COUNCIL APPROVES FY 2023-2024 BUDGET

City Council meeting, the budget began in April of this city's operating budget for the next 12 months was unanimously approved. There was only one resident who spoke against the budget during public comment with remarks that were discourteous to both the council and staff. The entire council recognized the challenges facing the city in terms of the escalating costs of providing Police and Fire services as well and other monetary demands necessary to maintain the city's infrastructure. There are a number of Public Works projects that will be started in the next fiscal year which begins July 1st, in addition to the renovation of the newly purchased Public Safety Center in the old Bank of America building.

CANCER SUPPORT COMMUNITY PREPARES TO OPEN IN SIERRA MADRE

VOLUME 17 NO. 24

Renovation of new facility is nearly complete

Cancer Support Community Greater San Gabriel Valley (CSC), formerly Cancer Support Community Pasadena, is nearing completion of the renovation of its new facility in Sierra Madre.

"It won't be long now," says Patricia Os-tiller, JD, Executive Director. "Our beautiful new support group rooms and inviting community room with adjacent kitchen are just about complete. Floor-to-ceiling mirrors are going up in our exercise room, and our staff offices are freshly painted and carpeted."

"Our construction team at Reaume Richardson, led by Bryson Reaume, not only kept to our timeline but also kept costs in check. Everyone there appreciated our nonprofit status and did all they could as did their subcontractors - to help us come in on budget," remarked Brad Talt, CSC Board President. "It's hard to find such a quality company with experienced personnel - glad we hired them.

CSC intends to move to its new location at the end of June. "We'll get set up and then open our doors on Monday, July 10th," adds Alison Wong, Ph.D., LMFT, Program & Clinical Director. "During the interim, we'll continue with all of our free programs virtually."

CSC served a record 1,045 people last year. The new location provides more space for the organization's programs, and its new name also describes the vast region it serves.

In 2022, CSC launched a capital campaign, Be the Key, to fund the purchase, renovation, and maintenance of its new facility. More than 230 individual donors and foundation funders have donated to the campaign. For more information, please visit bethekey@cscpasadena.org or call Patricia Ostiller at 626-796-1083.

ABOUT CANCER SUPPORT COMMUNITY Cancer Support Community provides free support groups, educational workshops, and healthy lifestyle classes to cancer patients and their families, cancer survivors, and those bereaved in the greater San Gabriel Valley. In-person, virtual, and hybrid programs are available in English, Spanish, and Armenian. For more information, visit cancersupportsgv. org

Peter Dills Knows

Happy Father's Day

It has been said, that there is no substitute for time. Only through its passage can many of life's experiences be fully understood. This Fathers Day I reflect back on a lesson of life and a Father that has ceased to teach and comfort me. I would like to invite you along for a single night with a man that has left this Earthy place but dwells eternally within my heart. The article below was written and published before his passing.

My Evening with a Restaurant Critic.

My entire life has been an eight course meal. In my late teens I had the distinguished position of bagger at the local supermarket, and later with references, I was able to move to Jurgensen's Gourmet Grocery. There I was to learn about fine wines, exotic cheeses and my kryptonite, dry aged beef. I guess it all started there because at twenty-three I was pretentious about food. For many years I thought that was where it all started for me, there in those markets, but I have come to realize that I was wrong. For some in life it is the famous baseball player; or possibly a religious figure, for others it is a musical master or the profound artist. How many times in life, if ever do you get a chance to sit with those that inspire and challenge life with a depth of wisdom? For most they will never get the opportunity. I can claim one prize in this life; I have had the opportunity to observe, speak with and lastly follow in the footsteps of one person that holds that place for me. They have been labeled "The greatest generation" for a reason. Each day another from that stratum of America, "slowly goes into the night."

Many of you know that my Father Elmer Dills was on TV and radio for twenty-eight years here in Los Angeles. I had the opportunity to dine and share with my mentor a few weeks ago. I have been out with my Father at least five hundred times but as a fine wine, wisdom increases in its depth and flavor as it ages.

On this night our adventure took us to Madeleines(since closed) in Pasadena. Seems that my Dad is a regular there and lately he's been a little under the weather. I have heard him say nothing but praise of this place, so it's off to Madelienes.

"Table for three, please," on this evening we have, my daughter Lauren (the budding Critic), Pops and Me. Whenever I see courteous, well behaved children; I know their parents are invariably going to be respectful people. Likewise whenever I get a compliment, I know it goes beyond just me. As we sit to dine, there is no call for attention and gratification, just a smooth easy in being in his court. As we talk, I am struck that there is no air of condemnation but rather one of deep respect for the people that more often than not get it right in this business. My Dad the legendary restaurant critic doesn't even ask what the ingredients of the dishes are as he orders. He doesn't request to see the sommelier. Is he a restaurant critic, I am waiting for a sign? It is just as natural as going to dinner with a group of friends, I think.

The restaurant is quietly attractive, cozy and well spaced. You feel a little smarter here, knowing that Albert Einstein often slept upstairs while he was visiting Cal Tech.

We began with a cheese plate ($9), nice but it could have used less nuts and more of cheese and crackers. My Dad is a creature of habit, just like many of us. He orders the Rack of Lamb, "I just loved it," just like a young kid would say. The waiter was kind enough to have it cut for him. Daughter Lauren ordered the Pork Chops and gave it two training thumbs up. Now that is a compliment. Not sure if high heels work in this business though, as you never know when you may encounter a chef that feels you have leveled capricious discourse with your pen on the one hand and possess a frying pan in the other. She will discover soon enough why I wear running shoes and a sport coat.

I order the Spencer Steak, of course I am the difficult one, so once we get the steak the way I wanted it cooked, it vanishes quickly.

