WE SHALL NEVER FORGET

A SPECIAL MESSAGE FROM ONE WHO REMEMBERS:

"September 11th,

Instead of posting where I was on that day or beautiful pictures in memoriam of the fallen. I am spending the day thinking about each of you. My friends and sometimes foes. The terror attack on the twin towers that day was the ultimate demonstration of the devastation of hate. Hate left unchecked becomes death. There were Republicans, Democrats, independents, socialists, communist, gay, straight, American, foreigners, and every religion and nationality under the sun. All dead because of hate left

I am saddened by the tone we are all taking when discussing our differences. So much hate and disdain for opposing views.

Most of my brothers from my time in the US Navy are very conservative. I love them dearly and would lay down my life for them to this day. But when did hatred become the preferred emotion towards the left.

My friends on the left. Fighting for equality should never be reduced to a shouting match of obscenities and hatred towards the right, just because they oppose what you stand for.

My religious friends, every major religion preaches love and tolerance so my ques-tion is this... What in the hell are you doing?

The terror attacks on 9-11 should have been the ultimate testimony of the path hate will take us. Unfortunately we are not learning the lesson.

May God have Mercy on our Souls.

Sierra Madre Police and Fire Departments held their annual September 11th remembrance program to honor the 2,977 individuals who lost their lives.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE - The Social Side by Deanne Davis

"Wine improves with age. The older I get, the better I 4. The smell of cinnamon lifts the spirits. like it."

"Wine makes every meal an occasion, every table more elegant, every day more civilized."

"Wine...is sunlight held together by water." Galileo "There comes a time in every woman's life when the only thing that helps is a glass of champagne." Bette Davis

"The Wine & Spirit Education Trust (WSET), the largest global provider of wine qualifications, launched the first ever global "Wine Education Week" from September 9-15, 2019 as part of their 50th anniversary. Wine Education Week aims to engage with the growing population of wine consumers worldwide, encouraging them to learn more about wine."

To quote myself from "Deanne's Philosophy of Life, #11, A nice cup of tea makes you feel better....so does a nice glass of champagne." Bette Davis and I completely agree but I'll never understand what possessed her to make that really awful 1962 movie with Joan Crawford, "Whatever Happened To Baby Jane?" Here's what Roger Ebert, the movie reviewer, said: "Davis was nothing if not courageous, as she abandoned all shreds of vanity and overacted her heart out. Crawford plays the quieter, kinder, more reasonable sister -- and, it must be said, the less interesting."

But that's not what we're talking about today, we're talking about Wine Education Week. I have found that the wine guy at Trader Joe's is really helpful when you're standing there in front of 7,000 bottles of wine and your best indicators to yourself are that you don't want to pay more than about $8.00 or $9.00 for a bottle and you like Merlot. I suspect that the WSET folks would be horrified to hear that I put ice cubes and occasionally sparkling water in my Merlot. Of course, Merlot from Trader Joe's is a big step up from Spanada, which was a really cheap sort of fizzy red wine popular among people with no money back in the '70's, which would certainly describe John and me at that time. Amazingly, those green glass Spanada wine bottles are now collector's items! A little Merlot with ice and a bowl of popcorn is a nice way to finish off the day when the groceries are put away, the laundry is chugging away in the washer, and you don't have to go anywhere else.

Now that I've looked at that Philosophy of Life again for the first time in a while, I think I'll share it with you friends and neighbors. It should make you smile!

I Learned It All The Hard Way, and It's All Subject to Change Without Notice Philosophy of Life

- 1. God is good and loves us in spite of ourselves.
- 2. Life is wonderful...and certainly beats the heck out of the alternative.
- Keeping your teeth tightly clenched today will probably save you from having to do a big bunch of apologizing tomorrow.

KATIE Tse....This and That

- 5. A little onion helps most recipes and, speaking of recipes, never start one that lists as a first ingredient any of the following: 2 cups of heavy cream, any amount of leftover mashed potatoes, kohlrabi, beets pig's feet, pickled or otherwise.
- 6. Marriage is a lot of fun, especially if you don't insist on having your way all the time.

