BRUSH FIRE BREAKS OUT NEAR CHANTRY FLATS - CONTAINED WITHOUT DAMAGE TO PROPERTY OR LOSS OF LIFE

On Sunday, July 2nd, an approximately two-acre fire broke out near the site of the 2020 Bobcat Fire. Called the Chantry Fire, near Santa Anita Canyon in the Angeles National Forest, it quickly grew to 5 acres and was contained due to the quick actions of firefighters on the ground and in the air.

The joint efforts of the US Department of Forrestry, the LA County Fire Department, Arcadia Fire Department and the Sierra Madre Fire Department assisted with the containment.

An evacuation warning was issued for recreational cabins and other buildings in the area, however lives and property near the scene of the fire were unharmed.

Sierra Madre Fire Chief Brent Bartlett reminds residents to be mindful of the fire prevention and brush clearance recommendations issued for their protection, especially with the predicted heat wave this summer.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE - The Social Side

by Deanne Davis

"One small step for man, one gi- 🖥 ant leap for mankind."

This year's July 4th celebration could not have been better. So many fun things to do, so much to see and enjoy. We do live in the best place possible! Ice cream from Mother Moo's...awesome!

July is full of birthdays for our family: Grandson, Luke Simon's, on the 11th, and he's in his 20's now. Unbelievable! Granddaughter, Emily Brown, will be 13 on the 22nd, which is also unbelievable, and our daughter, Crissy's, birthday is the 30th. I've got birthday cards ready for all these people and, thinking about Crissy's birthday imme-diately brings me to Apollo 11. It's been 54 years since Neil Armstrong spoke those immortal words above on July 20, 1969. Apollo 11 was the culmination of the Apollo program and a massive national commitment by the United States to beat the Soviet Union in putting people on the moon. In case you

So much has been written about Apollo 11 landing on the moon...slipping the surly bonds of earth to touch the face of God. That last phrase was taken from a World War II-era sonnet, written by a 19-year-old American airman, John Gillespie Magee, Jr., who had volunteered with the Royal Canadian Air Force. Airman Magee was killed in action near Great Britain on December 11, 1941. This phrase was spoken by President Reagan on January 28, 1986, when he used these words to console a grieving nation following the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger.

I don't know if you've ever read the whole sonnet, but it's magnificent, and when you consider that it was written by a 19-year-old American who was already a pilot flying in the Canadian Air Force, it kind of boggles the mind.

> "High Flight"
> Oh! I have slipped the surly bonds of Earth
> And danced the skies on laughter-silvered wings; Sunward I've climbed, and joined the tumbling mirth of sun-split clouds—and done a hundred things
> You have not dreamed of—wheeled and soared and swung > High in the sunlit silence. Hov'ring there, I've chased the shouting wind along, and flung
> My eager craft through footless halls of air...
> Up, up the long, delirious, burning blue
> I've topped the wind-swept heights with easy grace
> Where never lark nor ever eagle flew— And, while with silent lifting mind I've trod The high untrespassed sanctity of space, Put out my hand, and touched the face of God.

Touched the face of God! Unforgettable words. That's not really what I was planning to write about today, but I wanted to share this with you friends. Here's something else I wasn't really planning to write about...what the Apollo 11 guys left behind:

Lots of footprints! Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin's footprints are still there today because there is no weather on the lunar surface.

Also left behind, messages of hope, peace and goodwill from leaders in 73 countries, with words inscribed microscopically on the edge of a silicon disc. It says, "From Planet Earth, July 1969" and lists the names of the members of Congress who signed legislation making Apollo 11 possible and the names of top NASA officials. This disc is about the size of a half dollar coin!

They left a patch from the Apollo 1 mission to honor Gus Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chafee, the astronauts who lost their lives when a fire swept through the Apollo 1 command module during a training exercise at Kennedy Space Center on January 27, 1967. They also left medals honoring Russian cosmonauts Vladimir Komarov and Yuri Gagarin.

An American flag was left behind, not so much to "claim" the moon, but a symbolic gesture. It is theorized that flags left on the moon during the Apollo era have faded to white under the sun's harsh ultraviolet rays.

