place. It's not as if he and the people there have a cozy relationship spanning years. The sort of thing that allows for light-hearted banter and playful jabs.

Before the dentist got to my dad, one of his assistants could not help pointing out my dad's tan lines to him! It was all in good fun, and she wasn't mean about it in any way. My dad (and later I) thought it was hilarious. The dentist himself undoubtedly noticed also, but he's got more restraint, I suppose.

It was the sort of experience that makes decent fodder for my column, and my dad now has bragging rights for having the absolute worst ankle tan lines in town. But if the same thing had happened to my husband, we probably would've moved out of the area

Altadena Author Signs Copies of New Book

Richard Bale Signs Memoirs 3-5p.m. Saturday Aug. 24 at Altadena Library

Richard Bale, author of a new book of memoirs about growing up in Altadena in the 1940s, will sign copies of his book from 3 to 5 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 24, in the community room of the Altadena main library.

There will be a program at which Bale will speak at 3 p.m.

The 120-page book, "An Altadena Boyhood," with a forward by Altadena historian

Michele Zack and illustrated with three dozen photos, has been published in cooperation between the Altadena Historical Society and Prospect Park Publishers of Altadena.

The soft-cover, bound book will be available for $15 at the event, after which it will be available at the Historical Society, 730 E. Altadena Drive, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and

The society also will mail the book to out-of-towners for an additional price to cover packaging and postage.

"For those of us who grew up in Altadena and newcomers alike, Richard's book is an absolutely charming picture of a rather rural little town and somewhat simpler times," said Kathy Larson Hoskins, society president.

"Anyone interested in the history of 20th century Southern California should read this book," said Larry Wilson, public editor of the Pasadena Star-News who also had an Altadena boyhood.

Bale recalls neighborhood families raising chickens, goats and horses; Altadena Elementary School, Eliot Junior High School and John Muir High School; newspaper routes and Webster's soda fountain; the Fuller Brush man and Helms Bakery trucks; and World War II blackout curtains and Victory Gardens.

"Most people think their hometown is special and I'm no exception," Bale writes. "I enjoyed living in Altadena and realize now what a lovely little community it was for a kid growing up."

Bale has written five books and numerous articles relating to family heritage, naval history, railroad history and model railroading. He is past president of the Jazz Society of Southern California. He retired as a senior executive at Price Club/Costco in 1995. He and his wife, Barbara, live in Oceanside; most of their eight children and 26 grand- and great-grandchildren live nearby.

CITY SET TO REBUILD THE LIFTED AND CRUMBLING SIDEWALKS IN FRONT OF MONROVIA HIGH SCHOOL ON COLORADO BOULEVARD

Project Will Result In Removal Of 20 Trees, With A Commitment From The City To Replace Every Removed Tree On A 2-For-1 Basis

We wanted to let everyone know that starting this week, the City will be working to institute a fairly substantial public improvement project to repair the entire stretch of crumbling and lifted sidewalk on Colorado Boulevard in front of Monrovia High School (MHS). Of note, this effort will require the removal of 20 mature camphor trees located on the north side of Colorado Boulevard, directly in front of MHS.

Here at the City, we are always sensitive when it comes to removing any parkway trees, and we always try to avoid any tree removals here in the City. However, after spending significant time and consideration thinking through the options at hand, we identified that the camphor trees needed to be removed and replaced with a more appropriate parkway tree as part of our planned sidewalk improvement project.

Of note, staff did assess the possibility of leaving the trees in place and performing root pruning activities as part of the sidewalk enhancements. However, when we had our team further review that particular option, it was identified that the camphor tree root systems were so invasive that the root pruning effort would result in the trees failing.

Next, staff assessed the possibility of moving the new sidewalk further away from the camphor trees, however, that option was a non-starter as well. Given the City's existing right-of-way options, and the need to maintain ADA access, relocating the sidewalk was not a feasible option.

