FORMER GOVERNOR JERRY BROWN ENDORSES SIERRA MADRE MAYOR JOHN HARABEDIAN FOR L.A. COUNTY SUPERVISOR

Former California Governor Jerry Brown announced his endorsement of Democrat John Harabedian for Los Angeles County Supervisor for the 5th District.

"In these divisive times, John brings the sort of fresh, no nonsense leadership we need. He has deep roots in the district and has dedicated his life to making Los Angeles County stron-ger," stated former California Governor Jerry Brown. "As supervisor, John will tackle the tough problems head-on and fight for working families. I'm proud to endorse him."

"I am humbled to have Governor Brown's endorsement," stated Mayor John Harabedian. "Our County and Country are in a state of crisis. We need new leadership to tackle homelessness, end gun violence, and solve our climate crisis."

Mayor Harabedian's campaign is barnstorming across the 5th Super-visorial District, securing grassroots and institutional support from Congressman Tony Cardenas, the Los Angeles County Democratic Party, the Democratic Party of the San Fernando Valley, Los Angeles League of Conservation Voters, ACT, Foothill Community Democrats, Los Angeles County Young Democrats, San Fernando Valley Young Democrats, and Stonewall Democratic Club.

With less than 2 critical months to the Primary Election we really need your help to keep the momentum going.

John Harabedian is a proud Democrat and Mayor of Sierra Madre. He is running to represent the 5th Supervisorial District of Los Angeles County. John will work to get the homeless off our streets and back on their feet, stop the senseless loss of life from gun violence, and tackle our climate crisis.

Pasadena Set to Celebrate the Cheeseburger

New participants include Roy's, Alexander's Steakhouse, Smitty's Grill and Granville.

During Cheeseburger Week from January 26th to January 31st, Pasadena honors Lionel Sternberger's genius in being the first to put cheese on a hamburger and serve it at the Rite Spot in Pasadena in 1924. Forty of Pasadena's restaurants, lounges and burger joints offer their signature burgers, some special creations and great deals during Pasadena Cheeseburger Week.
In 1924, as legend has it, teenaged Lionel Sternberger burned one side of a hamburger patty at The Rite Spot, his father's roadside stand along Colorado Boulevard (then Colorado Street) in west Pasadena. Rather than throw away the spoiled burger, he masked his mistake with a piece of cheese and served it to a very appreciative customer. Word soon spread and customers flocked to The Rite Spot for The Aristocratic Burger, A Hamburger with Cheese. Sternberger's achievement is the first verified instance of someone serving a hamburger with cheese to a customer.

Over the years, Sternberger perfected his Aristocratic Burger, much to the delight of customers at The Rite Spot. Sternberger's culinary achievement has been documented by Hamburger America, the Los Angeles Times and even Time magazine in its obituary of Sternberger.

To celebrate Sternberger's Pasadena restaurants are offering specials, unique creations and the tried and true. Patrons can experience the Zacatecas Burger from El Portal and Yahaira's, the K-POP from Dog Haus and Dog Haus Biergarten, the Impossible Burger at Umami or the traditional, and nationally recognized, cheeseburger at Pie 'n Burger.

Patrons can experience a terrific burger experience, from top-of-the-line fine dining experiences to burger stands and lounges. Those wanting a variety of experiences can organize a cheeseburger crawl or follow one of the pre-planned themed crawls.

THE WISDOM OF GERRY BROOKS

As promised, I finally whipped up a new article for you. This one's about a beloved YouTube gem, Gerry Brooks.

M a y b e you've heard of him. Maybe you haven't. I hadn't until I attended a professional development workshop a few months ago. To keep us awake and lucid, the presenter interspersed her content with occasional videos featuring Gerry, a retired principal from Tennessee.

Gerry's perfected a kind of drawling hick persona. I can't do his accent justice except to say that "educator" becomes "erjucator," etc. Gerry typically films these flicks in his car with a dash cam. Nothing says class in education like a setup like that.

So, what kind of stuff does Gerry post? The kind of thing educators find relatable and amusing. One I saw at the training was about Google Teacher Translate for parent teacher conferences and report cards. Helps with finding creative ways of saying, "Your kid keeps licking other kids at recess, and that's weird" without coming off as offensive. A more positive spin on that might be, "Your child has a unique way of initiating social interactions with peers." You get the idea.

Another dealt with how to get through the dreaded evaluation observations. Gerry suggested filling a large capacity weekly pill box with chocolate pudding and dipping in regularly. Or keeping little plastic shooters of an "adult grape beverage" handy. If both those methods fail, Gerry has a surefire solution --a box with a puppy inside. Can't top that for stress relief.

I casually shared these with my mom, and before I knew it she was off to the Gerry Brooks races. Every day she sends me a video or two. Or three.

