DOLORES HUERTA, INFLUENTIAL LABOR LEADER, FEMINIST AND CIVIL RIGHTS ICON, DIES AT 96

Dolores Huerta, the labor activist and civil rights leader who co-founded with Cesar Chavez the group that later became the United Farm Workers, has died. She was 96.

Huertafamily spokesperson Erik Olvera told The Associated Press that Huerta died of cancer at her home in Bakersfield and was surrounded by family.

"Dolores represented the best of us," California Governor Gavin Newsom said in a statement. "California — and the United States — would not be what we are today without her resolute spirit, her passion for justice and fairness, and her commitment to those overlooked and forgotten."

"Dolores reminded us that no matter the odds, no matter the obstacle, we can build a greater life for ourselves, our community, our city, and our country," Bass said in a statement. "She never, never stopped working. She was fighting for civil rights every day, into her nineties. Those who knew her, worried about her, but the intensity of her fight continued on."

THANK YOU FROM SIERRA MADRE SEARCH & RESCUE

The Team wishes to thank all those who attended the Open House celebrating SMSR's 75th anniversary. Community members, young and old, retired SMSR, and visitors from fellow SARs and other agencies. Attendees toured our station and trucks, worked a highline system, learned knots, practiced medical skills, met our longest-standing member, Russ Anderson (94), enjoyed a raffle, and more.

Special thanks to members of LASD's Temple Station, led by Capt. Sherif Morsi, and Rep. Judy Chu. We are grateful this support.

BE WARNED: SCAMMERS POSING AS PUBLIC HEALTH OFFICIALS

PASADENA (CNS) - Officials in Pasadena today warned community members to be wary of scammers posing as public health officials to obtain sensitive personal and financial information.

Although there have been no reports of such fraudulent activity in the city, Pasadena public health officials issued the warning Wednesday because numerous such reports have been made to the California Department of Public Health.

``We want to make Pasadena residents aware of scams involving individuals impersonating public health officials to obtain personal information," Public Health Director Manuel Carmona said. ``We encourage everyone to remain vigilant about phone and online scams."

The scams are typical across the United States and while the CDPH and PPHD ``may reach out to individuals for legitimate public health purposes, such as disease contact tracing, these calls will never involve requests for Social Security numbers, credit card information or data not related to your health," officials said.

Some scammers have claimed a prescription was filled in the victim's name while seeking so-called verifying information.

``In some cases, scammers have escalated the ruse by transferring victims to a video call with an individual impersonating a police officer or other authority figure in a fake uniform and fabricated recording room," according to the PPHD release, which said the schemes sometimes involve coordinated callers who reinforce the ruse.

Urgency and threats are tools commonly used in such scams, which include warnings of legal consequences or canceled prescriptions.

Anyone who receives such a suspicious call should hang up immediately and contact the CDPH at 916-558-1784, and anyone in Pasadena who believes they have been the victim of fraud should contact the Pasadena Police Department at 626-744-4241.

Incidents should also be reported to the Federal Trade Commission at ReportFraud.ftc.gov.

SIERRA MADRE STUDENT WHO BOUGHT A 1976 PORSCHE 914 AT AGE 11 WITH GRAPEFRUIT MONEY DEBUTS HER SELF-BUILT ELECTRIC CONVERSION IN LAS VEGAS

Sierra Madrean Frances Farnam (above) a BFGoodrich Young Guns competitor will display the car and give a talk on how young people can take on hard builds

LAS VEGAS, NV, Nov. 2, 2026. Frances Farnam, founder of Tinkergineering, will show her electric 1976 Porsche 914 at the 2026 SEMA Show, November 3 to 6, in the FutureTech Studio, Central Hall, Booth #24401. The car is competing in the BFGoodrich Young Guns category of SEMA Battle of the Builders, which recognizes builders 29 and under.

Farnam bought the 914 at age 11 for $2,000 she earned selling grapefruit at a local farmers market. She started with no garage, just a tent on a dirt floor, cheap tools, and no welding experience. Over six years, she restored the car and converted it to electric. Before the high-voltage work, she completed Legacy EV's 5-day EV Fundamentals Bootcamp, including high-voltage safety training. Today the car runs and drives with its original 5-speed manual transmission, which she rebuilt.

When she got stuck, she asked for help. Mentors including Mark Brems of 914Electric, Michael Bream of EVWest, Matthew Whitesell of 914 Rubber, and Eric Shea of PMB Performance guided the build. Sponsors such as Toyo Tires and Bilstein supported it in exchange for build content.

Farnam will present "We Can Do Hard Things: Building an Electric Porsche 914 as My First Car" on Thursday, November 5, from 4:00 to 4:30 PM on the FutureTech LIVE Stage. She is available for interviews at the car November 4 to 6.

A freshman at Cornell University studying environmental engineering, Farnam has been featured by the Mountain Views News (https://mtnviewsnews.com/v20/htm/n33/index.htm), Forbes, NBC Los Angeles, CNBC Make It, and SEMA News.

She plans to grow Tinkergineering into a foundation that connects young builders with mentors, starting with a scholarship for a young maker.

REMEMBRANCE
ERIC JOHN OLSON

Eric John Olson, a well-respected attorney and longtime resident of Sierra Madre, died peacefully on September 30, 2026, surrounded by his family after a brief illness. He lived fully until the very end.

Eric was born in Los Angeles on December 8, 1940, to Aletha and Eugene Olson. He was the eldest of five brothers and every bit the big brother.

After graduating from Pomona College, Eric attended Harvard Law School and was admitted to the State Bar of California in January 1966. After teaching at Stanford Law School and practicing in San Francisco, he returned to Southern California. He was for many years a partner at the Los Angeles firm known in its later years as Baker, Olson, LeCroy and Danielian (BOLD Law), and later practiced on his own in Pasadena as EJOlsonlaw. Eric was a lawyer's lawyer who truly loved his chosen profession. His commitment to the law and to his clients shone through in everything he did. Even as his mobility posed significant challenges in the last few years, Eric was undeterred. He continued making his own way to the office to practice law and advocate for his clients until his final days.

Eric had a deep, resonant bass voice and was a lifelong singer. He began honing his talents as a member of the Pomona College Glee Club, then sang at Sunday services and special musical programs at La Cañada Presbyterian Church for nearly fifty years. He had the privilege of singing with the Los Angeles Master Chorale, where he also served on the board for many years. Each year, he looked forward to and faithfully took part in the Master Chorale's Messiah Sing-along.

Eric is survived by his beloved wife, Carol ("Cookie") Broede; his daughters, Mary (David Baldovin) of Seal Beach and Kathryn (John Eisenberg) of Alexandria, VA; and his stepson, Jason Broede of Sierra Madre. Eric adored his five grandchildren: Ansel Baldovin, Eleanor Baldovin, Paul Eisenberg, Sarah Eisenberg, and Rhoda "Evie" Eisenberg. He is also survived by three brothers, Layton of Dawson, AL, Neil of Laguna Beach, and Wayne (Sandra Miller) of Dobbs Ferry, NY, as well as his sister-in-law, Lily Karmatz of Manly West, Queensland, Australia. He was predeceased by his son, Evan of San Pedro, who died in 2025; his brother, Carl of Woodland Hills; his sisters-in-law, Annette Robinson (Layton) and Carol Ummel Lindquist Olson (Neil); and his brother-in-law, Franklin "Chip" Karmatz.

Eric's community involvement extended well beyond his law practice. Over the years, he belonged to many civic and professional organizations, including the Rotary Club of Pasadena, the University Club of Pasadena, the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce, the Los Angeles County Bar Association, the Fiduciary Round Table of the San Gabriel Valley, TEN (The Esquire Network) and the Family Business Roundtable. He served as a director of the Downtown Glendale Business Association and was a founding director of the Los Angeles County Bar Association Credit Union. He also supported local educational opportunities through the University Club's Education Foundation and the Pasadena Educational Foundation. His love of music found another outlet at Rotary, where he frequently led his fellow members in song.

Eric was a true lifelong learner with a remarkable memory, a ready store of information and backstories on historical events, and a catalog of music and lyrics to go with it. An avid reader of all genres, he especially loved spy novels and mysteries. He and Cookie thoroughly enjoyed traveling near and far and shared an active calendar of plays, concerts, and exhibits. He maintained front-row seats at the annual Fourth of July parade in Sierra Madre, always taking delight in the variety of performers, both serious and silly. Eric is remembered for the twinkle in his eyes, his decency and strength of character, his bright intellect, his sage presence, and his quietly supportive and encouraging nature.

There will be a celebration of Eric's life at the La Cañada Presbyterian Church, La Cañada, CA at 2:00 pm on November 21, 2026.

In lieu of flowers, Eric would have appreciated donations to a charity of your choice. He always believed in leaving a place better than he found it.