Finally, it was brought to the City's attention that the camphor tree, which is native to Eastern Asia, is actually considered an invasive tree species. Per the University of Redlands, "[B]ecause of the ability to adapt drastically and the ease of reproduction, the [Camphor] tree is considered invasive. In the US, the camphor tree is found in California and southern states. The Camphor is considered invasive on all continents...

However, simply removing the trees was not a consideration for staff either, and we did want to share that the City will be abiding by our current practice of coordinating a 2-for-1 tree replacement program. This means that the City will be replacing the 20 camphor trees that we are removing by replanting 40 new trees in Monrovia. Most of those trees will be replaced in front of MHS as part of our planned work, and any additional trees that don't fit in that particular location will be planted in other parts of the City.

Given all of these factors, staff did coordinate this past week with the Monrovia Unified School District to share our plans for the infrastructure and landscaping upgrades at MHS. By replacing all of the sidewalk, curb, and gutter, we will be able to construct a wider and safer sidewalk that will allow for easier student drop-off and pick-up at MHS. In addition, as mentioned previously, the City will be instituting a new landscape plan at the location as part of our improvement efforts.

In order for the work outlined above to be completed prior to school starting, the City has coordinated the following construction schedule:

Monday, July 29 - Wednesday, July 31 - tree removal efforts will be engaged

Tuesday, July 30 – Monday, August 5 – concrete cutting and sidewalk / curb removal will take place Monday, August 5 – Friday, August 9 – tree removal and sidewalk / curb replacement will be completed, prior to the start of the new school year By Friday, August 30 - landscape improvements are tentatively scheduled for completion

We are looking forward to completing this necessary capital project, and if you have any questions or concerns, please contact the Public Works Department at (626) 932-5575.

LA SALLE'S ACADEMIC DECATHLON FINDS SUCCESS IN THE HAGUE

La Salle College Preparatory's Academic Decathlon team sent six of its members to The Hague, Netherlands from July 20-27, 2019, to compete in the second round of the World Scholars Cup. Competing against 1,900 students from 51 different countries, La Salle's Scholars did exceptionally well in both individual and team titles.

"I am incredibly proud of our students. Over the last 3 years, we've sent our teams to Prague, Cape Town, and Melbourne. However, this year, we have completely new teams competing globally for the first time, and they performed remarkably," noted La Salle's Academic Decathlon moderator, John Erb. "They really enjoyed their roles as American ambassadors and represented both the US and La Salle with pride.

Teammates Colby Stenzel '20, Ewan Painter '20, and Matthew Day '21 finished 8th place overall, competing against over 650 teams. The 120-question Scholar's Challenge and audio-visual Scholar's Bowl proved successful for the Lancers, finishing 5th overall in both disciplines. On the individual level, Stenzel excelled, garnering a total of 14 gold medals and 1 silver medal. Stenzel also had the honor of walking in the American flag for the United States delegation at the Closing Ceremonies.

The second team of Franklin Cheng '21, Christina Chen '20, and Adam Lewczuk '21 also achieved a gold medal, finishing 48th place overall in the competition. In the Team Essay portion of the competition, these Lancers acquired 22nd place.

Because both teams finished in the top ten of the Americas Division, La Salle's decathletes automatically earned a spot in the Tournament of Champions Competition at Yale in November.

IT'S ALWAYS AN ADVENTURE AT ST. RITA SCHOOL!

St. Rita School's Raider Adventure Camp and Summer Study Program had another successful summer!

TK-6th grade 'Raider's Camp' campers immersed themselves in the abundance of activities offered in the program. Campers began their morning routine with academic exercises including Reading, Writing and Mathematics. Campers then transitioned into their Enrichment curriculum, diving into engaging lessons! With weekly themes such as Super Hero's, Water World and Summer Olympics, the fun never ended! Emily Cash, 4th grade stated "I've learned facts about different countries and we learned how to make really cool food like tortillas and salsa!" Wednesday Excursions to the movie theater, bowling alley, and swim parks were just some of the highlights St. Rita campers experienced. When asking Jackson Martinez, Kindergarten what he liked best about summer camp, he excitedly said "I love water play!" Students had a blast learning and growing this summer! St. Rita School provides an emotionally safe learning environment where students thrive. As one of our parents stated, Raider Camp was great for my four-year-old twins! They were able to be around other students who were at or above their level and they have definitely improved in their speech abilities. One week in camp and they are easier to understand and are talking much more!"

