"Nothing ever seems too bad, too hard, or too sad when you've got a Christmas tree in the living room." Nora Roberts

"Christmas is not a time, nor a season, but a state of mind. To cherish peace and goodwill, to be plenteous in mercy, is to have the real spirit of Christmas." Calvin Coolidge

"Christmas gifts suggestions:

To your enemy, forgiveness. To an opponent, tolerance. To a friend, your

To every child, a good example. To all, charity. To yourself, respect."

In case you haven't thought about it, there are only 16 days left till Christmas. Gasp! The beautiful tree pictured here today is my next door neighbor's absolutely perfect live tree. Jay and Sarah had just brought it home and the delicious evergreen scent was straight out of some delightful forest. My tree, for several years now is the fake, fully lighted, straight out of the box from Michael's, kind. I like it, it's easy to deal with and I don't have to worry about getting rid of it when it becomes a total fire hazard.

We all have special nostalgic Christmas treasures that fill our hearts with memories and happy thoughts; pictures of our children taken in Sunday School, our grandchildren's little hands and feet on ceramic tiles, tiny felt Christmas stockings with everyone's name glued on them with glitter. I even have some little glass ornaments which were my Aunt Helen's, dating from the 1930s.

When we were first married, before we lived on Alegria, we rented a lovely house with a high beamed ceiling up on Canon Drive, right behind where Christian author, Fay Angus, lived, and when our first Christmas together arrived, I was about hysterical with excitement. We went down to the railroad yards where trains were coming in from wherever they loaded on those trees, I have a feeling it was the Pacific Northwest. Railroad workers pitched them off the cars and anyone who was standing there could pick out whatever tied-up tree they wanted. I don't remember it costing very much. We selected an enormous Noble fir and tied it to the top of our little blue Ford Falcon. Got it home and it had to have been ten feet tall or taller and was the most gorgeous thing we'd ever seen. We had just a few things to put on it, but it was our tree and our home and our children opened presents under it and I will remember always what a wonderful time that was.

Have you walked through Kersting Court and admired our really handsome Christmas tree, with wonderful red bows, ornaments, and even a gift or two beneath? And the dreidel and the Festivus Pole, so named by Robert Gjerde. I think it gets better every year.

All this Christmas tree talk reminds me that my moment is coming, too, when it's time to trim the tree. All the boxes of Christmas stuff have been opened, I'm trying to remember what I did last year with the manger scene that made it look so sweetly reverent, promise myself I'm not going to do so much this year, and then put up more than ever before. There's no way I can't put on all the things the children made through the years; the red globes that date from the beginning of our marriage. They are somewhat cracked and crazed now (occasionally our marriage was, too) but still precious in my sight.

I offered to make cookies and invited Jessie and Emily down to help me decorate but Emily had already decorated the tree at her house and was totally uninterested. So, I poured myself a glass of eggnog (yes, a little adult beverage mixed in) into a beautiful stemmed glass, grated a little fresh nutmeg over the top, put a few things on the tree and began to enjoy the process. You can, too, you know...now that the family has scattered like roaches when the light is turned on and peace reigns.

- Sit down and admire your tree with all the lights on while enjoying your eggnog. Put on the Christmas CD that YOU like. It could be The Messiah, or it could be the
- one that has "Grandma Got Run Over By a Reindeer."
- 3. Allow joy to flood your heart, soul and mind. Rejoice! Peace on Earth! Good will
- Put a few more of these old treasures on the tree...the beaded ones Leah made one year, the cookie dough ones that were made the year everyone had chicken pox, little airplanes in honor of all the years John was a pilot and flew us to delightful places.
- Think about that first Christmas night and that amazing heavenly light that guided shepherds and wisemen to that humble stable.

"On a night like this, centuries ago, A brilliant star rose in the East. To show the Wisemen where to go. They set out on a journey, To find an unknown King. Their hearts were filled with happiness, And praises they would sing.

Enjoy the preparations, dear friends and neighbors. Take time to do fun things, like lunch downtown and a walk through Kersting Court to admire the beautiful tree there...and rejoice! Emmanuel...God is with us.

My book page: Amazon.com: Deanne Davis Christmas is just a few short weeks away and my book: Sunrises and Sunflowers Speak Hope' Would be a really nice gift for everyone you know. It's on Amazon.com "Star of Wonder" a delightful Christmas Kindle story, where four lonely people find love following a strange new star on Christmas Eve, is there, too.

