SUFFOLK APARTMENT PROJECT MOVES FORWARD

By Kevin McGuire

In December 2020, Mountain Views News provided new information regarding the Housing Element update and how it may affect Sierra Madre.

It was estimated that California is in need of 200,000 new housing units to keep up with the booming population. Sierra Madre's goal in that big picture was to present options to meet its goal of 204 new housing units.

One of the proposed sites is 30 Suffolk Ave. Currently, this property contains two lots containing a single-family house and detached garage. There is a pending application waiting for approval to merge these two lots.

The plan? A 5-unit apartment project consisting of two buildings. One building housing four units and the second building for one additional unit. The project already has some residents unhappy and concerned. Some concerns raised include changing the small-town character and landscape of the beautiful city of Sierra Madre.

"We know that our city has rightfully resisted the mansionization and overbuilding that other cities have succumbed to. If approved, two beautiful Municipal Co mature oak trees located in the parkway will be severely pruned and a 15-foot setback will be allowed rather than the standard 25-foot setback so the builders can build the oversized project," said resident Kathy Watson.

According to Vincent Gonzalez, Director of Planning & Community Preservation, the property is zoned R-3 (Multi-family Residential). Pursuant to Sierra Madre Municipal Code 17.28.080(D), a front yard setback of 15 feet is permitted on the first floor and a front yard setback of 25 feet is permitted for the second floor.

As far as the two oak trees? "Observation made by a certified arborist have been reported and included as part of the record for the public to review. The reports indicate that pruning will be necessary and that all pruning shall be done with a certified arborist on site overseeing the work to ensure that no significant damage is done to the Oak trees," Gonzalez said.

Project plans, elevation, grading, and tree impact have been reviewed by the Planning, Public Works, and Fire Departments. Review of construction plans by the Building and Safety Department will follow approval of the request to build the project as proposed, according to Gonzalez.

So far, the project has met all development standards except one, the floor area is too big, by 1,300 square-feet pushing the gross floor area to 9,935 square feet. But, pursuant to Sierra Madre

In addition to density concerns, residents are also very concerned about the fate of the two old oak trees picture above.

Municipal Code Chapter 17.34 (Affordable Housing), because the development proposes 20% of the base density units as affordable at a moderate-income level, the development is entitled to two concessions or incentives. A request has been made to cash in one of those incentives for the additional floor area proposed.

As parking is always a concern, each unit will have a two-car garage. Units are expected to be affordable at the moderate-income level.

Well, doesn't the community have a say? Why wasn't there a City Council meeting? No public forum?

There is no requirement to present this project before City Council. It's not a procedural requirement, does not require a Conditional Use Permit or a Design Review Permit. No public forum is needed either.

As for maintaining that small-town feel, "The City recognizes that the development is in substantial conformance with development standards and is consistent with similar uses in the neighboring vicinity. Measures will be taken to ensure protection of the oak trees is maintained through the duration of the construction and pruning of roots and branches will not exceed that which the arborist has recommended. Should any impacts to the trees beyond those anticipated occur, recommended mitigation for those trees will take place," Gonzalez assures.

CAN'T CONNECT? HELP MAY BE ON THE WAY

Sierra Madre has always been known for its beautiful landscapes, lovely homes and an array of unique, specialty shops and restaurants. It has that small town feel and a strong sense of community.

But, among all the great qualities this town has, it has a bad reputation for one thing—Internet. "The Blackhole of the San Gabriel Valley," some have called it with it's dropped calls, buffering videos and frozen Zoom screens. But, one day soon, Sierra Madreans may be zipping from website to website on something much faster than 90s quality connections.

On Tuesday, January 12th 2021 during the first City Council meeting of the New Year, the City approved a land lease and revenue agreement with Eukon Group to build a new AT&T cell phone tower in Sierra Madre. Other cell phone providers will be able to lease space on the newly constructed tower as well.

The new tower will be built next to City Hall on the West side of the public safety building, according to the report presented by City Manager, Gabe Engeland. The City is expected to generate $30,000 in annual revenue from the project. Monies earned will be available in the General Fund. The tower will take up about 240 square feet on the City-owned property. This includes air space. The lease term will be five years with the chance to extend for an additional four to five years.

But, those anxious to talk to grandma without getting cut off mid-sentence, will have to wait approximately six months before the tower is up and operational.

The City Council meeting took place during its new time slot of 4 p.m. and featured its new lineup including Mayor Rachelle Arizmendi, Mayor Pro Tem Gene Goss, Council Member Kelly Kriebs, Council Member Rober Parkhurst, Council Member Edward Garcia and Assistant City Clerk Laura Aguilar.

The vote was unanimous and the public can view the report and lease agreement on the City website www.cityofsierramadre.com. Kevin McGuire/MVNews

A WORD FROM THE CHIEF

to tell you that community has continued its downward trend in crime, seeing a 15% drop in overall crime for 2020, and that included an almost 50% drop in burglaries. Sierra Madre continues to be one of the safest cities in all of California. [Sierra Madre had a crime score of 16.5, which was well below the average of 46.8 for midsize cities between 10,000 and 100,000 residents.

Sierra Madre's violent crime rate was 2.1 per 1000 residents, compared with an average of 8.1 per 1000 across all midsize cities. The city's property crime rate was 7.2 per 1000 residents. Statewide, the average property crime rate in midsize cities was 21.3 per 1000. You can see our complete study and the rest of the cities here: https://advisorsmith.com/data/

Even with that, it is important that we as a community continue to work together to keep our community safe for all people to visit, work, live and play. Below are some steps that can be taken to help make your home less appealing to burglars and more difficult to break into.

Scout your home for weaknesses.

safest-cities-in-california.}

Have you ever took the time to look for ways to break in your home as if you lost your keys? This may sound silly, but although not for the same reasons, this is exactly what burglars do. If you can easily tell that a window could be pried open, a thief will defi-nitely be able to come to the same conclusion.

How secure are your side gates?

Are they locked, low and easily scaleable?

Padlocks on side gates can be a pain when it comes to taking the trash out, but many burglary victims will tell you finding comfort after your home has been intruded will be far more uncomfortable. Most daytime burglars want to enter from an off the street entry

How secure are your vehicle and pedestrian garage doors? Garages are a gold mine for burglars because they contain bicycles, tools, and lawn equipment, all highly desired easy to sell items.

Keep shrubbery around entrances and Rodrick Armalin walkways trimmed. The last thing you want | Chief, Sierra Madre Police Department is to make it easier for a thief to hide when (626)355-1414 attempting to break in, so eliminate his op- | rarmalin@cityofsierramadre.com

I am very happy tions for hiding spots. You could even plant thorny shrubs, and there are many beauti-ful versons, by your windows to make it not only difficult to break in, but painful.

> How much lighting do you have around your home? Burglars more than anything want to not be seen. Something as simple as an motion sensitive light can be a power-ful deterent to crime.

