Dreams," the Sierra Madre Float Association most ambitious project to date, was in full swing this week. Volunteers began working around the clock in perpetration for Sunday's Tournament of Roses mechanical inspection where everything that moves must work, including seven tall retractable trees, six waterfalls and even the top of an elephant. The inspection is set for 7 a.m. sharp.

The float must also be fully enclosed with foam so inspectors can take temperature readings. There will even be a fire drill where, at any time, all the riders must be off the float in 45 seconds, although that is not what the association is worried about. "We need volunteers," they screamed.

"We have run out of time," said Volunteer Coordinator Bonnie Colcher. "We have to get it enclosed by Sunday. We cannot postpone the inspection, there is no time."

This is the biggest and most costly float by the association to date. The Indian wedding scene is Director of Decoration, Kat Sappington, explained the float's idea came from the parade's theme "Hat's off to Entertainment." She said Mumbai India, home of "Bollywood," is the largest and fastest growing movie industry in the world.

Colcher said a big concern was whether or not all of the waterfalls would be working by the inspection, "Now do you see the panic that we're in?" She explained that the float would be scrutinized if any of them even splashed too much. She said the elephant also had to come apart to meet the tournament's maximum height limit 16.5 feet collapsed.

The float already has passed a first inspection in November. "You could not even proceed unless you fixed any elements," She said they had only one element that was not satisfactory, "That was fixed within 15 minutes."

This time around she said they were not so sure.

City Experiences First Yellow Alert - All Goes Well By Dean Lee

City Staff held another "mud" meeting Wednesday night in City Hall and, although only a handful of people showed up, the meeting was devoted to resident feedback after the first real rain storm since implementing the new alert systems.

Resident and Real Estate Agent Carol Canterbury said her biggest complaint was that during last week's storms the power went out and any TV or computer warning was useless. She also said the most visible signs were the lighted police message boards on the side of the roads.

Director of Public Works Bruce Inman said burned areas from the recent fires in Chino Hills and Sylmar had no effect on Sierra Madre. He said Los Angeles County had plenty of resources. He also did not anticipate a shortage of K-rail, the cement barricades used to block mud. Inman said the county was back Friday securing the Stonehouse property.

He also said the rainstorm produced less than a county's Phase One rain storm. He said the phases go to three. He was worried that if they put up yellow flags too often, people would get use to them.

"Their phase three is potentially overflowing Sierra Madre Dam," he said. "That thing's 80

Inman explained the city's two immediate concerns were removing the "bulkheads" put up in 1978 to catch debris above Skyline Drive and to secure a small canyon at the end of Sunrise Hill, a private street. He said this small canyon was virtually unknown but had the potential to release 6,000 cubic yards of debris during a rainstorm. He said they were putting a removable barrier across

He said the Conservation Corps, which built the Skyline Drive bulkheads, agreed to take them out, although doing so would take two months. Inman said every time it rains these old bulkheads had a chance of becoming projectiles.

"They're getting 7,000 yards of debris and all those sheet metal panelings through a little opening in the house," he said explaining that everything funneled through a single house in the 800 block of Skyline Drive. He said he could only imagine one of the panels blocking the drainage during a rainstorm, thus sending mud and debris through the neighborhood.

At the beginning of the meeting Inman briefly went over the city's alert system including, Ready, Set, Go a colored flag system staring with green and ending with

A green flag is activated under a prediction of 80 percent to 100 percent chance of rain. This is when residents should get "ready," he said. Yellow is activated when a county Phase One is called, when small, isolated debris and mudflows are possible. Affected residents should get "set" to leave their homes. City Manger Elaine Aguilar said during this time cars can be towed wherever signs are posted. Red means "GO" and residents should evacuate, according to

He also explained the city's other awareness program "Ready For 7." He simply said residents should be able to be on their own for seven days. Aguilar also urged residents to sign up for email blasts on Emergency Information at cityofsierramadre.com.

The Sierra Madre Chamber of Commerce and local organizations and merchants put on another spectacular Dickens Village event last Saturday, full of fun and treats for the entire family. Merchants opened their doors to hundreds of visitors to the city. Sierra Madre Women's Club, Civic Club and Rotary Club were among many other organizations that sold baked goods and other items to support their causes. And, of course, Santa Claus and Snow really captivated the children attending the event.

DEPARTMENT REMINDS PASADENA FIRE COMMUNITY TO TAKE PRECAUTIONS THIS HOLIDAY SEASON

The risk of fires increases during the holiday season. You don't have to give up traditions in the interest of safety if you follow simple recommendations from the Pasadena Fire Department.