EARLY VOTING BEGINS SATURDAY AT 123 VOTE CENTERS ACROSS LOS ANGELES COUNTY

The initial vote centers will operate daily from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. through Nov. 2, according to the Los Angeles County Registrar-Recorder/County Clerk.

Early in-person voting for the Nov. 3 general election starts Saturday, Oct. 24, at 123 vote centers across Los Angeles County, with hundreds of additional locations scheduled to open the following weekend, election officials announced.

The initial vote centers will operate daily from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. through Nov. 2, according to the Los Angeles County Registrar-Recorder/County Clerk.

Another 523 vote centers will open Oct. 31, bringing the countywide total to 646. All locations will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Election Day.

Voters can cast their ballots at any vote center in the county, regardless of where they live.

Los Angeles City Clerk Patrice Y. Lattimore encouraged residents to take advantage of early voting options, including voting by mail and using official ballot drop boxes. "Voting early ensures your ballot is cast on Election Day," Lattimore said. "Whether returning your ballot by mail, drop box, or in person, we encourage all voters to make a plan to vote ahead and participate."

Vote-by-mail ballots were mailed beginning Oct. 1 to active registered voters, who can return them through the mail, deposit them in one of 429 official ballot drop boxes throughout the county or deliver them to an operating vote center.

Ballots returned by mail must be postmarked by Nov. 3. Election officials recommend mailing completed ballots at least seven days before Election Day to allow sufficient time for delivery. No postage is required.

Official ballot drop boxes will remain available until 8 p.m. Nov. 3.

Residents who missed the Oct. 19 voter registration deadline can still register and cast ballots through California's conditional voter registration process at participating vote centers.

The county also offers an interactive sample ballot that allows voters to make their selections in advance and generate a Poll Pass to use at a vote center.

Voters can also obtain a quick check-in code online or use the code printed on their mailed sample ballot or vote center postcard to speed up the check-in process.

The county provides translated election materials in 18 languages in addition to English, with telephone assistance available in 23 languages.

The Nov. 3 ballot includes contests for governor and other statewide offices, congressional and state legislative seats, local offices and state and local ballot measures.

The Los Angeles County Registrar-Recorder/County Clerk will administer the election, while the Los Angeles City Clerk's Office handled candidate filing for municipal races.

The county will begin its official canvass Nov. 4, with election results scheduled to be certified Nov. 27.

Voters can find vote center locations and ballot drop boxes at locator.lavote.gov. Additional information is available at lavote.gov or by calling 800-815-2666.

- Benefit a non-commercial or non-profit entity
- Be open to the public
- Be of general interest to local citizens

Just write a Public Service Announcement that describes your event and e-mail it to radio@cityofsierramadre.com.

WALKING SIERRA MADRE: The Social Side by Deanne Davis

"THE DEAD RISE AGAIN, BATS FLY, TERROR STRIKES AND SCREAMS ECHO,FOR TONIGHT IT'S HALLOWEEN!"

Today is Halloween! Window painting downtown was fabulous and the art was outstanding, showing the creativity of Sierra Madre young people. The scarecrows have been awesome this year and I've tried to give you some of the best. But the picture this week, while not exactly a scarecrow, is one scary skeleton. She is the most fashionable skeleton I've ever come across.

Notice her designer skirt, her pearls, her hat, beautifully done hair, and diamond studded shoes. She is the creation of my friend Celia and I think I've saved the best for last.

"Shadows of a thousand years rise again unseen, voices whisper in the trees.
"Tonight is Halloween!"

"When witches go riding and black cats are seen, the moon laughs and whispers,
'tis near Halloween."

All Hallows Eve...Be Afraid...Be Very Afraid!

All Hallows Eve's upon us!,
A deadly.... dreadly night...
When ghouls and ghosts and creepies,
And other awful blights,
Are free to roam and wander,
Anywhere they might.
Creating scary terror everywhere
they can, And scream inducing, faint-producing, hair-raising, bone-melting,
What's that right there behind me...
Quivery, shivery...Fright!!

They creep out of their crypts and graves,
These creatures of the night.
They haunt the roads and byways,
Run rampant through the park.
They hide between the bushes,
And everywhere it's dark.

All Hallows Eve's upon us!
A deadly.... dreadly night....
When ghouls and ghosts and creepies,
And other awful blights,
Are free to roam and wander,
Anywhere they might.

Up and down the streets of town,
They race in search of plunder,
These ghouls and ghosts and monsters,
About three feet tall or under!
They shriek for treats and threaten tricks,
But are satisfied with candy.
These creatures rule the darkness,
As long as Mom and Dad are handy.

All Hallows Eve's upon us!
A deadly...dreadly night....
With ghouls and ghosts and monsters,
And other awful sights,
Dancing through the shadows,
Into circles of street lights.
Beware...take care,
Who knows what's waiting,
Just around the bend.

Could be Jack the Ripper, come to call again, Or Dracula or Frankenstein, the undead walk tonight.
Maybe just stay safe inside...and turn off that porch light.

I've had Pumpkin Spice Lattes galore, a slice of Pumpkin Cheesecake, Pumpkin coffee pods every day, Pumpkin creamer, and I even made Pumpkin bread. My Halloween candy is in a basket by the door. Tonight will be delightfully scary.

Happy Halloween, my friends. And in case you didn't know, Tootsie Rolls go great with Chardonnay.

Yes, Halloween is scary but you know what's even worse?? Daylight Savings ends tonight, about the same time the candles in the jack-o-lanterns blow out! Be afraid, be very afraid! The time will change tonight. Yes, spring ahead, fall back. Set your clock back an hour and be prepared to be cranky and out of sorts for the next week.

My book page: Amazon.com: Deanne Davis There are treasures there! Trust me! Including "Just Desserts" A Fall Fantasy of Pumpkins Gone Wrong!
And all the Emma Gainsworth Adventures.

Pumpkins are much more than a squash!

SCARECROW Festival

Sierra Madre!

Thank you for being part of the Annual Sierra Madre Creative Arts Group Scarecrow Festival!

Your participation helped bring our community to life in such a special way. The scarecrows add a touch of whimsy, creativity, and fun to our town, making this season a little more magical for children and adults alike. It is wonderful to see families and local businesses come together to create something that everyone can enjoy, memories can be made, and our community spirit can shine.

Thank you for helping make this year's festival such a special celebration of creativity and community. We are grateful for your support and for being part of what makes Sierra Madre such a wonderful place to call home.

Veterans Day Closures and Reminders

Special Veterans Day Ceremony November 11 at Pasadena City Hall

Pasadena City Hall and many City services and administrative business offices will be closed Wednesday, Nov. 11, in observance of Veterans Day, a day to honor those who have served in the U.S. Armed Forces.

Specific Veterans Day closures and exceptions are noted below.

Pasadena residents and businesses with any power emergencies should call Pasadena's Water and Power (PWP) Department at (626) 744-4673. For water-related emergencies, call (626) 744-4138. PWP's Customer Service Call Center will be closed for the holiday, but customers can access their accounts and make payments by phone at (626) 744-4005 or online at PWPweb.com.

The City Service Center (CSC) will be closed on Wednesday, Nov. 11, and will return to normal business hours, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., on Thursday, Nov. 12. CSC is available online and by calling (626) 744-7311. Residents with City trash and recycling service will be on their regular pickup schedule for Nov. 11, including any previously scheduled pickups for bulky items.

Both Pasadena Transit and Pasadena Dial-A-Ride services will operate on their normal schedules. All parking meters will be free, and parking time limits will not be enforced; however, violations for overnight parking, red curb parking, "No Parking" zones, and blocking fire hydrants will be enforced. All regular enforcement resumes on Thursday, Nov. 12.

The Permit Center will be closed on Wednesday, Nov. 11; however, many services will be available via Permit Center Online, where you can obtain subtrade permits and submit plans for new construction, tenant improvements, accessory dwelling units, and additions. In-person operations will resume after the holiday on Thursday, Nov. 12.

All Pasadena Public Library sites will be closed on Wednesday, Nov. 11. Regular operating hours resume Thursday, Nov. 12.

Pasadena Police and Fire Departments will be staffed for all patrol, jail, fire, paramedic, and other emergency services, but not business or administrative offices. If you see something, say something; report suspicious activity to Pasadena Police at (626) 744-4241. For life-threatening emergencies, dial 9-1-1.

All parks will be open for picnics, fun, and play; however, no site reservations are accepted for the holiday.

The public is invited to attend a special Veterans Day ceremony at Pasadena City Hall, 100 N. Garfield Ave., on Wednesday, Nov. 11, beginning at 10 a.m.

Tournament Announces 2027 Rose Queen

Pasadena Tournament of Roses officials announced "The crown has found its Queen!" as Eagle Rock High School student Irene Maddox became the 108th Rose Queen Tuesday. The announcement was made by President Terry Madigan on the front steps of Tournament House to fanfare by the Pasadena City College Herald Trumpets.

