HAS SIERRA MADRE HAD ENOUGH?

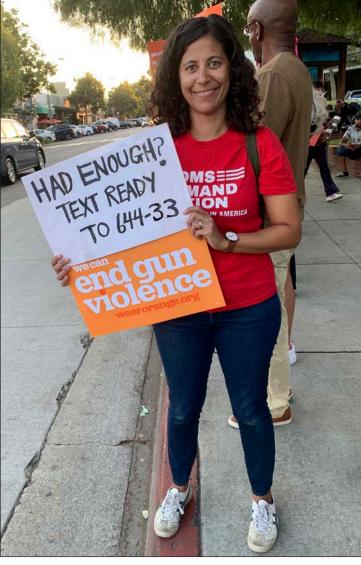

Story and Photos By Rebecca Wright

On July 28, 2019 a white supremacist opened fire at the Gilroy Garlic Festival, killing three and wounding 12 others before he turned the gun on himself. Then, a week later, there were back-to-back shootings in El Paso, Texas and Dayton, Ohio, killing 22 and 10, and injuring 25 and 27 respectively. In light of these events, several local activists, as well as organizations like Moms Demand Action, Everytown, Move On, the Brady Campaign, and SMART (Sierra Madre Activists Rebuilding Together), held a candlelight vigil in Kersting Court on Wednesday, August 7 to honor the victims of those shootings. The vigil remembered as well, the shooting in a Mississippi Walmart on July 30, and the hundreds of other shootings this year and years past. This was just one of several vigils in the area other locations included Pasadena and Claremont.

Sierra Madre has become an activist community, and so there were many familiar faces at Wednesday's vigil. Members of SMART like Kim Kissinger, one of the organizers, and local members of other organizations showed up in numbers, Moms Demand Action was also one of the groups that put on this vigil and many of the members showed up with their children to hold candles, honor the victims, and spread awareness. Sierra Madre Mayor John Harabedian, Maile Plan. a member of Congresswoman Judy Chu's staff, and Vickere Murphy-a member of Senator Anthony Portantino's staff were also present.

The vigil started with attendees lined up along the curb at Kersting Court. People held signs and candles, and passing cars honked in support. Around 7:30 PM, some of the organizers took turns thanking those in attendance. One of the Moms Demand Action representatives read a speech that she had prepared, Mayor Harabedian spoke, as did the representatives for the Congresswoman and the Senator; Maile Plan said that Congresswoman Judy Chu is pushing the Senate to vote on a gun safety bill that has already passed in the House. Then, the mic was opened up to attendees who felt moved to share. Rudy Chavez took the mic and spoke, reminding everyone gathered that "we are all sisters and brothers…we need to fight for humanity."

For anyone looking to get more involved in events like this and to support the cause, one easy way is to text "Checks" to 644-33. This will put you in contact with the office of your senators and it will let them know that you support gun safety. You can also go online to the websites of organizations like Moms Demand Action, Move On, or Everytown to get involved with local chapters.

Saving Our Library:

SIERRA MADRE LIBRARY FOUNDATION ESTABLISHED

The roots of the Sierra Madre Public Library date back to the early history of the City. The town's first settlers valued the arts and literature while local citizens took on an active role in building this new community. Prior to organized police or fire forces, prior even to the official incorporation of the city, the settlers in Sierra Madre valued having a Library. The first Library was built 130 years ago on the same lot where the current Library stands today. The Sierra Madre Public Library is the fourth oldest library system in Los Angeles County and the tenth oldest library operation in Southern California.

The current Library building, constructed in 1955, and is now over 60 years old. In spring of 2015 a committee was formed by the Library Board of Trustees, as prescribed by the 2014 Library Strategic Plan, to research the current condition of the Library facility to identify deficiencies, needed repairs, and assess the overall condition of the building's ability to serve into the future. The findings were reported in the Library Facility Master Plan which can be viewed at: http://cityofsierramadre.hosted.civiclive.com/common/pages/DisplayFile.aspx?itemId=7238478.

Sustaining libraries in a town like Sierra Madre takes the support of the entire village. And, although there are currently two other local organizations that play very important roles in the sustenance of the SMPL, the Foundation will address another aspect of continued support. Our current "Friends of the Library" raise current funds for the annual needs of the library. Their primary focus is on Special Events, such as the Used Book Sales, Annual Giving and the like to help supplement the Library's annual budget.

On the other hand, the focus of the Sierra Madre Library Foundation will be to conduct Capital Campaigns as needed to support the larger financial needs of the Library such as Equipment, Technology and Furnishings and will have a major role once a new library is built. One of the Foundation's major goals will be to build an Endowment Fund, primarily through Planned Giving, Bequests and other Estate Planning vehicles.

This isn't the first time that such a Foundation has been considered. An attempt was made to create a Library Foundation in 2008, but other pressing Community needs took priority. Now, however, the problems of 2008 have become more acute and more expensive to address. The nucleus of the 2008 group has gathered together again to attempt to create a Foundation. Involved are Former Councilmen, Bart Doyle and Rob Stockly; retired Librarian, Toni Buckner: Library Trustees Patricia Hall and Dr. Rich Procter and retired Architect Fred Wesley.

The Foundation has applied to become a 501(C)(3) Non Profit organization with the Internal Revenue Service so donors will be able to deduct their gifts from Federal Income Taxes. Similar documents have been filed with the State of California.

To learn more about the Foundation and how to support it, contact Library Trustee Patricia Hall at fnphallnsm@aol.com

Unwanted Medication Take Back

The Altadena Sheriff's Station will be taking in all types of unwanted prescription at a special event on Wednesday from 7 a.m. to 11 a.m.

We will be set up just west of our Station is located at 780 E. Altadena Dr. in Altadena, just west of Lake Avenue, under a green awning at the Altadena Community Center. The "take back" event is being conducted to prevent abuse and theft by ridding potentially homes of dangerous expired, unused, and unwanted prescription drugs.

The service is free and anonymous, and questions will be asked.