> Don't advertise! Take note of any expensive electronics, art, or furniture that is easily spotted through windows. You don't have to redecorate your entire home to keep ex-pensive items out of sight, but it doesn't hurt to make small adjustments where you can. No need to tempt thieves any more than you have

Keep your yard free of toys, tools, and ladders. A yard littered with toys signals to a thief that the house may be filled with equally interesting entertainment, like game consoles, tablets, or laptops.

Additional Steps

Consider forming a neighborhood watch program. This will give you the opportunity to get to know your neighbors better and create an invaluable awareness and commitment to crime prevention in your area. You can contact SMPD for information and assistance developing the program.

Consider a home security systems. Many companies are making response no-tififcation systems much more affordable, and there are audible alarms available as well....burglars hate noise.

Notify neighbors when on vacation. If you are going on vacation or your home is go-ing to be unoccupied for a number of days, let your neighbors (neighborhood watch club) know. Just knowing that you are not home will cause them to pay closer attention to your property, and question why that harmless carpet cleaning company van is parked in front of your home. Also, remember to schedule vacation checks with SMPD.

We live and work in one of the safest communities in all of California....TOGETHER, we will keep it that way.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE - The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"When Life gives you lemons, tell Life to get a Life, 'cause lemons are a terrible gift!" Patrick Schell

"I believe that if life gives you lemons you should make lemonade then try to find somebody whose life has given them Vodka and have a party!"

Ron White "When life gives you lemons, grab the Tequila and salt!"

The week we've just had certainly could make one think it was loaded with lemons, what with Covid continuing to take beloved friends from us, distance learning making our children crazy, the Capitol being attacked by bizarre persons wearing fur-trimmed Viking horned hats and other assorted atrocities. Tequila and salt sounds like it might take our mind off some of this.

But here's another alternative you could consider. The picture is of three of the lemons that are on my lemon tree. There are three others, but these are so lovely. They won't be there long, however, as I am intending to make Lemon Bars with them. Yes, I'm still four pounds heavier than I want to be, but I NEED these Lemon Bars. If you've got a lemon or two, you can have some, too.

These are easy, don't take long to make and you can enjoy them almost immediately.

1/3 cup butter 1/4 cup sugar

1 cup flour

In your electric mixer bowl, beat butter on medium to high speed for 30 seconds. Add 1/4 cup sugar; beat until combined. Beat in 1 cup flour until crumbly. Press mixture into the bottom of an ungreased 8-inch square baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 15-18 minutes or until just golden.

Meanwhile, for filling:

2 eggs

3/4 cup sugar

2 tb. flour

2 tb. finely grated lemon peel (more is good, lots more is better)

3 tb. lemon juice

1/4 tsp. baking powder

Whip eggs in same bowl you used for the crust. Add 3/4 cup sugar, 2 tb. flour, lemon peel, lemon juice and baking powder. Beat 2 minutes or until combined. Pour filling over baked layer. Bake 20 minutes more or until lightly browned around edges and center is set. Sprinkle powdered sugar over top after it has cooled.

You will feel better as soon as you eat two or three or the whole pan of these. Trust me! I realize every other commercial on TV is for Nutrisystem, GoLo (not even sure what that is), and that Peloton exercise bike that leans to the left then leans to the right with some sweating person peddling for all they're worth while an instructor screams at them from the screen in front of them. Ignore that. Have a lemon bar.

A little more about thoughts for the New Year...not resolutions, just thoughts...

"Good persons need to be talked about."

"We have to choose JOY and keep choosing it every day." Henri J. M. Nouwen

"The road to success is dotted with many tempting parking spaces."

"Everything I need to know, I learned from Noah the Ark builder: Don't miss the boat.

Remember that we are all in the same boat.

Plan ahead. It wasn't raining when Noah built the Ark. Stay fit. When you're 60 or 70 years old, someone may ask you to do something really big. Don't listen to critics, just get on with the job that needs to be done.

Build your future on high ground. For safety's sake, travel in pairs.

Speed isn't always an advantage. The snails were on board with the cheetahs. When you're stressed, float a while. (Or have a lemon bar.)

10. Remember, the Ark was built by amateurs, the Titanic by professionals.

11. No matter what the storm is, when you're with God, there's always a rainbow waiting."

"Have courage for the great sorrows of life, and patience for the small ones. And when you have laboriously accomplished your daily tasks, go and sleep, in peace. God is awake!' Victor Hugo

There now, Lemon Bars and encouraging words...almost as good as Tequila and salt.

Application for CPOC Now Online

The city is now accepting applications for the initial nominations for appointment to the Community Police Oversight Commission, with appointments to occur in the coming weeks. The application for those interested in serving as a commission member is now available online.

In October 2020, the city council established the CPOC by ordinance. The purpose of the commission is to enhance, develop, and trengthen communityrelations, and review and make recommendations regarding the ongoing operations of the Pasadena Police Department to the chief of police, city manager, and/or city council.

The CPOC will be composed of 11 members, with each city council member nominating one (for a total of eight), and three members nominated from community-based organizations. No later than 90 days after appointment to the commission, commissioners must participate in a ridealong with the Pasadena Police Department, and receive 30 hours of training in relevant subject matter areas. Further information about qualifications and duties of commissioners can be found in the Pasadena Municipal Code, Chapter 2.60.

In the near future, the city council will consider and adopt by resolution a policy for appointment of members to the Community Police Oversight Commission. Those who are interested in serving are encouraged to apply immediately to be part of the pool of applicants to be considered for the initial appointments to the 11 available vacant positions.

For questions, additional information, or to be sent an application by mail, please contact the mayor's office at (626) 744-4333.

Cheeseburger Week Goin' Take-out, not Goin' to Texas

Multiple Pasadena eateries celebrate 1924's invention of the cheeseburger in Pasadena with delicious offerings, specials and more. Sample as many as you 🤝 can and vote for your favorite in the Cheeseburger Challenge Pasadena celebrates the invention of the cheeseburger in the city in 1924, 40 restaurants, burger joints and more take part in the citywide celebration. For now, Cheeseburger Week is a take-out event. (Should Governor Newsom relax outdoor dining restrictions, that could change.)

During Cheeseburger Week from January 24th to January 29th, Pasadena honors Lionel Sternberger's genius in being the first to put cheese on a hamburger and serve it at the Rite Spot in Pasadena in 1924. Forty of Pasadena's favorite restaurants, lounges and burger joints offer their signature burgers, some special creations and great deals during Pasadena Cheeseburger Week.

In 1924, as legend has it, teenaged Lionel Sternberger (pictured) burned one side of a hamburger patty at The Rite Spot, his father's roadside stand along Colorado Boulevard (then Colorado Street) in west Pasadena. Rather than throw away the spoiled burger, he masked his mistake with a piece of cheese and served it to a very appreciative customer. Word soon spread and customers flocked to The Rite Spot for The Aristocratic Burger, A Hamburger with Cheese. Sternberger's achievement is the first verified instance of someone serving a hamburger with cheese to a customer.