What was I really going to write about? It was that when men walked on the moon I was a couple of weeks away from giving birth to our youngest daughter, Crissy. I was about the same size and circumference as the moon and lying flat on the floor with my feet up on the couch as my back was killing me. It was an amazing July back there in 1969. Men walked on the moon and I gave birth to a fantastic person. I can't believe it's been fifty-four years, can you? God is so good! Today's picture is of Crissy and Emily, the July birthday girls. Let's Celebrate Everything! Especially Birthdays!

Bill Protecting Drivers with Epilepsy Approved

Senate Bill 357, authored by even a loss of seizure control. Senator Anthony Portantino SB 357 will: was approved by the Assembly Give docto Judiciary Committee. The bill gives doctors the discretion to report personal conditions they believe will impair a patient's ability to drive and removes language that discriminates against specific conditions, including epilepsy.

"Mandatory reporting in California is a discriminatory practice that jeopardizes access to appropriate care," stated Senator Portantino. "SB 357 protects drivers with epilepsy by improving the patientphysician relationship and allows individuals affected by epilepsy to seek the care they need without fear of losing their driving licenses."

Epilepsy is the fourth-most common neurological disorder in the US, affecting more than 3.4 million Americans and more than 425,000 Californians. Yet in California, a 1957 state discriminates against drivers with epilepsy and other conditions by requiring physicians to automatically report these drivers to the Department of Motor Vehicles. Research has shown that result in patients withholding crucial information from their physicians and not seeking the care they need. This is due to fear of losing their right to drive. When a person with epilepsy withholds critical information from their doctor, they jeopardize their access to appropriate care, risking an getting this important measure increase of seizure activity or on the Governor's desk."

AROUND SAN GABRIEL VALLEY

My dear ol' departed father told me time and time again "Don't argue sex, politics or religion, you'll never win". Well, Summer is here and we will be spending time BBQ'n with friends and family.... My politics are simple: I don't share my views at social events, and I'm not going to change my 85-year-old uncle who swears by Fox News so bottom line keep your lip tight if you must ask questions learn and don't react.

Here are a few more of my "get along this Summer" tips...

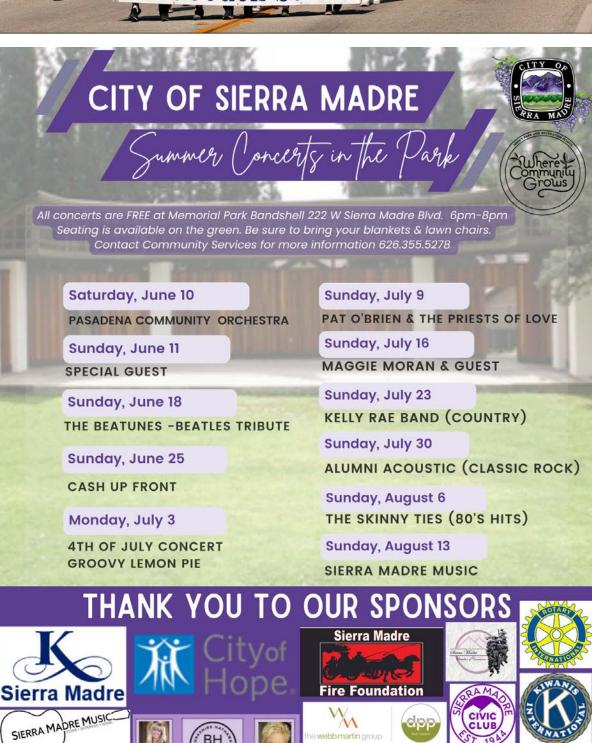

- Ask for help, but don't expect it. Families are never fair. Work is never equally divided. That's just the way it is. I am always prepared to do everything, but very happy not to. Wasting time being mad because one person tends to just sit around ruins the whole experience for everyone.
- Don't try to be right about everything. Getting the family together can be a toxic experience when someone insists on being the winner in an argument or thinks he or she is right about everything....of course, I am right about everything, but that doesn't mean I have to rub it in their faces.
 Try not to criticize. Nothing is more hurtful or hard to watch than someone criticizing someone
- Try not to criticize. Nothing is more hurtful or hard to watch than someone criticizing someone else in front of others. Whether it's your kids or your spouse or your sister, get togethers are a time to suspend critical thinking and just surrender to the getting together spirit. If you need to discipline a child, please take the child to a quiet corner or another room and speak respectfully.
- Enjoy yourself. If you are doing all the work, make sure you sit down and take breaks and talk to people...so what if the BBQ is a little late? I like to spend a little one-on-one time with each person present—to take the conversation at least a tiny step further than just "How are you?"
- Remember, we are all going to turn into our mothers/fathers one day. The very things that drive us crazy about our parents and relatives are probably hard wired into us, too. It's just harder for us to see it in ourselves, since we are looking at the world from inside of ourselves.