Reward Extended for Unsolved Murder in Pasadena

Los Angeles County Supervisor Kathryn Barger announced Tuesday that she introduced a motion to extend a $25,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the persons responsible for the murder of 27-year-old Ernesto Jimenez (pictured) in Pasadena.

Affectionately called "Big Ernesto" by the local community, Mr. Jimenez was shot while walking to Villa Park on November 13, 2020. He often played music at the park and was known for his caring nature. He was not a gang member and had no gang affiliations.

"More than three years have passed since Ernesto's life violently ended while he was simply just strolling to his neighborhood park," said Supervisor Kathryn Barger. "I'm hopeful that this reward will lead to someone stepping forward to provide a critical tip or bit of information to help solve this case. Ernesto's family is heartbroken. They and the Pasadena community at large deserve answers, justice, and closure."

"We are not going to let a coward violate the safety and security of our city, Pasadena Mayor Victor Gordo said. "We owe it to the family to find the person(s) responsible. I thank Supervisor Barger for never forgetting our local families who deserve closure."

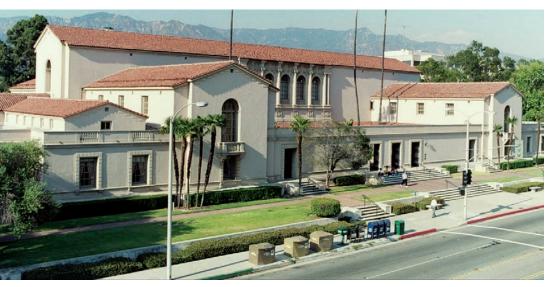

Anyone with information about this case can anonymously contact the Los Angeles Regional Crime Stoppers Hotline at 1(800) 222-TIPS (8477)

Pasadena police announced Sunday that they are asking for the public's help solve, after releasing a new photo of the suspect vehicle, a number of attempted homicides in June that left three people with multiple gunshot wounds in separate instances in Northwest Pasadena.

According to investigators, on June 17 at 9:12 p.m. officers responded to the 00 block of West Peoria St. and found two gunshot victims. They were both self transported to a nearby hospital with non-life-threatening injuries. Shortly after at approximately 9:38 p.m. officers responded to Marengo Ave. and Painter Street to find an adult male in the street suffering from multiple gunshot wounds. A young child was also found unhurt nearby in the victim's vehicle although the car seat had been stuck by gunfire. Detectives now believe the shooting are related and identified the suspect's vehicle as a 2010 or 2012 black Ford Fusion with dark tinted

PETER'S CHRISTMAS RULES 2023

My dear ol' departed father told me time and time again "Don't argue sex, politics or religion, you'll never win". Well, the holidays are here and we will be spending time with loved ones... and the loved ones who get on our nerves. My politics are simple: I don't share my views at social events, and I'm not going to change my 85-year-old uncle who swears by Fox News so bottom line keep your lip tight if you must ask questions learn and don't react.

Here are a few more of my "get along during the Holidays" tips...

- Ask for help, but don't expect it. Families are never fair. Work is never equally divided. That's just the way it is. I am always prepared to do everything, but very happy not to. Wasting time being mad because one person tends to just sit around ruins the whole experience for everyone.
- Don't try to be right about everything. Getting the family together can be a toxic experience when someone insists on being the winner in an argument or thinks he or she is right about everything....of course, I am right about everything, but that doesn't mean I have to rub it in their faces.
- Try not to criticize. Nothing is more hurtful or hard to watch than someone criticizing someone else in front of others. Whether it's your kids or your spouse or your sister, holidays are a time to suspend critical thinking and just surrender to holiday spirit. If you need to discipline a child, please take the child to a quiet corner or another room and speak respectfully.
- Enjoy yourself. If you are doing all the work, make sure you sit down and take breaks and talk to people...so what if dinner is a little late? I like to spend a little one-on-one time with each person present—to take the conversation at least a tiny step further than just "How are you?"
- Lay off the liquor. I haven't had a drink in 10 years. And I don't serve alcohol in my house. It's amazing how much happier my family dinners turn out when no one's crying or acting out after drinking too much. I don't get upset when people bring their own wine to a dinner at my house—but the fact that they might be the only ones drinking seems to help them stay in control.
- Remember, we are all going to turn into our mothers/fathers one day. The very things that drive us crazy about our parents and relatives are probably hard wired into us, too. It's just harder for us to see it in ourselves, since we are looking at the world from inside of ourselves.

