9, 2023, where voters can decide whether or not to repeal Ordinance 1461 after the City Council reluctantly adopted four resolutions and agreed to pay approximately $400,000 to make it happen. The unanimous decision was made during a Special Meeting on February 7, 2023.

The Special Election is the direct result of a proposed referendum summary brought by the Protect Sierra Madre PAC (PSMP), led by their Steering Committee member Barbara Vellturo. The group obtained enough signatures to qualify to get their proposed repeal to a vote in an upcoming election. Mayor Edward Garcia certified those signatures on January 10, 2023.

Ordinance 1461 was approved and adopted by City Council on September 27, 2022, before the petition protesting the ordinance successfully suspended it on October 3, 2022. This action put the "The Meadows" project on ice, freezing the Zoning Map Amendment, the Specific Plan, and the Development Agreement, all initially approved by Ordinance 1461.

But, Resolution 22-58, which City Council adopted on September 20, 2022, was not included in the PAC's proposed referendum. This resolution approved a General Plan land use map amendment, approved a lot line adjustment, certified the Environmental Impact Report (EIR), and approved the Mitigation Monitoring and Reporting Program for "The Meadows" at Bailey Canyon, located at 700 North Sunnyside Avenue.

The omission by the proponents of the referendum, gave NUW the opportunity me to consider an alternative project to The Meadows". On December 20, 2022, NUW submitted a preliminary application for a 50-lot subdivision on the grounds at The Monastery. The new project would be larger, 50 homes rather than 42 and the 'perks' that would accompany The Meadows would no longer be available, such as a new park, conservation easements, $983,500 for net zero water, and a $250,000 donation to the new public safety building on Sierra Madre Blvd.. (See http://mtnviewsnews.com/v17/ htm/n01/index.htm). Further. Senate Bill (SB) 330, passed in 2019, "prevents local governments from downzoning unless they upzone an equivalent amount elsewhere within their boundaries. Suspends the enactment of local downzoning and housing construction moratoriums. Requires timely 3.

There will be a Special Election on May | processing of housing permits that follow | NUW's election date? zoning rules."

REFERENDUM NEGOTIATIONS FAIL - SPECIAL ELECTION CONFIRMED

City Manager Jose Reynoso has had several separate interactions with NUW and Protect Sierra Madre as a mediator, with approximately 60 total interactions including in person meetings with the Protect Sierra Madre delegation and e-mail correspondence and telephone communi-cations.

"Misunderstandings" and "Half-Truths"

The city received 47 e-mails for public comment on this topic and several more during the February 7 meeting. City Manager Reynoso stated there were "misunderstandings" and "half-truths" in those comments. During the special session, he and City Attorney Aleks Giragosian addressed some falsities. Revnoso said that a Fact Sheet would also be circulated to residents to clear up misconceptions. Here are a few questions addressed.

Why did the City Council put us in this position? First, the city did not create this situation. City Staff, City Council, and Planning Commission negotiated and approved "The Meadows" project after years of community input and hearings. But, because the Protect Sierra Madre PAC pushed a referendum to repeal Ordinance 1461 after losing another effort to halt the project at the polls (Measure HR) and when they failed to include Resolution 22-58 in their referendum filings, this was the only reason the developers pursued the SB 330 project, according to Reynoso.

Why doesn't the city give the parties more time to negotiate?

The city sent a letter to Protect Sierra Madre attorneys on Dec 26, 2022, informing them of the SB 330 application and asking them to meet with the City Manager and withdraw their referendum. On January 3rd, City Attorney Giragosian received a response from the Protect Sierra Madre attorney, and conversations about withdrawal started taking place. Five weeks have passed, and Giragosian has not heard from their attorney. Protect Sierra Madre has asked for eight conditions, and the parties agreed upon five conditions and more. The conditions released at late Friday evening when it was apparent that the Protect Sierra Madre group was not going to withdraw the Referendum.

Why is the city going along with

The City Council sets election dates. The county informed the city of an election on April 11, 2023. This would have saved the city thousands of dollars. NUW wanted the earliest date possible, which was April 11. City Council postponed the election to allow both parties time to negotiate in good faith. NUW offered June as the last month for negotiations, but after pressure from investors, it pushed the date forward to May. The city and NUW negotiated and agreed upon the May 9 date.

During the negotations, based on documents received at press time, NUW and the city agreed to most of everthing requested including paying PSMP's legal fees, but the offers were rejected. Sources have indicated that the legal fees, $50,000 were rejected because PSMP did not want the developer to pay the fees, but rather the city should pay the legal bills...

After it became apparent that agreement would not be made by the deadline on Friday evening, City Council unanimously voted to adopt the following resolutions.

RESOLUTION 23-15: A RESOLUTION CALLING AND GIVING NOTICE OF THE HOLDING OF A SPECIAL MUNICIPAL ELECTION TO BE HELD ON MAY 9, 2023, FOR REPEAL OF CITY COUNCIL ORDI-NANCE 1461, AS REQUIRED BY THE PRO-VISION OF THE LAWS OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA RELATING TO GENERAL LAW CITIES;

AND RESOLUTION 23-18: A RESOLU-TION PROVIDING FOR THE FILING OF REBUTTAL ARGUMENTS FOR BALLOT MEASURES SUBMITTED AT MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

BLACK HISTORY MONTH - WHY?

Yesterday I was asked by a friend if I thought it was necessary to celebrate Black History Month (must be a really good friend to be comfortable to ask me that question). My response was simple. Yes! Now I do fully appreciate the need to celebrate the accomplishments of all of the cultures that have labored, sacrificed, and contributed to making the US the best place on earth (I still wholeheartedly believe that and I've almost been everywhere).

The absence of formalized recognition of other cultures and contributors, should not create a climate of anti-celebrations for groups that are represented.

Maybe one day there won't be a need to specifically celebrate the accomplishments of minorities and women. Maybe one day, there will no longer be the "first" of a specific group of people to accomplish great things.

Maybe one day, equality and fairness (I'm not talking about handouts, I'm referring to systems that truly allow everyone to work to create the future they desire) will become so normal that the conversations will become moot.