You probably have your own game plan, so if you have family survival tips of your own, feel free to share with me, and tune in this Sunday Night at 5 PM for my Foodie Talk Show AM 830 KLAA - the Angels Radio Station

One last thing: please bring something to the BBQ. Even if the host says they have things covered, there never is enough ice or plates. Pro Tip: don't bring an entrée unless asked - I learned the hard way on that one

JEWISH FEDERATION OF THE GREATER SAN GABRIEL AND POMONA VALLEYS IS COMBATING ANTISEMITISM LOCALLY – ONE CITY COUNCIL AT A TIME

Monrovia, CA, July 5, 2023 - With the Anti-Defamation League's (ADL) latest audit on antisemitism showing a 36% increase in reported antisemitic incidents and attacks between 2021 and 2022, and more specifically, a 41% increase here in California between 2021 and 2022, the Jewish Federation of the Greater San Gabriel launched an initiative to combat antisemitism and all forms of hatred locally. And the effort is showing signs of making a difference.

In March, Jewish Federation sent letters to the mayors, city council members, and City Managers of the 48 cities the organization covers – between Glendale to Rancho Cucamonga and south to Whittier – and asked that they join and support the organization's effort.

The initial letter outlined four specific action steps each city's leadership should take:

- 1. Sign the American Jewish Committee (AJC) and US Conference of Mayors' statement to combat antisemitism and join the over 700 mayors who have already done so. (Before the initial letter was sent back in March, only four local mayors (Brea, Chino Hills, El Monte, and South El Monte) had signed onto the statement.
- 2. Adopt the International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance's (IHRA) working definition of antisemitism.
- 3. Adopt a resolution denouncing antisemitism and all forms of hatred.
- 4. Establish a task force of representatives from various targeted ethnic and racial groups to work with city officials to develop a plan to confront hatred.

As of today, thirteen City Councils have responded by passing resolutions, agreeing to sign onto AJC and US Conference of Mayors' statement to combat antisemitism, and adopting IHRA's working definition on antisemitism:

Claremont
Upland
Monrovia
Alhambra
Sierra Madre
San Gabriel
Temple City
Pasadena
Whittier
Diamond Bar
Walnut
South Pasadena
Ontario.

Glendale has the request on their July 11 city council meeting agenda.

"Our goal is to not only raise awareness of this issue of antisemitism and hatred that is plaguing society," Jason Moss, Jewish Federation of the Greater San Gabriel and Pomona Valleys' Executive Director explains, "but also work with our local elected officials to confront and combat it where we live – in the cities that are part of the greater San Gabriel and Pomona Valleys."

Moss continues, "When I address the various city councils and share the figures that illustrate the increase, I make it a point to mention that these are only the reported figures... that there far more antisemitic incidents that go unreported. I want each city council member to understand the power their individual voices have and should be used to do what they can to get rid of all forms of hate in their cities."

Jewish Federation staff have contacted the remaining 24 cities and are awaiting a response to their follow-up request for each city to take the organization's recommended action steps.

Jewish Federation is committed to continuing to do what it can to get the remaining cities in the greater San Gabriel and Pomona Valleys to take the first steps to combat antisemitism by following the lead of their fellow city colleagues.

The Jewish Federation of the Greater San Gabriel and Pomona Valleys' mission is to build community by strengthening and enhancing Jewish life. The Jewish Federation does this by providing programs and services that support the needs of the Jewish community in our region, and acts as the Jewish voice on issues that affect the greater Jewish community.