Some medicines that languish in home cabinets are highly susceptible to diversion, misuse, and abuse. Rates of prescription drug abuse in the U.S. are alarmingly high, as are the number of accidental poisonings and overdoses due to these drugs.

Studies show that a of abused majority prescription drugs are obtained from family and friends, including from the home medicine cabinet. In addition, Americans are now advised that their usual methods for disposing of unused medicines—flushing them down the toilet or throwing them in the trash—both pose potential safety and health hazards.

Our only request is this event is intended for private persons and not companies that dispense medications, destruction of the medication costs money to county of Los Angeles

WALKING SIERRA MADRE - The Social Side by Deanne Davis

SCHOOL STARTS THIS WEEK!

"You know it's time to go back to school when you hear parents singing, "It's the most wonderful time of the year!

"Education is the key to unlock the golden door of freedom." George Washington Carver

'Twas The Night Before School Started 'Twas the night before school started and all through the town, Parents were cheering, it was a riotous sound. By eight the kids were washed and tucked into bed, While memories of homework filled them with dread. New pencils, new folders, new notebooks too, New teachers, new friends, their anxiety grew. The parents just giggled when they heard of this fright, And shouted upstairs...Go To Bed, It's A School Night!" Author Unknown

That's pretty much what's happening all over the place this week and next. Up the street where granddaughters, Jessie and Emily, live, they went to the Start of School Splash swim party this afternoon, showered, shampooed and are already in bed as school starts for them tomorrow.

This seems somewhat unbelievable to me as I came out of the prehistoric era, just shortly after the Jurassic age, when school got out in June and started up again the day after Labor Day. These girls have been out on the town since early May and go back August 7th. While I'm reminiscing, and maybe you remember it this way, too, school started at 9:00 and went till 3:00. These girls are yanked rudely from sleep at 6:00 a.m., are on the school bus about 7:10 and on their way home shortly after 2:00.

We've bought new backpacks, tennis shoes, shirts with unicorns, flamingoes, hedgehogs and positive statements emblazoned across the chest. We've made sure there are plenty of socks and underwear, and will be ready to invade Target when the new teachers pass out the lists of All The Supplies You Will Need.

Yes, school is starting again tomorrow. It's been very pleasant to start the mornings around 8:00 when people really wanted to get up, pleasant to send the girls off to Vacation Bible School, various Art Camps, go to the movies, spend a week at the beach, just hang out at home and not feel any pressure.

A Parent's Back to School Prayer

Dear Lord, help them find where they need to go,

And go only where Your will leads.

To lead boldly, even where few will follow, and follow only the path

Reveal kindness to those who yearn, yearn for excellence in all they accomplish.

Accomplish in themselves the promise of all You've given.

Give them a desire for truth and passion for real learning. Have them learn to give, to love, to forgive and encourage. Stay by their sides and light up their souls,

Fill them, guide them, protect them and enliven them. And by all this have them become the masterful creations You

And longed for them to be, even in their mother's womb. "For I know the plans I have for you" declares the Lord, "Plans to prosper you and not to harm you., plans to give you a future and a hope." Jer. 29:11

Yes, school starts tomorrow and our hope above all else is that everyone they encounter will be kind. God bless them, every one.

KATIE Tse....This and That

My mom prefers news from the 50's and 60's to today's stuff. Can't say I blame her. Current events are too depressing. She has an online subscription to the Detroit Free Press, and every so often shares interesting tidbits with me. Since the story I'm going to share with you was chronicled back in 1952, I doubt anyone today will mind if I borrow it.

Maynard H. Smith, "Snuffy," from Caro Michigan was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for bravery in the second World War when he selflessly stayed aboard a bombed and battered plane to tend to a crewman who'd been shot through the lung. Everyone else had bailed, but not Snuffy. He even discarded his parachute "to get faster action" tossing live explosives onto an enemy ship. The article points out that psychologists would later note that men possessing normal reflexes and an understanding of danger would not be able to do what Snuffy did. In other words, Snuffy was a little nutty. Albeit helpfully nutty in this particular case. To celebrate his accomplishment, Snuffy went on a two-day bender for which the army assigned him to KP duty to scrub potatoes. That's where they had to get him when it was time to tie the medal around his skinny neck (Snuffy weighed about 140 lb.).

But wait! There's more... No, Snuffy was just getting started. He was divorced three times, the article not going into what "troubles" brought him to court in these cases. He also got caught trying to sell a fake aphrodisiac cream.

Let that one roll around in your mind for a while. First off, these were the days before FDA regulations, etc. etc. "Oklahoma" and similar tales have familiarized audiences with the prototype of flyby-night flim-flam con artists preying on the supposed gullibility of rural communities.

You know the score. Some guy in a flashy suit and a greasy mustache sets up a tent peddling miracle tonics that turn out to be nothing more than grain alcohol with a splash of camphor. The idea is sell a lot before the locals catch on and run you out of town.

So, how exactly did Snuffy's aphrodisiac scam become exposed? I know if I were to buy something like that and it didn't work, I'd be too embarrassed to complain about it. I mean, imagine answering the question, "Well ma'am, can you explain the problem Perfect for you and the educator in your life!

COLORFUL & SNUFFY

to me, in detail? How, precisely, did our product not meet your expectations?"

"Uh..."

Anyway, that's not all Snuffy was famous, or infamous, for. He also got caught in an elaborate bribery scheme in an attempt to run for governor of Virginia. (I guess he'd grown tired of Michigan by that Seems being awarded a hero made a big impact on old Snuff. (And that's another thing. How'd he get tagged with that nickname? What personal character trait inspired that title?) America loves a hero. Heroes are trustworthy. Just the kind of thing one looks for when voting for governor. The only problem was that a hero must wait around for a crisis to present itself. Unless you orchestrate

Snuffy found some poor young woman whose child had recently died. He propositioned her to fake suicide off a bridge, at which point he would save her. I don't think they ever worked out the finer points of this plan. Or at least they weren't satisfactory to the jump-ee, and she suggested the sixth story of the local YMCA instead. My guess is the Y probably had a lot of plush vegetation that would be more forgiving than water, if Snuffy botched his

But even this new twist was not without its snags. The woman had second thoughts come time to jump, and stood on the sixth story arguing with Snuffy.