Having your own way is a lot of fun! Children do eventually grow up and some of them even move out!

Worrying doesn't change anything except it makes you cranky and gives you wrinkles. 10. E-mail is fabulous, you can keep up with everyone you know, no matter where in the world they are, without having to locate a stamp.

11. A nice cup of tea makes you feel better....so does a nice glass of champagne.

12. One tomato plant in a big pot, in a sunny spot on your front porch will give you enough satisfaction, and tomatoes, to last you all summer and fall.

13. Dieting makes you almost as cranky as worrying and is usually just about as effective.

14. It is not possible to eat one peanut, one tortilla chip, one chocolate chip cookie. It is possible to eat one carrot, one piece of broccoli or one brussel sprout. Actually, it's possible never to eat a brussel sprout.

15. "Please," "thank you," "I'm sorry," and "you were right" are always very sweet to hear, and a real plus in getting along with others. 16. Telling the complete and total truth in all situations makes other people want you to stay home by yourself....Honest! 17. Learning to enjoy football is far more rewarding than complaining about it. 18. Early morning walks, complimenting the Creator on His handiwork, are a great way to start the day. 19. Exercise feels wonderful...when it's over. 20. A good steak once in a while is fabulous, so let my arteries fend for themselves, and pass me that A-1 sauce while I still have my teeth! 21. It is possible to learn to program whatever recording device you've got, or just ask a kid. 22. Praying does wonders for your attitude about any situation, whether it changes the situation or not. 23. If you floss your teeth and rotate your tires they'll both last longer. Smiling makes your face last

24. If discouraged, disappointed, disgusted or dismayed, go back to #1: God is good and loves us in spite of ourselves.

Have a wonderful week, dear friends!

Few experiences compare with the thrill of watching iconic Sierra Madre cinematic classic, "Invasion of the Body Snatchers." similar-minded Sierra Madreans fits the bill. Unfortunately for it's too late. They showed it in the park last Friday. But with any luck, the city will do it again next year, and we can all relive the magic together! "Body Snatchers" is one of those things in the "You know you're a Sierra Madrean if..." category. Along with Mary's Market, the Mount Wilson Trail race, and memories of Bean Town before it expanded to its current size (Bonus points for shopping at Robert's Market and Little Stuga. Extra bonus points for recalling the Texaco station and lumber yard).

This 1956 gem stars Kevin McCarthy as protagonist Dr. Miles Bennel, with Dana Wynter as love interest, Becky Driscoll. It's your typical sci-fi mystery thriller with nutshell, or should I say --a pod!

Aliens are invading Earth by pollinating the planet with pods containing blank prototype human bodies. These bodies assume your features until they resemble you completely, at which point they "take you over" start foaming as they mature. (I think they used dish soap.) When ripe, they burst open and the body inside flops out like a blow-up doll.

The movie opens to Miles frantically trying to convince the police that the world is ending. But that's not how the story starts. It all began a week ago, when Miles met Becky in his office in Santa Mira. There'd be nothing noteworthy about this encounter, except that it's about nine in the morning, and Becky is wearing a low (I mean LOW) cut dress with what appear to be tissue wads barely containing her assets. She sports this outfit for the next half-hour of the film, the men making a conscious effort to look her straight in the

PODS IN THE PARK

Miles' friends, Jack and Teddy (that's a woman) Belicec, call him up after Jack discovers a seemingly dead body that starts to bear a striking resemblance to But if one could gild the lily, himself. Miles inspects the body laid out on Jack's pool watching it in the park amongst table while they all smoke and get a couple rounds of Becky's distraught, so Miles gives her a couple pills you, if you're reading this now to go with her drink. He is a doctor, after all. Nearly every scene has someone lighting up, tipping back a nightcap, and/or popping pills. The 50's sure must've been something...

Other highlights include a great scene where Miles,

Becky, Jack, and Teddy discover bursting pods in the Belicec greenhouse. Jack wastes little time stabbing the sudsy pod-people with a pitchfork.

