SIERRA MADRE CERT SURPASSES 200TH MEMBER

The Sierra Madre Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) graduated its 2019 class last Saturday, and surpassed its 200th member thanks to an overwhelming response after the July 4th and 5th earthquakes. The week-long training is a 25 hour FEMA certified course on disaster preparedness. The classes are designed to ensure residents have the basic skills to act safely while assisting themselves, their families, and neighbors during a major disaster. CERT members may also volunteer to assist the fire department when resources are stretched

Over 60 people were involved in the final day's exercise, including 15 Sierra Madre CERT mem-bers, overseen by CERT President Amber Moyers. Six firefighters and paramedics from the Sier-ra Madre Fire Department, under the direction of Captain Brent Bartlett, provided expert train-ing in cribbing and fire

Carolyn Simon provided the moulage (makeup) services for the 20 Sierra Madre Middle School's Service Club "victims," who suffered from an assortment of cuts and bruises, burns, arterial bleeds, broken bones, and head wounds. The realisticlooking wounds help the trainees assess what appear to be actual injuries. The Sierra Madre Drone Association documented the disaster exercises from overhead.

CERT would like to thank the City of Sierra Madre and Gabriel Engeland, City Manager, for supporting CERT and allowing the use of the Emergency Operations Center for the training, and the city council chambers for the search and rescue operations.

The training was provided by a group of five volunteers: Derrick Carter, Paul Dutton, Joel Gay, Jon Hainer, and Lead Trainer Deb Halberstadt, a volunteer with the Los Angeles Sheriff's Department. The graduates, after their final training exercise and a written test, were awarded FE-MA certificates by President Moyers and Lead Trainer Halberstadt. As part of their training, graduates receive a CERT backpack with their personal protection equipment.

Sierra Madre CERT is funded entirely by donations and grants. Backpacks and training supplies were provided by a special grant from the Sierra Madre Volunteer Firefighter's Association, who presented CERT with a $2000 check at Tuesday's City Council Meeting. Additional funding this year has come from the J Chadwick Co in Monrovia, Sierra Madre Civic Club, Sierra Madre Ro-tary Club, Wayne Williams of Professional Advisory Services in Arcadia, Athens Services, and Sierra Madre Woman's Club. CERT also holds a fundraiser each year selling

SIERRA MADRE MIDDLE SCHOOL AVOIDS CLOSURE

Parents, students, teachers, and many keeping all four high schools open. community members patiently waited for their turn at the podium to voice their displeasure to the Pasadena Unified School District Board and District as they prepared to vote to possibly close more

It was a standing-room-only event, and public comment alone lasted close to two hours. Prior to entering the PUSD Elbie J. Hickambottom Board Room, Board Members were met outside by protestors who completed their march from Pasadena City Town Hall late in the

This meeting was greatly anticipated after two Town Hall events were attended by hundreds of concerned supporters of Pasadena Schools who heard the name of their school brought up in a list of seven options proposed by a Subcommittee to be presented to the Board.

Attendees represented Marshall, Washington, Wilson, McKinley, Sierra Madre, Pasadena High, Muir, Blair, Franklin, and Eliot. All spoke from the heart with the same message. Don't close our school.

When the smoke cleared at around 9:45 p.m., after much discussion, the School Board, led by President Lawrence Torres, passed two resolutions. The first was Resolution 2530, keeping open all four area high schools, Marshall Fundamental School, Pasadena High School, Blair High School and John Muir High School. The vote passed 5-1 with Board Member Patrick Cahalan voting no, and Kimberly Kenne abstaining.

The second was Resolution 2536 keeping three stand-alone middle schools open, Eliot Arts Magnet Academy, Washington STEAM Multilingual Academy, and Sierra Madre Middle School. In addition, Blair School grades 6-12, Marshall Fundamental School grades 6-12, and McKinley School grades 6-8 will also remain open. But, Wilson Middle School, which has faced dwindling attendance numbers over the last few years, will close. The final vote was 4-3 with Board Members Michelle Bailey, Patrick Cahalan, and Kimberly Kenne voting no.

Board Member Bailey requested the Board look into combining Willard Elementary School with Wilson Middle School, which they were not prepared to discuss at this time. Board Members Kenne and Cahalan voiced concerns over boundaries. Cahalan cited that the closest available school to Wilson, is Eliot, which is seven miles away.

President Torres hopes that decisions made tonight will prove to be positive moves that help shape a brighter future for PUSD, children, parents and educators. "What we are attempting to do is give you our best educated guess," he said. "But, the best guess of the path

So the long road ahead begins as Wilson Middle School parents and staff will have to decide on a destination for their next school year, as School Board members vow to make this as smooth as a transition as possible for all.

> Sierra Madre CERT got its start in 2009 under the guidance of Caroline Brown, Gary Hood, and Mike Kinney. CERT's purpose is to educate citizens for emergency preparedness and to assist the City of Sierra Madre when called out by the Sierra Madre Fire Department. Over the last five years, CERT's roll in the city has been evolving as the fire department moves to full time staffing and no longer has 40 volunteers at its disposal. It is critical that residents continue to get trained and learn how to prepare themselves ahead of time, and take care of themselves in the initial hours and days after a major disaster. As part of educating Sierra Madre in disaster preparedness, CERT distributes informative material at numerous city events. For information out CERT, their monthly meetings, or the next Sierra Madre CERT training in 2020, check their website at www. sierramadreemergency.org or send an email to info@sierramadrecert.org.

After numerous presentations from the community and elected officials and a reception thanking Former Mayor and Councilwoman Denise Delmar for her years of dedication and service to the city, on Tuesday, the remaining councilmembers called the city council meeting back to order and, among other things on the agenda, discussed in great detail what the process should be for filling the seat vacated by Delmar.

