PREPAREYourHome

Use this list to prepare your home for winter

- Check your home's heating and air conditioning system. Most heating and
- air systems typically last 12 to 15 years. Paint, caulk and seal exterior wood
- Seal your masonry and hard surfaces
- Check your drainage. Make sure the soil around your foundation hasn't settled, creating areas for water to pool at your foundation.
- Clean your gutters. Once the leaves are pretty much off the trees, it's time to clean those gutters.
- Clean your chimney and order firewood
- Test your smoke and carbon monoxide detectors
- Shut down the pool and the sprinkler system and drain outside faucets
- Prepare your lawn for winter and set it up for a great spring
- Make sure your attic doesn't become a critter hotel. It's going to get cold out and your attic is
- the perfect winter home for squirrels and birds. Get your patio furniture protected, but make sure you wait until a clear, warm day to cover it so you don't trap moisture on it.

THE SEAGULL WHO PLAYED "CHICKEN"

How has your week been? I don't know about you, but nothing particularly fascinating happened to me. Don't think I'm complaining, though. I'll take familiar and predictable any day. However, familiar and predictable don't make for interesting writing. If you read my column often, you know that when inspiration fails me, I can always rely on my mom's friend, Florence.

Not only is Florence a fabulous story teller, but she, herself, attracts funny situations. Like moths to a light, so humorous people and weird situations gravitate toward Florence. She doesn't have to try to make things happen. If you hang around her long enough, you, too, will get involved in something worth retelling.

Today's story includes one of the many animals Florence and her family rescued near their home in rustic Montebello. (Yes, Montebello was rustic once.) Although they didn't live near the ocean, a wayward seagull landed on their property. (It was probably pulled in by Florence's inherent magnetism.) They nursed it back to health, but it was never seaworthy again. So, it became a family pet. We'll call him Dean (think James Dean in "Rebel Without a Cause").

Among his many personality quirks, Dean had the habit of standing at the back end of their long driveway, waiting for an oncoming car. As soon as one appeared on the horizon, Dean took to the air and dive bombed right in front of the car's path. He had gotten very good at timing this, and knew just when to pull away at the last moment. Nine times out of 10, the driver would loudly slam on his breaks.

Perhaps it was the sound of the screeching breaks or the smell of burnt rubber that Dean enjoyed. Whatever it was, Dean got a kick out of the whole routine. I'd like to think that it was the drivers' good, animal-loving nature that kept Dean from becoming road kill, but more likely it was an automatic reaction to a large foreign body hurtling toward their windshield.

I'm sure Florence's family tried to break Dean of this nasty habit, but who's ever heard of a trained seagull? Probably equally difficult to explain were the explanation of the long, heavy tire marks in front of their driveway.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE - The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"Have yourself a merry little Christmas, let your heart be light. From now on, our troubles will be out of sight." Ralph Blane & Hugh Martin

Remember that? Judy Garland singing to Margaret O'Brien in the 1944 movie, "Meet Me In St. Louis." You probably do as this is a perennial favorite Christmas movie, along with "Miracle on 34th Street," "It's a Wonderful Life," and about 17 different versions of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol." My least favorite version: Bill Murray in "Scrooged." I am admitting publicly that I like "Home Alone" from 1990 with Macauley Culkin as the little kid who gets left behind when his family goes on vacation, takes on New York and various villains and wins! "The Polar Express" with Tom Hanks was wonderful. Of course, anything Tom Hanks does is pretty much great. And you can't forget "Elf" with Will Ferrell (2003) which is now a musical! But my all time favorite is "A Christmas Story" from 1983 where the kid gets his tongue stuck on the flagpole as he was doubledog dared to do it. You remember! And Ralphie wants a Red Ryder Air Rifle and everybody keeps saying, "You'll shoot your eye out, kid!"

I've been decorating. All my lighted houses are up on top of the bookcases but the first things I put up were my lighted deer and the star showers. The star showers add magic to just about any sort of outdoor lighting. I've got two of them outside that light up the whole front of the house and shine nicely on my reindeer. Right now my TV Christmas Music channel is playing Elvis singing, "Blue Christmas," and minutes ago, "Grandma Got Run Over By A Reindeer!" Another shameful confession, I love that song!

We hope yours is being 'a merry little Christmas' this year, and that your heart is indeed light. As we were out walking Sierra Madre a few years ago, my Christmas decorations admiring walking buddy, John - who is now celebrating Christmas in heaven - and I, found a piece of paper on the sidewalk and this is what it said:

A Child's Prayer of Thanks

Dear God,
I'm thankful for all You give,
For food,
For love,
A place to live,
I thank You for my family too,
And I want You to know
That I love You.
Amen.