"LEAFLETS THREE, LET IT BE" GETTING TO KNOW POISON OAK (TOXICODENDRON DIVERSILOBUM)

[Nyerges is the author of "Guide to Wild Foods and Useful Plants," which includes a chapter on poison oak. He has led ethno-botanical walks since led ethno-botanical walks since 1974. He can be reached at www.SchoolofSelf-Reliance. com, or Box 41834, Eagle Rock, CA 90041]

Both poison ivy and poison oak are wide-spread vining plants which contain the chemical urushiol. When the bare skin comes into contact with urishiol, an itching irritating rash can result. Poison ivy is much more widespread of the two, found widely east of the Rockies all the way to the Atlantic coast. Here in California and in the Western states, you'll find poison oak. It can be found north into Canada, and south into Baja California.

Poison oak's leaves are composed of three roundish leaflets. You've all heard the slogan 'Leaflets three, let it be,' right? (For the record, poison oak isn't the only plants with three leaflets.) Each leaf is composed of three leaflets. These vines are deciduous, meaning they lose their leaves in the winter.

FOR THE RECORD

Doctors will nearly always recommend a cortisone product if you get a rash from poison ivy or poison oak. They recommend it because it does effectively heal the rash.

HOWEVER

I went to the world-famous Southwest Museum in Los Angeles, and researched how Native Americans of the area in the old days sed poison oak in many ways and were not known to get a rash from this plant. turned out that baskets were made from the long vines of the poison oak, and they also produced a black dye from the sap of the leaf. So why didn't they get the rash from the plant? Young poison oak leaves were added into their acorn meal and other foods. Apparently, according to my research, Native Americans were not necessarily any more immune to the rash of poison oak than anyone else - approximately 20% of any population is naturally immune, and there are several factors that contribute to this. But it is widely believed that the ingestion of the poison oak on a regular basis rendered the

GETTING A RASH

First, you can get the rash at any time of the year, even when the vines are dormant. It might seem that there is a "season" for the rash, but that's probably because more people are hiking and traveling in the woods and valleys in the summer. But there is no season.

All it takes to get the rash is to brush up against the plant with bare skin. Most of the time, hikers get the rash when they unsuspectingly walk through a patch of poison oak, or brush up against it on the side of the trail

But you can also get the rash in the winter when there are no leaves on the vines, and you get the rash when you pet your dog who has just run a hillside of poison oak. In the West, firefighters are known to get serious infections from poison oak, whose oils are in the smoke of nearly all forest fires.

The urushiol oils take about 24 to 48 hours to begin to cause a rash, but you should still act quickly if you know you've brushed up against the plant.

If you're in the field and you know you brushed up against poison oak, you can sprinkle a clay soil over the exposed area and rub it into your skin, and then wash with hot water and soap as soon as possible.

There are also specialized soaps for poison oak. These can be obtained from pharmacies or backpacking stores, and since the results vary somewhat from person to person, I have no personal recommendation on any of those products. I have found that Ivory dishwashing liquid works fine to break down the oil in poison oak that's gotten on your skin, and so does Shaklee's Basic H.

Native American effectively immune.

I decided to try this nearly 50 years ago, and I no longer get a rash when I've been in contact with poison oak. I eat a few of the newly-emerging leaves every spring, perhaps every other week for about two months. The flavor is somewhat nutty.

I quickly add that I DO NOT recommend this because individual body chemistry can be so different. I merely pass it along as a personal testimony.

Nevertheless, always err on the side of safety. If you know you get a rash from poison oak, learn to identify it and avoid it. Avoidance of poison oak should be your top-priority strategy if you go into the woods.

CURES

Besides going to a doctor, there are many traditional remedies for the rash of poison oak, which allows the body to heal itself. Here are a few of the methods that I have collected – the complete list is in my "Guide to Wild Foods and Useful Plants" book.

1. In my experience, the fresh juice of the aloe vera plant is the best natural cure for poison oak rash. To use, cut open a section of the succulent leaf, and apply the inner, wet side directly to the rash, which will result in an immediate cooling sensation and a subsequent rapid healing.

2. Rub mugwort leaves (Artemisia spp.) over the exposed parts of your body before entering poison oak areas to prevent the rash. The mushed-up fresh mugwort leaves can also be applied directly to the rash.

3. Drink an infusion from the leaves of manzanita leaves (Arctostaphylos spp.). This comes from several of the Indian tribes in California and even up into the Northwest.

CONCLUSION

You may be one of the fortunate ones who is somehow naturally immune to poison oak. But if you're a part of the majority of the population, you should first learn to recognize these widespread plants, and then do your best to avoid them.