Other great ones have Gerry peddling t-shirts. Except these are tuck-in surprise t-shirts you can un-tuck to reveal hidden messages. For example, the top might say, "My principal is the best!" but the bottom adds "... at making dumb decisions."

Thank God I have a great principal, but still the joke's funny. Similar messages are "I love my principal," with a snarky chaser of "Not really, but I ain't got tenure yet." Gerry's got other school personnel covered, too. A shirt for nurses says, "School nurses can't fix stupid." So relatable.

There's one of Gerry wearing a fluffy Grinch outfit pretending to be a morning car line attendant. He tells one woman to stop brushing her kid's hair while holding up the rest of the line. Instead, she can park in the vacant "beauty parlor" spot.

Ha! When I was in elementary school there really was a crazy vain mother who pulled up in a minivan every day, opened all the doors, and proceeded to brush each of her children's long, golden locks. Just goes to show you can't make this stuff up.

Wanna' know what else is based on real life stories from the educational trenches? My novel, "A Year at Apex!" Yup, over ten years of my personal experience coupled with that of friends' and family in education have culminated in a not-so-classic humor/romance tale spanning the length of a school year. Great for educators. Great for people who are glad they didn't go into education. Great for you! Check it out in paperback and ebook on Amazon and Barnes & Noble.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE - The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"The road to success is dotted with many tempting parking spaces."

"All my life I've been drawn to misfits and malcontents; that's why I had four kids. As I may have mentioned, our hospital has a no-return policy on babies; they won't even allow exchanges. Doesn't matter – a day, a decade, you can't return them."

"Good persons need to be talked about."

"We have to choose joy and keep choosing it every day." Heni J. M. Nouwen

A few weeks ago I mentioned having a stack of really great quotes I wanted to share with you friends and neighbors and, a couple of weeks into the New Year, here are a few more of them. You can see why I've been stockpiling them, they're pithy! Especially the one about the hospital's no return or exchange policy. Admit it, if you've got kids, there have been moments when you really wanted to give them back. I know there were days in my parenting experience... but, 'nough said.

Have you noticed that all TV programs currently are loaded with commercials touting every kind of weight loss program there is? Weight Watchers with Oprah clapping together a couple of baguettes and saying how she just loves bread, and happy people dancing about while their weight loss numbers are at the bottom of the screen. Nutrisystem with Marie Osmond still looking great and talking about her fifty pound loss. Remember when she fainted on Dancing With The pound loss. Remember when she fainted on Dancing With The Stars? South Beach Keto friendly diet and on and on. The net result for me is that I've been hungry for just about anything that didn't seem like a diet. For instance, the Texas Cheese Fries at Chili's featuring shredded cheese, bacon, jalapeños and green onions, served with house-made ranch. And if you ask for extra crispy fries, it's beyond fabulous. With their $5 margarita of the month, this is about as good as it gets.

Right about now, you're saying, "Get thee behind me, Satan!" And I don't blame you. This is where that first quote really belongs; the one about tempting parking spaces on the road to success. It's time to get out of the kitchen, put the rest of that bag of Doritos in the trash and start thinking about what we're actually going to DO in this brand new 2020. Here's an idea that might be a little more adventuresome than we had in mind, but I came across an interview a while ago with Elena Shateni, originally from the old Soviet Union. Elena is one of 100 semifinalists vying to become one of the first humans to live on Mars, as part of the Mars One project. This mission is a one-way trip and, if chosen, Elena will never have breakfast at Fork in the Road on Main Street in Santa Monica – her hometown – again. As I read this interview I wondered if I would sign up to go to Mars, spend a year on the Space Station, take another one of those "small steps for man, one giant leap for mankind" as Neil Armstrong did back in July, 1969. As men walked on the moon for the very first time, I was ten days away from delivering my daughter, Crissy, about the same size and shape as the moon, and pretty cranky. Stated simply, I could have cared less.

Time has gone by, and now, reading what this 58 year old woman has to say about, "boldly going where no man has gone before," as Captain Kirk would say, I find, once again, that I am most definitely NOT Pioneer stock. No, I wouldn't have wanted to trade my rocky field in Massachusetts for a trip across the prairie, dodging arrows, possibly ending up as part of the Donner Party. I wouldn't have signed up for the maiden voyage of The Mayflower and I honestly think that had I been living in the Garden of Eden and God said, "Have all the mangoes, papayas, peaches, and bananas you want, but leave that apple alone!" I could have!

My grandfather, Solon Kimball Weed, was prone to take off, when the urge overcame him, to Mexico to search for gold. As he put it, "The fever never lets go." He found some, too. Not enough to make us all staggeringly wealthy, but he did leave behind a few nuggets and my Dad, Howard Kimball Weed, actually came across the treasure map some years ago. My grandfather also claimed and cleared 480 acres of land in the Imperial Valley area of California. "It was difficult and dangerous work as the heat was excessive and the scorpions and rattlesnakes were countless. One day my brother, Dana, and I brought in fifteen snakes while clearing the land with a rail drawn by eight horses. When the place was all in mostly alfalfa, we figured we had killed at least one rattler for every acre." (From A Treasure Map, A Drunken Owl and 47 Rattlers in a Bag*).