Maybe one day...But that is not today. So this month I celebrate the accomplishments of the Black men and women that came before us. the "firsts" if you will. I celebrate the future "Firsts" and the Last "firsts". I will also, as I always have, continue to learn about every culture, race, and nation-ality that has significantly contributed to the great experiment of America

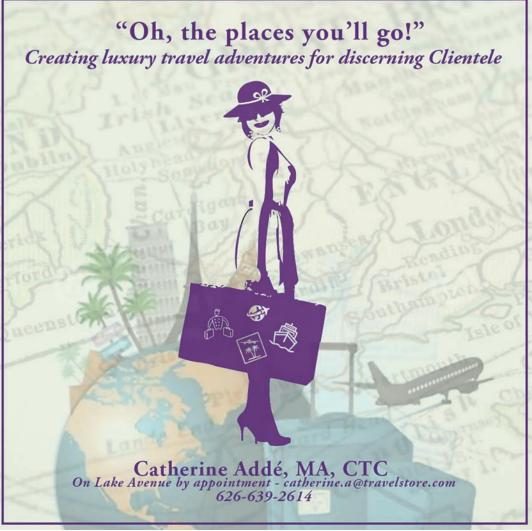

Love to all, respect to some, and prayers for everyone! Fred

WALKING SIERRA MADRE - The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"All you need is love. But a little chocolate now and then doesn't hurt." Charles M. Schulz

"Oh, if it be to choose and call thee mine, love, thou art every day my Valentine." Thomas Hood

"Being deeply loved by someone gives you strength, while loving someone deeply gives you courage." Lao Tzu

Valentine's Day is Tuesday and I hope all my readers are totally prepared with a card and/or some flowers. Possibly a dinner reservation, or maybe you're planning to cook your Valentine's favorite dish...something like a beautiful piece of salmon with some roasted veggies or a medium rare filet and a baked potato, followed by something chocolate and champagne. Thinking of chocolate and champagne makes me think about holding hands. And walking somewhere lovely with your Valentine. Sierra Madre abounds with lovely places to walk where there are trees and flowers and exquisite gardens. Walking and talking is a very romantic thing to do and might even lead to kisses...

Question for you: when, if ever, was the last time you read Elizabeth Barret Browning's famous sonnet, "How Do I Love Thee?" Probably not since you were in high school. In case you didn't know, "How Do I Love Thee?" is sonnet number 43 taken from Sonnets from the Portuguese, a book first published in 1850. It was dedicated to her husband, Robert Browning. Anyway, here it is and it's pretty nice:

"How do I love thee? Let me count the ways. I love thee to the depth and breadth and height My soul can reach, when feeling out of sight For the ends of being and ideal grace.

I love thee to the level of every day's Most quiet need, by sun and candle-light.
I love thee freely, as men strive for right.
I love thee purely, as they turn from praise.
I love thee with the passion put to use
In my old griefs, and with my childhood's faith.
I love thee with a love I seemed to lose
With my lost saints. I love thee with the breath,
Smiles, tears, of all my life; and, if God choose,
I shall but love thee better after death."

I never said anything as poetic as that to my Valentine, the adorable, ever-patient, John, who is now residing in heaven where every day is Valentine's Day, and love abounds all over the place. No, I never quoted Elizabeth Barrett Browning to him, but I did write about love. I'm nowhere near as romantic as Elizabeth, but I wrote about love like this...

"The Best of Marriage"

"Sometimes when you are gone, I sit at your desk and look out your window at the sky.

And I think of you and how much I love you.

So many years we've spent together, mostly sunny with just a little bit of rain.

I treasure these years which have flown by us.

I've grown to love you, respect you, admire you, need you more with each one. There is so much about you that makes me want to be the best that I can be.

It makes me smile each time you walk into a room.

How many thousands of times have I watched you enter the space where I am, And each time I feel pleasure, delight, at just the sight of you.

You make me laugh; you make me think.
You make me challenge myself, you make me want to be the best me I can be.

You've even taught me to enjoy college football... Go Trojans! I love just to talk with you, to exchange the ordinary stuff our days are made of,

Conversations that are the flour and salt of life.
You are ever in my mind.
You are the other half of my heart.

You are, very simply, the one person selected by God to be my lover, my friend, my husband.

I have known you for more than half my life. The best half. We have shared all there is in life:

Joy, sorrow, laughter, tears, death, birth, pleasure, misery, poverty, not quite so poverty,

Pride in our children, and absolute disgust with them,
And always, always we have had each other to hold on to."

Sometime soon, if you haven't already done it, tell your special Valentine how much he or means to you. Kisses and holding hands are good…maybe even better than chocolate. Even if you totally scoff at Valentine's Day, it's never too late to say I love you.

"One is loved because one is loved. No reason is needed for loving." Paulo Coelho "Love grows more tremendously full, swift, poignant, as the years multiply." Zane Grey

The picture today is the last Valentine's Day John and I spent together. We went to Sena in Monrovia and our waitperson said she wanted to take our picture. So she did and I shall be forever grateful for that moment of kindness.

In a world where you can be anything you want to be...Be KIND!

LETTER TO THE EDITORS – VOLUNTEERS

Hello,

I'd like to commend all the Sierra Madre Library Book Sale volunteers for an amazing job in rais-ing an impressive amount of funds at each Book Sale to benefit the Sierra Madre Library.

I am new to volunteering at the Sierra Madre Library Book Sales. I have volunteered for the past two sales. Both times I enjoyed doing my shift, seeing the books people chose to buy and listen-ing to their comments on the insights they thought they would find in their book selections.

I was especially impressed with the volunteers. Not only did they organize the books in easy to locate categories they had a dedicated group of volunteers with positive attitudes towards the people who came to buy the books and support the library. That alone makes me want to contin-ue being a part of volunteering for the Sierra Madre Library Book Sales.

Sincerely, Debbie Schweiner

I HAVE A SERIOUS QUESTION.

What is the true intent of the "Stop Development" activists? They have made attempts to stop this project through the ballot box but failed to convince the citizens. Now, "Stop" is attempting to use a referendum to try to halt the project. In their hubris "Stop" claim that stopping the Meadows Project is imperative. "Stop" may stop the Meadows Project but some housing project will happen. The state with its "housing emergency" modus operandi will prevail because local control and oversight have been preempted.

It appears that the "Stop" people are in kamikaze mode. If the Meadows project is scuttled, the result would be counter to the best interests of the city. And, there will be a development at that site no matter what.

The "Stop" group has demanded concessions, yet these are in closed session and not open and transparent to all, and counter to citizen participation. Not like the many public forums that have preceded this. What are these concessions, and why is this information being kept secret? This shroud of secrecy raises doubts and rumors as to the real intent of "Stop".

Furthermore, are the actions of the "Stop" activists well thought out and beneficial for the city, or is this an attempt to undermine the current plans for a self-interest agenda? If the concessions are good for the city, surely "Stop" would gain support. It is important for careful thought before making a decision that could have long-term ramifications. This is not what has happened with the "Stop" group. –De Alcorn Sierra Madre

FIRST LETTER OF THE NEW YEAR!

Santa Monica developer New Urban West and our City Council remain determined to inflict their 42-McMansion housing project ("The Meadows") on Sierra Madre. And, realizing there's no credible ar-gument to be made for the project itself, they're sticking to the playbook of threatening a much-worse alternative we'd somehow be powerless to stop.