Madigan placed the iconic Mikimoto crown, featuring more than 600 cultured pearls and six carats of diamonds, on Maddox. The special moment marked the beginning of her journey as Rose Queen and an exciting new chapter for the entire Rose Court.

The celebration brought together past Rose Queens, including the oldest living Rose Queen, Mary Rutte Walllace, who was crowned in 1945.

According to officials, the Rose Queen and Rose Court have been at the heart of the Rose Parade since 1905. Over the decades, the Queen and Court have become beloved ambassadors of the Tournament of Roses, representing the character, leadership, service and diversity of the Pasadena community.

Maddox is a senior at Eagle Rock High School who enjoys storytelling, leadership and community involvement. She founded her school's Korean Culture Club and captains both the Varsity Swim Team and Varsity Girls Water Polo Team. Fluent in English and Korean, Irene hopes to pursue studies in law, political science or broadcast journalism.

For Irene's complete biography and additional information about the 2027 Rose Court, visit the 2027 Rose Court biographies at: tournamentofroses.com.

City Warns of Scams Acting as Public Health Officials

The Pasadena Public Health Department (PPHD) is warning the community to be vigilant following multiple reports of scammers impersonating public health officials to obtain sensitive personal and financial information. There have been no reports of this type of scam in Pasadena, but reports have been made to the California Department of Public Health (CDPH).

These scams mirror similar attempts at fraud across the country. While CDPH and PPHD may reach out to individuals for legitimate public health purposes, such as disease contact tracing, these calls will never involve requests for Social Security numbers, credit card information, or data not related to your health. ?

"We want to make Pasadena residents aware of scams involving individuals impersonating public health officials to obtain personal information," said Director of Public Health, Manuel Carmona. "We encourage everyone to remain vigilant about phone and online scams."

Recent reports include scammers claiming a prescription was filled in the victim's name and urging immediate verification to "clear their record" by providing or "verifying" personal information. In some cases, scammers have escalated the ruse by transferring victims to a video call with an individual impersonating a police officer or other authority figure in a fake uniform and fabricated recording room.

These schemes often involve coordinated callers who reference CDPH names, badge numbers, or phone lines to appear legitimate. They may request personal details such as dates of birth or driver license numbers, direct victims to download encrypted apps for video calls, or attempt to access personal devices.

The callers rely on urgency and threats, such as legal consequences or canceled prescriptions, and sometimes direct people to meet at a Sacramento address. To bolster the ruse, they spoof CDPH phone numbers and use fabricated credentials. In some cases, the behavior escalates into repeated calls or threatening text messages. ??

If you receive a suspicious call: Hang up immediately.

Contact CDPH directly at (916) 558-1784.

If you believe you are the victim of fraud, contact the Pasadena Police Department at (626) 744-4241.

Report the incident to the Federal Trade Commission at ReportFraud.ftc.gov.

Stay connected to the City of Pasadena! Visit us online at CityOfPasadena.net or call the City Service Center Monday-Friday during business hours at (626) 744-7311.

Measure PFD and Voting Information

Pasadena Fire Chief, Chad Augustin, provided information ahead of the Pasadena General Municipal Election on Tuesday. One of the items on the ballot this year is Measure PFD, formally titled the Pasadena 911 Firefighter/Paramedic Emergency Medical/Wildfire Preparedness/Response Measure.

If approved by two-thirds of voters, Measure PFD would establish an annual 19-cent per square foot parcel tax on improved property, generating approximately $22.1 million each year. The measure includes no cost-of-living increases, expires after 14 years, and provides an exemption for qualified low-income seniors. All funds would be restricted to local fire services and monitored through independent audits and public reporting.

Residents may want to review the full voter guide to understand all ballot items and prepare for Election Day. Below is the official information on voting options for Pasadena voters.

Vote by Mail – All registered voters will automatically receive a Vote by Mail ballot in early October. Ballots may be returned via USPS (postmarked by November 3) or dropped off at any Official Drop Box or Vote Center by 8 p.m. on Election Day. Remember to place your ballot in the return envelope, seal it, and sign and date the back.

In-Person Voting – Select Vote Centers open October 24, with all centers open by October 31. Voting hours are 10 a.m.–7 p.m. through November 2, and 7 a.m.–8 p.m. on Election Day. Voters in line by 8 p.m. will still be able to cast a ballot.

For additional information on the General Municipal Election, please visit CityofPasadena.net/City-Clerk or call (626) 744-4124.

Caltech Associate Vice President and Deputy Director of JPL Named

Artemis II Commander Reid Wiseman has been named Caltech associate vice president and deputy director of NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory. The emeritus astronaut and retired U.S. Navy captain begins his new role at NASA's center of excellence for robotics and deep space exploration and at Caltech, which manages JPL for NASA, on Nov. 30.

"Reid has spent his career at the edge of what is possible, and he has the technical judgment, operational experience, and leadership to help push that edge farther," said NASA Administrator Jared Isaacman. "As commander of Artemis II, he helped carry America back around the Moon, and now, as an emeritus astronaut, he will continue giving back to NASA from a new vantage point at JPL."

During the Artemis II test flight, Wiseman, Victor Glover, Christina Koch, and Jeremy Hansen journeyed 695,081 miles on a lunar flyby that took them farther than any humans have ever traveled before.

"It feels fitting for Reid, who with the Artemis II crew traveled farther from Earth than any human in history, to join Caltech and JPL — institutions that for nearly 90 years have sent spacecraft into the far reaches of our solar system and beyond," said Dave Gallagher, JPL director and Caltech vice president. "Reid shares our drive for discovery, knows what it takes to lead teams through high-stakes missions, and has a remarkable ability to inspire people everywhere. He adds incredible bench strength to our leadership team as we build on the lab's legacy and shape its future together."

After joining NASA's astronaut corps in 2009, Wiseman went on to serve as flight engineer aboard the International Space Station for the 165-day Expedition 41 mission in 2014 and was a commander of NASA's 21st Extreme Environment Mission Operations expedition, during which he lived for eight days in a habitat on the ocean floor in 2016. As the agency's chief astronaut from December 2020 to November 2022, Wiseman led NASA's astronaut corps, overseeing crew flight readiness and crew safety for all NASA human spaceflight missions. During his years of service at the agency, he has conducted hundreds of scientific experiments.

"I've explored the furthest reaches of what a human can explore at NASA — and there were truly no words in the English vocabulary to describe seeing the Sun disappear behind the Moon from deep space. But that experience was really the jumping off point to go do the impossible things that Caltech and JPL dream, dare together, and do for NASA and the nation," Wiseman said. "What an awesome time in my career to join this team and to try and push humanity and push our understanding of the solar system and the universe."

Wiseman joins JPL, NASA's only federally funded research and development center, as the lab approaches its 90th anniversary since being founded by Caltech. In his role as Caltech's associate vice president and JPL deputy director, Wiseman will be responsible for the strategic leadership, stewardship and continuous improvement of laboratory operations, including close partnership with Caltech on institutional planning, management and compliance. Serving as Center Management Authority for JPL mission execution, Wiseman will ensure operational excellence across mission support functions in accordance with NASA requirements and applicable federal and state regulations. In addition, he will be JPL's primary interface for national security programs.

Election Day Transit Service

Director of Transportation Joaquin Siques, announced that both Pasadena Transit and Pasadena Dial-A-Ride will be offering free rides on Election Day, November 3. The majority of polling places and drop boxes for mail-in ballots in Pasadena fall within ¼ mile of a Pasadena Transit bus stop. Several transit agencies in Los Angeles County will be joining Pasadena in offering free fares on Election Day, including Metro, LADOT, BurbankBus, Montebello Bus Lines, Long Beach Transit, and Santa Monica Big Blue Bus, to help people get to the polls!

According to the CA Secretary of State election statistics, L.A. County saw 43 percent voter turnout in the Nov. 2022 midterm elections. Transportation challenges can discourage participation, so Pasadena Transit is proud to offer free, convenient, and accessible service to voting sites on November 3.

AROUND SAN GABRIEL VALLEY

YOU KNOW WHAT'S SCARIER THAN HALLOWEEN? PROP 39.

Prop 39 is an Expensive Answer to a Problem California Doesn't Have

By Assemblymember John Harabedian

As chair of the Legislature's Joint Legislative Audit Committee, I spend a lot of time asking a simple question about government programs: does this work, and is it worth what it costs? Proposition 39 fails both tests.

Prop 39 would amend California's constitution to require government-issued ID to vote in person and the last four digits of an ID number on every mail ballot envelope, checked against your registration before your ballot is counted. The nonpartisan Legislative Analyst's Office estimates Prop 39 could cost state and local governments tens of millions to low hundreds of millions of dollars every year. That's money counties would spend year after year, with no end date. Every dollar spent administering a new layer of paperwork is a dollar not spent on schools, public safety, or the services our communities desperately need.