Pro Tip: don't bring an entrée unless asked - I learned the hard way on that one

Happy Holidays

METRO SERVICE CHANGES RESULT IN IM-PROVEMENTS TO A LINE

Beginning December 10, Metro is making changes to bus and rail service to provide more frequent and reliable trips. Among these improvements, Metro will be increasing service availability on the A Line (Long Beach – Downtown – Azusa), formerly known as the "L" or "Gold" Line. This light rail service passes through Monrovia, making a stop at Station Square.

In response to riders requesting more frequent and later rail service, Metro will implement the following changes to the A Line:

- Weekday peak hour trains will operate every 8 minutes instead of 10 minutes.
- Weekday midday and Saturday/Sunday 9:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. trains will operate every 10 minutes instead of 12 minutes.
- Two additional trains will be added at the end of the nightly schedule in each direction, extending service by an extra 40 minutes each night, weekdays and weekends, with later departures from Long Beach, APU Citrus, and Santa Monica after 11:30 p.m.

In addition to the A Line, Metro will be introducing similar improvements to other rail lines and bus routes. Visit mybus.metro.net/en/ for a full list of updates.

If you have any questions regarding the updated service, call (323) 466-3876 or email planatrip@metro.net.

LOCAL BACKYARD "FARMER" PUBLISHES HER FIRST BOOK

Urban farmer Julie Balaa sells unique plants at the local farmers market

Her first book just released: "LOW COST EMERGENCY PLANNING." Foreword by Actor Ed Begley Jr.

Urban farmer Julie Balaa has just produced her first book, an in-depth guide to being prepared for emergencies and life's crises without breaking the budget. Her book, "Low Cost Emergency Planning: A Do-it-Yourself Guide to Family Disaster Planning," (Skyhorse, 2023), covers the basics of water and food storage, home food production, making things, and how to live a more self-reliant life without spending an arm and a leg. The book is fully illustrated with color photos. The actor and environmentalist Ed Begley Jr. wrote the optimistic foreword.

She is scheduling book readings, lectures, and classes based around her book.

Balaa grew up in San Marino, and now lives across the Arroyo Seco in Highland Park, where she does urban farming. Besides growing things in the greenhouse she built, she farms the one acre urban sanctuary of the non-profit where she works.

At the Tuesday Highland Park Farmers Market, Julie Balaa has been teaching her customers how to create sustainable gardens in their own yards for several years now. Balaa's booth at the market caught my attention because she was selling less-common foods, and instructing people how to grow their own.

At her farmers market booth, she sells New Zealand spinach, lamb's quarter, California pepper seeds, cactus pads, as well as a variety of potted foods, such as purple tree collard, sapote, and ficus trees.

Balaa is always engaged in conversations with customers, explaining that these are all the plants she grows and sells can be used to create sustainable gardens. Her book will be one extra tool that her customers can use as a guideline to creating their own self-sufficient home.

Her book addresses all the basic needs of any urban or suburban dweller who doesn't have a lot of land, but wants to still be prepared for emergencies and wants to be a bit more self-reliant.

Balaa begins with a chapter on water, and since she's in the Los Angeles area, she lets readers know that only 26% of the water that Los Angelos use is local – all the rest comes to the city via 3 aqueducts from sources about 300 miles away. Thus, Balaa encourages her readers to do as she does: conserve water, don't waste water, and lots of grey water recycling. She describes what it takes to collect rain water, and how to store water in plastic buckets in case of emergencies.

Next, she explains how to store food, and that you can have some food in your yard if you grow food producing trees and vegetables. She discusses even the common wild foods – such as pricky pear cactus, lambs quarter, and purslane – which are common and have great nutritional value.

How do you cook when the power goes out? Balas shares some simple methods, including how to make a low-cost solar oven. She also addresses the basics of first aid in emergencies, how to create a simple backyard "survival camp," and all the very important economic considerations that are all too often ignored in "survival" books.

The book is a pleasure to read, with lots of common sense coming from someone who had to work with a limited budget.