To quote Ms. Shateni, "We stagnate here on Earth. We are so predictable. We want what is comfortable and predictable." Yep! When you're looking for those people who are really fond of the 'comfortable and predictable, I'm raising my hand right now.

SCHIFF STATEMENT ON BEING NAMED LEAD HOUSE IMPEACHMENT MANAGER

Washington, D.C. — Today, Rep. Adam Schiff (D-CA), the Chairman of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, released the following statement after Speaker Nancy Pelosi announced the House Managers for the Senate impeachment trial of President Donald J. Trump:

"I am humbled by the responsibility of serving as the lead House Manager in the Senate impeachment trial of President Donald J. Trump, and thank Speaker Pelosi for the trust she has place in me and our team. It is a solemn responsibility and one that I will undertake with the seriousness that the task requires.

"The House of Representatives was compelled by our duty to Constitution and country to hold President Trump accountable for his wrongdoing. President Trump abused the power of his office by pressing a foreign government to interfere in our elections, while withholding a highly sought-after White House meeting and vital military aid to an ally at war with Russia. When he was caught, President Trump obstructed – in an unprecedented and sweeping fashion – the House impeachment inquiry.

"The overwhelming evidence and testimony presented against the President led to his impeachment last month, and since that time, more documents have come to light, and witnesses have come forward willing to testify.

"Americans overwhelmingly want a fair trial in the Senate, fair to the President and fair to the people. Senators must demand to see and hear the full evidence, including the documents and witnesses the President has blocked. Only then can they faithfully discharge their own Constitutional duties to be fair and impartial jurors.

"Trump's abuse of power is a clear and present danger to our democracy and national security interests. The House upheld our Constitutional duty. Now it's up to the Senate to do the same.

"In this next phase, I look forward to working closely with my fellow Managers on behalf of the American people and in defense of our Constitution."

THE SECURE ACT'S IMPACT ON ESTATE AND RETIREMENT PLANNING

On January 1, 2020, the Setting Every Community Up for Retirement Enhancement Act (SECURE Act) went into effect, and it could have big implications for both your retirement and estate planning strategies—and not all of them are positive.

to shield those assets from such threats and maximize tax savings.

Here, we'll cover the SECURE Act's impact on your financial planning for retirement, offering strategies for maximizing your retirement account's potential for growth, while minimizing tax liabilities and other risks that could arise in light of the legislation's legal changes.

Tax-advantaged retirement planning

If your retirement account assets are held in a traditional IRA, you received a tax deduction when you put funds into that account, and now the investments in that account grow tax free as long as they remain in the account. When you eventually withdraw funds from the account, you'll pay income taxes on that money based on your tax rate at the time.

If you withdraw those funds during retirement, your tax rate will likely (but not always) be lower than it is now. The combination of the upfront tax deduction on your initial investment with the likely lower tax rate on your withdrawal is what makes traditional IRAs such an attractive option for retirement planning.

Thanks to the SECURE Act, these retirement vehicles now come with even more benefits. Previously, you were required to start taking distributions from retirement accounts at age 70 ½. But under the SECURE Act, you are not required to start taking distributions until you reach 72, giving you an additional year-and-a-half to grow your retirement savings tax free.

The SECURE Act also eliminated the age restriction on contributions to traditional IRAs. Under prior law, those who continued working could not contribute to a traditional IRA once they reached 70 ½. Now you can continue making contributions to your IRA for as long as you and/or your spouse are still working.

From a financial-planning perspective, you'll want to consider the effect these new rules could have on the goal for your retirement account assets. For example, will you need the assets you've been accumulating in your retirement account for your own use during retirement, or do you plan to pass those assets to your heirs? From there, you'll want to consider the potential income-tax consequences of each scenario.

Your retirement account assets are extremely valuable, and you'll want to ensure those assets are well managed both for yourself and future generations, so you should discuss these issues with your financial advisor as soon as possible. If you don't already have a financial advisor, we'll be happy to recommend a few we trust most.

And if you meet with us for a Family Estate Planning Session (or for a review of your existing plan) to discuss your options from a legal perspective, we can integrate your financial advisor into our meeting. Together, we can look at the specific goals you're trying to achieve and determine the best ways to use your retirement-account assets to benefit yourself and your heirs.

Here are some things we would consider with you and your financial advisor:

Converting to a ROTH IRA

In light of the SECURE Act's changes, you may want to consider converting your traditional IRA to a ROTH IRA. ROTH IRAs come with a potentially large tax bill up front, when you initially transition the account, but all earnings and future distributions from the account are tax free.