- * Select a fresh Christmas tree that is kept in water at all times. Needles on fresh trees should be green and should not fall off easily. Don't put your tree up too early or leave it up longer than two weeks after the holidays. Dry trees can ignite easily and create fires that can spread rapidly to nearby combustible materials.
- * Place your tree in a safe place away from heat sources such as a fireplaces and heating
- * Maintain your holiday lights. Inspect your lights before you use them to ensure they don't have frayed wires, gaps in the insulation, broken or cracked sockets, or excessive wear. Only use lighting that is listed by an approved testing laboratory. Don't leave the lights on when you're not home.
- * Avoid overloading electrical outlets. Don't link more than three light strands unless the directions indicate it is safe. Periodically check the wires; they should not be warm to the - * Use only non-flammable decorations that are placed away from heat vents. If you use an artificial tree, make sure it is flame retardant.
- fif you use candles, make sure they are in stable holders and place them where children and pets cannot knock them down. Do not leave lit candles unattended. Never leave the house with candles burning.
- * Keep fresh batteries in your smoke detectors and practice your family evacuation plans.

High-tech Bus Data System OK'd

By Dean Lee

Soon bus riders in Pasadena will be able to retrieve real-time local ARTS Shuttle arrival data on their cell phones and/ or on signs at bus stops. The over $1 million Intelligent TransportationSystem project includes $834,077 in federal funds with a required local match of $208,520.

Thecitycouncillastmonth approved an agreement with the Los Angeles Metropolitan County Transportation Authority to act as the pass-through agency for the funds charging the city $41,704 for the service. Staff said Metro would only manage the funds.

Assistant City Manager Julie Gutierrez said Thursday the system would work similar to train stations with a digital display. She said similar cities have the arrival system including Portland and Glendale. Buses would use GPS and the data would be sent through an internet interface staff said.

Department Transportation Director FrederickDocksaid, "This gives us as the framework communicate information through fixed or ultimately, if we are able to work it through our traffic management center, over a web based interface." Dock added that they were still working on how the overall mechanics would work. He also said that if they decided not to use the real-time system the information would still be on fixed displays.

"It would say, bus arriving' in a given number of minutes," he said.

In related news, the city council also authorized the extension of First Transit to operate the ARTS and Dial-A-Ride for the next two months after their contract ended in November. Last year a number of local bus drivers threatened a strike over First Transit working conditions. The extension will cost $763,000.

Staff said the change in the economy has had an impact on the two revenue sources, Proposition A and Proposition C, which fund the ARTS and Dial-A-Ride. The city is looking at revising the funding program.

First Transit also asked for an hourly rate increase by three percent form $53.83 to $55.44 for the ARTS Bus and from $54.17 to $55.80.

Gutierrez also said the city will have new busses added to their fleet but did not give any details. Approximately 1.7 million passengers ride buses yearly. transportation ARTS department has also intensified promotion multimodal transportation options, including bicycling, walking and carpooling. For more information call 626-744-3725 or visit cityofpasadena.net

PCC President to Expressing a desire to reduce Pasadena City College's carbon footprint, PCC President Paulette J. Perfumo will sign the American College & Presidents University Commitment Climate on December 9 at a noon ceremony Galloway Plaza. signing the commitment, Dr. Perfumo and PCC thereby recognize: the unprecedented scale and speed of global warming and its potential for largescale, adverse health, social, economic and ecological effects; the scientific consensus that global warming is real and is largely being caused by humans; and the need to reduce the global emission of greenhouse gases by 80 percent by mid-century at the latest, in order to avert the worst impacts of global warming and to reestablish the more stable climatic conditions that have made human progress over the last 10,000 years possible.

PCC will be the 603rd institution of higher education pledge its support of the commitment. All 50 states are represented among the signatories.

"Community colleges are places of lifelong learning and as we come together as a community of learners, what better place to learn together about this critical issue before us, and help create generations," Dr. Perfumo said.

The commitment was set out because colleges and universities are considered ideal settings to develop workable new strategies, systems, behaviors and technologies that can be scaled up to the community and state levels. According to the "Higher commitment, Education is also a $317 billion economic engine that employs millions of people and spends billions of dollars on fuel, energy, products, services and infrastructure."

By signing the commitment, PCC is committed to developing a comprehensive plan in pursuit of "climate neutrality." Within two years of signing, an institutional action plan for becoming climate neutral must be developed. The institutional action plan will delineate a target date for compliance and set interim targets for goals and actions with mechanisms for tracking progress, and calls for expanded research on achieving climate neutrality. In addition, climate neutrality and sustainability are to be made part of the curriculum and experience educational for all students.

Perfumo plans to a brighter future for future implement a multi-track approach, including green-collar certifications and teaching sustainability across the PCC curriculum, as well as a "greener" approach conducting PCC's to business.

Urgent Care: Considered

By Dean Lee

This Monday night the city council is set to consider approving $331,000 for the preparation of the architectural design and contract documents for an Urgent Care pilot program at 3160 E. Del Mar Boulevard.