The council basically has sixty days to determine whether or not they will appoint someone to fill the unexpired portion of her term. Options include holding a special election in March, 2020 or having the seat filled on the General Election Ballot in November, 2020.

Council decided to direct staff to amend the existing code as it relates to filling vacancies to allow the council more flexibility in the selection process. The discussion will continue at the next council meeting.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE - The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"Each year the Great Pumpkin rises out of the pumpkin patch that he thinks is the most sincere. He's gotta pick this one. He's got to. I don't see how a pumpkin patch can be more sincere than this one. You can look around and there's not a sign of hypocrisy. Nothing but sincerity as far as the eye can see." Charles Schulz – Peanuts!

"Fall Bucket List: bake pies, have a S'Mores campfire, visit a pumpkin patch, make leaf art, pick apples, make (and eat!) caramel apples, go trick or treating, drink hot apple cider, make fall cookies, carve a pumpkin, admire fall colors... red, brown, yellow, orange...rejoice in the loveliest season... "Autumn is a second Spring, when every leaf is a flower." Albert Camus

"Vegetables are a must on any diet. I suggest carrot cake, zucchini bread and pumpkin pie

We love fall...all the fall stuff is out and it's looked like Halloween at my house since before September. Why wait when you know it's what you want to see all over the house.

As we've already advocated vegetables on our fall diet, why not try these pumpkin cookies. They are easy to make, you can refrigerate the dough and make just a few at a time, they're delicious, and you can justify eating them as they are loaded with good things...cranberries, oats, walnuts or pecans,

Giant Pumpkin Cookies

3-1/2 cups all purpose flour 2-1/3 cups old fashioned oats

1-3/4 tsp. baking soda

1-1/2 tsp. salt 2 tsp. cinnamon (generous)

½ tsp. nutmeg

¼ tsp. ground cloves

Combine all the above together in a big bowl. Now use your electric mixer to blend the following and then gradually add the flour mixture.

3-1/2 sticks butter, softened

1-3/4 cups white sugar

1-3/4 cups packed brown sugar

1 (15 oz) can Libby's 100% pure pumpkin (not pumpkin pie mix)

2 large eggs

1-3/4 tsp. vanilla extract

Stir in as many pecans, walnuts, dried cranberries, raisins as you'd like to have.

This dough is happier and makes better cookies for you if you chill it and then bake.

Drop 1/4 cup dough onto greased baking sheet.... Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 14 to 16 minutes or until firm and lightly browned. Cool.... Enjoy!!

Give some to anyone who looks like they need a cookie. This will be most of the people you know. Watch for scarecrows! They are appearing all over

Just for fun, here's a scary excerpt from one of the Emma Gainsworth Adventures:

"Emma Gainsworth walked into a cobweb one cool October day on her way to the pumpkin patch. Actually, she didn't just walk into a cobweb, the cobweb reached out and embraced Emma, cocooned Emma, captured Emma and something spidery began slowly sliding down the silken strand that led to Emma's struggling self. All eight of its eyes were zeroed in on her struggling form. Eight hairy legs slowly slid toward her, trembling in anticipation of the tasty morsel just inches away. If it had lips, the spider would have licked them. Drat! She whispered, trying to move her head enough to see just exactly who ... or what, had captured her."

Proving that you never know what exactly you'll find in a pumpkin patch!

FLIGHT OF REX

Think this is the third "pet" story I've done this month. Sorry. But I didn't think my parents' recently acquired caterpillar would emerge as a butterfly so soon. We expected him to hang around in his chrysalis till spring.

Here's a quick recap. My mom bought a dill plant at the farmer's market, not knowing a caterpillar was hitching a ride. She named him Rex, and he grew to the size of a stubby cigarette before shedding his skin, revealing a light chartreuse chrysalis underneath. Since it's so late in the season, according to my dad's research, we thought he'd wait out the winter with us.

Nope. My dad returned one day to find a butterfly limply fluttering around their office. Newly hatched butterflies need sunlight in order to develop properly, my dad also read, so he carefully transported Rex outside to a sunny spot in one of their planters. Mind you, my mom and I were absent for all this. Right before I showed up, I noticed some cryptic text from Dad about Rex. Turns out he was texting from church (shame!), which explained the misspellings and unorthodox grammar. When I got to their house, they were both hunched over the planter, looking for Rex. But he was gone. My mom was a little miffed my dad hadn't waited until she was back before releasing him. She had been the one to go buy him more dill after he decimated the plant he arrived on, after all. But you have to weigh that against the benefits of sunlight on wing development, etc. In the end, letting him go when my dad did was the right decision. My dad was able to get a fairly clear picture of him before helping Rex outside. Our pudgy caterpillar friend turned into a beautiful black and gold butterfly with iridescent blue accents. He sure didn't look anything like that when he was chomping on dill weed.

I must confess to a mean practical joke. I was at the sink looking outside while my parents were still going on about whether Rex could've been detained until we'd gotten home to see him in "person."

"Hey, look!" I said, pointing outside, succumbing to temptation. "I think that's him!" "What? Really? Where?" my mom rushed over.

"Just kidding." I know, not nice.

Later our neighbor claimed she saw him with another of his kind in her garden. I don't think this variety of swallowtails are native to the area, so I kind of doubt it. But it makes for a nice ending.

All I can say is it's a good thing for Rex that it was Mom who bought the plant he was attached to. I'm sure not everyone would've gone through all the trouble for a bug in their dill weed.

Pasadena Public Health Seeks Anyone Who Had Contact With Rabid Bat

Pasadena Public Health Department (PPHD) seeks help from the community in locating anyone who may have touched or had contact with a bat found outdoors on the ground near State Street and South Fair Oaks Avenue on Oct. 15 at approximately 3:30 p.m. The bat has tested positive for rabies and it is uncertain whether there could have been individuals in direct contact with it.