I have kept this out in the kitchen ever since and think it expresses pretty much everything for which we can be thankful. Sierra Madre is such a beautiful place, with our own personal mountains available for good long 'look' moments. We have friendly people who smile and say Hello! when you pass them in front of Beantown or Starbucks. We have beautiful homes on every street, so many trees, and a splendid Christmas tree, crèche, menorah and dreidel in Kersting Court.

"Our hearts grow tender with childhood memories and love of family, and we are better throughout the year for having, in spirit, become a child again at Christmastime."

Laura Ingalls Wilder

One of my favorite Christmas songs...written by me and my writing partner, David Wheatley, is "Think Joy!" from Star of Wonder – A Christmas Musical. The first and last verses are below here.

"Christmas! It's finally here! My favorite...favorite time of year!
Think mistletoe and holly...children's faces jolly!
Carols on the radio...happy smiles each place you go,
Presents piled beneath the tree...some for you and some for me!

Best of all...the Christmas story,
A bright new star up in the sky,
Shepherds see, and wonder why.
Angels sing of peace on earth,
It's time, at last, Messiah's birth!
A stable filled with heaven's light,
The world will change this Christmas night.

Christmas! It's almost here! My favorite....favorite time of year. Think....Joy! Think....Peace! Think....Christ!"

"May the simple joys of Christmas warm your heart, fill your home and last a lifetime."

Christmas is just a few short weeks away and my book:
 "Sunrises and Sunflowers Speak Hope"
Would be a really nice gift for everyone you know.

Castle Green Holiday Tour

The wonder of Pasadena's golden era awaits, as the Castle celebrates the holidays. This year's Holiday Tour will be on Sunday.

Built in 1898, the Castle was designed by architect Frederick I. Roehrig with influence of Moorish, Spanish and Victorian elements, and has turn of the century glamour and charm. Today, the Castle has become one of the most cherished historic buildings in Pasadena.

Bring your family and friends and enjoy your own Self-Guided tour of the magnificent building; including over 25 private condominiums, the Penthouse and our iconic Bridge. You will take a step back in time at the historic Castle Green while roaming the 120 year old halls and grounds.

Our preferred caterers will be providing delicious holiday bite size treats (while supplies

Gates open at 1:00 pm – the event goes until 5:00 pm. Please note that there will be no elevator service. For more information and tickets online visit: castlegreen.com/tour. Tickets will also be available the day of at the gate at $35.00

Tis the Season for Holiday Scam Calls

Due to an increase in fraudulent calls, Pasadena Water and Power (PWP) wants to advise you to be especially vigilant about scam calls demanding payment for your utility bill.

PWP will never call customers asking them to make payment over the phone. If you receive one of these calls, be advised that scammers are attempting to solicit money or personal information from you. They may demand that customers go to a nearby convenience store, like Rite Aid or CVS, and purchase gift cards in order to make a payment. It's helpful to know the legitimate ways that PWP will contact you. If a utility bill is delinquent, PWP will inform the customer by mailing a notice to the account holder address. Two delinquency notifications will be sent to a customer before their electric or water service is disconnected for nonpayment.

Customers are always welcome to call the PWP Customer Service line at (626) 744-4005 to make a payment. This is a secure and valid way to access your account and is not the same as a representative calling customers to demand immediate payment.

Here are some recent scam attempts:

• An unidentified caller is claiming to be a PWP representative threatens to turn off water or electric service unless immediate payment is made over the phone.

A scammer is using spoofing technology to make PWP's Customer Service number, (626) 744-4005, appear as their contact information or calling from a toll free number (866) 305-4992. Additional information is available at: PWPweb.com/

Cathy Billings Named South Pasadena Library Director

Cathy Billings, associate library director since 2017, has been named as the City's new library director, City Manager Stephanie DeWolfe announced last week.

Billings succeeds longtime director Steve Fjeldsted, who retired in June.

Billings has more than 30 years of experience in library science. Prior to joining the South Pasadena team, she served as Senior Library, Arts & Culture Supervisor for the City of Glendale's art and music library, the Brand Library & Art Center. "Cathy's extensive experience and knowledge of the South Pasadena community make her a perfect fit to take over the top library post," DeWolfe said. Billings holds a Master's degree in Library and Information Science from the University of Washington. Her career has included stints at a nuclear research facility library in Switzerland, the New Yorkbased Center for Fiction, and the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. "It is a privilege to be given the opportunity to lead a team of staff who are so inspired by their work and committed to meeting the needs of South Pasadena library users," Billings said. "I am eager to continue the progress we have made in implementing the recommendations from the Library Operations Study and 2017-2022 Strategic Plan."

