VOLUME 14 NO. 45

THE WEBB-MARTIN GROUP

With so many red hot real estate markets across the country, DIY-minded sellers might get ahead of themselves and decide they can sell their own home.

With low inventory levels and sky-high prices, it might be tempting to stick a sign in the ground and see what they can get (without paying that pesky agent commission, of course).

It'll practically sell itself, right?
Not so fast.

When the buyers don't come running after putting the house up for sale, for-sale-by-owners (FSBOs) are left scratching their heads, perplexed about what's happening. After all, they don't know what they don't know.

Here are six reasons that FSBOs typically find selling much harder than they imagined.

- Your safety is a priority a real estate professional will have the proper protocols in place to protect your belongings and family's health and well-being.
- A powerful online strategy is a must to attract a buyer recent studies from NAR have shown that, the first step 44% of all buyers took when looking for a home was to search online. Throughout the process, that number jumps to 93%.
- As part of their training, agents are taught how to negotiate every aspect of the real estate transaction and how to mediate the emotions felt by buyers looking to make what is probably the largest purchase of their lives.
- Having a buyer who wants to purchase your house is the first step. Making sure they can afford to buy it is just as important. As a FSBO, it's almost impossible to be involved in the mortgage process of your buyer.
- FSBOing has become more difficult from a legal standpoint. In an increasingly litigious society, the agent acts as a third-party to help the seller avoid legal jeopardy. This is one of the major reasons why the percentage of people FSBOing has dropped from 19% to 8% over the last 20+ years.
- A study by collateral analytics revealed that FSBOs don't actually save anything by forgoing the help of an agent. In some cases, the seller may even net less money from the sale. The study found the difference in price between a FSBO and an agent-listed home was an average of 6%.

Listing on your own leaves you to manage the entire transaction by yourself. Why do that when you can hire an agent and still net the same amount of money? Before you decide to take on the challenge of selling your house alone, reach out to one of us to discuss your options.

ARREST OF BURGLARY SUSPECT AND FELON IN POSSESSION OF FIREARM

In the early morning hours of November 5, 2020, a Sierra Madre Police Officer stopped to check an individual in the 100 block W. Sierra Madre Boulevard. The individual was seen loitering near several closed businesses in the area and also appeared under the influence of a stimulant drug.

When contacted, the investigating officer determined the individual was in possession of a 10-speed bicycle and several duffle bags. One of the duffle bags contained a loaded pump-action shotgun. The officer also discovered drug paraphernalia in one of the duffle bags. Further investigation by assisting officers revealed that the individual had taken the shotgun from a residence located on the 100 block S. Baldwin Avenue during a burglary. The burglary was believed to occur just moments before the investigating officer had made contact with the individual.

The individual was identified as John Perales, 30 years old. Perales was arrested for residential burglary, possession of drug paraphernalia, and felon in possession of a firearm, after it was discovered he had several prior arrest and felony convictions. Perales is a transient with a last known address in the City of Whittier.

There is reason to believe the 10-speed bicycle that was in the possession of Perales was also stolen. The Sierra Madre Police Department is seeking further assistance from the public to help identify the owner of the bike.

Any inquires can be made to Detective Raymond So at (626)355-1414 ext. 505. The 10-speed bicycle is a Schwinn Continental and has several unique and distinct features. The owner of the bicycle should be prepared to describe the bicycle and provide identifying features associated with it.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE - The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

“I remember when Halloween was the scariest night of the year. Now it’s Election night.”

“You call my candidate a horse thief, and I call yours a lunatic, and we both of us know that it’s just till election day. It’s an American custom, like eating corn on the cob. And afterwards we settle down quite peaceably and agree we’ve got a pretty good country – until next election.”
Stephen Vincent Benet

Well, the 2020 election – like everything else about 2020 – has been interesting to say the least. Here it is Thursday, two days later, and we still aren’t exactly sure who won and, according to the news people, it may be several days yet before we know who our next President is going to be. Meanwhile, Susan Henderson, Editor of the Mountain Views News, is tapping her toe and checking her watch as I, and probably others who write for the News, are still dawdling over what to say.

Here’s what I have to say...mercifully, there won’t be any more political advertising. There won’t be any more things hanging on my door advising...exhorting...pleading to vote for this person or that issue. There won’t be any more TV ads extolling the virtues of or casting shame on this candidate or that one. My phone won’t ring with a recorded message on the other end telling me the world will end if I don’t vote YES on this or NO on that. No more stuffing my mailbox with shiny cardboard junk that goes immediately into the recycle bin, self-promoting of one candidate and assassinating the character of another.