Life insurance trust options

Given the new distribution requirements for inherited IRAs, we can also look at whether it makes sense to withdraw the funds from your retirement account now, pay the resulting tax, and invest the remainder in life insurance. From there, you can set up a life insurance trust to hold the policy's balance for your heirs.

By directing the death benefits of that insurance into a trust, you can avoid burdening your beneficiaries with the SECURE Act's new tax requirements for withdrawals of inherited retirement assets as well as provide extended asset protection for the funds held in trust.

Charitable trust options If you have charitable in

If you have charitable inclinations, we can consider using a charitable remainder trust (CRT). By naming the CRT as the beneficiary of your retirement account, when you pass away, the CRT would make monthly, quarterly, semi-annual, or annual distributions to your beneficiaries over their lifetime. Then, when the beneficiaries pass away, the remaining assets would be distributed to a charity of your choice.

The decision of whether to transition your traditional IRA into a ROTH IRA now, or cash out and buy insurance, or use a CRT to provide for your beneficiaries is a solvable "math problem." Using the specific facts of your life goals as the elements that go into solving the problem, we can team up with your financial advisor to help you do the math and solve the equation.

Adjusting your pla

While the SECURE Act has significantly altered the tax implications for retirement planning and estate planning, as you can see, there are still plenty of tax-saving options available for managing your retirement account assets. But these options are only available if you plan for them.

If you don't revise your plan to accommodate the SECURE Act's new requirements, your family will pay the maximum amount of income taxes and lose valuable opportunities for asset-protection and wealth-creation as well. You've worked too hard for these assets to see them lost, squandered, or not pass to your heirs in the way you choose, so put this planning at the top of your new year's resolution list

EDUCATION & YOUTH

The all-school musical takes place at Glendale Community College Jan. 30 through Feb. 2

Glendale, Calif. - Jan. 15, 2020 - California School of the Arts – San Gabriel Valley (CSArts-SGV) students bring out the vibrancy of New York City's Washington Heights neighborhood for the school's third all-school musical, "In the Heights." With music and lyrics by Lin-Manuel Miranda, this Tony Awardwinning show follows the lives of the spirited residents of this predominantly Latino community and shares their hope and hard work toward a brighter future. The score features an eclectic mix of music including hip-hop, salsa, merengue and soul. "In the Heights" runs Thursday through Sunday, Jan. 30 through Feb. 2, at 7:30 p.m., at Glendale Community College Mainstage Theatre.

CSArts-SGV's annual all-school musical is celebrated as a massive crossconservatory collaboration for both students and staff. "In the Heights" features a cast of ninth through 12th graders from the school's acting, creative writing, integrated arts, musical theater and vocal arts conservatories. The school of dance staff is developing choreography and instrumental music students and staff are performing in the pit orchestra. Additionally, visual arts students are designing the theater's lobby, while production & design students are handling props, staging and lighting.

"In the Heights' provides a wonderful platform for each of the conservatories to get involved in the unique cultural experience of the story. I think the musical allows for growth because of its demands of specificity in each aspect of execution, whether it be choreography, instrumentation or singing," said Jud Williford, CSArts-SGV's Chair of Theatre.

Jonathan Muñoz-Proulx, the show's director and a member of the Latinx Theatre Commons' National Advisory Committee, said while the look and feel of this production will be deeply rooted in reality like its original interpretation, CSArts-SGV's rendition will be showcased through a more poetic lens using magical realism; however, the show's specific themes and messages will remain the same.

He said "In the Heights" dives deep into motifs that easily resonate with CSArts-SGV students. Similar to Washington Heights, high school campuses are always growing and changing. Their identities are always in flux, Muñoz-

"This play is a microcosm, a poetic examination, of the joys and fears of transitions. I find this particularly exciting because many of these students are embarking on their own moment of transition as they consider colleges, applications, interviews and auditions," he said.

Additionally, Muñoz-Proulx said he hopes this show encourages the audience to think more deeply about the important moments of their own lives as they relate to the story.

"In the Heights' invites us to consider where we came from, whether we should return, what it took for us to arrive where we are, who's shoulders we stand on, who our ancestors are and what legacies reverberate through our bones," CSArts-SGV is grateful to Glendale Community College for its ongoing partnership. Tickets for "In the Heights" are $25-$30 and available online at sgv.csarts.net/boxoffice.

THE URBAN WILDERNESS

ignoring.

. [Nyerges is the author of 19 books, including "Extreme Simplicity," "Self-Sufficient Home," and "How to Survive Anywhere." Information about his books and classes is available from www.SchoolofSelf-Reliance.com.] My high school days were spent engrossed in the study of mycology, botany, and herbalism. Through the ancient knowledge of the use of wild plants, I saw the very salvation of the world that everyone else seemed to have forgotten and left behind.