Billings continued: "My goal is to ensure the South Pasadena Public Library continues to be a cornerstone of community life. In the coming months I look forward to further engagement with the individuals and groups that the library serves."

In her time as associate director, Billings helped implement significant improvements to the South Pasadena Library, including an upgraded public catalog interface, a Facebook page, automated email duedate reminders, new Summer Reading Program software, a new public service desk and new public computer workstations, and a self-check kiosk.

SUPERVISORS FAST-TRACK HOMELESS HOUSING PLAN

LOS ANGELES COUNTY - The Board of Supervisors unanimously approved a motion by Su-pervisor Kathryn Barger with co-author Supervisor Janice Hahn to initiate a strike team of county agencies and private sector partners to develop a plan with concrete, measurable and attainable housing solutions to tackle the homelessness crisis.

'We're at a critical junction in our efforts to combat the humanitarian crisis on our streets," Barger said. "Our current approach to building housing is unsustainable, unaffordable and ineffi-cient. My motion organizes and streamlines the County's work to construct interim and perma-nent housing."

There are people dying on our streets and our current strategy is not good enough," said Supervisor Janice Hahn. "We need to address homelessness with the same level of urgency as we would a natural disaster. That means changing our strategy, turning our attention to shel-ters and emergency housing as well as continuing to build new affordable and permanent sup-portive housing."

The motion directs the CEO to develop an Urgent Housing Plan and identify all sources of capi-tal funding to support it. Additionally, the motion calls for the CEO to collaborate with a private sector housing expert to spearhead the plan.

"The government is not the expert in building housing," Barger added. "Our partners in the pri-vate sector know how to get the job done quickly and affordably. With the help of a strike team composed of County Departments, I'm confident the private sector expert will think critically and creatively to construct housing rapidly."

The motion cites successes in other jurisdictions, such as the City of San Diego, where local lead-ers have pushed for immediate housing solutions, like Sprung structures, modular and pre-fabricated units, to serve as bridge housing. These facilities serve as a temporary stay for people transitioning into permanent housing while they receive supportive services from health counse-lors, substance abuse counselors, case managers and outreach specialists.

The initiative also calls for a robust communications and outreach strategy to engage with im-pacted communities and emphasizes increased transparency and accountability concerning the development of homeless housing. Beginning December 10, the Board of Supervisors will re-ceive bimonthly public updates on the progress of the Urgent Housing Plan.

The motion, found here, directs the CEO to:

- Develop a process by which all steps necessary to implement the urgent housing plan, in-cluding permitting, zoning and approval processes, are streamlined and expedited, work-ing in consultation with LACDA, DPW, Planning, Fire, HI, Sanitation Districts, DPH and others, as appropriate. Also consider appropriate exemptions to Title
- Identify ongoing and one-time funding for capital projects to be used for the develop-ment of homeless housing.
- Identify a housing expert from the private sector to provide oversight for the develop-ment and implementation of the plan.
- Develop a robust communications and outreach strategy to engage with communities im-pacted by the implementation of the plan.
- Schedule bimonthly set item on the Board's agenda for status reports beginning on De-cember 10, 2019.

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

erra Madre, CA 91024 626,441,7900

> the holiday season, you're likely spending more time than usual surrounded by family and friends.

The holidays offer an opportunity to visit with loved ones you rarely see and get caught up on what's been happening in everyone's life. And though it might not seem like it, the holidays can also be a good time to discuss estate planning. In fact, with everyone you love—from the youngest to the oldest-gathered under one roof, the holidays provide the ideal opportunity to talk about planning.

That said, asking your uncle about his end-of-life wishes while he's watching the football game probably isn't the best way to get the conversation started. In order to make the discussion as productive as possible, consider the following tips.

1. Set aside a time and place to talk

Trying to discuss estate planning in an impromptu fashion over the dinner table or while opening Christmas gifts will most likely not be very productive. Your best bet is to schedule a time separate from the festivities, when you can all focus and talk without distractions or interruptions.

It's also a good idea to be upfront with your family about the meeting's purpose, so no one is taken by surprise, and are more prepared for the talk. Choose a setting that's comfortable, quiet, and private. The more relaxed people are, the more likely they'll be comfortable sharing about sensitive topics.

2. Create an agenda, and set a start and stop time

having a basic agenda of the items you want to address can help concerns they have in a sympathetic and supportive manner. ensure you don't forget anything.

Along those same lines, set a start and stop time for the conversation. This will help you keep the discussion on track and avoid having the conversation veer too far away from the main points you want to discuss. If anything significant comes up that you hadn't planned on, you can always continue the discussion later.