Staff said this was the most feasible location even after looking into potential alterative sites such as the former Saint Luke's Medical Center although the city only looked at sites that could be leased or purchased. Other criteria included, lease or purchase cost, east Pasadena location, minimum of 8,000 square feet, need for tenant improvements or build-out, willingness to convert office space for medical use, willingness to allow after-hours and weekend use, access to public transportation, and available parking. The pilot program will last five years.

Charles Phoenix Selected 32nd Doo Dah Grand Marshal

Entertainer, author and pop-culture expert Charles Phoenix has been known for his live, hilarious Retro Slide Show performances, fun-filled School Bus Field Trip

Tours, crazy kitchen experiments and colorful coffee table books. Now he will be known for leading the notorious Doo Dah Parade, alter-ego to the Tournament of Roses, as its 2009 Grand Marshal.

The parade will make its way down Colorado Boulevard in the historic Old Pasadena District on Sunday, January 18th, stepping off at 11:30am. Fans across the nation know Charles Phoenix for his hip and highly original take on kitschy and classic American culture, which is characterized by an enthusiasm infectious and keen eye for oddball details.

Charles is a recurring correspondent for NPR's Day to Day and guest on The Martha Stewart Show. LA WEEKLY chose Charles for the cover of its 2008 People issue, calling him the "Kodachrome King."

Parade organizers feel that Phoenix is a perfect match for an event that's widely known as a send-up of convention and social norms. Doo Dah head Tom Coston says, "Charles is simply hilarious, graciously wicked and a truly artistic spirit—that spells Doo

Dah." The Grand

Marshal's entourage will also be pure Charles Phoenix. He will be traveling the parade route standing on the tailgate of a 1964 Ford station wagon that special ordered by the Templton, California Fire Department.

It's fire engine red, complete with a siren on top and will be towing a vintage matching travel trailer trailed by dozens of champion roller skaters. The spectacle is everything! "I'm thrilled to be the Doo Dah Grand Marshal

this year, "says

Phoenix with his usual verve. "I nearly collapsed with joy when the call came because it puts biggest goal in life to be the Grand Marshal of the grandest parade on the planet - the me that much closer to my

Rose Parade. The Doo

Dah is just a stepping stone for me."

The 32nd Occasional Doo Dah Parade will celebrate the post-holiday season in its typically loud, irreverent style. Once a grassroots event begun in 1978, Doo Dah soon gained national recognition as the twisted sister to Pasadena's 'other parade', featuring a woolly range of mischiefs, grounded political homegrown superheroes, pundits, satirists, art car inventors, and other bohemian frolickers. This year's Grand Marshal follows in the footsteps of anti-consumer evangelist Reverend Billy, performing artists Culture Clash, rock-a-billy king Ray Campi, novelty DJ Dr. Demento, singer-songwriter Whitcomb and Doo Dah's signature Synchronized Briefcase Marching Drill

A native of Ontario, California, Charles is very proud to have been educated at the Used Car Lot School of Style; Disneyland School of Design; and Shopping Mall School of Sociology. As a teen he discovered thrift shops as museums of merchandise: the perfect place to study the underbelly of our mass consumerism culture.

While working as a fashion designer in Los Angeles, Charles stumbled upon a shoebox full of someone's old Kodachome travel slides in a

Pasadena thrift shop. The box was marked "Trip Across the United States 1957." He knew he'd found a treasure but had no idea that these slides would change the course of his life. Soon, collecting orphaned slides became an addiction that inspired his first Retro Slide Show performance, "The Retro Vacation Tour of the USA." Charles, thus, transformed classic living room slide show into a high-octane celebration of mid-century American culture.

A Weekly Spotlight on Sierra Madre Volunteers tocus

Paul Neiby

"Volunteerism has nothing to do with wanting to be a honcho. If something needs to be done, you must leap in. There is no altruism involved."

Paul Neiby, M.D., is known for his activism, his energy, his willingness to jump in and get the job done. The surgeon, who practiced medicine in Arcadia for 30 years, said, "I'm a rebel. I have been most of my life and I have no apologies.

Paul said he just wanted to do his craft and take Park House. He also is a happy supporter of Sierra care of his yard. He didn't care about local politics and issues... well, that is, until 25 years ago when Sierra Madre City Council decided to remove 80 trees along Orange Grove to make room for more traffic on that busy street. The Neibys have lived on Orange Grove since 1976 when he bought the 1 1/2-acre plot, and the possibility of added traffic made Paul's blood boil. After a flurry of activity, the problem was solved between Sierra Madre and Arcadia City Councils (the towns split ownership Orange Grove Ave.) when they agreed to save the trees and widen the street. But that was just one of Paul's forays into assigned to Okinawa before the Vietnam War.