Back to Dad, the waiter asks, "How was the meal" and I know 99% of you when asked would give the response, "Fine, Thank You." Nope, the restaurant critic said, "The lamb chops were great!!!" "And the dessert was?" A shrugged of the shoulders told it all. That is the honesty and passion that got me involved in this business. Today, I still work at a restaurant to keep up on the trends and I even get a crazy dream that I may own one someday. You can be sure he will be one of the first to give a thumbs up or a shrug of the shoulders if I do. LOWEST PRICES OF THE YEAR! SAVE UP TO 20% OFF (PASADENA ONLY)

WALKING SIERRA MADRE - The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"...And so, God created dads so that there would forever be bedtime-story-readers and cover-tuckers, shoulder-carriers at parades and star-pointers on clear nights, bike-riding coaches and driving instructors, love-providers and proud protectors. And He saw that it was good." Melvina Young

"Any man can be a father, but it takes someone special to be a dad." Anne Geddes Tomorrow is Father's Day, one of those days when I miss John - the best father I ever knew - more than usual. He is now with the eternal, loving Father...Our Father, Who art in heaven...

When you have an enormous family, as we do, there are fathers all over the place. At best count, we currently have seven fathers with a total of 22 children between them. I think, friends and neighbors, that's got to put us in some sort of record book. The picture today is of my grandson-in-law, Trevor, his two little girls, Addison and Charlotte, and the brand-new little guy in our family, Brannan Austin Johnson, who was born May 21st.

I was fortunate to have married an exceptional man who was a fantastic father. As I grew up without one, I had no clue how this worked, but John showed me that a father is patient, he is kind, he isn't proud, doesn't dishonor the children or his wife, is not selfseeking, not easily angered, keeps no record of wrongs. A good father rejoices with the truth. Always protects, always trusts, always hopes, always perseveres. That means explaining the same algebra problem for the nineteenth time without throwing the book or the child on the floor. It means going to get a daughter and bring her home from a bad situation. It means staying awake at night when someone isn't home who should be, and gently grounding them for a year or till they're 30. It means being proud of every achievement, no matter how minor. This sounds a whole lot like that

1 Corinthians 13 in the Bible thing, doesn't it. I have frequently said, and totally mean it, that John raised all five of us: Leah, Patti, John, Crissy and me! I wrote this column a few days before June 16th, which would have been his birthday. He is celebrating in heaven but his legacy of being a loving husband and father lives on in his children. We see his example through the behavior of all the men in our family. How blessed we all are and so grateful for his influence.

I could go on for several columns on the virtues of all these men, my son, John, sonin-law, Dave, grandsons Michael, David and Chad, and grandson-in-law, Trevor, but today I'm going to talk about just one of them.

My Arizona son-in-law, Chris, is the father of two little girls, Jessie who is 15 and Emily who is 12. These girls are adopted foster children, born of drug addicted mothers.

These are not easy little people, but Chris and Crissy will keep on keeping on, being the best parents possible, rejoicing in these girls' accomplishments and dealing with the difficulties.

I don't know about you, but I have a mental image of Jesus, who loved hanging around with little kids, in addition to tax collectors and ladies of questionable virtue, laughing heartily at "Cheez- its loves me, this I know." This comes from the first year Jessie and Emily went to Vacation Bible School. They were both so little that the VBS t-shirts fell to their knees. They had a great time and came home singing "Cheez-its loves me!" Like I said, I know Jesus would have loved it.

Take a look at the guys around you who are fathers, and remind them they are God's appointed and anointed men and you appreciate them. I got to tell my Dad I loved him many times before he died, we missed that father-daughter thing, but I've seen the best at work in my family. I hope you have, too. Happy Father's Day!

If you want an easy dessert to go with your Father's Day barbeque, try this one:

EASY APPLE CAKE

2 cups Granny Smith apples, peeled, cored, cut in good sized chunks 1 cup sugar - Place apples in a bowl and add sugar. Let stand 30 min. (That part is really important!)

Add: 1/4 cup oil 1 egg beaten 1 tsp vanilla Blend well.

Combine: 1 cup unsifted flour 1 generous tsp. cinnamon

1 tsp. soda

1/4 tsp. salt Stir into apple mixture.

Add 1/2 cup or so chopped pecans or walnuts. Spoon into well-greased 8" square pan.

Bake at 350, 35-40 minutes till cake tester inserted in middle comes out clean. Cut into squares and dust with powdered sugar. Best served warm, and it doubles and triples beautifully.

City to Name new Pool after John Kennedy

Pasadena city officials reminded residents Friday that they are currently considering naming the new community pool at Robinson Park after former District 3 Councilmember John Kennedy, who passed away last year and are asking for support or suggesting an alternate name.

The city will take input and/or name suggestions though July 7.

On the site of the Robinson Park Recreation Center at 1081 N. Fair Oaks Ave., the new facility features a larger pool with zero-entry access; a renovated pool building with accessible showers, and restroom facilities. Project includes a Youth Community room, new lighting and resurfaced the parking lot.

The City will adopt a name for the new facility name that meets at least one of the criteria established in the City's Public Park and Recreation Facility Naming Policy. The criteria are as follows:

Geographical location of the park of facility;

Natural or geological features proximate to the park or facility;

historical Cultural or significance to the City or surrounding neighborhood;

Name of an individual who has made a significant contribution the to community, country, state, or field of parks and

Artist Hit-Boy to Perform at Juneteenth Celebration

The City of Pasadena Parks, Recreation and Community Services Department is proud to announce that Grammy awardwinning rapper and producer Hit-Boy will perform at the City's 15th annual Juneteenth celebration scheduled for Saturday, June 17, 11 a.m. - 3 p.m., at Robinson Park, 1081 N. Fair Oaks Ave.

Hit-Boy has crafted forwardlooking beats for artists like Kanye West, Jay-Z, Nas, Travis Scott and Beyoncé. He is also featured on tracks by various artists, including will.i.am and Wale.