Rajah, orange tabby, is full of energy and loves playing all day, but then has a good nap when he gets tired. Very independent and doesn't like being held for too long, but enjoys a good head rub. Soon as he's rubbed he begins to purr very loudly. After a full day of running around with his brother Butters and doing some bird watching through the screen door he will climb on the cat tree and sleep like the baby he is! Adopt these boys together. See more pictures and adoption info at www.lifelineforpets.org, the "More Cats" page.

Pet of the Week

According to the saying, "everything is bigger in Texas", and one-year-old lab mix Tex likes to embody that. He has a huge personality, and an even bigger heart! Tex has been entertaining the volunteers at Pasadena Humane by romping around in the play yard, chasing tennis balls and letting his ears flap around like bird wings. He hasn't taken flight yet, but that never stops him! One of his favorite things to do is to splash around in the kiddie pool, then try to shake right next to you. It's adorable and helps keep you cool! Tex had some playtime with another dog and they both had a blast. We're confident that he would do well with a similar-sized buddy, but he'd also be happy being your Lone Star! Pasadena Humane will be having a Free Adoption Day on Saturday, 7/15, from 10:00 a.m. - 2:00 p.m. sponsored by longtime donor Gabrielle Bruveris! Adoption fees will be waived for all available dogs, cats, and critters. Adoptions include spay or neuter, a microchip, and age-appropriate vaccines. No appointment necessary. Regular adop-cats, and critters. Adoptions include spay or neuter, a microchip, and age-appropriate vaccines. No appointment necessary. Regular adoption process applies. We will not be offering meet-and-greets between pets, so please leave your family pets at home. New adopters will receive a complimentary health-and-wellness exam from VCA Animal Hospitals, as well as a goody bag filled with information about how to care for your pet.

View photos of adoptable pets and schedule an adoption appointment at pasadenahumane.org. Adoptions are by appointment only, and new adoption appointments are available every Sunday and Wednesday at 10:00 a.m.

Pets may not be available for adoption and cannot be held for potential adopters by phone calls or email.

WE WERE AT THE PARADE, TOO!

FAMILY MATTERS

HAVE A TRUST? HOW THE CORPORATE TRANSPARENCY ACT AFFECTS YOU.

Get ready for a new twist in the legal and business world. You may already be familiar with the upcoming Corporate Transparency Act, set to kick in next year. If you aren't, it's time to get in the know because it could impact you, and if it does, you'll need support. Starting January 1, 2024, every small business will be mandated to submit an annual report revealing the names of its major owners. Now, here's where things get even more offputting. If you happen to have a Trust that holds partial or full ownership in a business, that business might be required to disclose private details about your trust, including the name of your Trustee or beneficiaries, in your annual corporate report to the government. What Is the Purpose of the Corporate Transparency Act and What Does It Require? Enacted in 2020 and set to take effect on January 1, 2024, the Corporate Transparency Act aims to tackle money laundering and terrorism financing schemes involving "shell" corporations—companies which exist merely on paper and don't engage in actual business or trade (like "Vamonos Pest" in Breaking Bad).

Under the Act, small companies will now have to disclose the names of any owners who hold 25% or more ownership in the company, as well as any individuals who exercise significant control over the company's activities. The goal is to identify and expose shell corporations involved in money laundering, as this tends to occur within small businesses rather than large corporations. To comply with the requirements, businesses must submit an annual report to the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN) containing the following details about each owner or controller:

Business name

Current business address

State in which the business was formed and its Entity Identification Number (EIN)

Owner/controller's name, birth date, and address

Photocopy of a government-issued photo ID (such as a driver's license or passport) of every direct or indirect owner or controller of the company

Failing to file an annual report could result in serious repercussions, from paying a fine of $500 for every day the report is late up to imprisonment for two years. Does My Trust Need to Be Disclosed?

Since a Trust can - and often should - own a business or a share of a business, Trusts are also involved in the Corporate Transparency Act, but under more limited circumstances. So how do you know if your Trust information will need to be disclosed?

Let's break it down...

The new rule applies to any company that is created by filing a formation document with the Secretary of State or a similar office, such as corporations and limited liability companies (LLCs). Non-profits, publicly traded companies, and regulated companies like banks and investment advisors are exempt from the rule. Large companies are also exempt if they have 20 or more fulltime employees in the US and generate $5 million in sales. So, if your trust owns a share of any of these types of companies, it does not need to be reported.