No, we don’t know for sure who it’s going to be, but gratitude abounds that we don’t have to endure any more campaign anything. Now we can get back to the important issues ahead like what are we going to do about Thanksgiving. Can we have the whole family over for turkey and cranberry sauce, or just some of the family. How will we manage the dining table where we have put in extra chairs, the piano bench, the stool from the kitchen and borrowed folding chairs in order to seat everybody. Do we all have to sit six feet apart? Do we need to wear masks? I don’t know if you’ve seen that thing on Facebook where there’s a picture of a glorious turkey, golden brown and delicious, and a statement that says: “You can invite 30 people to a funeral and six people to a social gathering. Therefore, I am inviting everybody in the family to a celebration of the life of our turkey on Thanksgiving Day.”

And, speaking of Thanksgiving Day, I’m going to share my mashed potato recipe. Well, actually, it’s Jackie Olden’s mashed potato recipe that I clipped out of the Los Angeles Times about thirty years ago and adjusted over time to this current version. This is so incredibly good that I’ve made it every year and there are seldom any leftovers.

8-10 good sized russet potatoes, peeled and cooked in salted water just till tender. Don’t overcook as then your potatoes will be watery and pathetic.

1 to 2 cups sour cream
6 TB butter
8 oz cream cheese
1/3 cup finely chopped chives
Salt and pepper
Grated Cheddar Cheese

OK, drain your potatoes well and immediately add the butter and the cream cheese as the hot potatoes will melt these. Gently stir in the rest of the ingredients and when you get to the cheddar cheese, put in as much as will make you happy. In this glorious age where you can get grated cheese in a bag in a variety of flavors, just put in as much as you like. If necessary, add a little milk to get the consistency you want. Grease a large casserole dish and put in your mashed potatoes and cover. You can make these potatoes a couple days ahead and then reheat them in a 350-degree oven. Trust me, these are no-fail potatoes!

Just one more word on the election...if you find you’d like to celebrate, or if you want to drown your sorrows, have I got a champagne punch for you!

2 bottles reasonable decent champagne
1 28 oz. bottle club soda
1 28 oz. bottle ginger ale
1 bottle white wine
1 12 oz. bottle apricot brandy

If you start with all your ingredients already chilled, you won’t need too much ice. Put all this in your punch bowl, throw in a few ice cubes, stir and serve. These sizes of bottles may not exist anymore, but approximate, dear friends and neighbors. Serve in small punch cups. It’s delightful and pretty strong. Perfect for celebrating or drowning.

How nice to see the lovely celebration of Bud Switzer’s life and family put on by the Parkers, Cardellas, Blakeslees, Bielys, and all Bud’s friends on Alegria this past Halloween. Thank you for doing that. He would have loved it.

The picture this week is of a Great Horned Owl, photograph by Sierra Madre’s own Ken Fong. It’s a totally non-political statement.

Pasadena Set to Salute All Military Veterans

The City of Pasadena will again pause to remember Veterans Day and salute all our military veterans, although this year because of the pandemic the city's event will not be held publicly.

Pasadena's Veterans Day Committee, in collaboration with Pasadena Media, has produced a special one hour tribute that will be broadcast at 11 a.m. on Wednesday. Event organizers said this year the guest speaker will be a female veteran, Staff Sergeant (SSgt) Shamoneka Collins, a Pasadena Marine from the 2nd Battalion 23rd Marine Regiment.

SSgt Collins was born in Greensboro, Alabama, and has been on active duty for over 10 years.

SSgt Collins' awards include the Navy and Marine Corps Commendation Medal, Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medal with 1 gold star in lieu of second award, Marine Corps Good Conduct medal with bronze star lieu of third award, Military Outstanding Volunteer Service Medal, and various other citations. To view the broadcast or more information visit: pasadenamedia.org or about Pasadena visit: cityofpasadena.net.

City Confirms First MIS-C Case Related to Covid-19

The first confirmed case of multisystem inflammatory syndrome in children (MIS-C) in a Pasadena resident was reported to the Pasadena Public Health Department (PPHD) last week. The child had been hospitalized. This brings the total cases of MIS-C in Los Angeles, Pasadena and Long Beach Public Health Jurisdictions to 43 children, as of October 23, and the total reported in the state is 126 children Monday.