Any contact whatsoever with a rabid bat is a very serious health concern. Rabies is often a fatal disease and requires timely preventive medical treatment. While the length of time between exposure to rabies and onset of rabies illness is usually three to eight weeks, in some persons it can be considerably longer. Individuals who touched or may have had contact with this bat should seek medical treatment from their physician immediately.

"Although there has been only one bat that tested positive for rabies so far this year in Pasadena, there is the potential for additional rabid bats in the area. In LA County, the only animals known to routinely carry rabies are bats. On average, 35 rabid bats (15-20% of bats tested) are detected in LA County each year. Since rabies can be fatal and it's often not possible to determine visually if an animal has rabies, any contact with bats and other wild animals should be avoided. A scratch from a tooth or bite from a rabid animal could cause rabies infection in people or other animals. Wash the wound area immediately with soap and water and seek medical care," states Dr. Ying-Ying Goh, Pasadena Public Health Director.

If you see a dead or dying bat on the ground, do not handle it. Please contact your to collect the bat for rabies testing. Report any potential bat bites involving people to the Pasadena Public Health Department at (626) 744-6089. For more information on rabies, please visit www. CDC.gov.

City Issues Red Flag Alert and Parking Restrictions

Pasadena Fire Chief Bertral Washington has directed the activation of Red Flag Parking Restrictions within the City of Pasadena. The alert went into effect at 8:00 a.m. yesterday and will be in effect until further notice Washington said.

A Red Flag warning means that critical fire weather conditions are expected. This in combination with dry fuels could create extreme fire danger and/ or fire behavior. In order to allow for improved Fire Department access and resident evacuation, parking is restricted on posted narrow and/or winding roads within Pasadena's urban-wildland interface areas. Extra fire patrols have been added to our Foothill Streets where parking is restricted on Red Flag days are posted with appropriate "No Parking" signs. If signs are not posted, that street is not affected. Red Flag restricted parking is treated in a manner equivalent to a Fire Lane. Vehicles parked in restricted areas could be ticketed and or towed.

Additional information, including the complete list of streets with restricted parking, may be found at: cityofpasadena.net/fire/redflag-parking-restrictions.

DOROTHY DENNE HONORED AT ARCADIA POLICE FOUNDATION EVENT FUNDS RAISED FOR ARCADIA POLICE DEPARTMENT K-9 PROGRAM

The Arcadia Police Foundation honored longtime volunteer Dorothy Denne at their second annual Halloween Hoopla, held on October 19 at the Arcadia Community Center. Dorothy's warmth, wit and no-nonsense attitude has endeared her to the many Arcadia Police Department officers with whom she has worked over the years. Dorothy ran the PACE office at the Santa Anita Mall, spent many years in community relations, and, since 2015, she has spearheaded efforts to bring the K-9 Program back

Dorothy's insight, knowledge and extensive experience working in the community was key to raising the money needed to bringing the police 9 program back to Arcadia and purchasing K-9 Officers, including all their equipment, training and care.

"We absolutely could not have done it without Dorothy." Said TG Metzger, APF President and Founding Board Member.

A highlight of the evening was the presentation of a $30,000 check by Lily Liu of Grand Funding Group. The donation will help the APF purchase an additional K-9 Officer for the APD. The new dog will be trained in narcotics detection and apprehension, complementing K-9 Officer Kota's skills in explosives detection and apprehension.

"We are so grateful to all of those who attended our event, and all who support the APF mission." said Sue Cook, APF Event Chair.

Summary FAQs:

WHY DOES THE CITY NEED TO INCREASE REVENUE?

The City is facing increases in operating costs, unfunded pension liabilities, infrastructure and technology. The City has been fiscally conservative with salaries, benefits and a low number of staff positions relative to other cities. Even with these steps South Pasadena's General Fund is facing a deficit of about $1 million a year that is expected to grow to $2 million a year in 5 years.

WHAT HAS THE CITY DONE TO CONTROL EXPENSES SO FAR?

South Pasadena offers the lowest possible pension formula (2% at 55) which has kept the City's costs lower when compared to cities that pay 2.5%, 2.7% or even 3.0% at 50. The City also controls its pension costs by controlling the number of employees. In the last five years, the city has increased the number of full-time staff by only three positions. South Pasadena has roughly .5 employees per 1,000 residents. In comparison, cities with larger budgets, such as Pasadena, have 1.3 employees per thousand residents, or more than twice the ratio of South Pasadena. The scope and scale of South Pasadena's government has remained focused and efficient within the available budget.

IF SOUTH PASADENA DOES NOT PUT A SALES TAX MEASURE ON THE BALLOT, WILL THE CITY'S SALES TAX INCREASE IN THE FUTURE?

The State has a sales tax cap of 10.25%. If South Pasadena voters approve the proposed measure, local sales tax will reach that cap. However, if voters do not pass a measure and South Pasadena's sales tax rate remains less than 10.25%, then any other sales tax adopted by County voters could be assessed on South Pasadena. Funds assessed for County projects would not be dedicated to South Pasadena services.

WHAT OTHER REVENUE OPTIONS IS THE CITY CONSIDERING?

The City Council recently adopted a Financial Sustainability Plan that calls for several short- and long-term revenue options and strategies. The sales tax was identified as a priority because of the urgent need to close the budget deficit and the fact that the sales tax is paid by out of town visitors as well as residents. Other revenue options include economic development and the reuse of City properties that are not currently generating revenue. However, these recommendations would not cover the entire deficit and may take years to develop.

WHAT IS THE CURRENT BREAKDOWN OF SOUTH PASADENA'S SALES TAX?