For our older students in grades 5th-8th who were looking to improve and develop their skills in Mathematics, Grammar/Reading, HSPT, Study Skills and/or Problem-Solving Skills joined our Summer Study Program! Instruction is aligned with Common Core Standards and St. Rita curriculum. Students were provided the opportunity to increase their prior knowledge and were introduced to new concepts.

Well done, Raiders!

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

THE REAL COST TO YOUR FAMILY: HAVING NO ESTATE PLAN AT ALL

When it comes to putting off or refusing to create an estate plan, your mind can concoct all sorts of rationalizations: "I won't care because I'll be dead," "I'm too young," "That won't happen to me," or "My family will know what to do."

But these thoughts all come from a mix of pride, denial, and a lack of real education about estate planning and the consequences to your family. Once you understand exactly what planning is designed to prevent and support, you'll realize there really is no acceptable excuse for not having a plan, provided you are able to plan and truly care about your family's experience after you die or become incapacitated.

With that in mind, here are some of the things most likely to happen to you and your loved ones if you fail to create any estate plan at all.

Your family will have to go to court

If you don't have a plan, or only have a will (yes, even with a will), you're forcing your family to go through probate upon your death. Probate is the legal process for settling your estate, and even if you have a will, it's notoriously slow, costly, and public.

Depending on the complexity of your estate, probate can take years to complete. And like most court proceedings, probate is expensive. In fact, once all your debts, taxes, and court fees have been paid, there might be nothing left for anyone to inherit. And if there are any assets left, your family will likely have to pay hefty attorney's fees and court costs in order to claim them.

The expense and drama of the court system can be almost totally avoided with proper planning. Using a trust, for example, we can ensure that your assets pass directly to your family upon your death, without the need for any court intervention.

You have no control over who inherits your assets

If you die without a plan, the court will decide who inherits your assets, and this can lead to all sorts of problems. Who is entitled to your property is determined by California's intestate succession laws, which hinge largely upon on whether you are married and if you have children.

Spouses and children are given top priority, followed by your other closest living family members. If you're single with no children, your assets typically go to your parents and siblings, and then more distant relatives if you have no living parents or siblings. If no living relatives can be located, your assets go to the state.

Keep in mind, intestacy laws only apply to blood relatives, so unmarried partners and/or close friends would get nothing. If you want someone outside of your family to inherit your property, having a plan is an absolute must.

You have no control over your medical, financial, or legal decisions in the event of your incapacity Most people assume estate planning only comes into play when they die, but that's dead wrong. Yes, pun

If you become incapacitated and have no plan in place, your family would have to petition the court to appoint a guardian or conservator to manage your affairs. This process can be extremely costly, time consuming, and traumatic for everyone involved. In fact, incapacity can be a much greater burden for your loved ones than even your death.

You need Powers of Attorney which grant the person(s) of your choice the immediate authority to make your medical, financial, and legal decisions for you in the event of your incapacity. You can also provide specific guidelines detailing how you want your medical care to be managed, including critical end-of-life decisions.

You have no control over who will raise your children

If you're the parent of minor children, the most devastating consequence of having no estate plan is what could happen to your kids in the event of your death or incapacity. Without a plan in place naming legal guardians for your kids, it will be left for a judge to decide who cares for your children. And this could cause major heartbreak not only for your children, but for your entire family.

You'd like to think that a judge would select the best person to care for your kids, but it doesn't always work out that way. Indeed, the judge could pick someone from your family you'd never want to raise them to adulthood. And if you don't have any family, or the family you do have is deemed unfit, your children could be raised by total strangers.

If you have minor children, your number-one planning priority should be naming legal guardians to care for your children if anything should happen to you. This is so critical, we've developed a comprehensive system called the Child Protection Plan® to accomplish this goal.