While "Invasion of the Body Snatchers" is a must-see in it's own right, it's unique because many scenes were filmed in Sierra Madre! (Prominent footage of Kersting Court, Sierra Madre Blvd., and Hotel Shirley.) When my parents saw it last Friday, they said everyone cheered when Kersting Court came on.

My parents had a great time, of course. However, they got there at 7, when it was advertized to start. But all the corny effects you'd expect. Here's the plot in a nutshell, or should I say --a pod! it was still light out. While waiting for it to get dark enough to show the movie, they noticed a table where people were painting pods.

My parents kept waiting to see what purpose these pods would serve. Would people dance with them? Had someone composed a "Îf You're a Sierra Madrean when you fall asleep.

The "pods" are sleeping bag-sized leafy shells that Nope. At least, nothing my parents could tell from casual observation. Maybe the pod-painters took them home for Halloween decorations. Whatever their purpose, I think it's a charming idea. Because you know, what better way to express your Sierra Madre-ness than painting a pod for no other reason than the pure joy of it!

*Wanna' know what else was created in Sierra Madre? My novel, "A Year at Apex!" While not as thrilling as "Invasion of the Body Snatchers," "Apex" still has humor, romance, the human condition, public education, and enough sarcasm to keep you chuckling through the last page. Check out the paperback and ebook on Amazon and Barnes & Noble!

BOARD APPROVES BARGER'S INITIATIVE TO EXAMINE TREATMENT INTERVENTION FOR HOMELESS WITH MENTAL ILLNESS

LOS ANGELES COUNTY - The Board of Supervisors unanimously approved a motion by Supervi-sors Kathryn Barger and Mark Ridley-Thomas directing the Department of Mental Health to work with County Counsel and other departments to explore the county's ability to provide treatment to homeless individuals with a serious mental illness.

"Los Angeles County is facing a deepening and dynamic homelessness crisis that endangers the health and well-being of many of its residents," Supervisor Kathryn Barger said. "One of the most difficult challenges we face in combatting homelessness is assisting those on our streets living with a serious mental illness. We must exhaust every option to provide lifesaving treat-ment to this vulnerable population."

According to the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, 30 percent of those experiencing chronic homelessness in the United States have a mental illness. Data com-piled by the Stanford Justice Advocacy Project from the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation shows that more than 30 percent of California's prisoners currently receive treatment for a serious mental disorder, which is an increase of 150 percent since 2000. The intersection of mental illness, homelessness, and criminal justice is indicative of systemic ineq-uities that have gone unaddressed for decades.

"The County of Los Angeles has a responsibility to take all necessary and appropriate actions to facilitate humane medical and behavioral health interventions to halt the passive decay and neglect of our most vulnerable residents who are suffering from severe and untreated mental illness on our streets," Supervisor Mark Ridley-Thomas said. "With the Coroner reporting that two to three people are dying on our streets every day, there is an urgency to this matter. The motion put forward by Supervisor Barger and myself will ensure that the County Health De-partments are equipped to employ client-centered and evidence-based practices to improve the lives of our underserved brothers and sisters."

The motion directs the heads of the Departments of Mental Health, Public Health, and Health Services, in coordination with County Counsel and the Chief Executive Officer, to explore their authority to address treatment intervention for those who are chronically homeless and experi-encing severe and untreated mental health issues. The initiative also directs the Medical Ex-aminer-Coroner to track the number of deaths and causes of death involving homeless individ-uals, specifically those with serious mental illness and/or addiction. The departments will report back in 60 days with an assessment of state laws and case law pertaining to conservatorship hearings.

ARBOUR

Open for well over a year now I can't say it's the New Kid on the Block!! Recently I visited Arbour on South Lake Street, before the Smitty's, Del Frisco's, Crocodile Café and Paul Martin's, there was Burger Continental and The Chronicle, that was pretty much it for food faire on So Lake.