When he was on the Sierra Madre Library Board, Paul wanted to continue the Oral History Project that was started by Janie Kisstner before her death. With the help of other volunteers the project was resumed (Suzi McConnell and Jay Whitcraft helped) and the work has continued for six years with about 40 interviews of local celebrities already completed.

About six years before Sierra Madre's Centennial in 2007, several local people, including Neiby, decided the town needed an illustrated, interesting history book. Michele Zack has completed the book and it should be out soon, Paul said. He has also put a considerable amount of money in this project. Jeff Lapides is completing artistic production of the book.

Now that he's on the Senior Commission, Paul has been enthusiastic about renovation of the Hart > Madre Kiwanis Club and served as its president for a year. He's also coordinating Kiwanis Key Clubbers.

As if that enough volunteerism, Paul was an attending surgery staff member at USC for 17 years. This past year he received an award at the Wistaria Volunteer activities for his Sierra unique Madre activities. The surgeon received his medical education at the Universities of Iowa and Pennsylvania. Photo By S. Henderson In 1961, he joined

On their plot in Sierra Madre, the Neibys have a variety of plants, trees and vegetables. Paul is a member of the Rare Fruit Society. Also on the property is a Ramada that contains a fireplace built by Gutsum Borglum, the famous sculptor of Mt. Rushmore in South Dakota.

Louise is a retired nurse, and the Neibys usually take care of a variety of animals, both domesticated and feral. Their home is always open to many friends who come to visit from around the world. "I've had a wonderful life," Neiby concluded.

Inish Truth

Time to Give Aid to AIDS

December 1st was World AIDS Day. The theme for World AIDS Day is leadership, with the slogan "Stop AIDS. Keep the Promise". Can we really "stop" AIDS? As of right now, there is no cure for the virus, but I think there are plenty of things we, as a people, can do to help slow down the rate of people infected with HIV/AIDS. It's going to take a lot of effort from our government, society, and, most importantly, individuals.

overnment: What can our government do to slow down this epidemic? This epidemic that has killed millions must be dealt with immediately. I think the government should do their parts by investing money in organizations dedicated to finding a cure. There should be more clinics and facilities readily available where people can get tested. The government should also invest more in AIDS awareness and education among youth. Too many of us are out there uniformed on the dangers of AIDS.

Society: I believe society needs to change its mindset. AIDS is looked down upon negatively in society. We need to remember that people infected with HIV/AIDS are people too, and deserve the same amount of respect as everyone else. There are people who know they AIDS and are passing it to partners without telling them. Many do that because they are afraid of what others will say and afraid that the person wont look at them the same. I can understand that, but by people telling their partners they are infected could definitely save lives. If AIDS was more accepted in society, people might be more likely to tell their loved ones they're infected and countless lives would be saved. Individual: As individuals, we definitely need to do our part. We can't wait for the government to take action; it's got to start with us. That means educating our youth. Promoting safe sex and honesty. People are more likely to listen if they're hearing it from a friend or family member. We, too, need to change our mindset and stop looking at each other with our differences and start seeing each other for who we really are.

Deja Vu All Over Again

Persons insisting on anonymity have asked your intrepid columnist to actually stand in front of a microphone in a public restaurant, play the guitar and sing another song. I said what the... oh okay. However, to insure palatability, jazz singer and guitarist Jane Fuller is going to sing 99% of the time and I will sing 1% or 2% of the time. Max, I promise.

The theme of the evening will be Christmas Rich Johnson (Somehow it seems appropriate). Please join Where? When? Saturday, December 13th us and have dinner. from 6-8 pm at Fresco's Family Restaurant. You may have heard of Fresco's. It's across the border in East Pasadena at the south end of the Upper Hastings Christmas extravaganza. Apparently they haven't heard of me at Fresco's. Or for that matter heard me . in front of a microphone that is. So, if you missed my debut a few weeks back at Café 322, you have an opportunity to see me in action. And again, don't forget Jane is really worth coming to see and hear. I hope to see you there. Moving on, as most of you who read my column with any regularity know, I had gastric bypass surgery to help me control my weight. I had it performed at Huntington Hospital on September 8th of this year. To date, I have lost 80-85 pounds (25 before the surgery). It was one of the few good decisions I've made in my lifetime. One more good decision and I will have to start tallying on my left hand. Of course, I had my first ever, post-op Thanksgiving feast (actually two of them) And it was a Helen of a day. I started out at Fresco's having coffee with friends Helen and Ron. At 11:00 am I went to my ex-wife Helen's house to have all the fixin's with her and my two kids (whose names escape me at the moment). Then at 4:00 I traversed from Monrovia all the way to Arcadia and had yet another feast at the home of friend Helen, her daughter and brother. What did the new me eat? A wee little bit of everything. I would recommend gastric bypass surgery to anyone who is morbidly obese. And I would whole-heartedly recommend Huntington Hospital and Dr. David Lourie. The hardest part of the surgery is typically the private war that goes on between you and your insurance company to get approval. But it is worth fighting for. If anyone wants to contact me and talk about it, I would be thrilled to. Email me at rich@versatape.com

Obama Health Care Plan By Hail Hamilton

On health care reform, the American people are too often offered two extremes government-run health care with higher taxes or letting the insurance companies operate without rules. Barack Obama believes both of these extremes are wrong, and that's why he's proposed a plan that strengthens employer coverage, makes insurance companies accountable and ensures patient choice of doctor and care without government interference.