A few months ago, it was the specter of "6,500 sq ft Arcadia-style mansions". No one had ever pro-posed them, no such project was on the horizon, but after hundreds of thousands spent on the cam-paign the threat became so real many voters that I spoke with thought their vote against Measure HR was to stop the housing project – when in fact it meant the opposite.

This time the much-worse alternative is a 50-house development they claim we'd be powerless to stop under SB330 – an important measure meant to address the serious issue of affordable housing in our state. The measure was intended to prevent localities from imposing restrictions on new housing that would otherwise conform to existing general plans and zoning rules – with additional incentives offered to housing affordable to those of "moderate", "low" and "very low" incomes. That it be used instead as a cudgel to force communities to accept new multi-million-dollar homes that would other-wise be in non-compliance with local ordinances is a shameful abuse of that law – and won't fly.

In submitting this new, threatened proposal as qualifying under SB330, the developer includes three houses (2,000 sq ft each) it claims would be affordable to those of "very low" incomes, entitling them to the numerous concessions they demand under that law. According to formulas established to de-termine income levels, however, this would suggest the proposal is based on the pretext that for a new 2,000 sq ft home in Sierra Madre, total "housing costs" – mortgage, taxes, insurance, utilities, etc. – could be covered at no more than $968 a month. (Have you checked your gas bill recently?)

The notion is absurd, but the City Council maintains the project would qualify under SB330 – because the developer tells them it would.

They maintain the developer is entitled to all waivers/concessions/bonuses under SB330 – because the developer tells them they are.

The City Council says there will be no further negotiations attempting a compromise – because the developer told them they won't participate.

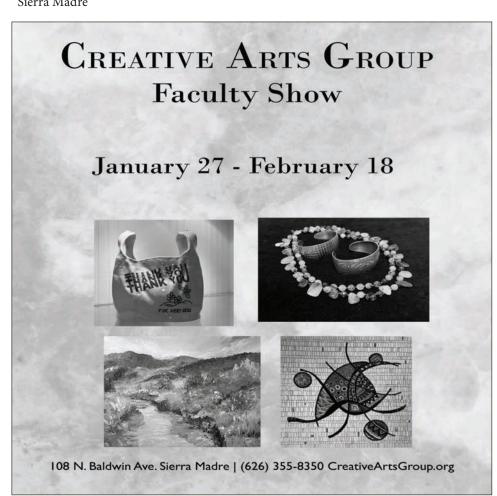

Rather than scheduling a vote on the referendum to block the Meadows project for the next general election at minimal expense, the City Council instead agreed to rush it ahead to special election on May 9 at significant cost – because the developer told them to.

The City Council maintains the developer will do as it wants and we're powerless to do anything about it – because the developer tells them we are.

The City Council suggests we should be grateful the developer has agreed not to force this new 50-house SB330 proposal on us should we simply acquiesce to the 42-McMansion Meadows project they've wanted all along – because, well, shouldn't we be?

I'm sure others are watching and awaiting the outcome; scoping out exploitable areas and opportuni-ties afforded by this City Council. But as those over 1,200 residents who signed our referendum made clear: Sierra Madre is not for sale – and nobody will tell us otherwise.

Council Awards $6M Library Retrofit Contract

forward and begin the process of seismically retrofitting and renovating the Pasadena Central Library after the City Council Monday awarding Gruen Associates a $6 million contract for professional design services for the retrofit project —That includes preparation of environmental documentation, final construction drawings and cost estimates for construction.

According to city officials, the contract is for an amount not to exceed $6,104,109, which includes a base contract amount of $5,779,109 and a contingency of $325,000.

With the contract awarded, environmental and design phase efforts will be initiated in March and are anticipated to be completed in approximately two years. This phase will also allow the City to determine the estimated total cost of the work to be done. A public outreach Library space can be reimagined effort will also be initiated to to provide updates and collect capacity and services, taking public feedback. The process into consideration current also includes an advisory and review of the retrofit design alternatives by the Technical Oversight Committee, Historic Preservation Commission, and the Public Safety Committee.

With Central Library approaching its centennial birthday in February 2027, an assessment of the building's condition and its various systems was completed in 2020.

The city is set to move alarm and fire sprinkler system. The inspection discovered that the building consists of an unreinforced masonry structure, with walls that are not fastened to the building's foundation nor to the reinforced concrete floor beams and the timber roof they support. A preliminary structural analysis of the building completed in April 2021 revealed that the building does not meet the recommended structural performance objectives in a seismic event.

On May 3, 2021, City officials were forced to close the Central Library for a required seismic retrofit and restoration to meet life safety requirements.

With Central Library having served as an educational and cultural hub in Pasadena for almost 100 years, the City established a Community Programming Committee to evaluate how the Central enhance the library's consideration current and future programming needs of the community. Comprised of community leaders with backgrounds in nonprofit organizations, library operations, historic preservation and media, they began meeting in September of 2022.

Curiosity Finds Surprise Clues to Mars' Watery Past

When NASA's Curiosity rover three times before finding a spot arrived at the "sulfate-bearing soft enough to drill. unit" last fall, scientists thought they'd seen the last evidence that lakes once covered this region of Mars. That's because the rock layers here formed in drier settings than regions explored earlier in the mission. The area's sulfates - salty minerals - are thought to have been left behind when water was drying to a trickle.

So Curiosity's team was surprised to discover the mission's clearest evidence yet of ancient water ripples that formed within lakes. Billions of years ago, waves on the surface of a shallow lake stirred up sediment at the lake bottom, over time creating rippled textures left in rock.

"This is the best evidence of water and waves that we've seen in the entire mission," said Ashwin Vasavada, Curiosity's project scientist at NASA's Propulsion Laboratory in Southern California. "We climbed through thousands of feet of lake deposits and never saw evidence like this - and now we found it in a place we expected to be dry." Layers of History

Since 2014, the rover has been ascending the foothills of Mount Sharp, a 3-mile-tall (5-kilometer-tall) mountain that was once laced with lakes and streams that would have provided a rich environment for microbial life, if any ever formed on the Red Planet.

Mount Sharp is made up of layers, with the oldest at the bottom of the mountain and the youngest at the top. As the rover ascends, it progresses along a Martian timeline, allowing scientists to study how Mars evolved from a planet that was more Earth-like in its ancient past, with a warmer climate and plentiful water, to the freezing desert it is today.