Before I get into the menu the scene is typical of any modern built from ground up restaurant, beautiful bar area, open kitchen, a nouvel feel to it. Certainly this not say that the other restaurants on Lake don't have their space looking sharp, but there is a feel to The Arbour that might make you think that you were dining in Napa if you didn't know any better, so much similar butt so much different, ready sports fans... Spoiler alert, there is no television, no Big Screen anywhere to be found at The Arbour, and I get it!! This series place with a real focus on the food, imagine that! Chef Ian was the youngest pastry chef in the US with a Michelin Star while at Patina, now those are hard to come by. I know Ian and his wife aren't going to like this, but do yourself a favor, call first and make sure he is there, it makes the night so special with the owner/ chef comes by and says hello and his charm is the signature of the restaurant. And if you hold your breath and say M-I-S-S-IS_S-P_-I , you might get him to make his signature dessert the California right at your table, looking to score points with the one you love? This a deal closer, but wait Johnny there is more we haven't even gone over the food yet.

My dad used to say pictures tell a thousand stories and I am glad this article includes the dishes that I tried. Start off with a couple of cold appetizers (appetizer: Defined as a small portion to stimulate the desire to eat) first up is the Seafood Salad, yep that is the name crab, shrimp and shellfish with parsnips and meyer lemon vinaigrette, side note if you like lemonade . Meyer lemons are the best. Next up was the Bison steak tartare, Fresno chili stamp served with puffed bread, I mentioned that just before I was born that parents lived in Germany and tartare was very common, Chef Ian of course was familiar with European eating habits, next up from the hot appetizers was the Tagliatte, crumbled pork sausage , rapini light chili flakes and san Joaquin gold cheese, from the entrees menu the Butternut Squash agnolotti, then a taste of the Sea Bass. My assessment was two thumbs up, only problem is there are dishes that I didn't get to, and so badly want to return for the Beef Chili and the Heritage Pork Chop. Amusing to me that the menu doesn't offer descriptions but what I had was so good that I can't wait for my return.

CHRISTOPHER Nyerges

SECOND EDITION OF CHRISTOPHER'S "FORAGING CALIFORNIA" NOW AVAILABLE.

[Nyerges is the author of many books, and has been teaching self-reliance classes since 1974. He can be reached at www.

One of my great loves life-long has been the study of ethno-botany, the way people have used plants for food and medicine throughout history.

My first book on the subject was published in 1978, called "Guide to Wild Foods," which is still being published, with all color photos.

About seven years ago, I began writing books for Falcon Guides, my first one being "Foraging California: Finding, Identifying, and Preparing Edible Wild Foods in Califor-nia." The book is arranged by botanical families, with my commentary on which fami-lies are nearly or entirely safe for consumption. I learned ethno-botany from Dr. Leonid Enari, who I call the greatest botanist that nobody knows! Living under light Nazi oc-cupation in his home Estonia, he saw firsthard how the effects of war cause hunger, deprivation, and death. He earned a PhD in botany and chemistry, and moved to the U.S. after the

Dr. Enari closely assisted me with my first book, and I have followed his guidance ever since in the way that I present the information about how to identify and use wild plants.

"Foraging California" includes mostly non-native plants, because these so-called weeds are routinely killed off by gardeners and farmers using weedwhackers, plows and poisons, and yet most of the common weeds are good food and medicine. Some of the "invasive" plants turn out to be some of the most nutritious plants in the world, such as lamb's quarter (poor man's quinoa, and a rich source of minerals), purslane (highest plant source of Omega 3 fatty acids), and dandelion and its many rela-tives. These are all described in "Foraging California."

The latest edition of the book includes 18 more pages, and a section on Mushroom identification, with only a few of the most common, easy-to-identify mushrooms includ-ed.

I also added more pictures of people in this second edition, mostly while processing or gathering some of the wild foods, such as the processing of acorns into an edible flour. There is a nutritional chart showing that acorns are indeed a quality food.

I include prickly pear cactus in the book, as well as a nutritional chart showing all the essential and non-essential amino acids that are contained in the pads, or nopales, of this common cactus. Often regarded as a "poor person's food," in fact, the prickly pear is a superfood!

Though "Foraging California" is primarily a book about edible plants, there are some other uses mentioned, such as medicinal uses, and plants used for soap or rope. Also, since many of the plants listed are fairly widespread, I've heard from people from other states who find the book useful there also.