Given the potentially dire consequences for both you and your family, you can't afford to put off creating your estate plan any longer. And once you have a plan in place, you'll gain the peace of mind that comes from knowing that your loved ones will be provided and cared for no matter what happens to you. Don't wait another

OLD DOG, NEW TRICKS

Ever wonder if there was more you could have done, or could be doing to keep your senior dog healthier and happier in it's golden years? Well, I often think about what I could have done to provide a better quality of life for my beloved girl, "Tater" when she started showing signs of her age and eventually passed away. It is hard to believe it will be 5 years ago this September. She was almost 13 when she crossed the rainbow bridge and although I know for sure she got plenty of tender loving care, I can't help thinking there was more I could have done to keep her comfortable as her final day approached.

I am so pleased to have the resources we now have available on the internet when it comes to getting information about these kinds of things and I have learned a lot from my veterinarian who liberally shares the wealth of knowledge she has gained over the many years she's been in practice. Dr. Domotor's wise advice to owners of senior dogs is to recognize that they are indeed old and are unable to do many of the things they were able to do when they were young. They need us more than ever in their golden years.

It is really no different from what happens when we humans get old. "Patience is number one" she said in a conversation we had regarding caring for older canines. "Sometimes we forget how old they are. Dogs are considered seniors at 7 and that is when they begin to loose their hearing, their eye-sight and their olfactory senses. Understanding why an elderly pet might poop or pee in inappropriate places, or fail to respond to a recall is very important in having patience with them."

Although is it true that manufacturers do tend to exploit the ever-growing market for pet care products, not the least of which are products specifically geared toward senior pets, statistics indicate that dogs are living longer these days, presumably due to improved technology in veterinary care and the development of innovative ways to help accommodate the health and comfort needs specific to our furry senior friends.

Specially formulated kibble, therapeutic beds, specialized food bowl designs, ramps to help "Fido" get into the car, restraining harnesses for the ride, diapers for incontinence, dietary supplements, herbs and holistic remedies designed to cosset a senior dog through its last years are among the many relatively new products found on the shelves of most pet supply stores today. Doting pet owners find it hard to resist blowing the bundle for whatever it takes to help their four-legged family member fare well in their senior years, and I think that is wonderful.

While the many newfangled products now available do help when it comes to taking good care of a senior pet, there is one not-so-new thing we can all afford to do, to ensure that their golden years are happy ones. Spending quality time with any dog is important, but for an older dog, time spent coddling and snuggling is extremely important for their mental and physical health. This is particularly true if the dog's senses are waning.

I remember noticing that Tater had become much more demanding of my attention when she was about 11 years old. She was slowly loosing her eyesight, and fortunately I knew enough to attribute that extra neediness to her age. Her favorite time of day was when I'd come home after walking several other dogs, and lay on the couch where she insisted on joining me for an afternoon nap.

I always let Tater lay with me, even though she was quite enormous and took up most of the couch, because I could tell she needed that time with me. She'd crawl up slowly, work her way around my legs, let out a low groan, and lay her huge head on my shoulder where she'd fall asleep and snore into my ear. Saying goodbye to Tater was one of the hardest things I have ever had to do, but one thing I am grateful for is the time we had together, just us two, snuggling on the

Please be kind to your senior canine, and pay close attention to how their needs change as they age. They don't complain and they can't speak our language, so it is up to us to interpret the things they are trying to say, in the way they communicate. Don't forget to give them all the affection and attention they need. Show them and tell them (yes, in human language) that you love them. They'll understand, as they seem quite capable of interpreting what we want to say, in the way we communicate. Love and let live.

IS PET INSURANCE A GOOD IDEA FOR SENIORS ON A BUDGET?

Dear Savvy Senior:

I own two dogs and a cat that I would do almost anything for, but expensive veterinary bills put a strain on my budget. Is pet insurance a good idea? Older Pet Owner

Dear Pet Owner:

If you're the kind of pet owner who would do anything for their furry family, including spending thousands of dollars on medical care, pet insurance definitely is an option to consider. Here's what you should know.