The current sales tax in South Pasadena is 9.5%, of which South Pasadena gets 1%. The remainder goes to the State, County, and regional agencies. Of the millions locally generated every year in South Pasadena, only $2 million returns locally. Every cent of the 3/4 cent sales tax proposed by the local sales tax measure would stay in South Pasadena to provide essential services. Summary FAQs:

PORTANTINO COMPREHENSIVE SAFE GUN STORAGE BILL SIGNED BY STATE GOVERNOR

measure authored by State Senator Anthony J. Portantino signed into law last week by Governor Gavin Newsom this year. SB 172 enacts a slate of significant provisions related to firearms storage by broadening criminal storage crimes, adding criminal storage offenses to those offenses that can trigger a 10-year firearm ban, and creating an exemption to firearm loan requirements for the purposes of preventing suicide. In addition, SB 172 resolves the problem of unsafe gun storage in residential care facilities. It also builds on the legacy of Senator Portantino's predecessor Jack Scott, who championed safe gun storage issues while in the Legislature.

The vast majority of accidental firearm death, suicide and senseless acts of violence amongst children are associated with easy access to firearms. Additionally, unsafe storage puts guns in the wrong hands and far too often leads to potentially deadly situations. A recent shooting in a Sacramento senior care facility highlighted the need to enact sensible rules regarding our senior population and the facilities they enter after leaving their homes for retirement and care.

"Children are far too often put in jeopardy when they are in homes that practice unsafe gun storage and our growing senior population is generating gun safety issues as it transitions into group care. These situations have created an urgent situation where all aspects of residential storage need stronger and contemporary regulations. Both younger and older residents need to be protected from inadvertent gun violence and I am very SB 172 became the third important gun safety pleased that this needed and common-sense effort is now law," commented Senator Portantino.

> Improper storage of firearms in the home are killing our youth and additionally pose serious risk to approximately 200,000 residents of California's 7,300 assisted living facilities. Assisted living facilities are allowed by the state to accept and retain firearms, along with accepting many residents having mild to severe cognitive impairment due to Alzheimer's or other related dementias. Characteristics of the cognitively impaired include paranoia, confusion, and anger. Having unsecured firearms in proximity to dementia residents is a dangerous risk. With 70% of assisted living residents having some level of dementia, firearms pose significant risk for everyone in the assisted living setting, so this bill proactively prevents a tragedy.

The Senator is proud to continue championing sensible gun reforms. SB 172 finishes another strong year for Senator Portantino in this regard. This session, the Senator had already had the governor sign SB 61 to cap the sale of semiautomatic, center-fire rifles to one a month and ban the sale of them to those under 21 and SB 376 which redefined the definition of infrequent in dealing with gun sales. In his career, the Senator has also banned open carry in California as well as raise the purchasing age on long guns to 21.

SB 172 bill is supported by the Bay Area Student Activists, Consumer Advocates for RCFE Reform, the County of Los Angeles, Drain the NRA, and Elder Law and Advocacy.

LIFETIME ASSET PROTECTION TRUSTS: AIRTIGHT ASSET PROTECTION FOR YOUR CHILD'S INHERITANCE—PART 1

As a parent, you're likely hoping to leave your children an inheritance. But without taking the proper precautions, the wealth you pass on is at serious risk of being accidentally lost or squandered. In some instances, an inheritance can even wind up doing your kids more harm than good.

Creating a will or a revocable living trust offers some protection, but in most cases, you'll be through vour will or trust to your children at specific

If you've created estate planning documents, check to see if this is how your will or trust leaves assets to your children. If so, you may not have been told about another option that can give your children access, control, and airtight asset protection for whatever assets they inherit from you.

A Lifetime Asset Protection Trust safeguards the inheritance from being lost to common life events, such as divorce, serious illness, lawsuits, or even bankruptcy.

But that's not all they do.

Indeed, the best part of these trusts is that they offer you—and your kids—the best of both worlds: airtight asset protection AND use and control of the inheritance. What's more, you can even use the trust to incentivize your children to invest and grow their inheritance.

Not all trusts are created equal

Most lawyers will advise you to put the assets you're leaving your kids in a revocable living trust-and this is the right move. But most lawyers would structure the trust to distribute those assets outright to your children at certain ages or stages.

And if you've used an online do-it-yourself will or trust-preparation service like LegalZoom®, Rocket Lawyer,* or any of the newer options frequently coming online now, you will most likely be offered only two options: outright distribution of the entire inheritance to your kids when you die, or partial distributions when they reach specific ages and stages as described above.

Either of those options leaves their inheritance—and your hard-earned and well-saved money—at risk. Indeed, once assets pass into your child's name, all the protection previously offered by your trust disappears.

For example, say your son racked up debt while in college, which can sometimes happen. If he were to receive one-third of his inheritance at age 25, creditors could take his inheritance if it's paid to him in an outright distribution.

The same thing would be true if your daughter gets a divorce after receiving her inheritance, only it would be her soon-to-be ex-spouse who would claim a right to the funds in a divorce settlement. And despite what you may have heard about an inheritance remaining separate property, once it's in your child's hands, outright and unprotected, those assets are at risk.

There's just no way to foresee what the future has in store for your kids-these kind of events happen to families every day. And that's not even taking into consideration that your kids might simply blow through the money and spend it all on unnecessary luxuries.

Airtight asset protection—and easy access

Lifetime Asset Protection Trusts are specifically designed to prevent your hardearned assets from being wiped out by such risks. And at the same time, your children will still be able to use and invest the funds held in trust as needed.

For example, even though the assets are held in trust, your kids would be able to invest those funds in things like stocks, a business, or real estate, provided they do so in the name of the trust. Plus, if your child needs to pull money out to pay for college, a new home, or medical bills, they can do that by asking a Trustee—who's chosen by you to oversee the money—for a distribution.

Or, as will cover next week, you may even allow your child to become Sole Trustee at some point in the future, allowing him or her to make decisions about the trust's management.