As many of you might already know, I conduct field trips to show people how to identify plants in the wild, and in achetes to do this effectively. The white, edible part is at the base of the leav some cases, how to prepare them into meals. In this second edition of "Foraging California," you'll get a chance to see many of the most common plants we see on our field trips, and glimpses of how they are processed. It's fairly well-known that I like nettle, for food and tea, and that it's usually very easy to obtain a year's supply in fields or lawns where the plant is despised. I collect about 10 gallons of the nettle plant annually, and I mostly dry it for use later.

If I have any book readings and signings for this new book, I will mention it in this col-umn. Otherwise, probably the easiest way to get a copy is to ask at your favorite bookstore, or just order a copy on Amazon.

NEW ART EXHIBIT AT CITRUS COLLEGE AIMS TO INSPIRE STUDENTS

Glendora, Calif. (- An exciting new art exhibition that explores themes of inspiration and diversity held its opening reception on Sept. 11 in the Citrus College Visual Arts Building Art Gallery.

"Under the Influence," sponsored by the Citrus College Foundation, features pieces created by 21 Citrus College art instructors and includes media ranging from ceramics to digital storytelling.

According to Dyane Duffy, the Citrus College faculty member who organized the show, the goal is to inspire current Citrus College students to produce their own works of art.

"Our students hail from a variety of backgrounds, and they each have incredibly moving and unique stories to share," Ms. Duffy said. "We hope that, by displaying pieces their instructors were inspired to make, they too would come under the influence of inspiration."

Following the opening, guests attended a presentation by three of the artists in the Visual Arts Building. The featured artists discussed their work before opening the presentation to a question-and-answer

Those who were unable to attend the reception can visit the exhibit until Thursday, Oct. 3, by appointment or from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

This institution has a robust and prolific visual arts program," said Dr. Geraldine M. Perri, superintendent/president of Citrus College. "Cultural events, such as 'Under the Influence,' afford the Citrus College community the opportunity to highlight its diverse offerings and state-of-the-art facilities, and promote the creation of new art. I am excited to see how our students will be inspired by this exhibition."

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

USE ESTATE PLANNING TO AVOID ADULT GUARDIANSHIP—AND ELDER ABUSE

worst is caused by a court to care for seniors who are no longer able to care for themselves. And though you may not want to believe such a thing could happen, you need to know that without the right planning in place, even the seniors in your own family could be at risk.

In fact, there are currently 1.5 million American adults under guardianship, with an estimated 85% of them over age 65. All told, these guardians control nearly $273 billion in assets. And a 2010 report by the Government Accountability Office (GAO) found hundreds of cases where guardians were involved in the abuse, exploitation, and neglect of seniors placed under their supervision.

Exploitation disguised as protection Although most of the reported abuse was committed by family members, an increasing number of elder abuse cases involve professional guardians.

These predatory guardians search for seniors with a history of health issues, and they're often A total loss of autonomy able to obtain court-sanctioned guardianship with alarming ease. From there, they can force the elderly out of their homes and into assistedliving facilities and nursing homes. They can sell off their homes and other assets, keeping the proceeds for themselves. They can prevent them from seeing or speaking with their family members, leaving them isolated and even more vulnerable to exploitation.

What's more, though it's possible for a guardianship to be terminated by the court if it can be proven that the need for guardianship no longer exists, a study by the American Bar Association (ABA) found that such attempts typically fail. And those family members who do try to fight against court-appointed guardians frequently end up paying hefty sums of money in attorney's fees and court costs, with some even going bankrupt in the process.

An open door for potential abuse Obviously, not all professional guardians exploit the seniors (known as wards) placed under their care. But with the combination of the exploding elderly population—many of whom will require guardians—and our overloaded court system, such abuse will almost certainly A local attorney and father, Marc Garlett is on a become more common. Indeed, as the swelling aging population strains court resources, strict oversight of professional guardians is likely to become increasingly more difficult, enabling shady guardians to more easily slip through the

Facing these facts, it's critical for both seniors and their adult children to take proactive

Fortunately, there are multiple estate variety planning tools that can dramatically reduce of forms, but the chances of you, or your elderly loved ones, I think the being placed under the care of a professional worst of the guardian against your/their wishes.

by unscrupulous adult guardians appointed What's more, because any adult could face court-ordered guardianship if they become incapacitated by illness or injury, it's crucial that every person over age 18—not just seniors have planning vehicles in place to prepare for their potential incapacity.