"Don't ruin our plan!" he shouted.

But bystanders only heard "DON'T!"

Naturally, they thought he'd thwarted a suicide attempt. Later the woman came clean to authorities, exposing Snuffy's bribery scheme, and he did not go on to win governorship. However, I'm sure all that pales in comparison to some of the filthy dealings crooked politicians pull these days. But I wouldn't be the one to ask about that. The news is too depressing for daily consumption, unless maybe it's from 1952.

Do you have kids? I do, anyone need one until the economy picks up again, she is well mannered? Just kidding honey, but I will need that iPhone back, with the receipt. certifiable winner on every Wednesday and Sunday Night is Robin's where the Kids eat for free!! I have a feeling we can all afford that one. With each adult entrée your child can eat for free from the kids menu. No kids, you say, well they also offer all you can eat Rib Tips for ($13.95). Wow!!!

Now let's review an American favorite!!! It is also one of my personal favorites, BBQ, not the oven roasted version which Tony Roma's panders. No, Barbeque is made low and slow. Low heat and slowly cooked. There is only one authentic Grill in Hastings Ranch.

BBQ in The San Gabriel Valley; you guessed it, Robin's Woodfire BBQ and Owner and head politician Robin Salzer has perfected the BBQ at his name sake. Robin, will readily admit it took a few months to perfect the BBQ at Robin's. Robin hails from Milwaukee and opened Robin's 38 years ago this month. The original menu had everything from breakfast, to pizza, nachos and little bit of the BBQ. About ten years ago Robin made the decision to go strictly recalled. But, "I decided to stay the course". The result is some of the best BBQ in all of Southern California. The awards in the past five years include: Best of City Search, numerous Best of Awards by local newspapers, write ups in the LA Times and a feature in Westways Magazine.

Depending on the meat, each entrée is cooked between 4 to 6 hours on wood. The sauce is then put on the meat about twenty seconds before meat is done. This is done to avoid burning the outside skin of the meat.

Prices range from ($8.95) for salads to ($35.95) for the ultimate Garbage Can Combo.

What to order: The Beef Ribs are a must!! Four rib dinner ($19.95) and the six Rib dinner is ($29.95). Robin tells me the ribs are notched, thus insuring extra meat. For dessert order the peach cobbler, its house made.

What to avoid: Mondays & Tuesday, the restaurant is closed. They don't take reservations on the weekends, so I suggest making the visit on a Thursday Night. No separate checks.

Four Stars. Worth the drive from anywhere in Los Angeles. Check out the website. Robinsmenu.com for updated prices and

> THANK YOU, FOOTHILL UNITY CENTER: 1100 STUDENTS READY FOR SCHOOL By Joan Schmidt

I attended Foothill Unity Center's annual "Back to School" event at Santa Anita Park and was totally blown away. It's been ten years since I last attended; the event has GREATLY expanded, beyond

When I first arrived, I walked past so many happy families waiting in line for the event to begin. I proceeded to the Chandelier Room for the Welcoming ceremony, and met Mo and Lydia Welcoming from Lyd&Mo Photography who do all the Event Photos free of charge! (See photo above.) Visit friends still working and volunteering to help those friends still working and volunteering to help those in need. They included current Executive Director, Betty McWilliams; past Director Joan Whitenack; DUSD Superintendant Dr. Gordon Amerson and Board Member Reyna Diaz; MUSD Superintendent Dr. Katherine Thorossian; Host city Arcadia Mayor April Verlato, City Council Member Peter Amundson, former Mayor/ Foothill Unity Center's Board President, Gary Kovacic, also Master of Ceremony; Monrovia City Council Member Becky Shevlin, past Mayor/ Foothill Unity Center Board Member Mary Ann Lutz. Board Member Ulises Gutierrez. Betty Ann Lutz, Board Member Ulises Gutierrez, Betty Thomas, Susan Motander, Jennifer Stone; Duarte's past Mayor/ Board Member Lois Gaston, City Council Member Liz Reilly, and Deputy City Manager Karen Herrera; Kristi Lopez from Senator Portantino's Office, Vicky Paul from Supervisor Barger's office; Board Member Eric Bell; and Penny Arroyo, Volunteer Center Of San Gabriel Valley.

After the welcoming and introductions, I went downstairs to Santa Anita's Club House area. I have never seen so many HUGE displays of clothing (Uniforms, socks, underwear), and school supplies. I met Lois Gaston down there and she said, "Joan, can you imagine all the planning that went into this"?

Monrovia Reads had several tables of brandnew paperback books, like Scholastic-one per student. This event was TK- College, so there were representatives from the armed forces and college info. A totally awesome event: 1100 children now start school prepared. Outside were Dental and Vision screenings; the Fire Department had a truck and the CHP provided infant child seats.

Equipped with visionary science instruments, the Mars 2020 rover (https://mars.nasa.gov/mars2020) underwent an "eye" exam after several cameras were installed on it. The rover contains an armada of imaging capabilities, from wideangle landscape cameras to narrow-angle highresolution zoom lens cameras.

"We completed the machine-vision calibration of the forward-facing cameras on the rover," said Justin Maki, chief engineer for imaging and the imaging scientist for Mars 2020 at JPL. "This measurement is critical for accurate stereo vision, which is an important capability of the vehicle."

To perform the calibration, the 2020 team to perform self-driving over the Martian terrain. imaged target boards that feature grids of dots, placed at distances ranging from 1 to 44 yards (1 to 40 meters) away. The target boards were used to confirm that the cameras meet the project's requirements for resolution and geometric accuracy. The cameras tested included two Navcams, four Hazcams, the SuperCam and the two Mastcam-Z cameras.

"We tested every camera on the front of the rover chassis and also those mounted on the mast," said Maki. "Characterizing the geometric alignment of all these imagers is important for driving the vehicle on Mars, operating the robotic arm and accurately targeting the rover's laser."