The Obama plan provides affordable, accessible health care for all Americans, builds on the existing health care system, and uses existing providers, doctors and plans to implement the plan. Under the Obama plan, patients will be able to make health care decisions with their doctors, instead of being blocked by insurance company bureaucrats.

Under the plan, if you like your current health insurance, nothing changes, except your costs will go down by as much as $2,500 per year.

If you don't have health insurance, you will have a choice of new, affordable health insurance options.

The Obama plan will make health insurance work for people and businesses - not just insurance and Require insurance companies to cover pre-existing conditions so all Americans regardless of their

America's Auto Industry Is Just Fine Thank You By Greg Wellborn

Well, the presidents of the "Big 3" have come to Washington this week to lay ngress their plans and justifications for what they to $50 billion in taxpayer's money. The press releases have been finely tuned to simultaneously show how important Detroit is to America's interests and how terribly devastating their failure would be. What's missing in all this showmanship – and Congress is as guilty as the Big 3 – is the part of America's auto industry that is doing very well, has been growing for years, earning a nice profit for its owners and employing hundreds of thousands of Americans. This is the auto industry we should be watching.

If you're scratching your head trying to figure out what I'm talking about, let me direct your attention to the 12 "foreign" auto makers manufacturing cars in the U.S. Among their names, you'll find Toyota, Honda, BMW, Kia and several others. I've used the word foreign only because their headquarters are outside the United States. With almost all of these, though, their actual ownership is spread across the globe and well represented by Americans. Just as is the case with Ford, GM and Chrysler, people who own stock in all these companies live in Japan, England, Germany, the U.S. and elsewhere on the globe. I own some of all these companies, as do most readers I suspect, through my 401K, IRAs and other mutual funds. The headquarters location isn't important, nor really is the ownership breakdown. What's important for our discussion is where these companies have chosen to build multimillion dollar manufacturing plants and whether they are successful at

If we look at all of the U.S. automotive industry, we find some very interesting facts, which aren't receiving the press they deserve. First of all, the "foreign" companies are profitably building cars in the U.S. using American workers and now make 54% of the cars we buy. Second, GM, Ford and Chrysler actually make cars in other countries and sell them quite profitably there. So what's the difference? Why are the Big 3 on the verge of collapse and looking for a taxpayer bailout?

The answer is simple. "Foreign" cars and domestic cars compete for the same buyer's loyalty and dollars. The prices for cars of comparable quality and size is about the same. It is the cost structures which are radically different. Let's look at two examples which are representative of the rest. Toyota has 18% of the U.S. market vs. GM's 19%. Toyota offers three product lines, while GM offers eight. Toyota sells through 1,500 dealers, while GM sells through 7,000. Toyota can be, and in fact is, more efficient at the production, distribution and sale of cars than GM. But the most important factor is that Toyota pays Americans an average of $48 per hour, including salary and all benefits, but GM has agreed with its unions to pay an average of $73 per hour. You don't have to be great in math to figure out that GM will never be able to compete with Toyota in the U.S. given its inefficiencies and cost structure. The Big 3 don't suffer this cost difference overseas, that's why they're profitable overseas, but not in the U.S

Before we lapse into the kneejerk reaction that the "foreign" manufacturers are treating American workers unfairly, let's consider that Americans eagerly take those jobs and several attempts to unionize those "foreign" plants have failed in fair and open elections. American workers lucky enough to get a job with a "foreign" manufacturer know what's happened to their UAW Detroit brethren. They would rather be employed for a long time at generous wages and benefits by a growing company than employed for a short time at greater-than-generous wages by a dying company.

As to the promise by the Big 3 presidents to change and mend their ways, the only change they need is to bring their labor costs into alignment with the other car manufacturers in America as well as with other U.S. manufacturers across most industry groups. That $48 per hour number is comparable in most manufacturing jobs in the U.S. If the Big 3 made this change, they wouldn't need Washington's help or our money. Investors and lenders would line up to give them money if these changes were made, because they realize how well the investment in the "foreign" manufacturers has turned out.