Prop 39's backers tried to tell voters otherwise, and struck out. In their official ballot argument, they claimed that the measure would "save millions of dollars each election." In August, a Sacramento judge ordered that claim be removed from the state voter guide, as it was "objectively untrue," and directly contradicted the LAO's findings.

LAPD OFFICER SUSPECTED OF ATTEMPTING TO MEET MINOR IN MONROVIA ARRESTED

MONROVIA (CNS) - A Los Angeles Police Department officer suspected of attempting to meet a minor for lewd purposes in Monrovia has been arrested, the department confirmed last week.

``We are aware of an arrest involving a department employee. The department is fully cooperating with the investigation," an LAPD statement said.

Monrovia Police Department officers responded around 10 p.m. Thursday in the 300 block of West Olive Avenue. Multiple reports indicate that 31-year-old Leonardo A. Ruiz was arrested after being confronted by several men who identified themselves as members of a social media-based "catch a predator" group. The men reportedly believed the off-duty officer was in the area to meet with a 16-year-old.

Los Angeles County jail records confirmed that Ruiz was booked and later released pending further investigation.

Fox11 reported, citing retired LAPD Detective Moses Castillo, that Ruiz was released without charges, though his release does not necessarily mean the investigation has concluded. "No charges were filed pending further investigation," Castillo said, adding that these are very serious allegations.

FEDERAL COURT DENIES DOJ REQUEST TO SET ASIDE BALLOTS AHEAD OF NOVEMBER 3 GENERAL ELECTION

Ruling affirms election procedures and reinforces protections for eligible voters

LOS ANGELES — Los Angeles County Registrar-Recorder/County Clerk (RR/CC) Dean C. Logan welcomes today's federal court decision denying the U.S. Department of Justice's (DOJ) emergency request to set aside ballots cast by Los Angeles County residents based on unverified claims of voter ineligibility.

The ruling, issued by U.S. District Judge David O. Carter, reinforces Los Angeles County's continued administration of the November 3 General Election in accordance with long-established state and federal laws, procedures, and statutory timelines.

The court emphasized that established election procedures must be respected, stating: "This Court will not deprive Californians who have met the requirements for voter registration of their fundamental right because of Plaintiff's unfounded allegations."

The court also identified significant legal concerns with the DOJ's proposed actions, finding that the requested relief would likely violate several longstanding federal protections, including:

- National Voter Registration Act (NVRA): Protects voters against systematic removal efforts immediately preceding a federal election.
- Voting Rights Act: Protects the rights of eligible voters to cast ballots and have their votes counted.
- Civil Rights Act: Requires consistent standards and procedures when determining voter eligibility.

"Our office takes voter eligibility seriously, and any credible evidence of unlawful voting warrants appropriate review. But claims of unlawful voting must be supported by verifiable evidence, not assumptions," said Registrar-Recorder/County Clerk Dean Logan. "Today's ruling reinforces what we have maintained throughout this process: election integrity and the protection of eligible voters go hand in hand. Our established procedures are grounded in state and federal law, and we will continue carrying out our responsibilities with accuracy, transparency, and accountability voters deserve."

While additional judicial review remains possible, Los Angeles County remains confident in the legal foundation of its election procedures and believes today's detailed ruling provides a strong basis for its continued application.

Los Angeles County maintains multiple layers of safeguards throughout the election process, including voter registration verification, ballot signature verification, secure ballot processing, and opportunities for public observation. These procedures protect election integrity while ensuring every eligible voter can participate, and every valid ballot is counted accurately.

"Our focus remains on the voters we serve," Logan added. "With Election Day approaching, we want every eligible voter to feel confident that their rights are protected, their ballots are secure, and their votes will be counted accurately. The best way to demonstrate confidence in our elections is through participation, and we encourage every voter to make their voice heard."

Voting Continues Across Los Angeles County

Voting is underway at Vote Centers and Official Ballot Drop Boxes throughout Los Angeles County. Beginning Saturday, October 31, all 646 Vote Centers will be open, allowing voters to cast their ballots at any location in the County, regardless of where they live.

Voters may also return their completed Vote by Mail ballots at any Vote Center or one of the County's 429 official ballot drop boxes.

On Election Day, Tuesday, November 3, Vote Centers will be open from 7 AM to 8 PM.

What Is the Difference Between Assisted Living and Memory Care?

When families begin exploring senior living options for an aging loved one, one of the most common questions is: What is the difference between assisted living and memory care?

Although both provide support and supervision, they serve seniors with different needs.

Assisted living is designed for older adults who need help with certain daily activities but can still maintain some independence. Residents typically live in private or semi-private apartments and receive assistance with bathing, dressing, medication management, meals, housekeeping, and transportation. Assisted living communities also offer social activities, opportunities for friendships, and programs that help residents remain active and engaged.

Memory care, on the other hand, is specifically designed for individuals living with Alzheimer's disease, dementia, or other conditions that affect memory and thinking. These communities provide a more structured environment with specially trained caregivers who understand the challenges associated with memory loss. Additional safety measures, consistent routines, and activities tailored to residents' abilities help reduce confusion and support quality of life.

So, how does a family know which option is right? The answer depends on the individual's physical health, cognitive abilities, safety concerns, and level of independence. A senior who occasionally needs help with daily activities may thrive in assisted living. However, someone who frequently becomes confused, wanders, forgets essential tasks, or struggles to remain safe may benefit from memory care. It is also important to remember that dementia progresses differently for each person. Some assisted living communities offer memory care services on the same campus, allowing residents to transition as their needs change.

Choosing the right environment is about more than finding a place to live. It is about ensuring your loved one receives appropriate care, maintains dignity, and enjoys the best possible quality of life.
Safe Path for Seniors helps families navigate senior living options, including assisted living, memory care, and board-and-care homes. We provide personalized guidance to help families find appropriate options based on their loved one's needs and budget, at no cost to families.

OUT TO PASTOR

A Weekly Religion Column by Rev. James Snyder

MY LIFE IS ONE DAY AT A TIME

Sometimes I look back over my life and try to remember what we call the "good old days." From my birth to now, I have lived 27,500 days. That is a lot of days.

Sometimes I think it would be interesting to remember every one of those days. I can't even remember all of my birthdays. I know I had them because I'm still alive today. Sometimes I think it would be interesting to remember my very first birthday. I wonder what my parents got me for that first birthday.

Some days stand out more than others do. For example, I remember very clearly the day The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage and I got married. I'll never forget that day. Other days stand out in my memory.

Recently I've been thinking it is a waste of time to focus on the past. Nothing in the past can be changed or improved. If I went back and tried to correct one mistake I made, I'd probably make two other mistakes in the process. Not worth it.

At my age, I am concentrating on living one day at a time. Yesterday's gone, and tomorrow hasn't arrived yet. So my focus is on today. I'm going to live today as though it was the last day of my life. Whenever I get up, I never know if it will be my best day or my worst.

With The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage, it is a different story. Her great obsession is planning her days. She plans a whole year, including all the holidays in the coming year. Of course, she carefully schedules doctor visits. If she didn't do that, I probably would never see my doctor again.

When I get up in the morning, I really don't know what will happen during the day. I try to think about what I need to do that day and keep it to a minimum.

Now that I'm retired, I don't have to get up and go to some committee meeting. I can crawl out of bed, go to my office, and work in my pajamas. I never thought retirement would be so much fun.

I need to be careful because if I decide to go to Wal-Mart, I need to change out of my pajamas into my workday clothes. There was a time, I will not explain, when I forgot to do that. Actually, when I went, I fit in with everybody else.

This past Monday I needed to go to the post office and pay my annual fees. I had no other appointment, so I just drove to the post office, went in, and paid my fees.

As I walked out, I heard a horn honking. I didn't know where it was, but as I walked toward my truck, I realized it was my truck making all that noise, and the headlights were also blinking. Something was wrong with my truck.

I got to my truck, got in, put the key in, and the horn stopped honking, and the headlights stopped blinking. I had no idea what was going on. Sitting behind the wheel, I sighed a very deep sigh, and then started the engine. It actually started right up.

I put it in reverse, and it just drifted backward very slowly. I pressed the brake, then put it in gear, pressed the pedal, and nothing happened; it kept drifting backward. I finally stopped and tried putting it in reverse, and it just drifted backward. I couldn't get it to go forward, and I couldn't stop it from drifting backward.

I had no idea what was wrong with my truck.

I tried calling AAA, but my phone wasn't working very well. I tried to call The Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage, but my phone still was not working. I walked back into the post office. I was able to call my daughter and tell her what was going on, and asked her to call her mother for me.

I then called my mechanic, told him my problem, and he said he would come over to meet me right away. We were only a couple of miles apart, so it didn't take long.