In the coming weeks, the imagers on the back of the rover body and on the turret at the end of the rover's arm will undergo similar calibration.

Mounted on the rover's remote sensing mast, the Navcams (navigation cameras) will acquire panoramic 3D image data that will support route planning, robotic-arm operations, drilling and sample acquisition. The Navcams can work in tandem with the Hazcams (hazard-avoidance cameras) mounted on the lower portion of the rover chassis to provide complementary views of the terrain to safeguard the rover against getting lost or crashing into unexpected obstacles. They'll be used by software enabling the Mars 2020 rover

Along with its laser and spectrometers, SuperCam's imager will examine Martian rocks and soil, seeking organic compounds that could be related to past life on Mars. The rover's two Mastcam-Z high-resolution cameras will work together as a multispectral, stereoscopic imaging instrument to enhance the Mars 2020 rover's driving and core-sampling capabilities. The Mastcam-Z cameras will also enable science team members to observe details in rocks and sediment at any location within the rover's field of view, helping them piece together the planet's geologic history.

in Chardon, Ohio. One day, we decided to paint were not idiots. the kitchen a beautiful shade of light turquoise.

We turned on the radio, and began our task. We opened the windows, and I did the trim while my brother rolled. We listened to the radio as we busied ourselves with our individual tasks. We worked the corners, the edges, the front surfaces.

There's something about painting -- perhaps it's the fumes, perhaps it is the long quiet times of I began to think about how Uncle Joe responded, many little tasks. Painting requires no moral decisions, no great choices, no necessary pontifications about the meaning and purpose of life. And yet...

When we were done, we felt we'd accomplished something, and felt we'd given something back to the old farmhouse.

When the weekend came, another uncle came to visit us . He strode into the kitchen, looked around at the paint, and simply said "you didn't use glossy!"

Glossy? We were teenagers from California, visiting the home where our mother grew up. Though it may be second-nature to us today, back then we had no sense that a kitchen should be painted glossy. Glossy vs. flat were not issues that we thought much about. We didn't think it mattered all that much?

But Uncle Joe seemed to think it was a big deal, and just one more bit of evidence that teenagers from "the big city" were a bunch of dimwits who wouldn't know a cow from a goat. Uncle Joe shared it around to family and friends that we'd painted the kitchen in "wrong" paint, so we heard about in the weeks that followed. Some relatives didn't care, but others would comment as they came in, "Oh, so there's the flat paint job," instead of, "Hey, hello, long time no see!"

Dumb city boys who don't know the difference between flat and glossy paint, who actually had the stupidity to paint a kitchen in flat paint.

Of course, our intent was to make the family happy that we'd improved the old farmhouse. We > Today, while I was painting my own bathroom -glossy paint, white -- memories of the summer of 1973 in Chardon began to play again in my mind. Perhaps it was the paint. Perhaps it was the cool breeze blowing fresh oxygen through the room . I heard the chickens out back and it reminded me of my brief period of farm-living.

> and how he could have responded. I realized then the great truth in the phrase that WHAT we do is of little or no importance, but HOW we do it is

And yet, there you are, with your self, and the Uncle Joe died over 10 years ago, and when I visitbeen a time to re-enter the inner I, to think, to and barn had been torn down and were now just remember. In many ways, it is the ideal task for a field. None of it mattered anymore in the world of physical reality. Joe was gone, and the entire farmhouse was simply a memory, glossy or flat.

> Joe could have congratulated us on taking the initiative to paint, and could have explained why kitchens are always painted glossy. He could have told us that it was a great primer coat, and enthusiastically offered to drive us right then to the hardware store to get glossy paint, and we'd all do the final coat together. That would have been something. Our memory would have been profoundly different had Uncle Joe taken that route of inclusiveness, familyness, and helpfulness.

> I do not fault him for what he did do -- he probably knew no other way. In fact, from what I knew about his father (my grandfather), his father probably would have beaten him had Joe painted the kitchen with flat paint. So to Joe, that was just one of millions of automatic reactions to things in his world. He probably forgot about in a few years, after the novelty of talking about Marie's silly nephews wore off.

> I realized then how important such "little things" can be, and I wondered how well I would do when my next opportunity arose. It is especially important with impressionable youth to do the very best we can to be a good example.

> It seemed like an important insight, that the "how" is more important than the "what," and that flat or glossy really doesn't matter. Perhaps it was the paint. Perhaps it was the cool breeze blowing fresh oxygen through the room....

ACADEMIES THIS FALL!

The Monrovia Area Partnership (MAP) is excited to present our youth and adult leadership academies for the fall season! MAP is a city program facilitated by Neighborhood Services staff that hosts events and meetings to train and connect community members dedicated to improving Monrovia. Stay connected by liking MAP on Facebook, and we hope you'll consider signing up for one of our academies below!

MAP Adult Leadership Academy

One major goal of the MAP Program is to encourage residents' involvement in their neighborhood and in the community. Through the MAP Leadership Academy, we train residents to recognize and utilize city resources; provide leadership skills; and encouragement to become engaged in the community.

Thursdays, September 12 - October 24 7:00 PM - 9:00PM, Library Community Room RSVP Online

MAP Youth Leadership Academy

The Monrovia Area Partnership (MAP) Youth Leadership Academy is similar to the Adult Academy but is designed for middle and high school aged youth. The Academy's goals are to assist the youth in learning, developing and growing. We start by exploring with them how they themselves are leaders (even if they don't know it yet!); then they are given examples of how others use their skills to make a difference. After learning from others, they learn how we work together as a community and ends with putting all that they learn into ACTION.