Over the years, Sternberger perfected his Aristocratic Burger, much to the delight of customers at The Rite Spot. Sternberger's culinary achievement has been documented by Hamburger America, the Los Angeles Times and even Time magazine in its obituary of Sternberger.

To celebrate Sternberger's culinary masterpiece, Pasadena restaurants are offering specials, unique creations and the tried and true. Patrons can experience a terrific take-out opens January 24, and ends burger experience, from top-of-

AS COVID-19 VACCINE ROLLOUT CONTINUES, RESIDENTS REMINDED TO STAY HOME TO STOP THE SPREAD OF COVID-19

The Los Angeles County Department of Public Health (Public Health) confirmed 258 new deaths and 15,051 new cases of CO-VID-19. To date, Public Health identified 989,928 positive cases of COVID-19 across all areas of L.A. County and a total of 13,489 deaths. L.A. County is likely to record over 1 million total cases this weekend.

Of the 258 new deaths reported today, 95 people who passed away were over the age of 80, 79 people who died were between the ages of 65 and 79, 60 people who died were between the ages of 50 and 64 and 13 people who died were between the ages of 30 and 49 and one person who died was between the ages of 18 and 29. Seven deaths were reported by the City of Long Beach and three deaths were reported by the City of Pasadena.

There are 7,715 people with COVID-19 currently hospitalized and 22% of these people are in the ICU. For most of this week, the number of people hospitalized with COVID-19 each day remained slightly under 8,000 patients. While the number of patients hospitalized daily with COVID-19 decreased slightly, healthcare workers and ICU capacity remains strained. According to the State, the Southern California Region continues to have 0% available ICU capacity.

Testing results are available for more than 5,154,000 individuals with 18% of people testing positive.

The most important action for everyone to take to stop the spread of COVID-19 and save lives is to stay home and not mingle with others not in your household.

As of Thursday, more than 279,000 doses of vaccine including more than 219,000 first doses and more than 60,000 second doses have been administered to healthcare workers and residents and staff at skilled nursing facilities in Phase 1A. The County is in the process of offering vaccinations to all remaining healthcare workers in Phase 1A. While many frontline healthcare workers have already received their first dose, we estimate an additional 450,000 healthcare workers need to be vaccinated.

There are many healthcare partners vaccinating healthcare workers, including select pharmacies and health clinics. To bolster vaccination efforts for remaining healthcare workers who are eligible for a vaccine in Phase 1A, next week, Public Health is opening five new large-capacity vaccination sites across the county for frontline healthcare workers in Phase 1A. Healthcare workers must register for an appointment in advance and must bring identification with to learn more about the COVID-19 vaccine, how it was developed, showing up for their vaccine. Healthcare workers should visit the signup website to register.

With support from our many partners and the opening of the large-capacity vaccination sites, Public Health anticipates the remaining healthcare workers will be vaccinated with their first dose in the next two weeks. Beginning next week, Public Health will be working with healthcare providers and pharmacies to get ready to vaccinate people 65 and older once our vaccine allocation increases. This way we can continue with our commitment to vaccinate healthcare workers while getting ready for Phase 1B.

Visit: www.VaccinateLACounty.com to learn about the vaccination phases, determine when you can get vaccinated, and sign-up for our CO-VID-19 vaccine newsletter.

"To all people grieving the loss of a loved one to COVID-19, we are deeply sorry for your loss and wish you peace," said Barbara Ferrer, PhD, MPH, MEd, Director of Public Health. "As vaccine supply allows, we want to expand vaccinations and move through the tiers as quickly as possible. We are very hopeful that our allocation of doses increases enough for us to begin vaccinating seniors before the end of the month. As vaccine supply improves, more residents will become eligible for vaccinations. It will take a number of months to reach the level of vaccination needed in the population to curb ongoing transmission of the virus."

While the vaccination process is underway, it is imperative that everyone continues to follow the straight-forward measures needed to prevent spread of the virus--wearing a face covering, avoiding gatherings, keeping your distance, and washing your hands frequently. Individuals with underlying health conditions and those that are older should remain in their home and not be around others unless seeking essential medical

HOW LONG DOES THE CORONAVIRUS LIVE ON SURFACES?

The coronavirus that causes COVID-19 | utes on paper, while others live for up to 5 mainly spreads from person to person. Transmission from person to person can happen through larger droplets from sneezes and coughs but there is also growing evidence that smaller particles called aerosols can hang in the air longer and travel farther. These aerosols may also play a part in transmission.

A variety of studies are looking at how long the virus stays alive on a variety of surfaces. It is still unclear if this increases the chance of transmission. From what we know so far transmission from surfaces is much lower risk than person to per-son.

Still, it is possible (though not as likely) to catch the virus if you touch a surface or object that has the virus on it and then touch your mouth, nose, or eyes.

Coronavirus: What you Need to Know

The coronavirus can live for hours to days on surfaces like countertops and door-knobs. How long it survives depends on the material the surface is made from.

Here's a guide to how long coronaviruses the family of viruses that includes the one that causes COVID-19 -- can live on some of the surfaces you probably touch every day.

Keep in mind that researchers still have a lot to learn about the new coronavirus. But you're probably more likely to catch it from being around someone who has it than from touching a contaminated surface.

Different Kinds of Surfaces

Metal: Examples: doorknobs, jewelry, silverware 5 days

Wood: Examples: furniture, decking 4 days Plastics

Examples: milk containers and detergent bottles, subway and bus seats, backpacks, elevator buttons 2 to 3 days

Stainless steel: Examples: refrigerators, pots and pans, sinks, some water bottles 2 to 3 days

Cardboard: Examples: shipping boxes 24

Copper: Examples: pennies, teakettles, cookware 4 hours

Aluminum;:

Examples: soda cans, tinfoil, water bottles 2 to 8 hours Glass

Examples: drinking glasses, measuring cups, mirrors, windows

Up to 5 days

Ceramics Examples: dishes, pottery, mugs days

Paper Examples: mail, newspaper The length of time varies. Some strains of corona-virus live for only a few mindays.

Examples:takeout, produce Coronavirus doesn't seem to spread through food.

Coronavirus hasn't been found in drinking water. If it does get into the water supply, your local water treatment plant filters and disinfects the water, which should kill any germs.

Fabrics

Examples: clothes, linens

There's not much research about how long the virus lives on fabric, but it's proba-bly not as long as on hard surfaces.

One study tested the shoe soles of medical staff in a Chinese hospital intensive care unit (ICU) and found that half were positive for nucleic acids from the virus. But it's not clear whether these pieces of the virus cause infection. The hospital's general ward, which had people with milder cases, was less contaminated than the ICU.

Skin and hair

There's no research yet on exactly how long the virus can live on your skin or hair. Rhinoviruses, which cause colds, survive for hours. That's why it's important to wash or disinfect your hands, which are most likely to come into contact with con-taminated surfaces.