Having climbed nearly a halfmile above the mountain's base, Curiosity has found these rippled rock textures preserved what's nicknamed the "Marker Band" – a thin layer of dark rock that stands out from the rest of Mount Sharp. This rock layer is so hard that Curiosity hasn't been able to drill a sample from it despite several attempts. It's not the first time Mars has been unwilling to share a sample: Lower down the mountain, on "Vera Rubin mars.nasa.gov/msl. Ridge," Curiosity had to try

Scientists will be looking for softer rock in the week ahead. But even if they never get a sample from this unusual strip of rock, there are other sites they're eager to explore. Martian Clues

Far ahead of the Marker Band, scientists can see another clue to the history of Mars' ancient water in a valley named Gediz Vallis. Wind carved the valley, but a channel running through it that starts higher up on Mount Sharp is thought to have been eroded by a small river. Scientists suspect wet landslides also occurred here, sending carsize boulders and debris to the bottom of the valley.

Because the resulting debris pile sits on top of all the other layers in the valley, it's clearly one of the youngest features on Mount Sharp. Curiosity got a glimpse of this debris at Gediz Vallis Ridge twice last year but could only survey it from a distance. The rover team hopes to have another chance to view it later this year.

One more clue within the Marker Band that has fascinated the team is an unusual rock texture likely caused by some sort of regular cycle in the weather or climate, such as dust storms. Not far from the rippled textures are rocks made of layers that are regular in their spacing and thickness. This kind of rhythmic pattern in rock layers on Earth often stems from atmospheric events happening periodic intervals. It's possible the rhythmic patterns in these Martian rocks resulted from similar events, hinting at changes in the Red Planet's ancient climate.

"The wave ripples, debris flows, and rhythmic layers all tell us that the story of wet-to-dry on Mars wasn't simple," Vasavada said. "Mars' ancient climate had a wonderful complexity to it, much like Earth's." More About the Mission

The Curiosity mission is led by NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which is managed Caltech in Pasadena, California. JPL leads the mission on behalf of NASA's Science Mission Directorate in Washington. Malin Space Science Systems in San Diego built and operates Mastcam.

Chris Holden Introduces Legislation to Keep the Lights on in the West

Assemblymember Holden introduced legislation AB 538 Wednesday to work with states across the west and create a regional electric system that expands the footprint for clean energy resources and enables better collaboration, transparency, and integration across the western electrical transmission grid system.

footprint is the best way to ensure that all Californians have access to affordable, clean and reliable electricity," said Assembly member Holden. "To meet our climate and energy goals, California needs to triple the amount of its clean energy infrastructure, and we must ensure every community has access to clean power day and night. To do both at scale, we need to set ourselves up for success: Regional western energy cooperation is the best way to deliver the clean energy Californians need, while preventing blackouts and keeping energy costs down."

The California Independent System Operation (CAISO) is one of nine independent system operators or RTOs in across the West." North America. Although transmission in California is interconnected across 14 western states, British Columbia, Alberta, and a portion of Baja California, most of the utilities and federal entities like the Bonneville Power Authority are vertically integrated and operate independently. The bill would enable the transition of the CAISO to a regional transmission operator with fully independent governance involving states across the west. Preliminary work with its western neighbors has resulted ratepayers and a reduction in almost 800,000 tons.

Centralized energy dispatch, planning and governance of the grid "could significantly decrease the ratepayer impact of adapting to climate change while decarbonizing and bring considerable economic and environmental benefits by harnessing diversity in loads, weather, and clean resources

Other research has shown that there was no scenario where California would not benefit from CAISO expansion and, the bigger the footprint, the greater the benefits to electric customers, reliability, and achieving our climate goals. "Centralizing

SIERRA MADRE ITS SUPER BOWL SUNDAY

Here are Super Facts about Sundays Super Bowl Game...

'It has been said, after all, that Americans eat more than 1.2 billion chicken wings, 11 million slices of Domino's pizza, 11.2 million potato chips, 8.2 million pounds of tortilla chips, and all sorts of other delicious but caloric fare, especially when their teams lose.

Um, 11.2 million potato chips? Or, is that 11.2 million pounds of potato chips? That's still just a pound of potato chips for every 30 Americans - not that impressive. 1.2 billion chicken wings, on the other hand - that's 4 for every American, seems like a lot to me. There are only 2 drumsticks per chicken so that is almost 600 million chickens. That's impossible!! Or is it?

But hold on, I have more. Now these are mind-boggling.

We know a lot of beer will be consumed, but how much? So much that we would need five Rose Bowl Stadiums (not to mention bathrooms) to hold all the beer. My research tells me 325 million gallons of beer. Ninety-nine bottles of beer on the wall? How about 30 million bottles at 12 oz! Speaking of Pizza, the 11 million pizza slices would cover the Rose Bowl 22000 times! For me I'll go with Domenico's in on Washington.

Get them early. That is, buy your avocados early because we will go through 80 million avocados to make all sorts of Guacamole. I like mine spicy and chunky!

No matter what you decide to eat or drink, be responsible. Super Bowl Sunday is also in the top five of DUI arrests.

Stomachache? You better believe it. Anti-acid relief pills sales double the following Monday.

COMMUNITY: RESIDENTIAL BURGLARY PREVENTION TIPS

The Arcadia Police Department would like to offer our residents some residential burglary prevention tips.

- When you're away, make it look like you are home. Consider leaving lights, a television or radio on.
- If you have an alarm, turn it on when you leave.
- Install surveillance cameras. Many residents have a camera at their front door. We would also recommend additional cameras on the side and rear of your residence.
- Consider using a window or door stop/pin or placing something in the window/door track to prevent them from sliding open.
- Secure side gates with a heavy-duty lock.
- Don't allow mail or newspapers to stack up. If you plan to be away for some time, arrange for a trusted person to collect these items, or have the services stopped until you return.
- Know your neighbors and their vehicles, report suspicious persons/vehicles.
 Consider installing a safe to secure valuable items. If you choose to install a safe
- Consider installing a safe to secure valuable items. If you choose to install a safe, make sure it is properly secured to prevent thieves from taking the whole safe containing your valuables.
- Many of our recent burglaries target master/primary bedrooms. Consider storing valuables in another location in your home.
- There are companies who sell a film you can affix to a sliding glass door or window, that will hold the glass intact, deterring a criminal from gaining access if they attempt to shatter the door or window.

These are just a few tips to help prevent crime. One of the most important things we rely on is you. It's important to be aware of your surrounds and neighborhoods. If you see someone or something suspicious, don't wait to call us. Call us as soon as possible. If you believe it's a life or death emergency, call 9-1-1. If not, call our Dispatch Center at (626)574-5121. The quicker you call, the quicker we can respond.

CITY EMPLOYEE TO BE THE 2031 TOURNAMENT PRESIDENT

In a first, The Pasadena Tournament of Roses Association recently announced that City employee Ruth Martinez-Baenen (pictured) will serve as the Association's President in 2031. She will provide leadership for the 142nd Rose Parade and 117th Rose Bowl Game on January 1, 2031.