Juneteenth commemorates the effective end of slavery in the United States. Two years after President Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation, news reached Texas and, upon learning they were free, former slaves immediately began celebrating with prayer, feasting, song and dance. Juneteenth is now a day to reflect and celebrate African American history and culture.

AROUND SAN GABRIEL VALLEY

DUARTE APPOINTS LARRY BRECEDA AS NEW DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC SAFETY

At its regular meeting on Tuesday, June 13, 2023, the Duarte City Council appointed current Public Safety Manager Larry Breceda as its new Director of Public Safety.

In this role, Breceda will be heading up the Duarte Public Safety Department overseeing services such as animal control, code enforcement, homelessness programs, emergency preparedness and management, in addition to community safety programs such as Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) and Neighborhood Watch.

"After 21 years of service to Duarte, Larry Breceda has demonstrated his ability to make an excellent Director of Public Safety for the City of Duarte." said former Director of Public Safety and current Duarte City Manager, Brian Villalobos. "He brings a wealth of knowledge, background and passion to this new position. He has helped build the public safety program and no doubt will continue to grow our great city."

Breceda, born and raised in the City of Duarte, began his Duarte career in August 2002 while earning his business degree at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona. His degree in technology operations management with an emphasis in government helped him excel in statistics, service operations and utilizing technology to make the service industry of government more efficient.

In March 2013, Breceda began his role as Duarte's Public Safety Manager. He has established his career on leveraging technology to make processes streamline for residents and staff. As Duarte's Public Safety Manager for over a decade, Breceda found solutions by identifying inefficiencies with the department and created goals, making operations more fluid and natural in order to serve residents promptly. He has effectively managed department staff while maintaining a team environment, emphasizing team problem solving for the betterment of the community.

"I am standing on the shoulders of giants," Breceda said. "My predecessor, Brian Villalobos, has done so much for this department and I want to continue the positive trend of community policing and community involvement. I want residents to feel connected to our department, personnel and officers to make it comfortable to share their feedback with us. When you have the recipe of success, you keep that formula and keep multiplying it."

When Breceda is off duty, he serves as an executive board member of California Association of Code Enforcement Officers (CACEO) and has for 12 years. He also teaches Santiago Canyon College students about public safety, code enforcement, supervisory items and officer safety. Breceda has also spoken for multiple conferences about public safety policies and procedures.

97th AMERICAFEST NIXED

Pasadena Reinforces All Fireworks Are Illegal and Ordinance Will Be Strictly Enforced

After hosting the AmericaFest fireworks show almost every Forth of July since 1927, the Rose Bowl stadium has given up the tradition this year in favor of hosting a sold-out soccer game.

Although the stadium's website makes no mention of the 2023 AmericaFest cancellation, Rose Bowl General Manager Jens Weiden said, the reason is, that last year the 96th AmericaFest lost over $500,000, according to media reports.

The sold-out soccer game was announced tagged to the end of a city press statement Tuesday about fireworks, zero tolerance and police enforcement.

"Rose Bowl Stadium will be hosting a sold-out soccer game on July 4 at 7:30 p.m.," the press statement reads. "Only ticket holders will be permitted to park in the area, and parking will be strictly enforced around the stadium,"

According to officials, in February the LA Galaxy's Season Opener match against the Los Angeles Football Club (LAFC) was canceled due to safety considerations resulting from inclement weather. The fireworks press statement sent Tuesday reads in policy for fireworks, and Pasadena's municipal code holds property owners and tenants responsible for permitting the possession, sale, usage or discharge of fireworks on their property. The ordinance allows for the prosecution of fireworks-related offenses and for the demand of payment for all costs associated with the safe disposal of confiscated fireworks. Any person who violates the ordinance or any state law regarding fireworks is subject to arrest; having their vehicles impounded; serving up to one year in county jail; and being fined up to $50,000."

The release also states that, "Pasadena police and firefighters are teaming up for special fireworks enforcement patrols before and during the Fourth of July holiday, and officers will seize fireworks in an effort to protect the public. Parking enforcement officers will ensure that vehicles illegally parked in Pasadena's hillside areas on July 4 are impounded." Last year, the Rose Bowl held a week long celebration that stared July 4 with the 96th AmericaFest and ended July 9 with the Palomino Festival, a country music event presented by Goldenvoice. Rose Bowl officials said that all those who purchased a Palomino Festival pass were given free AmericaFest tickets. Officials expect over 70,000 fans for the LA Galaxy's

Season Opener.

MONROVIA AREA PARTNERSHIP RECEIVES NATIONAL AWARD AT THE NEIGHBORHOODS USA CONFERENCE

E. Holly St. A book signing will follow.

As he grappled with his own decision of whether to retire in his 60s after a long and rewarding career in journalism, Lopez used his reporter skills while researching and writing "Independence Day" to look inward as well as interview famous people and average Americans to collect a variety of perspectives about retirement decisions.

He spoke to Mel Brooks, still working at 96, and Norman Lear who, at 100 years of age, vows to keep working until the very end, as well as people who have retired by choice and reinvented themselves outside the constraints of work and those who would like to retire but can't because of financial issues.

A member of the Pasadena Senior Center, Lopez has written several other books, including "The Soloist: A Lost Dream, an Unlikely Friendship and the Redemptive Power of Music" published in 2008 about his relationship with a sometimes homeless schizophrenic who attended The Juilliard School. It was made into a 2009 film titled "The Soloist" that starred Robert Downey Jr. as Lopez and Jamie Foxx as Ayers.

The Monrovia Area Partnership (MAP) earned 3rd Place for the Best Neighborhood Program at this year's conference in El Paso, Texas. The award is for the new MAPconnect initiative that launched last September as a way to recognize MAP Leaders for their volunteerism and help in the community. The MPA Team submitted a detailed application packet earlier this year to become finalists for the award. Then at the conference they presented alongside other finalists on why MAPconnect was the Best Neighborhood Program of the year. Several other cities in attendance asked the MAP Team to send them in formation on MAPconnect so they can implement the program in their communities.