Rising Vet Costs

The cost of owning a pet has gone up in recent years. New technologies now make it possible for pets to undergo sophisticated medical treatments for many life-threatening diseases, just like humans. But these treatments don't come cheap. That's why pet insurance has gotten more popular in recent years. More than 2 million pets are currently insured in the U.S. and Canada, according to the North American Pet Health Insurance Association.

How Pet Plans Works

Pet insurance is actually very similar to human health insurance. Pet policies typically come with premiums, deductibles, co-payments and caps that limit how much will be paid out annually. But unlike people coverage, you usually have to pay the vet bills in full and wait for reimbursement from the insurer.

Pet policies vary greatly from basic plans that cover only accidents and illness, to comprehensive policies that provide complete nose-to-tail protection including annual checkups and vaccinations, spaying/neutering and death benefits. You should also be aware that pet policies typically don't cover pre-existing conditions, and premiums are generally lower when your pet is young and healthy.

Costs for pet insurance will also vary by insurer and policy, but premiums typically depend on factors like the cost of veterinary care where you live and the age and breed of the pet. The average annual premium for basic accident and illness coverage was $516 per pet in 2017, while the average claim paid was $278, according to the pet health insurance association.

Shopping Tips

Major pet policy providers include the ASPCA, Embrace, Healthy Paws, Nationwide, PetFirst, Petplan and Trupanion. To help you shop and compare coverage and costs from pet insurers, go to PetInsuranceReview.

If you're still working, one way to pay lower premiums, and possibly get broader coverage, is to buy pet insurance through your employer, if available. Eleven percent of employers in the U.S. offer pet health insurance benefits, according to the Society for Human Resource Management, and these plans are usually discounted.

Alternative Option

Many animal advocates think most pet owners are better off forgoing pet insurance and instead putting the money you would have spent on premiums into a dedicated savings account to pay for vet care as needed. Depending on the policy, pet insurance can cost $1,500 to $6,000 over the life of an average pet, and most pet owners will never spend that much for treatment.

Ways to Save

If you can't afford pet insurance or choose not to buy it, there are other ways you can save. For example, many local animal shelters offer free or low-cost spaying and neutering programs and vaccinations, and some shelters work with local vets who are willing to provide care at reduced prices for low-income and

There are also a number of organizations that provide financial assistance to pet owners in need. To locate these programs, visit HumaneSociety.org/PetFinancialAid.

To save on pet medications, get a prescription from your vet (ask for generic is possible) so you can shop for the best price. Medicine purchased at the vet's office is usually more expensive than you can get from a

Most pharmacies fill prescriptions for pets inexpensively, and many pharmacies offer pet discount savings programs too. You can also save by shopping online at a verified pharmacy like 1800PetMeds.com, DrsFosterSmith.com and PetCareRX.com.

STORY...? 1 Aug 2019

recently. You know how it is; you are going along 100 miles an hour and finally you crash. I was experiencing one of those reality crashes. Reclining in my chair, drinking coffee, I thought of one of my old friends. Oh my, he has been gone for almost 5 years now. How time flies by so quickly!

You know you have friends and then you have those who are really friends. He was without a doubt one of the latter. In fact, I do not have any friend that quite equals him as a friend.

Thinking about him, I began chuckling. The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage came in about that time and said, "What are you laughing at?"

She knew I was going through a rather busy schedule and to find me sitting in a chair chuckling was a little strange.

"I was just thinking," I said while still chuckling, "of my good friend Brother Lloyd."

As soon as I said that, she started chuckling herself and sat on the couch. We knew Brother Lloyd for 30 years. In those 30 years, we have had some great times with him and his wife. The last five years of his life, he was a widower.

It seemed like nothing got him down for long. Oh yes, he had his issues and would give you a commentary on his issues. He never was afraid to speak his mind He had an opinion on every subject under the sun and some over the sun. He must have had a great mind because he always gave people a piece of it.

I knew anytime I was struggling with something, all I had to do was call and he knew how to solve every problem in the world.