"This is the first time that a long-time City employee has been selected to serve as President of the Tournament of Roses Association," Assistant City Manager, Nicholas Rodriguez said.

Martinez-Baenen has volunteered as a "white suiter" for the Tournament of Roses for over 26 years. She has served as Chair for a number of Tournament committees including Decorating Places, Post Parade, Queen & Court, and University Entertainment, among others. Her selection as future Association President will afford her the opportunity to select the theme and Grand Marshal of the Rose Parade as well as visit each of the band entries from around the globe.

Martinez-Baenen has worked for the City of Pasadena for over 23 years in the capacity of a Project Manager in the City's Economic Development Division. As a Project Manager she serves as a business concierge to city businesses and helped to launch the City's Business Legacy Program. In 2011, she was voted Best Public Employee in Pasadena Weekly's Annual "Best of Pasadena" Poll.

TOURNAMENT FOUNDATION NOW ACCEPTING GRANT APPLICATIONS

Applications will be accepted from now through February 23.

The Pasadena Tournament of Roses Foundation is now accepting applications for its 2023 grant program. Since its inception in 1983, the Foundation has invested over $4 million in more than 700 Pasadena-area organizations. The grant awards in 2022 totaled nearly $200,000, which funded 19 organizations in the San Gabriel Valley. The grants supported new and ongoing programs benefiting children, teens, adults and seniors. From nonprofits offering animal therapy to special needs children, to organizations providing technical skills to underserved students and dance therapy for seniors diagnosed with Parkinson's and multiple sclerosis.

The 2023 grant cycle will be structured as follows – Tier 1: a one-year grant for $35,000, Tier 2: a one-year grant for $15,000 and Tier 3: several one-year grants for up to $10,000. The Foundation will also require applicants to include information on how their program will be delivered.

Eligible applicants are organizations with 501(c)(3) status, as of the submission deadline, February 23, 2023, that serves one or more of the following communities: Alhambra, Altadena, Arcadia, La Cañada Flintridge, Monrovia, Pasadena, San Gabriel, San Marino, Sierra Madre, South Pasadena, and Temple City. As in previous years, grants will be given in the categories of Performing and Visual Arts, Sports and Recreation, and Education (Early Childhood Education, Literacy and Science, Technology, Engineering and Math) programs.

The Tournament of Roses Foundation is a tax-exempt, non-profit public benefit corporation established to receive and manage contributions from the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Association, its supporters and the public. The 17-member board of directors is comprised of community leaders and Tournament Members, appointed by the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Association. Organizations or individuals interested in contributing or inquiring about the grants process should contact the Foundation by calling (626) 449-4100 or visiting the Tournament of Roses website at: tournamentofroses.com/foundation.

To apply for the 2023 grant cycle, eligible organizations should visit the Tournament of Roses Foundation page:

'THE SPACE BETWEEN: THE MODERN IN KOREAN ART'

Currently at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, there is a profound exhibition on view called "The Space Between: The Modern in Korean Art." I had the opportunity to read the book that accompanies the exhibition, a thick, exquisitely-illustrated publication of over 300 pages, also called "The Space Between," which summarizes the exhibition, and, in my opinion, is a "must-read" in order to grasp the full depth of this exhibition

Finally, at the invite of a museum employee, I managed to get to LACMA to see the exhibition for myself, assuming I would learn some new details about art. By some great fate, Dr. Virginia Moon, the curator of this exhibition, was there conducting a short private tour of the exhibition, and I was graciously allowed to join.

"The Space Between: The Modern in Korean Art" at LACMA includes 130 works of art, and is open through Feb. 20. The exhibition documents the development of modern art in Korea between 1897 and 1965. This was a tumultuous period that included the country's colonization by Japan, the resulting influx of Western culture and technology, and the Korean War, which tore the nation in two.

This exhibition is about so much more than "art." For me, Dr. Moon's depth of knowledge of the history and cultural influences during the periods of the exhibition brought this history of Korea alive and living in a way that I had never experienced before in an "art exhibition." Indeed, Dr. Moon's humor, objectivity, and deep insight into the intimate details of both the artists and times, provided a broad perspective of life, history, interaction with outsiders, and a vision into what life might have been like in the period covered.

The Space Between explores the development of the concept of the modern in Korean art in five sections. The first section, "The Modern Encounter," sets the stage with the introduction of Western modes of life and photography during the Korean Empire (1897-1910). The second section, "The Modern Response," explores artists' reactions to these changes within the challenging backdrop of the Japanese colonial period (1910-45). The third section, "The Modern Momentum," displays the deepening of artists' understanding of and engagement with Western artistic concepts and techniques as Korea emerged from the colonial period only to become mired in the Korean War five years later. The fourth section, "The Pageantry of the New Woman," highlights the newly constructed perceptions of the modern woman in a rapidly changing society. Finally, the last section, "Evolving into the Contemporary," offers a peek into the transition of Korean art into the contemporary period, in which artists continue to grapple with many of the same issues that emerged in the previous decades.

When this microcosmic art exhibition's significance is grasped, one gains a macroscopic view of not just Korea and what was happening there during this period, but a bigger picture of the world at large, and how artists have always struggled to express what was occurring. Many of the pieces in this exhibition have never been seen outside of Korea. Dr. Moon began by showing how the technology of photography began to _change art, when artists drew portraits from photos, not live subjects. In the very beginning of the exhibit, we see a 1907 photograph of Emperor Gojong, and we also see a very different image drawn by an artist. Photography also allowed portraits of women to be created for the very first time, providing a way for artists to paint women as their subjects without risking the "indecency" of an unmarried man and woman to share a private space.

The exhibition moves to how Korean artists began to draw the human body. Nudes were an academically recognized subject in European art schools and painting tradition, so this became a subject that Korean artists encountered and then began to learn to work with in Japan, as part of their academic training. Women are included in the art, and many of the artists featured were women.

Dr. Moon also explained some of the seemingly-mundane (and touchingly human) aspects of some of the pieces, such as ink paintings that became unusually large, as a way of quickly garnering attention in the newly established annual art exhibitions, which were hung in salon-style and often determined the success of an artist's career.

We stopped at a particularly noteworthy piece by Kim Whanki called "Jars and Women." Dr. Moon pointed out that the casual observer will simply note that it is pretty and reminiscent of Picasso. Kim studied art in Japan, and was met with the Korean war upon his return. He ended up spending three years in refuge in Busan, where he produced this work. When you study the piece, it shows refugee tents, and _the women carrying jars is Kim's commentary on the effects of war. Be sure to read all the notes when you visit the exhibition. There is more to each piece than initially meets the eye.