It hosts worldclass swim, dive, and water polo teams and various programs including physical therapy, water aerobics, warm water exercise, lap swimming, learn-to-swim lessons, land-based fitness, and yoga.

ports from a variety of perspectives. Sports has always been a big part of my life, especially football, so this column which will run twice a month will share my take on what is going on locally, nationally or worldwide! And I don't want to just appeal to the adults in the room, but to our young people – our future sports stars. You never know what the future holds.

You know, I was one of those kids who could have easily gone the other way, made the wrong choices in life because school - academics- just wasn't of any interest to me but SPORTS & ATHLETICS were. Fortunately, the vehicle for access to sports was school and organized community sports.

As a kid, playing sports anytime, anywhere was what my friends and I looked forward to every day. We used to play anywhere we could, on the street, on empty lots, anywhere, despite the warnings of the adults...."look out for the cars"....."you'd better get home before dark". We heard them, but we just wanted to play - anytime, anywhere we could. And today, things haven't really changed that much. Every kid who is interested in sports has that same enthusiasm that we had years ago. And you know what, every kid actually has talent waiting to be unleased. It may be sports or the arts or academics, whatever it is as adults our focus should be to help them identify that talent and encourage them to pursue their interests (not yours). We need to encourage our youth to be the best that they can be whatever their choice is.

Now, as for me, Harvey Hyde, football coach, broadcaster, writer, columnist, etc., I can say that Sports have made my life complete. I have been blessed to be able to earn a living doing something that I love so I really don't feel like I've worked a day in my life!

SPORTS - participating and even in some instances even spectating, teaches one discipline, teamwork, respect, and how to be competitive. As a coach, I used to always tell my players to learn the 4 words/phrases that will open doors for you: PLEASE, THANK YOU, YES MA'AM, YES SIR and MAY I HELP YOU. Even in sports, as with life, those words will take you far.

Yes, I know you were expecting something different in this first column but just know that while SPORTS is what we will be talking about, today I thought it was more important to talk about life and what I've gotten from it as an athlete.

Game Day is Every Day. You have to compete every single day for everyone is trying to win. You've got to be proud of who you are and what you do.

Learning the hard way is not what we want our kids to do, but we want them to know that things don't come easy. You're not a champion by just saying it. Treat people like you want to be treated. Life first, Sports later. That kept me on the right side of the tracks.

Kids - Like it or not, we had to go to school to be eligible. Nothing has changed. Sports kept me involved in who I was. Identify who you are and what you can excel in. It is the foundation of Life. Remember, if you don't put the steel in the foundation, it will blow down.

And To The Adults Remember: Whether you are a parent, coach, counselor or teacher, you are influencing a young person's life.

And by the way, HAPPY FATHER'S DAY.

REMEMBERING MY FATHER

[Nyerges is the author of "Til Death Do Us Part?", a series of stories de-scribing how he and his wife attempted to deal with death in an uplifting manner. The book is available on Kindle, or from School of Self-reliance, Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041 or www.SchoolofSelf-Reliance.com.]

When my father's 80th birthday coincided with Father's Day some years ago, I wrote and illustrated a pictorial booklet for my father which outlined key aspects of our life together. It was my way of thanking my father. My wife Dolores and I went to his home after the wild cacophonous family gathering had ended. We didn't want an audience in an atmosphere of laugher, sarcasm, and possibly ridicule. I only wanted to share the thank you story with my father in a somewhat serious atmosphere.

Dolores and I brought some special foods, put on some music, and I began my short pre-sentation beginning with my earliest significant memories. I shared with him my memories of how he told me I would be an artist when I grew up. He always told me to put my bike and toys away, so "the boogeyman" wouldn't steal them. As I grew older, I learned that the world was indeed full of very real "boogeymen" and my father attempted to provide me with ways to protect myself against these unsavory elements of life.

I recalled to my father, while my mother and Dolores listened on, the birthday party adventures, getting hair cuts in the garage, and how my father tolerated my interest in mycology and wild edibles.

Everyone found the recounting amusing, even funny, but there were also tears mixed with the laughter. As with most memories, some things my father recalled quite differently from me, and some he didn't recall at all. Some things that I saw as life-and-death serious, he saw as humorous, and vice versa.

But above it all, I felt I'd finally "connected" with him at age 80 in a way that I'd never managed to do before. My "fathers day card" wasn't pre-made by a card company, but consisted of my own private and secret memories that I shared with him. I managed to thank him for doing all the things that I took for granted – a roof over my head, meals, an education, a relatively stable home.

Of course, all our family members – "insiders" – knew that my father was no saint. But I was at least acknowledging the good, and sincerely thanking him for it.

My mother died two years later, and we all knew my father would be lost without her. They'd been married over 50 years. His health and activities declined and he finally passed away on the Ides of March a few years later.

Though his death did not come as a surprise – I was nevertheless left feeling his absence. That early Saturday morning when I learned of his death, I even felt parent-less. My view of the world changed and I was forced to acknowledge the limits of life and the futility of pursuing solely a material existence.

After I learned of his death via a phone call, I walked out into the morning rain, in shock, crying, thinking, remembering. I was not feeling cold or wet, and somehow I was protected by that unique state of mind that enshrouded me.

During the next three days, I did as I had done with my mother when she died. I spent the next three days reviewing my life with my father.

At first I allowed the random memories and pain to wash over me. I talked to Frank constantly during those three days, inviting and allowing him to be with me as we did the life review together. I felt his pain, his frustration, his emptiness and loneliness in his last few years of life. I did nothing to stop the pain of this - I allowed myself to feel it all.

I spoke to Frank as I'd speak to anyone living. I felt his presence and even his responses. I did this for myself as much as for Frank and his on-going journey.