When she is selling her products at the local farmers market, one of her popular foods is the prickly pear cactus pad, or nopales, which have been used in Mexican cuisine for centuries. She sells the pads ready to be cleaned and eaten, as well as the potted pads which can be grown as a border plant. The prickly pear cactus has been demonstrated to be effective for treating high cholesterol and type 2 diabetes, as documented in such books as "Prickly Pear Cactus Medicine" by Ran Knishinsky.

At her table at the Farmers Market, Balaa had a list of all the plants that her clients could grow in their yards to create a perennial, sustainable garden for the least amount of work. The list included trees, of course, like olives, citrus, and figs, and grape vines, asparagus, onions, Jerusalem artichoke, potatoes, tree collards, and, of course, prickly pear cactus.

As part of the permaculture philosophy which is embodied in Balaa's new book, she and her family also recycle all of their kitchen and yard scraps by composting them into soil, rather than just tossing it all into the trash can. "It's very rewarding to do these techniques," said

Balaa, "because I feel it's what we should all be doing. Sometimes it's hard, but it makes you feel good for doing it." She also practices safe grey-water recycling, where she sends all her kitchen and bath water into the garden.

WHAT IS THE RETIREMENT SAVER'S CREDIT & HOW DOES IT WORK?

Dear Savvy Senior.

Can you explain to me how the retirement saver's tax credit works? My wife and I are in our fifties and are looking for creative ways to boost our retirement savings beyond our 401(k). Is this something we may be eligible for? Struggling to Save

Dear Struggling:

If your income is low to moderate and you participate in your employer-sponsored retirement plan or an IRA, the Retirement Savings Contribution Credit (aka "Saver's Credit") is a frequently overlooked tool that can help boost your retirement savings even more. Here's how it works.

If you contribute to a retirement-savings account like a traditional or Roth IRA, 401(k), 403(b), 457, Thrift Savings Plan, Simplified Employee Pension or SIMPLE plan, the Saver's Credit will allow you to claim 10, 20 or 50 percent of your contribution of up to $4,000 per year for couples or $2,000 for singles.

Keep in mind that a credit is not the same as a tax deduction – it's better: While a tax deduction just reduces the amount of your income that is subject to taxes, a tax credit reduces your actual tax bill dollar-for-dollar.

To qualify, you must also be at least 18 years old and not a full-time student and were not claimed as a dependent on someone else's tax return. And your adjusted gross income (AGI) in 2023 must be below $73,000 or less as a married couple filing jointly, $54,750 or less if filing as head of household or $36,500 or less if you're a single filer. These income limits are adjusted annually to keep pace with

To get the 50 percent credit, you'll need to have an income below $43,500 for married couples filing jointly; $32,625 if you're filing as head of household; and $21,750 if you're a single filer in 2023.

The 20 percent credit rate applies to couples earning between $43,501 to $47,500; for head of household filers it's $32,626 to $35,625; and for individuals it's $21,751 to $23,750.

And the 10 percent rate is for couples with an adjusted gross income between $47,501 and $73,000;

safe Path for Seniors

for head of household filers $35,626 to $54,750; and individuals it's between $23,751 and $36,500.

Here's an example of how this works. Let's say that you and your wife earned $75,000 in 2023. Over the course of the year, you contributed $4,000 to your employer's 401(k) plan. After deducting your 401(k) contribution, your adjusted gross income (AGI) on your joint return is now $71,000. Since your AGI puts you in the 10 percent credit bracket, and you've contributed the $4,000 maximum that can be considered for the credit, you are entitled to a $400 Saver's Credit on your tax return.

It's also worth mentioning that the Saver's Credit is in addition to any other tax benefits you get for your retirement contributions. So, in the previous example, not only would you be entitled to a $400 credit, but you would also be able to exclude the $4,000 401(k) contribution from your taxable income. So, if you're in the 12 percent tax bracket, this translates to an additional $480 in savings, for a total of $880.

How to Claim

To claim the Saver's Credit, you will need to fill out Form 8880 (see IRS.gov/pub/irs-pdf/f8880.pdf) and attach it to your Form 1040 or 1040NR when you file your tax return.

For more information on the Saver's Credit, see IRS Publication 590-A "Contributions to Individual Retirement Arrangements" (IRS.gov/pub/irs-pdf/ p590a.pdf).

The IRS also offers an online quiz you can take to help you determine if you qualify for the Saver's Credit. To access it go to IRS.gov/Help/ITA - click on "Do I Qualify for the Retirement Savings Contributions Credit?" under the "Credits" tab.