There are art pieces that represent the short-lived cultural moment known as Sinyeoseong, or "New Woman." According to Dr. Virginia Moon, Sinyeoseong represented a "minor fluttering" of feminist sentiment that emerged in the 1910s. She points out that Sinyeoseong was created and promoted largely by men. "It was the men who are thinking, 'How can we utilize women in order to help modernize the country?" says Moon. The movement had its limitations: In the early 20th century, Korean women were encouraged to pursue an education, but only so they could better raise and instruct their children. "It wasn't this major movement that rocked everybody's world," says Moon. But it did create an opening for individual women

One of the works in the exhibition was purchased by a U.S. soldier before returning to the U.S. The work was by Park Soo Keun, who is famous in Korea, but the soldier purchased it for about $5 at the time, and it hung in his Laguna Beach living room for about 40 years. The painting, called Homeward Bound , is simple, and worth about a million dollars today. Interestingly, though Park is very famous in Korea, most Koreans would have never seen this painting.

Dr. Moon often mentions that it is important to remember that this is not the full picture by any means. What we see in the show are only what has survived colonial history, war, division of the peninsula, etc.

When you go to this exhibit, plan several hours so you can take it all in. Do not plan a short lunch-time visit.

Los Angeles County Museum of Art is located at 5905 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles. This exhibition closes February 20. The museum is open Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays from 11 a.m.-6 p.m.; Closed Wednesdays, and Fridays from 11 a.m.-8 p.m.; Saturdays and Sundays 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. For more information, you can call (323) 857-6000, or go to lacma.org

Pet of the Week

Don't let the scary name fool you; the only threat this Avalanche poses is if you don't like gentle kisses or petting this girl's luxurious coat while she snuggles into you. Sweet Ava took some time to warm up to us, and what really helped bring her out of her shell were when the volunteers would sit and read to her.

Now that we can see the happy girl that was underneath the shyness, we could not be happier. When Avalanche gets the zoomies- her exuberance and joy is infectious! She runs around the yard with reckless abandon, happily squeaking on toys and smiling from ear to ear. When she slows down for a moment, it's cuddle time- she leans into you for pets and gently nudges you for more if you stop for some reason.

Avalanche's adoption fee is only $14 between February 9 – 15 as part of the Be Mine promotion. Read Avalanche (and other dogs') "dating profile" on our website, then book a "first date" to meet her!

The adoption fee for dogs is $150. All dog adoptions include spay or neuter, microchip, and age-appropriate vaccines.

New adopters will receive a complimentary health-and-wellness exam from VCA Animal Hospitals, as well as a goody bag filled with information about how to care for your pet. View photos of adoptable pets and schedule an adoption appointment at pasadenahumane. org. Adoptions are by appointment only, and new adoption appointments are available every Sunday and Wednesday at 10:00 a.m.

ASSISTED LIVING OR NURSING HOME?

There are many myths about Assisted Living being like Nursing Homes. This is not true at all. Nursing facilities are for those with chronic health issues who require care around the clock from medical professionals.

In Assisted Living, one will get the support as needed, such as getting help with showering, grooming, and dressing. Again, these services are based on the seniors

Here are some different tips and tools to help you make an informed decision.

Researching Tools

If you're in the decision-making process of where to retire, InternationalLiving.com and LiveAndInvestOverseas.com are two excellent websites that provide articles, information and lists of the top retirement destinations abroad based on cost of living, climate, health care, housing, visas, infrastructure and more.

Once you pick a country or two that interest you, a smart move is to talk or network with some expats who have already made the move you're thinking about making. They can give you tips and sugges tions on many issues, as well as the advantages and disadvantages and day-to-day reality of living in a particular country. Facebook is a good resource for locating expat groups.

But before committing, experts recommend visiting multiple times during different seasons to see whether you can envision yourself living there and not just exploring the place as a tourist. Here are some other factors you need to look into.

Cost of living: Retiring abroad used to be seen as a surefire way to live beyond your means, and for many countries it still is. But depending on where you move, the U.S. dollar may not stretch as far as you think. To compare the cost of living in hundreds of cities and countries use Numbeo.com.

Visa requirements: If you want to spend just part of the year living abroad or are willing to move from country to country, most countries offer a three or six-month tourist visa, which is easy to get. But if you want to set up permanent residence abroad you might have to jump over a few more hurdles depending on where you want to retire. To research visa requirements in the countries that interest you, visit VisaGuide.World.

Health care: Most U.S. health insurance companies do not provide coverage outside the U.S., and neither does Medicare. Check with the embassy (see USembassy.gov) of your destination country to see how you can be covered as a foreign resident.

Many countries provide government-sponsored health care that's inexpensive, accessible and just as good as what you get in the states, or you may want to buy a policy through Medibroker.com or BupaGlobal.com.

Also know that most people who retire abroad eventually return to the U.S., so experts recommend paying your Medicare Part B premiums. If you drop and resume Part B, or delay initial enrollment, you'll pay a 10 percent premium penalty for every 12-month period you weren't enrolled.

Housing: Buying a home in a foreign country can be complicated, so it's almost always better to rent first until you're sure you want to permanently reside there.

Money matters: Opening or maintaining a bank account abroad can also be difficult. You may have to establish a checking account with an institution that has international reach like Citibank or maintain a U.S. bank account that you can access online. Claiming your Social Security benefits, however, should not be a problem as they offer direct deposit to almost every country in the world. See SSA.gov/international/payments.html.

Taxes: You also need to research tax rules in your prospective countries and be aware that even if you're living in another country, as a U.S. citizen you'll still most likely need to file an annual U.S. tax return - see IRS.gov/pub/irs-pdf/p54.pdf.

The Sierra Madre Public Library has announced the 2023 selection of One Book One City; Flying Free: my victory over fear to become the first Latina pilot on the US Aerobatic Team by Cecilia Aragon.

One Book One City is a community reading program that invites everyone in Sierra Madre to read and discuss the same book during February 2023 and participate in exciting programs and events.

This fabulous community program includes an Author Talk with Cecilia Aragon, a tour of the San Gabriel Valley Airport, a kids STEAM Dream Workshop with local teacher Dany Richey, a kids paper airplane competition, a movie night with the documentary Fly Like a Girl through our new streaming service Kanopy, and inspirational presentations on women in flight.

Aragon's memoir, Flying Free, shares her own journey of breaking past her own fears to become a champion aerobatic pilot. Aragon was a timid child, painfully shy and afraid of everything from heights to people. How did she become a death-defying daredevil and aerobatic pilot? In her memoir, she bares her life even though writing it "scared me more than pointing my single-seat experimental plane at the ground and opening the throttle until I was roaring earthward at 250 mph".