If you have an LLC or corporation you created but aren't actively using to run a business, that company is exempt from reporting due to its inactivity, so your Trust would not be reported in that instance, either.

But if your Trust owns a share of a small, for-profit company, (like a small family business or local investment) the beneficial owner of the Trust will need to be reported to the Financial Crimes

Enforcement Network. The beneficial owner is the person or people who benefit from the Trust or have the power to make major decisions about the Trust assets. Depending on how your Trust is written, this is usually the Trustee, but it can also be the beneficiaries of your Trust. Does the Corporate Transparency Act Affect My Trust's Asset Protection?

One of the best things about creating a Trust is that it provides you and your family with an extra level of privacy and provides asset protection from divorce or lawsuits for your Trust's beneficiaries after you're gone.

Thankfully, having a Trust that owns a business or a share of a business doesn't take away from the Trust's ability to provide asset protection to your heirs.

And while the new Corporate Transparency Act rule reduces some of the privacy benefits that come with owning assets in a Trust, the names of your Trust, trustees, and beneficiaries are not supposed to be made public and are only to be used by the government for the specific purpose of investigating financial crimes.

Because of this, Trusts should remain an excellent tool for providing privacy, avoiding probate, and setting up your family with a lifetime of asset protection and financial security.

HAVE GIGGLE, WILL LAUGH

my life. I have yet to recognize all of my prob-lems, but I'm sure I will soon.

That's why it's so great to be married to someone like The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. There is no problem she cannot fix, and I have many examples to prove it.

There is one problem she hasn't been able to fix. That is, I laugh too much. At least, according to her.

If something happens or someone says something, I will start to giggle, and I know that in a short time, I will be laughing. I know how to laugh better than anybody I know. Just ask The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage.

Through the years, I have tried to moderate it. I don't want to laugh at everything even though there is a giggle inside of me. Most people don't think everything is funny, while I, on the other side, can't think of anything that isn't funny.

Someone may tell me something or say something unwittingly, and I begin to giggle. I know when that starts I have no control over my giggle-itis. The only cure I have found for giggle-itis is laughter.

Someone may be telling a very serious story about their life, and I hear it wrong and think they are saying something altogether different, and it kicks in my giggle-itis.

It wouldn't be so bad if I could control it when it happens, but as history has proven I cannot.

I do try to keep some things serious. I must confess, however, that changes from day to day. What is serious today may not be serious tomorrow, and I am the last one to know how to control that.

I've often discussed this with The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage, and she has tried to counsel me in this area on how to control my laughter.

I try to explain to her that it is not so much the laughter as it is the giggle. If I could control my giggles, I wouldn't have any problem with laughter. She doesn't get it and laughs at me.

You must agree, there are many things in this world that are funny. And I do not believe we should overlook or ignore those situations.

Last week I was standing in line at the post office, and at the counter was a very nice older lady. She was paying for some postage and gave the cashier a $50 bill. Then the cashier, preparing to give her money back, said something strange. He said, "Mam, what denomination would you like?"

I hadn't heard that in a long time and was anxious to hear how the lady would respond.

She looked at the cashier with a very seri-

I have many problems in ous look and said, "Sir, I'm a Baptist, so give my life. I have yet to recit to me in Baptist denomination."

Little did I know she was not joking, but I laughed at her, trying to conceal it.

The cashier stared at her, not knowing what to do. I'm not sure what money he gave her because I was laughing too much on the inside.

It's so hard for me to laugh on the inside and keep it from getting on the outside. was laughing about that for the rest of the day. And still, when I think of it, I chuckle on the inside. Just the other day, The Gracious Mistress of she would be gone for the day, thrift store shopping with her daughters. Looking at me, she seriously said, "Can you get your own lunch today while I'm gone?'

the Parsonage came and informed me that

That tripped the giggle button inside for some reason, and my giggle-itis had kicked

Looking at her while giggling, I said, "Don't worry. I'll clean the refrigerator out by the time you get home."

Then I started laughing almost uncontrollably. She, on the other hand, looked at me with her infamous scowl and said, without laughing, "I don't think so."

I could not stop laughing as she walked out the front door. Several hours later, I was still laughing, and went and looked in the refrigerator to see how much work I had on hand.