Wednesdays, September 11 - October 23

3:00 - 5:00 PM, Library Community Room

FIVE REASONS TO ATTEND OR WATCH A CITY COUNCIL MEETING

- Learn about new developments and projects in Duarte. There are new projects and developments every direction you look. Duarte is bustling!
- Hear presentations about organizations in the community. Local organizations such as the Duarte Chamber of Commerce, the Historical Society, or our different utilities make presentations about programs they offer to enhance Duarte or issues they see that could impact citizens. City Council meetings are a hub of information from across the community.
- Share your opinion. If you attend the meeting in person, you can address the Council during "oral communications" section on the agenda. Even if you cannot attend, you can express your concerns by calling City Hall at (626) 357-7931 and staff will connect you to the correct person to assist.
- Know what's going on in the community. Online forums sometimes have items misrepresented or falsely stated but if you are present at the meeting or watch later, you can know first-hand how a topic was discussed. It feels good to be in-the-know and not have to necessarily rely on outside filters for information.
- Get involved. Decide how involved you want to become by listening to what the different projects the city advisory commissions are working on and find the perfect niche for yourself - Parks and Recreation Commission, Public Safety Commission, Traffic Safety Commission and many others.

The Duarte City Council meets regularly on the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month at 7 p.m. in the Community Center, 1600 Huntington Drive.

Can't attend but still really want to know what's going on? Livestream the meeting or watch archived session on the City website at www.accessduarte.com. Just click on the "agenda/view meetings" icon at the bottom of the homepage, then click on the word "video" by the date of the meeting you want to view.

CITRUS COLLEGE'S NEW APPROACH TO TEACHING MATHEMATICS ELIMINATES MAJOR OBSTACLE TO COLLEGE COMPLETION

By Dr. Edward C. Ortell, Citrus College Governing Board Member

New placement strategies and innovative teaching methods in Citrus College's mathematics program have been making headlines. In fact, a May 2019 episode of PBS NewsHour, titled "Making the Grade: Rethinking College," highlights the college's efforts to increase college completion rates by modifying math education.

These changes align with state legislation that took effect in January 2018. AB 705 requires California community colleges to maximize the probability that all students will enter and complete transfer-level coursework in English and math within a one-year timeframe. As part of this requirement, colleges must now use one of three measures to place students into English and math courses: high school coursework, high school grades and/or high school GPA.

At Citrus College, the placement of students in math classes is now dependent upon self-reported high school GPA and the last math course completed in high school with a "C" or better. All students, including those without a recent high school record, are provided access to entry transfer-level math in their first semester.

Of course, adjusting placement methods is only one aspect of AB 705. The legislation's ultimate goal is to eliminate the need for remedial classes, which many believe are a hindrance to college completion. Prior to AB 705, students could only enroll in transfer-level English and math if their placement scores were high. Those with lower scores were placed in remedial classes to ensure that they were sufficiently prepared for the more advanced material.

Before AB 705, 80 percent of California's incoming college freshman were placed into remedial and less than 20 percent of students completed their math requirement within one year. While the remedial courses were designed to get students ready for transfer-level coursework, they were actually preventing many from completing their college degrees.

Last fall, Citrus College was the first local community college to completely eliminate remedial courses. Those students in need of remediation now enroll directly into college-level courses, while being provided with concurrent academic support. Known as the co-requisite support model, this approach enables students to bypass traditional remedial courses. In place of these classes, the students enroll in their college-level math course and in a support course at the same time.

One year after the changes were implemented, the results have been promising. College-wide, first-time student completion of transfer-level math has doubled - from 28 percent during the 2017-2018 academic year to 59 percent during the fall 2018 semester. These numbers are only expected to increase as the program evolves. In fact, the college will soon introduce co-requisite support for business calculus and precalculus. When fall 2019 classes start this month, all students will have access to transfer-level math courses relevant to their programs of study.

As the Duarte area's representative on the Citrus Community College District Board of Trustees, I am proud that Citrus College is leading the way in transforming remediation and supporting student completion. The college will continue to do all it can to nourish the success of all students.

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

THE REAL COST TO YOUR FAMILY: NOT UPDATING YOUR PLAN

If you're like most people, you probably view estate planning as a burdensome necessity—just one more thing to check off life's endless "to-do" list.

You may shop around and find a lawyer to create planning documents for you, or you might try creating your own DIY plan using online documents. Then, you'll put those documents into a drawer, mentally check estate planning off your to-do list, and forget about them.

The problem is, your estate plan is not a one-and-done type of deal.

In fact, if it's not regularly updated when your assets, family situation, and/or the laws change, your plan may be totally worthless when your family needs it. And believe it or not, failing to regularly update your plan can create its own unique set of problems that can leave your family worse off than if you'd never created a plan at all.

Keep your plan up to date We recommend you review your plan at least every three years to make sure it's up to date, and immediately amend your plan following events like divorce, deaths, births, and inheritances. We have built-in systems and processes to ensure your plan is regularly reviewed and updated, so you don't need to worry about whether you've overlooked anything important as your life changes, the law changes, and your assets change.

You should also create (and regularly update) an inventory of all your assets, including digital assets like cryptocurrency, photos, videos, and social media accounts. This way, your family will know what you have and how to find it when something happens to you, and nothing you've worked so hard for will be lost to our state's Department of Unclaimed Property.

We'll not only help you create a comprehensive asset inventory, but we'll make sure it stays up to date throughout your lifetime.

Properly title your trust assets

When you create a trust, it's not enough to list the assets you want it to cover. You have to transfer the legal title of certain assets—real estate, bank accounts, securities, brokerage accounts—to the trust, known as "funding" the trust, in order for them to be disbursed properly.

While most lawyers will create a trust for you, few will ensure your assets are properly funded. We'll not only make sure your assets are properly titled when you initially create your trust, we'll also ensure that any new as sets you acquire over the course of your life are inventoried and properly funded to your trust.

This will keep your assets from being lost, as well as prevent your family from being inadvertently forced into court because your plan was never fully completed.

Keep your family out of court and out of conflict

As your Personal Family Lawyer®, our planning services go far beyond simply creating documents and then never seeing you again. Indeed, we'll develop a relationship with your family that lasts not only for your lifetime, but for the lifetime of your children and their children, if that's your wish.

We'll support you in not only creating a plan that keeps you family out of court and out of conflict in the event of your death or incapacity, but we'll ensure your plan is regularly updated to make certain that it works and is there for your family when you cannot be. Contact us today to get started with a Family Estate Planning Session.