Keep in mind that the goal is to simply get the planning conversation started, not work out all the specific details or dollar amounts. 3. Explain why planning is important

From the start, assure everyone that the conversation isn't about prying into anyone's finances, health, or personal relationships. Instead, it's about providing for the family's future security and wellbeing no matter what happens. It's about ensuring that everyones wishes are clearly understood and honored, not about finding out how much money someone stands to inherit. life.

While some relatives might be reluctant to open up, being surrounded by the loved ones who will ultimately benefit from planning can make people more willing to discuss these sensitive subjects.

Talking about these issues is also a crucial way to avoid unnecessary conflict and expense down the road. When family members don't clearly understand the rationale behind one another's planning choices, I've seen it breed conflict, resentment, and costly legal battles.

4. Discuss your experience with planning

If you've already set up your plan, one way to get the discussion going is to explain the planning vehicles you have in place family by calling 626.355.4000 or visit www.CaliLaw.com for more and why you chose them. Mention any specific questions

For the love of your family

Though death and incapacity can be awkward topics to discuss, talking about how to properly plan for such events can actually bring your family closer together this holiday season. In fact, our clients consistently share that after going through our estate planning process they feel more connected to the people they love the most. And they also feel clearer about the lives they want to live during the short time we have here on earth.

When done right, planning can put your life and relationships into a much clearer focus and offer peace of mind knowing that the people you love most will be protected and provided for no matter what.

Most importantly this holiday season, enjoy being in the moment and strengthening your bonds with the important people in your

RAISING GOOD HUMANS: A MINDFUL GUIDE TO BREAKING THE CYCLE OF REACTIVE PARENTING AND RAISING KIND, CONFIDENT KIDS

by Hunter Clarke-Fields

"A wise and fresh approach to mindful parenting." Tara Brach, author of Radical Ac-ceptance. A kinder, more compassionate world starts with kind and compassionate kids. In Raising Good Humans, you'll find powerful and practical strategies to break free from "reactive parenting" habits and raise kind, cooperative, and confident kids. Whether you're running late for school, trying to get your child to eat their vege-tables, or dealing with an epic meltdown in the checkout line at a grocery store—being a parent is hard work! And, as parents, many of us react in times of stress with-out thinking—often by yelling. But what if, instead of always reacting on autopilot, you could respond thoughtfully in those moments, keep your cool, and get from A to B on time and in one piece? With this book, you'll find powerful mindfulness skills for calming your own stress response when difficult emotions arise. You'll also discover strategies for cultivating respectful communication, effective conflict resolution, and reflective listening. In the process, you'll learn to examine your own unhelpful pat-terns and ingrained reactions that reflect the generational habits shaped by your par-ents, so you can break the cycle and respond to your children in more skillful ways. When children experience a parent reacting with kindness and patience, they learn to act with kindness as well—thereby altering generational patterns for a kind-er, more compassionate future. With this essential guide, you'll see how changing your own "autopilot reactions" can create a lasting positive impact, not just for your kids, but for generations to come. An essential, must-read for all parents—now more than ever.

UNUSUAL QUESTIONS

[Nyerges is the author of "Self-Sufficient Home," "Extreme Simplicity," "How to Survive Any-where," and other books. He can be reached at www.SchoolofSelf-Reliance.com.]

I occasionally meet some very unusual people. Once, after I had given a lecture about the native uses of wild plants, a man stood by and began to chat with me. I'd never met him before. He declared that he knew I was "Il-Îuminati" because he said I never used money.

"Who told you that?" I asked him.

"You eat wild foods so you don't have to buy food. And you bicycle so you don't pay for fuel," he declared, as if he was in on some deep

I began to laugh because what he was saying was ludicrous, and since I'd never met that man before, he couldn't have known anything about me except the occasional tid-bits that he'd read in the paper.

"How do you think I got here?" I asked the stranger. "I didn't bicycle. It's too far, plus look at all the supplies I brought with me." I pointed with my hand to the table of books and plants and various sandals and brushes I'd made from yucca leaves.

He looked skeptical. "I know you're part of a group that works outside the system," he told me, knowingly.

"Really?" I responded. "What group is that? I wish I could live without money. Maybe the Illuminati can start providing me with money," I declared, hoping that by making this a joke, the man would just go away. I could tell he was not convinced, and that he be-lieved something about me, or heard something about me, that made him think that I could maneuver through daily life without the necessity of

I wanted to pack everything up and depart, but didn't want to just ignore the man. "Do you really believe that there is a group called the Illuminati, living somewhere?" I asked him.

"Yes, of course," he replied.

"Well, whoever they are, don't you think they eat food? Don't you think they have to buy food like everyone else?" I paused to let that sink in.