"MIS-C is a rare but serious complication associated with COVID-19. It's a condition where different body parts, such as the heart, lungs, kidneys, brain, skin, eyes or gastrointestinal organs, become inflamed. We do not yet know what causes MIS-C, but it's another unfortunate reminder of the seriousness of the COVID-19 pandemic," said Dr. Ying-Ying Goh, Health Officer and Director of the Pasadena Public Health Department. "The best way to protect your child is by taking actions to prevent your child and the entire household from getting the virus that causes COVID-19. Follow the 'Three Ws' and wear a face covering, wash your hands, and watch your distance by staying at least six feet away from people who do not live in your immediate household and avoid gatherings."

Pasadena is experiencing an increase in COVID-19 cases. Confirmed cases of COVID-19 in both Pasadena and Los Angeles County public health jurisdictions have reached peaks not experienced since mid-August. Case rates are increasing in all age groups, but the highest rates of increase are among those ages 18-40.

Gordo Declares Victory in Mayoral Race

As of Friday, Mayoral Candidate Victor Gordo (pictured) maintained a sizable lead over incumbent Mayor Terry Tornek. With 49,795 votes or 54.52 percent, Gordo declared victory Thursday.

In a statement Gordo said that voters showed they wanted change and to take the city in a different direction. Adding that he is ready to work with Pasadena residents and the city council "to move our city forward during this challenging time."

Gordo also said the election was never about one person but about all the people of Pasadena.

If Gordo wins, he will be sworn in on Dec. 7., along with newly elected Councilwoman Felicia Williams and Councilmembers Steve Madison, Gene Masuda and Tyron Hampton.

During debates, in September and October, while focusing on topics such as, the Black Lives Matter movement and the Covid-19 Pandemic, Gordo was asked if he had reevaluated this political positions?

"You can't not be transformed by the issues of late," Gordo said. "When Covid... struck, many of you saw me jump right in, I was here, I was working, I went out and met with small business owners, restaurateurs." He added that "everyone needed to 'take stock,' in all social issues and to be leaders."

Gordo was born in Zacatecas, Mexico, arrived in the United States at the age of five. Together with his family, he has lived in Pasadena ever since. Gordo has served on the city council since 2001.

In a statement, on Tuesday, Tornek said the outcome was clear that voters preferred someone other than him. Tornek did not mention Gordo by name. Tornek also said he was grateful for the opportunity but disappointed he will not longer be part of the city's leadership.

In other News, Incumbent Anthony Portantino defeated Kathleen Hazelton in the general election for California State Senate District 25, which includes all of Pasadena, Altadena and other foothill communities. Portantino received 230,289 votes or 65.5 percent to Hazelton's 121,564 votes or 34.5 percent.

The Pasadena City Services Protection Measure (Measure P) passed with 83.73 percent of the vote. If the Measure had failed it would have resulted in an annual loss of nearly $18 million that support emergency 911 response, fire, paramedic, public health programs for the community, senior services, homelessness and housing programs, street repairs, and other general services and programs Measure P supporters said.

TINA WU FREDERICKS CLAIMS VICTORY IN PASADENA UNIFIED DISTRICT 6 RACE

With 11,503 ballots counted as reported by the LA County Registrar, Tina Wu Fredericks claimed victory in her year long campaign for Pasadena Unified School Board District 6. Since election night, Wu Fredericks has consistently held a 10-point lead over the field with over 1000 more votes than the second highest vote-getter. She attributes her success to her campaign ground game and large pool of dedicated volunteers. "COVID-19 and fires did not deter us. We talked to voters through door cracks and closed windows, wearing face masks and did so despite 100 degree temperatures and bad air quality at times," said Wu Fredericks. "How I led my campaign is how I will lead as a future PUSD Board member: bringing a community together around a shared vision and shared values. This community believes in public education and understands that public schools can be the great equalizer in a sometimes unjust and inequitable society."

Wu Fredericks is disappointed by the failure of California Proposition 15 but remains hopeful about the passage of Measure O that won with 62% of total votes. "Measure O will allow PUSD to be technologically competitive with private schools while saving money for the district through energy efficient upgrades," said Wu Fredericks. "To maintain public trust, it's important for PUSD to improve on the process of the citizen oversight committee, which should actively demonstrate that expenditures are truly essential to the intent of the bond," said Wu Fredericks. She pledges to continue to advocate for her campaign's platform: smaller class sizes, hiring more teachers, and ensuring that every school has a librarian, nurse, custodian, and counselor by leaning on our state and federal elected officials to raise California's 41st ranking in per-pupil spending.