I began to see him as a young man, who met, fell in love, and married my mother. Somehow, this was a major revelation to me. I had never seen my own father in that light before. He had simply been "my father." Suddenly, he was a unique individual, with his own dreams, aspirations, and goals. Amazingly, I'd never viewed him in this way during our life together.

And then, after perhaps 12 hours of this, and miles of walking, I began a more chronological review of my life with my father, point by point by significant point. I saw his weaknesses and strengths, as well as my own. As I did this review, I looked for all the things

Pet of the Week

Gardenia is a young and adventurous girl who has been entertaining the volunteers and staff at Pasadena Humane with her silly antics. Initially shy, Gardenia is now in the running to be voted "most improved player". She cannot get enough attention from everyone who spends time with her- she somehow manages to get the spot she wants scratched under your hand time and time again. Like any athlete, Gardenia has been busy training for the 2024 Olympics. She wants to compete in her favorite sport- swimming! She abso-lutely adores going into the (kiddie) pool. She dives head-first into the water and will push herself around in circles over and over. She doesn't seem to mind that she never really gets anywhere. When she stops, she has a joyful look that we're pretty sure means she thinks she's won a medal.

Gardenia is ready to take the podium in her forever home!

Pasadena Humane has a free adoption event on Saturday, 6/17, from 10:00 am. - 2:00 p.m. All adoption fees are waived and no appointment is necessary. The adoption fee for dogs is $150. All dog adoptions include spay or neuter, microchip, and age-appropriate vaccines. New adopters will receive a complimentary health-and-wellness exam from VCA Ani-mal Hospitals, as well as a goody bag filled with information about how to care for your pet. View photos of adoptable pets and schedule an adoption appointment at pasadenahumane.org. Adoptions are by appointment only, and new adop-tion appointments are available every Sunday and Wednesday at 10:00 a.m. Pets may not be available for adoption and cannot be held for potential adopters by phone calls or email.

that I'd done right with my father, all the things I'd done wrong, and all the things that I could have done better. I wrote these down, and the "wrong" list was shockingly long. The "right" list only contained a few items!

I asked my father to forgive me, and I resolved to do certain things differently in order to change and improve my character. I know I would not have imposed such a rigor upon myself had it not been for the death of my father.

A week later, when there was the funeral at the church, I felt that I'd come to know my father more than I ever was able to do in life. I briefly shared to the congregation my three days of "being with" my father, and learning what it was like to be Frank, in his shoes, and how we forgave one another.

More importantly, I shared to family and friends gathered that day the importance of constantly finding the time to tell your living loved ones that you indeed love them, not waiting until they die to say the things that you should be saying all along.

I remember Frank now on Father's Day, and continue to express my heart-felt thanks for all that he – and my mother – gave to me.

HEALTH INSURANCE OPTIONS AFTER A SPOUSE RETIRES

Dear Savvy Senior:

My 63-year-old wife, who's doesn't work, is on my héalth insurance plan through my employer. When I retire next month and go on Medicare, what are our options for getting her health coverage until she turns 65? Is there some kind of Medicare coverage for dependent spouses? Need Insurance

Dear Need:

Unfortunately, Medicare does not provide family coverage to younger spouses or dependent children when you qualify for Medicare. Nobody can obtain Medicare benefits before age 65, unless eligible at a younger age because of disability. With that said, here are your best options for covering your wife. AFFORDABLE CARE ACT: In most cases, your best choice is to get your wife an individual health insurance policy through the Affordable Care Act (ACA) health insurance Marketplace (a.k.a. Obamacare). The Marketplace offers comprehensive health coverage, and she won't be denied coverage or charged extra for preexisting health conditions.

And thanks to the American Rescue Plan and Inflation Reduction Act, the Marketplace now provides enhanced subsidies through 2025. If your income falls below the 400 percent poverty level after you retire – anything below $73,240 for a couple or $54,360 for a single in 2023 – your wife will be eligible for a tax credit that will reduce the amount you'll have to pay for her policy. The Marketplace also ensures that households with incomes above that 400 percent poverty level will not have to pay more than 8.5 percent of their income for a benchmark policy.

To see how much subsidy you may be eligible for, use Kaiser Family Foundation calculator at KFF.org/interactive/subsidy-calculator.

To shop for Marketplace plans in your state, visit HealthCare.gov or call 800-318-2596. Or, if you want some extra help, contact a Marketplace-certified agent or broker at HealthCare.gov/ find-assistance.

COBRA: Another option is the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (COBRA), which is a federal law that would allow your wife to remain with your company insurance plan for at least 18 months after you make the switch to Medicare. But not every employer plan is COBRA eligible. Contact your employer benefits administrator to find out if yours is one of them.

You also need to be aware that COBRA is not cheap, requiring you to pay the full monthly premium yourself. But, if you've already met or nearly met your employer plan's deductible or out-of-pocket maximum for the year, and don't want your wife to start over with a new plan; or if you find your employer's health plan to be more affordable than the Marketplace plans, it makes sense for your wife to keep her current coverage under COBRA.

SHORT-TERM HEALTH INSURANCE: If you can't find an affordable Marketplace plan and CO-BRA is too expensive, the next option is short-term health insurance. These plans, which are not available in every state, are cheaper, bare-bones health plans that provide coverage for one to 12 months and may be renewed for up to three years in some states. But be aware that short-term plans don't comply with the ACA so they can deny sick people coverage, they don't cover preexisting conditions, and they can exclude coverage essentials like pre-To find and compare scription drugs. short-term health plans, try sites like eHealthInsurance.com or PivotHealth.com.

HEALTHCARE SHARING MINISTRIES: One other coverage option you should know about is healthcare sharing ministries (HCSM). These are cost-sharing health plans in which members - who typically share a religious belief - make monthly payments to cover expenses of other members, including themselves.