> Should you become incapacitated and not have the proper planning vehicles in place, your family would have to petition the court in order to be granted guardianship. And it's this lack of planning that leaves you vulnerable. In most cases, the court would appoint a family member as guardian, but this isn't always the

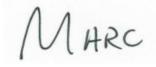

If you have no living family members, or those you do have are unwilling or unable to serve or deemed unsuitable by the court, a professional guardian would be appointed. And in certain cases, particularly when your family doesn't live close by, guardianship can be granted without your loved ones—or even you—being aware of it.

Once you've been placed under court-ordered guardianship, you essentially lose all your civil rights. Indeed, whether it's a family member or a professional, guardians have complete legal authority to control every facet of your life.

Given the extreme power guardianship affords, courts are supposed to exercise tight oversight over adult guardians, yet the reality is that only cursory supervision is provided. What's more, courts often don't even keep complete records of guardianship cases, and those that do typically keep those records sealed from public view.

With no real system in place to prevent abuse by professional guardians, it's up to you to protect yourself and your elderly parents through proactive estate planning.

WHO NEEDS TO SEE A GERIATRICIAN?

Dear Savvy Senior:

What can you tell me about geriatrics doctors? My father, who's 82, takes eight different prescription drugs for different health issues but hasn't been feeling himself lately. I'm wondering if he would benefit by seeing a geriatrician in place of his regular primary care physician. Concerned Daughter

Dear Concerned:

If your dad is dealing with a variety of health problems and is taking multiple medications, a visit to a geriatrician may be just the antidote to help get him back on track. Here's a rundown of the different types of health conditions geriatricians treat and some tips to help you locate one in his

Geriatrics Doctors

For starters, it's important to know that geriatricians are family practice or internal medicine physicians that have had additional specialized training to manage the unique and, oftentimes multiple health concerns of older adults. Just as a pediatrician specializes in caring for children, a geriatrician is trained to provide care for seniors, usually over age 75.

While most doctors, and even general practitioners, are trained to focus on a person's particular illness or disease, geriatricians are trained to look at all aspects that can affect elderly patients - not just the physical symptoms. They also often work with a team of other health care professionals like geriatric-trained nurses, rehabilitation therapists, nutritionists, social workers and psychiatrists to provide care. And, they will coordinate treatments among a patient's specialists.

Patients who can benefit from seeing a geriatrician are elderly seniors with multiple health and age-related problems such as cardiovascular disease, stroke, confusion and memory problems, Parkinson's and Alzheimer's disease, diabetes, hypertension, depression, respiratory problems, osteoporosis, arthritis, chronic pain, mobility issues, incontinence, vision and hearing impairment, and trouble with balance and falls.

Geriatricians are also particularly adept at tackling medication problems. Because many seniors, like your dad, take multiple medications at the same time for various health conditions, and because aging bodies often absorb and metabolize drugs differently than younger adults, unique side effects and drug interactions are not uncommon. A geriatrician will evaluate and monitor you dad's medications to be sure they are not affecting him in a harmful way.

Geriatricians can also help their patients and families determine their long-term care needs, like how long they can remain in their own homes safely without assistance, and what type of services may be necessary when they do need some extra help.

But not all seniors need to see a geriatrician. Seniors who have fewer health problems are just fine seeing their primary care physician.