Wu Fredericks concluded, "Most importantly, I want to thank all the voters of District 6 for the opportunity to earn their vote. Our campaign persevered through many challenges with an open heart and mind, integrity and hard work. We did this together. I look forward to rolling up my sleeves to continue to fight for all students in PUSD, Because Our Kids Are Worth It!"

ABOUT THE SHOW:

In The Realistic Joneses, we meet Bob and Jennifer and their new neighbors, John and Pony, two suburban couples who have even more in common than their identical homes and their shared last names. As their relationships begin to irrevocably intertwine, the Joneses must decide between their idyllic fantasies and their imperfect realities. This contemporary comedy explores how our joys and sorrows - and how we choose to face them - can come to define our lives.

"Plays as funny and moving, as wonderful and weird as The Realistic Joneses, by Will Eno, do not appear often on Broadway. Or ever, really." - The New York Times

Playwright Will Eno is the author of twenty produced and published plays. He won the Drama Desk Award for The Realistic Joneses and The Open House. His play Thom Pain (Based on Nothing) was nominated for the Pulitzer Prize. The Realistic Joneses premiered on Broadway in 2014.

Happy Tails

by Chris Leclerc

Being There

Autumn greetings, everyone. My hope and prayer is that you are all staying healthy, happy and able to find some semblance of peace and serenity as we move closer into the 2020 holiday season. It's been a long, Generally speaking, I've found the passage of time to be very kind to me. Slightly shy of 60 now, I really don't feel my age. However - as I'm sure many might agree - this particular year has been quite a bear. But, one must always be prepared for that random curve ball that life might throw their way. I mean, no one is guaranteed a winning hand in the game of life, right? I wish you all the best, as we navigate through this weird new way of living.

Over the past 10+ years, I've written much about animals and nature in this column. I've told tales of precious pets with special talents. I've shared stories about my canine and kitty clients. I've vented over animal cruelty and exploitation. I've shared information about organizations that help animals in need. Indeed, this column has been a god-send for me to put my thoughts out there, in black and white. So to those who've read and appreciated what I've written, I'd like to thank you from the bottom of my heart.

Now, let's get on with this week's story.

One morning while futzing around in the garden department at the Home Depot in Monrovia, I heard what I assumed was a bird in distress. I wasn't sure that what I heard was a bird, but it was such a high-pitched, repetitive sound, my best guess was just that - a would-be fledgling must have fallen from a nest and is calling out in distress. I immediately went into rescue mode and began searching about rather frantically, under tables where plants were displayed, behind crates and containers of trees surrounding the periphery of the outdoor garden area. As I searched, I'd pause periodically to listen and try to follow the sound of that poor creature crying out for help.

At the risk of being perceived as a nut-job, I asked a few nearby shoppers if they could hear the same cry I was hearing, but it seemed I was the only one paying any attention. Folks often act funny in public, don't they? Almost as if they're afraid to interact with other humans. I've always been mystified by that. Animals do such a better job of cohabitating and interacting than we humans do. Anyway, I kept listening and looking. There was no way I was going to give up on finding whatever was sending out that desperate S.O.S. signal!

It wasn't long before I realized that what I'd assumed to be a baby bird chirping, was not that at all. I knew it had to be a kitten crying, and I finally found the source of that saddening, maddening sound. It was a tiny black cat hiding inside an abandoned shopping cart, scared half out of its wits. Without hesitation, I grabbed the little kitty up and held him close to my chest. Well, I say I held him close, but the truth is, he held me close. That sweet kitty clawed its way up into the nape of my neck and hid its tiny face tightly behind my ear! I'll never forget that feeling. To him, in that desperate moment, it seemed I was his only refuge. I was immediately smitten by that little kitten.

The next thing I knew, I was rushing out the front door of the store, intently focused on getting to my car before my new-found friend got spooked into jumping out of my arms and running away where I may not be able to catch him again. But as I meandered through the parking lot isles and finally found my car, I realized that the little kitty had no intention of jumping or running away. He was hugging tight, already purring loudly into my ear and melting my heart.