Coronavirus Transmission: What You Need to Know

What You Can Do

To reduce your chance of catching or spreading the new coronavirus, clean and disinfect common surfaces and objects in your home and office every day. This in-cludes:

Countertops Tables Doorknobs Bathroom fixtures Phones Keyboards Remote controls Toilets

Use a household cleaning spray or wipe. If the surfaces are dirty, clean them first with soap ter and then disinfect them.

You can also make a bleach solution that will be good for up to 24 hours. Mix 5 tablespoons (one-third cup) of household bleach per gallon of water, or 4 teaspoons per quart of water. Never mix bleach with ammonia or another cleanser. Leave cleaners or bleach solutions on surfaces for at least 1 minute.

Keep surfaces clean, even if everyone in your house is healthy. People who are in-fected | might also leave pack-ages outside for a few may not show symptoms, but they can still hours or spray them with a disinfectant beshed the virus.

Wash your hands with soap and warm water for at least 20 seconds after you visit the drugstore or supermarket or bring in takeout food or a delivered newspaper.

It's a good idea to wash fruits and vegetables under running water before you eat them. Scrub them with a brush or your hands to remove any germs that might be on the surface. If you have a weakened immune system, you might want to buy frozen or canned produce.

There's no evidence that anyone has gotten the virus from food packaging. But if you want, you can wipe down take-out containers or grocery items and let them air dry.

Wash or disinfect reusable grocery bags after | Brunilda Nazario, MD on August 21, 2020

each use. Wash used fabrics often, using the warmest water that the manufacturer recommends. Dry them complete-ly. Wear disposable gloves when handling an ill person's laundry. Throw them away when you're done, and wash your hands.

The virus probably won't survive the time it takes for mail or other shipped items to be delivered. The highest risk comes from the person delivering them. Limit your contact with delivery people as much as you can. You fore bringing them in. Wash your hands after you handle mail or a package.

If you want, you can disinfect the soles of your shoes and avoid wearing them in-doors. Coronavirus and Temperature Coronaviruses generally don't live as long in higher temperatures and humidity levels than in cooler, dryer conditions. Researchers are studying whether exposure to heat, cold, or sunlight affects how long the new virus lives on surfaces.

Coronavirus Viability

Scientists also don't know how much of the virus it takes to cause an infection. Even if a small amount lingers on a surface for days, this might not be enough to make you sick.

ACUPUNCTURE: DOES IT WORK AND IS IT COVERED BY MEDICARE?

Dear Savvy Senior:

Is acupuncture a viable treatment for pain and is it covered by Medicare? Since the pandemic hit, I have a lot of lower back and neck pain and am wondering if it's worth trying. What can you tell me? Looking for Solutions

Dear Looking:Many studies over the years funded by the National Institutes of Health have found acupuncture to be very effective in easing pain and can help with a variety of other ailments too. Here's what you should know.

Acupuncture Treatment

First used in China more than 2,000 years ago, acupuncture has become increasingly popular in the United States over the past decade.

While acupuncture isn't a cure-all treatment, it is a safe, drug-free option for relieving many different types of pain including low back pain, neck pain, osteoarthritis, migraine headaches, fibromyalgia, postoperative pain, tennis elbow, carpel tunnel syndrome, dental pain and more. Studies have also shown that it can be helpful in treating asthma, depression, digestive disorders, menopause symptoms like hot flashes, and nausea caused by chemotherapy or anesthesia.

Exactly how or why acupuncture works isn't fully understood, but it's based on the traditional Eastern theory that vital energy flows through pathways in the body, and when any of these pathways get blocked, pain and illness result. Acupuncture unblocks the pathways to restore

However, today most Western practitioners believe that acupuncture works because it stimulates the nerves causing the release of endorphins, which are the body's natural painkiller hormones. It's also shown to increase blood circulation, decrease inflammation and stimulate the immune system.

What to Expect

During acupuncture, practitioners stimulate specific points on the body by inserting thin needles through the skin. The needles are solid, sterile and disposable (used only once), and as thin as a cat's whisker.

The number of needles used for each treatment can vary anywhere from a few, up to a dozen or more. And where the needles are actually stuck depends on the condition being treated, but they are typically inserted about one-quarter to 1-inch deep and are left in place for about 20 minutes. After placement, the needles are sometimes twirled or manipulated, or stimulated with electricity or heat.

You may feel a brief, sharp sensation when the needle is inserted, but generally it's not painful. Once the needle is in place, however, you may feel a tingling sensation, numbness, mild pressure or warmth.

How many treatments you'll need will depend on the severity of your condition - 12 treatments done weekly or biweekly is very common. It's also important to know that acupuncture can be used in conjunction with other conventional medical treatments, or by itself.

Cost and Coverage

The cost per treatment typically runs anywhere from $40 to $150, depending on where you are in the country and what style of treatment you are receiving.

Today, an increasing number of private insurance plans, including some Medicare Advantage plans, and policies provided by employers offer some type of acupuncture coverage.

You'll also be happy to know that last January (2020), the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services announced that original Medicare will now cover up to 12 acupuncture sessions in 90 days for patients with chronic lower back pain. Eight additional sessions can be added if patients show improvement.

But in order to receive Medicare coverage, you must use a licensed acupuncturist who is supervised by a medical doctor, physician assistant or nurse practitioner trained in acupuncture, who will need to process the acupuncture claim. Currently, licensed acupuncturists can't directly bill

To find an acupuncturist in your area ask your doctor for a referral, or you can do a search online. Two good resources are the National Certification Commission for Acupuncture and Oriental Medicine (nccaom.org), and the American Academy of Medical Acupuncturists (medicalacupuncture.org), which offers a directory of MDs and DOs who are certified to practice

FAMILY MATTERS By Marc Garlett

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT LONG-TERM CARE INSURANCE

ger than ever before, more and more seniors require long-term nursing homes and assisted living facilities. However, such care is expensive, extremely especially when it's needed for extended periods of Traditional healthcare insurance doesn't cover such services, and though Medicare does pay for some long-term care, it's quite limited, difficult to qualify for, and requires you to deplete nearly all of your assets before being eligible (though proactive estate planning can help shield your assets). To address this gap in coverage, long-term care insurance was created.

Intensive Care

First introduced as "nursing home insurance" in the 1980s, this type of insurance is designed to cover expenses associated with long-term skilled nursing services delivered in a nursing home, assisted living facility, or other senior care setting, though some of today's policies cover care delivered in your own

Such intensive care is required when you are no longer able to care for yourself, often in the later stages of your life. These policies cover the cost of skilled nursing services that support you with basic self-care tasks, such as bathing, feeding, dressing, walking, and using the bathroom. These are known as activities of daily living (ADLs).

Before your coverage kicks in, most policies require that you demonstrate you have lost the ability to engage in at least two or three ADLs. Most policies also have a deductible, or elimination period, which is a set number of days that must elapse between the time you become disabled (eligible for benefits) and the time your coverage kicks in. Many policies offer a 90-day elimination period, but others can be longer, shorter, or even have no elimination period at all. Of course, the shorter the elimination period, the more expensive the premium.