I was still young, and not caught up in making money as the primary purpose and goal of my life. I truly thought that the problem with modern society was that there was something that "we" were all missing, or

I moved to my grandfather's farm in rural Ohio, since I believed that perhaps the methods built into farm-living somehow imparted the simplicity and natural self-reliance I was seeking. But - in general - I found that farm people were just like everyone else in wanting the latest gadgets and technological devices as the main means to improve life. I saw some hope and solace in observing the rites of the Amish, who eschewed electricity, and insisted on a life full of manual labor and community involvement. It did not hurt their goals to have large farms and large open spaces where they lived. Still, I was an outsider to the Amish. I wondered if their methods were possible to apply if I did not have a large farmstead, and a large group of likeminded neighbors.

When I returned to California, I was introduced to Richard White, who had recently founded a non-profit specifically to teach city dwellers how to live their daily lives more ecologically. The raison detre of his organization was to learn, study, live, and share techniques of wilderness survival, urban survival, economic survival, political survival, physical survival, and spiritual survival. He was a pioneer in this broad approach to life, and he took more than his share of criticism. I became his student, joined his organization, and let his influence dominate my thinking about the ways I could live more frugally, and get more for

Along the way, I learned many abiding principles which I've more or less followed life-long.

For example, as a part of my involvement with White's non-profit, I was introduced to another pioneer, Marshall Greenwood, about whom an article had been written in the Los Angeles Times. Greenwood was described as "America's Greatest Poor Man," and he wrote a book describing his lifestyle and how he managed to live on $99 a month in his San Diego apartment. In the writings of Greenwood, I found a like-minded person who described the folly of so many of the products of modern life which so many people believe they cannot live without. Greenwood lived a good life without having to pay for all the stuff he considered nonessential. In fact, he discovered – in much the way that Thoreau discovered, as I have discovered – that so many of the trappings of modern life keep us very busy being very busy, but keep us too distracted to live life fully and too often keep us from living our life to its fullest potential. We mistake acquiring a lot of stuff for a truly meaningful and successful life.

At this time, I was living with my parents, practiced organic gardening in the side yard, and bicycled most of the time. I was a student of botany, mycology, and journalism at the local college. Soon, I worked more with White's new non-profit, and taught inner-city youth such skills as fence building, framing small structures, gardening, and landscaping. In that capacity, I became aware of an empty house on a one acre lot in that neighborhood. I occupied that house, fixed it up, and squatted there for a year and a half. As a result of that unique situation, I used the opportunity to practice low-impact self-reliant living. I grew some of my food, and raised some animals. I practiced composting, and used a small wood stove for some of my cooking. I learned to make usable furniture from discarded wood, and I collected and used rain water. All these things I did because I wanted to practice living lightly on the land. I worked all the time, though since I only maintained a few part-time jobs for money, all my practices were very much "low-budget." In fact, more accurately, they were "no-budget."

That was over 40 years ago, and a lot has happened since then as I have continued to seek and find ways to live a low-cost ecological lifestyle. It has never been my intent to do these things in order to coerce others to change their lifestyles. I was concerned about my own personal choices, and the impact of my choices upon the environment. If others found some value in what I did, I always found that to be a good thing. However, I mostly heard (usually third-hand) the negative comments. These included "What he does is very impractical," or "He wouldn't need to do those things if he just got a job," and even "He's a bum." Yes, I understand such feelings.

As I understood from the descendants of the peers of Thoreau, he was by no means admired during his lifetime. Rather, he was regarded as somewhat lazy, a bum, and someone who would not, or could not, hold a job. Thoreau was seen as someone who would rather hang out in the woods with the Indians rather than working at some job in town. Only today is Thoreau's simplicity valued by school teachers and intellectuals who wish to capture those lessons of self-reliance for a modern generation.

HOW TO CHOOSE THE RIGHT HOSPITAL FOR YOU

Dear Savvy Senior:

I need to get a hip replacement, and want to find a good, safe hospital to have it done in. What resources can you recommend for evaluating hospitals? I don't currently have a doctor. Shopping Around

Dear Shopping:

Most people spend more time shopping for a kitchen appliance or flat-screen TV than choosing a hospital. But selecting the right one can be as important as the doctor you choose. Here are some tips and resources to help you research the hospitals in your area.

Hospital Shopping

While you may not always have the opportunity to choose your hospital, especially in the case of an emergency, having a planned procedure can offer you a variety of choices.

When shopping for a hospital, the most important criteria is to choose one that has a strong department in treating your area of need. A facility that excels in coronary bypass surgery, for example, may not be the best choice for a hip replacement. Research shows that patients tend to have better results when they're treated in hospitals that have extensive experience with their specific condition.