Connect all month long through engaging themed programs that are free and fun for the whole family. Call the Library at (626) 355-7186 for more information.

OUT TO PASTOR

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

ANOTHER CELEBRATION IN THE BANK

This month The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage and I celebrate the 52nd anniversary of our engagement. In August, it'll be the 52nd anniversary of our wedding. I can't believe we have been together for 52 years. But, alas, here it is.

I first met her in September of 1970 when I went to Bible college. Knowing that God was calling me to be a pastor, I understood that I would need a wife to help me in this ministry. Not being woman-wise, and no dating experience: I thought a date was simply a dried-up prune.

Not knowing what to do, I simply put it in God's hands. Before I went to this Bible college, my prayer was, "Heavenly Father, make the first young lady I meet when I go to school be the wife you have chosen for me." It sounds ridiculous, but not being woman-wise, it was my best choice.

My parents took me up to New York, where the college was, as we drove into the men's dorm driveway a young lady was coming out. This young lady had her hair rolled up in tomato cans which was rather usual at that time. When I saw her walk out, I quickly prayed, "Not yet, Father. My feet have not touched the ground."

I think God was chuckling. For some reason, I was never able to get away from her because it was a very small college, and everybody knew everybody. Not being womanwise, I did not know how to conduct myself in such a situation.

In December, we were on some date, and she happened to say, or so I thought she happened to say it, "Wouldn't it be nice to get married?" Again, my not being womanwise did not allow me to understand what was going on. I simply re-plied to her, "I think it would be great to get married." Foolish me, I thought that was the end of the

The next day in school, as I walked down the hallway, everybody looked at me, smiled, and said, "Congratulations." So I smiled back and thanked them. I had no idea what I was being congratulated on, I thought perhaps I finally passed a test in school. After a while, I stopped somebody congratulating me and asked what he was congratulating me for. Laughing, he said, "Oh, you silly boy. I'm congratulating you on your upcoming wedding." Then he walked away.

I stood in the hallway for a moment, trying to process what he had just told me. What wedding was he talking about? Who did they think I was marrying? Later that afternoon, I met her in the cafeteria, she looked at me, smiled, and said, "I've told every-body, and everybody is happy for us. Isn't it wonderful?" I then realized I was the last one in the college that knew I was getting married.

God was the first one to know whom I was going to marry, and I was the last one to know. That is chapter 1 in woman-wise psychology. Although it's been 52 years, I still have not progressed to chapter 2. Perhaps chapter 2 would begin with, "Do you want to be right or happy?" I am here to tell you that during those 52 years, I have been

According to tradition back then, the next step was to get permission from her father to marry his daughter. So you understand I was rather nervous along this line because I had never met her father or mother. Before the engagement, we traveled back to visit her family. It was then that I met her father. I took him aside and said, "Sir, I would like to ask your permission for your daughter's hand in marriage." He looked at me with a rather strange look and said, "No."

At this point, my flabber just got gasted, and I didn't know what to say. He looked at me strangely and said, "Young man, you take my entire daughter or none of her. Not just her hand." At this point, I realized I was also not father-in-law-wise. That was well beyond my pay scale. My heart sank, and I did not know the next step. Looking at me, her father finally broke down laughing. I had no idea what he was laughing about. "Of course, you can have my daughter's hand in marriage as long as you take the rest of her."

I tried to laugh as best I could but had no idea what was happening in the world. If this is what I was marrying into, it will be a long voyage.

As we were driving back to school, the future Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage looked at me and said, "Well, what do you think of my family?" I just smiled back at her and she said, "Welcome to my family." I smiled and thought about my favorite life verse from the Bible.

Proverbs 3:5-6, "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." This verse has guided me throughout my entire life, especially in the area of marriage. Either I can lean on my own understanding, or, I can trust in the Lord with all my heart. If I'm going to go down the right path only God can lead me.

PUT THE LIGHTS ON OBSERVING

OPINION

Putting the lights on, that very simple act, has some personal significance to me. It is connected perhaps to a feeling that I have every day, even though I do not acknowledge it—to be related to something bigger than myself, something older and something not yet born, that will endure through time. Does this language ring a bell for you? I stumbled upon it Sunday as I thought about writing this article earlier than the Wednesday night. I have been told real writers prepare in advance, make corrections, and perhaps even rewrite parts. That is what real writers do and alas I realize I am not a real writer. It is now almost midnight on Wednesday and I am just beginning the article that must be submitted tomorrow morning.

Anyway on Sunday, thinking about my article and looking for inspiration I casually reached up into the bookshelf and brought down this black book hoping that it was a large print book that I could easily read. The book surprisingly was a Jewish prayer book. Really I know little about the Jewish faith or any faith but I remember once in Elementary School in Chicago being asked questions relating to religion and nationality whatever that meant. I remember asking my mother, who unlike the rest of my family was not an immigrant but was untutored in any religion, what nationality meant. She told that for me the answer to both religion and nationality was Jewish – Jewish. I think she meant that for Jews the country made no difference because we were Jewish no matter what country we were in. I asked what being Jewish meant and understood that we were not Christian and that I shouldn't sing Christmas songs along with the other kids.

I asked what else she knew about being Jewish and she said that she knew that on the Jewish Sabbath, which started Friday night and continued until Saturday night, observant religious Jews would perform no regular work or other normal activities like ride in cars or even turn on the lights. If things needed to be done these observant Jews relied upon non-Jewish friends who she called Shabbos goys, to perform these activities. On the Sabbath, I imagine now, that observant Jews would do nothing but "observe" as a method of clearly seeing and finding themselves. Even turning on the lights got in the way of simply observing without doing much else.

Anyway, returning to Sunday I opened the black book and realized that it was a kind of Jewish Prayer Book. How it got on my bookshelf I will never know. As I opened the back of the book and read I thought of the title of all my articles "Put the Lights On" and laughed to myself about the prohibition which I did not understand. Anyway. It was Sunday and the lights were already on.

I read the very first back page of the book and it contained the language that I referred to in my opening paragraph about feeling a need to be related to something bigger than oneself, something more alive...something that will endure through time. I don't know about you but I feel such a need. I always experience that people's need to amuse and divert themselves is a recognition that there is something wrong. Something is missing and they don't want to think about it. Well I do want to think about it and even talk about it but no one I know seems to want to. These articles which I have been writing for about fifteen years are a recognition of my need to communicate with that unknown and unacknowledged part of my self. Perhaps religiously observant people are able to connect with that need through prayer and the overall manner in which they live. Who knows?