Sadly, Big 3 management and the union leaders have been in denial for a long time. At this point, they can either renegotiate those labor costs way down or let bankruptcy do it for them. That's a scary word, I realize, but it won't be the disaster that's portrayed. Bankruptcy doesn't have to mean the disappearance of a company. Out of bankruptcy would come a stronger car company, employing Americans at fair wages and benefits, with a strong probability of reclaiming lost market share. Some workers would be laid off, but the savings car-buying Americans would receive would percolate elsewhere through the economy, and eventually the laid-off workers would find gainful employment in sound, not feeble, companies.

We can only hope and pray that Washington listens to the voters. A recent CNN/Opinion Research Corp. poll showed that 61% of Americans oppose a Detroit bailout. There is no margin for error that skews that result, and there is no economic theory which supports the subsidization of management and labor leaders who have created an unworkable business plan. There may be a couple of sick family members, but overall America's auto industry is very healthy. Let's hope Washington doesn't

TABLE FOR TWO By Peter Dills

Melting Pot

Recently, I had a discussion about a restaurant that I rather enjoyed, which a friend of mine felt was a disappointment. While the food was excellent, he felt the service was pedestrian. It took me a week of mulling it over but I have come up with a response that I think he should consider. Everything today seems to be about speed, faster and faster we go until they have to make the signs longer on the road so we can read them. A dining experience is not Carl's Jr and 120 seconds or your meal is free. This is not a slogan you want to experience each evening. In Europe it is customary to have slow, methodical service. The reason behind this is, well, they are European. Actually, they believe that the guests should have time to talk and enjoy the meal. Here in America it is no different. At some places you have to acknowledge that you're both dining and having an experience, and it's important to understand that the servers are trying to enhance your experience too, by giving you a respectful amount of time and not rushing you through like cattle through a chute. Dining out is not a turnstile evening, but a long embrace. Don't get me wrong, service should be efficient. I expect it to be. Just remember to try and not rush the sunset, it won't listen anyway and some things just shouldn't be hurried.

Dining is an experience, so let's review the Melting Pot Restaurant in Pasadena. It is located on the second floor, just below JJ's Steakhouse. The Melting Pot has the appearance of a sleek and sophisticated restaurant, but it gives me a casual and earthy feeling. It suggests a distinctive air of a dreamy occasion, my thoughts hover about what an ideal place this would be for Valentine's Day. I guarantee you had better dispose of that notion though, or make your reservation as hastily as when your eyes depart from this page!!! So what is the Melting Pot? Is it a Fondue restaurant? Bar? Shabu Shabu? Well, all of those, I say. Heck, you can indeed go to the bar and enjoy a cheese fondue while sipping on a Cucumber Mojito. I did that on my first visit and enjoyed both.

Okay, I'm beating around the bush with you here because I really can't pinpoint or categorize this restaurant; it carries a unique set of characteristics which sets it independently apart. It's an Experience with a capital E. In addition to the Cheese Fondue, entrees include meats such as, beef, chicken, lobster, shrimp, scallops and a variety of vegetables. How does this work? I started off with the cheese fondue, where you dip your bread or vegetables into your choice of melted cheeses; I had the Wisconsin Trio Cheese. Then came a salad, the only mediocre part of the meal. And then you order your entrée and cook it yourself. Each table has a pot that boils and bubbles, and you place your food item in and cook it and dip!!! The Melting Pot is modern, dark and attractive. To allow you to enjoy the staging of the meal, all the booths have a dimension of privacy and are spacious enough for all the items, such as dipping sauces, which eventually end up on your table. When you go to the Melting Pot, you would be wise to consider, it not only a meal but a place of entertainment as well. You are cooking two bites of food at a time.

How much? Depends on what courses you order. My best guess is around $90 for two, which includes an adult beverage for both of you. The featured big night out is the four course meal with The Cheese fondue, Salad, entrée and a dessert. Chocolate Fondue of course!

Yep!!! It's a keeper, check it out!!!

With a very special thanks to the new owner of Mary's Market, Caroline Dapper, we were able to hold our third annual Thanksgiving Dinner for all of those Sierra Madre residents who were all dressed for thanksgiving and had nowhere to go. Thirty or so people attended this year's big

A big special thanks to Katrailia Angus for entertaining us with her dazzling dance and to Jean Sudbury, Dave, and Joe for their very excellent tunes. Also thank you to Jeanne Blumstein (who came all the way from Glendale for the dinner) and Charlie Kissinger for all of their help in keeping things running smoothly... could definitely NOT have done

Sierra Madrean Cycling 545 Miles By Teresa Baxter

When a co-worker at Villa Gardens Retirement Community asked Silvia Samuelson if she would be interested in participating in the upcoming AIDS/LifeCycle 7 day, 545 mile bike ride from San Francisco to Los Angeles she immediately said yes, and then realized she would need to buy a bike.