In order to choose a hospital that's best for you, it is important to discuss your concerns and alternatives with the doctor who is treating you. Some doctors may be affiliated with several hospitals from which you can choose. Or, if you've yet to select a doctor, finding a top hospital that has expertise with your condition can help you determine which physician to actually choose. Another important reason to do some research is the all too frequent occurrence of hospital infections, which kill around 75,000 people in the U.S. each year. So, checking your hospital's infection rates and cleanliness procedures is also a smart move.

Free Researching Tools

There are a number of free online resources that can help you evaluate and compare hospitals in your area, including:

Medicare's Hospital Compare (Medicare.gov/HospitalCompare): Operated by the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, this tool has data on more than 4,000 U.S. hospitals. Why Not The Best (WhyNotTheBest.org): Created by the Commonwealth Fund, this is a private foundation that provides performance data on all U.S. hospitals.

The Leapfrog Group (LeapfrogGroup.org): This national, not-for-profit organization grades more than 2,000 U.S. hospitals on quality and safety.

These websites use publicly available data to rate hospitals on various measures of performance like death rates from serious conditions such as heart failure and pneumonia, frequency of hospital-acquired infections, patient satisfaction and more.

On these websites, you plug in your location to find hospitals in your area. You can then check to see how well or poorly each hospital manages patients in various conditions.

Two other good sites that can help you choose a good facility include U.S. News & World Report (USNews.com/best-hospitals) and Healthgrades (Healthgrades.com).

U.S News & World Report is an online publication that publishes a hospital ranking in 17 medical specialties like cancer, orthopedics and urology, and rates common procedures and conditions, such as heart bypass surgery, hip and knee replacement and COPD. They also rank hospitals regionally within states and major metro areas.

And Healthgrades, which is a private for-profit organization, provides free hospital ratings on patient safety and medical procedures, and scores hospitals using a 5-star scale. They also provide comprehensive information on most U.S. doctors including their education and training, hospital affiliations, board certification, awards and recognitions, professional misconduct, disciplinary action and malpractice records, office locations and insurance plans.

OUT TO PASTOR

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

PLEASE DON'T MESS WITH MY PEANUT BUTTER

Normally, I'm a rather calm, cool and collected person. Actually, my creditors trying to collect things from me, mostly money, are responsible for this and I have been officially collected. If I could only collect my thoughts, but the pieces are too small and too few.

Anybody who knows me knows I am not easily rattled by anything. I let the chips fall where they may because I know from whence they came. I am not susceptible to the various rumors making their way around on a regular basis.

All the debate about global warming, for example, has not in the least disturbed my personal serenity. Some say the earth is getting warmer while others insist it is getting cooler. Who in the world are you to believe? One scientist frantically reported that if we do not do something quickly in 1500 years, the earth is going to get 10° warmer than it is right now. One can only hope he was not a Rhodes Scholar.

Then there was the hullabaloo about how harmful chocolate was to a person only to be discovered later that it has marvelous health benefits. Pass me another bonbon.

Others took potshots at coffee. Again, it was found that a morning cup of Joe is just the thing to get a person on the go.

I took all of these things in the good-natured way that is typical of Yours Truly. I try not to let anything get my dander up. In fact, I am quite proud of the humble way in which I respond to all of these negativities, usually, with a cup of coffee in one hand and a bonbon in the other.

All was going well until one morning, the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage rattled my cage. She takes great pleasure in doing something like this.

"Have you seen the trouble they are having with peanut butter?"

This caught me by surprise because I had not heard any such thing. My wife went on to explain that, in some cases, they were recalling certain peanut products. Personally, I know a few nuts that need to be recalled.

I do not mind if they fool around with global warming, and recall every car on the planet. I care not what they say about chocolate and coffee, but I go by one simple rule; do not mess with my peanut butter.

My underlying philosophy is, man shall not live by bread alone, he needs a little bit of peanut butter to hold it all together.

I am not sure who invented peanut butter, it might have been God himself; all I know it is the food of the gods. According to Wikipedia, there has never been a time in history when there was not some form of peanut butter.

It is one of the few essential items in this world that nobody can get along without. I can hardly imagine a world without this marvelous concoction, either creamy or crunchy.

There are many things I can get along without, but I cannot get along without my daily ration of peanut butter.

Some people have chocolate as comfort food. Some people's comfort food of choice is a bag of salty potato chips. Others pamper their comfort with ice cream. And I say, to each one his own. My comfort food is simply peanut butter, preferably crunchy.

The thing about peanut butter that is so amazing is it can be used in a variety of ways. I would guess that the list is all but limitless. Hardly a month goes by that I do not discover a new way to enjoy peanut butter.

There, of course, is the traditional peanut butter and jelly sandwich. Every thoughtful and loving mother starts her young brood off on nutritious and delicious peanut butter and jelly sandwichs. If your mother was quite like my mother, she affectionately trimmed the edges, which made the peanut butter all the more delightful.