"And if they manage to operate outside of the system, without the need for money, then they're probably living in some remote forest, or island, where they produce everything they need. How else could they not use money?"

"Oh," the man said, ponderingly.

"Anyway, I'm not Illuminati – whatever that is – but thank you for thinking I was," and I departed as the man smiled and shook my hand.

Another time in a similar situation, a young girl asked me what I thought we should do about all the people who are ruining the world. "What people are you referring to?" I asked, even while I knew in my heart that I also don't like people ruining the world.

"You know, everyone polluting, polluting the landscape, paving over the wild areas."

"Oh," I said. "I can see how you feel." Then, I paused for just a bit because I wanted to make a point without actually disagreeing with her. "Do you live in a house?" I asked her.

"Yes, of course," she replied.

"What was there on that land before your house was there? Didn't that land have to get cleared or paved so you could have a place to live?"

"Well, yes," she replied. "But I still like to see wild areas left untouched."

"Yes, so do I," I replied. "And do you wear clothes, and buy appliances, and food, and things that you need?"

"Of course," she said, wondering where I was going with that. "So, do you track what happens to all the wrappers and boxes and plastic after you've discarded things?"

into the landfill, using up otherwise beautiful land to store trash."

"Oh, we recycle at home," she proudly declared. "Yes, that's good," I said. "So do I. But you probably don't and can't recycle every-thing. In other words, every single time we buy anything, it had to be manufactured, somewhere, and that often meant industrial pollution. And since we don't recycle eve-rything we use, lots goes

"Oh," she said. By then a few adults were listening, and one spoke up, telling me I was being a bit hard on the young girl. "OK," I said to the adult, "I'll offer some positive ide-as. I'm actually very much on her side. I regard myself as an environmentalist too."

I turned to the girl and told her that I try to always buy from yard sales and thrift stores, where possible, because that way I'm not creating new trash from the manufacturing cycle. I use things up, and I fix things when they break. But the biggest thing I try to do is to not get into a habit of acquiring useless trinkets that clutter up my life. I like being

"Everyone likes and wants all the toys and technologies that our modern society pro-duces, and just about everyone hates the trash and pollution, forgetting that we're part of the problem. One solution is to just use less, and live lightly." By now, the few adults standing around had gotten into the conversation and were all sharing positive solutions with the girl, which was a minimalist. It's amazing how well you can live when your life and your living space is not cluttered up with piles of things that you really don't need.

good. My goal was to get her into a state of mind where she chooses to lives a life that is less impactful on the environment, and get out of the habit of blaming others for the woes of our world.

any seniors fear that moving out of their home into an assisted living residence means forfeiting control of their lives. At The Kensington, nothing could be further from the truth. We believe it is our role to support our residents, not to assume complete decision-making authority. Of course, as specialists in caring for older adults, we monitor routines, behavior and mood every day. If we see changes that concern us, then we talk with residents and their families immediately. HOW TO MANAGE A LOVED ONE'S SOCIAL MEDIA AFTERLIFE

How do I go about changing or canceling a person's social media accounts when they die? My sister passed away several months ago and her social media accounts are still active. Inquiring Sister

I'm sorry for your loss. This a question that's become more frequent in recent years as most Americans have participated on some type of social media platform. Here's a run-down of how you can change or cancel some different social media accounts after a loved one dies.

Facebook

Let's start with the biggest and most frequently used social media platform on the Web today. When someone with a Facebook profile dies, there are two different things someone with authority over their account can do. You can either "memorialize" it or "delete" it.

A memorialized account serves as a place where friends and family can share stories, photos or memories to celebrate the deceased person's life, with the word "Remembering" shown next to the deceased person's name. Once an account is memorialized, content the person shared is still visible on Facebook to the audience it was originally shared with, however, the user's profile will not show up in public spaces such as people you may know, ads or birthday reminders.

If you don't wish to memorialize your sister's profile, you can also have her account permanently

Facebook allows users (when they're alive) to choose a "legacy contact," which is a person chosen to look after their account once they've passed away, or users can request to have their account permanently deleted after they die. (To do either of these tasks, click on "Settings" on the top right of Facebook, then click on "General" on the left-side menu and then on "Manage Account."

If your sister didn't set up a legacy contact before she passed, you can submit a memorialization request at Facebook.com/help – type in "How do I report a deceased person on Facebook that needs to be memorialized?" in the search bar. You'll be asked to provide proof of death by providing a copy of either an obituary, death certificate or memorial card.

Or, if you would rather have her account deleted go to Facebook.com/help, and type in "How do I request the removal of a deceased family member's Facebook account?" This also requires proof of death plus verification that you're an immediate family member or executor of the account holder.