Additionally, long-term care policies typically come with a predetermined benefit period, which is the number of years of care it will pay for. A benefit period of three to five years, for example, is a quite common duration for such policies. Most policies also come with a cap on the dollar amount of coverage that will be paid for care on a daily basis, known as a daily benefit amount.

Getting Covered

Obviously, the younger and healthier you are when you buy the policy, the cheaper the premiums will be, so the sooner you invest in coverage, the better. In fact, most policies exclude certain pre-existing conditions, so if you wait until you become ill, it can

With people living lon- | be impossible to find coverage.

Increasing Premiums, Decreasing Benefits
With the elderly population booming, there has been healthcare services in a surge in demand for long-term care services, which has led to a marked increase in the cost of such policies. At the same time, many insurers have been cutting back on the benefits their policies offer.

If you are looking to purchase long-term care insurance, you should speak with multiple insurance providers and compare their benefits, care options, and premiums. Different companies may offer the same coverage and benefits, but they can vary dramatically in price. Always ask about the insurance company's history of rate increases, including the amount of the most recent increase.

Choose Wisely

For the best chances of success when shopping for a policy, get help from a fee-only planner, who is not compensated based on your choice of coverage. When meeting with an insurance provider, you must get answers to following three questions about your

How long is the elimination period before the policy begins paying benefits?

What capacities, or ADLs, must you lose before coverage kicks in?

3. How many years of care are covered?
Buying long-term care insurance should be a family affair, because you are going to need your family members to advocate for you and file a claim for the policy when you need to use it. Given this, make sure your family knows what kind of policy you have, who your agent is, and how to make a claim.

What's more, you should pre-authorize the right person to speak to the insurance company on your behalf, and not just rely on a power of attorney. That said, you should definitely have a well-drafted, updated, and regularly reviewed power of attorney on

Keep Your Policy Updated

Once you are in your 40s, your long-term care policy should be reviewed annually to evaluate new insurance products on the market and update your policy based on your changing needs. And whatever you do, once you have a policy in place, make sure you don't miss a premium payment, because if you stop paying, even for a short period of time, you'll lose all of the money you invested and will have no access to the benefits when you need them.

other problems appear. I think they're all waiting In particular, one day was rather difficult and zapped both of us of energy. I ordered a new desk for my office, and there were so many problems getting it delivered that I almost gave up. Along the way the desk was damaged and they returned it back to the store without even telling us. We had to reorder it all over again and wait for it. But then it came. Problem solved.

That evening the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage and I sat down after supper to watch a little TV news and drink our evening coffee. We like to get caught up on the news of the day so we know what's happening.

There is nothing like relaxing after a hard day's work and just getting a little bit of energy back into the system again, and at our age, that takes time of which we have little.

As we were watching the news, the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage sighed very deeply and said, "Why does the news always have to be negative?'

She had a point there. Every story on the news that evening was negative and left you just a little more depressed than when you started watching

We discussed some of the negative news being broadcast. None of it made sense to either of us. My opinion is simply, if it doesn't make sense to the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage, I'm not going to try to find any sense for myself.

Each story was worse than the one before it. I felt the attitude in the room was going further south than I wanted it to go. Nothing on the news in any way sparked any bit of inspiration in my life. For every negative story the news presents, there should be at least five positive stories that counter the negativity.

I looked over at my wife, smiled one of my gre garious smiles, and said, "I'm going to be riding the hallelujah train to the end. You want to join

It is quite interesting to me that when I solve one problem, two solves in the solve one problem, two probably more trouble than the rest of the family knew, but if you talked to him, you wouldn't know he had a single trouble in the world. He was the most positive person I've ever known. I think he was more positive than Norman Vin-

When everything was going against him, and it didn't look like there was any solution to the prob-lem, uncle Ned would say, "I'm just gonna ride the hallelujah train to the end." Then he would break into one of his infamous hallelujah

It took me a long time to understand what he meant by that. If there is anybody who didn't have a reason to be happy, it was uncle Ned. But, you would never be able to find anybody happier than uncle Ned.

It wasn't until after he had passed that I begin to understand what he was talking about.

The "hallelujah train" that he talked about was simply him taking control of his attitude at the time. He never allowed an incident, person or even family member to take away his happiness. I begin to understand that he deliberately chose to ride the "hallelujah train," which made him in charge of his life.

As I told my wife the story, she leaned back and smiled one of her gracious smiles. Then she said, "I think I understand what he meant by that hal-

I can't remember anything that uncle Ned really did or accomplished in life. I'm sure there were things, but nothing came to my attention as I thought of him. The only thing was his attitude of happiness that nothing or no one could take away for him. Walking into the house the next day, my wife looked at me and said, "Well, I'm riding the hallelu-jah train today."

I didn't have to ask her to explain, I knew exactly where she was going with this.

Troubles come and go, but if I allow them to control me in any regard, I am the loser. Therefore, each day I'm going to ride the hallelujah train to the end.

That evening I thought of one of the wise sayings of King Solomon. "He that handleth a matter wisely shall find good: and whoso trusteth in the Lord, happy is he" (Proverbs 16:20).

The door into the hallelujah train is simply trusting in the Lord.

THE ZEN OF PAINTING

It was the summer of 1973 when my brother and I lived on my grandfather's farm in Chardon, Ohio. One day, we decided to paint the kitchen a beautiful shade of light turquoise.

We turned on the radio, and began our task. We opened the windows, and I did the trim while my brother rolled. We listened to the radio as we busied ourselves with our individual tasks. We worked the corners, the edges, the front surfaces.

There's something about painting -- perhaps it's the fumes, perhaps it is the long quiet times of many little tasks. Painting requires no moral decisions, no great choices, no necessary pontifications about the meaning and purpose of life. And yet...

And yet, there you are, with your self, and the task before you. For me, painting time has often been a time to re-enter the inner I, to think, to remember. In many ways, it is the ideal task for self-enlightenment.

When we were done, we felt we'd accomplished something, and felt we'd given something back to the old farmhouse. When the weekend came, another uncle came to visit us. He strode into the kitchen, looked around at the paint, and simply said "you didn't use glossy!"

Glossy? We were teenagers from California, visiting the home where our mother grew up. Though it may be second-nature to us today, back then we had no sense that a kitchen should be painted glossy. Glossy vs. flat were not issues that we thought much about. We didn't think it mattered all that much?

But Uncle Joe seemed to think it was a big deal, and just one more bit of evidence that teenagers from "the big city" were a bunch of dimwits who wouldn't know a cow from a goat. Uncle Joe shared it around to family and friends that we'd painted the kitchen in "wrong" paint, so we heard about in the weeks that followed. Some relatives didn't care, but others would comment as they came in, "Oh, so there's the flat paint job," instead of, "Hey, hello, long time no see!"

Dumb city boys who don't know the difference between flat and glossy paint, who actually had the stupidity to paint a kitchen in flat paint.

Of course, our intent was to make the family happy that we'd improved the old farmhouse. We wanted the relatives to comment that we were industrious nephews who proved that all city boys were not idiots.