HCSM's are cheaper than paying full outof-pocket costs for traditional health insurance but be aware that HCSM's are not health insurance. They don't have to comply with the consumer protections of the ACA. They can also reject or limit coverage for having pre-existing health issues and can limit how much you'll be reimbursed for your medical costs.

To look for HCSM plans, comparison shop at the three largest providers: SamaritanMinistries. org, MyChristianCare.org and Chministries.org.

OUT TO PASTOR

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

IF ONLY I HAD IT MY WAY!

Every once in a while, I have a little thought giggling in my brain to the effect that if only I had it my way. I don't have it often, but I try to take it seriously when I do.

My personal history is that it turns out to be a disaster whenever I have everything my way. And, boy, have I had disasters in my life.

I often think of Frank Sinatra's song, "I Did It My Way." For the life of me, I do not know what that is all about. Maybe it worked for him, but it hasn't worked for me, at least not yet. If I did everything my way, I'm sure I would be locked up in jail or an insane asylum by now. I'm not sure which is worse.

Regarding this, The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage has several PhDs in "Doing It My Way." If I were smart and not saying I am, I would let her always have it her way.

There is only one place I can have anything my way: my Personal Interior Castle, my

When creating an estate plan, people are often most concerned with passing on the "big things" like real estate, bank accounts, and vehicles. Yet these possessions very often aren't the items that have the most meaning for the loved ones we leave behind.

Smaller items, like family heirlooms and keepsakes, which may not have a high dollar value, frequently have the most sentimental value for our family members. But for several reasons, these personal possessions are often not always specifically accounted for in wills, trusts, and other estate planning documents.

It's critical, however, you don't overlook this type of property in your estate plan, as the distribution of such items can become a source of intense conflict and strife for those you leave behind. In fact, if you don't properly address familv heirlooms and keepsakes in your estate plan, it can lead to long-lasting disagreements that can tear your family apart.

Heirlooms & Keepsakes: Little Things with Big Value Heirlooms and keepsakes are both prized for their sentimental value, but these possessions are slightly different from one another in terms of the manner in which the items are passed on.

Heirlooms: Heirlooms are passed down among family members for generations, and the passing of heirlooms sometimes involves traditions. For example, the first daughter to marry inherits grandmother's heirloom wedding ring. Keepsakes: Keepsakes, on the other hand, are possessions that are given or kept specifically for sentimental or nostalgic reasons, and these items may only get passed on once. For example, photo albums are a typical keepsake that are treasured by many families. If a keepsake gets passed on multiple times, it may eventually become a familv heirloom.

Although just about any personal possession could be considered an heirloom or keepsake, some of the most common examples of these items include the following:

Jewelry, Photographs, Books, Art, Musical instruments, Furniture, Clothing, Bibles, Recipes, Family documents (such as birth certificates, baptism records, and citizenship papers), Collections (such as sports memorabilia, coins, stamps, and doll collections)

Issues Raised by Passing on Heirlooms & Keepsakes

WITHOUT CAUSING A FAMILY FEUD

In the legal world, both heirlooms and keepsakes are considered "non-titled personal property." As mentioned earlier, when there is no plan in place for the distribution of these items following the owner's death, it can create bitter conflicts among family members. Indeed, all too often, fights over heirlooms and keepsakes cause close family members to never speak with one another again.

In her book Who Gets Grandma's Yellow Pie Plate? Professor Marlene S. Stum, an expert in family social science at the University of Minnesota, warns of the infighting that can occur when there's no plan for who inherits these personal effects.

"What surprises many people is that often the transfer of non-titled personal property creates more challenges among family members than the transfer of titled property," says Stum. "Research has shown that disputes over inheritance and property distribution are one of the major reasons for adult siblings to break off relationships with one another."

Given the potential trouble the distribution of heirlooms and keepsakes can cause for your heirs, you'll want to take extra care in seeing that these family treasures are passed on properly. And this means incorporating them into your estate plan in one way or another.

Strategies For Peacefully Distributing Heirlooms & Keepsakes

While there is no one perfect way to distribute these items in your estate plan, your primary goal should be to maintain harmony among your loved ones during an already emotional time. As with most sensitive issues, clear communication is vital to this process.

Because your family members can have vastly different values associated with certain heirlooms and keepsakes and you may have little idea about how each person feels, you should speak with each family member in advance. By talking with family members about their feelings and expectations regarding your possessions ahead of time, you will have a much better idea how to distribute these items to your loved ones with the least amount of conflict.

Additionally, you should decide ahead of time if you need to have any of your heirlooms or keepsakes appraised. In doing so, you provide your heirs with the necessary documentation to gauge the monetary value of these items, and you can save them from extra work while they are mourning your death.

Gifting during your lifetime: Of course, you don't have to wait until you die to pass on your heirlooms and keepsakes, and you may prefer to give away certain special items while you are still living. By doing so, you get to personally witness the joy your loved ones experience when they receive the gift, and you can also personally explain the reasons you want each person to have a particular item.

If your heirlooms and/or keepsakes have a high monetary value, you should keep gift tax issues in mind when you give them away. That said, the IRS has a relatively high annual gift tax exclusion ($16,000 in 2022) and another high lifetime exclusion ($12.06 million in 2022), so few people will need to worry about such taxes.

But be aware, the lifetime exclusion amount is scheduled to revert to its pre-2018 level of around $5 million per individual in 2026, so if you are considering gifting high-value possessions, you may want to do it sooner, rather than later. In any case, if you have possessions you want to give away that might trigger gift taxes, meet with your lawyer and accountant to discuss your options.

Include items in your estate plan using a personal property memorandum: As with other assets you want to pass on after your death, you can include heirlooms and keepsakes in your es-tate plan by adding them to your will or trust. The best way to do this is by using what's known as a personal property memorandum.