When I opened the refrigerator door, I immediately stopped laughing. There at the front was a bowl of broccoli. I know she did that on purpose, and it cured my giggle-itis for a moment. I had to devise a plan for that broccoli to make me laugh and her scowl. Now the giggle-itis is beginning to turn on.

I think a bowl of Apple Fritters would be an excellent replacement. This is one of the few items that will make the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage scowl. To see that scowl will be worth all I can offer at this time.

Just the thought of that began a giggle inside of me. Thinking more of this it developed into laughter. I just can't wait to get

While I was laughing, I thought of one my favorite Bible verses. "All the days of the afflicted are evil: but he that is of a merry heart hath a continual feast" (Proverbs 15:15.

When I think of broccoli I have evil feelings, but the Apple Fritter thought brings a lot of merriment to me.

Then I remembered Proverbs 17:22. "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine: but a broken spirit drieth the bones."

PUT THE LIGHTS ON STUFF THAT BOTHERS ME

There are many things that continue to go on that really disturb me and I don't seem to be able to do anything about them. Yesterday was the 4th of July, a designated day of celebration. Instead what did America display. Quoting ABCNEWS.com "Amid celebrations and fireworks over the long Fourth of July holiday weekend cities across the country were left reeling from the scourge of mass shootings this weekend. The story I read said that combined, the shootings this weekend left seven people dead and 46 injured. The Memorial Day holiday resulted in at least 17 shootings which left 13 people dead and 79 injured in cities across this country. I don't know how accurate these statistics are, I now doubt everything I hear on the news, but I do know that last night sounded like a War Zone right here in Sierra Madre.

People are fearful; perhaps rightly so. Today school children are driven to School by a single parent and these single parents in their cars are lined up around the block to pick up the kids after school contributing to all sorts of environmental problems.

I want to keep talking a while about cars before I go back to the subject of guns. I am sure you have noticed the single far left lane of the freeway reserved for cars with multiple occupants is always pretty empty while the other four lanes filled with sole occupant cars are always jammed. I know that I am also an offender but really something should be done. There is no question that gas driven vehicles are damaging to the overall environment but the single driver congestion is as bad as it always was. Maybe the future environment will be less damaged by electric cars but those noiseless vehicles present other problems. Twice, here in our canyon, which has no sidewalks, I have seen small children endangered as they walked along the street not hearing approaching soundless electric cars. Both times, thankfully, an adult arm reached out and pulled the children to safety. I worry.

Back to guns. I hate these "patriotic" holidays wherein wars are celebrated. Nobody wins a war—there are always huge numbers of innocent young people killed over disputes between the rulers of warring nations fought for the benefit of a favored few. Yes, money is made from war, business is good and jobs are plentiful and the whole things makes me sick. What about our wonderful Revolutionary War, you say? Read Candy by Terry Southern wherein a person driving in the northeast is asked if they see much of a difference in where they are now and where they were a few minutes ago. The driver says he doesn't see any difference and the passenger says "Now we are in Canada which became free from England without the necessity of war." Candy was a "dirty book" I read outside of classes before I graduated High School. As is clear 65 years later, this book made more of an impression on me that any of the books I read in School.

Lots of other things bother me and before I reach my word limit I will mention a few. Recently, all kinds of drugs have been legalized and I want to feel that these drugs will not interact negatively with the fifteen or so prescription drugs I take every day. I recently asked my diabetic advisor, a doctor of pharmacy, about this and she explained that she had no knowledge about non-prescription drugs. A couple of days later I asked my cardiologist the same thing and he had no information. I got angry and asked why he had no information, and he patiently explained that the Federal Government had, until recently made no attempt to study the interactions of prescription drugs and generally illegal non-prescription drugs. Yes people have been overdosing and dying but our wonderful caring government did not want to do anything to allow people to be more informed about their (yours and mine) drug taking.

There are many other things that bother me but that's enough for now. I'm glad you survived the 4th.

IS THERE A LOUD TALKER IN YOUR LIFE?

"We are the Cubs from Den 3/And no one could be prouder/If you cannot hear our shout/We'll yell a little LOUDER."

That chant from my Cub Scout pack-meeting days comes to mind as I explore the issue of moderation-challenged speakers, or, as the prestigious American Psychiatric Association clinically labels them, "bozos who wouldn't know an indoor voice if it bit them on the rear."