HOW TO FIND A GOOD FINANCIAL PLANNER

Dear Savvy Senior:

Can you recommend some tips on finding and choosing a good financial planner? My wife and I are both in our late fifties and would like to get some professional advisement to help us better prepare for our retirement years. Seeking Advice

With all the different financial planners, advisers and services available today, finding and choosing a trusted professional that can help you meet your financial goals can be confusing. Here are a few suggestions to consider.

Where to Look

A good place to start your search is by asking friends or relatives for recommendations. If you don't know anyone who can give you a referral, and you're looking for broad-based financial advice, hire a Certified Financial Planner, or CFP, who are considered the "gold standard" in the industry. CFPs must act as fiduciaries, putting their client' best interest above their own.

To get the CFP credential, they must have a college degree and be educated in a wide range of personal finance subjects, pass a rigorous certification exam, have three years professional experience, meet continuing-education requirements and abide by a code of ethics.

CFPs are taught to look at the big picture view of your finances, talking you through your goals, as well as advising you on the details of your financial life.

You're also probably better off hiring a CFP that's a fee-only planner, verses one who earns a commission by selling you financial products. Fee-only planners charge only for their services - for example you might pay $150 to $350 an hour for a financial tune-up, a flat fee per project or an asset-based fee.

To find a fee-only planner in your area, use the National Association of Personal Financial Advisors (NAPFA.org), which carefully vets all members and offers an online directory. Or see the Garrett Planning Network (GarrettPlanningNetwork.com), a network of fee-only advisers. Or the Alliance of Comprehensive Planners (ACplanners.org), a community of fee-only advisors that charge annual retainers.

If your needs are more specific, some other financial professionals to consider are a Registered Investment Adviser (RIA) who is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission or a state securities regulator to manage investment portfolios; a Chartered Financial Consultant (ChFC), who specialize in insurance and estate planning; and a Certified Public Accountant (CPA), who can help with tax planning.

Be leery of many other financial advising titles, designations and certifications that are out there like the Certified Financial Consultant (CFC) or the Wealth Management Specialist (WMS). Many of these require no more than a few courses at a seminar or online, which means they're not worth much. To research the different certifications or designations visit FINRA.org/investors - click on 'Tools & Calculators," then on "Professional Designations."

After you find a few candidates in your area, call them up and schedule an appointment to meet and interview them. Find out about their experience, expertise and the types of services they provide; if they're a fiduciary; how they charge and how much; what is their investment philosophy; and how will they handle your ongoing questions or financial needs. Look for someone whose clients are in situations similar to yours and who's available as often as you need them.

It's also wise to do a background check on your potential advisor. At LetsMakeaPlan. org, you can verify a planner's certification as CFP (click on "Verify CFP Professional Status"). You'll also see any information on the planner's disciplinary history with CFP Board and on bankruptcy filings in the past

To vet a registered investment adviser, go to Investor.gov where you can search an individual's name and click on "Detailed Report" to see information on qualifications, employment history, disciplinary actions, criminal convictions and more.

To check out a broker, visit BrokerCheck.finra.org where you can search an individual or firm's name to get details like years of experience, licensing, exams passed and regulatory

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

MY MIRROR DOESN'T LIE, BUT SOMETIMES IT GIGGLES

by my looks, and I don't think anybody else has either.

Sometimes, however, I have to spend a little more time before the mirror to get prepared for where I am going. I must say, I am not fond of mirrors and I make it as quick as possible.

I do not trust mirrors. When I was a youngster, my family lived very close to Hershey Park in Pennsylvania. One of the major attractions there was the "House of Mirrors." You would walk in and the mirrors would distort what you really looked like.

Walking through, we would always laugh and point to the person in the mirror not acknowledging that it was us. I could not trust those mirrors at Hershey Park, which has stayed with me all my life.

I had forgotten about those mirrors until recently. I was getting ready to go somewhere and the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage said, "Have you looked in the mirror today?"

Not knowing what she was talking about I muttered, "Yes, I glanced at it this morning."

What she was getting at was beyond my speculation except that she saw something on my face that for some reason I had not seen.

"You ought to look in the mirror before you leave," she stated.

I never want to start a day objecting to anything my wife says if I don't have to. Therefore, to please her so I could get out of the house as quick as possible, I went and looked in the mirror and there it

That morning I had nicked myself shaving and did not notice it, but the blood started coming out very slowly. By the time I got out of the bathroom and into the kitchen, the blood had flowed down the side of my face. I looked at it, got some paper towels and cleaned up my face.

'That looks better," my wife said as I was leaving. Then she said something that struck me.

"Remember," she said as gently as possible, "the mirror never lies."

That phrase stuck with me all day long and as I pondered it, I wondered if it was true. Those mirrors at the Hershey Park lied all the time. I was not as twisted as they made me out to be.

The mirror in my bathroom, according to my wife, is not like those mirrors. The mirror in my bathroom always reflects the real me. Which, as I thought about it, it rather disturbed me. Am I re-

I have never been fascinated ally what I look like in the mirror?

Maybe that is why my wife spends 10 times more time before her mirror than I do before my mirror. In fact, I am thinking about looking in her mirror some morning to see if I am seeing what she sees when she looks in her mirror.

Wouldn't it be great if one morning we got our bathrooms mixed up? I went into her bathroom and looked in her mirror and she went into my bathroom and looked in my mirror. I will know when that happens because I will hear some loud screaming coming from my bathroom.

When I go to my barber, he always wants me to look at the back of my head in a mirror he provides to see if I like it. I always say to him, "If you like it, I'm okay with it." I never see the back of my head unless I am near a mirror.

In the morning, I glance in the mirror to make sure nothing is out of place, and then I go on with my day never thinking about that mirror ever again. If I had to think about what I look like in the mirror all day long I probably would go insane.

Of course, I spent all day thinking about my bathroom mirror. I have come to this rather sincere conclusion. My mirror does not lie, but sometimes it giggles. If I was a mirror and had to see a face like mine looking in, I think I would do more than giggle.