I was standing outside my truck waiting for him, and finally he came.

He asked what was wrong, and I tried to explain; then he got in my truck, turned the engine on, and everything worked. He could drive it forward and backward. Nothing seemed to be wrong. Everything worked fine.

He told me to take it to his garage where he worked, and they would check it out for me.
I wasn't sure I could make it to the garage, but I finally did. They had my truck overnight, and when I went back the next day, they told me they found absolutely nothing wrong with it. That sure made me look like an idiot there in the garage.

Of all the days in my life I would like to see repeated, this surely isn't one of the
A verse of scripture came to mind. "This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it" (Psalm 118:24).

I can't change yesterday, and I cannot predict what tomorrow will bring. I need to focus on today and trust God to help make today a day to remember.

THE SAVVY SENIOR

HELPING AN OLDER PARENT COPE WITH LONELINESS

Dear Savvy Senior,

My 78-year-old father has lived alone since my mother passed away two years ago. He insists he's fine, but I can tell he spends most of his time by himself and seems increasingly lonely and withdrawn. What can I do to help him, and are there any resources that could support him?
–Worried Son

Dear Worried,
You're right to pay attention to this. The loss of a spouse often leads to increased isolation in older adults, even when they insist they're fine. But long stretches without meaningful contact can take a real toll on both emotional and physical health.

Public health research shows that about one in three adults age 50 and older reports feeling lonely at times, and those who live alone are at higher risk for social isolation. But loneliness isn't always easy to spot, especially in older adults who live alone.

The good news is there are practical ways to help your father reconnect, along with programs and services designed specifically for older adults living alone.

What you can do
Focus less on big changes and more on steady, predictable contact. A short call every few days, a standing weekly meal or coffee, or a regular shared errand gives him something to count on. Consistency matters more than length or intensity.

Even if you're not especially close, or don't live nearby, steady contact can still make a difference. Technology can help bridge the distance through simple routines like weekly video calls, text check-ins, shared family schedules or photo threads. The goal isn't constant communication, but fewer long stretches where isolation can quietly take hold.

It also helps to widen his circle in practical ways. Siblings, grandchildren, neighbors and longtime friends can all play a role. Even brief calls, occasional visits or shared meals can slowly rebuild connection. Familiarity and repetition matter more than effort or duration.

Encourage activity
Staying active can help reduce isolation. Many communities offer exercise classes, hobby groups, church activities, volunteer opportunities and lifelong learning programs. The best fit depends on personality and whether your father prefers group settings or smaller, low-key interactions.

If transportation is a challenge, helping arrange rides or connecting him with local services can make participation more realistic. Just as important is a sense of purpose. Volunteering, gardening, pet care, time with grandchildren, helping neighbors or mentoring others can all add structure, meaning and a reason to stay engaged.

Available programs
There are several well-established programs that can help reduce isolation among older adults.

A good place to start is the Eldercare Locator at 800-677-1116 or eldercare.acl.gov, which connects families to local Area Agencies on Aging that can help arrange services like meals, transportation, home visits and social programs.

Meals on Wheels America delivers home meals and often includes brief daily check-ins from volunteers, offering both nutrition and a bit of regular human contact.

AmeriCorps Seniors runs the Senior Companion Program, where trained volunteers provide regular visits, conversation and light assistance, depending on what's available locally.

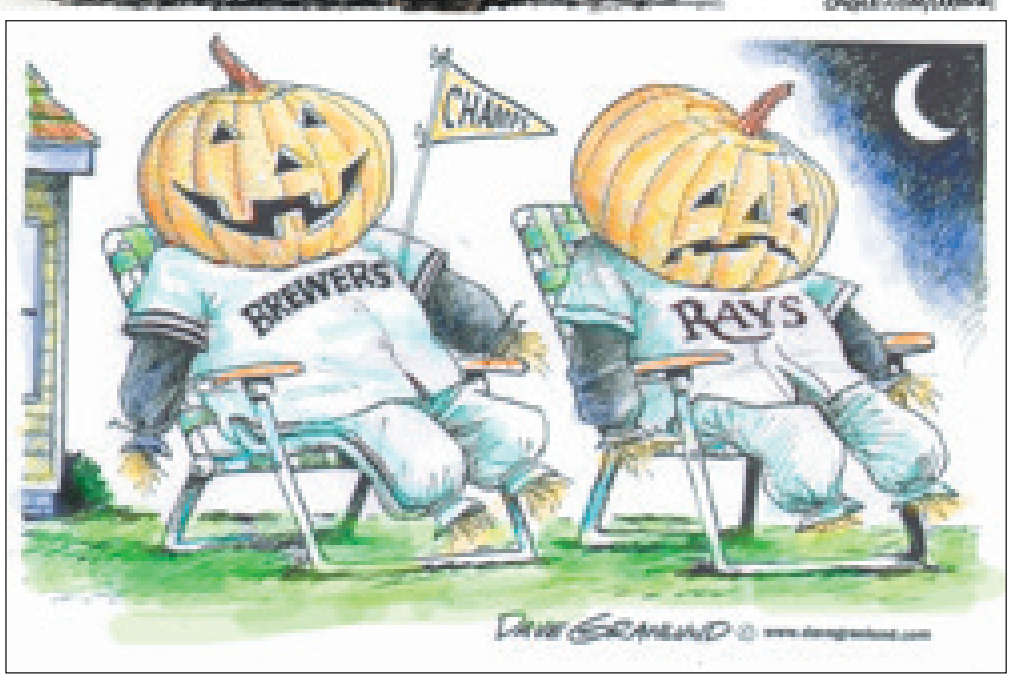

For phone-based connection, the Institute on Aging Friendship Line offers 24/7 support and scheduled check-in calls for older adults living alone, while DOROT Caring Calls pairs seniors with volunteers for weekly conversations based on shared interests.

Local senior centers are also a strong resource, offering meals, classes, group activities and transportation in many communities. Libraries, churches and community organizations can provide additional low-pressure ways to stay connected.

Signs to watch
Loneliness can overlap with depression. If you notice changes such as poor sleep, loss of interest in usual activities, irritability, confusion or neglect of personal care, it may be time to involve his doctor. These issues are common and treatable.

In the end, the goal is simply to help your father stay connected and reduce isolation. Start small, stay consistent, and those simple touchpoints can add up to a more connected and meaningful daily life.

THE PRICE IS RICE:
The Great San Gabriel Valley Sushi Wars

Last Saturday night, I picked up my daughter Lauren at Los Angeles International Airport. After navigating airport traffic, I figured we'd grab something quick to eat. Panda Express sounded pretty good to me.
Lauren had other ideas.

"Dad, how about Sugarfish?"

So much for a quick, inexpensive dinner.
I'm not a sushi expert. Heck, those supermarket sushi packs are usually pretty good to me. Lauren, on the other hand, loves Sugarfish. She swears by it. They don't offer the kind of discounts I'm looking for, and apparently they don't have to. They've built a loyal following based on quality and consistency.

But this article isn't about Sugarfish. This article is about Dills Deals.

Before we get started, a little food trivia. Does the word "sushi" actually refer to the fish or the rice? I'll give you the answer at the end of this column.

Have you noticed what's happening around town? Banners advertising happy hours. Buy-one-get-one specials. All-you-can-eat sushi. Restaurants practically begging us to come inside and enjoy a bargain.

It reminds me of the gas wars from years ago. Remember when one gas station would lower its price and the station across the street would respond? Only this time we're talking spicy tuna rolls and Sapporo beer instead of unleaded gasoline.

Could the San Gabriel Valley be in the middle of its own Sushi Wars? I think we are.
A while back, I had lunch at Tomikawa Sushi on Foothill Boulevard in Pasadena with my friend Jesse James Youngblood. Old-timers will remember the location as the former Kabuki before Kabuki moved to Colorado Boulevard and San Gabriel Boulevard.

The deal caught my eye immediately: an all-you-can-eat lunch for around $25, including appetizers, rolls and premium rolls. At the time of my visit, the special was offered Monday through Thursday until 3 p.m.

Jesse got his money's worth. Me? I tapped out long before he did.

Yes, they time you. And no, don't ask for a doggie bag. That's not the deal. The idea is simple: eat what you can, enjoy yourself and leave room for the next customer.

Was it the best sushi I've ever had? I don't know. As I said, I'm not a sushi expert. But I know value when I see it.

Right across from Chiquita Bonita, Haruka Sushi has advertised happy hours and buy-one-get-one specials. I haven't personally tried every item on the menu, but I appreciate restaurants that understand diners are watching their dollars.

My friend Shawn Broes reminded me not to forget Sushi Roku. He's right. I do like their happy hour. It's a little more upscale, and you're certainly not going to confuse it with an all-you-can-eat buffet. But if you arrive at the right time, you can enjoy premium sushi and cocktails without taking out a second mortgage.