Instagram

Instagram's policy on a deceased users' account is similar to its parent company, Facebook, A deceased users' account can either be memorialized or removed, which you can request at Help. Instagram.com/264154560391256.

Like Facebook, to memorialize an Instagram account requires proof of death, but to remove an account you'll also need to provide verification that you're an immediate family member.

If your sister was a Twitter user, Twitter will work with anyone who is authorized to act on behalf of her estate, or with a verified immediate family member to have an account deactivated. To request the removal of your sister's account, go to Help. Twitter.com/forms/privacy.

After you submit your request, Twitter will email you with instructions for providing more details, including information about the deceased, a copy of your ID, and a copy of the deceased's death certificate.

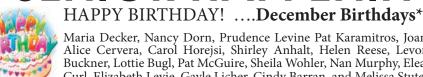

LinkedIn

If your sister also had a LinkedIn profile, the only option is to delete her account. To request this, see LinkedIn.com/help/linkedin/ask/ts-rdmlp. You'll need to provide her name and URL to her LinkedIn profile; the relationship you have to her; her email address; date she passed away; link to an obituary; and company she most recently worked for.

From the kitchen area, I heard my wife say, "A fool never knows when to quit eating.'

I guess I've been a fool for most of my lifetime. My motto, especially around the Thanksgiving table, is, Just one more piece.

At the time, I did not realize that "one more piece" makes me cross the line into being a very foolish person.

Maybe that is just what life is all about. You don't know that you've had enough until after you have eaten "one more piece." My problem is, when do I stop?

Is it that foolish to become full at a Thanksgiving dinner? After all, what is Thanksgiving dinner for if I do not leave the table full?

I came by this legitimately. It goes back to my maternal grandmother. We would all gather at grandma's place for Thanksgiving dinner, and dinner. She had on the table everything you could ever imagine eating for Thanksgiving. Some things on the table I did not recognize, but, being at grandma's table at Thanksgiving time, I ate it. After we were at the table for a while, people started to leave. Grandma always would say, "Please, just one more bite before you go. There's plenty left."

Of course, being at grandma's Thanksgiving table, she made the rules, and we abided by them out of deep respect. None of us had to be overly convinced to stay for just one more bite. We all left being as full as we possibly could be under her instructions.

I do not think being full is the same as being a fool. In my calculations, not stuffing yourself at grandma's Thanksgiving table would make you a fool. Who wants to be that kind of a fool? Remember, grandmas are never wrong!

A real fool would be someone leaving grandma's Thanksgiving dinner without being full. Believe me, I am not that kind of fool.

Between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day, it is my purpose to eat as much as I can to become as full as I can be. After all, on New Year's Day, I am going to make a resolution not to eat so much at each meal. That is then, but now I indulge myself to such an extent that I am genuinely

As I thought of this, I remembered what Solomon said. "He that walketh with wise men shall be wise: but a companion of fools shall be destroyed" (Proverbs 13:20).

A wise man will walk to the table of the Lord and stuff himself with God's goodness until he is full and overflowing. That sure is not being foolish.

STUART TOLCHIN

It's really easy to forget how privileged we are living in this paradise. It's easy to complain about how much traffic there is and how just getting home avoiding the detours and the construction has made each day a perilous adventure. Although I had a very nice Thanksgiving Holiday I was in a kind of angry state when my wife and I, accompanied by my son and his girlfriend, hit the road on Saturday to begin a short Palm Springs Vacation. True, the ride was beautiful as the mountains were snow-covered and majestic. Still, there was traffic and a long slowdown near Redlands and there was this pain associated with my hernia that I was trying to forget and of course other things bothered me.

On the way out there, once we reached the Palm Springs Highway, we thought of stopping and going up the Palm Springs tram-way but the idea frightened my son's girlfriend. I should let you know that both my son and his girlfriend are Learning Disabled adults who have difficulty finding many things they can enjoy. Both of them have their own particular fears and limitations which continually get in their way. Be that as it may, they both love animals. My wife thought the night experience at the Living Desert Zoo was something they could and would both enjoy.

As usual she was right. The zoo was all lit up at night. Please understand that this is not a typical zoo made up of animals in cages. This is a huge vast area of desert land in which the animals roam about freely appearing and disappearing according to their own whim. Near each enclosed area were life size statues that captured the animals in motion and, just when you thought you were looking at statues, real-life giraffes would appear. It was all pretty great but the statue that really got to me was a huge wolf {maybe it was a coyote) standing on his hind legs with his mouth wide open seemingly howling into the night.