Need I mention Peanut Butter Cookies, Peanut Butter Fudge, Southern Peanut Butter Soup with Pepper Jelly, Peanut Butter Cheesecake, Peanut Butter Candy, and a Peanut Butter and Chocolate Sundae?

I'm not alone in this appreciation. "To me, peanut butter is the breakfast of champions!" opined Greg Louganis, Olympic Diver. And if anybody should know what a champion eats for breakfast, he should.

Peanut butter can be used for breakfast, lunch and supper. And for all those snacks in between.

Those who know the history of our country will remember that two Presidents of the United States were peanut farmers [Jefferson and Carter]. I am not sure of this, but I think it helped them deal with the nuts at Washington.

Of all the ways to enjoy peanut butter, there is one I prefer above all else. That is simply a nice tablespoon of peanut butter right out of the jar. If a tablespoon is not handy, several fingers will do the trick admirably.

Really, there is no wrong way to enjoy the marvelous taste of peanut butter.

Speaking of comfort food, the Bible has the perfect recipe. "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." (Psalms 23:4).

God has a marvelous way of taking our attention away from the trials of this world and focus our thoughts on Him.

These opioids have caused all kinds of mental confusion and that combined with the prohibition against driving and my difficulty in walking have left me irritated, isolated, and confused probably like manty other Americans.

But today is a new day. It is Wednesday and this is the day my wife and I act as caretakers for my granddaughter who is approaching her first semi-birthday (6 months old.) Because of my lack of mind diverting pain pills and the lessening of pain I have been able to intensely experience my granddaughter today.

I must admit that I had forgotten the ethereal bliss of spending time with a newborn. My first marriage was a stressful one resulting in a separation when my daughter was less than 5 months. My son, who has spent the day with my granddaughter, myself and my wife was diagnosed very early with cerebral palsy and I am afraid that most of the time during his first year I was more concerned with worry than appreciation.

Anyway, that was not the case today. I was able to experience and appreciate the bliss of being with a newly born human being as she experimented with her body, moving her arms, making all kinds of sounds, looking intensely at me cannot be overemphasized. The and then, best of all, being allowed to willingness of the Republican Party watch her face light up as she smiled at me. One forgets the wonderful to the brink of war is a theme that essential nature of every human must be common to all Democratic being which so easily becomes obscured by our judgments, our against another; it is sanity versus competitive nature, our fears, our insanity. We must be reminded of prejudices, our habits, and our what the United States has stood for memories. In order to qualify certain amounts of money inguinal hernia needed to be raised which allowed one billionaire to qualify by donating money to himself. All of the other participants qualified by raising money from various sources and to my mind squabbling for money in a truly degrading exercise.

My total experience of the debate, in contrast with the experience of being near my granddaughter was that it was totally uninspiring and non-memorable. The individual participants argued about who said what first or who said what to whom. A final summation by Elizabeth Warren mentioned many of the important issues which were never discussed.

Specifically, what never discussed was what it meant to be a Democrat. What is the difference between Democrats and Republicans and why should any voter care about Party identity. It is already clear to many of us that the Republican Party has united behind an incompetent, dishonest, disloyal, self-dealing, fraudulent narcissist who is indifferent to and ignorant of American ideals, and history.

As voters we all need to be reminded of what are in fact American ideals and further reminded of the progress that has been made toward reaching the goals of diversity and overall equality and humanitarian ends. The danger to the habitability of the planet and the Republican denial of the dangers associated with climate change to once more bring the country Candidates. It is not one candidate

We were on the way to ballet rehearsal. It's my favorite 30 minutes of the day. It's a chance to break away from work, and to touch base with my only child. She's 14 now.

And it won't be long before she's driving herself. I treasure these moments.

"So," I asked her. "How was school today?"

"We were arguing about whether we're more likely to die from World War III or climate change," she said.

Her response stopped me cold, but I guess I shouldn't have been surprised.

With the dogs of war straining at the leash, the missiles flying in Iran, and our bellicose and unstable commander-in-chief lurching from one scarcely believable justification to the next, the prospect of another American forever war on the other side of the globe didn't seem all that far-fetched.

First up, I disabused her of the notion that any of her classmates might be drafted, reassuring her that there was no such movement afoot on Capitol Hill. Nor would there likely ever be one. The American military remains an all-volunteer force comprised not of the nation's elite, but of the sons and daughters of Main Street America. Trump's voters. Some of my daughter's classmates - if they ever heed the call to serve - may well be among

She seemed relieved at that news. Talking to her about the threat of climate change was another matter entirely.

it seemed to me there were decades remaining before the Earth might ever be rendered uninhabitable because of climate change, I offered. Which didn't mean that we shouldn't do all we can right now, I

'But Australia is burning," she countered, her brown eyes wide with alarm, anger creeping into the edges of her voice.