Outward looks are not that important, at least to me. It is not the outside that really is significant, but rather the inside.

I think it is rather hypocritical for some people, and I am not mentioning any names whatsoever, to plaster their face with makeup hiding their real self. Looking at some people you do not know if you are seeing the real person.

I saw someone the other day, I could not tell if it was male or female, but their face was plastered with makeup, they had earrings, nose rings and even a ring on their tongue. They had rings all over their face, which made them look like a ding-a-ling.

Walking away from that person, I wondered if they had a mirror in their bathroom. If so, I am not sure they looked at it that morning.

I could not help what Jesus said to the Pharisees of his day. "And the Lord said unto him, Now do ye Pharisees make clean the outside of the cup and the platter; but your inward part is full of ravening and wickedness" (Luke 11:39). I can be so caught up with my outward appearance I forget the important part is inside; my soul. The Bible is the mirror I need to see my soul.

AMERICA, IT SHOULDN'T HAVE TO BE THIS HARD

We're at a turning point. Again.

We're again at a moment in our nation's history where we can decide who we are as a people, what matters most and what kind of country we want to hand to our children. Are we again going to be a state and nation that passively bears witness to carnage in our streets? În our shopping malls? Our schools? Our houses of worship? Our bars and restaurants? Or are we simply going to shrug, throw our hands in the air, and conclude once again that this is just the price of being an American?

The decisions our elected leaders make over the coming days and weeks on whether to debate proposals that are so common sense, so basic, so simple that we shouldn't even have to debate them will be our legacy to history, our grant to

Again, we find ourselves asking simple questions. They're the ones we failed to answer after Sandy Hook, Orlando, San Bernardino, Las Vegas, Pittsburgh, Virginia Beach, and Parkland - after every mass shooting that's shattered lives and families, destroyed bodies, and upended entire communities.

And they're the ones we fail to answer every day, when people are gunned down in violent events that are all too routine in cities like Philadelphia.

Do we surrender to fear? Do we give into hopelessness? Do we let violence triumph over that most fundamental of American rights, the one that Gov. Pennsylvania Tom Wolf alluded to during a packed rally in the state Capitol rotunda on Wednesday evening - the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness?

"We all live in the same country," Wolf said, answering a critic in the crowd. "We have the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. ... We're not trying to take anybody's rights away. We're trying to preserve our own."

That's the only answer that matters. The only one that makes any sense.

We're talking about approving universal background checks, which, in poll after poll, Americans support in overwhelming numbers irrespective of their party affiliation or tribal loyalties.

We're talking about authorizing so-called "red flag" laws that would allow police and loved ones to obtain a court order, while respecting due process, to seize someone's guns if they think that person poses a risk to themselves or

The laws work. Look to Connecticut and Indiana, where studies have shown a reduction in suicides.

Republican Sen. Pat Toomey from Pennsylvania is leading the push for expanded background checks on his side of Capitol Hill. The Senate also has a more vigorous background checks bill approved by the House.

So far, however, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell has proven stubbornly resistant to bring the House bill to a vote. But with control of the Senate on the line in 2020, Republicans could pay a dear price for inaction. McConnell has to know that.

But even if Congress does vote, it's an open question whether President Donald Trump who has supported reform measures in the past, only to wilt in the face of NRA pressure - would even sign the bills if they made it to his desk.

Trump, who shattered his call for civility on social media almost as soon as he made it this week, cannot be looked upon as an honest broker.

But something has to change.

Otherwise, what do we say to the next Julia Mallory, a Harrisburg mom whose 17-year-old son, Julian, was gunned down in 2017? The young man was "peacemaker" with a community advocacy group known as Breaking the Chainz. Do we say, "Tough luck? We tried? You're on your own?"

What do we say to the classroom teachers like Lauren Peck, of the activist group Moms Demand Action, who has to swallow back her own fear so that she can be a self-described "superhero" to her child and to her middle-school

Those are choices we should never have to ask our parents, our educators, our middle-school kids to make. But every time we fail to act, that's exactly what we do.

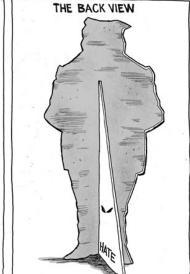

But it doesn't have to be that way. We're at a turning point.

We have the solutions within reach, a remedy within our grasp. There's only one path forward. We have to be brave enough to take it.

It shouldn't be this hard.

WILL REPUBLICANS FINALLY DISOWN TRUMP'S INCENDIARY RACISM?

Amidst the latest bloodshed - the worst of it triggered by a white racist domestic terrorist whose El Paso manifesto echoes Trump's racist rhetoric - I bet you're jonesing for some good news. I'm happy to share what I have. Admittedly it isn't much, but at this point we should probably be grateful whenever a few Republicans wake up and smell their party's white supremacist stench.

"The Republican Party is enabling white supremacy in our country. As a lifelong Republican, it pains me to say this, but it's the truth," wrote Nebraska state senator John McCollister. "We have a Republican president who continually stokes racist fears in his base. He calls certain countries 'sh*tholes,' tells women of color to 'go back' to where they came from and lies more than he tells the truth.

Senator Ted Cruz - yes, Cruz - said on Sunday morning, "What we saw yesterday was a heinous act of terrorism and white supremacy. There is no place for this in El Paso, in Texas, or anywhere across our nation."

And early Monday morning, the conservative, pro-GOP Washington Examiner posted an editorial that assailed El Paso's "white nationalist terrorist," and declared: "Some conservatives and Republicans have hesitated to acknowledge that this a growing scourge, but after El Paso any such reluctance is unacceptable ... Trump needs to make clear that he hates white nationalism as something un-American and evil."

So at least some on the right are finally speaking out, but rest assured, they won't get much help from Trump, who on Monday blamed the slaughter of Hispanics on the media and "fake news."

The problem for Trump is that "The Media" accurately showed him at a May 8 Florida rally railing about immigrants crossing the border, and when he asked, "How do we stop these people?" somebody yelled, "Shoot them!" - and when his cultists laughed, cheered, and applauded, the cameras caught him smirking. He didn't admonish the crowd, he indulged it: "That's only in the Panhandle you can get away with that statement."