Surely you could name some loud talkers. Maybe you are a loud talker. When you overhear people whispering about boorish behavior, perhaps you should consider asking, "Lord, is it I? I said, LORD, IS IT I????"

Booming voices disseminating too-much-information revelations are everywhere: across the hedge, in the classroom (my second-grade teacher Mrs. Shubert dubbed me "Old Cannon Mouth"), on the beach, in the grocery store, in the homes of people who use recorded jackhammer sounds in their "white noise" machine...

Retailers certainly need all the business they can get, but frontline employees dread the arrival of certain clueless extroverts. Everyone in the building hears them as soon as they enter the front door. Heck, the store's vendors in Southeast Asia hear them as soon as they enter the front door! You should consider yourself lucky if you meet an acquaintance who is merely loud. Sometimes you also get a dislocated shoulder from vigorous handshaking, a stinging slap on the back and a public recitation of how you obtained the embarrassing nickname you've been trying to live down since high school. ("I know you're trying to get to the ER, stranger, but the ambulance driver can wait until you hear about Mr. Who Put the Dissected Frog in my Jockstrap?")

Count your blessings (not out loud!) when you encounter a solo loudmouth. Too often, there are entire families who have been competing for attention for generations. ("Yes! Let's play Twister! Then I can get even closer to your ear! What? No, I love YOU more. What? You actually said, 'let's make some s'mores'? I love you even more.") It's obvious that some people unleash the decibels because they grew up poor in the middle of the 20th century. ("I can't change my volume because I can't find the pliers.")

I wish all loud talkers could take some subtle hints when they're getting carried away, but apparently many of them are colorblind as well. They mistake the blood oozing from your ears for sweat. Don't fall into the trap of pigeonholing people purely on the basis of volume. Some people are loud only intermittently, when they're excited to share some news; others are always "on." Some are apologetic; some are oblivious. Some are amiable and earnest with their gushing. Others are downright obnoxious. Some you make excuses for. Others, you make burial-in-a-shallow-grave plans for. Not all loud talkers are egotistical. Some are preemptively bluffing to cover their insecurities. (Judging by the intensity of their utterances, they must think that alien invaders are about to drain their bank account and induce male pattern baldness.)

I would shout, "Yahoo!" now that I have met my deadline, but my wife is sensitive to loud noises, ger any migraines. She might throw out my Cub Scout merit badge for Untying Sheepshank Knots by Yodeling at Them.

I know what you're thinking. Easy? Livin'? For who? Whoever wrote that song must not know how tough life is for us here in 2023.

Ha! The song was written by George Gershwin in 1935 as part of the American opera Porgy and Bess. Remember 1935? The middle of the great Depression. Life wasn't easier in 1935. And the play itself was centered around the black community. Easy for them? 1935?

Possibly George Gershwin's finest song, Summertime evokes a wonderful perspective on how we should enjoy life, friends and family even in the toughest of times. (Kudos also to older brother Ira Gershwin, and DuBose and Dorothy Heyward, who wrote the lyrics.)

And as you may recall, the self-proclaimed hope and purpose of my columns is to lighten the load for all of us. So, to that end, how about some graffiti from around the world.

"Bad spellers of the world – untie"

"Coffee, a person who is coughed upon"

"Deja moo: The feeling you've heard this BS before"

"Dwn wth vwls"

"Earn cash in your spare time - blackmail friends"

"Help wanted: Telepath. You know where to apply"

"Indecision is the key to flexibility"

"Love is grand; divorce is a hundred grand"

"My daughter thinks I'm nosy. At least that's what she says in her diary"

"My mother was the travel agent for guilt trips"

"Perforation is a rip-off"

"Veni, Vidi, Velcro: I came, I saw, I stuck around"

"Whenever I feel blue, I start breathing again"

Finally, it's embarrassing (not really) for me to keep promoting my band's upcoming concerts. But since you asked (someone ask me) JJ Jukebox is performing again on July 22 (Saturday night 6:30-9:30) right here in town at Nano Café. Good food, good drinks, good dancing, good friends and totally tubular music from the 1960s-70s. What more could you want? Make reservations by calling Nanos (626) 325-3334. Best to call after 4:00 Wednesday through Saturdays. 322 W. Sierra Madre Blvd.