The statistics on helmet use—or rather, the lack thereof—paint a worrisome picture. A 2020 study in the helmet, the most crucial accessory, is a misstep that Injury Epidemiology revealed a distressing reality: while younger children are more prone to injuries while riding a bike, only half of them wear a helmet. These injuries aren't just scrapes and bruises; we're talking about traumatic brain injuries (TBIs)—the kind that incapacitate football players after a hard hit or lead to longterm neurological issues in boxers.

The gravity of these statistics amplifies in high-traffic areas where the margin for error shrinks. Rushing motorists might fail to notice a child on a bike or misjudge the speed of a teen on a skateboard. However, there's hope amidst this concerning scenario—helmets significantly reduce injury severity. Studies suggest that about 85% of head injuries from serious bicycle crashes involving motor vehicles could be prevented if the rider wore a helmet.

The efficacy of helmets in preventing severe head injuries cannot be overstated. They act as a shield, absorbing impact and protecting the brain from the full force of a collision. Despite this, oversight or disregard for helmets persists, often due to negligence, forgetfulness, or lack of awareness about their paramount importance. So, what's the solution? It's simple: the helmet should be an integral part of the gift package when giving bikes, skates, scooters, or skateboards. It's not just an accessory; it's vital safety equipment ensuring the recipient's well-being. If it's going to a child, make it a rule for them to wear the helmet. From day one.

Education plays such a pivotal role here. Emphasizing helmet significance through awareness campaigns, school programs, and community initiatives can instill a culture of safety from a young age. Parents, guardians, and gift-givers must impart the message that wearing a helmet isn't negotiable—it's a non-negotiable safety measure. Ensure your child wears their helmet every time they ride their bike, skateboard, scooter, etc. Cultivating this habit early makes buckling up second nature, rather than a sign of not being cool in their teen years. And if you ride with them, make sure you have a helmet and wear it too!

Regarding the law, it varies by state. In California, minors under 18 must wear a helmet when biking. While there's a $25 fine for non-compliance, it's insufficient to incentivize greater usage. This is unfortunate, considering that helmet-wearing children were found to be 76% less likely to be diagnosed with a head injury

It's time to shift the narrative around helmets. They aren't cumbersome add-ons; they're life-saving tools. They don't hinder the fun of riding; they enhance it by providing peace of mind and safeguarding against potentially devastating outcomes.

Looking to buy the helmet is the first step. Ensuring it fits properly and is worn regularly is next. Measure and get the right fit. A helmet that is too big may not fit tight enough to protect the rider in a fall, can slide around easily and obstruct visibility. One that is too small may be uncomfortable and tight affecting the rider's concentration. It may not offer the right coverage or cushioning on the head. The right size fit is the best way to ensure that the impact absorbing materials in the helmet function as intended and reduce the force of an impact. And if the helmet is involved in a crash get a new one. Even if you can't visibly see any damage, helmets are designed to absorb the impact of a single accident only. Using the same one afterwards is risky.

The San Gabriel Police Department recently received a $55,000 grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety to promote bicycle and pedestrian safety. This includes helmet fitting inspections and providing helmets to those in need. Inquire about places offering free or low-cost helmets and school education presentations.

The San Gabriel Valley Bike Education Center, a non-profit organization, offers bicycle safety classes as well. Starting this habit early can save injuries and lives. Once someone you love gets injured you can't turn back time. It's not worth the risk. Think safety first.

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

FROM ROAST TURKEY TO REINDEER

than being in the middle of two holidays. I have just finished Thanksgiving, and now Christmas is before me. Each year, it gets more difficult to adjust to the next holiday. It's hard for me to keep up.

For months, the focus was on that roast turkey for Thanksgiving. And boy, was it a delicious roast turkey. I have a hard time comparing this year's roast turkey to last year's because I always love the one I'm eating at the time. And I cannot go back in time to last year's turkey. That turkey has been digested a long time ago. The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage and I were sitting in the living room, resting from all the activity during the season and watching TV. I think she outdid herself this year because everything seemed to be perfect. Everybody in the family complimented her on the Thanksgiving dinner.

It will be challenging for her to outdo the Thanksgiving dinner at the Christmas dinner. But I know she's up for the challenge.