The zoo was fun; but the fun was easy to forget. In the morning I awoke, still thinking about the wolf-coyote howling in the night. For one of the first times in my life I tried to write a poem on a scrap of paper I found. LISTEN CLOSELY –CAN YOU HEAR IT -IT'S A HOWL IN THE NIGHT-IT'S SOMEONE BEING BORN- -WITHOUT SEEING THE LIGHT. I won't bore you with the rest of the poem but it captured my feeling. I am frustrated and often angry without much sense of why. Early in the morning I went down alone to the hot tub and found myself surrounded by Trump fans. Somehow I ended up sharing my story about wanting to howl into the night and these middle-Americans from Montana surprisingly related to what I was saying. They too wanted to howl and when my wife came down and joined us in the hot tub we were invited to visit them at their ranch-- they would even pick us up at the airport. We probably will never visit but I was delighted but I forgot the delight when my son and his girlfriend came down to the pool. The pool was only 4 feet deep but my son's girlfriend was so afraid she could not even get into the water. My wife and I tried coaxing her in and were unsuccessful and left the two of them outside the pool. My wife and I looked at each other commiserating silently on how hard it was to be around her. We ignored them for a while and then, to our surprise, noticed the two of them dancing in the shallow water. I felt so proud of my son, realizing that despite his disabilities, he had hooked up with someone he could help, and experience his own abilities, and maybe love. While I was thinking about my son my wife said "Can you imagine how hard that is for her?" It's easy to forget.

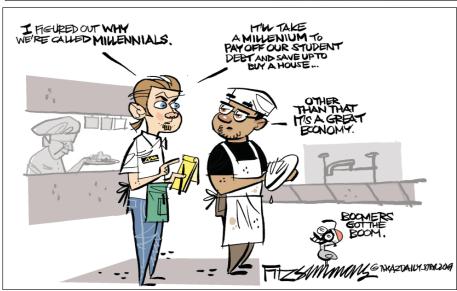

I do wish I was different but so often I have plans for other people that are simply inappropriate and I forget my good feeling and clam up and feel misunderstood and want to go howling into the night.

One final note. I was told last night by my son that his girlfriend has been told something frightening by her Social Worker, He did not want to discuss it but finally told us that if she doesn't start taking better care of herself she is going to end up being moved to a group home. Imagine. They have been semi-together for fourteen years but live apart and see each other only on weekends. I don't like to even Imagine the pain they are going through while you (I mean I) are judging them. It's easy to forget what it's like inside other people and when you do feel it maybe you try and forget it but sometimes it's not that easy to forget and you want to just howl into the night and maybe even move to Montana and just worry about yourself. I think it's better to howl into the night and keep trying.

OK TAIL-END BOOMERS

boomers with the trending "OK boommeme.

I've had my issues with baby boomers, too.

"OK boomer," reports dictionary. com, "is a viral internet slang phrase used, often in a humorous or ironic manner, to call out or dismiss outof-touch or close-minded opinions associated with the baby boomer generation and older people more generally."

It's sarcasm used to tell baby boomers that they're too critical, condescending and dismissive toward younger folks' anxieties and concerns. I feel those younger folks' pain.

Technically, I'm a boomer, born near the tail end of that generation, which began in 1946 and concluded in 1964 - but that 18-year span is He certainly didn't have social mefar too lengthy to accommodate a single generation.

Pontell argues that Americans born between 1954 and 1965 are actually part of their own Generation Jones.

Boy, is he right. I have little in common with front-end boomers.

When front-end boomers were indulging in drugs and free love, we tail-enders were doing our homework.

While they were traveling the country in VW Beetles and partying at Woodstock, we were doing our chores.

While they dreamed of changing the world, we dreamed of getting collegiate business degrees and goodpaying jobs.

Front-enders have criticized, dismissed and condescended to us tailenders for years.

It's human nature: Older people always complain that younger people aren't doing things right.

If you're young, don't be so sensitive. Who else do old fogies have to complain about?

> But this tail-ender doesn't see gloom and doom. Sure, we need to address lots of things, but the truth is there's never been a better time to be alive - there is evidence that the world is doing better than ever. Our economy, envy of the world, is expanding.

> Technological innovation, already massive, is increasing rapidly. I can't wait to see the solutions - for disease, poverty, climate change it will bring in the not-so-distant

> According to Cafehayek.com, today's typical middle-class American lives better than billionaire John D. Rockefeller did 100 years ago.

> He didn't have air conditioning, sophisticated medical treatments, safe, fast travel and limitless dining and entertainment options.

dia to create humorous retorts that silence whole generations.

Sociologist and author Jonathan Here's more to be hopeful about: Bill Gates' charity reported in 2018 that childhood deaths fell from 12 million in 1990 to 5 million in 2017. More than 90 percent of children now attend primary school. The proportion of people living in extreme poverty declined from onethird in 1990 to one-tenth.