MONROVIA UNIFIED INAUGURAL STATE OF THE SCHOOLS ADDRESS REVEALS PLAN FOR STUDENT SUPPORT, SUCCESS

MONROVIA - Monrovia Unified School District Board of Education gave an in-depth overview of the District's mission, teacher and staff support, nurturing at the elementary level, middle school instruction, and preparation of students for college and careers to an audience of nearly 200 community members at its 2019-20 State of the Schools Address on Oct. 16.

Joining Board President Ed Gililland, Board Vice President Rob Hammond, Board Clerk Bryan Wong, and Board Members Maritza Travanti and Selene Lockerbie were Monrovia Mayor Tom Adams, Mayor Pro Tem Larry J. Spicer, Treasurer Steve Baker, U.S. Rep. Judy Chu representative Lauren Jacobs, state Sen. Anthony Portantino representative Kristi Lopez, Assemblyman Chris Holden field representative Hector Rodriguez, Assemblywoman Blanca E. Rubio field representative Taylor Valmores, Los Angeles County Supervisor Kathryn Barger Assistant Field Deputy Vicky Paul, and Citrus College Trustee Joanne Montgomery.

Additionally, students representing each school kicked off the event by leading the audience in the Pledge of Allegiance, followed by the National Anthem.

The District's mission - to provide world-class schools for world-class students - was emphasized throughout the event while Board of Education members highlighted the many community partnerships, programs, and enrichment opportunities that support student academic success

Such programs include Dual-Language Immersion in Spanish and Mandarin, a strong coding and robotics curriculum, music, vocal instruction, dance, and career technical education courses.

"Monrovia Unified supports its students as they journey along their paths to the future," Board President Ed Gililland said. "We strive to provide a world-class education at all levels of instruction and ensure our young Monrovians are eminently prepared for life after graduation.'

During the event, 2019 Teacher of the Year Jennifer Maljian spoke about how fortunate she feels to work in a District where she is continually supported by her colleagues and challenged to grow in her

"Teaching is not just a job, but a special gift," Maljian said. "It is a gift I am given each year to work with students and have my life changed for the better while helping children change theirs."

Emphasizing student success, two outstanding graduates who exemplify Monrovia Unified's mission were recognized.

Class of 2017 graduate Jenna Seright began special education inclusion events at Monrovia High and founded Jenna's Pies, a venture raising funds for Monrovia High scholarships. Seright studies behavioral psychology at Azusa Pacific University.

Class of 2018 graduate Rebecca De La O has started an educational presentation to assist seniors in their transition to college. Her presentation, "What to expect your first year of college," includes friends from her graduating class who join her in presenting to Monrovia High seniors. De La O studies business economics at UCLA.

Ending the State of the Schools Address, Monrovia Unified premiered a District showcase video, which gave an in-depth look to student academic success and culture across the District.

"Our team of educators serves as mentors, passing to the next generation a wealth of knowledge from which our students will craft their future with opportunities and obstacles we can only imagine," Superintendent Dr. Katherine Thorossian said. "I am grateful to the extraordinary members of the MUSD team who not only contributed to the evening's program, but work tirelessly every day on behalf of the children of Monrovia. It is their expertise and commitment that fuel our programs and inspire our

"HIDING OUT IN A SMALL TOWN"

[Nyerges is the author of "Extreme Simplicity: Homesteading in the City," "Self-Sufficient Home," "How to Survive Anywhere," and other books. He can be reached at www.SchoolofSelf-

During the days leading up to Y2K, when irrational panic overtook otherwise calm people, I received a phone call from a man who spoke to me in a choppy, breathy tone.

"Christopher, can you help me?" he asked. "I need someone to help me survive Y2K." I didn't know the man and had never met him. It was the first time we'd ever talked.

The man told me that he was afraid of the impending doom, civil unrest, and the loss of everything he's worked for. He wanted to know if I could help him dig a hole in the desert.

"Excuse me?" I asked, waiting for the punchline. "Why would you dig a hole in the desert?"

"I'd live there," he told me, matter of factly. The man sincerely believed that digging a hole in the desert and hiding out in some remote desert locale would be his passport to survival.

I knew that I would not be digging a hole with him in the desert, and I asked him, "Have you ever camped out at night? Ever slept in the outdoors, ever?"

"No," he told me.

"So, what makes you think you would enjoy living in a hole."

He told me that he wasn't sure he would enjoy it, but that he was certain he would survive better in a hole in the desert than he would in urban San Diego when western civilization began to collapse with Y2K. In our conversation, I learned he was affluent, ran a business, and felt that he had a lot to lose as society collapsed. He also told me that he didn't know any of his neighbors, and he regarded them more with fear than with friendship.

I suggested that the man get to know his neighbors. Join some social group, or start participating in Neighborhood Watches. Get to know his actual neighbors and begin to interact with them. But he told me that he didn't really have time for that.

"You want to dig a hole in the desert, but you don't have time to get to know your actual neighbors?" I asked, waiting for his response. He was quiet, thinking about it.

"Here's what I also suggest," I told him. "Take a trip. Go to the desert if you want, but drive through some of the rural towns in California, and maybe Arizona, and Nevada, and Utah. Get to know the world beyond your little world. Stop places and have lunch in little cafes. Talk to people. Go shopping in little stores, and talk to people. See what makes an impression on you. If Y2K spelled the death of western civilization, little towns take care of themselves better because that's what they do all the time."

The man made a few comments and said, "Yeah, I like that idea. I might try that. I think it would be good to disappear into a small town."

It was clear that he believed he could live in a small town and no one would know him.

"Oh, that's not going to happen," I told him. "No one knows you now because you live in a big city. That's how it is in the big city. People don't know each other because they want it that way, or because it's just too big. But in a small town, everyone knows your business and who you are,

"Really?" he asked. I could tell that this man had never ventured far from the confines of his own home and business.