Today, while I was painting my own bathroom -- glossy paint, white -- memories of the summer of 1973 in Chardon began to play again in my mind. Perhaps it was the paint. Perhaps it was the cool breeze blowing fresh oxygen through the room. I heard the chickens out back and it reminded me of my brief period of farm-living.

I began to think about how Uncle Joe responded, and how he could have responded. I realized then the great truth in the phrase that WHAT we do is of little or no importance, but HOW we do it is everything.

Uncle Joe died over 10 years ago, and when I visited the old farm site in 1999, the entire farm house and barn had been torn down and were now just a field. None of it mattered anymore in the world of physical reality. Joe was gone, and the entire farmhouse was simply a memory, glossy or flat.

Joe could have congratulated us on taking the initiative to paint, and could have explained why kitchens are always painted glossy. He could have told us that it was a great primer coat, and enthusiastically offered to drive us right then to the hardware store to get glossy paint, and we'd all do the final coat together. That would have been something. Our memory would have been profoundly different had Uncle Joe taken that route of inclusiveness, familyness, and helpfulness.

I do not fault him for what he did do -- he probably knew no other way. In fact, from what I knew about his father (my grandfather), his father probably would have beaten him had Joe painted the kitchen with flat paint. So to Joe, that was just one of millions of automatic reactions to things in his world. He probably forgot about in a few years, after the novelty of talking about Marie's silly nephews wore off.

I realized then how important such "little things" can be, and I wondered how well I would do when my next opportunity arose. It is especially important with impressionable youth to do the very best we can to be a good example.

It seemed like an important insight, that the "how" is more important than the "what," and that flat or glossy really doesn't matter. Perhaps it was the paint. Perhaps it was the cool breeze blowing fresh oxygen through the room....

SWEET BEVY & BELLA

Very much adored cats, whose loving owner passed away. Bevy is the gorgeous, all black male. He's shy but sweet, as you can tell by looking at his hopeful, trusting expression. Bella is a beautiful tortoiseshell, also sweet. She looks very content to just sit and chill, which could be why she is slightly overweight. Happy and fun play sessions would be good for both of them. They would probably be fine with gentle, older children, but best would be a quiet adult home.

They are currently with a temporary foster, who can only keep them through January. Born 2013. See more pictures, adoption information and application on our website at the More Cats page at www.lifelineforpets.org.

MONEY—IS IT THE SOURCE OF ALL EVIL...OR...DOES IT MAKE THE WORLD GO ROUND?

George Orwell, the infamous author of Animal Farm and 1984, defined as a paramount problem of politics that tyrannized people very often ACCEPT the authority, judgment, and power of their "superiors." In the United States today it is very clear that many tyrannized people accept the behavior and pronouncements of Donald Trump although it is obvious that he makes no distinction between what is true and what his false. Even today in the impeachment hearing Trump defenders state only that proceeding with impeachment at this time would be disruptive to the overall political process and therefore Trump should not be impeached. They argue that what's past is past and that it's time to begin tending to the present. Forgive and

Of course what is really feared by those in power is a loss of control, a change of accepted rules. Strangely Trump had one ability that differentiated him from almost any other politician his ability to generate spectacle. This ability to command attention has already produced results that were unthinkable four years ago. In the Republican Presidential Primary of 2016 Trump prevailed over 16 other contenders all of whom had more knowledge, ability, experience and desire to fulfill the traditional obligations of President in accord with their individual political beliefs. Trump cared for none of this. What he possessed was an insatiable need for adulation and adoration—he called this loyalty. This got the media's attention as it became clear that all Trump cared about was his ratings and numbers. A perfect twenty first Century candidate.

My major concern in this article is an attempt to explain why so many millions of American voters be repelled by his lies. As Orwell bemoaned, people don't really understand or care very much about what is actually good for them. They pick a hero, wear his MAGA hats, and delight in his seeming opposition to accepted norms, although in reality he is the living embodiment of White Male Christian dominance. He can do no wrong because everything he does is right until it isn't. What these Trump followers fear is the demise of the power White Male Christian who has been in power for the last 500 years and has uncompassionately dehumanized, colonized, and enslaved ever other human being. This kind of man has given his adherents all that they believe is theirs and the fear, perhaps quite accurately, that much of their privileges earned by accidents of birth will soon be taken away by more hard working people who were not penalized from the start.

It's rarely described as such but we are living in a continuing Race and Gender War, a war for equality of opportunity, and a war to end the ridiculous separation of the very, very rich from all other classes. As a young man George Orwell, a child of wealth was taught "Life was hierarchical and whatever happened was right. There were the strong, who deserved to win and always did win, who deserved to lose and always, did lose, everlastingly." Who were the strong? Young George (then Eric Blair believed then that every desirable quality—beauty chair, athleticism, sexual desirability and something called character which in reality, meant the ability to impose your will on others, came packaged in money.

Well as always times they are still a'changin'. The road to success in most people's eyes still involves the continual pursuit of money. That has not changed but slowly, ever so slowly, White Males have been relieved of their automatic and undeserved privileges which exist at the starting line. I wish I could make things fairer but I just don't have the money or the talent or the energy to bring that about. Maybe I have been hampered by too much privilege and I am not even Christian.

DISGRACEFUL DISCOURSE

Without grace, our public discourse will continue to suffer. "Grace," according to Dictionary.com, has more than one meaning, but all of them are powerful.

Grace is "a pleasing or attractive quality," as well as "favor or

In a religious sense, grace is "a virtue or excellence of divine origin" – a gift from God to help us be more charitable and gracious toward our fellow man. It's also a prayer of thanks recited before meals.

In a general sense, grace is "elegance or beauty of form, manner, motion, or action." And when we are most lucky, our beloved friends and family members grace us

Grace is a beautiful and necessary component of everyday life. Without it, our world cannot function.

And grace is horribly lacking in our public discourse.

Too many political leaders, beginning with our president and including too many others holding high positions in the federal government, are being the polar opposite of graceful.

Dictionary.com lists some antonyms of grace. They include ugliness, animosity, enmity, harshness and disfavor.

Even Trump supporters have been appalled by the coarseness of some of his tweets and his recent words that re-sulted in some disgraceful followers storming the U.S. Capitol, which has sickened, saddened and appalled every-one.

But how are Trump's political foes, who've told their supporters to get into peoples' faces or disrupt their restaurant meals, or who used highly inflammatory words to gin up protesters, better?

When our alleged leaders are totally lacking any semblance of grace, where does that leave us?

In a world lacking in grace, citizens are at each other's throats. They don't care to understand ideas or points of view that challenge theirs. No, it's easier to demonize and make caricatures of those who hold different ideas or political viewpoints – it's easier to destroy opposing thought.

In a world lacking in grace, political leaders aren't leaders at all. They're followers. They seek power by feeding red meat to just enough followers to get them across the finish line on election day. They care only about the 51% who supported them - and turn a blind eye to the 49% who didn't, further dividing our increasingly fractured country.