A personal property memorandum is a separate document that is referenced in your will or living trust. The memorandum allows you to list which items you wish to leave to each individual and detail the reasons you are giving each item. In many states, if it's properly incorporated into your will or trust, a personal property memorandum is a legally binding document. Most types of tangible personal property can be included in your memorandum, but it's important to note that you cannot list certain assets in a memorandum, including titled property, such as real estate and vehicles; assets with a beneficiary designation, such as life insurance, 401(k)s, and bank accounts; or intellectual property, such as works protected by a copyrights or trademark. If you are unsure if you should include a certain possession in your personal property memorandum, consult with vour lawyer.

Keep The Peace After You Are Gone To ensure your heirlooms and keep-sakes don't create any unnecessary conflicts among your heirs, make sure that your estate plan includes all of your assets, especially your family heirlooms and keepsakes. Be intentional and thoughtful about how you include them so they will become precious treasures connecting you to the generations to follow.

MARC

Marc Garlett, Esq. Cali Law Family Legacy Matters www.caliLaw.com 626.355.4000 office. I sit at my desk; look at my computer, surrounded by thousands of books. In this "safe place," I can have it my way every day.

Occasionally, The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage will come into my Interior Castle and say something to the effect, "Would you like me to do any organizing in here?"

I smile as best I can and respond, "You can organize in here if you permit me to go to your craft room and organize there." I then chuckle, knowing she would never permit me to enter her craft room, let alone organize anything.

Don't let this get out, but a couple of times when she's away, I sneak into her craft room and move things around so she can't find them when she needs them. When she returns, she will go into her craft room, and I will stand outside to listen and hear her say something to the effect, "Now, where is that? I know it was right here when I left.'

I have to be careful that, you know who, does not hear me chuckling.

She has her space to do her thing her way, and I have my space to do my thing my way, and the twain shall never entangle themselves.

One of my great pleasures is that when she does something her way, and it turns out to be wrong. I have to keep my laughter under control in those circumstances.

We often go across town for appointments, and when we do that, I allow her to take her Sissy Van, and I ride along strap in on the passenger side. Driving across town, she always decides which way to go.

Just recently, we had an appointment across town at some new location. We'd never been there before, so we had to be careful driving to that location.

When we got to a certain traffic light, I told her, "You need to turn right here on this street."

Looking at me, she said, "I'm driving, and so I know where I'm going. I don't need any information from you. Sit back and let me do it my way." With that, she turned left, and I could hardly hold my laughter because I knew where that street would end up.

Looking at me, she said, "Why are you laughing?" "I was just thinking of a joke."

"Oh, yeah. What was that joke?"

I looked at her, and in a moment, I said, "Why was six afraid of seven?"

"I don't know, why was six afraid of seven?"

"Because," I said, "seven, eight, nine."

"So," she graveled, "that was the joke you were thinking of?"

It wasn't, but I had to use something to cover up my laughter.

All I had to do was wait, and when we came to the end of this street, we would find out that we were at the wrong end of town. Oh, I love it when a plan comes together. When she finally realized we were at the wrong end of town, she looked at me, "Don't you dare say what you're thinking."

Then she turned around and headed in the right direction.

My problem is that I caught her doing it her way, and it was the wrong way, and I can't exploit it. I have to pretend that it didn't happen. Oh, how I wish I could remind her of this mistake every time we are in the car.

Of course, I know if I do that, there will be heavy consequences on my side to deal with. Sometimes it's best to keep some things under lock and key. But I do confess there are times while she is driving that I think of that mistake, and I can only smile. Later that day, I was reminded of what the apostle Paul said. "Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise. For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it is written, He taketh the wise in their own craftiness" (1 Corinthians 3:18-19. My craftiness has never done well for me. I choose to trust God in every situation that is before me. After all, He knows best.

PUT THE LIGHTS ON MY SEARCH FOR MEANING

> Sometime last week I had told a friend that it was my intent to go to Israel before I reached eighty and he asked why I would do such a thing. Contrary to most everyone else I speak with I do not believe that life is primarily a quest for pleasure, or a quest for power, or a quest for the admiration of others. I am well aware that many people experience a kind of spirituality, frequently a deep religious adherence that guides them through life. Well, to put it bluntly that awareness has not been a part of my life experience.

Still, being Jewish is a great part of my identity and I believe this identity includes perseverance in standing up to adversity and believing in the requirement to enjoy one's life and one's family and to appreciate the worth of others. My thoughts had congealed in the belief that I must go to Israel before I am eighty as a part of my quest. Before going any further in my plans I decided that it would be appropriate for me to visit the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library which is presenting "Auschwitz. Not Long Ago. Not Far Away" featuring 700 artifacts of immense historic value. (If you know little about Auschwitz there is much to learn and try to understand.)

In order to attend it was necessary to purchase the tickets on line. My wife followed the complicated instructions while adamantly explaining that she had no interest in accompanying me and was very worried about my driving. I went alone, which I take as a statement of my commitment. It is a long automobile trip but the beauty of the mountainous scenery of the Simi Valley is an experience I deeply appreciated. My wife also helped me to find directions to a famous Jewish Deli where I eventually enjoyed cheese blintzes of a kind I had never had before. Good food and appreciation of natural beauty are unquestionably, along with a helpful supportive wife, contributors to a deep meaningful experience of life but of course I am searching for something more. Did I find it at the Reagan Library?

I came away benumbed by the experience. There was no weeping, no Yiddish, but rather an extremely ordered progression through well described pictures and drawings. There were postcards and letters describing the horrors but there was no stench of death. Perhaps that is what I expected. I was affected by the pictures and descriptions of the Auschwitz death dealing employees, who on their breaks between murders, would go out together and party. This, to me at least, said something very sad but truthful about human beings. (Oy vey! A Yiddish expression signifying dismay and grief.) The experience taught me that there is a kind of pain inside me that I am as yet unwilling to touch. Upon leaving the exhibit I purchased a copy of the famous Viktor Frankl book "Man's Search For Meaning" which I had heard of all my life but don't remember ever reading. I placed it into the large colorful tote bag picturing Ronald Reagan and his wife Nancy which was given free at the Library.