"I had never ridden a road bike, but I liked the sound of the challenge and the cause," said Samuelson. "So I decided then that I would commit to riding a bicycle from San Francisco to L.A."

Now in its eighth year, the event benefits the HIV/AIDS-related services of the San Francisco AIDS Foundation and the L.A. Gay & Lesbian Center, two of the largest AIDS service providers in the country. Since its inception, AIDS/LifeCycle has raised more than $40 million for HIV/AIDS

Samuelson registered to participate and then began her search for the right bicycle, which she found at Stan's Monrovia Bicycles. Stan is well known in the cycling circuit, so he made connections to riding groups to help Silvia begin her training regimen.

"In order to accomplish this Herculean task, I am committed to a training regimen that includes riding at least three to four days a week, most of which is early in the morning," she said. "On Nov. 8th I rode in my first organized ride, about 700 cyclists traveled through Upland, Covina Hills, Glendora and about 2 miles up Mount Baldy Rd., I am currently riding about 50 to 80 miles a week."

Samuelson has chosen the theme of "People Helping People" to motivate her and decided that she wanted her purpose to be more personally involved by singling out a specific person to ride for. Through friends she was able to connect with "Glenn", who has been living with HIV/AIDS for over twenty years. Glenn attributes his longevity to a healthy diet and keeping a positive attitude, which he gets from reading the spiritual writings of Deepak Chopra.

The ride will be taking place on May 31 to June 6, and cyclists are required to raise a minimum of $3,000 in donations. Samuelson has set a goal to reach $5,000 and currently has raised $1,115 through sponsorship from representatives of Nestle Nutrition, Unicity, Right at Home, Party Works of Monrovia, Dr. Kyle Umland Right and Dr. Robert Chu, to name a few. To make a donation, please visit www.tofighthiv.org/goto/ ride.silvia.ride

The Reverse Equity Mortgage (REM) is a government insured product to help seniors who have equity in their homes but are short on income. Social Security, these days, does not seem to provide "social security". Many seniors live hand-to-mouth when Social Security or pension checks are all there is. The REM can provide monthly income deposited directly to the bank, a credit line, cash up front, or a combination of these. The loan is simply a mortgage loan which charges interest only on funds as they are disbursed.

Money can be used for any purpose. Lucille N. of Glendora wants to do some much needed fixing on her home. Harvey S. of Azusa wants to pay for his grandchild to go through college, something the parents can't afford. Others simply want to make their $700 mortgage payment to disappear and instead receive a check for $1,500 per month (an income improvement of $2,200!). These are just examples of things that can be done. Each person is an individual with their own needs. The REM can be tailored for each individual.

SO, WHAT ABOUT THE MYTHS? 1. The lender takes ownership of the house. FALSE - The homeowner retains full title and ownership.

2. I can be thrown out of my home. FALSE - The homeowner can stay in home until they no longer live there.

2. I can owe more than my home is worth. FALSE - Homeowner can never owe more than the value of the home.

3. My home must be paid for to qualify. FALSE - While a certain amount of equity is required to allow for lifetime monthly advances, your existing mortgage can be included in the transaction.

4. The lender gets part of my equity when I die or move out and the loan is paid off. FALSE - When the loan is paid off, you (or your estate) pays off only the principal balance (including advances made) and any interest accrued.

Certified

5. My income or credit may not be enough to qualify me. FALSE - There are NO income or credit qualifications to obtain a REM.

6. My children (heirs) will object to me doing a REM. FALSE - Experience demonstrates heirs are in favor of Reverse Mortgages.

7. You can't refinance a Reverse Mortgage. FALSE - Existing loans can be refinanced at reduced costs for more money.

8. They cost too much. FALSE - The government has recently reduced the costs. They are no more expensive than forward FHÁ loans. (Current rate is about 3%!)

9. There won't be any equity left in the house for my heirs to inherit. FALSE - If market inflation is as bad as 4% a year you will still gain equity faster than the loan Reverse Equity Mortgages have proven a very useful tool for many seniors to allow the freedom to actually "live" life and not just "get by". It is important to consult with a REM professional who is approved by HUD to get the facts. Check out AARP's info on this at www.aarp.org/revmort.

SENIOR HAPPENINGS...

By Pat Birdsall

FYI:

Please don't forget seniors in nursing homes this holiday season—many of them have no family of their own and this time of year can be rough, especially when other residents are being visited by loved ones who lavish them with gifts and treats. Here are a few appropriate gift ideas to brighten their holidays: (All can be a combined effort by many) Warm socks-Nursing homes usually issue booties that are thin and unattractive. A nice pair of thick, colorful socks with skid proof bottoms is a wonderful gift. Check at the front desk for the number of people living at the nursing home, and buy socks for everyone. Toiletries-Quality hand lotions, shaving cream, shampoos, and scented soaps are also great gifts that seniors appreciate receiving. Buy an assortment and take them for distribution to all. Lap robes- They are typically 30x40 blankets that fit over the shoulders or over the lap to keep a person warm. For people who crochet, one can be completed in less than 3 hours using scrap yarn. Time- Your time visiting with them is the most precious gift of all.