In a world lacking in grace, civility is lost. Neighbors turn on neighbors who put the wrong political signs in their front yards. Politics becomes all-consuming and never-ending. Anger becomes all-consuming and ever-increasing. Hatred rears its ugly head, with violence waiting in the wings, looking for any opportunity to erupt.

To save the future, we need to restore grace to our country, our political leaders and ourselves – and it begins with each and every one of us.

We need to open our hearts and minds to what is true and good – truth and goodness hold no political affiliations.

We need to see the best in our neighbors.

We need to understand why people think differently than we do – and we will likely discover that we mostly all de-sire similar beneficial outcomes, and differ primarily on how to achieve those outcomes.

I pray that God bestows much-needed grace upon us once again – because grace is what we need to restore order, trust and civility to public discourse.

IMPEACHMENT ISN'T ABOUT JOHN MICEK TRUMP CROSSING THE RUBICON

When Donald Trump became only I followed when he president in our tangled history to be impeached twice, Americans found themselves asking, "What now?"

The better question is "What's next?" It goes beyond the prospect of a trial in the Senate that now appears set to unfold in the opening days of the new Biden administration, despite arguments over whether the chamber has such authority (there is hardly unanimity on that score).

Every move the nation makes between now and when the Senate votes on whether to convict Trump on charges of inciting insurrection (and vote it absolutely must), will not only in echo in the near term, it will set the tone for the next 20 years of our politics and beyond. Pundits have compared last week's riot at the U.S. Capitol, which left five people dead, to Julius Caesar and his forces crossing the Rubicon river in Italy in 49 B.C., prefacing for the civil war that ultimately toppled the Ro-man Republic. The analogy is an imprecise one for a couple of reasons, not least because it does a grave disservice to Caesar, a master political strategist and bril-liant (if utterly brutal) military commander. The oafish and authoritarian Trump can be accused of many things, but being a 21st century Julius Caesar is not one of them. If we're looking for a more precise historical antecedent from the ancient world, we need to turn the clock back farther, to the decades between the third Punic War in 146 B.C. that saw the final obliteration of Carthage, and the rise of the Caesars.

As the historian Mike Duncan writes in his 2017 book "The Storm Before the Storm," it was an era eerily similar to our own. One where the first cracks in the foundation of the Republic started to emerge.

Those years were, as Duncan notes, punctuated by "rising economic inequality, dislocation of traditional ways of life, increasing political polariza-tion, the breakdown of unspoken rules of political conduct, the privatiza-tion of the military, rampant corruption, endemic social and ethnic preju-dice, battles over access to citizenship and voting rights, ongoing military quagmires, the introduction of violence as a political tool, and a set of elites so obsessed with their own privileges that they refused to reform the system in time to save it." The era also was filled with colorful, controversial and historically influential figures who are understandably overshadowed by the such later emperors as Augustus, Nero and Constantine. They include the Gracchi, a clan of populists who met a grisly end, as well as Sulla, who seized power through a military coup, setting the precedent Caesar finally toppled the Republic three decades later. As the Cambridge historian Mary Beard writes in her compulsively reada-ble 2015 history "SPQR," the death of the last

Gracchi brother in 121 B.C, set the stage for "three more sustained civil wars or revolutionary upris-ings (there is often a hazy boundary between them)." As terrifying and tragic as those hours at the Capitol were last week - and they were - it's crucially important to note that, hours later, the machinery of government reasserted itself, and the House and Senate reconvened to certify the victory of President-elect Joe Biden and Vice President-elect Kamala Harris.

The Capitol siege cast a light on an already present, and now growing white nationalist movement that Trump, who is ignorant of history but savvy at manipulation, was able to turn to his political advantage to win the White House. And then, abetted by the conservative echo chamber, he weaponized them when his defeat was assured.

Now Washington and state capitals across the country are bracing for a potential repeat of that violence during marches and protests scheduled for this weekend. We've already seen the images of scores of National Guard soldiers sleeping on the floor of the Capitol. We're at a turning point in our politics. But it is not without precedent.

In his "Meditations," one of the last great emperors, Marcus Aurelius, ad-monished readers (and himself) "to bear in mind constantly that all of this has happened before. And will happen again the same plot from begin-ning to end, the identical staging."

These are the historical realities that the Senate, which seems to have trouble thinking beyond the next news cycle, must keep in mind when it tries Trump. The government also must move swiftly to find, charge and try those responsible for the violence.

Fair trials, met with stern punishment for the guilty (which should include political banishment for Trump and rebukes to his enablers), will not only send the signal that our system remains strong and vital, but also remains a beacon for the rest of the world.

So that next time, when someone who might actually be able to pull it off thinks about crossing the Rubicon, they won't get any further than the water's edge.

FRED THOMAS

TO FRIEND OR UNFRIEND

For the first time in my FB life. I am considering unfriending or unfollowing some friends. Some of whom I've known for decades. But not who you think and maybe not for the reasons that may appear obvious.

Easily the most effective agent for change in the history of our country is the late Reverand Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. All day yesterday and throughout the night, his words were stuck in a constant loop in my

"Returning hate for hate multiplies hate, adding deeper darkness to a night al-ready devoid of stars. Darkness cannot drive out darkness; only light can do that. Hate cannot drive out hate; only love can do that. Hate multiplies hate, violence multiplies violence, and toughness multiplies toughness in a descending spiral of destruction."

"A riot is the language of the unheard."

I am tired of all of the vitriol being spewed. There is simply no way to fix our na-tion's problems by attacking the same people that are attacking us. And for the record, how is all the violence and anger working? A year of civil unrest to pro-test the very real heavy-handed and murderous assault on people of color by law enforcement has got us where? Where are the results? How many of us have participated in real substantial changes to community policing? I'm not talking about a meeting or two. I'm talking about actual actions taken in a sincere effort to save me and my brothers from being killed in the streets by law enforcement without the guarantee of due process.

MAGA... how did your riot work for you yesterday? did it solve anything. Under-stand that your actions are the desperate acts of the frustration of your voices not being heard. A legitimate and transparent investigation to have the results of the election reviewed in a manner that would appease you. What you got in-stead was a dismissal of your concerns from your elected officials (not talking about the courts because as every person of color knows, the courts don't always provide the justice we are seeking). In your frustration, some chose to storm and damage the capital. Does this sound familiar? I suggest you look across the aisle. the BLM movement is comprised of people myself included that have generations of feeling the same despair that caused your national display yesterday.