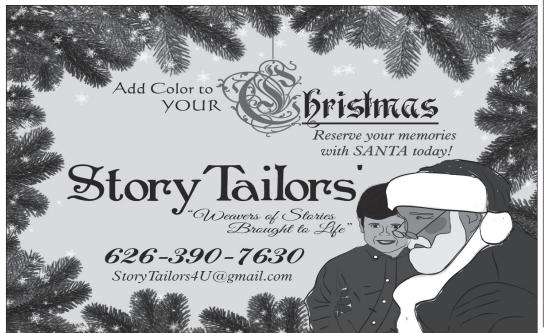

Find a Geriatrician

Unfortunately, there's a shortage of geriatricians in the U.S., so depending on where you live, finding one may be challenging.

To locate one in your area, use Medicare's online physician search tool. Just go to Medicare.gov/ physician compare and type in your ZIP code, or city and state in the Enter your location box, and then type in geriatric medicine in the Search box. Or, you can also get this information by calling Medicare at 800-633-4227. The American Geriatrics Society also has a geriatrician-finder tool on their website at Healthin Aging.org.

Keep in mind, though, that locating a geriatrician doesn't guarantee your dad will be accepted as a patient. Many doctors already have a full patient roster and don't accept any new patients. You'll need to call the individual doctor's office to find out.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit Savvy Senior. org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

IT WAS A BELLY BINGE KIND OF DAY

It's not often that a day goes my enough of this "fruit." way. Occasionally, I have a day that focuses on my desires and me.

It was a Monday evening right after supper and the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage and I were watching TV.

"Oh," my wife said, "by the way, the girls and I are going to go thrift store shopping all day tomor-row." At first, I was a little stunned. I wasn't quite sure why she was telling me this. It's not like she needs my permission to go thrift store shopping as long as she doesn't take my truck. But, being the veter-an husband I am, I did not ask any questions. I have found that after a long marriage as I have had, that when you ask a question you will get an answer. Most of the time, the answer is not what you really want to hear. So, I keep my questions to the very minimum to say the least. And usually, I do say the least.

The next morning as we were finishing breakfast my wife said, "The girls and I will be going thrift store shopping today and therefore you are on your own."

That kind of news is the kind of news that I want to hear. I will be on my own? What better day can "You will have to get your own lunch," she said. "The girls and I will have lunch together."

I almost said, but I didn't, "What did you say?" But I knew if I did I would get an expansive answer which would take time and I did not want to waste any

Trying to hold back a smile I said, "That's all right. I'm sure I can take care of my lunch."

With that, she joined the girls and they went off on their thrift store shopping spree.

I had to sit down a little bit and try to catch my breath. Here I was, with the whole day before me to do as I please. Believe me, those days do not come often enough, at least for me.

As excited as I was about the day, I had to sit back and prepare my own To-Do-List. I got that from my wife. I wanted to put down everything that I could do today.

After finishing my list, I looked it over and then a thought captured my imagination.

What about eating? Did my wife say that I had to take care of my own lunch? Yes, she did! So now, my focus was on what should I eat today?

Believe me when I say I was going to take this very seriously. I could choose whatever I wanted to eat. Of course, at the top of the list was my favorite, Dr. James L. Snyder, pastor of the Family of God Apple Fritters. As far as I'm concerned, I can't have FellowshipParsonage in Ocala, FL.

Without wasting any more time, I got to the neighborhood Publix to do some shopping. I was going to buy everything that I liked and nobody was going to stop me.

There was one major item missing in my shopping cart. That nasty word starting with the letter V. My whole day was going to be spent without eating any vegetables whatsoever. I was so excited.

Looking at the cart as I went through the cashier made me hungrier than I've ever been before.

On the way home, and this was before lunch, I stopped at McDonald's and bought a hot fudge sundae. All this shopping made me hungry, so I thought it would make me happy. And boy, did that sundae make me happy.

All the way home I was singing, "I did it my way." I was gloriously out of tune, but it certainly made me happy to sing it.

I got home and started my belly-binge day. I didn't even go to the office, I spent all my time munching on this delicacy and crunching on that delicacy and just enjoying myself.

Then a thought hit me. If I want to stay out of trouble, and I do, I better make sure I eat all these recently purchased groceries. If my wife finds out, I may be in trouble.

That was the excuse I used to completely demolish all the food I had just purchased.