I began complimenting her on this year's roast turkey and telling her how much I loved it. I wasn't lying because I did like the turkey this year. Not only the turkey we had on Thanksgiving Day but also all the leftover turkey we had the following week. Nothing is better than leftovers, as far as I'm concerned.

We had enough leftovers at Thanksgiving dinner to serve dinner every day for the next week. I ain't complaining.

Sitting in the living room, I looked at The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage and asked, "Are you planning to make roast reindeer for Christmas?'

She just scowled at me and did not answer. I wasn't going to give up.
"After all," I said, "your roast turkey this year was absolutely supreme. The best you've ever done. I bet you could do a great job roasting a reindeer this year."

Looking at me, she said, "Do you want to get off Santa's naughty list this year?

Where did that come from?

I did not know what to say because I did not know if she was joking or what. Being on Santa's naughty list in our house is a very dangerous position. For some reason, The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage has a connection with Santa Claus. I'm not sure what that connection is, and I'm not in a position where I can

I was quiet for a few minutes, then cleared my throat, and looking at The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage, I asked, "How did I get on Santa's naughty list this year?"

Staring at me, she said, "Do you really want me to tell you?"

Nothing is more confusing | There is nothing like being between a turkey and a reindeer during the holiday season to wreck your nerves.

The question that burned in my heart was, what did I do to get on Santa's naughty list? I knew I would be in more trouble if I asked her to tell me. So, I thought about another angle.

"Can you tell me," I asked as soberly as possible, "how I can get off Santa's naughty list?

She stared at the TV for a moment and did not seem to hear what I was saying. I briefly thought, should I repeat myself? In the past, repeating myself has gotten me into more trouble than it was worth.

Finally, she turned, looked at me for a few moments and then said, "Do you really want to know how to get off of Santa's naughty list?" Oh boy. What's coming next? If I don't know how I got on Santa's naughty list, how in the world am I going to figure out how to get off? Looking at her, I smiled gently and said, "If getting off Santa's naughty list makes you happy, then that's exactly what I want to do." I finished with a big smile on my face. "Well," she said rather thoughtfully, "maybe if this week you take me thrift store shopping I might be able to think about it and figure it out

That caught me by surprise. That would be the last thing in the world that I would ever want to do. Spending a whole day going from one thrift store to another is not my idea of having fun. "And," she said, "if in our thrift store shopping we find a reindeer, you can buy it, and I will roast it for you." I never know if she is joking or setting me up. I had to think about that for some time, not knowing the proper answer. Finally, I sighed deeply and said, "OK, my dear, I'll be glad to take you thrift store shopping anytime this week. And, I'll be glad to purchase that reindeer when you find it." I tried to smile back at her, but it was very difficult to find an appropriate smile in my inventory. "Ha, ha, ha," she laughed very heartily.

'What's so funny?" I asked. "Oh my dear," she laughed, "you just got off of Santa's naughty list. Congratulations." Later that day, as I was considering this, I was reminded of what Amos said, "Can two walk together, except they are agreed?" (Amos 3:3). Sometimes, life is better when two people agree. It may be difficult to come to an agreement, but the rewards are worth the effort.

STUART TOLCHIN PUT THE LIGHTS ON A LOOK AT THE FUTURE

Okay, now that the lights are on what do we see? A few people I know, smart people, have concluded that within a few generations humankind will disappear. They point out, happily it seems, that more than 90 percent of all species that ever existed are now extinct - they're just not around anymore. That's the way it goes - no big deal.

OPINION

Every human ever born is fated to die and that will probably be the fate of the entire species. I HATE that kind of thinking. Being alive is a great miracle and it is our miracle, yours and mine. We come into this world with these wonderful, amazing brains. All of us have learned languages and we are able to communicate, for better or worse, with other humans who speak the same language.

Language is really amazing in that little kids seem to learn a new language quickly and effortlessly while adult humans often are unable ever to learn a new language. This fact is frequently overlooked and undervalued.

Those young brains are open to new worlds. They can adapt while adults are so frequently stuck in their old way and are unable or simply refuse to make the necessary adaptations.

I read somewhere that one of the important abilities of humankind is the ability to adapt. Humankind can survive in all kinds of climates and altitudes. In fact humans are almost uniquely able to survive. I don't know if you ever thought about it, I really hadn't but female humans can produce their own food sufficient to nourish their young and if necessary keep themselves

Certainly there are a few other female mammals that possess this same ability but it is something very remarkable.