We finally got inside the car, where I let the poor boy go to roam freely, and hoped that he would get comfortable enough to relax so we could have a safe ride home. He seemed so relieved to be tucked away with someone he could trust. He really did look genuinely relaxed, so I started the engine and we headed home. It's funny, isn't it? How certain memories stay with us while others so easily slip away. I'll never forget that drive from Home Depot to Sierra Madre that day. There have been countless, certainly more 'important' events that have occurred in my life since then, that I cannot recall. But that drive home with my newly-beloved little black cat all those years ago, has remained as clear to me as if it happened yesterday.

When we arrived home, Rick happened to be in the front yard and saw me emerge from the driver's side door, holding my new little friend. I told Rick how the kitty and I had met, and he was more than happy to welcome a new pet into the family. I told him that during our ride home, the little fella had become so comfortable he'd deposited a poop in the backseat of the car! That's when Rick announced that he had a great name for our new kitten. "Shat", he said... because that's how he made his mark of identity on this new-found family of his.

"OK", I said. "Shat it shall be. But that can only be his nickname. The proper name for this little lad, the most recent add to the Leclerc clan shall be, 'Chauncey'. 'Chauncey Gardner', named after my favorite character in the film, 'Being There'. It made total sense to me. It fit him perfectly. After all, I found the little guy in the garden department and I knew that he would do great and amazing things, by just being himself. Just Being There. And indeed, he did. We miss you immensely, sweet Chauncey. Aka "Shat".

Even though you need help each day, we agree that you're still in charge

Many seniors fear that moving out of their home into an assisted living residence means forfeiting control of their lives. At The Kensington, nothing could be further from the truth. We believe it is our role to support our residents, not to assume complete decision-making authority. Of course, as specialists in caring for older adults, we monitor routines, behavior and mood every day. If we see changes that concern us, then we talk with residents and their families immediately. Together, we all decide about making adjustments to care and services to preserve comfort, wellness and morale.

We regard ourselves as our residents' champion, not their boss.
Call or visit soon to learn about our collaborative approach to assisted living.

PLEASE SUPPORT YOUR LOCAL NEWSPAPER!

Well, we've made it to another Birthday! Since 2006, I have been publishing a weekly newspaper in the San Gabriel Valley specifically covering the cities of Sierra Madre, Arcadia, Monrovia, Duarte, Pasadena, and also South Pasadena, Altadena and San Marino. It was August 4, 2007 however, when the first edition of the Mountain Views Observer (now know as the Mountain Views News) was published! My how time flies! That is a total of 698 CONSECUTIVE weeks; approximately 12,564 pages; more than 7 million print readership! Our website traffic exceeded 4 million page reads in 2019 alone! I am pretty proud of what we have accomplished over the last 14 years, despite huge economic challenges, such as the 40% tariff on newsprint that comes from China and has adversely impacted print media in the United States or

In March, when we reached out to you for help we expected that by May at the very least the Emergency would be over. We could not have imagined in our wildest dreams that in August the crisis would still be with us. As indicated in the beginning, the Mountain Views News has survived primarily on the paper's ability to publish legal notices and the support of our advertisers many of whom are also impacted by the COVID19 virus. However, that has all changed. We were informed mid-March that the County of Los Angeles closed all public access to buildings that process legal notices. Such action, while absolutely necessary means that the income generated from the publication of the Fictitious Business Notices came to an abrupt halt and that has not changed. Without the ability to publish those legal notices, continued publication of the Mountain Views News remains in jeopardy.

California's AB5 which is another threat to newspapers statewide, we survived.

And then.....2020 and COVID-19 happened! To date, we are still alive and moving forward. We are proceeding cautiously and are committed to continue providing you with accurate information about your community.

With your help, however, we can continue to sustain the only paper where your community news comes first while we work on alternatives to the current legal notice processing is found or LA County Buildings allow public access again.

Remember, print media is the only source of information that CANNOT BE HACKED! What you read in the Mountain Views News is accurate and as publisher, I stand behind every word. Our sources are reliable and dependable. Our Opinions share both sides of the argument. Community events and local organization activities are also an integral part of what we provide each week. And, while we do have an online presence, each week thousands of print copies are distributed.

Below are 4 ways that you can help sustain your local paper. All support is greatly appreciated.

Thank you in advance. Susan Henderson, Owner/ Publisher/ Editor