As I was crunching the last bite of my belly-binge delicacies, I begin to realize that I was stuffed. I've never eaten so much in my life. I cleaned up the table and the kitchen and threw away all the evidence and slowly walked to my chair to rest.

Sitting in the chair, I began to realize how stuffed I really was. I leaned back, however, smiled as wide as I could smile and congratulated myself for taking so good care of myself.

I must have dozed for a moment because the next thing I knew my wife came into the house, the thrift store shopping day was over.

"I didn't know if you had enough to eat today," she said with a big smile on her face, "so I brought you a sub for supper." I thought of a Scripture, "Go thy way, eat thy bread with joy, and drink thy wine with a merry heart; for God now accepteth thy works" (Ecclesiastes 9:7). Nothing nourishes me more than serving God.

When serving God he will take care of all my nour-ishment.

STUART TOLCHIN

Even if you don't believe in miracles life is still pretty much of a miracle. I usually don't think much about this as I'm generally focused on the environmental, political, public safety, and potential further nuclear mishaps facing us today. A few weeks ago, after my grandchild's miraculous birth to her 45 year old mother, I attended the bat mitzvah of my

MIRACLES

When my wife and I arrived we were stopped from entering the Temple by a guard armed with a very large firearm. He asked why we were at the Temple and to identify the honoree. Later it was explained to me that this armed protectorship was now a standard precaution at identifiable Jewish events.

There were two events scheduled. A morning service and later a party mainly for the celebrant and her friends. My preconception was that the service would be very serious and would contain readings and prayers in Hebrew. I was correct about the service during which my wife, son, and I were invited to participate in the ceremony by being called to the altar and instructed to place the Torah Scroll back into the ark. With some anxiety we followed the Rabbi's lead then returned to our seats to listen to the speech of my thirteen year old great niece. She spoke rapidly and softly both in Hebrew and in English. Unfortunately I did not understand a word. I do not know any Hebrew and my hearing is so bad that I couldn't understand the English. Her speech was very well-received and I very much wanted to know what was said. A few days later I obtained a copy of the English part of the speech and it was well worth the trouble. The speech focused on the Commandments and struggled with an understanding of why God allowed humans to experience so many unpleasant feelings. Why when there was really no earthly reason for her to have negative feelings did she experience jealousy, anger, and dislike of other people? Why didn't God, who controlled everything, not allow her to accept herself and other people just as they are. She determined that God was teaching her a lesson by asking her to focus on the good (God) in everyone and everything. That God wanted her to see Him in the movement of the clouds in her sister's laugh, in the movement of pets, in everything. She said that she felt strange about having so many toys when she understood that there were other kids of her age who had no toys. She created a project wherein she and some of her friends collected a whole bunch of the toys that they'd outgrown and attempted to present these toys as a gift to a shelter that they located. Sadly, the toys could not be accepted because of the expense associated with properly sterilizing them. This didn't stop her. She learned from the family's Housekeeper that toys could be put to use in Guatemala and the toys were donated to a project which would result in there being given to kids in Central America. I was inspired when I read this speech but upon reflection it should not have surprised me.

At the evening celebration there was wild continuous dancing accompanied by loud music. This family and their guests seemed to really know how to have a good time. I held back and observed until a woman about my age and half my size took my hand and brought me out to join the dancers. This woman was the paternal grandmother of the speech maker and when I tried to tell her who I was she told me kind of gaily that she didn't know who I was or anyone was or even where she was. She said that we should just listen to the music and keep dancing and have a good time while we still could. Later I learned from my sister that her mother-in-law was afflicted with dementia and often didn't recognize her own family. Nevertheless, that didn't stop her from leading a pretty full and active Life I guess can be seen as a continual overcoming of obstacles. I believe this was the actual theme of the speech given by my grand niece: make a room safe for celebration but celebrate anyway. She told us that God wanted us to see the good in everything and that life is about meeting this continual challenge. Sometimes its even necessary to hire armed guards. Sometimes I worry that I lack religious faith but the miracle is that others have more than enough faith to go around. Really if we, and our future generations all survive for a while it really will be a Miracle.