Truth be told, my favorite sushi spot is Kabuki on Colorado Boulevard.
Sure, they've raised the price of Sapporo over the years, but a beer for around $3 during happy hour still gets my attention.

Maybe it's Pink, Cindy, Anita and the rest of the servers who know my order before I sit down: one sake, one Sapporo and a large ice water, right around 4 p.m.
Maybe it's habit. Maybe it's comfort. Or maybe it's because the scallop hand roll is very good and I have their Krab salad when I want to be healthy. Notice the "K"?

Or maybe it's their Red Mask Club, where you eat sushi to earn sushi.
Whatever the reason, I keep coming back.

Then there's Panda Inn, another Pasadena institution. During its impressive remodel, the restaurant added a sushi bar and even an omakase experience.

A Chinese restaurant serving sushi? Maybe twenty years ago that would have seemed strange. Not anymore.

Diners want choices. They want value. They want a little bit of everything. And restaurants are adapting. That's not strange. That's smart.

Now, I know what some of my Sierra Madre and Arcadia readers are thinking. Peter, what about the sushi restaurants closer to home? Fair question.

The San Gabriel Valley certainly doesn't suffer from a shortage of Japanese restaurants. From neighborhood sushi counters to upscale dining rooms, there are plenty of choices beyond Pasadena.
And that's what makes these Sushi Wars so interesting. Competition gives diners a reason to explore. Some people chase the freshest uni or the rarest toro. Me? I'm looking for a good deal, friendly faces and a place where they know my name.

After more than twenty years of reviewing restaurants for Mountain Views News, I've learned something important: the best dining experience isn't always the most expensive one.

Sometimes it's the restaurant where the bartender remembers your drink, the server remembers your name and the bill doesn't require a second look.

So here's my challenge to readers in Sierra Madre, Arcadia, Monrovia and Pasadena.

Who has the best sushi deal in the San Gabriel Valley?

I'm willing to investigate. After all, somebody has to do the research. If I missed your favorite sushi spot, send me an email. We can always revisit the Sushi Wars.

And now, the answer to our trivia question.

It's the rice!
The word sushi refers to rice seasoned with vinegar, not raw fish. In fact, sushi doesn't have to contain fish at all. You can have sushi with vegetables, eggs or other ingredients. Raw fish served without sushi rice is called sashimi.
So there you have it. The price is rice!
I'm just Peter Dills, looking for my next Dills Deal.

IS IT POSSIBLE TO GET BACK TO THE ROOTS OF HALLOWE'EN?

What is Hallowe'en all about? Why has the day that was once called All Hallows Eve devolved into a day of fun and fear? Wasn't it once regarded as a Holy Day? So how was this day recognized before it was all commercialized into a scary night? Is it possible to discover the roots of this day, and observe it in its original fashion today?

How can we answer these questions? We'd need to dig up whatever historical facts to show how this day was commemorated before 1700, more or less. Though it's hard to be 100% certain, we at can assume that "commercialization" didn't really exist in 1700, and all the European and some American commemorations before that year probably retained some semblance of what the day was all about, originally.

So, first, let's begin with the day.

It is believed that the ancient Celts observed something called a "Samhain festival" towards the end of October. Says the World Book Encyclopedia. "The Celts believed that the dead could walk among the living at this time. During Samhain, the living could visit with the dead. Elements of the customs can be traced to a Druid ceremony in pre-Christian times. The Celts had festivals for two major gods—a sun god and a god of the dead (called Samhain), whose festival was held on November 1, the beginning of the Celtic New Year.

This day, or period, was to mark the end of the harvest and the beginning of winter.

Samhain (pronounced "sow-in," which means "summer's end," or the name of a god, or both) is seen by some Wiccans as a time to celebrate the lives of those who have died, and it often involves paying respect to ancestors, family members, elders of the faith, friends, pets and other loved ones who have died. In some rituals the spirits of the dead are invited to attend the festivities.

Various sorts of activities done on Samhain have been described over the centuries. In Ireland, Samhain was a time to take stock of the herds and food supplies. Cattle were brought to the winter pastures after six months in the higher summer pastures. Then, the people chose which animals to slaughter before the winter. After the slaughter of the animals, there would be feasting. And obviously, if you aren't an animal-raising farmer, how would you celebrate this aspect, except for the feasting?

The Catholic Church was aware of all the so-called "pagan" observances, and had their own day to commemorate the dead, May 13. This began in 609 or 610 A.D., when Pope Boniface the 4th dedicated the Pantheon— the Roman temple of all the gods—to Mary and all the martyrs. Later that date was changed by Pope Gregory III (731-741 A.D.), who dedicated a chapel in Rome to all the saints and ordered that they be honored on November 1. It's unclear precisely why the date was changed, but likely it was to overshadow the pre-existing Samhain, so called "pagan," commemorations.
In the 11th century, November 2nd was assigned as "All Souls' Day" in commemoration of the dead. So this began the use of the term Hallow's Eve, or Hallowe'en for October 31.

Hallowe'en customs are similar to the observance of Dia de los Muertos or Day of the Dead, commonly practiced in Mexico and which can be traced to early Aztec times. Apparently, this "day of the dead" was originally commemorated in Mexico in May, and was changed to November 2 sometime after Spanish contact, possibly to correspond with the "Christian" tradition.
FOOD and GIFTING
Trick or treating in modern times goes back to leaving food and wine for roaming dead spirits and ghosts. The custom was referred to as "going a-souling" and was eventually practiced only by the children who would visit the houses in their neighborhoods and be given gifts of ale, food and money. It was believed the spirits of the dead returned to visit their old homes during this time, so in ancient times, people left food out for them and arranged chairs so that the dead would be able to rest.

Treats called "soul cakes" were given out in memory of the departed. The Middle Age practice of souling — going door to door begging for food in return for prayers — became popular and is even referenced by William Shakespeare in 1593. This is obviously the root of the modern "trick or treating" for mini Snickers bars, a practice no doubt loved by every dentist.

Seasonal foods such as apples and nuts were often used in the Samhain rituals. Apples were peeled, the peel tossed over the shoulder, and its shape examined to see if it formed the first letter of the future spouse's name. Nuts were roasted on the hearth and then interpreted – if the nuts stayed together, so would the couple. Egg whites were dropped in water, and the shapes foretold the number of future children. Children would also chase crows and divine some of these things from the number of birds or the direction they flew.

COSTUMES
Celts would wear masks when they left their homes during the night hours during Samhain days, because they hoped they would avoid being recognized by the ghosts and be mistaken merely for fellow ghosts.

"Mumming" and "Guising" were a part of Samhain from at least the 16th century and was recorded in parts of Ireland, Scotland, Mann and Wales. It involved people going from house to house in costume (or in disguise), usually reciting songs or verses in exchange for food. It is suggested that it evolved from a tradition whereby people impersonated the souls of the dead, and received offerings on their behalf. Impersonating these spirits or souls was also believed to protect oneself from them. One researcher suggests that the ancient festival included people in masks or costumes representing these spirits, and that the modern custom came directly from this.

PARADES
Pagan Celtic priestesses and their followers would roam the countryside, chanting songs in order to frighten away the evil spirits thought to be out on Halloween night. I wonder how that could be practiced in your neighborhood?

FIRES
Bonfires were a big part of the festival in many areas of western Europe. Bonfires were typically lit on hilltops at Samhain where everyone could see them, and there were rituals involving them. We concluded that a small, safe backyard fire might be a good addition to celebrating the day, though we were pretty sure that local fire departments would take a very dim view if fires were built on local hilltops!

Bonfires comes from the root, "bone-fires" because the priests sacrificed animals and supposedly even people in an attempt to appease the sun god, while also looking for future omens. The fire was said to be a type of sympathetic magic, where the fire mimicked the sun, which has the power to hold back the darkness of winter. Burning the fires was also believed to be a way of banishing evil, at least symbolically.

The belief that the souls of the dead return home on one night of the year seems to have ancient origins and is found in many cultures throughout the world.

CONCLUSION

So what should we conclude from all this? Is there an ideal way to commemorate this ancient day, and still avoid the trappings of commercialization? Is it even possible in today's world?

I like the way that the Day of the Dead is commemorated. There are altars with pictures of the dearly departed, and plates of good food. Candles are lit, rather than a big bonfire which the local fire department would frown upon. Families gather, and talk in respectful tones about their departed relatives. Yes, of course, even the Day of the Dead has turned into wild partying in some quarters, but if you seek a return to roots of the ancient commemoration of the dead, perhaps begin here.

Begin with family or neighborhood gatherings. Prepare a good meal, and keep in the mind the foods that your beloved departeds enjoyed. This is not necessarily because you think their spirits will come to eat (last I checked, ghosts don't need to eat), but because having, for example, your mother's favorite dish will give you another reason to talk about your mother, and to remember all the good things she did.