She had me there. I'd seen the photos of scorched koalas and dead kangaroos. The endless walls of flame. It's difficult to find the words to describe the scale, and the scope, of the ecological and human catastrophe that's unfolding on the other side of

As of this writing, NPR was reporting that a hellish "megafire" comprising an unfathomable 1.5 million acres, an area three times larger than any known brush fire in California, had taken shape in New South Wales and Victoria, the country's most populous states. That's on top of the 135 bushfires in southeastern Australia that have left at least 26 people dead, killed more than 1 billion animals and damaged or destroyed nearly 3,000 homes.

TALKING TO MY DAUGHTER ABOUT WAR & 'MEGAFIRES'

Writing in the New York Times, columnist Paul Krugman observed that, in a more rational time, the fires, which have been partially a result of climate change, "would have represented a turning point."

"After all, it's exactly the kind of catastrophe climate scientists long warned us to expect if we didn't take action to limit greenhouse gas emissions," he wrote. "In fact, a 2008 report commissioned by the Australian government predicted that global warming would cause the nation's fire seasons to begin earlier, end later, and be more intense - starting around 2020."

And all this got me to thinking about the world that we're bequeathing to my daughter and her classmates.

While much is better about the planet, there's still much to be concerned about. And the threat of an uninhabitable globe should lead us to a united search for solutions, not juvenile taunts hurled at a teenager by one of the most powerful people on Earth. Even one dead child in an elementary school classroom should motivate us to find ways to reduce violence, not watch hopelessly as more bodies pile up.

I'm still firm in my belief that it's not too late for us to shrug off all that divides us, and to work together to fight these existential threats.

But that means having a nation that engages with the global community not denigrates it; one that rejects the false choice that less gun violence somehow means fewer rights; and one that doesn't stare each over the trenches, each irrevocably convinced that its way is the only way.

My daughter - and all our children - deserve far better answers than the ones we've been giving them.

Happy birthday When you "publish" to us! something, you are sharing your ideas with others in a "public way." This year, Newspaper Fun is celebrating 15 years of publishing our weekly educational activity page. That may seem like a long time, but some newspapers have been in print for a century or more. Humans have been publishing in one form or another for thousands of years. Cave drawings were the earliest way for people to put their ideas on display for others.

Have you ever dreamed of publishing? This page shows you 12 basic steps for how we do it! Perhaps you can publish a newsletter or web site!

Read the clues to fill in the crossword:

1. _____ a calendar of themes: holidays, seasons, subjects taught in school, events the theme to learn interesting facts and decide how information will be used out ideas for the types of puzzles and how they might fit on a page clues, word banks, directions, hints

the puzzles: crosswords, dot-to-dots, mazes, word searches

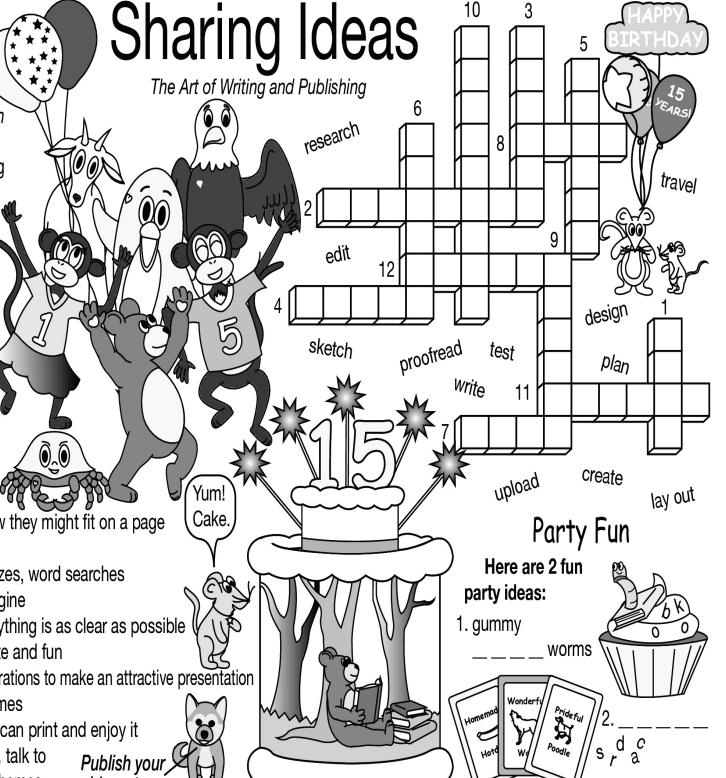

the illustrations and cartoons that we imagine (and tweak) the writing to make sure everything is as clear as possible the puzzles to make sure they are accurate and fun the writing (copy), puzzles and illustrations to make an attractive presentation to look for any errors: spelling, facts, names the final product to a web site so others can print and enjoy it

12. start all over again: _____, visit places, explore, talk to people, take photographs and notes for future themes ideas, too.

Market conditions have been consistently cooling in the past several