~Helpful Hints~

Club soda to the rescue this holiday season! Use it to clean grease stains from double-knit fabrics and to remove stains from the carpeting. Overindulge? Club soda with a dash of bitters will work wonders on an upset stomach caused by indigestion or a hangover.

Recipe of the Month:

1 pastry shell (9 inches), baked

1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened

1- Spread cranberry sauce over the bottom of pastry shell. In a small mixing bowl, beat cream cheese and sugar until smooth. Beat in eggs, flour and vanilla on low speed just until combined. Pour over cranberry layer. 2- Bake at 350 for 35-40 minutes or until center is set. Cool on a wire rack. Cover and refrigerate for at least 4 hours before cutting. Serves 8 RD.com

For Your Funny Bone

It's so rare to be offered a meal on an airliner these days that I was surprised to hear the flight attendant ask the man sitting in front of me, "Would you like dinner?" "What are my choices?" he responded. "Yes or no," she said.

Flying to Toronto at Christmastime, I arrived at the airport check-in. As the security guard cleared my bags, I noticed a sprig of mistletoe dangling above him. "What's the mistletoe for?" I asked. "That?" He smiled. "That's so you can kiss your luggage goodbye."

From a commercial point of view, if Christmas did not exist it would be necessary to invent it. ~Katharine Whitehorn~

INSIDE PRIVATE LIVES

Special Holiday Celebration December 21st at the Fremont Centre Theatre, South Pasadena

In response to overwhelming demand, INSIDE PRIVATE LIVES, the interactive theatrical experience where audiences go behind the headlines into the private lives of very public personas, has extended its run again at the Fremont Centre Theatre in South Pasadena through March 1, 2009. The production was Los Angeles Magazine

Scandals and secrets are revealed. Six controversial figures are featured at every performance, and with a gallery of over fourteen notorious newsmakers to choose from, every show is different.

Creator/producer Kristin Stone says, "The response from our Los Angeles audiences continues to be absolutely thrilling, we are not only extending our run for the second time, we are continuing to add even more controversial characters to our line up in the weeks ahead, including John Dillinger (Dec. 14, Jan.4, and beyond) as well as previously announced Ann Landers (Dec. 21, Jan. 4, and beyond) and Albert Einstein (Dec.14, Jan 4. HOMES & PROPERTY

Age of Elegance: Custom Stained Glass and Cabinetry

I love getting phone calls and emails from readers saying, "I have a great story idea for you!" Recently, I received just such a call from local business owner and Sierra Madre resident, Tom Brady. He loved the custom stained glass created during a home remodel, designed and built by a (then) Sierra Madre company, Age of Elegance.

"Mick Luken's a one of a kind craftsman who built his business by word of mouth" Brady comments. "They restore and build custom stained glass windows of unparalleled quality. They are great people and have been part of our community for YEARS! They did it on time and on budget as promised." A delighted customer, I'd say.

The Brady girls happily posed, showing off the eight types of stained glass used for the passthrough connecting their study to the living room, created by Mick Luken. For years, they crafted restorations and new windows from an East Montecito facility in the old warehouse district in Sierra Madre.

Now located in Monrovia, Age of Elegance creates stained glass for home and commercial applications. Another division of the company, KCM Cabinetry creates elite custom cabinetry, sometimes incorporating art or stained glass. As an industry partner for ASID, the Interior Design professional organization, they'll soon launch a mini-showroom within the new Pasadena Design Center, an outgrowth and expansion of Pasadena Wood Floors another ASID

Luken took me over to the Sierra Madre Congregational Church, where he installed new windows, designed to match other existing church windows in October, 2007. The minute detailing and craftsmanship reflect his demanding and exacting standards. Rightly proud of his work, I would never have guessed that the old and new windows were many decades apart in age. Actually there had previously been a blank wall where these four windows now offer light and inspiration to the congregation.

Just a few blocks away, another stunning example of his work can be easily viewed at the Prefontaine home on West Laurel. This magnificent Craftsman home utilized a front door, and five matching sidelights, again of a vineyard theme like the Bradys. The Prefontaine's design uses a gorgeous, shimmering glass that catches and reflects the sunlight from the outside in iridescent yellows, blues and violets. Inside, light and color dance in the foyer, but privacy is maintained by the translucent but not transparent choice of glass. The amazing effect from the outside is like seeing the grapes in silhouette, with the sun behind them. Absolutely brilliant! Contact Mick Luken at "Age of Elegance" at 626-358-0694.