This is at least a start, and it elevates our day of ghoulish and pointless fear-mongering into one that reconnects us with our roots.

It's time. Literally. For daylight saving time (DST) to end, something many of us don't look forward to. But, in addition to the darkness that takes over the early evening, DST can limit the time available for outdoor activities, especially for those who prefer exercising outdoors after work. If you like to run, bike or hike you may find yourself in total darkness which can not only be frightening but downright dangerous. As a result, you may need to adjust your fitness schedule or switch to early morning workouts.

There are other definite factors introduced once the light does go down earlier. Things that can have an affect on your workout routine. The shift in time can affect people's mood and motivation. The decrease in natural light during the fall and winter months can lead to feelings of fatigue and lower motivation to exercise. Some individuals may find it more challenging to stay motivated and may experience seasonal affective disorder (SAD). SAD is very real and can create depression at this time of year.

Fall and winter bring in cooler temperatures too. For outdoor exercisers, this may require adjusting to colder weather, which can be uncomfortable and require extra layers of clothing. It can also impact the types of workouts you choose and your willingness to exercise outdoors.

When going to the club you may find it a lot more crowded there as more people may flock to gyms for indoor workouts. Expect longer wait times for equipment, potentially affecting your workout routine.

The time change can also mess with meal timing. As daylight hours change, meal schedules may need to be adjusted, which can impact energy levels and performance during workouts. When it's darker earlier it's easy to want to sit home and eat more. The less time out and about means more inactivity and inactivity is usually paired with more eating. Baking, celebrating holidays and getting together with friends at this time of year can all lead to increased caloric intake. Be careful so you don't let this allow pounds to gradually pile on.

Some people experience increased stress during the time change, which can negatively impact workout performance. The shift in time can disrupt daily routines too, making it more challenging to maintain consistency in exercise. High stress levels may lead to decreased motivation and even overtraining.

To reduce the potential negative effects the time change may have on you and your exercise routine, you may want to gradually adjust your workout schedule by shifting it by small increments over several days to allow your body to adapt.
You can also experiment and test out indoor activities. Indoor cycling, fitness classes, or home workouts may all feel more invigorating at this time of year. Set specific goals, work out with a buddy, or explore new fitness activities.

Let's not forget about sleep. The time change can disrupt sleep patterns, especially when transitioning to or from daylight saving time. Sleep is essential for recovery and energy levels, so disruptions can affect workout performance and overall fitness goals. Make sure you get a good night's sleep along with sound nutrition. Especially at a time of year when we are eating very differently in terms of types of food and quantity.

Find other activities or hobbies that fit this time of year to keep you from sinking into couch potato mode. Whatever it is, from indoor gardening to jigsaw puzzles, if your mind is busy and you keep to a consistent schedule the impact of the time change won't be as severe.

Light therapy, which involves exposure to bright light, can be helpful for those affected by SAD and can potentially improve mood and energy levels. All that's needed is a light box. The box delivers a dose of bright light which brings about changes in brain chemicals to improve mood. Light therapy is usually used in the morning for 20-30 minutes. If you're interested in checking it out consult with your doctor or health care provider for any recommendations or cautions. Those with eye problems should get advice from their eye specialist first.

The impact of the time change on workouts varies from person to person. By being mindful of these potential effects and implementing strategies to adapt, you can continue to maintain a consistent and effective exercise routine throughout the year. There's no need for gloom. Make this period of year a time to try new things, focus more on goals and include other people in your workouts to help you stay motivated and on track.

UNLOCK YOUR LIFE

IT FELT LIKE MY LIFE MANUAL WAS MISSING PAGES
BY LORI A. HARRIS

When I was pregnant with my daughter, Elizabeth, I remember having a rather peculiar thought: I can't have a baby. I don't even understand how electricity works.

For much of my life, I felt like my instruction manual was missing a few pages. Other people seemed to understand how the world worked in ways I didn't. How could I be responsible for teaching another human being about life when I didn't understand so much myself?

I didn't understand electricity or thermodynamics. And I certainly didn't understand all the mysterious workings of human relationships, happiness, and success. Looking back, I believe I was onto something. Electricity was my metaphor for life. I was searching for the principles that govern how we live, grow, and become.

Years later, Elizabeth showed me how to turn a potato into a source of electrical power. In another experiment, we used a lemon and a glass to make light. And she said something I've never forgotten: "It's not rocket science, but if it was, we could do that too."

I loved her confidence. She didn't regard something she didn't know as something beyond her ability to understand. And I realized that in raising our children, we often try to give them the very things we are still learning to give ourselves. Confidence. Courage. Curiosity. The willingness to try.

Today, I understand something I didn't understand then: There is both an art and a science to our becoming. We cannot control every circumstance in our lives. Things happen that we don't prefer, couldn't predict, and wouldn't wish upon anyone. But we choose how we respond to events and the meaning we give them.

Two people can experience similar events and walk away with entirely different understandings of what happened and what it means for their futures. The circumstances matter. But so does the story we tell ourselves. Sometimes, I have to remind myself that rain falls on the just and the unjust.

Psychology and neuroscience can help explain how our thoughts, interpretations, and repeated behaviors influence our emotions and actions. We can learn new patterns. We can practice new responses.

I may never be able to recite all the physics of electricity, but I can still flip a switch and illuminate a room.

But I love learning the principles of human transformation and the journey of becoming.

So what does that mean for you?

Perhaps you're facing a situation you don't know how to navigate. A difficult relationship. An unexpected change. A dream you've carried for years but haven't dared to pursue.

Instead of concluding that you aren't capable, what if you became curious? What am I believing about this situation? Is that belief necessarily true? Is there another way to look at it? And what is one small action I could take to move toward the answer I am seeking? You don't have to solve everything today. You don't have to know every answer. Are you willing to engage in the journey?

You can begin with one question, one experiment, one new response. And then you can pay attention to what happens. That's how we learn. That's how we grow. That's how we become.

I guess my instruction manual was never missing pages. We don't come here with all the answers. Life is discovery and expansion.

The next time you find yourself facing something you don't understand, remember that not knowing doesn't mean you can't learn.

You don't have to understand everything to begin.

And as my daughter once reminded me, even if it's rocket science, we can learn that, too.

Love is a great place to start.

PUT THE LIGHTS ON

WANDERING THROUGH THE NEIGHBORHOOD

What a history we have. The area that we all now visit to shop and dine was the largest assembly center holding over 18,000 Japanese internees. While growing up in Boyle Heights my wife's grandparents housed a young Japanese girl whose family had been interred.

It all seems so ironic in that today Arcadia which borders Sierra Madre is now known as "The Chinese Beverly Hills". In fact, just a couple of months ago, the Chinese mayor of Arcadia, Eileen Wang, resigned after pleading guilty as a foreign agent for the People's Republic of China.

For over a month I have spent many hours in my son's hospital room where he is being treated for pancreatitis and a recently revealed autoimmune disease. I wish I could explain more about the disease, but I am unable to really understand much. Part of the reason for my lack of understanding is my difficulties with hearing combined with the memory loss typical of my age. Another important reason is that there are three languages spoken by most of the medical staff in the Hospital and I fail to understand any one of them.

The three languages are Spanish, an Asian Language, and " hospitalese." I don't speak or understand any of these languages. The "hospitalese" spoken by the Medical Staff is typically spoken behind masks often along with an accent, which makes it very difficult to hear or understand. The language is filled with acronyms which are rarely explained and further uses terms not easily understood by non-medical people. Additionally, there is a problem associated with the fact that the entire staff of the Hospital wears very similar clothing and I am frequently confused as to whether my family and I are speaking with a physician, a nurse, a physical therapist, or a person whose responsibility is just to clean the room and change the sheets.

My confusion led to what could have been a very severe problem. When one of the final Dodger Games was available in my son's room a staff-person was present and I asked, politely, I thought, if that person would assist us in getting the game on the television. The person ignored me and eventually said "that's not my job" and I replied that I thought the job of the whole staff was to make the patient comfortable. I really don't know what the job of that person was, but very soon two Security Guards with guns appeared at the door to my son's room demanding to talk with me. They said, after I asked them to remove their guns which they refused to do, that I had caused a disturbance and they wanted to hear my side of the story. Well, the matter was resolved and we eventually got the game on TV, but I have been cautioned by my wife and daughter to keep my mouth shut. Even my son, who rarely speaks let me know he would rather I kept quiet; but even through his illness he let me know that he cared about my feelings and said "I love you daddy" and "don't get lost" as I left. Even though he is terrified about his own condition he has not abandoned his concern for me.

I realize that my difficulties related to aging affect understanding much of what goes on, but at the same time I realize that my family is loving and that we can all stick together. Yesterday, after seeing my son. my wife and I went to a Japanese restaurant for lunch. As we were seated at the table a man came in and placed a wallet on our table. It was my wallet and he said he saw me drop it I the parking lot. I didn't think much about it and placed the wallet in my jacket from which I guess it had fallen. Later I counted the cash in the wallet and realized it contained almost 100 dollars in addition to my credit card.