"Yes, really! No one hides out in a small town. All everyone does is talk, and they will know everything there is to know about you, sooner or later, whether it is true or not."

I told him the story of when I lived on my grandfather's farm after high school, in a town of about 3,000 population in northeast Ohio. My brother and I had painted the kitchen of the farmhouse with flat paint, not glossy, and one of my uncles felt that that proved we were urban idiots who didn't know the first thing about paint. Later, when we went to family gatherings, cousins would say, "Oh, you're the ones who painted the kitchen with flat paint." In one case, a woman in a store in the town center said the same thing, as if that's all there was to know about me!

During the next few conversations with the frightened man, he seemed increasingly calmer. I don't know what action he finally took because he stopped calling.

People who have never lived in a small town probably cannot fathom a place where everyone knows your business, which can be a very negative feature. But a small town is also like a large family, and everyone realizes that their fate is tied to their neighbor. In this sense, for the health of urban America, and the sustainability of our cities, it's necessary to become a part of the larger community, to take action, to get involved, and to get to know your neighbors for everyone's mutual benefit.

Sierra Madre is not what I call a "small town." A small town is typically rural, with a population of 3000 to 5000 people, spread out over a large area. But Sierra Madre is not a big city either. Sierra Madre is somewhat in-between those two extremes, where you can have the best of both worlds if you know how to navigate your life here.

HOW TO CREATE AN ETHICAL

Dear Savvy Senior:

Can you write a column on ethical wills and how to make one? The attorney that made up my will recently suggested I write one as a tool to explain the intentions of my will, as well as express my thoughts and feelings, but I don't know where to start. Interested Senior

Dear Interested:

An ethical will - also referred to as a legacy letter - can be a valuable complement to your legal will, as well as a wonderful gift to your family or other loved ones. Here's what you should know along with some tips to help you make one.

Ethical Wills

Unlike a last will and testament, which tells your loved ones (and the legal world) what you want them to have, an ethical will (which is not a legal document) tells them what you want them to

With an ethical will, you can share with your loved ones your feelings, wishes, regrets, gratitude and advice, as well as explain the elements in your legal will, give information about the money and possessions you're passing on, and anything else you want to communicate.

Usually no more than a few pages, the process of writing an ethical will can actually be quite satisfying. But be careful that you don't contradict any aspects of your legal will or estate plan.

And, if you're having trouble with the writing, there are resources available to help you, or you can express yourself through an audio or video recording.

Where to Start

To craft an ethical will, start by jotting down some notes about what's really important to you and what you want your loved ones to know. Take your time and remember that you're not trying to write for the Pulitzer Prize. This letter is a gift of yourself written for those you love.

After you've gathered your thoughts you can start drafting your letter. You can also revise or rewrite it anytime you want. And for safekeeping, keep your ethical will with your other legal documents in a secure location but be sure your executor has access to it. A safe-deposit box or fireproof filing cabinet or safe in your home is a good choice.

Get Help

If you need some help, there are numerous resources available like Celebrations of Life (CelebrationsofLife.net), which offers how-to information and examples of ethical wills, along with a "Ethical Wills: Putting Your Values on Paper" book, and the Ethical Wills/Legacy Letters workbook that you can purchase for $16 and $10 respectively.

Another good resource is Personal Legacy Advisors (Personal Legacy Advisors.com), a company that offers ethical will writing classes and workshops, along with personalized services like coaching, editing, writing and/or audio or video recording your ethical will. Prices will vary depending on the services you choose. They also sell a do-it-yourself guidebook "The Wealth of Your Life: A Step-by-Step Guide for Creating Your Ethical Will," by Susan Turnbull for $24.

You also need to know that many people choose to share their ethical will with their family and friends while they're still living so they can enjoy their reactions, while others think it should be read after their death. It's up to you.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior.org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

I do the best I can. I may not be the best all the time, but I try, and I try, and I try. I do not want to be a nuisance to anybody, so I try not to, especially with the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. (Does trying count for anything?) Ouite often, I make the mistake of believing because I have been married so long I know my wife and what she is going to do or say next.

Confidence is a tricky thing, however. The more confidence I think I have, the more trouble I seem to get into. I certainly do not want to be negative in this regard, but I have the proof that it works in

For instance, on her birthday, I try to give her something that will make her happy. If you do not think that is a hard chore, then come over to my house and try it one time. Just when I think she is into a certain thing, I blow it.

I have blown this so many times that there is a hurricane named after me.

I worked very hard trying to find a Christmas gift that will surprise her and delight her. Occasionally, I will succeed. I remember one year I got her something special and she was very delighted with it. She thanked me several times. İ was happy.

My memory being what it is or isn't, the next year I got her the same Christmas gift. She opened it and said, "Oh, isn't this what you got me last year?" One thing, she is a marvelous chef and can bake, cook and fry anything and it all comes out delicious. Except, for that nasty little thing called

I love everything that she cooks except that, of

The proof of her ability as a chef is me. When we first met, I was as skinny as they come without even one fat cell in my body. Now, look at me. And, Recently, this thing about thinking showed itself.

Many things I love to eat, but my wife's mac and cheese has to be at the top of the list. She makes the best M and C that I have ever tasted. Being the kind of husband that usually gets in trouble, I try compensating by always thanking and praising her for this delicious dish.

I had been at a two-day conference and was greatly delighted to get home. They do have lunch at those conferences, but not quite the quality I am accustomed to. I was quite anxious to get home and have what they call a "home-cooked dinner."

By the time I got home, all I could think about was

One of the dishes she had was her infamous mac and cheese. I could not tell her how delighted I was to be home and especially to enjoy some of this macaroni and cheese.