> Younger generations have much to look forward to. They'll do lots of good work with powerful tools. We all should agree on that.

Hey, I'm a tail-end boomer who's heard plenty from my elders about shortcomings. If you're young, I hope you'll take my well-intentioned optimism about your generation in that spirit, rather than dismiss it with a trendy catch-phrase.

But I can understand why you might meet my optimism with a quick "OK tail-end boomer." I just hope you'll be as understanding when your generation one day goes codger and your children's generation dismisses your generation with a humorous catch-phrase of their own.

BLAIR BESS

Committee recently announced that no direct evidence of a conspiracy between Russian intelligence operatives and Trump campaign officials has been uncovered by their investigation into Russian meddling in the 2016 presidential campaign.

Despite the president's mistaken belief that he has been fully-exonerated (he hasn't), the more pressing issue is whether he'll finally accept the U.S. intelligence community's well-documented conclusion that Russian operatives did everything in their power to shape American public opinion and exert influence over voters.

Based on newly-disclosed actions taken by his administration, it appears that he either doesn't or (more likely) doesn't want to. The Daily Beast reports that two teams of federal officials whose mandate was to fight foreign election interference are being dramatically downsized. This will leave the U.S. woefully unprepared to address election threats in 2020. Apparently, the president is quite pleased by the past workproduct of his comrades in the Kremlin and expects them to deliver once more.

The U.S. Intelligence Community's Worldwide Threat Assessment, presented to Congress a few weeks ago, states "we anticipate that all our adversaries and strategic competitors will increasingly build and integrate cyber espionage, attack, and influence capabilities into their efforts to influence U.S. policies and advance their own national security interests."

That appears to be confirmed in reports from multiple media outlets detailing attempts to use Facebook and Twitter to launch disinformation campaigns. According to Politico, Twitter recently removed 2,617 "malicious accounts" that may have originated in Iran. Facebook announced that it had suspended 783 Iranian pages and accounts on its platforms, including Instagram, for "engaging in coordinated inauthentic behavior."

Twitter has suspended 418 accounts that appear to emanate from Russia for mimicking behavior similar to that exhibited by the Internet Research Agency - the Russian troll farm responsible for many of the propaganda campaigns that raged during the 2016 election. It also took down 2,000 accounts located in Venezuela that have engaged in a "state-backed influence campaign targeting domestic audiences."

No reasonable (emphasis on reasonable) leader could possibly ignore ongoing assaults on the hearts and minds of the American people. Nor would he ignore

IF TRUMP IS SO INNOCENT, WHY IS HE STILL HELPING RUSSIA?

Democrat and Repub- the advice of his hand-picked intelligence lican members of the chiefs. Yet, this leader does. Because his Intelligence friends in the Motherland continue to employ cyber warfare as an ongoing offensive strategy, quite possibly designed to bolster his stranglehold on the White House. It should come as no surprise then that the Trump administration is taking steps to ensure that this barrage of disinformation > people unimpeded. Not so within the Putin Regime. They're very much afraid that outside forces will employ tactics like those used against, causing the Russian people to rise and chal-

> continues to rain down on the American lenge Putin's leadership. Legislation passed in 2015 by the Duma, the lower chamber in the Russian Parliament, requires that personal data of Russian citizens be stored on servers located in Russia. This should not by any means be construed as a measure designed to protect that country's citizens. Instead, it is an attempt to circumvent external servers that power Facebook, Twitter and Google, allowing security officials to monitor dissident activities and deny the Russian people access to sites where the free-flow of information and speech might threaten those in control.

Officials at the highest levels of the Russian government and our own are in both instances taking steps to solidify their positions of power. In the case of Putin and company, attempts are being made to close the floodgates to information, while Team Trump is doing everything it can to leave them wide-open.

Clearly, the president fears that concerted efforts on the part of our intelligence community to prevent our adversaries from tampering with elections, sowing discord, and spreading disinformation might cause the Trumpian knot to unravel. And the legitimacy of his presidency to be called into question yet again.

Whether Trump directly engaged or conspired with outside forces to corrupt the results of the 2016 presidential election is still unclear. Results of both the Mueller investigation and a more vigorous investigation by the Democrat-controlled House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence may paint a more accurate picture once their work is finished.

Believing he has been vindicated by the Senate Intelligence Committee, President Trump continues to grow more emboldened. Which, to use one of his favorite expressions, is "sad." And a mistake. Because his administration's recent efforts to stymie future cyberattacks call into question whether there really is "No collusion." And that will only cause government watchdogs to sniff around his administration more aggressively.