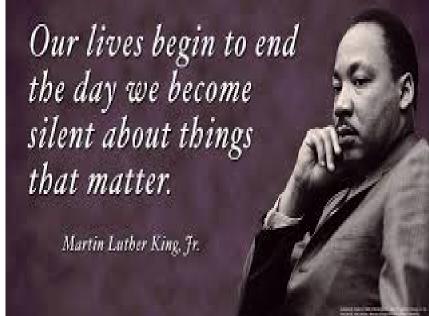

We cant see these parallels because we choose not to see them. We want to be angry with each other, our politicians are raising billions from all of this discord. You don't believe me, go to the SEC website and look

Every day I pray to God that we do this differently as a nation. But I fear that prayer is doomed to fail. It's doomed to fail because we have to choose love over hate. truth over convenience, and integrity over victory. These are the choices that God has empowered each individual to choose for themselves. And moving forward if you choose to continue the name-calling and vitriol because you are upset and frustrated. I may choose to move you from my conversation. Even if I agree with your views and politics. Dr. King used to implore people that could not remain non-violent not to join his efforts because he knew that any hate-filled expression would shift the focus from the merits of justice and give those that don't want to change a convenient excuse not to. I can't change the nation. but I'm trying to heal the pain and lack of understanding from my friends,

Please, don't force me to unfriend you. we are truly in a "Descending spiral of de-struction" Your voice (all of yours) is critical to solving our issues, together.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

I appreciated the statement from Rep. Adam Schiff on the events of January 6 in your last MVN, while the columns at the bottom of the Opinion page informed us that BLM violence was bad and this was bad, too.

Rich Manieri quotes Ari Fleischer; "What is the difference between the left-wing fringe, BLM, that lit police stations on fire, tried to light a federal courthouse on fire, occupied two cities, looted and engaged in violence, and what people did yes-terday at the Capitol?'

Numbers I've seen indicate BLM protests were 93% peaceful, with destruction coming after most protestors had left and yahoos arrived on the scene afterwards. Guns and violence came with Proud Boystypes who couldn't miss out.

As for cities being "occupied", those protests grew largely from police treating cer-tain communities as occupied territories; bad cops held unaccountable for treating residents accordingly and as if their mostly-Black lives didn't matter.

Whether BLM, "far-left anarchists" or all-purpose boogeyman antifa, none sought to kidnap governors (13 were arrested last October for targeting Michigan Gov. Gretchen Whitmer). None showed up with guns in cosplay-camo to invade state capitols from Salem, Oregon to Frankfort, Kentucky. None wore endorsements of the Confederacy or the Holocaust. They didn't come with lynch-mob fervor along with zipties, Tasers, mace and makeshift gallows threatening elected lead-ers. There weren't the homemade bombs, bats and beatings of police (with one officer's skull smashed with a fire extinguisher).

Sorry - but insurrection against our government, invasion and desecration of the Capitol, death threats against lawmakers to halt constitutional duties and smearing excrement on the walls of our temple of democracy can't be equated with looting the local Target.

Michael Reagan laments detraction from Trump's "record of accomplish-ment". It's a record that led to this insurrection; from the demonizing and play-ground bullying of those refusing to kiss the ring - whether political opponents, protestors or journalists (with a particular disdain for women of color – go figure); to his refusal to comply with checks and balances and congressional oversight un-der the Constitution.

In the meantime, he put another $1.5 trillion on our nation's credit card to shift more wealth to the oligarchs. He abandoned allies and embraced despots - our country becoming an international embarrassment. He engaged in unprecedented graft and used foreign policy for extortion. (Reagan refers to "character flaws".) And this was all before COVID.

The "legacy" Reagan frets about might be summed up in two words, "Twice im-peached"; or maybe two words and a number, "400,000 dead Americans"; or then again maybe three words, "Kids in cages".

Reagan warns of "the one-party socialist state, the Biden-Schumer-Pelosi troika", thus engaging in the "throw-it-out-there-and-the-rubes-might-believe-it" practice that brought us here. (Decades ago, his dad warned that with passage of Medicare, America would no longer be "free".)

Manieri notes that all sides feel they're on "the right side of history". I'll side with those who appreciate that history (a good start is Arnold Schwarzenegger's YouTube posting on growing up in the aftermath of Nazi rule). One side seeks to protect our right to vote; the other seeks to limit that right and then, if that doesn't work, to invalidate that vote altogether. One side seeks "to form a more perfect union". The other seeks to weaken and destroy it. Those with a longer-term appreciation will recall Dr. King's citation, "the arc of the moral universe is long, but it bends towards

Now that consequences are apparent, some warn a second impeachment might prove "divisive"; that we should simply condemn violence and move on. But, as observed on the website MeidasTouch, "Nobody asked al-Qaeda for advice on unity after 9/11".

YVETTE NATALIA DEL CORAZON

Our neighbor Yvette Del Corazon is a long time resident of Sierra Madre Canyon and has operated a business in Sierra Madre for 23 years. Her business card identifies her as the owner of Hands With Heart a holistic healing center specializing in the area of MIND -BODY- SPIRIT which provides services in twenty different areas including Massage/Bodywork/Physical Therapy and Transformational Coaching, Yvette is a fully educated, accredited and licensed Massage therapist. Additionally she has taken multiple specialized classes offered at the Esalen Institute in Big Sur. Yvette characterizes herself as someone devoted to cultivating deep changes in self and society.

She is a person who has had extraordinary life experiences emphasizes that Sierra Madre is her home and identifies the Sierra Madre Canyon Community as keeping her alive and never letting her down. She really loves her life and has always followed a spiritual path which remarkably has included four near death experiences. During these near death experiences she describes visiting heaven which she experienced as a spiritual place wherein she was completely encircled with divine love from which she was saddened to leave when the experience ended.

As you can see by the enclosed picture she is an unusual person even by Sierra Madre standards. In another one of the pictures you can see Yvette surrounded by members of the Sierra Madre community who participated in a drumming which was intended to and did successfully bring Yvette back to health. Prior to her last death threatening condition which allowed her to return home just before Election Day Yvette was walking seven miles in the morning. Now, only a week after returning home after a month in Intensive Care and recovering from a condition that doctors told her was terminal she is now walking a mile in the

She was formerly the head of the Spiritual Values and Community Outreach program as a part of the Sierra Madre Civic Club. She is part a former mayor of Los Angeles and a brother who was speaker of the House of the California State Assembly and is presently a Regent of the University of California. When asked to explain the distinguished positions occupied by family members she explained that her family had been long involved with the work of Caesar Chavez and farm workers. She also has had the opportunity to meet famous almost mythic individuals who were parts of the Civil Rights Movement. She describes meeting Rosa Parks as one of the most memorable moments of her life. (If you are not familiar with the name Rosa Parks you owe it to yourself to look her up. She is called "the mother of the civil rights struggle for racial equality based upon her refusal to give up her bus seat to a white man in Montgomery Alabama. Also a part of the 10 Freeway is dedicated to her.)

of a uniquely active family which includes | Returning to Yvette, notwithstanding her familial political connections politics is not the road she has travelled. As a part of her continual spiritual quest she has spent months in the jungles of Peru in the apprentice Ayahuasca apprentice shaman program. (You should look this up too as it is described in National Geographic Magazine as a journey to Hell and Back.) Yvette does not describe the experience that way but still she may well be considered as someone who has visited both heaven and hell and has chosen to remain living with us in Sierra Madre. In any case, it would be inaccurate to picture Yvette as some other worldly type person (oh maybe a little bit).