Think about it menfolk we can't do it AND you know what else we can't do? Right, we cannot give birth. Every female is an instrument of survival necessary for the species to continue to survive and evolve.

Men are basically unnecessary for the process. One man can father an entire community. Think about the Mormans or frighteningly, think of Jeffrey Epstein, an associate of Trump, Clinton, the Kennedys, various government heads and dictators. Epstein, described by Trump in New York Magazines in 2002, "I've known Jeff for fifteen years. Terrific guy. He's a lot of fun to be with. It is even said that he likes beautiful women as much as I and many of them are of the younger side."

My point is that Epstein, buddies with powerful people all over the world, had his own private island filled with 13 year old girls who were available as sex partners. It is said that Epstein intended to personally impregnate all of these girls himself, or perhaps share that responsibility with other prominent men of his own choosing. Help- you of course know that Epstein died by hanging, allegedly a suicide while in prison.

My point is that the likes of Jeffrey Epstein may be a guide to the world's future. Powerful men who now compete mainly for wealth and prestige may within a few lifetimes be the only men allowed by law to father children. The history of eugenics is filled with mandatory sterilizations and prohibitions. Would you prefer these limitations of the right and ability to father children over the total extinction of the species?

Right now both alternatives seem horrible but not altogether unlikely. Maybe the unfathomable future process of AI will be manipulated by the rich and powerful to eliminate everyone but themselves (and their progeny.) Is it best to just close our eyes to the future much as many of us close our eyes to the present. Time will tell. I hope the smart young people can save us.

Here's an unpleasant holiday statis-Average tic: Americans are giving signifi-cantly less to their favorite charities this year than they did just four or five years ago.

Average Americans have long been among the most generous people on

But this year, thanks to an economy disrupted by covid, soaring interest rates and three years of high inflation, many are unable to give.

Americans are hurting in their pocketbooks.

This past year credit-card debt jumped faster than ever before in history, reports Business Insider, as more Americans are borrowing at high interest rates just to meet their daily living needs.

An increasing number of people are taking hardship withdrawals out of their 401K savings accounts, reports CNBC — tapping their future retirement funds to pay bills they are unable to afford today.

As a result of these financial troubles, a regrettable shift in charitable giving has

When I last wrote about giving in America in 2017, the people who gave the most, as a percentage of their wealth, weren't the richest Americans.

They weren't even middle-class Americans.

They were the people on the lower end of the economic scale — people who gave almost 30 percent more of their income to charity than any other income bracket.

That changed in 2020 when covid lockdowns wreaked havoc on the economy.

Before that, according to Gallup, more than 80% of U.S. adults said they donated money to a religious or other type of charity

But in 2023, regrettably, individual giving has dipped to about 70% — and the biggest drop-off has happened among America's lowest earners.

About 73% of people who earned under $40,000 in 2017 gave what they could to

During the peak of covid in 2020, that percentage fell to 53% and still remains low — which is heartbreaking, because no group of people understands the joy of giving to others better than America's most humble earners.

While our lowest earners are struggling the hardest in a difficult economy - and therefore are giving less - another group is making up the shortfall: America's extremely well off.

Americans with a household net worth of more than $1 million, or those who make more than $200,000 per year, are giving 19% more now than before the COVID-19 pandemic, according to the

Barrons reports that the landscape of philanthropy has shifted from average individuals giving, say, to The Salvation Army, to wealthy nonprofits and corporations that may be more interested in using their sizable funds to promote the latest popular cause or "systemic societal change."

Private charity in all its forms is welcome.

But if we want more of the kind that helps the less-fortunate individuals and families who need it most, we need to reverse the incredible damage government policy has done to our economy.

A good start would be to end the spendthrift fiscal and monetary policies that cause inflation and interest rates to spike.

Let's help our lowest earners get their heads back above water so they can experience the joy of giving again every Christmas.

After all, they know how to spread the joy of giving better than anyone — by helping a needy neighbor pay their utility bills or making sure the neediest children have presents to open on Christmas morning.

Merry Christmas!

First, sample the whiskey to check for quality. Now, take a large bowl. Check the whiskey again, To be sure the whiskey is the highest quality, pour one level cup and drink. Repeat. Turn on the electric mixer, beat one cup of butter in a large fluffy bowl. Add one teaspoon of sugar and beat again.