It is now almost 7 A.M. Thursday morning and there is something else I want to share. Yesterday evening as my wife was driving us home from the Drugstore she asked me if I had my wallet. I couldn't find it and after stopping the car and searching it was still not there. It was already dark, and it seemed hopeless but we drove back a couple of miles to the parking lot of the Pharmacy we had just left probably ten minutes earlier. As we entered the parking lot and stopped the car a man asked if I was Mr. Tolchin", he said. I told him I was and he said he was looking for my address so he could bring the wallet by my house. The wallet contained my Driver's License with picture and address but no phone number. Really it seemed unlikely that he could bring the wallet to my house as I lived miles away in a hard to find place in a canyon. After I told him that I was Mr. Tolchin and thanked him, he handed

This morning was trash day and at about 6:30 a.m. I brought our trash barrels out to the street. I noticed at the house next door that the trash barrel had been knocked over, probably by a bear, and trash was all over the street. Thinking about this article which I had written last night, but not yet submitted, I told my wife I was going to pick up the trash, other people's trash. She laughed and said that if I was going to do that I better wear some gloves. I went upstairs and put on a pair of unopened work gloves which lay on the dresser. I keep them there to remind me of something. The gloves were a birthday gift from my learning disabled son who is a wonderful person and always tries to help. He thought he was buying

I put on the gloves and remembered a statement proclaiming "A good person always picks up his own trash and other people's as well". I am generally NOT such a person. This morning I was. In my mind this morning this all connects with the language concerning the feeling of incompleteness that began this article. Remember I am a lifelong disbeliever in all religious faiths and I don't know how that book got on my bookshelf. Right now, however, I feel a little less incomplete and I hope you understand. Anyway, I suggest that we all do our best to observe the opportunities to be the person we would like to be. But don't do anything crazy and remember to wear the gloves.

HOW TO WRITE A ROMANCE STORY TOM PURCELL

to get on with their lives.

All my father

ever wanted as a young man was to marry my mother and start a family — plans that were interrupted when he was drafted into the Army during the Korean conflict.

As he served in Texas, Germany and other parts of the world, there was only one affordable way to stay in contact: writing letters.

Every single day, seven days a week, my mother told me, he wrote a letter to her and she wrote one to him. Some letters ran four pages long. Some days, they wrote two!

They shared their hopes and dreams, and how they missed each other so. My father joked that they'd have four boys — a football player, a baseball player, a basketball player and a priest.

Their cursive handwriting was as impeccable and as artful as their words. Their letters offer a case study in the art of romance. Romance, according to Dictionary.com, is "to court or woo romantically; treat with ardor or chivalrousness."

"Ardor" defines my parents' romance especially well: "great warmth of feeling; fervor; passion; intense devotion, eagerness, or enthusiasm; zeal; burning heat." Halfway through my father's two-year tour, my mother stopped writing to him for three weeks.

He was mortified, thinking she'd found someone else — unaware that she'd become so sick from rheumatic fever that she nearly died. He was relieved to learn there was a reason her letters had ceased, but now he agonized over her well-being. Finally, after two long years, he was able to return home to her. Finally, they were able

The romance my parents enjoyed is a dying art among younger people. Romance is about kindness and honesty and graciousness and affection — it's about patience and sacrificing now to enjoy greater fulfilment later on.

It's about trust. It is the sense that someone places you above all others and cares more for your needs than his own.

My parents really did believe that when they married they became one under God. They fully accepted that their commitment to each other was to "have and to hold, for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health, until death do them

Some consider these dated concepts in a modern era of instant gratifica-tion, cynicism, self-centeredness and hook-up dating, but without the principles on which my parents built their love, romance cannot flourish.

My father told me on many occasions that the first time he set his eyes on my mother he knew he would marry her — and his proudest achievement was that he made it happen.

Well, I am hopeful to learn that younger generations are the biggest be-lievers in love at first sight, according to a 2017 Gallup survey. They are romantics at heart — as we all are! We are all authors of our own stories, too, so why not begin writing ro-mance into our lives?

This Valentine's Day, turn off your computer and smartphone. Gather some stationery and a ballpoint pen and write to someone you love — or someone you know who makes your knees wobble.

Maybe you'll fail, maybe you'll succeed, but know this: The act of writing our stories is where true romance begins.

My mother and father wrote a love story for the ages. Young or old, all of us can do likewise.

Happy Valentine's Day!

RICH & FAMOUS

VALENTINE HYGIENE PRIMER FOR GUYS

Okay guys. If you are about to entertain a lovely lady this upcoming Valentine's Day, listen up. If you Literally, one or more ladies have contacted your sophisticated, suave and chic columnist pleading that I address vital issues of critical importance to the fairer sex. You might want to take notes. If your significant other (assuming you have one) ever reads my column, it is certain to be posted on the refrigerator, in the garage, and/or on the wall above the john.

Minimal Standards of Hygiene

- Hot water is your friend. Deodorant, cologne and aftershave are no substitutes for a hot shower. If you lift things for a living that are heavier than a bread box, shower often. Soap would be a nice touch.
- Deodorize. If your 24 hours are up it's time to reload. Stick or spray, it doesn't matter. Some of you need to do both.
- Send an expedition up those two little caves above your mouth. If you need a machete to clear a path invest in a nose hair trimmer. If you can actually convince a girl to get close enough to kiss you, she's going to notice if there's a rain forest hanging down from the twin towers.
- While you're at it, check the hairs above your eyeballs. Yeah that's right. There are two rows: one on the left and one on the right. If they connect in the middle its no wonder women run away from you. No eagle wings or feather dusters. They need to be groomed, trimmed and all going in the right direction.
- Dust off your tooth brush. In fact, replace it and then USE IT. No, not to clean tile grout. Stick it in your mouth and spin your head. While you're in the neighborhood...floss. Leftovers from dinner need to be kept in the refrigerator. not between your teeth. I'm fairly certain if you floss regularly your breath might improve.
- Do you know what the biggest organ in your body is? Oh, that's just disgusting. I'm talking about your skin. Were you aware that in the animal kingdom the male of the species is always more beautiful than the female? Not us. So listen up and lets get back on the evolutionary track. Start with moisturizer. Buy some and rub it all over your body. Then, just maybe, some woman won't mind looking at you.
- Did I mention changing clothes regularly? No, not changing out of yesterday's boxers and into the day before's. Change into CLEAN clothes. While we're at it wear socks. Smelling bare feet in tennis shoes would make an effective form of torture at Guantanamo. Remember, hot air rises. Typically right up to her nose.
- Optional body noises are not the homosapien males mating call to the female. Save your belches, burps and farts for the guys at the ballgame. Try it on a woman and you will foul out (Get it? Foul out...baseball? Oh, never mind.)

Men! Everyday can be Valentine's Day with the ladies if you follow a few basic rules. Don't be a walking billboard for evolution. Remember, Neanderthals died out as a species cause they didn't get lucky.