One more thing which you might have difficulty believing is that a couple of days earlier my wife and I, as we were leaving the Hospital we found over one hundred dollars in cash lying on the ground. There was no one around to give the money to, so my wife kept it. All I am saying is that things change from day to day and there have been many changes in our little town, but it remains a wonderful place to live and, yes, sometimes, I feel someone or something is watching over us and it is our job to adjust.

NOTE FROM STUART'S WIFE: IT'S ALL TRUE

RICH JOHNSON

SONG TITLES YOU'LL NOT FORGET

As you might be able to deduce if you've endured my column for any length of time, music is a big part of my life. It's the fault of 4 fellows who invaded my brain. As best I can recall their names were John, Paul George and…Roger? Wait a minute! Something's not right.

Oh yeah, Roger is my brother. The fourth fellow's name is Richard. No, not me. Richard Starkey. You may know him better as Ringo. They formed a band named after an insect. I think out of devotion to Buddy Holly and his Cricketts. They were called the Beatles. They invaded my brain February 9, 1964. They were on a show called the Ed Sullivan Show. I was 12 at the time. That was not the day the music died. It was the day the music woke up…at least in my brain. I needed a guitar…fast. It didn't take too long. It was probably the top of the line guitar available at Montgomery Wards Department Store. Where my mom worked. She got a discount. As thankful as I was, I cannot recommend anyone buying a guitar from Montgomery Wards or Sears and Roebuck. Your fingers will thank you if you avoid those retail outlets. It's fair. I mean, I don't buy paint or underwear at Guitar Center.

Anyway, my life was completely changed…permanently. And here I am about to turn 75 years old on Halloween. And what am I doing? My rock and roll band, JJ Jukebox is in concert at Nano Café in Sierra Madre on my birthday Halloween. The concert will be over by the time you read this. So, you're out of danger.

I was in my first music group at age 15. And my first public performance, I was a very mature 15 1/2. I was as part of a church folk group headed by a German 25-year-old UCLA Physics Ph.D. student named Ray. Important to note that Ray played the banjo and, because he was of German ancestry, he sang with all the finesse you might expect from a German military marching song.

So, here I am 60 and a half years later making music.

Speaking of music, no one is ever too old to pick up an instrument and start making noise…err music. Music is a wonderful outlet for the psyche. The benefit of learning to play a guitar for example, you can turn all of your complaining into songs. Maybe friends will comfort you. Or if they don't like the music, they may give you money,

There are songs by famous people that demonstrate a cathartic process. Other songs cause you to lose the will to keep going. Stick with group A. Some of these songs are:

"In Spite of Ourselves". Some of the repeatable lyrics include: "He ain't too sharp but he gets things done, Drinks his beer like it's oxygen."

"I've Got All This Ringing in My Ears and None on My Fingers" (Popular wedding song)

"Anyone Else But You" (Another popular wedding song)

"I Love You, You're Perfect, Now Change" (The aftermath of every wedding song)

"You're the Reason Our Kids Are So Ugly"

"I'm So Miserable Without You, It's Just Like Having You Around"

"You Can't Roller Skate in a Buffalo Herd"

"Champagne for My Real Friends, Real Pain for My Sham Friends"

"The Yodeling Veterinarian of the Alps"

"Itsy Bitsy Teenie Weenie Yellow Polka Dot Bikini"

"Don't Eat the Yellow Snow"

"I've Got All This Ringing in my Ears and None on My Fingers

Songs from films that stand out.

From the movie parody of the Life of Jesus, Monty Pythons "Life of Brian"

"Always Look on the Bright Side of Life"

"Get Busy Living, Or Get Busy Dying

The most played song in history?

"Happy Birthday!"

Most Overplayed Songs:

"Happy Birthday"

"Stairway to Heaven"

"Bohemian Rhapsody"

"Don't Stop Believin'"

Well I have to shove off and go rehearse. I'll let you know how it turns out. Or in. Or around. Have a great week…or is it weak?

HOWARD Hays As I See It

"This economy is so unaffordable that I'm going to have to downgrade from LGBTQ+ to LGBTQ with ads." – zaza historia posting on Threads

We're days before the midterm elections – with anxiety over not just what the results might be, but what might happen in response to those results. For now, though, here are some favorite posts from October:

The White House posts: "America will establish a permanent presence on the moon." Heidi responds: "You couldn't paint a pool."

From Janel Comeau: "You kids may not believe this, but things were so stable 15 years ago that the news had to start reporting on people seeing Jesus in their toast".

A globe dating back to the 1930's, reportedly used by Gen. Eisenhower during WWII, was badly damaged by the staff of Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth as they were moving it to his office at the Pentagon. Tommy Vietor posts: "Kind of a perfect metaphor for Hegseth's entire tenure at DOD. Stupid, impulsive, driven by vanity and the result is destruction".

Interviewed on Fox News, Vice President J.D. Vance described Russian President Putin as "more soft-spoken than you would necessarily expect . . . And I think fundamentally he's a person who looks out for the interests as he sees it of Russia." David Corn responds: "Praising an indicted war criminal and dictator who bombs civilian sites and kidnaps children to destroy a neighboring democracy. This is deplorable." From Phillips P. Obrien: "Here is Vance saying Putin is a much misunderstood, sensible mass murderer."

President Trump says, "It's time for Ukraine to get a new president." Joe Walsh responds: "Trump is a coward. Zelensky is a warrior. Trump is a pathological liar. Zelensky is a truth teller. Trump is a scoundrel Zelensky is a hero. Trump kisses Putin's a. Zelensky is kicking Putin's a. Trump is a traitor to the free world. Zelensky is defending the free world." Anton Gerashchenko posts from Ukraine: "Someone should explain to the US president that appointing Ukraine's president is not part of his job description."

Trump posts: "I am in the process of negotiating Peace in the war between Russia and Ukraine, and don't want to do anything that will drive, foolishly, Russia away from the bargaining table". Marina notes: "Excusing the aggressor while lecturing the victim is not a diplomatic strategy. It's kissing up to Putin." Trump adds, "Russia is doing very little, if anything, to help the Islamic Republic of Iran". Surge asks, "How does Trump know that Russia is doing very little to help Iran? Because Putin told him?"

At a Kansas rally, Trump brags about a recent cognitive exam: "The first one is they show you a lion, a bear, a snake, and a giraffe, and they say, 'Which one is the giraffe?' . . . I got a perfect score." Gary Crooks responds: "Great job. Here's a cookie".

In North Carolina, V.P. Vance advises the crowd: "Vote for the people who have solutions to lower the cost of gas, don't vote for the people who made the problem to begin with." From Chuck Todd: "To paraphrase Inigo Montoya: 'I do not think this means what you think this means.'"

At a rally in Iowa, Republican Congressional candidate Joe Mitchell presents Trump ("the greatest president we've ever had") a framed certificate commemorating his being initial recipient of the "Man of the Century" award. Mimzy reacts: "Another fake award made at Michaels frame shop for $15." Josh Billinoson notes: "No one has ever won both the FIFA Peace Prize and the Citizens of Iowa Man Of The Century award in the same year". From Frank Lucchese-Soto: "How many participation trophies does one man need?"

Barack Obama goes viral with a clip from an Ohio rally where he says about Trump, "He's got the White House looking like Saddam Hussein opened up a Cheesecake Factory". CNN's Scott Jennings complains, "Makes speeches for 500k a pop . . . Undefeated at condescending to regular folks". Andrew Egger at The Bulwark responds: "At $500k a pop, Obama would have to give a speech every night for the next twelve years to match the $2.2 billion in openly corrupt income Trump pulled in in 2025 alone". From Harry Sisson: "MAGA is more upset about Obama making fun of Trump's White House renovations than they are about Trump destroying the economy and plunging us into war nobody wanted."

Trump wants to preemptively toss out results of Alaska's Senate race because of two candidates having the same name on the ballot – with one labeled "incumbent". Trump says, "people are totally confused", and "a lot of people don't know what incumbent means". Scott Greenfield cites a prior quote from Trump: "'Most people don't know that dumb is spelled with a b' – DJT". From Keith Olberman: "Translation: HE just found out what 'incumbent' means".

From msgiggles: "But seriously, imagine telling someone 15 years ago that Donald Trump of Apprentice fame is the President and Nicki Minaj of Young Money and Beez in the Trap is the press secretary". Reacting to Nicki Minaj being considered for White House press secretary, Gov. Newsom's office posts: "We can only pray."

And finally, from chase: "A bunch of first graders were on my subway car this morning taking a field trip to a museum. They don't even know that's pretty much as good as it gets."