We sat down at the table, had prayer and then I delved into the luxury of one of the best homecooked dinners I ever had. At the center of the table was this magnificent Mac and cheese.

What happened next was something I had not planned for. She told me one of her friends brought over some things for our dinner. She did not say exactly, but I took it to mean that the mac and cheese was one of the dishes. Looking at me she said, "What do you think of

At the time, I was not thinking of any trick questions. I responded by simply saying, "It's wonderful, but it's not quite as good as the ones you make." Then I flashed a waxy smile in her direction.

"That's not as good as mine?" Without even looking up I replied, "This is good, but not as good as the ones you make. Yours are much better than this one."

"Are you sure about that? You're not just putting me on?'

I laid my fork down and looked at her and said, "My dear, there is nothing to compare with the mac and cheese that you make. I can tell the difference a mile away. You make the best mac and cheese I have ever tasted. This may be good, but it's not up to your standard."

I thought I made some good points with her. Every husband is always looking for ways to make points with his wife. I was assuming I had hit the marital lottery.

Looking at me, she stated very sternly, "That mac and cheese is mine. I made it especially for you."

I have never been good at backpedaling a situation. I am somewhat of a wordsmith, but I could not think of any words that could in any way help me out of this situation.

I remember what James said, "For in many things we offend all. If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to bridle the whole body" (James 3:2).

I know that I am not a perfect person. I get in deep trouble when for some reason I think otherwise.

THE PRESENT IS A PRESENT WHEN GIFTS ARRIVE

I gave up trying to sleep at about 4:30 this morning. Last night I read that diabetes and limited sleep time contribute to the likelihood of Alzheimer's disease. I have struggled with the first two conditions for years and am increasingly worried about early indications of the third. Additionally, as a result of composing these articles I have become aware of my need for feedback, a kind of deeper conversation regarding things I have been thinking about. I have consciously tried to have more meaningful conversations with people, even people that I usually have trouble conversing with in any way—like my sister.

She is the person who I rode to Elementary School on the handlebars of my bicycle. At one time we were very close but now seldom personally see each other and have tried to stay in touch by telephone. This hasn't worked out very well because we are both now hard of hearing and live on hillsides which make phone connections unreliable. Many of our phone conversations consist of one or the other, very often me, yelling STOP TALKING, meaning shut up and listen to me.

Last night we tried communicating through multiple e-mails and it was disastrous. She accused me of failing to proofread which indicated to her my lack of concern for other people in addition to overall ignorance of acceptable social behavior. I responded by pointing out that she repeatedly misspelled Judaism which is demonstrative of her overall cluelessness. Subsequent emails rapidly descended into social critiques of the families of in-laws and a final insult in which she accused me of not knowing how to dance at the time of my High School Prom. That prom was sixty years ago and her comments seemed to be an irrelevant and insulting and painful accusation. The end result is that by mutual assent we will not communicate again unless circumstances make it necessary.

As silly as all this sounds, the conversation was painful and, combined with my worries about Alzheimer's, I found sleep impossible. I needed to talk, to express feelings, feelings about a lot of things and my wife was happily fast asleep. In the hope of calming myself I got dressed, left home and decided to walk around waiting for the sky to change colors and eventually to watch the sunrise, doing jumping jacks and still feeling pretty agitated. Out of the blackness I saw a man wearing earphones approaching. Uninvited, I asked what are you listening to, "music", he said; "what music", I said; "my own music ", he responded. With this inauspicious beginning we talked so long that I failed to see the sky changing colors and the sun rising.

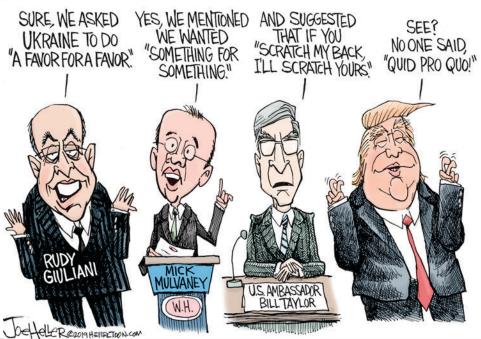

I needed to talk and it was a wonderful conversation talking about his music, his poetry, his world travels, his disabilities, and his hallucinations. He described how a cactus could morph into something else. More surprisingly he was familiar with Zizek and Peterson, social-philosophers that I read about and have great difficult in understanding. He knew all of the Leonard Cohen songs and was familiar with Cohen's songs and his poetry.

He shared his feelings about his privilege and his coddled life as his parents and grandparents had all been medical doctors. He described his feelings of present inferiority as he had been diagnosed with bi-polar disorder and was now receiving Social Security Disability Payments. I had the opportunity to talk a little about myself. My feelings that my way of life had not allowed me the opportunity to express myself very fully and to just appreciate who I am. We walked back to my house and when my wife awoke I introduced him to her and they too had a very nice conversation. Consistent with his old profession of school teacher he gave us assignments to view documentaries relating to subjects we had discussed. Eventually he made his excuses and said he had to get home to take his medication.

I feel better. From out of the darkness came this gift to me as I was able to leave my own worries and notice the present opportunity to speak to this stranger in the dark. There is a new present arriving at every moment if one is ready to receive it. WHAT A GIFT!

'BUT HER EMAILS!' A FINAL FAREWELL TO A

Did you catch the important news story about Hillary Clinton the other day? I'm guessing you missed it, because it was buried beneath the latest bombshells about the Russia-abetted grifter who barely beat her. Indeed, if you happened to see the print version of The New York Times, the story was inexplicably consigned to page 16:

"A years-long State Department investigation into former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton's private email server found that...there was no systemic or deliberate mishandling of classified information."

Let's repeat that conclusion, this time by quoting the report released by Trump's State Department:

"There was no persuasive evidence of systematic, deliberate mishandling of classified information."