We talked on the phone quite a bit, but also we met for lunch at least once a month. He lived about two hours from me and so we met in the middle at a nice little restaurant.

Thinking back on him, I cannot say how much I appreciated our monthly lunches. It got me away from my world and I enjoyed being in his world, even though it was a short time. We almost could order each other's lunch and sometimes we did

Of all the friends I have known down the years, nobody had more stories to tell than good old Brother Lloyd. He had a story for every subject you could think of at the time.

DID I TELL YOU THE I would be talking about something in my life and he would interrupt, "Did I ever tell you the story about...?" Not waiting for my reply, he would go on with the story.

I was having a rather down day I have heard all his stories, and could tell them almost as good as he did. They must have been true because every time he told them they were almost word for word as before.

> Because I admired the old brother so much, I listened to each story as though I was hearing it for the very first time. I must admit, they always had a great application, particularly concerning the subject at hand. How he was ever to do that I will never know.

> Looking back, I wished he'd put all his stories in a book. They would have been a fascinating read for anyone.

> I must confess I did something once rather naughty. We were talking about some subject, I can't remember what now, and I said, "Brother Lloyd, did I ever tell you the story about...?"

> Without giving him an opportunity to respond, I went on with the story. The story I was telling him was one of his stories he told me probably 100 times. I tried to tell it from my perspective, but kept it almost word for word.

> I was sure he would catch on but he never did. When I finished with "his" story he said, "That's quite remarkable because something like that happened to me." Then he went on and retold that story as though he was telling it for the very first time. As far as I knew, he never caught on. I simply listened as though I was hearing it for the very first time.

> Occasionally, I will think of one of his stories and it brings a certain sense of encouragement to my heart. Although he has been dead these many years, his stories still live in my heart to this very day. I only wish I was as good a storyteller as he was.

> One thing he taught me was that everything that happens in a person's life, whether good or bad, is seed for a story. I am quite sure that there was a seed of truth in every story he told me. I never could tell where the twist was in any of his stories. He was such a wonderful brother that I really did not care.

> Sometimes when my wife and I are talking I will say, "Did I ever tell you the story...?" To which my wife will always respond, "Yes, you did Brother Lloyd."

> I chuckled and then thought of what David said. "Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer" (Psalm 19:14).

> Everybody has a story, but God's story is the only one that really matters.

DICK POLMAN

THE DEMOCRATIC CIRCULAR FIRING SQUAD FORGOT ABOUT TRUMP

Deep into Wednesday's Democratic debate, exasperated Republican strategist John Weaver tweeted: "When the topic is criminal justice, how are they not talking about the criminal in the White House? Huh?

Weaver, who detests Trump, nailed it. The Democrats, in their predictable and often desperate zeal to attack one another with gusto, failed to train any substantive firepower on the incumbent - who has presided over a crime

Mired as they were in squabbling among themselves wading deep into the weeds, yet again, on the abstruse details of health care policy - Donald Trump got off easy. And much as Trump hates CNN, he should send the network a bouquet of flowers, thanking its moderators for goading the Democrats to beat each other up and leave him alone. Perhaps some TV viewers were galvanized by the intramural attacks on Sen. Kamala Harris' old tenure as California attorney general (she says she's proud of it), and by the attacks on Joe Biden's old senate record (he says he's proud of it), and by the attacks on Barack Obama - and, by extension, Biden - for deporting millions of undocumented immigrants (some candidates seemed far more upset about Obama than about Trump). But I doubt it.

"No Democrat wants to watch our candidates savaging one another. It's a gift to the GOP," said Simon Rosenberg, a center-left Democratic operative.

Here's an example of a timely topic of national importance that never came up during either night: Trump has forced Dan Coats, the director of national intelligence, to quit his job. Coats, you may recall, was fiercely independent in his assessments of threats to our national security, including Russia and its meddling in the 2016 election.

Trump's ongoing mission is to subsume the intelligence community, to make it a partisan instrument of his will at the expense of our national security. Which explains why he's now trying to replace Coats with a congressional toady who has limited intelligence experience, and whose longest stint in public life was eight years as mayor of a small Texas town.