'The Media" has given him ample opportunity to renounce his incendiary bigotry. On the White House lawn last Thursday, as he prepared to leave for another rally, he was asked how he'd respond if the crowd chanted that four Democratic congresswomen of color should go back to where they came from. Instead of saying that the chant was racist, that the four women were Americans, he said this: "I don't know if you can stop people (from chanting). You know what my message is? I love them, and I think they really love me."

Trump didn't order the El Paso shooter onto the killing field. But ever since he descended his escalator in June 2015 to attack Mexico for sending "criminals" and "rapists," he has given verbal aid and comfort to aspiring white domestic terrorists. The shooter's manifesto assails an Hispanic "invasion," echoing a word that surfaces in a number of Trump tweets. The shooter also once retweeted a photo of the word "Trump spelled out in firearms.

Trump himself has long winked at the potential for violence. Meanwhile, his regime has cut off funding to a national terrorism database that has charted the rise of right-wing domestic terrorism. You have to be willfully dense, or deep in denial, to not connect the dots - case in point, acting Trump chief of staff Mick Mulvaney, who said "no politician is to blame" for El Paso.

David French, a conservative lawyer who writes for the conservative National Review, has connected those dots. On Monday, he pointed out that the rise of the violent right is "directly related" to Trump's rhetoric. "Most Americans remember the Tree of Life synagogue massacre in Pittsburgh. Do you remember the white supremacist who killed a black man in New York with a sword? Do you remember the attempted church massacre in Kentucky, where a white supremacist who couldn't gain access to the church gunned down two black victims at a Kroger grocery story instead? Do you remember that a member of an 'alt-Reich' Facebook group stabbed a black Maryland college student to death without provocation, or that a white man in Kansas shouted ethnic slurs before shooting two Indian engineers in a bar, killing one?" French wrote. "Substitute 'jihadist' for 'white supremacist' or 'white nationalist' and then

Monday from the Oval Office, Trump read from his TelePrompTer and said that white supremacy is bad. We'll soon find out whether he has the gravitas to say that to his rally fans.

SELF-EXAMINATION WOULD BE A GOOD START IN RESPONSE TO MASS SHOOTINGS

If the circumstances weren't so awful, the predictability of the response would almost generate the most atbe laughable.

Every mass shooting inspires new calls and places that infor gun control, as politicians and pundits retreat to their partisan bunkers and lob blame where they believe it will do the most

I believe in the Constitution, though I don't view every piece of legislation designed to keep firearms out of the hands of criminals or the unstable as a slippery slope toward repeal of the Second Amendment.

It seems pretty naive to think that someone bent on mass murder is going to forget the whole thing because he can't get his hands on a particular weapon. Criminals tend to be resourceful. Timothy McVeigh killed 168 people in Oklahoma City and never fired a

"Assault weapon" is a made-up political term designed to expand the list of firearms that gun control proponents believe should be banned. The AR-15, which is a hunting rifle, falls into this category. It fires one round at a time, like a pistol or a revolver. It can fire about 50 rounds in a minute as opposed to a fully automatic, military issue carbine which fires about 1,000 rounds per minute. The U.S. banned the sale of new, fully automatic weapons in 1986.

You want to ban the AR-15? Fine. There are tens of millions of legally-owned AR-15s in the U.S. And keep in the mind that the man responsible for the deadliest school shooting in American history - Virginia Tech in 2007 - used two handguns.

So-called "red flag" laws, which President Trump supports, and more expansive background checks make sense. Seventeen states already have a red flag laws, which allows for a court order to prevent someone deemed a danger to himself or others from having access to a firearm.

That's a start, though it will be difficult to move forward, mostly because of the shameful politicization of the issue. Within minutes of the shooting in El Paso, Democratic presidential candidates were blaming the president.

If that's the case then perhaps we should blame the left for the Dayton shooter who, according to published reports, was a socialist, gun control advocate and Elizabeth Warren supporter. We can also blame the left for the man who shot up a Washington D.C. baseball field and tried to kill several Republican members of Congress in 2017. The shooter once worked for Bernie Sanders. Or maybe we can blame President Obama and his criticism of police for inspiring a gunman to kill five cops in Dallas in 2016.

I don't buy it.

And the reality is that while mass shoot-

RICH MANIERI

ings understandably tention, we're killing each other in ways spire a conspicuous

Since the infamous clock tower shooting on the University of Texas campus in 1966, there have been 165 mass shootings in the U.S., according to an analysis by the Washington Post. For purposes of the analysis, a mass shooting is defined as one in which four or more people are killed by a single shooter. The analysis does not include domestic or gang-related

Using the Post's criteria, 1,196 people in the U.S. have been killed in mass shootings since

In 2018, the number of homicides - by firearms or otherwise - in Chicago, Philadelphia and Baltimore totaled 1,223.

Over the weekend in Chicago, 53 people were shot, seven killed. You probably haven't heard much about it.

I'm more interested in why we're killing each other wholesale, on a daily basis, rather than how we're doing it.

Perhaps we need to look deeper than the simplistic explanations - political rhetoric, social media, video games, the availability of firearms - and consider a society in which people are willing to take lives without considering the impact or the consequences.

We dismiss the presence of evil in the world until a massacre reveals it in neon. And soon after, we dismiss it again.

We foster a culture of victimhood, where our dissatisfaction with life is always someone else's fault.

We lack empathy for those who disagree

We value revenge over forgiveness.

We talk about diversity only as it relates to physical characteristics; never diversity of thought or opinion.

We allow our children to retreat into the isolation of virtual world, devoid of genuine human interaction.

We fight the rule of law and wonder why our young people don't respect authority. We dethrone God and exalt ourselves.

As Christians, we do a great job of telling people what they shouldn't be doing and a lousy job of showing them Jesus.

Yes, the one who pulled the trigger is ultimately responsible and accountable.

Maybe the rest of us need to look in the