Gee, whattaya know. The fake scandal ginned up by candidate Trump and amplified by a complicit mainstream media turns out to be a nutrition-free nothing-burger. Too bad the hyperbolic brouhaha about her private server tilted the 2016 election to an aspiring authoritarian who vandalizes the Constitution and sells out America to its enemies. Compared to Trump's impeachable acts, what Hillary did was tantamount to jay-walking in traffic.

The lesson for the mainstream media, a lesson that by now should be obvious, is that false equiva-lence is a crime against fact.

Candidate Trump's sordid past – his mob ties, his multiple bankruptcies, his financial dependence on Russia, his stiffing of small contractors – got a fraction of the media coverage that Hillary's emails re-ceived. By the late summer of 2016, that's basically what most Americans "knew" about her – the vague unfounded suspicion that she might be a risk to national security.

That suspicion, preposterous back then, looks especially so now thanks to a new report by the Repub-lican-led Senate Intelligence Committee. The reporth documents the Kremlin's systematic 2016 cam-paign to get Trump elected, a campaign so successful that Russian operatives literally drank champagne on election night. And they're still celebrating. Trump's military retreat from Syria is a boost for Russia, according to Russia. As one Moscow commentator wrote this week, "Putin won the lottery!"

It's weird that Trump assails reporters as "enemies of the people," because he arguably owes his as-cent to their obsession with Hillary's emails. For most of 2015 and 2016, they covered the "story" re-lentlessly, despite the dearth of actual evidence she'd breached national security. Most of the time, the nothingburger was stuffed with fillers like "Questions are being raised." This was a typical New York Times paragraph in August 2015; "But the email account and its confusing reverberations have become a significant early chapter in the 2016 presidential race and a new stroke in the portrait of the Democrats' leading candidate."

Even last Friday, while reporting on Hillary's exoneration (and burying the story), The Times wrote that the State Department report "appears to bookend a controversy that dogged Mrs. Clinton's 2016 pres-idential campaign." Oh please. She was "dogged" by the "controversy" precisely because the press saw it as "a new stroke in the portrait."

One commentator, legal analyst Jeffrey Toobin of CNN, has at least copped to his complicity. Bravo to him. On the air Monday, he discussed the exoneration and said: "This is also a story about the news media, about how much time we spent on (Hillary's emails) and that's something that I have felt a great deal of responsibility for, because I talked about the emails here at CNN. I wrote about it in The New Yorker, and I think I paid too much attention to them, and I regret that, and I hope a lesson is learned."

We'll see about that. Eying 2020, Trump is already running the same false-equivalence playbook. He's trying to sucker the media and citizenry into believing that the Biden family's so-called "corruption" is worse or no worse than his own.

Hillary's exoneration should be a wake-up call. Shame on this benighted nation if we sanction a second con.

I'VE HAD ENOUGH. I'M DONE WITH THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

With so much happening in the world, you probably don't want to read about my own personal dark night of the soul.

But at the risk of sounding narcissistic, I do think there is some value in examin-ing why a person like me would feel compelled to leave the Republican Party.

It was only four years ago that I proudly, defiantly and publicly abandoned the Democrats. I'd left them in spirit many years before, mostly because of their in-sistence on treating abortion rights as fundamental. Nevertheless, apathy kept me from changing my registration for several years longer than I probably should have.

In 2016, John Kasich was my escape hatch. Changing my registration just in time for the Pennsylvania presidential primary gave me the sense that even if he didn't win the nomination, I was able to cast my vote for a genuinely pro-life candidate: pro-child, pro-mother, pro-worker, pro-immigrant, pro-faith. He spoke a language I understood, a language that had become mangled in the mouths of Democrats.

Watching the debates this week, I heard that confused rhetoric again, with the candidates all declaring their horror at the carnage of gun violence but com-pletely at peace with the carnage of the Language of the langu with legalized abortion. If I needed any reminder of why I stopped supporting the Democratic Party, it was right there on that stage.

But the comfort and fellowship I thought I'd found in the GOP was shattered last week, when President Trump took a phone call from Turkey's president and de-cided to with-when President Trump took a phone call from Turkey's president and de-cided to withdraw our troops from Syria, abandoning our Kurdish allies. While some GOP lawmakers spouted off righteous indignation and some invoked real pushback, for me, it was too little, much too late. The abandonment of the Kurds and the almost cavalier attitude of some of my Trump-supporting acquaintances was a wake-up call that this was no longer a party I wanted to belong to.

This was supposed to be the party that valued our relationship with NATO, the party of a strong national defense, the party that respected our military. This was supposed to be the party that didn't take a knee when the National Anthem was played, that wasn't embarrassed by overt expressions of patriotism.

My angry feelings toward the Republican Party were further compounded this week when two agencies of the federal government — ICE and the FBI — threat-ened to deport one of my immigration clients. My client has spent the last few years providing valuable information to them in exchange for being allowed to remain in the United States — but now that the investigation has closed, he's been taken into custody and it is likely that he'll be deported.

I believe strongly in loyalty. It's everything to me. That's why I can't get behind a Republican Party that is disloyal to everyone from our Kurdish allies, who sup-ported us in the Middle East, to my client, who risked a lot to help America and was repaid by being sent to a detention center.

I've had enough. I will never return to the Democratic Party, because of how they embrace abortion, play games with identity politics, and think that gender is a matter of opinion. But I no longer feel that the Republican Party represents my morals.

This is my own Declaration of "Independent." This week, I registered as an Inde-pendent. I will never again be a Democrat, particularly not Philadelphia, where that party is filled with people like DA Larry Krasner and Mayor Jim Kenney. Their principles are anathema to me. But the GOP abandoned the principles I loved.

And so, I abandoned them.