MOVIN' OUT

Ang Ngoc Tran works in the lux nail salon

Savin' her pennies for someday Mama Duong left a note on the door

She said, "Honey, move out from the county" Workin' with gels can give you A heart attack (ack, ack, ack, ack, ack) You oughta know by now (oughta know) Why buy a place like a Foothills shack Is that all you get for your money?

It seems such a waste of time If that's what it's all about Mama if that's movin' up Then I'm movin' out I'm movin' out

(Movin' Out/Anthony's Song with apologies to Billy Joel)

I stood out on the front porch, all my worldly belongings stuffed into an worn leather suitcase, a yard sale find for three dollars. I like to remember the moment as a single tear tumbling down my cheek as I hugged my mother goodbye. My dad, pumped his fists in the air and declared "I'm free!" He ran back inside the house, "If I Were A Rich Man" from the musical "Fiddler on the Roof" blared from the stereo.

Suddenly, I was in a new city, new job and new bills. It didn't take long for me to figure out rent, utilities, transport and food was more than I expected. Using my cutest baby-talk lisp I asked my parents for support but they weren't buying it, they said I was too old for allowance - come on, I was still under 30.

Since my job started at 4 am and ended at 2 pm, it was conceivable to get a second job. I got one call back from my dozens of résumé submissions. The hours worked and they wanted me to start immediately. I was elated, yes - I could afford toast again!

It was with a Japanese company, a desk job with an import-export firm I hoped. Oh, after 8 hours on my feet from my first job how great it'd be to sit down and crunch numbers and seaweed crackers.

I arrived through the back door. The Japanese lady who greeted me didn't speak English, we went to a tiny room. A neat pile of clothes lay on the table. She mimed putting the kimono on. It took 20 sweaty minutes to put on the beautiful but constrictive ensemble. I thought the coup de grace was the two-toed socks that split my first and second piggies from the pack but no, it was the 16th century wooden sandals. Three planks of hardwood cobbled together, there was no Skechers Memory Foam involved.

I followed her, wincing from the pain. A door opened, I found myself in a Japanese dining hall. Amongst the non-Asian servers, it was now clearly apparent why I was hired.

After a couple months of torturing my feet, I figured if I could get a raise from my first job, I could leave the sushi slayer. I managed to catch my boss on his smoke break, he was miffed that I was impinging on his 10 minutes. Using my cheesiest "I'm going to Disneyland!" smile I asked for a raise. He mumbled some stuff about how I was the worst worker on the line and fired me.

RICH STILL FATHERIN'

Well, at last count there are, hmmm, still 4 or 5 achievements of significance I have attained in my years on this planet. Achievements defined as accomplishments one takes pride in.

Without a doubt my greatest achievement was the successful creation of two wonderful kids, Alex (34) and Olivia (32). Let there be no misunderstanding: I share credit fully with my exwife Helen. Fortunately, our kids inherited her classic good looks. From me, however, they inherited the somewhat dubious ability to "sling the bull." At least I know my son Alex has inherited it as he, at the approaching of middle age, still slings with reckless abandon. My daughter Olivia, on the other hand, is far more cultured and refined than the two male bozos in the Johnson nuclear family. This, of course, makes it difficult to ascertain her bull slinging aptitude. One can only hope. I am very happy with who my children have turned out to be.

If you are lucky enough to be a father, cherish your children. If you have no children, rent some. Become a big brother. Whatever it takes. Tell them often you love them. If they want something from you try to say yes more often than you say no (particularly when your no is motivated merely by a desire to not be inconvenienced at the moment.) If you say yes often enough you will really shake up your kids and get their attention when you do say no.

Someone once said, "Why are men reluctant to become fathers? They aren't through being children." There are elements of truth in that statement and you can understand my belief that being a father and a child is not mutually exclusive. Be a father when there is fatherin' to do and be a child as often as you can the rest of the time. I miss getting up on Saturday morning and watching Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle Cartoons with my youngin's.

I have been privileged with the addition of another daughter. Her name is Brooke. No, I did not come by her through the standard biological process. Brooke, approximately six years ago, found herself keenly interested in Alex. And Alex felt likewise. Brooke is a wonderful addition to the Johnson family.

I would like to close off this column with a quote from Clarence Budington Kelland. Mr. Kelland was a prolific writer in the first half of the twentieth century. He's particularly remembered for seeing his stories turned into movies. My favorite was "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" starring Gary Cooper and Jean Arthur. ("Mr. Deeds" was also redone in 2002 by Adam Sandler.)

Anyway, Mr. Kelland (referring to his father) once said, "He didn't tell me how to live; he

Mountain Views News Mission Statement

The traditions of community newspapers and the concerns of our readers are this newspaper's top priorities. We support a prosperous of wellcommunity informed citizens. We hold in high regard the values of the exceptional quality of life in our including community, the magnificence of our natural resources. Integrity will be our guide.

The irony of this juxtaposition appealed to me and upon returning, after an almost 2 hour drive, I tried to discuss my experience with my wife. First, she was absolutely appalled by the Ronald Reagan tote bag and immediately wanted it out of her sight. I asked her to be careful of the book inside the tote bag. She patiently explained that she was familiar with the book as it had been assigned as required reading in her Catholic High School.

My search goes on attached now to a more informed understanding of myself. I understand that the quest remains as an individual, internal search relieved occasionally by reminders of my own ignorance and fear. I will read Frankl's book. Next to my wife's bed I just found an opened pack of Tibetan Buddhist Cards.

Perhaps many of us are searching for meaning and its best to be quiet about it.

Live and Learn.

lived, and let me watch him do it."

I hope, with all my design flaws, my kids are as gracious in their remembrances of me. I love you Alex and Olivia...and Brooke.

And Happy Father's Day good friends!