This dire development, which fits into the larger narrative about Trump's authoritarian instincts at home and weakness abroad, was certainly worthy of attention. The CNN moderators could have asked the candidates about it, or, at risk of breaking the moderators' "rules," candidates could have found ways to

On the domestic front, here's something else that never came up: A scant 10 miles from Detroit's debate auditorium, in the swing county of Macomb, autoworkers are losing their jobs because a historic General Motors plant is shutting down. Back when Trump campaigned for president in Michigan, he declared: "If I'm elected, you won't lose one plant, you'll have plants coming into this country, you're going to have jobs again, you won't lose one plant, I promise you that." The other day, a Trump voter in that community lamented: "He said the jobs would stay here. But then I hear about the plant closing. What

Over a span of two nights, not one of the 20 Democratic candidates mentioned this plant closing - and the chasm between Trump's promise and performance. That might have helped their cause, since wresting Michigan from Trump is a top priority in the next Electoral College tally.

If the CNN moderators had found the time to mention the plant closing (instead of asking Harris to fight anew with Biden over busing that took place 40 years ago), they could've teed up a question that the electorate truly cares about: How do these Democrats propose to expand the economy and create good jobs at good wages - in contrast to Trump's trickle-down economics and fealty to Barely a sentence was devoted to that fundamental issue. By contrast, Twitter blew up after Biden greeted Harris on stage by saying, "Go easy on me, kid." Was "kid" an insult? Was it condescending? Was it just Joe being Joe? Was it a big deal about nothing? Was it a disaster?

Meanwhile, Trump says and does worse whenever he breathes. Thanks to the Democrats' dearth of perspective, and CNN's myopic lust for intramural conflict, Trump basically won the debate.

We're left to wonder whether round three, in September, will yield a better

THE DEMOCRATS LOST THEIR OWN DEBATES

Is it safe for me and my wife to return from our vacation in Eastern Europe?

I don't know how many Americans who tuned into the two Democratic presidential debates on CNN this week actually paid attention or were able to stay awake both nights.

But anyone who can prove they watched all six hours deserves some kind of psychiatric help from the government.

Maybe Bernie Sanders, Elizabeth Warren and the other progressives who want to be president can add free counseling for Post-Traumatic Debate Syndrome to the list of freebies they're promising to give every American.

I'm still in Austria - or is it Budapest?

But my sources back home tell me that for two nights leftist Democrats tooted their own tin horns, attacked each others' pie-in-the-sky "Medicare for All" health care plans and proved once again that not one of them is qualified to be president.

When they weren't calling the president a racist or promising to give trillions of dollars of free health care college and other stuff to Americans or illegal aliens, the candidates were railing against the usual devils - the NRA, the Koch Brothers, greedy drug companies, the evil fossil fuel industry, etc.

The Democrats' top talent looked bad, but CNN ought to be ashamed of itself.

Not just for using its Trump-hating trio of Jake Tapper, Dana Bash and Don Lemon as moderators.

Not just for devising a high-speed debate

CNN should be ashamed for producing a lousy presidential debate like it was a Super Bowl telecast.

Report.

Ten debaters were introduced each night like they were the starters on a pro football team, when actually they were two or three star players and a bunch of scrubs and walk-ons who'll never make

The big winner on night one was Elizabeth Warren, the shrill progressive professor who has written comprehensive plans to fix everything from college loan debt to climate change.

Warren and her arm-waving soulmate, angry Bernie Sanders, became a socialist tag-team.

They spent the night defending their He had trouble costly left-wing health care pipe-dreams defending the from the occasionally sensible attacks of now politically moderate lefties like millionaire busi- incorrect nessman and ex-Congressman John tions he held on Delaney and Rep. Tim Ryan of Ohio.

Joe Biden brought his C game Wednesday and was much better prepared.

> For the week, Prof. Warren was the big winner, if you don't count President

> The big losers were Harris and the Democrat Party, which showed the country
